Fehér Rózsa Pócsi utca 21 ☎99 335 270, 🌐feherrozsza.hu. Pleasant, spotless air-conditioned rooms (a rarity in Sopron) in a 300-year-old inn, 200m east of the centre. It also has an excellent restaurant (daily 11am–11pm) serving mains around 1600–2500Ft. Breakfast included. Doubles 12,000Ft

★ Gambrinus Fő tér 3. Inexpensive food, smiling waiters and great service in the middle of the main square? You'd better believe it, so go there before the tourists spoil this gem of a traditional restaurant that's housed in the old Town Hall. Try their Bramboráky (filled pancakes) for 1200–1800Ft. Daily 10am–midnight.

PÉCS

PÉCS is everyone's second-favourite town after Budapest, with a strong religious and scholarly heritage (Hungary's first university was founded here in 1367). Its remarkable history is summarized by its landmark mosque, synagogue and cathedral plus a clutch of fascinating Roman-era finds. The surrounding Mecsek hills help create a warm microclimate in the Pécs basin, where vineyards thrive.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Pécs is a small and navigable town, its cultural attractions concentrated in the Belváros (Old Town), radiating outwards from Széchenyi tér. Start with the synagogue by Kossuth tér, then head through charming Jokai tér towards the leafy western side, where you'll find the magnificent Peter and Paul cathedral.

Synagogue and Mosque of Gázi Kászim Pasha

Heading up Bajcsy-Zsilinszky utca from the bus terminal, you'll pass the imposing synagogue, which dominates Kossuth tér (April–Oct Mon–Fri & Sun 10am–4pm; 500Ft; ☎72 315 881). Its beautiful nineteenth-century interior is hauntingly impressive. Over 4000 Pécs Jews perished in the Holocaust and only a tenth of that number live in Pécs today. During the Ottoman occupation (1543–1686), Pécs' chief church, in a commanding position on Széchenyi tér 2, was converted into the Mosque of Gázi Kászim Pasha (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 1–5pm; 1000Ft; ☎30 373 8900), which now stands as the last remaining of seventeen mosques the Ottomans built in Pécs. The building has again been converted to serve as a church – and a cross is placed atop the crescent on its roof – but the underlying design is unmistakably Islamic.

Archeological World Heritage Sites and cathedral

From the centre of town, follow either Káptalan or Janus Pannonius utca towards the pristine Art Nouveau Peter and Paul Basilica (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 1–5pm; 1200Ft includes Crypt; 72 513 080, pecsigyhazmegye.hu); topped with all twelve Apostles, it is built on an epic scale. Next door, you can visit the Episcopal Palace, whose interior styles span four centuries providing a veritable history of European design (guided tours only daily 9am–4pm; 2000Ft). Nearby at Szent Istvan tér 17 (in the gardens just below the steps to the cathedral), the Cella Septichora visitor centre gives access to a wealth of Roman and early Christian archeological remains (April–Oct Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; Nov–March Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; 1700Ft; 72 224 755, pecsorokseg.hu). Pécs fell under Roman rule as the empire expanded into the Balkans in the second century, and became Christian with the conversion of the Emperor Constantine in 313 AD. The excavated rooms include the Peter and Paul burial chamber and a Christian cemetery site. Visitors can get a 360-degree view through glass panels placed above, below or on the side of the chambers.

Zsolnay Cultural Quarter

Pécs was the headquarters of the Zsolnay family, producers of unique Hungarian pottery and pyrogranite tiles. One of the highlights of the town is a stroll through the historic city, known as the Zsolnay Cultural Quarter, where fifteen historic buildings have been renovated, and whose parks and promenades feature 88 Zsolnay statues.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is a 20min walk south of the centre on Indóház tér. Sadly, there are no more international trains south from Pécs.

Destinations Budapest (9 daily; 3hr).

By bus The bus station is northeast of the train station by the Arkád shopping centre.

Destinations Budapest (8 daily; 3–4hr); Siófok (4 daily; 2–3hr); Sopron (1 daily; 6hr 30min); Szeged (7 daily; 3hr 20min).

Tourist information Tourinform, at Széchenyi tér 7 (April–Oct Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; Nov–March Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 9am–6pm; 72 213 315, iranypecs.hu), can book accommodation and English-language tours.

Az Elefánthoz Jokai tér 6 94 elefantos.hu. Excellent Italian serving delicious thin-crust pizzas on Pécs' best square for people-spotting. Beers 450Ft, pizzas from 1650Ft. Sun–Thurs 11.30am–11pm, Fri & Sat 11.30am–midnight.

★ Flekkén 1 Hungária utca 16. Popular budget tavern just off the centre serving a wide selection of dishes from pizzas (980Ft) to goulash (690Ft) and huge salads (Caesar 940Ft). Daily 11am–11pm.

Hungária Vendéglő Opposite Flekkén at Hungária utca 13 hungariavendeglo.hu. As cheap and popular as Flekkén 1, though not always open in the evenings. Two-course menu 590–850Ft. Sun–Thurs 11am–3pm, Fri & Sat 11am–9pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Ti-Ti-Tá Líceum utca 4 titita.club. The main club, bar and live music venue in Pécs, offering a variety of events.

Whether you like reggae, rock or techno, you'll find it here late into the night. Entrance fee varies depending on act. Beer 500Ft. Wed–Sat 7pm–late.

Eastern Hungary

The gorgeous town of Eger, set among the rolling Bükk hills, is a must on any trip to Hungary long enough to allow you to foray beyond Budapest, while oenophiles won't want to miss its celebrated "Valley of the Beautiful Woman".

EGER

Atmospheric EGER boasts a fabled fortress which famously repulsed Ottoman attack in 1552, expansive cobbled streets and a feeling of bonhomie which may well have something to do with its famous Bull's Blood cuvée wine (Egri Bikavér). A white version (Egri Csillagok) was launched in 2012 and is equally delicious. Eger's university, opposite the cathedral, ensures that, during term time, the town enjoys a nightlife out of proportion to its size.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Eger's Baroque centre is quite large and stretches either side of the main square, Dobó István tér, extending to the compact, cobbled streets around the castle.

Cathedral

The splendid Neoclassical cathedral or basilica on Pyrker tér (daily 9am–6pm; donation 300Ft; ☎ 36 470 970, eger-bazilika.plebana.hu) is the country's second-largest church after Estergom. Painted a Habsburg royal yellow, it is five minutes' walk southwest from the main square, approached by a grand set of steps. Inside, it is grandiosely decorated with toffee-coloured columns and pastel frescoes.

Archbishop's Palace

On pleasant, pedestrianized Széchenyi István utca 3, the newly restored Archbishop's Palace (April–Sept Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–March Tues–Sat 10am–4pm; 1800Ft) is a u-shaped Baroque building, housing a treasury, a history of the bishopric of Eger as well as the art collection of the town's prince-bishops. Although the bulk of the collection was moved to Budapest's Fine Arts Museum, some fine paintings are still on show here – among the oils on the second floor, Boy Lighting a Pipe by Hendrick ter Brugghe (1623) is said to be the earliest Western painting depicting smoking.

Minaret and the Turkish Tent

Walk down Sandor utca, cross the bridge and head to the left to climb Europe's most northerly minaret, an iconic memento of Eger's Ottoman occupation (daily: April & Oct 10am–5pm; May–Sept 10am–6pm; 300Ft). Legend has it that when the Habsburgs tried to pull down the minaret, even a hundred oxen couldn't topple it: in the end they just put a cross at the top. Returning to the castle via Dobó utca, you can pop into the authentically lavish Nine-Sided Turkish Tent, at no. 40, to admire its dazzling interior and sip a coffee brewed in hot sand (March–May & Sept–Dec Tues–Sun 10am–10pm; June–Aug daily 9am–11pm; free; egripasasatra.com).

Eger Castle

Uphill from Dobó István tér is Hungary's most famous castle (May–Sept daily 10am–6pm; Oct–April Tues–Sun 10am–4pm; 1600Ft including museums and casements; ☎ 36 312 744, egrigrav.hu). Inside, you get a powerful sense of the sheer scale of the fortress, and can easily imagine the scene in 1552 when soldiers and local women (who volunteered to help) saw off a Turkish force six times their number – a cannon is fired every day at 15.52 to commemorate the event. There are three museums inside the fortress, but it's the hundreds of metres of underground casements – reopened in May 2016 – that are an absolute must, and give you an insight into the techniques employed by the besiegers and the besieged.

Valley of the Beautiful Woman

A twenty-minute walk southwest of the town centre in an area known as Valley of the Beautiful Woman is a big square crammed with wine cellars, where you can enjoy back-to-back wine tastings – an integral part of a trip to Eger. A tourist train runs down here every thirty minutes from Egészszékház utca (10am–10pm; 800Ft).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The station is on Állomás tér. The centre is a 10min walk to the right of Deák Ferenc utca, just up from the station.

Destinations Budapest (9 daily; 2hr).

By bus The bus station is at Baróczy utca 2 behind the Basilica (☎ 36 517 777).

Destinations Budapest (2 hourly; 1hr 50min–2hr 10min); Debrecen (8 daily; 2hr 30min).

Tourist information The Tourinform office is at Bajcsy-Zsilinszky utca 9 (April–June & Sept–Oct Mon–Fri 8am–5pm, Sat 9am–1pm; July–Aug Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat & Sun 9am–1pm; Nov–March Mon–Fri 8am–5pm; ☎ 36 517 715, www.eger.hu). There's also a useful English-language expat site at www.ieger.com.

GETTING AROUND

By bike You can rent bikes from Prana at Bajcsy-Zsilinszky utca 17 (Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm; ☎ 36 419 221, www.pranaeger.hu) from 1500Ft/6hr.

ACCOMMODATION

As in most of Hungary, colleges convert their dorms to hostels in July and Aug. Try St Hedvig at Dobó tér 6 (☎ 36 320 788, kissne@szenhedvig.hu).

★ Aphrodite Apartments Dobó utca 22 ☎ 36 415 535, www.aphroditeapartmentsandcafe.com. Great-value large self-catering apartments in the middle of the historic centre, sleeping 2–4 people. Price includes wi-fi, parking and a room service breakfast. Reception at Görög Café next door. 12,000Ft

Tulipán Szépasszonyvölgy 71 ☎ 70 385 1166, www.tulipancamping.com. Basic campsite in the Valley of the Beautiful Woman – there's a dearth of shady spots, but with 40-odd wine cellars within walking distance, who cares? Open mid-March to mid-Oct. Per person 800Ft, plus per tent 900Ft

Várkapu Panzió Kossuth L. utca 21 ☎ 36 322 592, www.varkapupanizio.hu. Large, high-ceilinged parquet-and-pine rooms in this listed Baroque building just outside the castle gate. A/c only on the first floor. Breakfast included. Doubles 15,000Ft

EATING AND DRINKING

Biboros Bajcsy-Zsilinszky utca 6. The main watering hole of the Eger youth, this popular bar with a great inner courtyard stays busy until the early hours every day. Beer 320Ft. Mon–Fri 11am–3am, Sat 1pm–3am, Sun 3pm–midnight.

★ Macok Tinódi Sebestyén tér 4. Bistro serving innovative Hungarian dishes at prices that would normally put it outside the scope of this Guide were it not for its tremendous lunch menu served on weekdays from noon until it runs out: two dishes 1500Ft, three dishes 1800Ft out of a choice of five. Mon–Thurs noon–10pm, Fri & Sat noon–11pm, Sun noon–6pm.

The Great Plain

Spanning half of Hungary, the Great Plain is its key horseriding region – horseriding being a core part of Magyar folklore: this warrior people's stunning success in conquering this part of Europe is often attributed to their skill and agility as archers on horseback. The prime destinations here are Debrecen, and the nearby Hortobágy National Park. Further south, between the Danube and the Tisza rivers, are Kecskemét and Szeged, both towns with some interesting turn-of-the-twentieth-century architecture and well worth a stop.

KECSKEMÉT

Possible as a day-trip from Budapest, KECSKEMÉT is a small town chiefly remarkable for several striking pieces of architecture from Hungary's "Romantic Nationalist" period at the turn of the twentieth century. Its name comes from the Hungarian for goat, kecske, as its thirteenth-century bishop apparently used to give the cloven-footed creatures to each new Christian convert.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Kecskemét's main attraction is the ornate Cifra Palace on Szabadság tér – a large building on a street corner that you might overlook, were it not for the daring Art Nouveau design. Designed by Markus Géza in 1902, it now houses the Kecskemét Art Gallery (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; 700Ft; ☎ 76 480 776, www.muzeum.kecskemet.hu). Szabadság tér runs into the other main square, Kossuth tér, where the Town Hall stands tall, a masterpiece of Romantic Nationalist architecture. You can visit its Ceremonial Hall (Mon–Fri 10–11.30am; 300Ft), but must reserve first at the Tourinform office (see below). Finally, the Hungarian Photography Museum at Katona József tér 12 (Tues–Sun noon–5pm; 500Ft; ☎76 483 221, ☉fotomuzeum.hu) has excellent exhibitions of photography from the nineteenth century to the present day.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train It's about a 15min walk down Nagykörösi utca from the station at Kodály Zoltán tér, to Szabadság tér.

Destinations Budapest (15 daily; 1hr 15min); Szeged (10–12 daily; 1hr).

Destinations Budapest (1–3 hourly; 1hr 10min–2hr); Szeged (1–2 hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr).

Tourist information The Tourinform office is in the corner of the Town Hall at Kossuth tér 1 (mid-May to Sept Mon–Fri 8.30am–5.30pm, Sat 9am–1pm; Oct to mid-May Mon–Fri 8am–4pm; ☎76 481 065, ☉iranykecskemét.hu). They also rent out bikes (2500Ft/day).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

In July & Aug, hostel accommodation is available in the colleges at Piaristák tere 4 (☎76 506 912) and Nyíri utca 28 (☎76 486 322).

Fábíán Panzió Kápolna utca 14 ☎76 477 677, ☉panziofabian.hu. Very friendly pension with smart, spacious rooms around a beautifully tended garden. Note that beds are only 1.95m long. Breakfast included. Doubles 12,500Ft ★Lordok Kávézó Kossuth tér 6–7. Central café bar that offers enormous gateaux time-stamped for freshness (450Ft) during the day, while it later packs a young crowd in to sample the cocktails (600–1000Ft). Mid-May to Sept Sun–Thurs 9am–midnight, Fri & Sat 9am–2am; Oct to mid-May Sun–Thurs 9am–10pm, Fri & Sat 9am–midnight.

Technika Kavezó Rácozci utca 2 ☉technikakavezo.hu. An atmospheric rock club inside the old Kecskemét Synagogue. The mainly student crowd is attracted by the frequent gigs on offer and the cheap beer (400Ft/half litre). Mon–Wed noon–4pm, Thurs & Fri noon–midnight, Sat 8pm–midnight.

SZEGED

The most sophisticated city in the Great Plain, SZEGED straddles the River Tisza as it flows south towards Serbia. The present layout of the city, and its beautiful Art Nouveau architecture, date from after the great flood of 1879, when Szeged was rebuilt with strapping new buildings and squares thanks to foreign funding. The student population gives the city a real energy, and it's more than pleasant for a day or two's stopover.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Szeged's biggest monument is Dom tér, ringed by scholarly cloisters and busts of celebrated Hungarians. It was created in 1920 to complement the enormous double-spired Votive Church (daily 9am–7pm; Tower 700Ft; ☎62 420 32, ☉fogadalmitemplom.hu), which leading townspeople pledged to erect after the great flood. There's an interesting interactive exhibition on the town's history in the crypt (Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; 400Ft, combined ticket with Tower 1000Ft), while at 12.15pm and 5.45pm, the Musical Clock on the south side of the square comes alive, as figurines from inside pop out and trundle around to the chiming of bells.

Móra Ferenc Museum

The Móra Ferenc Museum at Roosevelt tér 1–3 (daily 10am–6pm; 1490Ft; ☎62 549 040, ☉moramuzeum.hu) contains folk art, fine art and archeological remains that offer an insight into the Avars, the people who ruled much of the Central-Eastern European Pannonian plain from the sixth to ninth centuries. From the museum, it's a short walk to green, pretty Széchenyi tér, home to the neo-Baroque town hall with its decorative tiled roof. Look out for the “Bridge of Sighs”, modelled on the Venetian original, which links the hall to a neighbouring house.

Great Synagogue

The Great Synagogue at Jósika utca 10 (April–Sept Mon–Fri 9am–noon & 1–4pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri 9am–2pm, 500Ft; ☎62 423 849, ☉zsina.goga.szeged.hu) was built between 1900 and 1913 by architect Lipót Baumhorn. It is one of Hungary's most beautiful buildings, sporting a blue glass dome with stars picked out in gold, and a stunning Art Nouveau interior that is full of life: the frescoes and stained glass replicate exactly the plants and flowers that the then chief rabbi, a keen botanist, thought might have grown in ancient Jerusalem.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is on Indóház tér, south of the centre, a short tram ride on the #1 or #2 (400Ft).

Destinations Budapest (hourly; 2hr 20min); Kecskemét (hourly; 1hr).

By bus The station is on Mars tér, a 10min walk west from Roosevelt tér down Hid utca.

Destinations Budapest (6 daily; 3hr); Kecskemét (1–2 hourly; 1hr 45min); Novi Sad (2 daily; 3hr); Pécs (6 daily; 3hr 30min); Subotica (3 daily; 1hr–1hr 30min).

Tourist information Tourinform, Dugonics tér 2 (April & May Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–1pm; June–Aug Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–1pm; Sept–March Mon–Fri 9am–5pm; ☎ 62 488 690, szegedtourism.hu). Very organized and helpful office that can help with accommodation – ask for their Art Nouveau walk guide. There is also a seasonal office in Széchenyi tér (June–Aug daily 8am–8pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Eötvös Loránd Youth Hostel Tisza Lajos krt 103 ☎ 62 544 388, szallas@eotvos.u-szeged.hu. In summer, Eötvös College rents beds in its dorms right in the centre of town. Email them to book in advance; if they're full they will suggest other colleges. July & Aug only. Dorms 3210Ft

Hostel 66 Petőfi Sándor sgt 66 ☎ 702 159 990, booking@hostel66.com. Basic but modern and clean hostel with uncrowded dorms and largish twin rooms not too far from the centre. Free coffee. Dorms €14, doubles €50

★ Lila Vendégház József Attila sgt 9 ☎ 62 635 166, lilahaz.hu. Friendly budget hotel with modern, well-furnished rooms, each with its own small hall – a nice touch. Free parking available, plus cooked breakfast for 1000Ft. Doubles 12,000Ft

Partfűrdő Camping Középkikötő sor 1–3 ☎ 62 430 843, szegedkemping.hu. Located on the riverbank in Újszeged, a 10min walk from the centre across the Belvárosi bridge, this large campsite has a swimming pool and private river beach. Open May–Sept. Per person 1490Ft, plus per tent 590Ft

EATING AND DRINKING

Corso Café Kárász utca 16. Open-fronted café/restaurant in Szeged's pedestrianized heart, attracting a student crowd for its large portions. Mains from 1200Ft. Mon–Wed 9am–midnight, Thurs & Fri 9am–1am, Sat 10am–1am, Sun 10am–midnight.

Dugonics Teri Kiszvendéglő Dugonics tér 2. A patisserie with a good restaurant at the back, where tall indoor yuccas rise above the cherry-wood tables. Three-course menus 1200Ft during the week, 1500Ft at weekends. Daily 7am–9pm.

★ Halászcserda Roosevelt tér 12–14 ☎ 62 555 980, szegedihalaszcsarda.hu. A Szeged riverside institution, where a cauldron of brilliant-red fish goulash goes down swimmingly with a glass of local Riesling. Mains from 1700Ft; half-portions available (and, frankly, recommended). Reservations recommended. Daily 11am–midnight.

DEBRECEN

DEBRECEN and its surrounding countryside is where you should go to experience the real Hungary of the betyár (cowboys) and the czardas (inns). Far from Budapest and its Germanic influences, this is a city where the nineteenth-century patriotism that awoke the Hungarian nation is still running strong, aided and abetted both by a Calvinist stubbornness and by the youthful idealism of its large student population. Although it's Hungary's second city, it is both easy to manage and – with a forest within city limits – as close to nature as a city can be. It is also the gateway to the stunning Hortobágy National Park, a piece of Asian steppe in Central Europe.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Debrecen's identity as the centre of Calvinism in Hungary is confirmed by the dominating presence of the Great Reformed Church on Kossuth tér (March–May Mon–Fri 9am–4pm, Sat 9am–1pm, Sun noon–4pm; June–Aug Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–1pm, Sun noon–4pm; Sept & Oct Mon–Fri 9am–4pm, Sat 9am–1pm, Sun noon–4pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Fri 10am–3pm, Sat 9am–1pm, Sun noon–4pm; 600Ft; ☎ 52 412 695, nagytemplom.hu), with its sparse and austere interior. Inside, you can browse the Hungarian Declaration of Independence (in English), which Lajos Kossuth proclaimed here on April 13, 1849, and see his chair and memorabilia, or simply take the lift up the Eastern tower to the panorama bridge for a bird's-eye view of the city.

Behind the church is the Déri museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 2000Ft; ☎ 52 322 207, derimuzeum.hu), whose permanent art collection includes Munkácsy's awe-inspiring paintings of Christ.

The other focus of the town is located at the end of the #1 tram line running north from the station via Kossuth tér: the area around the University and The Great Forest (Nagyerdő), which is really a fancy name for the admittedly large city park. There, you can find restaurants, bars, a botanical garden, a zoo and a large amusement park, as well as the august Aquaticum spa (aquaticum.hu).

By plane The airport (served by Wizz Air) is only about 10min by bus south of the main train station. An airport shuttle runs regularly between the airport and the train station (300Ft).

Destinations London Luton (10 weekly; 2hr 35min).

By train The train station is south of town on Petőfi tér and joined to the centre by tram #1.

Destinations Budapest (hourly; 2hr 30min); Hortobágy (10 daily; 45min).

By bus The bus station is about a 15min walk west of the centre on Külső-Vásártér, at the end of Széchenyi utca.

Destinations Eger (8 daily; 2hr 20min); Szeged (3 daily; 5hr).

Tourist information Tourinform is at 20 Piac utca (mid-June to Aug Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–1pm; Sept to mid-June Mon–Fri 9am–5pm; ☎ 52 412 250). They have a free bicycle scheme (20,000Ft deposit) and sightseeing tours in English (2hr; 15,000Ft per group).

GETTING AROUND

By tram and bus Debrecen's public transport is very easy to negotiate, with tram line #1 running from the train station north to the university and looping back again, taking in all important sights. Line #2 heads toward the residential areas in the northwestern part of the city. A bus ticket costs 300Ft (buy from kiosks). A one-day card valid on trams and buses costs 1000Ft, while a three-day card costs 2400Ft. Public transport information is on ☎ dkv.hu.

ACCOMMODATION

Debrecen University (☎ 52 512 950 & ☎ 52 512 940) offers beds in various student residences around the town in July and Aug.

★ Regi Posta Széchenyi utca 6 ☎ 52 325 325, regiposta.hu. Great location, great hosts and great inclusive breakfast in the oldest building in Debrecen, where Sweden's Charles XII stayed in 1714 (you can book his room). Free parking and an excellent Hungarian traditional restaurant in the basement. Doubles €57

★ Sziv Panzió Sziv utca 11 ☎ szivpanzio.hu. Spotlessly clean pension in a quiet residential street a 10min walk from the station. The red ochre inner courtyard has a covered wooden benchstand, great for sipping a coffee in the summer. Free parking. Breakfast 1000Ft. Doubles 7800Ft

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

★ Palma Simonyi út 44 ☎ palmapub.hu. Feels like an English pub, albeit of the gastro persuasion, and the food is as good as the drinks. Pizzas 1600Ft, with a weekday three-course lunch menu for only 1100Ft. Daily 10am–midnight.

★ Roncsbar Csapó utca 27 ☎ roncsbar.hu. When you walk into Debrecen's only "ruin pub" you think you've entered the scene of an Iron Maiden album cover – no wonder, as it belongs to the drummer of local metal band, Tanksapda. Don't worry, they're friendly and the beer is cheap (360Ft). Mon, Tues & Sun 11am–midnight, Wed & Thurs 11am–2am, Fri & Sat 11am–4am.

Introduction

In both Northern Ireland and the Republic, Ireland's lures are its landscape and people – the rain-hazed loughs and wild coastlines, the talent for conversation and wealth of traditional music. While economic growth has transformed Ireland's cities, the countryside remains relatively unchanged.

Ireland's west draws most visitors; its coastline and islands – especially Aran – combine vertiginous cliffs, boulder-strewn wastes and dramatic mountains. The interior is less spectacular, though the southern pastures and low wooded hills are classic landscapes. Northern Ireland's principal highlight is the bizarre basalt formation of the Giant's Causeway.

Dublin is an extraordinary mix of youthfulness and tradition, of revitalized Georgian squares and vibrant pubs. Belfast has undergone a massive rejuvenation, while the cities of Cork and Galway sparkle with energy.

No introduction can cope with the complexities of Ireland's politics, which still permeate most aspects of daily life in many areas in the North. However, regardless of partisan politics, Irish hospitality is as warm as the brochures say, on both sides of the border.

CHRONOLOGY

- c. 3000 BC Neolithic tombs first constructed.
- c. 500 BC Celts arrive, heralding the Iron Age.

- 2011 Queen Elizabeth makes historic first State visit to Ireland.
- 2015 Ireland becomes the first country to approve same-sex marriage by popular vote.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Ireland has five international airports: Dublin, Cork, Shannon and Knock in the Republic, and Belfast International in the North. Regional airports, which also serve Britain, are Belfast City, Derry, Donegal, Galway, Kerry and Sligo.

Ferry routes from the UK comprise Cairnryan–Larne, Fishguard–Rosslare, Fleetwood–Larne, Holyhead–Dublin, Holyhead–Dún Laoghaire, Isle of Man–Belfast, Isle of Man–Dublin, Liverpool–Belfast, Liverpool–Dublin, Pembroke–Rosslare, Stranraer–Belfast and Troon–Larne. Travelling by ferry without a vehicle is not expensive (about €80 return), but taking a car is pricey (€200–300 in high season).

GETTING AROUND

You can save money on rail and bus services by booking online and buying multi-journey tickets in advance; the Freedom of Northern Ireland/Irish Rover tickets give you unlimited bus/rail travel for three, five, eight or fifteen days. See translink.co.uk or buseireann.ie.

BY TRAIN

In the Republic, Iarnród Éireann (irishrail.ie) operates trains to most major towns and cities; book online for substantial discounts. Few routes run north–south, so, although you can easily get to the west coast by train, you can't use the railways to explore. The Dublin–Belfast line is the only cross-border service, and the journey takes a little over two hours (€20). NI Railways (✉translink.co.uk) operates just a few routes in Northern Ireland.

The Global and One Country InterRail (see p.34) passes are valid in Ireland – though you need two separate One Country passes for the Republic and Northern Ireland.

BY BUS

The express buses of the Republic's Bus Éireann (✉buseireann.ie) cover most of the island, including several cross-border services. Citylink also runs a good service between Dublin, Galway, Limerick and Cork (✉citylink.ie) at slightly cheaper rates. Aircoach (✉aircoach.ie) run buses direct from Dublin airport to Cork. Bus fares are generally cheaper than trains, especially midweek. Remote villages may only have a couple of buses a week, so it's essential to find out the times – major bus stations stock free timetables. Private buses operate on major routes throughout the Republic and are often cheaper than Bus Éireann: J.J. Kavanagh & Sons, for instance, provide an efficient service from Dublin airport to Shannon airport, Limerick, Galway, Kilkenny and Waterford (✉056 883 1106, ✉jjkavanagh.ie). In the North, Ulsterbus (✉translink.co.uk) runs regular and reliable services.

BY CAR

Driving is the best way to see the country, and car rental, if shared between a few people, can also work out cheaper than public transport. Budget (✉090 662 7711, ✉budget.ie) and Thrifty (✉01 844 1944, ✉thrifty.ie) have the cheapest rates, around €15–60 per day depending on the season. Book online for the best deals. Note that the driver must be over 25 years of age.

BY BIKE

Cycling is an enjoyable and reasonably safe way of seeing Ireland. In the Republic, bikes can be rented in most towns and Raleigh is the main operator (€15/day, €70/week; from €100 deposit; ✉01 465 9659, ✉raleigh.ie); local dealers (including some hostels) are cheaper. It costs an extra €10 to carry a bike on a bus, and €3–10 on a train, though not all buses or trains carry bikes; check in advance. In the North, bike rental (around £15/day) is more limited; tourist offices have lists of local operators. Taking a bike on a bus costs half the adult one-way fare (up to a maximum of £5) and, on a train, a quarter of the adult one-way fare (with no upper limit).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostels run by An Óige (Irish Youth Hostel Association; ✉anoige.ie) and HINI (Hostelling International Northern Ireland; ✉hini.org.uk) are affiliated to Hostelling International. Overnight prices start at €11–17 in the Republic and £9.50–13 in the North. Most Irish hostels are independent hostels, which usually belong to either Independent Holiday Hostels (✉01 836 4700, ✉hostels-ireland.com) or the Independent Hostels network (✉074 973 0130, ✉independenthostelsireland.com). In the Republic, expect to pay €12–20 for a dorm bed, €17–32 (rising to €46 in some Dublin hostels) per person for private rooms where available; in the North, it's £9–14/£16–27.

B&Bs vary enormously, but most are welcoming, warm and clean. Expect to pay from around €30/£25 per person sharing; most hotels are a little pricier but you can find bargains online. Booking ahead is always advisable during high season and major festivals.

Camping costs around €8–12 a night in the Republic, £7–10 in the North. In out-of-the-way places it may be possible to camp in the wild, but ask the landowner's permission first: farmers in popular tourist areas may ask for a small fee. Some hostels also let you camp for around €8/£5 per person.

FOOD AND DRINK

Irish food is meat-orientated. B&Bs usually provide a "traditional" Irish breakfast of sausages, bacon and eggs (although many offer vegetarian alternatives). Pub lunch staples are usually meat or fish and two veg, with a few veggie options, while specifically vegetarian places are sparse outside major cities and popular tourist areas. All towns have fast-food outlets, but traditional fish and chips is a better bet, especially on the coast. For the occasional treat, there are some very good seafood restaurants, particularly along the southwest and west coasts. Most towns have daytime cafés serving a selection of affordable hot dishes, salads, soups, sandwiches and cakes.

DRINK

The stereotypical view of the “Irish national pastime” has a certain element of truth; especially in rural areas, the pub is the social heart of the community and the focus for the proverbial craic (pronounced “crack”), a particular blend of Irish fun involving good company, witty conversation and laughter, frequently against a backdrop of music. The classic Irish drink is Guinness, which is made in Dublin, while the Cork stouts, Beamish and Murphy’s, have their devotees. For English-style keg bitter, try Smithwicks. Irish whiskeys are world-famous – try Paddy’s, Jameson’s or Bushmills.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

With the huge influx of visitors to Ireland in recent years, the country has acquired an increasingly cosmopolitan feel, particularly in the big cities, but the sense of national identity and heritage remains strong. Traditional music sessions are still the primary form of evening entertainment in pubs, especially in rural areas.

Despite the decreasing influence of Catholicism in Ireland, family values still reign. It’s hard to miss the hospitality and friendliness that most clearly define the Irish.

Smoking is banned in all indoor public places. In restaurants and cafés, a ten percent tip is generally expected.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

landscapes (see www.irishtrails.ie for suggested routes). There are great opportunities for horseriding (see www.discoverireland.ie); a lovely ride is along the white sands of Connemara. Watersports are popular: Ireland is increasingly praised for its surfing spots, such as Portrush in the north, Bundoran in Donegal, and Lahinch in Clare (see www.isasurf.ie).

The two great Gaelic sports, hurling (the oldest field game in Europe, and similar to hockey) and Gaelic football (a mixture of soccer and rugby, but predating both), are very popular spectator sports. Croke Park Stadium in Dublin is home to the big fixtures (see www.gaa.ie and www.crokepark.ie).

Horse racing (www.goracing.ie) looms large on the sporting agenda: you’ll never be far from a race, whether it’s a big racecourse like Galway or a soggy village affair.

COMMUNICATIONS

Main post offices are open Monday to Friday 9am to 5.30pm, Saturday 9am to 1pm. Stamps and phonecards are also often available in newsagents. Public phones are becoming increasingly rare. International calls are cheaper at weekends or after 6pm (Mon–Fri). To call the Republic from Northern Ireland dial 00353 followed by the area code (without the initial 0) and the local number (note cross-border calls are charged at the international rate). To call the North from the Republic use the code 048, followed by the eight-digit local number. Wi-fi access is widely available in hotels and hostels, and pubs and cafés; just ask the proprietor for the log-in details.

www.discovernorthernireland.com Northern Ireland Tourist Board.

www.heritageireland.com Information on Ireland’s main heritage sites.

www.visitdublin.ie Accommodation, eating and drinking listings for the capital.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

In the Republic ☎ 112 or 999; in Northern Ireland ☎ 999.

EMERGENCIES

The Republic's police are known as the Gardaí (pronounced "gar-dee"), while the PSNI (Police Service of Northern Ireland) operates in the North. Hospitals and medical facilities are high quality; you'll rarely be far from a hospital, and both Northern Ireland and the Republic are within the European Health Insurance Card scheme. Most pharmacies open standard shop hours, though in large towns some may stay open until 10pm; they dispense only a limited range of drugs without a doctor's prescription.

INFORMATION

Tourist offices are abundant in Ireland, in the smaller as well as larger towns on the tourist trail. Fáilte Ireland provides tourist information in the Republic; the Northern Ireland Tourist Board in the North. They provide free maps of the city/town and immediate vicinity, and sell a selection of more extensive and specialized maps.

MONEY AND BANKS

Currency in the Republic is the euro (€); in Northern Ireland it is the pound sterling (£). Standard bank hours are Monday to Friday 9.30am to 4.30pm (Republic and Northern Ireland). There are ATMs throughout Ireland – though not in all villages – and most accept a variety of cards. The exchange rate at the time of writing was €1.25/£1.

STUDENT DISCOUNTS

A student card usually gives reduced entrance charges of up to fifty percent, and if you're visiting sites run by the Heritage Service in the Republic (www.heritageireland.ie) it's worth buying a Heritage Card (€25, students €10), which provides a year's unlimited admission.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Business hours are roughly Monday to Saturday 9am to 6pm, with some late evenings (usually Thurs) and Sunday opening. Museums and attractions are usually open regular shop hours, though outside the cities, many only open during the summer. Some museums are closed on Mondays. Cafés usually open daily from 8am till 6pm, and most restaurants from noon till 10pm. Pubs operate strict trading hours, and those without a late-night licence must close at 11.30pm Sunday to Thursday and 12.30am on Friday & Saturday. Nightclubs close at 2.30am.

Public holidays in the Republic are: Jan 1, St Patrick's Day (March 17), Easter Monday, May Day (first Mon in May), June Bank Holiday (first Mon in June), August Bank Holiday (first Mon in Aug), October Bank Holiday (Halloween, last Mon in Oct), December 25 and 26. Note that some places may also close on Good

THE IRISH LANGUAGE

Though Irish is the first language of the Republic, you'll rarely hear it spoken outside the areas officially designated as Gaeltacht ("Irish-speaking"), namely West Cork, West Kerry, Connemara, some of Mayo and Donegal, and a tiny part of Meath. However, two important words you may encounter sometimes appear on the doors of pub toilets: Fir (for men) and Mná (for women). You'll also find the word Fáilte (welcome) popping up frequently as you enter towns and tourist spots. A few other words to get your tongue round:

Sláinte	cheers, good health
Gardaí	police
An lár	city centre
Dia dhuit	hello
Slán	goodbye

More information on the Gaeltacht areas is available at www.gaelsaioire.ie.

Friday. In the North: January 1, St Patrick's Day (March 17), Good Friday, Easter Monday, May Day (first Mon in May), Spring Bank Holiday (last Mon in May), July 12, August Bank Holiday (last Mon in Aug), December 25 and 26.

Dublin and around

Set on the banks of the River Liffey, DUBLIN is a splendidly monumental city with a cosmopolitan feel and an internationally renowned nightlife. It was the centre of Ireland's booming economy during the "Celtic Tiger" years up to 2007, which brought rejuvenation and renewed energy, and which still remains despite high unemployment.

Dublin began as the Viking trading post Dubh Linn (Dark Pool), which soon amalgamated with the Celtic settlement of Baile Átha Cliath (Town of the Hurdle Ford) – still the Irish name for the city. The city's fabric is essentially Georgian, hailing from when the Anglo-Irish gentry invested their income in new townhouses. After the 1801 Act of Union, Dublin entered a long economic decline, but remained the focus of much of the agitation that eventually led to independence.

The city is an excellent base for excursions to the picturesque mountains, lakes, forested estates and rural villages of County Wicklow, or to the five-thousand-year-old passage tombs at Newgrange in the Boyne Valley, County Meath.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Dublin's fashionable Southside is home to the city's trendy bars, restaurants and shops – especially in the cobbled alleys of Temple Bar leading down to the River Liffey – and most of its historic monuments, centred on Trinity College, Grafton Street and St Stephen's Green. But the Northside, with its long-standing working-class neighbourhoods and inner-city communities, is the real heart of the city. Across the bridges from Temple Bar are the shopping districts around O'Connell Street, where you'll find a flavour of the old Dublin. Here, you'll also come across a fair amount of graceful – if slightly shabby – residential streets and squares, with plenty of interest in the museums and cultural centres around the elegant Parnell Square.

The Vikings sited their assembly and burial ground near what is now College Green, a three-sided square where Trinity College is the most famous landmark.

Trinity College

Founded in 1592, Trinity College played a major role in the development of a Protestant Anglo-Irish tradition: right up to 1966, Catholics had to obtain a special dispensation to study here, though now they make up the majority of the students. The stern grey and mellow red-brick buildings are ranged around cobbled quadrangles in a larger version of the quads at Oxford and Cambridge. The Old Library (June–Sept Mon–Sat 8.30am–5pm, Sun 9.30am–5pm; Oct–May Mon–Sat 9.30am–5pm, Sun noon–4.30pm; €11, students €9; @bookofkells.ie) owns numerous Irish manuscripts; pride of place goes to the illustrated ninth-century Book of Kells, which contains the four Gospels written in Latin on vellum, the script adorned with patterns and fantastic animals intertwined with the text's capital letters. The first of the great Irish illuminated manuscripts, the Book of Durrow, which dates from between 650 and 680, is also on display.

Grafton Street and around

Just south of College Green, the streets around pedestrianized Grafton Street frame Dublin's quality shopping area – featuring boutiques, department stores and designer outlets, as well as some secondhand, more alternative, shops. At the southern end of Grafton Street lies St Stephen's Green, whose pleasant gardens and ponds are a nice picnic spot on a sunny day. At 15 St Stephen's Green you'll find the charming Little Museum of Dublin (daily 9.30am–5pm, Thurs until 8pm; €7). Housed in a magnificent eighteenth-century townhouse, it charts the history of Dublin since 1900. Running parallel to Grafton Street, Kildare Street harbours the imposing Leinster House, built in 1745 as the Duke of Leinster's townhouse, and now the seat of the Irish parliament, the Dáil (pronounced "doyle").

National Museum of Archaeology and the Natural History Museum

Alongside the Dáil is the National Museum of Archaeology (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 2–5pm; free; @museum.ie), the repository of the treasures of ancient Ireland. Much of its prehistoric gold was found in peat bogs, along with the Lurgan Longboat and the collection of "Bog Bodies", preserved victims of Iron Age human sacrifice. The Treasury and the Viking exhibitions display such masterpieces as the Ardagh Chalice and Tara Brooch – perhaps the greatest piece of Irish metalwork – and St Patrick's Bell.

The Natural History Museum (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 2–5pm; free) has more than 10,000 animals from Ireland and overseas on display, some dating from the eighteenth century when the museum was first opened.

Merrion Square and the National Gallery

The back of Leinster House overlooks Merrion Square, the finest Georgian plaza in Dublin. No. 1 was once the home of Oscar Wilde, and a flamboyant statue on the green opposite shows the writer draped insouciantly over a rock; on Sundays the square's railings are adorned with artwork for sale. On the west side of the square, the National Gallery (Mon–Sat 9.30am–5.30pm, Thurs until 8.30pm, Sun noon–5.30pm; free) features a collection of works by European Old Masters and French Impressionists, but the real draw is the trove of Irish paintings, best of which is the permanent exhibition devoted to Ireland's best-known painter, Jack B. Yeats.

Temple Bar

Dame Street, leading west from College Green, marks the southern edge of the Temple Bar quarter, where you'll find a hub of lively restaurants, pubs, boutiques and arts centres. At night the area plays host to tourists out looking for a good time, as well as to stag and hen parties – so expect a particularly raucous kind of fun.

Dublin Castle

Tucked away behind City Hall, Dublin Castle (Mon–Sat 10am–4.45pm, Sun noon–4.45pm; €6.50; @dublincastle.ie) was founded by the Normans, and symbolized British power over Ireland for seven hundred years. Though parts date back to 1207, it was largely rebuilt in the eighteenth century following fire damage. Tours of the State Apartments reveal much about the extravagant tastes and foibles of the viceroys, and the real highlight is the excavations in the Undercroft, where elements of Norman and Viking Dublin are still visible. The Clock Tower building now houses the Chester Beatty Library (Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 11am–5pm, Sun 1–5pm; Oct–April closed Mon; free; @cbl.ie), a sumptuous and massive collection of books, objects and paintings amassed by the twentieth-century American collector Sir Arthur Chester Beatty on his travels around Europe and Asia.

Christ Church Cathedral

Over the brow of Dublin Hill, Christ Church Cathedral (June–Sept Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 12.30–2.30pm & 4.30–6pm; Oct–May Mon–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 12.30–2.30pm; €6; @christchurchdublin.ie) was built between 1172 and 1240 and heavily restored in the 1870s. The crypt museum now houses a small selection of the cathedral's treasures, the least serious of which include a mummified cat and rat, found trapped in an organ pipe in the 1860s.

Located in a part of the cathedral known as Synod Hall, Dublinia (daily 10am–6pm; €8.50; @dublinia.ie) is home to some brilliantly interactive and hands-on exhibits focusing on Viking and medieval Dublin.

St Patrick's Cathedral

Five minutes' walk south from Christ Church is Dublin's other great Norman edifice, St Patrick's Cathedral (Mon–Fri 9.30am–5pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 9–10.30am, 12.30–2.30pm, 4.30–6pm; €6; stpatrickscathedral.ie), founded in 1191, and replete with relics of Jonathan Swift, author of Gulliver's Travels, its dean from 1713 to 1747. Just round the corner on St Patrick's Close sits Marsh's Library (9.30am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm, closed Tues & Sun; €3; marshlibrary.ie), a magnificently preserved late Renaissance public library.

Guinness Brewery

West of Christ Church, the Guinness Brewery covers a large area on either side of James's Street. Guinness is the world's largest single beer-exporting company, dispatching some 300 million pints a year. Set in the centre of the brewery, the Guinness Storehouse (daily 9.30am–7pm; July & Aug until 8pm; €20 including pint of Guinness, ten percent discount if you book online; guinness-storehouse.com) serves as a kind of theme park for Guinness-lovers – and even if you're not a fan, you can't fail to be entertained by the interactive displays and activities, which include learning how to pour the perfect pint and watching some of those great Guinness TV ads again. Visits to the Storehouse end with reputedly the best pint of Guinness in Dublin, in the panoramic Gravity Bar at the top of the building, with amazing views over the city.

Irish Museum of Modern Art

Regular buses (#26, #51, #79 and #90) run along The Quays to Heuston Station from where it's a five-minute walk to the Royal Hospital Kilmainham, Ireland's first Neoclassical building, dating from 1680, which now houses the Irish Museum of Modern Art (Tues–Sat 10am–5.30pm, Wed opens 10.30am, Sun noon–5.30pm; free; imma.ie). Its permanent collection of Irish and international art includes works by Gilbert and George, Damien Hirst, Sean Scully, Francesco Clemente and Peter Doig.

General Post Office and the Monument of Light

Halfway up O'Connell Street looms the General Post Office (Mon–Sat

8.30am–6pm; free), the insurgents' headquarters in the 1916 Easter Rising; only the frontage survived the fighting, and you can still see where bullets were embedded in the pillars. The building is still a functioning post office, and home to a state-of-the-art museum dedicated to the Rising (daily 9am–5.30pm; €10; gpowitnessthehistory.ie). Across the road on the corner of Essex Street North is a statue of James Joyce. At the same junction, where the city's most famous landmark, Nelson's Pillar, once stood (it was blown up by the IRA on the fiftieth anniversary of the Easter Rising in 1966), stands a huge, illuminated stainless-steel spire – the Monument of Light – representing the city's hopes for the new millennium.

Parnell Square

At the northern end of O'Connell Street lies Parnell Square, one of the first of Dublin's Georgian squares. Its plain red-brick houses are broken by the grey-stone Hugh Lane Gallery (Tues–Thurs 9.45am–6pm, Fri 9.45am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm; free; hughlane.ie), once the Earl of Charlemont's townhouse and the focus of fashionable Dublin. The gallery exhibits work by Irish and international masters, and features a reconstruction of Francis Bacon's working studio. Almost next door, the Dublin Writers Museum (Mon–Sat 9.45am–4.45pm, Sun 11am–4.30pm; €7.50; writersmuseum.com) whisks you through Irish literary history from early Christian writings up to Samuel Beckett. Two blocks east of Parnell Square, at 35 North Great George's St, the James Joyce Centre (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €5; jamesjoyce.ie) runs intriguing walking tours of the novelist's haunts (€10, combined tickets with the Dublin Writers Museum are available; ☎01 878 8547).

Old Jameson Distillery

Fifteen minutes west of O'Connell Street, on Bow Street, is the Old Jameson Distillery (Mon–Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–6pm; €16; jamesonwhiskey.com). Tours cover the history and method of distilling what the Irish called uisce beatha (anglicized to whiskey and meaning “water of life”) – which differs from Scotch whisky by being three times distilled and lacking a peaty undertone – and end with a tasting session. The Distillery also has two bars, which pride themselves on their Jameson cocktails, and a restaurant (9am–4.45pm; light lunch €12).

Phoenix Park

Phoenix Park is one of the world’s largest urban parks, a great escape from the hustle and bustle of the centre (bus #10 from O’Connell Street or #25 from Wellington Quay); originally priory land, it’s now home to the Presidential Lodge, Áras an Uachtaráin (free tours every Sat 10.30am–4.30pm; @president.ie), and Dublin Zoo (daily: Feb 9.30am–5pm; March–Sept 9.30am–6pm; Oct 9.30am–5.30pm; Nov–Jan 9.30am–4pm; €17; @dublinozoo.ie).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport (@dublinairport.com) is 10km north of the city; Airlink buses #747 and #748 run to Busáras bus station (every 10–20min; 30min; €6 one-way, €10 return), or there are regular Dublin Bus services #16, #41, #41B (every 10–20min; €1.85). Aircoach (@aircoach.ie) run services to the city centre and South Dublin (€6–14 one-way/€10–21 return depending on distance travelled), and a cheap, comfortable coach all the way to Cork (€16/24) and Belfast (€17/24). A taxi to Dublin centre should cost €25.

By train Trains terminate at either Connolly Station on the Northside, or Heuston Station on the Southside.

Destinations (Connolly) Belfast (8 daily Mon–Sat, 5 Sun; 2hr 10min); Drogheda (33 daily; 30min–1hr); Rosslare (3–6 daily; 3hr); Sligo (6–11 daily; 3hr 10min–3hr 30min).

Destinations (Heuston) Cork (12–15 daily; 2hr 50min); Ennis (4 daily, via Limerick; 2hr 55min–3hr 40min); Galway (9–11 daily; 2hr 20min–2hr 50min); Kilkenny (6 daily Mon–Sat, 4 on Sun; 1hr 40min–1hr 50min); Killarney (7 daily; 3hr 30min–3hr 50min); Westport (3 daily; 3hr 20min–3hr 40min).

By bus Bus Éireann coaches arrive at Busáras bus station, off Beresford Place, just behind The Custom House; private buses use a variety of central locations.

Destinations Belfast (20 daily; 2hr 55min); Cashel (6 daily; 2hr 50min); Cork (6 daily; 4hr 25min); Derry (11 daily; 4hr); Donegal town (11 daily; 3hr 45min–4hr 10min); Doolin (2 daily; 6hr 15min); Drogheda (35 daily; 1hr 20min); Ennis (13 daily; 4hr 20min–6hr 50min); Enniskillen (11 daily; 2hr 20min–3hr); Galway (15 daily; 3hr 30min); Kilkenny (7 daily; 2hr 10min–2hr 30min); Killarney (5 daily; 6hr 10min);

Newgrange (3 daily; 1hr 40min–1hr 55min); Portrush (1–2 daily; 5hr 40min); Rosslare Harbour (18 daily; 3hr 20min); Sligo (7 daily; 4hr); Westport (4 daily; 5hr–5hr 40min).

By boat Ferries dock at either Dún Laoghaire, 10km south of the city centre, from where DART railway connects to the city (every 15min; €3.25; 20min), or at the closer Dublin Port, where the #53 bus (€2.70; 35min) meets arriving ferries; through-coaches from Britain usually drop you at Busáras.

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office Suffolk St, off College Green (Mon–Sat 9am–5.30pm, Sun 10.30am–3pm; @visitdublin.com), with branches at 14 Upper O’Connell St, the Dún Laoghaire ferry terminal and the airport.

Travel agency USIT on Aston Quay, by O’Connell Bridge (Mon–Fri 10am–6.30pm, Thurs until 7pm, Sat 9.30am–5pm; @016021904, @usit.ie).

Bus tours City Sightseeing (@citysightseeingdublin.com) and Dublin Bus Tours (@dublinsightseeing.ie) run similar hop-on, hop-off tours to all the major sights in the city (€19–22); both collect from the front of Trinity College.

Walking tours Tour Gratis (@neweuropetours.eu) operate free walking tours, picking up from all of the listed hostels (see p.580) every morning. The fantastic 1916 Rebellion walking tours (March–Oct Mon–Sat 11.30am, Sun 1pm; meet at the International Bar, 23 Wicklow St; €13; @1916rising.com) visit sights of interest relating to the 1916 Rising.

Organized pub crawls Dublin Literary Pub Crawl (April–Oct daily 7.30pm; Nov–March Thurs–Sun 7.30pm; meet at The Duke Pub, 9 Duke St; €12; @dublinpubcrawl.com); and the more raucous Backpacker Pubcrawl (daily 8pm; meet at The Mercantile on Dame St; €12; @backpackerpubcrawl.com).

GETTING AROUND

Pre-paid Leap Cards, available online (@leapcard.ie; refundable deposit of €5) or from newsagents, are valid on Dublin Bus, LUAS trams, DART and commuter rail services, and work out cheaper than paying cash fares.

By bus Dublin has an extensive route network and all buses are exact fare only. Fares range from €0.75 for short city-centre journeys to €3.30, and a one-day bus pass is €7.60. Free bus timetables are available from Dublin Bus, 59 Upper O’Connell St. Nitelink night buses cost €6.50.

By tram The LUAS tram service operates along two routes: from Connolly Station to Tallaght via Abbey St to Heuston Station, and from St Stephen’s Green to Sandyford. Tickets cost €1.90–3.10 one-way, €3.50–5.60 return.

By train The DART railway links Howth and Malahide to the north of the city with Bray and Greystones to the south via Pearse, Tara St and Connolly stations in the city centre (maximum fare €4.60). A trip on the DART is an activity in itself, affording stunning views of the Dublin suburbs and coastline. Get off at Howth, Malahide, Sandymount, Dún Laoghaire, Killiney, Bray or Greystones for pleasant seaside walks.

Bike rental Cycle Ways, 185 Parnell St ☎ 01 873 4748.

ACCOMMODATION

Although Dublin has lots of accommodation, anywhere central fills up at weekends, around St Patrick's Day (March 17), at Easter and in high summer, so it's wise to book ahead. The cheaper places are generally north of the river, especially around the bus and train stations northeast of the centre. All hostels listed provide free breakfast.

HOSTELS

Avalon House 55 Augier St ☎ 01 475 0001, avalon-house.ie. Bustling and friendly hostel with slightly cramped dorms but plenty of twin or four-bedded rooms. Performers get a free night's accommodation for an evening recital in the café. Dorms €16, doubles €50

Barnacles 19 Temple Lane ☎ 01 671 6277, barnacles.ie. Hugely popular hostel on a cobbled street in the heart of Temple Bar. Dorms €22, doubles €68

★ Four Courts Hostel 15–17 Merchants Quay ☎ 01 672 5839, [fourcourts hostel.com](http://fourcourts hostel.com). In a very central location, this hostel is housed in Georgian buildings overlooking the River Liffey. Excellent facilities and helpful staff. Dorms €17, doubles €48

Generator Hostel Smithfield Square ☎ 01 901 0222, generatorhostels.com. Chic and contemporary hostel in a great location, adjacent to the Jameson Distillery. Abbott Lodge Guesthouse 87–88 Gardiner St Lower ☎ 01 836 5438, abbott-lodge.com. Georgian townhouse with large, high-ceilinged rooms and floral bedspreads. Welcoming and family-run with plenty of kitsch decor involving fake flowers and ornaments. Singles €69, doubles €89

Charles Stewart Guesthouse 5/6 Parnell Square ☎ 01 878 0350, charlesstewart.ie. Very reasonably priced accommodation in elegant Georgian surroundings, opposite the Gate Theatre. Doubles €62

CAMPSITE

Camac Valley Tourist Caravan and Camping Park Naas Rd, Clondalkin ☎ 01 464 0644, camacvalley.com. The most convenient campsite, with excellent facilities, located on the N7, a 35min drive from the centre. Bus #69 from the centre (Aston Quay, near O'Connell Bridge) stops right outside the campsite. The last bus is at 11.15pm, so if you're any later, a taxi (around €25) is your only option. Per person €10

EATING

★ Bunsen 3 South Anne St. With a menu so minimal it fits on a business card, Bunsen serves up the best burgers in the city (from €7). Mon–Wed noon–9.30pm, Thurs–Sat noon–10.30pm, Sun 1–9.30pm.

Cornucopia 21 Wicklow St. One of the city's few vegetarian cafés and very popular for its generous portions of home-made soups, salads, curries and gratins. Mains €9–14. Mon–Sat 8.30am–9pm, Sun noon–8.30pm.

Dunne & Crescenzi 14–16 South Frederick St. Authentic Italian restaurant serving delicious bruschetta (€6.50), antipasti, panini and simple pasta dishes (from €12), washed down with the cheapest (yet very palatable) house wine in Dublin. Daily 8am–late.

★ Foam Café 24 Strand St Great. Fabulously kitsch café in the heart of the Italian Quarter serving light meals and a moreish selection of cakes. Pizzas €11.50. Daily 11am–9pm.

Green 19 19 Camden St. Simple yet top-quality dishes like slow-braised pork belly with sautéed spinach and butternut squash (€12) or gnocchi with wild mushrooms (€14). Excellent cocktails and a funky vibe complete the picture. Mon–Sat 10am–11pm, Sun noon–10pm.

Leo Burdock's 2 Werburgh St. Dublin's best fish and chips – takeaway only. Fresh cod and chips (known as "Dubliners caviar") is €9.25. There's another branch on Liffey St Lower. Daily noon–midnight.

★ TREAT YOURSELF

For high-end organic Irish food, it is hard to beat The Winding Stair (40 Ormond Quay; ☎ 01 872 7320, winding-stair.com). Dishes are thoughtfully prepared using ingredients from small, carefully selected producers. The menu changes daily, but expect dishes like steamed cockles and mussels with Clogherhead crab and Irish rib-eye steak with roasted garlic truffle butter. The dining room is bright and airy, with gorgeous views over the River Liffey. Mains €24. Daily noon–10.30pm.

Musashi 15 Capel St. Chow down on some of the city's finest (and cheapest) sushi, accompanied by a jazz soundtrack. BYOB. Daily noon–10pm.

Umi Falafel 13 Dame St. Cheap and cheerful Middle Eastern restaurant famous for their falafels (€6) made from a traditional family recipe. Dine in or take-out. Daily noon–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Most of Dublin's eight hundred pubs serve food, and can be the best place to sample traditional Irish cuisine. The music scene – much of which is pub-based – is changeable, so it's always best to check the listings magazines like Hot Press (€3.50). See dublineventguide.com for listings of free events, or In Dublin (indublin.ie) and Totally Dublin (totallydublin.ie). Camden Street is the best place to find live rock; hit Temple Bar for clubs playing pop and dance music, as well as touristy traditional sessions.

BARS

★ The Bernard Shaw 11–12 South Richmond St bodytonicmusic.com. The walls of this “bar, café and creative space” are covered in graffiti outside and the works of local artists inside. There's a colourful beer garden, nightly DJs playing everything from reggae to house, a pool table and a Big Blue Bus serving excellent pizzas (€9). Mon–Fri 8am–midnight/1am, Sat & Sun 4pm–midnight/1am.

Davy Byrne's 21 Duke St davybyrnes.com. An object of pilgrimage for Ulysses fans, since Leopold Bloom stopped here for a snack. Attracts a sophisticated crowd and also serves good food (traditional Irish stew €12.50). Mon–Wed 11am–11.30pm, Thurs & Fri 11am–12.30am, Sat 10.30am–12.30am, Sun 12.30–11pm.

Grogans 15 South William St groganspub.ie. Popular spot among Dublin's bohemian set, with paintings by local artists adorning the walls. On sunny evenings the crowd spills onto the pedestrian street outside. Mon–Thurs 10.30am–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 10.30am–12.30am, Sun 12.30–11pm.

The Long Hall 51 South Great George's St. Victorian pub encrusted with mirrors and antique clocks. Mon–Wed 4–11.30pm, Thurs 1–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 1pm–12.30am, Sun 1–11pm.

McDaid's 3 Harry St. Intimate old-school pub serving the perfect Guinness. One of Republican writer Brendan Behan's favourite watering holes. Mon–Sat 10.30am–11.30pm/12.30pm, Sun 12.30–11pm.

Stag's Head 1 Dame Court, Dame St, almost opposite the Central Bank. Wonderfully intimate pub, full of mahogany, stained glass and mirrors. Very popular with local Dubliners, and does good pub lunches. Mon–Sat 10.30am–1am, Sun 10.30am–midnight.

CLUBS

Button Factory Curved St buttonfactory.ie. Housed in the refurbished Temple Bar Music Centre, this is the place to find top Irish and international DJs in the Thurs–Sat club. Opening hours are erratic but club nights are 11pm–2.30am.

The George South Great George's St thegeorge.ie. Dublin's oldest and most popular gay bar and club. Mon 2–11.30pm, Tues–Fri 2pm–2.30am, Sat 12.30pm–2.30am, Sun 12.30pm–1.30am.

Pygmalion Powerscourt Townhouse pyg.ie. Located in the vaults of Powerscourt Townhouse, this bar/restaurant transforms into one of the best clubs in the city every weekend. Daily until late.

The Workman's Club 10 Wellington Quay theworkmansclub.com. A maze of interconnecting rooms in a red-brick building fronting the River Liffey houses dancefloors, venues for live music and poetry readings, themed bars and a rooftop terrace. Daily 5pm–3am.

LIVE MUSIC

★ The Brazen Head 20 Lower Bridge St brazenhead.com. The oldest pub in Dublin, with traditional music nightly from 9.30pm. Daily until late.

The Cobblestone 77 King St North cobblestonepub.ie. Atmospheric pub on the edge of the Smithfield Plaza, famous for its nightly traditional sessions. Daily until late.

International Bar 23 Wicklow St international-bar.com. Large saloon with rock bands, jazz and a comedy club upstairs or in the cellar. Daily until late.

J.J. Smyth's 12 Aungier St jjsmyths.com. One of the few places to catch local jazz and blues talent. Opening hours depend on gigs and events.

The Mezz 23–24 Eustace St mezz.ie. Café-bar with live rock, jazz, blues funk, soul and reggae every night. Brazilian food served noon–7.30pm. Mains from €5. Opening hours depend on gigs and events.

Vicar Street 58–59 Thomas St vicarstreet.com. One of the city's finest music venues, offering a varied programme of major music and comedy acts. Opening hours depend on the events programme.

Whelans 25 Wexford St whelanslive.com. Notorious music pub and club attracting a host of up-and-coming international stars as well as local talent. Daily until late.

ENTERTAINMENT

THEATRES

Dublin's theatres are among the finest in Europe, offering a good mix of classical and more avant-garde performances. Tickets start at around €20, with concessions offered on Monday to Thursday nights and for matinees. Visit entertainment.ie for listings.

The Abbey Lower Abbey St abbeytheatre.ie. Ireland's most historic theatre, founded in 1899 by W.B. Yeats to promote Irish culture and drama.

The Gaiety South King St gaietytheatre.ie. Dublin's oldest and most ornate theatre, showing pantomimes and popular plays.

The Gate 1 Cavendish Row gate-theatre.ie. Showcases contemporary Irish drama, alongside European classics.

CINEMAS

Cineworld Parnell St 1520 880 444, cineworld.ie. Seventeen-screen multiplex.

Irish Film Institute 6 Eustace St, Temple Bar 01 679 5744, irishfilm.ie. Shows classics and new independent films, and has a good bar and restaurant.

SHOPPING

Dundrum Town Centre, Dundrum; dundrum.ie. Home to the biggest shopping centre in Europe; take LUAS from St Stephen's Green to Balally. Mon–Fri 9am–9pm, Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–7pm.

Nine Crows 5 Ormond Quay Lower shopninenecrows.com. Hand-picked vintage clothing with a 90s revival feel. The beating heart of Dublin's fashion scene. Mon noon–6pm, Tues, Wed, Fri & Sat 11am–6.30pm, Thurs 11am–7pm, Sun 1–5pm.

The Rage 16B Fade St therage.ie. A great little store selling secondhand vinyl and retro video games. Friendly staff will help you pick out a bargain. Mon–Sat 10.30am–7pm, Sun noon–6pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies Australia, Fitzwilton House, Wilton Terrace 01 664 5300; Canada, 7–8 Wilton Terrace 01 234 4000; UK, 29 Merrion Rd 01 205 3700; US, 42 Elgin Rd, Ballsbridge 01 668 8777.

COUNTY WICKLOW

Referred to as the “Garden of Ireland”, the picturesque mountains, lakes, forested estates and rural villages of County Wicklow provide a stunning backdrop for a bracing country walk or scenic drive. Given its proximity to the capital, the region is easily visited on a day-trip from Dublin, but there are plenty of B&Bs and hostels in the area.

The wonderfully unspoilt 127km mountain trail, the Wicklow Way, bisects the Wicklow Mountains, looping through glacial valleys, farmland and forests. The trail passes through the villages of Roundwood, Rathdrum and Enniskerry, from where the eighteenth-century Powerscourt Estate gardens and waterfall (house and gardens daily 9.30am–5.30pm; €9.50, waterfall only €6; powerscourt.ie) are easily accessible.

Some 30km south of Enniskerry, the beautifully tranquil monastic site of Glendalough (“valley of the two lakes”) forms one of the most dramatic landscapes in the country. The monastery was founded in the sixth century by St Kevin, and the 30m-high tapering round tower on the bank of the Lower Lake has epitomized mystical Ireland in tourist brochures for decades.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus You can get to the three villages of Roundwood, Rathdrum and Enniskerry (all on the Wicklow Way) on bus #44 from O'Connell St in Dublin city centre (hourly; €2.80). For Glendalough, take the St Kevin's bus (4 daily; €13 one-way/€20 return; glendaloughbus.com) from outside the Mansion House on Dawson St.

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office The Glendalough visitor centre is at Lower Lake (daily 9.30am–6pm; March–Oct closes 5pm; €4), and the Wicklow Mountains National Park Information Centre (Upper Lake; March–Oct daily 9.30am–6pm; Oct–March daily 9.30am–5pm, wicklowmountainsnationalpark.ie) can provide information on walking routes.

Tours The visitor centre at Lower Lake runs tours (daily 2pm) of Glendalough monastic site. Several companies run day-tours to Glendalough from Dublin (including Over the Top Tours, overthetoptours.com, and Wild Wicklow Tours, wildwicklow.ie; both €25–28).

ACCOMMODATION

Glendalough Hostel On the R757 near the Upper Lake 0404 45342, anoige.ie. Ideally located in an old lodge near the monastic settlement. Dorms €16, twins €50

NEWGRANGE

One of the foremost visitor attractions in the country, Brú na Bóinne (“the palace of the Boyne”) encompasses the 5000-year-old passage graves of Newgrange, Knowth and Dowth. Three rotund mounds of earth rise above these Neolithic graves – now excavated and reconstructed – south of the River Boyne in County Meath.

The exhibition (€3, €6 with entrance to Newgrange and €11 for all three passage graves) in the visitor centre (see below) includes information on the sites, how they were built and the artwork of enigmatic spirals carved into the stone walls. There is also a full-scale replica of the chamber at Newgrange as well as a model of one of the smaller tombs at Knowth.

The guided tour of Newgrange is led by the visitor centre (see below), and includes a simulation of the rising sun during the winter solstice, during which the rays of light enter through a strategically positioned slit above the entrance, casting first light on the burial chamber before spreading along the 19m length of the passage.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus To get to the visitor centre, take the Bus Éireann service #100 from the Busáras bus depot in Dublin city centre (see p.579) to Drogheda, from where shuttle bus #163 connects to the visitor centre.

Tourist information Access to the monuments is by guided tour from the visitor centre only (daily: May–Sept 9am–6.30pm; Oct–April 9.30am–5pm; newgrange.com), located on the south side of the River Boyne, 5km east of the village of Slane.

The southeast

The southeast is Ireland's sunniest and driest corner. The region's medieval and Anglo-Norman history is richly concentrated in Kilkenny, a bustling, quaint inland town, while to the west, at the heart of County Tipperary, is the Rock of Cashel, a spectacular natural formation topped with Christian buildings from virtually every period. In the southwest, Cork is both relaxed and spirited, the perfect place to ease you into the exhilarations of the west coast.

KILKENNY

KILKENNY is Ireland's finest medieval city, its castle set above the broad sweep of the River Nore and its narrow streets laced with carefully maintained buildings. In 1641, the city became the virtual capital of Ireland, with the founding of a parliament known as the Confederation of Kilkenny. The power of this short-lived attempt to unite resistance to English persecution of Catholics had greatly diminished by the time Cromwell's wreckers arrived in 1650. Kilkenny never recovered its prosperity, but enough remains to indicate its former importance.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Left at the top of Rose Inn Street is the broad Parade, which leads up to the castle. To the right, the High Street passes the eighteenth-century Tholsel, once the city's financial centre and now the town hall.

Rothe House

Beyond the Tholsel is Parliament Street, the main thoroughfare, where the Rothe House (Mon–Sat 10.30am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €5.50; rothehouse.com) provides a unique example of an Irish Tudor merchant's home, comprising three separate houses linked by cobbled courtyards.

St Canice's Cathedral

The thirteenth-century St Canice's Cathedral (June–Aug Mon–Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 2–6pm; Sept–March Mon–Sat 10am–1pm & 2–4/5pm, Sun 2–4/5pm; €4; stcanicescathedral.com) has a fine array of sixteenth-century monuments, many in black Kilkenny limestone. The round tower next to the cathedral (same hours; €3; combined ticket with cathedral €6) is the only remnant of a monastic settlement reputedly founded by St Canice in the sixth century; there are superb views from the top.

Castle

It's the imposing twelfth-century Castle that defines Kilkenny (tours daily: 9/9.30am–4.30/5.30pm; €7; kilkennycastle.ie). Its library, drawing room, bedrooms and Long Gallery of family portraits are open for viewing, as is the Butler Gallery (daily 10am–1pm & 2–4.30/5.30pm; free; butlergallery.com), housing exhibitions of modern art.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is just north of the centre, off John St. Destinations Dublin (7 daily; 1hr 40min–2hr).

By bus The bus station is next to the train station, off John Street. Some services stop on Patrick St.

Destinations Cork (3 daily; 2hr 50min); Dublin (6 daily; 2hr 15min–2hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Rose Inn St, in the sixteenth-century Shee Alms House (May–Sept Mon–Sat 9.30am–5.30pm; Oct–April Tues–Sat 9.30am–1pm & 2–5pm; ☎ 056 775 1500, ☞ visitkilkenny.ie).

Listings The weekly Kilkenny People (€1.80) has listings information. See also ☞ kilkenney.ie.

Festivals The town is renowned for The Cat Laughs comedy festival in June (☞ thecatlaughs.com) and its Arts Festival in August (☞ kilkenneyarts.ie).

ACCOMMODATION

EATING

Billy Byrne's 39 John St ☎ 056 772 1783. Fine pub lunches for €9. Regular themed nights like Taco Tuesday and Movie Night Pizza are always good fun. Mon–Thurs 9.30am–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 9.30am–12.30am, Sun 12.30pm–11pm.

★ Café Sol William St ☎ 056 776 4987. Award-winning café-restaurant which is pricey in the evenings, but good for salads and light mains (from €9) at lunch. Mon & Tues 11.30am–5pm, Wed–Sun 11.30am–9.30pm.

Gourmet Store 56 High St. Hummus, panini, bagels and wraps made to order at this little deli. From €3. Mon–Sat 8am–6pm.

Kyteler's Inn St Kieran St ☞ kytelersinn.com. Decent pub grub (from €10) in medieval surroundings, accompanied by regular traditional music sessions. Food served noon–9pm. Daily until late.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Parliament and Ormonde streets are best for live traditional and rock music; John St has a more commercial feel with clubs and pop music.

Edward Langton's 69 John St. Swanky hotel with four bars and a popular club (Tues, Thurs & Sat 10pm–2.30am). There's a swing club (Thurs–Sat) in the 67 Bar and regular comedy nights, live music and theatre in the Set Theatre. Also serves good pub grub (mains €12) daily noon–10pm.

★ The Hole in the Wall 17 High St ☞ holeinthewall.ie. Housed in the oldest surviving townhouse in Ireland, this cosy tavern really comes alive in the evenings, with live music and an incredibly friendly atmosphere. Mon, Wed & Thurs 8pm–midnight, Fri 8pm–1am, Sat 2.30pm–1am, Sun 2–11pm.

The Pumphouse 26–28 Parliament St. Popular with young and old, locals and travellers alike. Music most nights, and there's also a pool table. Mon–Thurs & Sun 2–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 2pm–12.30am.

Tynan's 2 Horseleap Slip, St John's Bridge. Riverside bar with cosy Victorian interior and beer garden; there are still relics from its days as a pharmacy and grocery store. Late bar Mon, Wed & Thurs; live music Mon–Thurs from 9pm. Daily until late.

THE ROCK OF CASHEL

The extraordinary ROCK OF CASHEL (daily: mid-Sept to mid-Oct 9am–5.30pm; mid-Oct to mid-March 9am–4.30pm; mid-March to early June 9am–5.30pm; early June to mid-Sept 9am–7pm; €7) appears as a mirage of crenellations rising bolt upright from the vast encircling plain. This is where St Patrick reputedly used a shamrock to explain the doctrine of the Trinity. Cormac's Chapel, built in the 1130s, is the earliest and most beautiful of Ireland's Romanesque churches, and the limestone Cathedral, begun in the thirteenth century, is a fine example of Anglo-Norman architecture, with its Gothic arches and lancet windows. The tapering round tower is the earliest building on the Rock, dating from the early twelfth century. The Cashel Heritage Centre (daily 9.30am–5.30pm; closed Sat & Sun Nov–Feb; free; ☞ cashel.ie) on Main Street has a small exhibition that covers the history of the town.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Cashel is most often visited as a day-trip from Cork or Kilkenny; buses from Cork drop off outside The Bakehouse bakery, those from Kilkenny and Dublin on the other side of the street.

ACCOMMODATION

★ Cashel Lodge Dundrum Rd ☎062 61003, cashel-lodge.com. A beautifully renovated coach house blessed with spectacular views and located close to the Rock. Doubles €85, camping €12

EATING AND DRINKING

The Bakehouse 7 Main St. Cosy café offering fresh baked scones, pastries, soups and sandwiches (€5–7). Daily 8am–5.30pm.

MIKEY RYAN'S BAR 76 Main St. Atmospheric traditional pub with occasional live music. Fresh soup and sandwiches served Mon–Sat noon–3pm.

CORK

Everywhere in CORK there's evidence of its history as a great mercantile centre, with grey-stone quaysides, old warehouses, and elegant, quirky bridges spanning the River Lee to each side of the city's island core – but the lively atmosphere and large student population, combined with a vibrant social and cultural scene, are equally powerful draws. Massive stone walls built by invading Normans in the twelfth century were destroyed by William III's forces during the Siege of Cork in 1690, after which waterborne trade brought increasing prosperity, as witnessed by the city's fine eighteenth-century bow-fronted houses and ostentatious nineteenth-century churches.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The graceful arc of St Patrick's Street – which with Grand Parade forms the commercial heart of the centre – is crammed with major chain stores. Just off here on Princes Street, the English Market (Mon–Sat 9am–5.30pm) offers the chance to sample local delicacies like drisheen (a peppered sausage made from a sheep's stomach lining and blood). On the far side of St Patrick's Street, chic Paul Street is a gateway to the bijou environs of French Church Street and Carey's Lane. The west of the city is predominantly residential, though Fitzgerald Park is home to the Cork Public Museum (Mon–Fri 11am–1pm & 2.15–5pm, Sat 11am–1pm & 2.15–4pm, plus April–Sept Sun 3–5pm; free), which focuses on Republican history.

Shandon area

North of the River Lee is the historic Shandon area, a reminder of Cork's eighteenth-century status as the most important port in Europe for dairy products. The striking Cork Butter Exchange survives, stout nineteenth-century Neoclassical buildings given over to craft workshops. At one corner of the old butter market on O'Connell Square is the Cork Butter Museum (March–June, Sept & Oct 10am–5pm; July & Aug 10am–6pm; Nov–Feb Sat & Sun 10am–3.30pm; €4; corkbutter.museum), which exhibits, among other items, a keg of thousand-year-old butter. Behind the square is the pleasant Georgian church of St Anne's Shandon (March–May & Oct Mon–Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11.30am–3.30pm; June–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11.30am–4.30pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Sat 11am–3pm, closed Sun; €5), easily recognizable from all over the city by its weather vane – a 3.5m salmon. The church tower gives excellent views over the city and an opportunity to ring the famous bells. Around 2km west along North Mall, in the Sunday's Well area of the city, is the nineteenth-century Cork City Gaol (daily: March–Oct 10am–4pm; Nov–Feb 9.30am–5pm; €8; corkcitygaol.com), with wax figures and an excellent audioguide focusing on social history.

The west coast

If you've come to Ireland for mountainous scenery, sea and remoteness, you'll hit the jackpot in County Kerry. By far the most visited areas are the town of Killarney and a scenic route around the perimeter of the Iveragh Peninsula known as the Ring of Kerry. In the heart of the Burren, Doolin in County Clare is a marvellous spot for traditional music.

Galway is a free-spirited city, and a gathering point for young travellers. To its west lies Connemara, a magnificently wild coastal terrain, with the nearby beautiful Aran Islands, in the mouth of Galway Bay. The landscape softens around the historic town of Westport, while further north, Sligo has many associations with the poet W.B. Yeats. In the far northwest, the 1134km of folded coastline in County Donegal is spectacular, the highlight being Slieve League's awesome sea cliffs, the highest in Europe. There are plenty of international flights directly into the region (to Shannon and Knock airports).

KILLARNEY AND AROUND

KILLARNEY town has been heavily commercialized and has little of architectural interest, but the surrounding Killarney National Park, with some of the best lakes, mountains and woodland in Ireland, definitely compensates. Cycling is a great way of seeing the terrain, and makes good sense – local transport is sparse.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Around the town, three spectacular lakes – Lough Leane, Muckross Lake and the Upper Lake – form an appetizer for MacGillycuddy's Reeks, the highest mountains in Ireland.

Knockreer Estate

The entrance gates to the Knockreer Estate, part of the Killarney National Park, are just over the road from Killarney's cathedral. Tall wooded hills, the highest being Carrantuohill (1041m), form the backdrop to Lough Leane, and

THE WILD ATLANTIC WAY

Stretching over 2500km, the Wild Atlantic Way (@wildatlanticway.com) is the world's longest coastal touring route, which traverses Ireland's rugged west coast. From Cork to Donegal, the route takes in hundreds of sites and towns including the Cliffs of Moher, Skellig Michael, Dingle and Malin Head. Bus Éireann (@buseireann.ie) offer an "Open Road" ticket allowing you to hop on and off. Tickets start from €57 for three days of unlimited travel, with extra "stamps" costing €15 per day.

the main path through the estate leads to the restored fifteenth-century tower of Ross Castle (March–Nov daily 9.30am–5.45pm; €6, gardens free), the last place in the area to succumb to Cromwell's forces in 1652.

Muckross Estate

Two kilometres south of Killarney is the Muckross Estate, where you should aim first for Muckross Abbey. Founded by the Franciscans in the mid-fifteenth century, it was suppressed by Henry VIII, and later, finally, by Cromwell. Back at the main road, signposts point to Muckross House (daily: July & Aug 9am–7pm; Sept–June 9am–5.30pm; €9 or €15 joint ticket with farm; @muckross-house.ie), a nineteenth-century neo-Elizabethan mansion with wonderful gardens and a traditional working farm. The estate gives access to well-trodden paths along the shores of Muckross Lake where you can see one of Killarney's celebrated beauty spots, the Meeting of the Waters. Close by is the massive shoulder of Torc Mountain, shrugging off Torc Waterfall. The Upper Lake is beautiful, too, with the main road running along one side up to Ladies' View, from where the view is truly spectacular.

Gap of Dunloe and the Black Valley

West of Killarney lies the Gap of Dunloe, a natural defile formed by glacial overflow that cuts the mountains in two. Kate Kearney's Cottage, a pub located 10km from Killarney at the foot of the track leading up to the Gap, is the last fuelling stop before Lord Brandon's Cottage, a summer tearoom (June–Aug 10am–5pm), 11km away on the other side of the valley. The track winds its way up the desolate valley between high rock cliffs and waterfalls, past a chain of icy loughs and tarns to the top, to what feels like one of the most remote places in the world: the Black Valley, named after its entire population perished during the famine (1845–49). There's a wonderfully isolated An Óige hostel here (see below).

The quickest way to Killarney from here is to carry on down to Lord Brandon's Cottage and take the boat back across the Upper Lake.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is on Park Rd, a short walk east of the centre.

Destinations Cork (8 daily; 1hr 20min–1hr 40min); Dublin (7 daily; 3hr 15min–3hr 30min).

By bus The bus station is next to the train station on Park Rd.

Destinations Cork (13 daily; 1hr 35min–1hr 50min); Dingle (2–5 daily; 2hr–2hr 40min); Dublin (10 daily; 6hr 10min–7hr 30min); Waterville (1 daily; 1hr 55min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Beech Rd off New St (daily 9am–6/8pm; ☎ 064 31633, 🌐 discoverireland.ie/southwest).

Listings The Kerryman (€2) 📞 kerryman.ie.

ACCOMMODATION

Black Valley Hostel Beaufort ☎ 064 34712, 🌐 blackvalleyhostel.com. Ideally located for nature lovers, with the Kerry Way, Killarney National Park, the MacGillycuddy Reeks and Carruntuohill mountain close by. Sits 22km from Killarney; follow signs for Black Valley off the Killarney to Kenmare Rd. Dorms €19, twins €42

★ Dunloe View Hostel 8km west of Killarney town on the Ring of Kerry (N72) road ☎ 064 664 4187, 🌐 dunloviewhostel.ie. Pleasant hostel on a working farm, overlooking the MacGillycuddy Reeks. Dorms €17, doubles €45

Flesk Caravan and Camping Muckross Rd ☎ 064 663 1704, 🌐 killarneyfleskcamping.com. 1.5km south of the centre on the N71 Kenmare road. Per pitch with two adults €25

Neptune's Town Hostel Bishop's Lane, off New St ☎ 064 663 5255, 🌐 neptuneshostel.com. Large, welcoming hostel with colourful rooms. Dorms €18, doubles €44

The Súgan Hostel Lewis Rd ☎ 064 663 3104, 🌐 suganhostelkillarney.com. Cosy, family-run hostel with colourful decor. There's also bike rental, cheaper if you're a guest. Dorms €15, doubles €40

EATING AND DRINKING

The Country Kitchen 17 New St. Cheap, hearty food, including full Irish breakfast (€9). Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm.

★ Courtney's 24 Plunkett St 🌐 courtneysbar.com. Huge and informal bar, popular with young people for its midweek traditional sessions, live bands on Fri and DJ sets on Sat. Daily 2pm–late.

McSorley's 10 College St 🌐 mcsorleyskillarney.com. Traditional music in the main bar every night until around 10pm in summer, followed by a live band. The upstairs club is the biggest in Killarney. Daily until 2am.

O'Connor's Bar 7 High St. Old and intimate little pub with local Irish musicians on Thursdays and Fridays. You can book Gap of Dunloe tours here. Daily until late.

THE RING OF KERRY

Most tourists view the spectacular scenery of the 179km Ring of Kerry, west of Killarney, without ever leaving their tour coach or car – so anyone straying from the road, or waiting until the afternoon, will experience the slow twilights of the Atlantic seaboard in perfect seclusion.

GETTING AROUND

By bus Buses from Killarney circle the Ring in summer (May–Sept 2 daily; from €20 return). The public bus departs from the bus station and private tour operators (book through the tourist office in Killarney) from their respective offices in town. For the rest of the year, buses travel only the largely deserted mountain roads as far as Cahersiveen.

By bike Cycling the Ring (216km) takes at least three days. Most of the route is off the main road, but it is well signposted and passes through the main towns and villages. Several places in Killarney offer bike rental for around €15 per day, including O'Sullivan's Cycles (🌐 killarneyrentabike.com) on Lower New St, beside the entrance to Killarney National Park.

DINGLE

The fishing village of DINGLE is the best base for exploring the peninsula. Kerry's leading port in medieval times, then later a centre for smuggling, the town's main attractions nowadays are aquatic: the star of the show is undoubtedly Fungi the dolphin, who's been visiting the town's harbour since 1983 (boats offer trips out to see him from around €16).

ACCOMMODATION

Hideout Hostel Dykegate St ☎066 915 0559, thehideouthostel.com. The best budget option in town, combining a communal hostel feel with the comfort of a small hotel. Dorms €16, doubles €40

Rainbow Hostel 1km west of the centre in Miltown ☎066 915 1044, rainbowhosteldingle.com. Laidback family-run hostel on the edge of town. Dorms €16, doubles €40, camping €9

EATING AND DRINKING

Chowder Café Strand St. As you'd expect, the chowder here is the main attraction (and at €6.95 it's a steal), but there's plenty more on offer – the crab tart is a particular delight. Daily 10am–4pm, till 6pm in high season.

John Benny's Strand St ☎johnbennyspub.com. Popular pub renowned for its excellent fresh oysters, seared king scallops and seafood pies. There's live music Mon–Sat. Daily until late.

O'Flaherty's Bar Bridge St ☎oflahertysbardingle.com. The proprietor Fergus leads local and visiting musicians in nightly trad sessions in a space packed with memorabilia documenting the history of Dingle. Mon–Thurs 11am–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 11am–12.30am, Sun noon–11pm.

DINGLE PENINSULA

The Dingle Peninsula is a place of intense, shifting beauty: spectacular mountains, long sandy beaches and splinter-slatted rocks. The highlight is the stunning promontory of Slea Head, which has fabulous views over to the Blasket Islands.

The Irish-speaking area west of Dingle is rich in relics of the ancient Gaelic and early Christian cultures. The spectacular fort of Dún Beag (daily Feb–Nov 10am–5pm; €3; dunbegfort.com) is about 6km west of Ventry village, and has four earthen rings as defences and an underground escape route by the main entrance. West of the fort, the hillside above the road is studded with stone beehive huts, cave dwellings, forts, churches, standing stones and crosses – over five hundred in all. The beehive huts were built and used for storage up until the late nineteenth century, but standing among ancient buildings – such as the Fahan group – you're looking over a landscape that's remained essentially unchanged for centuries.

GETTING AROUND

Public transport in the west of the peninsula amounts to a very irregular bus from Dingle to Dunquin, making cycling the best way to explore.

COUNTY CLARE

With its stunning natural landscape and unique culture, County Clare is one of the most popular stops along the Wild Atlantic Way (see box, p.588). Though home to the stunning Burren National Park and the Cliffs of Moher, it has more to offer than just scenery. The true spirit of the West Coast can be found in cosy pubs of the colourful villages that dot the countryside, and in historic towns such as Ennis.

Some 40km northwest of Ennis is the tiny seaside village of DOOLIN, famed for a steady, year-round supply of traditional music.

The village is the perfect base from which to explore the mystically barren expanse of The Burren, a vast landscape of cracked limestone terraces stretching to the wild Atlantic Ocean. The area is dotted with well-preserved megalithic remains such as the Poulabrone Dolmen (on the R480, 20min drive from Doolin), an imposing tomb constructed from three massive limestone slabs dating from 2500 BC. The Cliffs of Moher, 4km south of Doolin, are the area's most famous tourist attraction, with their great bands of shale and sandstone rising 200m above the waves.

LAHINCH, a small village 20km south of Doolin, attracts hordes of surfers (see opposite) for its famous beach break.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Ennis Bus Station is a 10min walk from the town centre.

Destinations Galway (4 daily; 1hr 20min); Limerick (4 daily; 1hr, 1hr 35min).

By train Ennis train station is in the same location as the bus station.

Destinations Dublin (7–10 daily; 3–4hr); Galway (4 daily; 1hr 15min).

By ferry A ferry (April–Sept) runs from Doolin pier to the Aran Islands (see p.593).

GETTING AROUND

If you don't have your own vehicle, the best way to see the area is by bus. Bus Éireann daily route #350, for example, takes in Ennis, the Cliffs of Moher, Doolin and Galway. Tickets start from €12. Check buseireann.ie for further details.

INFORMATION

Tourist office The visitors' centre is beside the car park in Doolin (daily: March & Oct 9am–6pm; April 9am–6.30pm; May & Sept 9am–7pm; June 9am–7.30pm; July & Aug 9am–9pm; Nov–Feb 9am–5pm; €6; cliffsofmoher.ie) and can organize tours to O'Brien's Tower, built in 1835 as a viewing point for visitors.

Surfing You can rent boards from Lahinch Surf Shop (065 708 1543, lahinchsurfshop.com) or organize lessons at the Lahinch Surf School (087 960 9667, lahinchsurfschool.com).

EATING AND DRINKING

Doolin Café Roadford thedoolincfe.com. The self-proclaimed philosophy here is “why buy it when you can make it”, with all dishes on the seasonal menu made using local artisan produce. The veggie breakfast with home-made baked beans and grilled halloumi is a real treat. Daily 8.30am–4pm, plus Thurs–Mon 6.30–9.30pm.

O'Connor's Fisher St gusocconnorsdoolin.com. One of three pubs in Doolin famous for their nightly traditional music sessions, offering giant portions of steaming mussels (€12) and other fresh seafood dishes. If you can't find a seat here, try McGann's or McDermott's close by. Mon–Thurs 10am–11.30pm, Fri & Sat 10am–12.30am, Sun 10am–11pm.

GALWAY

County GALWAY is home to the country's largest Irish-speaking Gaeltacht region, and, as a lively university city, its reputation as party capital of Ireland is well justified. University College Galway guarantees a high number of young people in term time, but the energy is most evident during Galway's festivals, especially the lively Arts Festival in the last two weeks of July (galwayartsfestival.com), and the Galway Races in the last week of July (galwayraces.com).

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Granted city status in 1484, Galway developed in the Middle Ages into a flourishing centre of trade with the Continent, a period of prosperity that is evident in its impressive architecture. Merchant townhouses line pedestrianized Shop Street, where buskers perform at all hours of the day and night outside some of the city's liveliest bars and cafés. Lynch's Castle on Shop Street, which now houses the Allied Irish Bank, dates from the fifteenth century and is a fine example of a medieval townhouse, with its stone facade decorated with carved panels, gargoyles and a lion devouring its prey.

Down by the River Corrib stands the Spanish Arch, a sixteenth-century structure that was used to protect galleons unloading wine and rum. Across the river lies the Claddagh district, the old fishing village that once stood outside the city walls and gave the world the Claddagh ring as a symbol of love and fidelity. Past the Claddagh the river widens out into Galway Bay; for a pleasant sea walk follow the road until it reaches Salthill, the city's seaside resort. There are several beaches along the promenade, though the best are 5km from Salthill at Silverstrand on the Barna road.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is off Eyre Square, on the northeast edge of the city centre.

Destinations Dublin (9–11 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr).

By bus The bus station is located on Forster St, beside the train station.

Destinations Cork (12 daily; 4hr 25min); Doolin (4 daily; 1hr 40min–2hr 50min); Dublin (15 daily; 3hr 30min–3hr 45min); Killarney (7 daily; 4hr 40min); Westport (6 daily; 1hr 35min–3hr 45min).

ACCOMMODATION

Barnacles 10 Quay St ☎091 568 644, barnacles.ie. Buzzing hostel conveniently located for pubs and cafés on Quay St; the larger dorms are a little crowded, but smaller ones are bright and comfortable. Dorms €17, doubles €50

Kinlay House Merchant's Rd ☎091 565 244, www.kinlaygalway.ie. Enormous, impersonal hostel just off Eyre Square. Day-trips to the Aran Islands, the Cliffs of Moher and Connemara depart right outside the door. Dorms €19, doubles €60

Salthill Caravan Park Ballyloughlane, Renmore ☎091 523 972, salthillcaravanpark.com. Family-run park located right on the beach, less than 2km from the centre. April–Sept. Per person €12

★ Sleepzone Bóthar na mBan, Wood Quay ☎091 566 999, sleepzone.ie. Ultramodern hostel with a mini-hotel feel, bright en-suite rooms and a huge communal kitchen. Dorms €17, doubles €60

EATING

Dough Bros 24 Upper Abbeygate St. Starting out as a wildly popular food truck, the Dough Bros now have a permanent residence where they serve the best wood-fired pizzas in Galway. Their “Posh Pepperoni” (€9) is an instant classic. Daily noon–10pm.

Fat Freddy's The Halls, Quay St galwayrestaurants.net. Good pizzas, salads and antipasti at this fun, colourful bistro. Mains €10–15. Daily noon–10pm.

★ Griffin's Bakery 21 Shop St ☎091 563 683, griffinsbakery.com. The café above this long-established bakery is the ideal spot to rest your weary legs, with plenty of hot sandwiches and cakes to choose from. Lunch €7. Mon–Sat 8am–6pm.

★ Kai Café 20 Sea Rd kaicaferestaurant.com. An absolute gem of a café serving soul-nourishing food. Menu changes often, but expect things like West Coast crab salad (€11) for lunch. Mon 9.30am–3pm, Tues–Fri 9.30am–3pm & 6.30–10.30pm, Sat noon–3pm & 6.30–10.30pm, Sun noon–3pm.

McCambridges 38–39 Shop St mccambridges.com. The queues run out the door every lunchtime at this gourmet deli renowned for its sandwiches, wraps and rolls (€3–5). Mon–Sat 8am–7pm, Sun noon–6pm.

McDonagh's 22 Quay St mcdonaghs.net. A must for the freshest seafood at any time of day. The takeaway next door has a few informal tables and is much cheaper than the restaurant. Mains €8–34. Mon–Sat 5–10pm; takeaway daily noon–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The Quay St area leading down to the river is known as the “Left Bank” due to the proliferation of popular pubs, restaurants and cafés. See the weekly Galway Advertiser (free; advertiser.ie/galway) or Galway City Tribune (€1.60) for listings.

Blue Note 3 West William St. Atmospheric pub with intimate booths and snugs, a heated smoking garden, and DJs most nights.

★ Crane Bar 2 Sea Rd thecranebar.com. Holds revered traditional music sessions nightly from 9pm.

The Quays Quay St. One of the city's best-loved pubs, whose atmospheric interior was taken from a medieval French church. Daily until late.

Róisín Dubh Dominick St roisindubh.net. Popular music bar and venue which plays host to top-class Irish and international acts. Opening hours depend on gigs and events.

Taaffe's 19 Shop St. One of the best places to hear traditional music, where there are nightly sessions until late.

THE ARAN ISLANDS

The Aran Islands – Inishmore, Inishmaan and Inisheer, 50km out across the mouth of Galway Bay – are spectacular settings for a wealth of early remains and some of the finest archeological sites in Europe. The isolation of the Irish-speaking islands prolonged the continuation of a unique, ancient culture into the early twentieth century.

Inishmore

Inishmore is a great tilted plateau of limestone with a scattering of villages along the sheltered northerly coast. The land slants up to the southern edge, where dramatic cliffs rip along the entire shoreline. As far as the eye can see is a tremendous patterning of stone, the bare pavements of grey rock split into bold diagonal grooves and latticed by dry-stone walls.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Most of Inishmore's sights are to the northwest of KILRONAN, the island's principal town, where minibuses and ponies and traps offering island tours (see below) wait by the pier. Past the American Bar and up the hill to the west of Kilronan is a small settlement called Mainistir, from where it's a short signposted walk to the twelfth-century Teampall Chiaráin (Church of St Kieran). Five kilometres west along the main road from here is Kilmurvey, a small cluster of houses with a sandy beach which is a fifteen-minute walk from the most spectacular of Aran's prehistoric sites, Dún Aonghasa, accessed via its visitor centre (April–Oct 9.45am–6pm; Nov–March 9.30am–4pm; closed Mon & Tues in Jan & Feb; €4). The spectacular fort, which is 2500 years old, is perched on the edge of a sheer cliff, beaten relentlessly by the Atlantic Ocean below. The Seven Churches, just east of the village of Eoghanacht, is a monastic site dating from the ninth century,

GETTING TO THE ISLANDS

Daily ferries to Inishmore run year-round (less frequent to the other islands), departing from Galway city, Rossaveal (30km west by bus) and Doolin in County Clare. A return trip costs around €25. Book tickets in Galway city through Aran Island Ferries, 4 Forster St (091 568 903, @aranislandferries.com); or O'Brien Shipping (065 707 4455, @doolinferries.com) – both companies have desks in the Galway tourist office. You can also fly with Aer Arann Islands (091 593 034, @aerarannislands.ie) for €49 return.

believed to be one of the most significant medieval pilgrimage destinations in the west of Ireland.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By ferry Boats from Galway city, Rossaveal and Doolin (see box above) dock at Kilronan.

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office Just west of where the ferry docks at Kilronan (daily: March–Oct 10am–5pm; Nov–Feb 11am–5pm; 099 61263).

Tours Seasonal minibuses (€10) run tours up through the island's villages. Pony-and-trap tours depart from the pier (€40 for a group of up to 4 people).

Bike rental Mullin's and BNN's near the pier (€10/day).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation can be booked through the Kilronan tourist office, or when you buy your ferry ticket in Galway.

Kilronan Hostel Kilronan 099 61255, @kilronanhostel.com. Cheery hostel with great facilities. Very convenient for the ferry. Dorms €22, doubles €60

Mainistir House Hostel Mainistir 099 61318, @aranislandshostel.com. A 20min walk west from the pier, this peaceful hostel offers a renowned "all you can eat" buffet every night for €15. Dorms €20, doubles €50

EATING AND DRINKING

Seafood is the island's great speciality, with most of the popular restaurants located in Kilronan.

★ Joe Watty's Bar A great pub with traditional music most nights; serves good soups and stews, from €6. Food served daily noon–9pm.

The Old Courthouse (The Ould Pier). Simple and cheap place serving fresh fish and chips and seafood chowder, with a few outdoor tables. Closed Nov–Feb. Daytime only.

Inishmaan

Compared to Inishmore, Inishmaan is lush, with stone walls forming a maze that chequers off tiny fields of grass and clover. The island's main sight is Dún Chonchubhair: built sometime between the first and seventh centuries, its massive oval wall is almost intact and commands great views. Ask at the Teach Ósta pub for information (099 73003) – it's a warm and friendly place that also serves snacks in summer.

ACCOMMODATION

An Dún 099 73047, inismeainaccommodation.ie. Comfortable B&B right on the sea, also near Dún Chonchubhair. March–Nov only. Doubles €90

Ard Alainn 099 73027, galway.net/pages/ard-alainn. Perched on a hill near Dún Chonchubhair offering lovely views over the island and neighbouring Inishmore. April–Sept only. Doubles €55

Inisheer

Inisheer, less than 3km across, is the smallest of the Aran Islands. A great plug of rock dominates the island, its rough, pale-grey stone dripping with greenery, topped by the fifteenth-century O'Brien's Castle, standing inside an ancient ring fort. Set around it are low fields, a small community of pubs and houses, and windswept sand dunes.

INFORMATION

Tourist office The Inisheer Island Cooperative hut by the pier (Mon–Sat 10.30am–3.30pm, summer only; 099 75008, discoverinisoirr.com) will give you a map and a list of B&Bs.

ACCOMMODATION

Brú Radharc na Mara 099 75024, bruhostelaran.com. Comfortable and clean family-run hostel, offering tours of the island on request. March–Oct only. Dorms €15, doubles €40

Campsite This campsite has toilets and washing facilities, and is near the pier. May–Sept only. Free

Radharc an Chláir Castle Village 099 75019. Bright yellow bungalow by the castle offering views across the sea to the Cliffs of Moher. Doubles €70

EATING AND DRINKING

Óstán Inis Óir 099 73020. Tasty meals are available daily at the island's only hotel.

Tigh Ned's The place to head for music, coffee and snacks.

SLIGO

SLIGO is, after Derry, the biggest town in the northwest of Ireland. The legacy of W.B. Yeats – perhaps Ireland's best-loved poet – is still strongly felt here: the Yeats Memorial Building on Hyde Bridge (Mon–Fri 10am–5pm; free; yeats-sligo.com) features a photographic exhibition and film on his life, while the poet's Nobel Prize for Literature and other memorabilia are on show in the Sligo County Museum in the library on Stephen Street (Tues–Sat 10am–noon & 2–4.30pm; free). The Model Arts Centre on The Mall (Tues–Sat 10am–5.30pm, Sun noon–5pm; free; themodel.ie) has works by the poet's brother, Jack B. Yeats, along with a broad collection of modern Irish art.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is in the town centre on Lord Edward St.

Destinations Dublin (6 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The bus station is next to the train station, on Knappagh Rd.

Destinations Dublin (4 daily; 3hr 50min); Galway (4 daily; 2hr 40min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office O'Connell St, in the Ground Floor Old Bank Building. (Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm; 071 916 1201, sligotourism.ie).

ACCOMMODATION

Arrowrock Lodge, 25km south of Sligo town 071 966 6073, arrowrocklodge.com. This farmhouse-turned-hostel is the perfect base to explore the surrounding historic sites and stunning scenery. Comfortable rooms and a fully equipped kitchen give it a nice cosy feel. Dorms €15, doubles €50

Railway Hostel 1 Union Place 071 914 4530, therailway.ie. Small hostel with comfortable communal areas and a lovely kitchen. Dorms €16, doubles €40

Tree Tops B&B Cleveragh Rd, 1km southeast along Pearse Rd 071 916 0160, treetopssligo.com. Bright and comfortable rooms with sparkly white bedspreads, great breakfasts and friendly hosts. Singles €40, doubles €72

EATING AND DRINKING

Hargadon's 4–5 O'Connell St w hargadons.com. Award-winning but reasonably priced pub grub, including an excellent seafood chowder, home-made pâté and fresh seafood. Mains from €11. There's also a wine shop attached. Mon–Sat noon–3.30pm & 4–9pm.

Shoot the Crows Gratton St. One of the best places in Sligo for live traditional music. There are also regular sessions in Earley's and Furey's, both on Bridge Street. Opening hours depend on gigs.

Sweet Beat Café 3 Bridge St @sweetbeat.ie. Bright and welcoming vegan café serving superfood salads and an ever-changing “daily warmer”. If you're feeling brave, go for the ginger shot – guaranteed to put pep in your step. Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 11am–5pm.

DONEGAL TOWN

DONEGAL TOWN is focused around its old marketplace – The Diamond – and makes a fine base for exploring the stunning coastal countryside and inland hills and loughs. Just about the only sight in the town itself is the well-preserved shell of O'Donnell's Castle on Tírchonail Street by The Diamond (April–Oct daily 10am–6pm; Nov–March daily 9.30am–4.30pm; €4), a fine example of Jacobean architecture. On the left bank of the River Eske stand the few ruined remains of Donegal Friary, while on the opposite bank a woodland path known as Bank Walk offers wonderful views of Donegal Bay and the Blue Stack Mountains.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The stop for Bus Éireann departures and arrivals is outside the Abbey Hotel.

Destinations Derry (3–7 daily; 1hr 30min); Dublin (9–11 daily; 3hr 30min–5hr 55min); Glencolmcille (2 daily; 1hr 25min); Sligo (8 daily; 1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office The Quay (June–Aug Mon–Sat 9am–5.30pm, Sun 11am–3pm; Sept–May Mon–Sat 9am–5pm; ☎074 972 1148, @discoverireland.ie/northwest).

ACCOMMODATION

There are dozens of B&Bs in Donegal – you can book at the tourist office.

Atlantic Guesthouse Main St ☎074972 1187, @atlanticguesthouse.ie. Family-run establishment in the centre of town with bright and cheery rooms. Doubles €52

★ Donegal Town Independent Hostel ☎074972 2805, @donegaltownhostel.com. Just past the roundabout on the Killybegs Rd, a 5min walk from town, this peaceful and very friendly hostel also has camping. Dorms €17, doubles €42, camping/person €9

EATING AND DRINKING

The Blueberry Tea Room Castle St. Good-quality, reasonably priced food served in a very cosy atmosphere. It has an internet café upstairs. Mains up to €12. Mon–Sat 9am–7pm.

The Reel Inn Bridge St. A lively bar packed with local old-timers, even at midday. Traditional music every night.

Simple Simon The Diamond. Deli in an organic food store offering healthy takeaway lunches (€2–5). Mon–Sat 10am–6pm.

SLIEVE LEAGUE

To the west of Donegal town lies one of the most stupendous landscapes in Ireland. There are two routes up to the ridge of Slieve League: a back way following the signpost to Baile Mór just before Teelin, and the road route from Teelin to Bunglass, a sheer 300m above the sea. The former path has you looking up continually at the ridge known as One Man's Pass, on which walkers seem the size of pins, while the front approach swings you up to one of the most thrilling cliff scenes in the world, the Amharc Mór. On a good day you can see a third of Ireland from the summit.

GLENCOLMCILLE

Since the seventh century, following Columba's stay in the valley, GLENCOLMCILLE has been a place of pilgrimage: every June 9 at midnight the locals commence a three-hour barefoot itinerary of the cross-inscribed slabs that stud the valley basin, finishing up with Mass at 3am in the small church. If you want to attempt Turas Cholmcille (“Columba's Journey”) yourself, get a map of the route from the Glencolmcille Hill Walkers Centre, which also has lovely modern budget accommodation (see p.596), or the Folk Village Museum (Easter–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun noon–6pm; €4.50; @glenfolkvillage.com), a cluster of replica, period-furnished thatched cottages.

ACCOMMODATION

Dooley Hostel ☎074 973 0130. A path to the left of the Folk Village Museum leads to this very basic but wonderfully positioned hostel run by a chatty local lady called Mary and her son Leo. Dorms €15, doubles €30, camping €10

Ionad Siul Guesthouse ☎ 074 973 0302, 📍 ionadsuil.ie. Very modern and comfortable rooms at the Glencolmille Hill Walkers Centre, with use of a cosy communal area and self-catering facilities. Doubles €50

EATING AND DRINKING

An Cistin Part of the Foras Cultúir Uladh Irish language and culture complex, and the best place for food and drink.

Biddy's Bar Main St. Small bar located in the centre of town. In the summer there's live music most nights, from traditional and folk to blues.

Roarty's Main St. Good for a drink and lively traditional music sessions most nights.

Northern Ireland

In 1998, after thirty years of the Troubles in Northern Ireland, its people overwhelmingly voted in support of a political settlement and, it was hoped, an end to political and sectarian violence between Catholic republicans and Protestant unionists. For a time the political process gradually inched forwards, hampered by deep mistrust and suspicion on both sides. In recent years, however, considerable headway has been made in the peace process, with the resumption of devolved government in Northern Ireland, and a greater sense of hope evident on both sides of the community. Belfast and Derry are lively and attractive cities that have benefited from considerable investment and regeneration in recent years, and the northern coastline – especially the bizarre geometry of the Giant's Causeway – is as spectacular as anything in Ireland.

BELFAST

A quarter of Northern Ireland's population lives in the capital, BELFAST. The legacy of the Troubles is still clearly visible in areas like West Belfast, where peace walls currently divide Catholic and Protestant communities (although there are plans to remove them by 2023) and political murals adorn street corners. Security measures have been considerably eased, though there are certain flashpoints such as the Short Strand and the Ardoyne.

The city is going from strength to strength, with a flourishing arts scene and many new restaurants and clubs. Despite its turbulent history, the city is imbued with a zest for life, and a palpable cross-community desire for a peaceful future.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

City Hall is the central landmark of Belfast, and divides the city conveniently into north and south. The area to the north of it, known as the Cathedral Quarter, contains most of Belfast's official buildings, as well as the main shopping areas, cosy pubs and cool warehouse restaurants. The southern section of the city, the so-called Queen's Quarter, hosts many of the city's museums and student bars, while the Titanic Quarter across the river is the city's most recently developed area.

Donegall Square and around

Belfast City Hall, presiding over central Donegall Square, is an austere Presbyterian building (tours Mon–Fri 11am, 2pm & 3pm, Sat 2pm & 3pm; free). At the northwest corner of the square stands the Linen Hall Library (Mon–Fri 9.30am–5.30pm, Sat 9.30am–4pm; free; 📍 linenhall.com), entered on Fountain Street, where the Political Collection houses over eighty thousand publications covering Northern Ireland's political life since 1966. The streets heading north off Donegall Square North lead to the main shopping area.

The Cathedral Quarter and river area

Towards the river, either side of Ann Street, are the narrow alleyways known as The Entries, with some great old saloon bars and warehouse restaurants. The area is becoming the focus of the city's arts scene, especially with the opening of the Metropolitan Arts Centre, 10 Exchange St West (MAC; daily 10am–7pm, later on performance nights; 📍 themaclive.com), which hosts regular art and photography exhibitions, and music, theatre and dance performances.

At the end of High Street the clock tower is a good position from which to view the world's second- and third-largest cranes, Goliath and Samson, across the river in the Harland & Wolff shipyard where the Titanic was built. North of the clock tower is a series of grand edifices that grew out of the same civic vanity as invested in the City Hall. The restored Customs House, a Corinthian-style building, is the first you'll see, but the most monolithic is the Church of Ireland St Anne's Cathedral at the junction of Donegall and Talbot streets, a neo-Romanesque basilica (Mon–Fri 10am–4pm, Sun noon–3pm; free).

POLITICAL MURALS

The Republican and Loyalist murals on the Falls and Shankill roads in West Belfast provide a fascinating and moving insight into the city's complicated past. There are over two thousand examples of this political artwork in Northern Ireland altogether, mostly painted during the height of the Troubles to represent the political and religious loyalties of the respective communities. More recently, community-led, apolitical murals are becoming increasingly common. The open-topped Belfast City Sightseeing buses include the murals in their tour of Belfast, departing every 30–45min from Castle Place (£12.50, student £10.50). Taxi Trax (Castle Junction on King St, near City Hall; £30/car; ☎028 9031 5777, 🌐taxitrax.com) offer bespoke taxi tours including West Belfast, but the most interesting way of viewing the murals is to take a walking tour with political ex-prisoners, who present both Republican and Loyalist viewpoints (tours Mon–Sat 11am & Sun 2pm; 2hr; £8; assemble at the bottom of Divis Towers, Falls Rd; ☎028 9020 0770, 🌐coiste.ie).

Titanic Quarter

Across the river from the Customs House is the sleek Odyssey complex (🌐theodyssey.co.uk), housing a sports arena doubling as a concert venue and the W5 science discovery centre (Mon–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun noon–6pm; £8.50; 🌐w5online.co.uk). Further along the waterside is the impressive Waterfront Hall concert venue (🌐waterfront.co.uk).

The main attraction in the area is the Titanic Belfast visitor centre (daily: April, May & Sept 9am–6pm; June–Aug 9am–7pm; Oct–March 10am–5pm; £17.50, includes entrance to SS Nomadic; 🌐titanicbelfast.com), which tells the story of the world-famous ship from construction right beside the visitor centre in the early 1900s, to her famous maiden voyage and tragic end. The restored SS Nomadic (daily: April–Sept 10am–6pm; Oct–March 10am–5pm; £7; 🌐nomadicbelfast.com), which once ferried first- and second-class passengers to Titanic from Cherbourg, is open to visitors on Hamilton Dock.

Stormont Estate

Completed in 1938, parliament buildings in the Stormont Estate, four miles east of the centre (bus #4a from Donegall Square West), have housed the parliament of Northern Ireland and successive assemblies and conventions; since the Good Friday Agreement in 1998 they have been home to the Northern Irish Assembly and Power Sharing Executive. A mile-long processional avenue leads up to the magnificent Neoclassical building, which stands in extensive parkland. The six frontal pillars represent the six counties of the North. Although the building is closed to the public, the grounds are open (daily: 7am–7.30pm; free), offering woodland walks and spectacular views over the city and docklands.

The Queen's Quarter

The area of South Belfast known as the Queen's Quarter stretches from the Grand Opera House, on Great Victoria Street, down to the university, and has plenty of restaurants, pubs and bars at each end. Further south on University Road, Queen's University is the architectural centrepiece, flanked by the Georgian terrace, University Square. Just south of the university are the verdant Botanic Gardens, with a Palm House (daily: April–Sept 10am–noon & 1–5pm; Oct–March 10am–noon & 1–4pm; free) that was the first of its kind in the world.

The Ulster Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; free; 🌐nmni.com) is a huge space displaying a rich collection of art and artefacts including prehistoric and Celtic objects such as the famous Malene Hoard, a collection of sixteen Neolithic stone axes; other exhibitions explore Belfast's shipbuilding and linen-producing industries.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Belfast International Airport is 30km west of town (buses every 10–30min to Europa bus station; £7 one-way, £10 return; ☎028 9448 4848, belfastairport.com); George Best Belfast City Airport is 4.8km northeast (bus #600 every 20min to city centre 5.30am–10pm; £2.50 return; ☎028 9093 9093, belfastcityairport.com).

By train Most trains call at the central Great Victoria St Station, though those from Dublin and Larne terminate at Central Station on East Bridge St.

Destinations Coleraine (9–10 daily; 1hr 20min–1hr 45min); Derry (5–9 daily; 2hr 30min); Dublin (8 daily; 2hr 10min); Larne Harbour (9–25 daily; 1hr 10min).

By bus Buses from Derry, the Republic, the airports and ferry terminals arrive at Europa Buscentre beside Great Victoria St train station; buses from the north coast use Laganside Bus Centre in Queen's Square. A regular Centrelink bus connects all bus and train stations.

Destinations Derry (11–32 daily; 1hr 50min); Dublin (20 daily; 3hr); Enniskillen (5–16 daily; 2hr–2hr 20min).

By boat Ferries from Stranraer dock at Corry Rd (taxi £9), and those from Liverpool further north on West Bank Rd (taxi £8), while ferries from Cairnryan dock 30km north at Larne (bus or train to centre).

INFORMATION

Tourist office The Belfast Welcome Centre, 10–12 Donegall Square North (Mon–Sat 9am–5.30/7pm, Sun 11am–4pm; ☎028 9024 6609, visit-belfast.com). Offers internet access.

GETTING AROUND

Information on all buses and trains is available at ☎028 9066 6630 or translink.co.uk.

By bus The city is served by Metro bus service. Day tickets for the whole network cost £3.70 (Mon–Sat). One-way tickets cost £1.20–1.80. The metro kiosk in Donegall Square West provides free bus maps. Ulsterbus serves outlying areas.

Discount passes The one-, two- or three-day Belfast Visitor Pass (£6.50/£11/£14.50) offers unlimited travel and discounts for visitor attractions around the city.

Bike rental Lifecycles, Unit 35, Smithfield Market (£10/day, £16 for 2hr guided tour).

ACCOMMODATION

★ Arnie's Backpackers 63 Fitzwilliam St ☎028 9024 2867, arniesbackpackers.co.uk. Cheerful and relaxed independent hostel with a homely atmosphere and colourful garden, near the university. Dorms £12, twins £44

Avenue House 23 Eglantine Ave ☎028 9066 5904, avenueguesthouse.com. A homely guesthouse in a red-brick Victorian townhouse, with a warm welcome, pretty garden and great breakfasts. Doubles £70, triple £85

Belfast International Youth Hostel 22–32 Donegall Rd ☎028 9031 5435. Large, well-equipped but characterless modern HINI hostel, just west of Shaftesbury Square. Dorms £15, doubles £50

Lagan Backpackers 121 Fitzroy Ave ☎028 9514 0049, laganbackpackers.com. Friendly, clean and comfortable place in an old red-brick house, with free English breakfast included and regular barbecue nights in summer. Dorms £15, doubles £40

EATING

Many of the best places to eat and the liveliest pubs are located in the Cathedral Quarter, with plenty of budget options and student bars around Great Victoria Street and in the university area.

Bookfinders Café 47 University Rd. Bohemian café at the back of a charmingly messy bookshop. Poetry nights on Fridays from 8pm. Lunch from £3. Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm.

★ Ginger Bistro 7–8 Hope St gingerbistro.com. Fresh seasonal ingredients are sourced locally from farmers and fishermen, and whipped into tasty and imaginative dishes with an international twist. Mains £13–20. Tues–Sat noon–3pm & 5–9.30pm.

Harlem Café 34 Bedford St harlembelfast.co.uk. A lunchtime institution with days-gone-by comfort and charm. Fantastic dinner at weekends. Home-made pie £8. Mon–Thurs 8am–4pm, Fri & Sat 8/9am–late, Sun 9am–5pm.

Home Restaurant 22 Wellington Place homebelfast.co.uk. Delicatessen serving home-made comfort food from locally sourced ingredients. £6–12. Mon–Thurs noon–4pm & 5–9.30pm, Fri & Sat noon–4pm.

The Other Place 78 Botanic Ave theotherplace.co.uk. Fine breakfasts, and plenty of pizzas, pastas and baked potatoes (£5–10). Daily 8am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Belfast's best entertainment is pub music, though there's also a vibrant club scene and plenty of DJ bars. For listings check The Big List (free; thebiglist.co.uk), available in pubs, record shops and hostels, and the Belfast Telegraph (70p; belfasttelegraph.co.uk).

PUBS

★ Crown Liquor Saloon 46 Great Victoria St. The city's most famous pub, decked out like a spa bath, serves a good range of Ulster food, such as champ and colcannon (both potato dishes) and Strangford oysters in season.

Mon–Wed 11.30am–11pm, Thurs–Sat 11.30am–midnight, Sun 12.30–10pm.

Cuckoo 149 Lisburn Rd. Quirky bar popular with students, with a graffitied floor, cuckoo clocks on the walls, and jam jars of cocktails (£4.95). Daily until 1am.

The Dirty Onion 3 Hill St @ thedirtyonion.com. Housed in one of the oldest buildings in Belfast, The Dirty Onion is one of the most buzzing pubs in the city. Expect live music nightly and queues at weekends. Daily noon–1am.

Duke of York 7–11 Commercial Court @ dukeofyorkbelfast.com. Traditional bar on one of Belfast's oldest cobbled streets, with regular live trad sessions, an upstairs disco and a courtyard area which gets packed on sunny days. Daily until late.

The John Hewitt 53 Donegall St @ thejohnhewitt.com. Owned by Belfast Unemployed Resource Centre, this popular bar has some of Belfast's best traditional music sessions on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Saturday evenings, blues on Thursdays and jazz on Fridays.

Madden's 52–74 Berry St. Unpretentious and atmospheric pub, with regular traditional music sessions (Fri & Sat).

CLUBS

The Kremlin 90 Donegall St @ kremlin-belfast.com. Northern Ireland's biggest gay venue, with a host of events throughout the week.

Northern Whig 2–10 Bridge St @ thenorthernwhig.com. Massive upmarket bar in the premises of the old newspaper, featuring pre-club DJs most nights.

SHOPPING

The main shopping area is the long stretch of Donegall Place and Royal Ave, where you'll find big fashion and retail names. The big shopping centres are Victoria Square on Victoria St and Castle Court on Royal Ave. Unsurprisingly, things get more alternative in the university area.

George's Market May St, east of City Hall. Specializes in food on Friday and artisan produce at the weekends. Fri 6am–2pm, Sat 9am–3pm, Sun 10am–4pm.

No Alibis 83 Botanic Ave @ noalibis.com. A great independent bookshop specializing in crime. It often holds music events and readings. Opening hours depend on events.

The Yellow Submarine 44 Botanic Ave. You don't get much cooler than this. Five floors filled with an eclectic mix of vintage clothing, vinyl, books and furniture at very reasonable prices. Mon–Sat 11am–6pm, Sun 1–5pm.

DIRECTORY

Post office Castle Place.

THE GIANT'S CAUSEWAY

Since 1693, when the Royal Society publicized it as one of the great wonders of the natural world, the Giant's Causeway has been a major tourist attraction. Lying 65 miles northwest of Belfast, it consists of an estimated 37,000 polygonal basalt columns; it's the result of a massive subterranean explosion some sixty million years ago which spewed out a huge mass of molten basalt onto the surface which, as it cooled, solidified into massive polygonal crystals. Taking the 1km path down the cliffs from the visitor centre (daily: Feb, March & Oct 9am–6pm; April–June & Sept 9am–7pm, July & Aug 9am–9pm; Nov–Jan 9am–5pm; £9; @ giantscausewayofficialguide.com), or the shuttle bus (every 15min; £2 return), brings you to the most spectacular of the blocks where many people linger, but if you push on, you'll be rewarded with relative solitude and views of some of the more impressive formations high in the cliffs. One of these, Chimney Point, has an appearance so bizarre that the ships of the Spanish Armada opened fire on it, believing that they were attacking Dunluce Castle, a few kilometres further west. An alternative 3.2km circuit follows the spectacular cliff-top path from the visitor centre, with views across to Scotland, to a flight of 162 steps leading down the

THE MOURNE MOUNTAINS

If you're based in Belfast but fancy a day-trip out of the metropolis, the beautiful Mourne Mountains provide the perfect escape. The mountain range comprises twelve peaks, of which Slieve Donard, at 850m, is the highest in Northern Ireland. From Belfast, buses #20, #720 and #237 run from the Europa Buscentre to Newcastle (up to 15 daily; 1hr); from Newcastle, the Mourne Rambler service (June–Aug) tracks a loop through the area (£5.50 day-ticket; @ www.mourne-mountains.com).

GETTING TO THE GIANT'S CAUSEWAY

Trains from Belfast go to Coleraine, where there's a regular connection to Portrush; from either, you can catch the "open-top" bus (July & Aug 4 daily; £9 for day ticket) to the Causeway, or from Portrush there's bus #172, both running via Bushmills. A restored narrow-gauge railway runs between Bushmills and the Causeway (July & Aug 7 daily, plus some days in other months; 20min; one-way £5.25, return £6.75; ☎ 028 2073 2844).

Alternatively, take a direct coach (Goldline Express #221) from the Belfast Europa Buscentre to the Causeway (July & Aug 4 daily; 1hr 35min; one-way £11.50, return £17.50). The Antrim Coaster coach (Goldline Express #252) runs from Larne direct to the Causeway (April–Sept only; 2 daily; 2hr 30min; one-way £10, return £17.50) and on to Coleraine via Bushmills, Portrush and Portstewart, Antrim Glens and stunning seascapes en route.

If you prefer to travel by foot, you can walk the "Causeway Coast Way" (☎ causewaycoastway.com), a spectacular 33-mile trail starting from Ballycastle that will earn you a "green discount" admission to the visitor centre.

cliff to a set of basalt columns known as the Organ Pipes.

Carrick-a-Rede

Don't miss the Carrick-a-Rede Rope Bridge, which sits 13km east of the Causeway (daily: March–Oct 10am–6/7pm, June–Aug 10am–7pm, weather permitting; £5.90; ☎ national trust.org.uk). For the past two hundred years, fishermen had reputedly erected a bridge from the mainland cliffs to Carrick-a-Rede island over a vast chasm, so they could check their salmon nets. Now, the National Trust is in charge. Venturing across the swaying rope bridge high above the water is an exhilarating experience, but not for the faint-hearted. Ulsterbus #252 runs between Bushmills and the rope bridge via the Causeway in summer months.

PORTSTEWART

PORTSTEWART is a pleasant coastal resort ten miles west of the Giant's Causeway, with a long sandy beach and good surf. Barmouth Wildlife Reserve behind the strand has bird hides offering opportunities to view waterfowl, waders and nesting birds.

ACTIVITIES

Ocean Warriors 80 The Promenade ☎ 028 7083 6500. Surf shop offering boards and wetsuits for sale or rent.

ACCOMMODATION

Rick's Causeway Coast Hostel 4 Victoria Terrace ☎ 028 7083 3789, ☎ rickscusewaycoast.hostel.com. The bus stop for the Giant's Causeway is 100m from the hostel. Dorms £15, doubles £40

EATING AND DRINKING

Harbour Café 18 The Promenade. Huge, hearty portions of lasagne, roast dinners and fish and chips (from £7.50) served up by friendly staff daily. There's an ice-cream parlour too for a sweet treat. Open daily.

Shenanigans 78 The Promenade. The steaks, fresh fish and vegetables used for the seasonal menu in this gastropub are all sourced in Northern Ireland. The meal deal for two including wine is just £20. They serve a great strawberry daiquiri (£5.90) in the bar, and there's a popular student nightclub Havana upstairs. Daily noon–1.30am.

DERRY-LONDONDERRY

DERRY-LONDONDERRY (traditionally referred to as "Derry" by Nationalists, "Londonderry" by Unionists – and now often pinned together as "Derry-Londonderry") lies at the foot of Lough Foyle, less than three miles from the border with the Republic. The city presents a beguiling picture, its two hillsides terraced with pastel-shaded houses punctuated by stone spires, and, being seventy percent Catholic, has a very different atmosphere from Belfast. Despite the Catholic dominance, from Partition in 1921 until the late 1980s, the Protestant minority maintained control of all important local institutions. The situation came to a head after the Protestant Apprentice Boys' March in August 1969, when the police attempted to storm the Catholic estates of the Bogside. In the ensuing tension, British troops were widely deployed for the first time in Northern Ireland. On January 31, 1972, the crisis deepened when British paratroopers opened fire on civilians, killing thirteen unarmed demonstrators in what became known as Bloody Sunday.

Derry-Londonderry is now greatly changed: tensions eased considerably here long before Belfast, although defiant murals remain and marching is still a contentious issue. The city centre has undergone much regeneration, and Derry-Londonderry's justifiable reputation for innovation in the arts resulted in it becoming the UK City of Culture in 2013 (@cityofculture2013.com).

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

You can walk the entire mile-long circuit of Derry-Londonderry's seventeenth-century city walls – some of the best-preserved defences in Europe. Reinforced by bulwarks, bastions and an earth rampart with parapet, the walls encircle the original medieval street pattern with four gateways – Shipquay, Butcher, Bishop and Ferryquay.

The Bogside murals are in the streets that were once the undisputed preserve of the IRA, and Free Derry Corner marks the site of the original barricades erected against the British army at the height of the Troubles. Nearby are the Bloody Sunday and Hunger Strikers' memorials. Further along the city wall is the Royal Bastion, former site of the Revd George Walker statue, which was blown up in 1973. It is in Walker's and their predecessors' memory that the Protestant Apprentice Boys march around the walls every August 12. The new Peace Bridge crosses the River Foyle to the redeveloped Ebrington Square, a former World War I military base that has been transformed into an outdoor event space.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane City of Derry airport (@028 7181 0784, @cityofderryairport.com) is 7 miles northeast, connected to the centre by the Airporter bus (£5).

By train Trains from Belfast arrive on the east bank of the Foyle with a free connecting bus to the bus station.

Destinations Belfast (4–9 daily; 2hr 30min); Coleraine (5–9 daily; 1hr).

By bus The station is on Foyle St, beside Guildhall Square.

Destinations Donegal (3–7 daily; 1hr 25min–1hr 45min); Dublin (11 daily; 4hr); Enniskillen (5–15 daily; 2hr–4hr 20min); Sligo (3–5 daily; 2hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office 44 Foyle St (July–Sept Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–5pm; Oct–June Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 10am–4pm; @028 7126 7284, @visitderry.com).

Tours City Tours offer walking tours of the walls (11 Carlisle Rd; daily 10am, noon & 2pm; £4; @0771 293 7997, @derrycitytours.com) and taxi tours (£25/hr for 4 people), which explore fifteen hundred years of history and provide an introduction to the Bogside murals.

ACCOMMODATION

Derry City Independent Hostel 44 Great James St @028 7128 0524. A friendly, bohemian hostel with furniture from around the world. Hosts regular barbecues in the summer. Dorms £18, doubles £50

★The Saddler's House 36 Great James St @028 7126 9691, @thesaddlershouse.com. Beautifully decorated Georgian townhouse run by knowledgeable hosts and serving excellent breakfasts. This, together with its sister B&B The Merchant House, is a real treat. They also have self-catering cottages and two-bed apartments available to rent. Late-night revellers not welcome. Doubles £60

EATING

Badgers Bar & Restaurant 16–18 Orchard St. Located in the heart of the city, close to the walls, this hugely popular bar serves good pub grub using locally sourced ingredients. Daily noon–10pm.

★Primrose Café 15 Carlisle Rd @028 7126 4622. This atmospheric café is the ideal spot to enjoy a bit of people-watching while indulging your sweet tooth. Alfresco dining in their gorgeous "secret garden" is a treat. Mains £5–8. Mon–Sat 8am–5pm, Sun 11am–4pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Mason's Bar 10 Magazine St. Much-loved live music venue which also runs Derry's only comedy club (two Thursdays every month). Mon–Sat 11am–1am, Sun noon–12.15am.

Peadar O'Donnell's/The Gweedore Bar 59–63 Waterloo St @peadars.com. Traditional and contemporary music every night until late.

Sandino's Café Bar Water St @sandinoscafebar.com. Intimate candlelit café-bar with a Che Guevara theme downstairs, and a live music venue upstairs, which opens late. Traditional music on Sun from 5pm.

Introduction

Of all the countries in Europe, Italy is perhaps the hardest to classify. A modern industrialized nation and a harbinger of global style, its designers lead the way with each season's fashions. But it is also a Mediterranean country, with all that that implies. If there is a single national characteristic, it is to embrace life to the full, manifest in its numerous local festivals and in the importance placed on good food. There is also, of course, the country's enormous cultural legacy: Tuscany alone has more classified historical monuments than any country in the world, and every region holds its own treasures.

Italy wasn't unified until 1861, a fact that's borne out by the regional nature of the place today. The well-to-do cities of Turin and Milan epitomize the wealthy, industrial north; to their south is Genoa, a bustling port with a long seafaring tradition. By far the biggest draw in the north is Venice, a unique and beautiful city – though you won't be alone in appreciating it. The centre of the country, specifically Tuscany, boasts classic, rolling countryside and the art-packed towns of Florence, Pisa and Siena, while neighbouring Umbria has a quieter appeal. Rome, the capital, harbours a dazzling array of ancient and Renaissance gems. South of here in Campania, Naples, a vibrant, unforgettable city, is the spiritual heart of the economically undeveloped Italian south, while close by are fine ancient sites and the spectacular Amalfi Coast. The region of Basilicata is home to spellbinding Matera, a unique troglodyte settlement where cave dwellings are carved into rock. Puglia, the "heel" of Italy, has underrated pleasures – most notably Lecce, a Baroque gem of a city. Sicily is a law unto itself, with attractions ranging from Hellenic remains to the drama of Mount Etna, and the beguiling city of Palermo. Sardinia, too, feels far removed from the mainland, especially in its relatively undiscovered interior.

CHRONOLOGY

- 753 BC Rome founded by Romulus and Remus.
509 BC The city becomes a Republic.
49 BC Julius Caesar wages war against the Senate and extends the Roman Empire across Europe.

- 80 AD Building of the Colosseum.
476 Last Roman Emperor Romulus Augustus overthrown by barbarians.
756 Papal States created after Frankish forces defeat the Lombards.
1173 Building of the Tower of Pisa begins.
1512 Michelangelo completes his frescoes in the Sistine Chapel, as the Italian Renaissance flourishes.
1804 Napoleon declares himself emperor of Italy.
1814 Following Napoleon's defeat, Italy is divided into various states.
1861 Unification of Italian states into a Kingdom by Giuseppe Garibaldi.
1898 First Italian football league established.
1915 Italy joins World War I on the side of the Allies.
1922 Fascist Benito Mussolini becomes prime minister.
1929 The Lateran Treaty declares Vatican City an independent state. It is the smallest state in the world.
1940 Italy enters World War II on the side of the Nazis.
1943 Allies capture Sicily and imprison Mussolini. Italy declares war on Germany.
1945 Mussolini is captured and executed by Italian Communists.
1946 Republic replaces the monarchy.
1957 The Treaty of Rome establishes the European Economic Community.
1970s The military left-wing organization Brigate Rosse terrorizes the country with murders, kidnappings and sabotage.
1992 Silvio Berlusconi becomes Prime Minister and the so-called Second Republic begins.
2013 Pope Benedict XVI unexpectedly resigns and is replaced by Francis I. The Governor of Sicily declares state of emergency when hundreds of African migrants die in shipwrecks off the coast.
2016 In August, over 240 people are killed when a powerful earthquake hits Amatrice and nearby towns in Central Italy.

BY PLANE

The majority of tourists arrive at the airports of Rome or Milan, although low-cost European airlines Ryanair and easyJet also offer services to Bari, Bologna, Brindisi, Genoa, Naples, Palermo, Parma, Perugia, Pisa, Rimini, Turin and Venice, plus destinations in Sardinia and Sicily. Budget Italian airline blu-express (www.blu-express.com) flies from Greece and Albania and a number of destinations in Italy including Milan and Rome, as well as between many Italian cities; Meridiana (www.meridiana.it) has routes between many European and Italian cities. From North America, national carrier Alitalia (www.alitalia.com) runs direct flights to Milan, Rome and Venice, with numerous connecting flights to other cities, although you may find cheaper deals with US airlines such as Delta and American Airlines. Meridiana operates direct flights from New York to Cagliari, Catania, Olbia, Naples and Palermo. The cheapest option, though, can be to fly to London and get a budget flight onward from there.

BY TRAIN

Train travel from the UK often works out more expensive than flying, but there is a vast choice of routes, mostly arriving in Milan. From elsewhere in Europe, look into Trenitalia's Smart Price fares; in theory you can travel from Paris for €35, Lugano and Zurich for €9, Geneva, Bern and Basel for €19, Munich for €33 and Vienna for €29, but in practice availability is extremely limited and seats must be booked at least a month ahead. If you're under 26, and planning to travel extensively by rail, consider Trenitalia's Carta Verde, which gives you 10 percent off domestic fares and 25 percent off international fares (€40; valid 1 year); see trenitalia.com for details.

BY BUS

Getting to Italy by bus can take a soul-destroyingly long time and is rarely cheap enough to be worth it. Eurolines (eurolines.co.uk) runs services around Europe; London to Venice costs €95 and takes 30 hours. Busabout (busabout.com) runs hop-on, hop-off services to Rome and cities further north from destinations throughout Europe.

BY FERRY

Ferries ply routes from Albania to Ancona, Bari and Brindisi; Corsica to Genoa and Livorno; Croatian ports to Ancona, Bari and Venice; ports in Greece to Ancona, Bari, Brindisi, Trieste and Venice; Bar and Kotor in Montenegro to Ancona and Bari; Tangiers in Morocco to Genoa and Livorno; and Barcelona to Genoa, Livorno and Civitavecchia. See directferries.it for details.

BY TRAIN

The rail network is extensive, less so in the south, though delays are common. Trains are operated by Italian State Railways (Ferrovie dello Stato or FS; trenitalia.com). For most journeys you'll have a choice between Eurostar – expensive but fast – the slower, mid-priced Intercity and the cheap, snail-paced Diretto, Interregionale and Regionale. Seat reservations are obligatory on Eurostar and Intercity lines, and should be made a week in advance on busy routes. InterRail and Eurail passes are valid on the whole FS network, though you'll pay supplements for the fast trains and most long-distance trains. Tickets must be validated in the yellow machines at the head of the platform. Call Trenitalia on ☎06 6847 5475 or consult the website for information and online tickets.

BY BUS

Some parts of the country – notably parts of the south and Sicily – are better served by bus than by train, though schedules can be sketchy. Buy tickets at tabacchi or the bus terminal rather than on board; for longer journeys you can normally buy them in advance direct from the bus company. Major companies running long-haul services include Marozzi (Rome to the Amalfi Coast and Brindisi; www2.marozzi.it), SAIS (connects major mainland cities with Sicily; saistrasporti.it), SITA (Puglia, Campania and Basilicata; www.sitasudtrasporti.it) and Sulga (destinations in Puglia, Emilia Romagna and Umbria, as well as Milan, Naples, Florence, Rome and Rome Fiumicino Airport; sulga.it).

BY FERRY

Ferries for Sicily and Sardinia depart from Genoa, Livorno, Naples, Salerno (near Naples; Sicily only) and Civitavecchia (near Rome). Smaller islands such as Capri, plus towns in the Bay of Naples and along the Amalfi Coast, are served by speedier hydrofoils. Book well in advance for the longer routes in high season to find the cheapest fares; for timetables, see directferries.it.

ACCOMMODATION

Book hotels in advance in the major cities and resorts, especially in summer. Rates vary greatly, but on average you can expect to pay €65 for a double without private bathroom (senza bagno) in a one-star hotel, and at least €90 for a double in a three-star. Very busy places might ask you to book a minimum of three nights.

B&Bs and agriturismi (farmstays) can make a good-value alternative. They are often in spectacular locations and provide excellent Italian home cooking, though you may need a car to get to them: ask for a list from the local tourist office.

There are hostels in every major Italian city, charging €15–30 per person for a dorm bed, though for two people travelling together, this isn't much cheaper than a budget hotel room. You can see the full list of Italy's HI hostels on aighostels.it. Student accommodation is a popular budget option in university towns (July & Aug only); alternatively, ask the tourist board about local case religiose or pensionati, religious houses with rooms or beds to let. They can be better value than hostels but often have curfews. Short-term flat rentals can be cheaper than staying in hotels, in particular in cities like Rome and Florence. cross-pollinate.com lists rooms and apartments for rent in a number of Italian cities.

There are plenty of campsites, and in most cases you pay for location rather than facilities, which can vary enormously. Daily prices are around €8 per person, plus €10 for a two-person tent. See camping.it for information.

FOOD AND DRINK

There are few places in the world where you can eat and drink as well as in Italy. If you eat only pizza and sandwiches, you'll be missing out on the distinctive regional cuisines; don't be afraid to ask what the piatti tipici (local dishes) are. Most Italians start their day in a bar, with a cappuccino and a cornetto (croissant), a breakfast that should cost around €2 if you stand at the counter – at least double that if you take a seat. At lunchtime, bars sell tramezzini, sandwiches on white bread, and panini (sandwiches). Another stopgap is arancini, fried meat- or cheese-filled rice balls, particularly prevalent in the south. Italian ice cream

APERITIVO TIME

When you're strapped for cash but want to have a good time, it's worth remembering that between about 6 and 9pm, most bars either bring you snacks or have an aperitivo buffet if you buy a drink. These snacks are often substantial enough to fill you up, so you'll be able to save on buying dinner.

(gelato) is justifiably famous and usually costs €1.50–2.50 a cup or cone. Markets sell fresh, tasty produce for next to nothing, and work out much cheaper than supermarket shopping.

The ultimate budget option for sit-down food is pizza. Although trattorias or restaurants often offer a fixed-price menù turistico, it's generally better to steer clear if you want an authentic experience. A trattoria is traditionally cheaper than a restaurant, offering cucina casalinga (home-style cooking). But in either, pasta dishes go for around €5–9; main fish or meat courses for €7–15. Order vegetables (contorni) separately. Afterwards there's fruit (frutta), desserts (dolci) and liquors such as grappa and limoncello.

DRINK

Bars are less social centres than functional places for a quick coffee or beer. You pay first at the cash desk (la cassa), present your receipt (scontrino) and give your order. Coffee comes small and black (caffè), with a dash of milk (macchiato), iced (shakerato) in summer, or there's the ever-popular cappuccino. Tea (tè) comes with lemon (con limone) unless you ask for milk (con latte); it's mainly served cold as ice-tea (tè freddo). A spremuta is a fresh orange juice; crushed-ice fruit granite are refreshing in summer.

Wine (vino) is invariably drunk with meals, and is very cheap. Go for the local stuff: ask for un mezzo (a half-litre) or un quarto (a quarter) della casa (house). Bottles are pricier but still good value; expect to pay at least €12 in a restaurant. The cheapest and most common brands of beer (birra) are the Italian Peroni and Moretti. Draught beer (alla spina) is served in measures of a pint (una media) and half-pint (piccola). A generous shot of spirits, limoncello, or grappa – made from grape pips and stalks – costs from €2. Amaro is a bitter after-dinner liqueur. Drinking in bars (locali) can be pricey – around €5 for a beer and €5–9 for a cocktail – while drinking in clubs can be ruinous, although the entrance fee of €10–15 usually includes one drink.

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Entrance to many of Italy's state-owned museums and archeological sites is free or reduced for EU citizens aged under 25. Students are often eligible for discounts too; carry a valid ISIC card or equivalent. A number of museums and archeological sites also offer free entry the last Sunday of the month.

Some places will be happy to serve you tap water (acqua del rubinetto), most certainly in the mountains, although it's not common in cities as the quality of water is low. For bottled water, ask for acqua naturale (still) or acqua frizzante (sparkling).

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Italy remains strongly family-oriented, with an emphasis on the traditions and rituals of the Catholic Church, and it's not unusual to find people living with their parents until their early thirties. While the north is cosmopolitan, the south can be rather provincial; women travelling on their own may attract unwanted attention in smaller areas. When entering churches, ensure that your knees and shoulders are covered. In towns and villages all over the country, life stops during the middle of the day for a long lunch.

Tipping is not a big deal in Italy; in restaurants – if a service charge is not included – it's acceptable to reward good service with a couple of euros. In bars, some Italians leave a coin on the counter after finishing their coffee, but it is by no means expected. Likewise, taxi drivers will not expect a tip. Smoking is outlawed in all enclosed public places.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

Spectator sports are popular, particularly football (calcio), though cycling, motorcycling, motor racing and women's volleyball are also high-profile sports. A football match in Italy can be exhilarating to watch. The season runs from the end of August to May; see www.legaseriea.it for details; tickets cost from €25.

Campania, Sardinia and Sicily, with their clear waters, provide excellent conditions for scuba diving and snorkelling, while Rome, Milan, Turin, Venice and, at the other end of the country, Mount Etna in Sicily, are within easy reach of ski resorts. The same mountainous terrain is perfectly suited to summertime hiking. For mountain biking try the rolling hills of Umbria and Tuscany, although serious bikers might consider the infamous Passo dello Stelvio near the Swiss border.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post office opening hours are usually Monday to Friday 8.30am to 6.30pm, with branches in larger towns also open Saturdays 8.30am–12.30pm. Stamps (francobolli) can also be bought at tabacchi – ask for posta prioritaria if you want letters to arrive home before you do. Public phones are card-operated; get a phonecard (scheda telefonica) from tabacchi and newsstands for €5/10. For land-line calls – local and long-distance – dial all digits, including the area code. Directory enquiries (☎ 1240) are pricey. Virtually all hostels and a number of cafés offer free wi-fi; there are internet cafés in most towns too; hourly rates are around €2–4.

EMERGENCIES

Most of the crime you're likely to come across is small-time. You can minimize the risk of this by being discreet, not flashing anything of value and keeping a

ITALY ONLINE

🌐 deliciousitaly.com A guide on food, travel and culture.

🌐 italia.it The official website of Italy's tourist board.

🌐 italianreflections.com Traveller blogs, news and features on the country.

🌐 buzzinrome.com Rome eating and drinking listings, as well as tips on shopping in the capital.

Pharmacies (farmacie) can give advice and dispense prescriptions; there's one open all night in towns and cities (find the address of the nearest on any pharmacy door). For serious ailments, go to the Pronto Soccorso (casualty) section of the nearest hospital (ospedale).

INFORMATION

Most towns, major train stations and airports have a tourist office (ufficio turistico), which will give out maps for free. Kompass has excellent hiking maps mainly covering the north of the country, as does Club Alpino Italiano, available throughout Italy.

MONEY AND BANKS

Italy's currency is the euro (€). You'll get the best rate of exchange at a bank; hours are Monday to Friday 8.30am to 1.30pm and 2.30 to 4pm. ATMs (bancomat) are widespread. The Italian way of life is cash-based, and many smaller restaurants and B&Bs will not accept credit cards.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops and businesses open Monday to Saturday 8/9am to 1pm and 4–7/8pm, though in the north, offices work a 9am to 5pm day. Just about everything, with the exception of bars and restaurants, closes on Sunday. Most churches keep shop hours. Museums traditionally open Tuesday to Sunday 9am to 7pm. Most archaeological sites open daily from 9am until an hour before sunset.

Many of Italy's inland towns close down almost entirely for the month of August, when Italians head for the coast. Everything closes for national holidays: January 1, January 6, Easter Monday, April 25, May 1, June 2, August 15, November 1, December 8, December 25 and 26.

Rome

Of all Italy's historic cities, ROME (Roma) exerts the most fascination. Its sheer weight of history is endlessly compelling. Classical features – the Colosseum, the Roman Forum, the spectacular Palatine Hill – stand alongside ancient basilicas containing relics from the early Christian period, while Baroque fountains and churches define the city centre. But it's not all history and brickwork: Rome has a vibrant, chaotic life of its own, its crowded streets thronged with traffic, locals, tourists and students.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Rome's city centre is divided into distinct areas. The Centro Storico (historic centre) occupies a hook of land on the east bank of the River Tiber, bordered to the east by Via del Corso and to the north and south by water. The old Campus Martius of Roman times, it became the heart of the Renaissance city and is now an unruly knot of narrow streets holding some of the best of Rome's classical and Baroque heritage, as well as much of its nightlife.

From here, Rome's central core spreads east, across Via del Corso to the major shopping streets around the Spanish Steps and the main artery of Via Nazionale, and south to the Roman Forum, Colosseum and Palatine Hill. The west bank of the river is home to the Vatican and St Peter's and, to the south of these, charming Trastevere. East of Termini Station is student-hub San Lorenzo, home to Rome's main university and some of its best nightlife.

The Roman Forum

The best place to start a tour of the city is the Roman Forum (daily 8.30am–1hr before sunset; 2-day joint ticket with Colosseum and Palatine Hill €12, €7.50 for 18–25-year-olds), the bustling centre of the ancient city. It's worth getting the audioguide (€5, must be returned by 4.30pm) as there is next to no textual information displayed on site.

Running through the heart of the Forum, the Via Sacra was the best-known street of ancient Rome, lined with its most important buildings, such as the Curia – begun in 45 BC, this was the home of the Senate during the Republican period. Next to the Curia is the Arch of Septimius Severus, erected in the early third century AD to commemorate the Emperor's tenth anniversary in power. In the centre of the Forum is the House of the Vestal Virgins, where the six women charged with keeping the sacred flame of Vesta alight lived. On the far side of the site, the towering Basilica of Maxentius is probably the Forum's most impressive relic. From the basilica, the Via Sacra climbs to the Arch of Titus on a low arm of the Palatine Hill, its reliefs showing the spoils of Jerusalem being carried off by eager Romans.

Palatine Hill

From the Forum, turn right at the Arch of Titus to reach the Palatine Hill (same hours and ticket as Roman Forum), now a beautiful archeological garden. In the days of the Republic, the Palatine was the most desirable address in Rome. From the Farnese Gardens, on the right, a terrace looks back over the Forum, while the terrace at the opposite end looks down on the alleged centre of Rome's ancient beginning – an Iron Age hut, known as the House of Romulus, the best-preserved part of a ninth-century BC village.

Close by, steps lead down to the Cryptoporticus, a passage built by Nero to link the Palatine with his palace on the far side of the Colosseum. A left turn leads to the House of Augustus (entrance daily at 12.45pm only), which holds beautiful frescoes dating back to 30 BC and is considered to be among the most magnificent examples of Roman wall paintings anywhere; even the builders' ancient graffiti has been meticulously preserved.

The Capitoline Hill

Formerly the spiritual and political centre of the Roman Empire, the Capitoline Hill lies behind the Neoclassical Vittoriano monument on Piazza Venezia. Atop the Capitoline is Piazza del Campidoglio, designed by Michelangelo in the 1530s and flanked by the two wings of one of the city's most important museums of ancient art – and the oldest public gallery in the world, dating back to 1471 – the Capitoline Museums (daily 9.30am–7.30pm; €14; museicapitolini.org). The Palazzo Nuovo, the museum's left-hand wing, contains some of the best of the city's Roman and Greek sculpture. Highlights of the Palazzo dei Conservatori opposite include various parts of the colossal statue of the Emperor Constantine which once stood in the Forum, and sixteenth-century frescoes.

Colosseum

Immediately outside the Forum, the fourth-century Arch of Constantine marks the end of the Via Sacra. Across from here is Rome's most awe-inspiring ancient monument, the Colosseum (same hours and ticket as Roman Forum; bypass queues by buying tickets at the Palatine Hill). Begun by the Emperor Vespasian in 72 AD, construction was completed by his son Titus about eight years later – an event celebrated with one hundred days of games. The arena was about 500m in circumference and could seat fifty thousand people; the Romans flocked here for gladiatorial contests and cruel spectacles. Mock sea battles were also staged here – the arena could be flooded in minutes. After the games were outlawed in the fifth century, the Colosseum was pillaged for building material, but the magnificent shell remains.

Campo de' Fiori and the Ghetto

From Piazza Venezia, Via del Plebiscito forges west; take a left turn into the maze of cobbled streets that wind down to pretty Campo de' Fiori, one-time heart of the medieval city, now home to a colourful produce market (Mon–Sat 6.30am–2pm). Surrounded by bars, it's a great spot to watch the passeggiata (early-evening stroll).

A short walk from here, east of Via Arenula, a warren of narrow streets makes up the Ghetto. Having moved here from Trastevere in the thirteenth century, the city's Jews were walled off from the rest of the city in 1556, and subsequently suffered centuries of ill-treatment, culminating in the deportations of World War II, when a quarter of the Ghetto's population died in concentration camps. Today, the area has an intimate, backstreet feel, and is an atmospheric place for a wander and a delicious deep-fried artichoke.

Pantheon

One of the Centro Storico's main draws is the Pantheon (Mon–Sat 9am–7.30pm, Sun 9am–6pm; free), the most complete ancient Roman structure in the city, finished around 125 AD. Inside, the diameter of the dome and height of the building are precisely equal, and the hole in the dome's centre is a full 9m across; there are no visible arches or vaults to hold the whole thing up – instead, they're sunk into the concrete of the walls of the building. The coffered ceiling was covered in solid bronze until the seventeenth century, and the niches were filled with statues of the gods.

17 Piazza Navona

A ten-minute stroll west of the Pantheon, Piazza Navona is one of the city's most pleasing squares, and follows the lines of the Emperor Domitian's chariot arena. The Borromini-designed church of Sant'Agnese in Agone on the west side supposedly stands on the spot where St Agnes, exposed naked to the public in the stadium, miraculously grew hair to cover herself. Opposite, the Fontana dei Quattro Fiumi is by Borromini's arch-rival, Bernini; each figure represents one of the four great rivers of the world – the Nile, Danube, Ganges and Plate – though only the horse was actually carved by Bernini.

The Ara Pacis and around

Walking north along the Lungotevere (riverside drive) from Piazza Navona, you'll arrive at the striking Ara Pacis (daily 9.30am–7pm; €10.50; arapacis.it). Built in 13 BC to celebrate Augustus's victory over Spain and Gaul, the "altar of peace" is housed in a slick travertine-and-glass container designed by American architect Richard Meier in 2006. Inside, the altar supports a frieze showing Augustus and his family.

Via di Ripetta arrows north from here to grand Piazza del Popolo, where the church of Santa Maria del Popolo (Mon–Thurs 7.15am–12.30pm & 4–7pm, Fri & Sat 7.30am–7pm, Sun 9–10am & 4.30–6.30pm; free) holds some of the best Renaissance art of any Roman church. Two pictures by Caravaggio attract the most attention – the Conversion of St Paul and the Crucifixion of St Peter.

Villa Borghese

Leafy Villa Borghese, just a few minutes' stroll east of Piazza del Popolo, is a tranquil haven from the noise of the city. It harbours several fine museums, not least the Galleria Borghese (Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; timed entry every 2hr; €11; ☎06 32 810; call to book at least a day in advance), a dazzling collection of mainly Italian art and sculpture. Highlights include Canova's sculpted marble Pauline, the sister of Napoleon portrayed as a reclining Venus, in Room 1; spectacular sculptures by Bernini in rooms 2–4; and five Caravaggios in Room 8.

The Spanish Steps and Trevi Fountain

The area immediately southeast of Piazza del Popolo is historically the artistic quarter of the city, with a distinctly cosmopolitan air. At the centre of the district, Piazza di Spagna features the distinctive boat-shaped Barcaccia fountain, the last work of Bernini's father. The Spanish Steps – a venue for international posing – sweep up from the piazza to the sixteenth-century church of Trinità dei Monti. From the top of the Spanish Steps, narrow Via Sistina winds down to Piazza Barberini, dominated by Bernini's Fontana del Tritone, its muscular Triton held up by four dolphins. West down Via del Tritone, hidden among a web of narrow streets, is one of Rome's more surprising sights – the Trevi Fountain, a deafening gush of water over Baroque statues and rocks built onto the back of a Renaissance palace; legend has it that throwing a coin over your shoulder into the pool guarantees your return to Rome.

San Lorenzo

Packed in around Via Tiburtina is the edgy San Lorenzo district, a tight grid of streets named after ancient Italian tribes. The area badly suffered the Allied bombing of 1943, and it still has a slightly unkempt air to it. Street art and posters advertising upcoming gigs form a constantly evolving backdrop on every centimetre of spare wall space, interspersed with vintage shops and hole-in-the-wall pizza takeaways. It's the place to go to for cheap eats and a night out; young people gather at Piazza dell'Immacolata and surrounding streets for drinks in the early evening, before heading to one of the many busy bars and live music venues.

Trastevere

Over on the Tiber's west bank, picturesque Trastevere, once the city's shabby bohemian quarter, is now somewhat gentrified, and home to vibrant nightlife and some of the city's best restaurants.

The area's hub is Piazza di Santa Maria in Trastevere, and the magnificent twelfth-century church of the same name on the western side of the square. Held to be the first official church in Rome, built on a site where a fountain of oil is said to have sprung on the day of Christ's birth, it is resplendent with thirteenth-century mosaics. The square is a good starting point for a mooch through the district's alleys, lined with enticing cafés, bars, markets, boutiques and gelaterias.

St Peter's Basilica

The Vatican City, a tiny territory north of Trastevere, is partly hemmed in by high walls, but opens its doors to the rest of the city in the form of Bernini's Piazza San Pietro. St Peter's Basilica (daily 7am–7pm; Oct–March till 6.30pm; free) was built to a plan initially conceived at the end of the fifteenth century by Bramante and finished off over a century later by Carlo Maderno, bridging the Renaissance and Baroque eras. The first thing you see, on the right, is Michelangelo's moving Pietà, completed when he was just 24. On the right-hand side of the nave, the bronze statue of St Peter was cast in the thirteenth century by Arnolfo di Cambio. Bronze was also used in Bernini's imposing 28m-high baldachino, the centrepiece of the sculptor's embellishment of the interior. To the right of the main doors, you can ascend by stairs or lift to the roof, from where there's a steep walk up 320 steps to the dome (daily 8am–6pm; Oct–March till 5pm; €6, €8 with lift), well worth the effort for its glorious views over the city.

The Vatican Museums

A ten-minute walk from the northern side of Piazza San Pietro takes you to the Vatican Museums (Mon–Sat 9am–6pm; last admission 4pm; €16, students under 26 €8; last Sun of the month 9am–2pm, last admission 12.30pm, free; www.musei.vatican.va) – quite simply the largest, richest museum complex in the world, stuffed with treasures from every period of the city's history. The queues to get in can be daunting so it's best to book ahead online. Highlights include the Stanze di Raffaello, a set of rooms decorated for Pope Julius II by Raphael among others, including the School of Athens fresco, which depicts his artistic contemporaries as classical figures: Leonardo is Plato and Michelangelo Heracitus. Further on is the Galleria Chiaramonte, a superb collection of Roman statues, and the Galleria delle Carte Geografiche, a stunning corridor adorned with incredibly precise, richly pigmented maps of Italy.

The Sistine Chapel, of course, is the main draw. Built for Pope Sixtus IV in 1481, it serves as the pope's private chapel and hosts the conclaves of cardinals for the election of each new pope. The paintings down each side wall depict scenes from the lives of Moses and Christ by Perugino, Botticelli and Ghirlandaio, among others. But it's Michelangelo's ceiling frescoes of the Creation that everyone comes to see, executed almost single-handedly over a period of about four years for Pope Julius II. The Last Judgement, on the west wall of the chapel, was painted by Michelangelo over twenty years later. The nudity caused controversy from the start, and the pope's zealous successor, Pius IV, insisted that loincloths be added, although these were later removed.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Rome has two airports. Leonardo da Vinci, better known as Fiumicino (www.adr.it/fiumicino), and Ciampino (www.adr.it/ciampino), which is exclusively for low-cost flights. Two train services link Fiumicino to Rome: the Leonardo Express to Termini (every 30min until 11.23pm; 32min; €14), and the FL1 to Trastevere (27min), Ostiense (32min) and Tiburtina (47min) stations (every 15–30min until 11.27pm; €8). Terravision coach services (every 20min; 55min; €4; www.terravision.eu) and SIT buses (every 30–45min; 1hr; €6; www.sitbusshuttle.com) travel to Termini station and Via Crescenzo, east of Vatican City. From Ciampino, Terravision (every 20min; €4) and SIT buses (every 30–45min; €4) make the 40min trip to Termini station.

By train The main train station is Termini, meeting point of the metro lines and city bus routes. Some long-distance services use Stazione Tiburtina. The two stations are connected by metro and bus.

Destinations Bologna (every 15min; 2–4hr); Florence (every 15min; 1hr 20min–3hr 20min); Milan (every 15min; 3hr–6hr 30min); Naples (every 30min; 1hr 10min–2hr 40min); Paris (1 daily; 14hr 50min); Turin (hourly; 4–6hr); Vienna (1 daily; 13hr 20min); Zürich (via Milan; 5 daily; 6hr 50min–7hr 30min).

By bus Domestic bus services use the bus terminal outside Stazione Tiburtina (📍Tiburtina).

Destinations Agrigento (1 daily; 12hr); Amalfi (1 daily; 4hr); Bologna (2 weekly; 4hr 30min); Florence (1–2 daily; 3hr 20min); Lecce (4 daily; 8hr 30min); Naples (1 daily; 2hr); Palermo (1 daily; 11hr); Perugia (5 daily; 2hr 20min); Sorrento (2 daily; 4hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office The department of tourism Roma Capitale (📍turismoroma.it) has a tourist information booth at Termini Station at platform 24 (daily 8am–6.45pm), and green tourist information kiosks (PIT) near every major sight (daily 9.30am–7pm), as well as at both of the city's airports at arrivals (Fiumicino daily 9am–5.45pm; Ciampino daily 8.30am–6pm). The tourist information line 📞060608 is open daily 9am–9pm.

Discount passes The Roma Pass (€36 for three days; 📍romapass.it) gives you free access to all public transport within the city, as well as free entry to the first two sites you visit, plus many further discounts. Buy the pass from tourist information kiosks or from participating sites.

Tours The Yellow Guides (📍theyellowguides.com) run fun walks around the historical centre, while Eating Italy Food Tours (📍eatingitalyfoodtours.com) offer entertaining food and cultural tours.

GETTING AROUND

Tickets Public transport is cheap and reasonably reliable. A day-pass (BIG; €7), one-way ticket (BIT; valid for 100min on all public transport, including one trip on the metro; €1.50), three-day pass (€18) or one-week ticket (€24) for the metro and bus network can be bought from most newspaper stalls and tabacchi, and from ticket machines in metro stations. Stamp tickets to validate them at the entrance gates to metros and on board buses and trams.

By bus The bus network is extensive; useful routes include the #40 from Termini station, which passes through the centre en route to the Vatican, and #116 from the 📍Barberini, which serves both Villa Borghese and the Centro Storico. A network of night buses (bus notturni) serves most parts of the city, running until about 5.30am. #N1 follows metro line A; #N2 calls at all stops along metro line B; and #N8 runs from Trastevere to Termini station.

By metro The city's two metro lines, A and B, meet beneath Termini station, while the B1 line connects Bologna and Jonio stations. The metro is the quickest way to get around, with trains every 3–5min (5.30am–11.30pm, Fri & Sat till 1.30am).

By taxi Meters start at €3 by day (€4.50 on Sun) and €6.50 after 10pm. Depending on luggage and the time of travel, it should cost around €10 to get from Termini to the centre. You can hail one in the street, or at the ranks at Termini or Argentina (opposite Feltrinelli), or call 📞06 06069 free of charge for public taxis of the Municipality of Rome.

ACCOMMODATION

In high season (April–July, Sept & major religious holidays) Rome is very crowded, so book accommodation as far in advance as possible. Many of the city's hostels and cheaper hotels are located close to Termini station, but it's pretty insalubrious; pay a bit more to stay in the centre if you can.

EATING

All of Rome's neighbourhoods have at least one food market (generally Mon–Sat 7am–2pm); Campo de' Fiori is the most famous, while Piazza Vittorio Emanuele near Termini sells African fruits and Asian food too. The large food temple Eataly (☎www.roma.eataly.it; ☎Piramide) is home to plenty of superb restaurants, bars and cafés, perfect to sample Italian dishes.

CAFÉS, SNACKS AND ICE CREAM

Fa-bio Via Germanico 43, Prati ☎fa-bio.com. Organic fresh juices made with fruit and/or vegetables from €3 and zingy salads with ingredients like tofu, lentils and lovely dressings for €5 are the perfect antidote to too much pizza and sun. Good vegetarian choices. Mon–Fri 11am–5.30pm, Sat 11am–4pm.

Forno Campo de' Fiori Piazza Campo de' Fiori 22, Centro Storico ☎fornocampodefiori.com. This little bakery is the perfect spot to grab some "pizza bianca" (white pizza, focaccia style) or "pizza rossa" (red pizza, with tomatoes) on the go for about €2 a slice. Mon–Sat 7.30am–2.30pm & 4.45–8pm; July & Aug closed Sat.

★ Il Gelato di San Crispino Via della Panetteria 42, Centro Storico ☎ilgelatodisancrispino.it. Mon–Fri 12.30–3pm & 7–11pm, Sat 12.30–3pm.

WATER FOUNTAINS

All over Rome, there are small water fountains from which you can drink. The water is ice-cold, clean and free, so bring a water bottle and fill up.

Da Tonino Via del Governo Vecchio 18–19, Centro Storico. Basic but tasty dishes are served at this laidback restaurant. Pasta dishes start at €6, while straccetti, strips of beef with rocket, are €7. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7–11pm.

Dar Filettaro Largo dei Librai 88, Centro Storico. A true Rome experience: chaotic and delicious. The order of the day is fried fish (€5), along with whatever salad is in season. Mon–Sat 5.30–11pm.

Dar Poeta Vicolo del Bologna 45, Trastevere ☎ darpoeta.com. The pizzas (€5–9) are made using a special dough recipe, with the final result being partially Roman (crunchy) and partially Neapolitan (sloppy). Daily noon–1am.

★ Etabri Vicolo delle Vacche 9, Centro Storico ☎ etabri.it. This wonderful wine bar with high ceilings and a cosy fireplace for the winter months hosts live jazz and funky blues bands (Tues & Wed 8.30–11.30pm) and Thursday jam sessions (8pm–midnight). Wine, tapas (both €5) and cocktails (€8). Mon–Wed 7am–1am, Thurs–Sat 7am–2am, Sun 9am–1am.

★ Le Mani in Pasta Via dei Genovesi 37, Trastevere ☎ lemaniinpasta.net. Wonderful home cooking with an emphasis on fish-based dishes and traditional Roman cuisine in the heart of Trastevere – you can peer at the flurry of activity in the kitchen from the welcoming little dining area. Primi €9–13. Tues–Sun 12.30–3pm & 7.30–11.30pm.

Nonna Betta Via del Portico d'Ottavia 16, Ghetto ☎ nonnabetta.it. Authentic Jewish Roman home cooking, such as deep-fried artichokes (€5) when in season, with recipes all handed down by grandma Betta. Primi €9, secondi €10. Mon & Wed–Sun noon–6pm & 6.30–11pm.

Sora Margherita Piazza delle Cinque Scole 30, Ghetto. This intimate family-run place with a handwritten menu offers all manner of local dishes including handmade pasta (mains €11), served in a tiny dining area where customers inevitably socialize over their dishes. Daily 12.30–3pm, plus Mon, Wed, Fri & Sat 8–10.30pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The two main areas to go for a drink are Trastevere and the Centro Storico, particularly around Campo de' Fiori. Bohemian Monti, near the Colosseum, and studenty San Lorenzo are full of bars frequented by locals. For clubs, the door charge can be anything from €5 to €25, and normally includes a complimentary drink.

BARS

★ Ai Tre Scalini Via Panisperna 251, Monti. Monti's laidback wine bar with old-school knick-knacks attracts a cool young crowd who are here for the exceptional wine (there are over 250; from €4.50 a glass), which can be enjoyed with top-notch regional dishes (€8). Daily 12.30pm–1am.

Bar del Fico Piazza del Fico 26, Centro Storico. This trendy spot attracts Rome's cool set, who gather here to mingle over an aperitivo (glass of wine €5, cocktails €8) on the leafy cobbled square. Daily 8am–2am.

Caffè Bohemien Via degli Zingari 36, Monti ☎ caffebohemienn.it. Intimate boho hangout with mismatched vintage furniture, dim lighting, and books lining the walls, perfect for an evening drink (wine €5, cocktails €6). There's an aperitivo buffet (7–9pm; €8). Mon, Wed & Thurs 5.30pm–1.30am, Fri & Sat 6pm–2am.

Freni e Frizioni Via del Politeama 4/6, Trastevere ☎ freniefrizioni.it. This ex-garage (the name means "Brakes and Clutches"), cluttered with vintage machinery, is a popular early-evening hangout, thanks to its generous aperitivo buffet (7–10pm) – just buy a drink (from €6) and dig in. Daily 6.30pm–2am.

Ma Che Siete Venuti A Fa' Via di Benedetta 25, Trastevere ☎ football-pub.com. Quench your thirst at this tiny drinking hole serving sixteen top-notch beers (€4) on tap, to be enjoyed with local and international football matches on screen. Daily 11am–2am.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC VENUES

For information in English, check the Entertainment section of WHERE Rome magazine ☎ wheretraveler.com. Much of the club scene moves down to the beach at Ostia in the summer – look for posters around town.

Angelo Mai Viale delle Terme di Caracalla 55 ☎ angelomai.org. This laidback arty venue is a centre for theatre, cinema, contemporary art and music, attracting DJs from Italy and beyond. Check the website for what's on.

Auditorium Parco della Musica Viale P. de Coubertin, Flaminio ☎ auditorium.com. Bus #910 from Termini. See big international acts in this magnificent venue, one of the few modern constructions in the city. In the summer gigs are held in the outdoor amphitheatre, which seats 3000.

Goa Via di Libetta 13, Ostiense ☎ goaclub.com. One of Rome's historic clubs, with ethno-industrial decor and big-name DJs spinning techno, jungle and house. Thurs–Sat 11pm–4.30am.

Micca Club Via degli Avignonesi 73, Piazza Barberini ☎ miccaclub.com. This lively venue hosts popular burlesque and cabaret shows. Admission around €15, including a drink. Check the website to see what's on.

Qube Via di Portonaccio 212, Pigneto ☎ qubedisco.com. Set on three floors, this large popular club hosts university nights on Mondays, gay nights on Fridays and an eclectic mix of DJs on Saturdays, spinning all sorts from '60s to electronica. Check the website for event details. Oct–May Mon, Fri, Sat 10.30pm–3am.

Rashomon Club Via degli Argonauti 16/20 rashomonclub.com. One of the city's most popular clubs, this place oozes an underground vibe and is always a step ahead in terms of music trends. Bar Mon–Thurs 10pm–4am; club Fri & Sat 11.30pm–5am.

Vicious Via Achille Grandi 7a, Esquilino viciousclub.com. Step into this underground joint with dark interiors where a hip crowd soaks in techno, electronica, rock and indie beats. Tues–Sat 10pm–4am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Cinemas Nuovo Olimpia (Via in Lucina 16, off Via del Corso) is the main English-language cinema. Check romereview.com for original-language cinemas and film listings.

Classical music The city's churches host a wide range of concerts, many of them free. The Auditorium Parco della Musica is home to the Accademia di Santa Cecilia, the city's prestigious classical academy.

Opera The opera scene is concentrated on the Teatro dell'Opera, Piazza B. Gigli, in winter (☎06 481 7003, operaroma.it), and moves to the spectacular Terme di Caracalla in summer.

FESTIVALS

Festival delle Letterature

festivaldellelettere.it. The floodlit Basilica of Maxentius provides a stunning backdrop to readings by international authors. May & June.

Lungo il Tevere Roma

lungoiltevereroma.it. Cultural events and food tasting along the banks of the Tevere River. June–Sept.

Festa de Noantri Piazza Santa Maria in Trastevere and around. Trastevere's traditional summer festival in honour of the Virgin, with street stalls selling snacks and trinkets, and a grand finale of fireworks. Last two weeks of July.

RomaEuropa Festival romaeuropa.net. A cutting-edge performing arts festival, generally with some big-name acts, in locations around town. Mid–Sept to Nov.

Rome Film Festival romacinemafest.it. A host of film stars descend on the city for its annual film festival, and there are English-language screenings all around town. Mid- to end Oct.

SHOPPING

With the exception of the Galleria Alberto Sordi on Via del Corso, malls and department stores are few and far between. The boutiques around Piazza di Spagna are for big-spenders only, but nearby Via del Corso is lined with shops selling cheap to mid-range clothing and books. Other mainstream outlets can be found along Via Cola di Rienzo near the Vatican, and Via Nazionale, off Piazza della Repubblica. Via del Governo Vecchio off Piazza Navona has a string of great vintage stores; the alleys off Campo de' Fiori and the streets of San Lorenzo harbour independent jewellery and clothing shops.

Markets Porta Portese flea market is the city's best known (Sun mornings; catch any bus from Termini to Piazza Torre Argentina, then change for tram #8 to Porta Portese). Via Sannio (Mon–Sat 9am–1.30pm; ☎San Giovanni) is also a great place to find vintage bargains.

Northwest Italy

The northwest of Italy is many people's first experience of the country, and while it often represents its least stereotypical "Italian" aspect, there are some iconic towns here. The vibrant city of Turin was the first capital of Italy after the Unification in 1861, and still holds many reminders of its past. Milan, the upbeat capital of the heavily industrial region of Lombardy, continues to be taken seriously for its business and fashion credentials, while the region of Liguria to the south is home to one of the country's most spectacular stretches of coastline. The chief town of the province is the sprawling port of Genoa, while southeast, towards Tuscany, the Cinque Terre's rugged stretch of coastline continues to wow travellers with its cliff-top villages and clear blue waters.

TURIN

The seat of the House of Savoy, TURIN (Torino) is home to gracious avenues, opulent palaces, splendid galleries and genteel belle époque cafés. Fourteen of the city's Savoy palaces have been named UNESCO World Heritage Sites, and are well worth seeking out. Located at the foot of the mountains, in winter the city serves as the perfect base to ski in the nearby Alps.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The grid plan of the Baroque centre makes finding your way around easy. Grand Via Roma is the central spine, punctuated by Piazza San Carlo, a grand cloister-like space fronted by Baroque facades.

Museo Egizio

The superb Museo Egizio at Via Accademia delle Scienze 6 (Mon 9am–2pm, Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; €15; museoegizio.it) houses the world's second-largest collection of Egyptian antiquities. The collection began under Carlo Emanuele III in the mid-eighteenth century and was added to over the years. On the ground floor is an impressive space with massive granite

BATTLE OF THE ORANGES

In the week leading up to Shrove Tuesday, locals in the town of Ivrea, some 55km north of Turin, stage an annual three-day battle armed only with the cheerful-looking but painful-feeling fruit. If you fancy getting juiced – and quite possibly bruised – you can visit by train from Turin (hourly; 1hr 10min). See www.storicocarnevalebivrea.it.

SKIING THE VIALATTEA

The snow-capped peaks surrounding Turin are home to some of the best ski slopes in the Alps. Known collectively as the Vialattea (vialattea.it), the eight Italian resorts hosted the 2006 Winter Olympics. Sestriere is the most sophisticated, while Sauze d'Oulx is great for its après-ski scene. All the towns are linked by ski lifts, and a daily ski pass costs €37. Getting to the slopes involves a train from Turin to Oulx (hourly; 1hr 15min), and then a bus to your chosen destination. Bardonecchia, the western-most town in Italy, has more than 100km ski runs reachable from Torino in less than one hour by train. See bardonecchiaski.it.

sphinxes, gods and pharaohs, while upstairs there are mummy cases, everyday objects and even food, along with two of the collection's highlights: a statue of Ramses II and the Tomb of Kha and Merit.

Polo Reale

Beautiful Piazza Castello is home to the Polo Reale (royal museums complex; Tues–Sun 9am–7pm; €12; poloreale.beniculturali.it), which includes the Palazzo Reale (Royal Palace) plus the Armeria Reale, Galleria Sabauda and Museo d'Antichità, whose collections span two thousand years of history. The palace was the residence of the kings of Sardinia until 1859 and then of Vittorio Emanuele II, King of Italy, until 1865. Its sumptuous interiors feature magnificent gilded rooms, while the Armeria Reale has a collection of over 1200 pieces of armour and weapons.

Museo del Cinema

East of Via Roma is the Mole Antonelliana, whose dome, topped by a pagoda-like spire, is a Turin landmark and boasts great views over the city (a lift takes you to the top). The building also contains the excellent Museo del Cinema (Mon, Wed–Fri & Sun 9am–8pm, Sat 9am–11pm; €10, €14 including lift, €7 for lift only; museocinema.it), which celebrates Turin's involvement with cinema since the early twentieth century.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Turin airport (✈ aeroporto.torino.it) is 16km north of the city. It is connected by bus with Porta Susa and Porta Nuova train stations (every 20–30min; 50min; €6.50, or €7.50 on the bus) or by train to Dora-GTT Station (19min; €3, valid for 120min on Turin public transport).

By train Turin's main train station is Porta Susa on Corso Bolzano, west of the centre. Some trains also stop at Porta Nuova on Corso Vittorio Emanuele II at the southern end of Via Roma, which is more convenient for the city centre.

Destinations Genoa (every 1–2hr; 2hr); Milan (every 30min; 50min–1hr 30min); Nice (2 daily; change at Genoa; 5hr 30min); Rome (hourly; 4hr 30min); Venice (frequent; 4hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Castello/Via Garibaldi (daily 9am–6pm); Piazza Carlo Felice in front of Porta Nuova train station (daily 9am–6pm). There's a screen at the airport from where you can contact the tourist office in town (daily 9am–12.30pm & 2.30–6pm). Tourist information hotline daily 9am–12.30pm & 2.30–6pm; ☎ 011 535 181; 🌐 turismotorino.org.

Discount pass Pick up a Torino Piemonte Card (€23/1 day, €35/2 days, €42/3 days), which covers entrance to museums and exhibitions, and discounts on many cultural sites and events, as well as reduced tickets on main tourist services.

ACCOMMODATION

★ Foresteria degli Artisti Via degli Artisti 15 ☎ 011 837 785, 🌐 foresteriadegliartisti.it. ★ Tomato Via Silvio Pellico 11 ☎ 011 020 9400, 🌐 tomato.to.it. Characterful hostel in the happening San Salvario district, with a cosy lounge area and a small courtyard. The rooms have recycled tomato-tin lampshades and wooden fruit-and-veg crate bedside tables. Free tea and coffee all day in the little bar area. Dorms €25, doubles €65

EATING

Slow Food (🌐 slowfood.com), the non-profit international organization promoting gastronomic traditions and locally sourced produce, was born in Bra, just a few kilometres from Turin. The city restaurants and food shops often support the movement, serving local dishes, wines and food.

★ Al Bicerin Piazza della Consolata 5 ☎ 011 436 9325, 🌐 bicerin.it. This tiny, beautiful café has been here since 1763 and age has not withered it – it's the place to try a bicerin (€5). Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm.

La Maison de Marie Via Giuseppe Garibaldi 18 ☎ 011 521 4875. Tucked away on a small courtyard off Via Garibaldi, this welcoming place offers Piemontese and French dishes in a laidback setting; the menu changes daily according to the market produce. Primi at €8.50, secondi €12. Daily 7am–8pm.

★ Mara dei Boschi Via Berthollet 30h ☎ 011 076 9557, 🌐 maradeiboschi.it. The best gelateria in the city, serving exquisite ice cream made with fresh fruits. There are over twenty flavours, most scribbled on a blackboard – don't miss the chocolate fondant with orange. Two flavours €2.50. Mon 3–11pm, Tues–Sun 11.30am–11pm.

M**bun Corso Siccardi 8/A ☎ 011 561 097, 🌐 mbun.it. A great alternative to McDonald's, *M**Bun* (bun means “good” in Torinese dialect) is a fast-food member of the Slow Food movement, which uses locally sourced meat, biodegradable utensils and organic produce. Although the speciality is the burgers (€6), you'll find plenty of gluten-free and vegetarian options. Daily noon–midnight.

Taverna dell'Oca Via dei Mille 24 ☎ 011 837 547, 🌐 tavernadelloca.com. An excellent restaurant tucked away on a pleasant square that specializes in goose dishes (Taverna dell'Oca translates as “Goose Tavern”); there's a great-value lunch menu with primi at €5.50 and secondi at €7.50; otherwise primi €11, secondi €16. Tues–Fri 12.15–2.15pm, Sat & Sun 12.15–2.15pm & 7.45–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The Beach Via Murazzi del Po 22 ☎ 392 288 3024, 🌐 thebeachmurazzi.it. This happening club right by the river gets particularly crowded on Thursday and Friday evenings when top-class DJs spin techno and electronica. Thurs–Sun 8.30pm–3am.

Chalet Viale Virgilio 25 ☎ 011 668 9777, 🌐 chaletdelvalentino.com. In the Parco del Valentino, this popular club has been going strong for decades; its outdoor areas are pleasant in summer. There's seating on the square in the summer and a vegan aperitivo is served daily 7–10pm (€12). Tues & Wed 7pm–2am, Thurs–Sat 7pm–3am, Sun 7pm–2am.

17 MILAN

MILAN (Milano) is the capital of Italy's fashion and design industry, with the reputation as a fast-paced and somewhat unfriendly business city ruled by consumerism and the work ethic. But don't be put off: coupled with the swanky shops and excellent nightlife, Milan boasts a lovely canal area, friendly suburbs and unmissable historical sites – the Gothic cathedral has few peers in Italy, while Leonardo da Vinci's iconic fresco of The Last Supper is a must.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Piazza del Duomo

A good place to start a tour of Milan is Piazza del Duomo, the city's historic centre and home to the world's largest Gothic cathedral (daily 8am–7pm; free; www.duomomilano.it), begun in 1386 and not completed until almost five centuries later. One of the highlights of the building is the cathedral roof (daily 9am–7pm; €13 by elevator, €8 on foot), where you are surrounded by a forest of lacy Gothic carving and subjected to superb views of the city.

On the north side of the piazza, the opulent Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II is a cruciform glass-domed gallery designed in 1865 by Giuseppe Mengoni, who was killed when he fell from the roof a few days before the inaugural ceremony. The Galleria leads through to the world-famous eighteenth-century La Scala opera house.

Pinacoteca di Brera

At the far end of Via Brera is Milan's most prestigious gallery, the awe-inspiring Pinacoteca di Brera (Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.15pm; €10; www.pinotecabrera.org), opened in 1809 by Napoleon who filled it with works looted from the churches and aristocratic collections of French-occupied Italy.

Castello Sforzesco

The Castello Sforzesco (castle grounds daily 7am–7.30pm, closes 6pm in winter; free; www.milanocastello.it) rises imperiously from the mayhem of Foro Buonaparte, laid out by Napoleon as part of a grand plan for the city. The castle houses a number of museums (Tues–Sun 9am–5.30pm; combined ticket €12) including the Museo d'Arte Antica, which houses Michelangelo's Rondanini Pietà, while the Torre Falconiere houses an art collection with paintings by Vincenzo Foppa, the leading Milanese artist before Leonardo da Vinci, as well as some Canalettos.

Santa Maria delle Grazie and the Last Supper

South of the Castello, the church of Santa Maria delle Grazie is Milan's main attraction. A Gothic pile, partially rebuilt by Bramante (who added the massive dome), it is famous for its fresco of The Last Supper by Leonardo da Vinci, which covers one wall of the refectory. Advance booking is essential (viewing Tues–Sun 8.15am–7pm; €6.50; www.cenacolovinciano.net).

GENOA

GENOA (Genova) has retained its reputation as a tough, cosmopolitan port but combines the beauty of Renaissance palaces dotted along the small, winding streets. The birthplace of Christopher Columbus, it was one of the five Italian maritime republics, and reached the height of its power in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. After a long period of economic decline, Genoa is successfully cleaning itself up, and the city now offers an interesting mix of ultra-modern architecture and amenities, and old-style streets and restaurants.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Genoa spreads outwards from its old town around the port in a confusion of tiny alleyways and old palaces. It is one of the oldest historical centres in Europe, with the buzzing Piazza di Ferrari as the heartbeat of the city.

Palazzo Ducale

From 1384 to 1515, except for brief periods of foreign domination, the doges ruled the city from the ornate, stuccoed Palazzo Ducale in Piazza Matteotti (daily 9am–7pm; free; Torre Grimaldina July & Aug Tues–Sun 10am–7pm; €5; ☎ palazzoducale.genova.it). Decorated with elaborate frescoes, the rooms are a sight to behold. Walk up the Torre Grimaldina to the palace's cramped prison cells, which still contain the shackles and scrawled graffiti of prisoners past.

Cattedrale di San Lorenzo

The Gothic Cattedrale di San Lorenzo (daily 8am–noon & 3–7pm), complete with Baroque chancel, is home to the Renaissance chapel of St John the Baptist, whose remains once rested in the thirteenth-century sarcophagus. After a particularly bad storm, priests carried his casket through the city to placate the sea, and a commemorative procession takes place each June 24 to honour him. His reliquary is in the treasury (Mon–Sat 9am–noon & 3–6pm; €6, including entry to the Diocesan Museum, same hours), along with a polished quartz plate on which, legend says, Salome received his severed head.

The waterfront

After generations of neglect, Genoa's waterfront has undergone restoration and is gaining tourist appeal with a huge aquarium and lively markets and cafés near Piazza Caricamento.

Piazza Banchi and around

Behind Piazza Caricamento is a thriving commercial zone centred on Piazza Banchi, formerly the heart of the medieval city, off which the long Via San Luca leads north to the Galleria Nazionale di Palazzo Spinola (Tues–Sat 8.30am–7.30pm, Sun 1.30–7.30pm; €4, €6.50 joint ticket with the Palazzo Reale, €2/€3.25 18–25 years; palazzospinola.beniculturali.it), displaying work by the Sicilian master Antonello da Messina. North of here is the wonderful Via Garibaldi, lined with frescoed and stuccoed Renaissance palaces; a walk down the street at night is a must. Two palaces are now museums housing Genoese paintings: the Palazzi Bianco and Rosso (late March to early Oct Tues–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–7.30pm; early Oct to late March Tues–Fri 9am–6.30pm, Sat & Sun 9.30am–6.30pm; joint ticket with Palazzo Tursi €9), adorned with fantastic chandeliers, mirrors, gilding and frescoed ceilings. Palazzo Bianco provides access to the next-door Palazzo Tursi, the largest of Genoa's palaces.

Christopher Columbus House

The childhood home and museum (April, May, Sept & Oct Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; June–Aug Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; Nov–March Fri–Sun 11am–3pm; €5) dedicated to the man who discovered the New World is on Piazza Dante. It is small but gives a fascinating insight into Columbus's life. Highlights include a bell reputedly from his flagship the Santa Maria.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Genoa's airport (aeroportodigenova.com) is 6km west of the city centre and is connected by Volabus service to Stazione Principe, Piazza de Ferrari and Stazione Brignole (every 40min; 30min; €6 incl. 1hr of public transport in the city).

By train Most trains stop at Genoa's two stations, Stazione Principe on Piazza Acquaverde and Stazione Brignole on Piazza Verdi. Both stations are well connected by metro line and bus (#36, among others).

Destinations Milan (hourly; 1hr 30min); Pisa (frequent; 1hr 40min); Rome (every 1–2hr; 4hr 30min).

By bus Buses from the Riviera and inland arrive at Piazza della Vittoria, a few minutes' walk south of Brignole (for most destinations you're better off catching the train).

Destinations Nice (1 daily; 3hr).

By ferry Genoa is one of Italy's biggest passenger ports, for cruise ships and ferry routes. Check moby.it, gnv.it, tirrenia.it for up-to-date schedules.

Destinations Barcelona (2 weekly; 19hr); Bastia (1–2 daily; 6hr 30min); Olbia (1–2 daily; 11hr); Palermo (daily; 20hr); Porto Torres (1–2 daily; 13hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via Garibaldi 12r (daily 9am–6.20pm; ☎010 557 2903, visitgenoa.it). There's also an information centre at the Stazione Marittima (daily 8.30–11.30am) and at the Porto Antico (Jan–daily: March & Oct–Dec 9am–5.50pm; April–June & Sept 9am–6.20pm; July & Aug 9am–7.50pm), as well as at the airport (daily 9am–5.20pm).

Discount passes The tourist office sells a Genoa pass, which covers use of all transport in the city, including lifts and funiculars (€4.50/24hr). The Museum Card gives access to most of the city's museums as well as bus travel (€15/1 day, €25/2 days).

17 ACCOMMODATION

The best areas to stay are the roads bordering the old town, Piazza Colombo and on Via XX Settembre, Genoa's main shopping street near Stazione Brignole.

Cairolì Via Cairolì 14/4 ☎ 010 246 1454, 🌐 www.hotelcairoligenova.com. A superior three-star, with a choice of doubles, triples and family rooms, all brightly furnished, modern, en-suite and soundproof. The location, on the edge of the old town but handy for Principe station, is excellent, and there's also a roof terrace and two apartments for rent. €75

Genova Passo Costanzi 10 ☎ 010 242 2457, 🌐 ostellogenova.it. A simple HI hostel a 30min bus ride from the centre with great views over the port. Single-sex dorms. Take bus #40 or #640 (evening) from Stazione Brignole. From Stazione Principe take bus #35 to Via Napoli and change to bus #40 or #640. Dorms €15, doubles €38

Manena Vico alla Chiesa della Maddalena 9/1 ☎ 010 860 8890, 🌐 manenahostel.it. On the edge of the old town, down a lane just off Via Garibaldi, this place offers clean five-, eight- and twelve-bed dorms and free wi-fi. The friendly staff arrange free city tours and weekend pub crawls, and the (somewhat cramped) shared spaces make it a good place to meet fellow travellers. Dorms €22

Villa Doria Via al Campeggio Villa Doria 15/N, Pegli ☎ 010 696 9600, 🌐 campingvilladoria.it. Leafy campsite 8km from Genoa, with its own café, shop and solarium: take a train to Pegli and then bus #93. Per person €9, plus per tent €10

EATING AND DRINKING

Genoa is home to plenty of cheap trattorias, and you can readily find delicious farinata and focaccia at street outlets.

★ Gran Ristoro Via Sottoripa 29r ☎ 010 247 3127. The humble appearance of this hole-in-the-wall sandwich shop, tucked away along the old arcades of Via Sottoripa, belies its city-wide fame. Its sandwiches (from €4) are packed with excellent meats and fillings. If you're not sure what to choose, let them guide you towards building the sandwich of your dreams. Mon–Sat 7am–8pm.

Louisiana Jazz Club Via S. Sebastiano 36r 🌐 louisianajazzclub.com. A drum reveals the entrance to this established and excellent jazz venue. Cocktails and generous snacks are €7. Thurs only 9pm–midnight.

Sa Pesta Via Giustiniani 16r ☎ 010 246 8336, 🌐 sapesta.it. Extremely popular with locals, this place is well known for its good local cooking. Dishes from €9. Booking essential. Mon–Sat noon–2pm, dinner Thurs–Sat 7–8.30pm.

Taggiu Via Superiore del Ferro 8 ☎ 010 275 9225, 🌐 taggiu.it. More of a wine bar and delicatessen than a restaurant, but very popular, drawing crowds at lunch and dinner for its good selection of Italian wine, plates of cold cuts and cheese, sandwiches (€5–7) and blackboard of hot dishes – typically pastas, polpettone (meatloaf) or involtini (thin slices of meat rolled with filling). Good-value lunch specials (pasta plus a drink and a coffee for €7). Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 6pm–midnight.

Trattoria da Maria Vico Testadoro 14r ☎ 010 581 080. No-nonsense, endearingly chaotic place up a grubby side street, which serves up simple Ligurian cooking at rock-bottom prices; a two-course meal and drink will set you back just €10. Mon–Sat noon–3pm, Thurs & Fri 7–10pm.

THE RIVIERA DI LEVANTE

A superb stretch of lush green hills sheltering beautiful seaside resorts, the RIVIERA DI LEVANTE stretches eastwards from Genoa. The ports that once survived on navigation, fishing and coral diving are now well versed in the ways of tourism, and while the resorts are hectic during summer months, the towns are still charming enough to ensure they're worth visiting. The coastline is wild and beautiful in parts and a coastal path meanders over the clifftops to each of the resorts. All the towns can be reached by train and boat.

Santa Margherita Ligure

Pretty SANTA MARGHERITA LIGURE is a small, palm-tree-lined resort, with a little pebble beach and concrete jetties to swim from. Quieter than its more famous neighbours, the town has a charming and sleepy fishing village atmosphere.

INFORMATION

Tourist office On the waterfront at Piazza Vittorio Veneto (daily 9.30am–1pm & 3–7pm; ☎ 0185 287 485).

GETTING AROUND

By scooter and bike Scooters and bikes are a fun way of getting around: go to Via XXV Aprile 11 (☎ 0185 284 420, 🌐 gmrent.it).

By boat Boats depart regularly in summer for Rapallo (€5.50 return) and the millionaires' playground that is the small village of Portofino (return Mon–Sat €9.50, Sun & public hols €10).

ACCOMMODATION

B&B L'Ora Blu Corso Rainusso 20 ☎ 329 614 5604. In an enviable location in the heart of Santa Margherita Ligure and a short stroll to the beach and train station, this welcoming B&B offers spick-and-span rooms painted in mellow hues. There's a communal kitchen and lounge area too. €100

Flory Via Luigi Bozzo 3 ①0185 286 435, ②hotelflory.it. A friendly mid-priced hotel nicely located on a quiet side street, with good-sized rooms, some en suite. There's a panoramic roof terrace, small library and free bike loan for guests. €120

EATING

Il Faro Via Maragliano 24a ①0185 286 867. Friendly family-run restaurant that has been going strong for over five decades with a focus on fresh fish and seafood dishes. Primi €8, secondi €10. Mon & Wed–Sun noon–2.30pm & 7–10.30pm.

Trattoria Baicin Via Algeria 5 ①0185 286 763. A good-value family-run seafood restaurant in the centre of town, just back from the waterfront park, with outdoor seating in a tiny alley. It serves Ligurian specialties such as swordfish with tomato sauce and olives, a great fritto misto and home-made pasta with pesto. Starters around €8, mains €12–17. Tues–Sun noon–3pm & 7–10pm.

Rapallo

RAPALLO is a lovely Riviera town just a forty-minute train ride from Genoa. Brightly coloured beach huts line parts of the pebbled shore, backed by an intriguing tangle of narrow lanes that are well worth a wander.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Lungomare Vittorio Veneto 7 (Mon–Sat 9.30am–12.30pm & 3.30–6.30pm; ①0185 230 346).

ACCOMMODATION

Bandoni Via Marsala 24 ①0185 187 0900, ②albergobandoniirapallo.com. Housed in a fine old palazzo, this is one of the best bargains in town, with a mix of en-suite (from €80) and shared-bath rooms. It's old-fashioned and a bit tatty in places, but clean and simple, and has a great location on the waterfront. €70

Rapallo Via San Lazzaro 4 ①0185 262 018, ②campingrapallo.it. This well-equipped campsite is a haven of green and just 2km from the sea. Per person €7, plus per tent €10

EATING AND DRINKING

Enoteca Il Castello 10 Lungomare Castello 6 ①0185 52426. This bar has lovely views of the castle and sea as well as great cocktails and nibbles. Mon, Tues & Fri–Sun 11.30am–1am, Wed 11.30am–3pm.

O Bansin Via Venezia 105 ①0185 231 119, ②trattoriabansin.it. An authentic trattoria in the heart of the old town with a bargain weekday lunch menu for €5, €7 or €10. Daily noon–2pm & 7–10pm; closed Mon eve.

CINQUE TERRE

The CINQUE TERRE (②parconazionale5terre.it) is a series of five beautiful villages – Monterosso, Vernazza, Corniglia, Manarola and Riomaggiore – perched on tiny cliff-bound inlets lapped by azure-blue sea and linked by a coastal pathway. It's possible to visit all the villages in one day via the pathway, although it can get busy at peak seasons. The liveliest of the villages is probably Monterosso, with its excellent large beach.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Slow trains run between Levanto and La Spezia (roughly every 30min), stopping at every village.

Tourist office Each village has a tourist office at its train station.

GETTING AROUND

Passes The Cinque Terre Parco Card, 1 day (€7.50) or 2 days (€14.50), sold at the tourist offices, gives access to the paths and village lifts (where available). Other cards include train and hiking combos (€12/1 day; €23/2 days).

By boat A boat stops at each of the villages every hour (Corniglia has no harbour; prices vary depending on where you start your journey; see ②navigazionegolfodeipoeti.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation tends to be expensive in summer months, at about €120 for a double room, or there are rental apartments that have to be taken for a week at a time.

ostello Cinque Terre Via Riccobaldi 21, Manarola ①0187 920 215, ②www.hostel5terre.com. A great hostel with separate male and female dorms – clean, friendly and well situated near the church of San Lorenzo at the upper end of Manarola. Very popular, so book in advance in summer. Reception daily 8am–1pm & 4–8pm. Dorms €25, doubles €70

EATING AND DRINKING

La Scogliera Via Birolli 103, Manarola ①0187 920 747. Right on the main street down to the harbour, this serves a fine signature seafood spaghetti (€10) on its outside terrace, along with great lobster pasta and tuna carpaccio. Pizzas too (from €6.50). Mon–Thurs & Sat & Sun 11am–11pm.

Trattoria Billy Via Rollandi 122 ①0187 920 628, ②trattoriabilly.com. For great views over Manarola and good local food, this trattoria is worth the steep uphill walk and the €30–40 bill. Booking is recommended. Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun noon–2.30pm & 6–10pm.

Northeast Italy

Venice, the premier draw in northeast Italy, is one of Europe's most stunning – and unmissable – cities. The region around it, the Veneto, still bears the imprint of Venetian rule and continues to prosper. Gorgeous, vibrant Verona plays on its Shakespeare connections and centres on a fairly intact Roman amphitheatre, while nearby Padua hums with student activity and has some artistic and architectural masterpieces. South, between Lombardy and Tuscany, Emilia-Romagna is the heartland of northern Italy, a patchwork of ducal territories formerly ruled by a handful of families, whose castles and fortresses still stand proudly in well-preserved medieval towns. Parma is a wealthy provincial town worth visiting for its easy-going ambience and delicious food as well as masterful paintings by Parmigianino and Correggio. The coast is less interesting, but, just south of the Po delta, Ravenna boasts probably the finest set of Byzantine mosaics in the world.

VERONA

The romantic city of VERONA, with its Roman sites and cobbled streets of impressive medieval buildings, stands midway between Milan and Venice. It reached its zenith as an independent city-state in the thirteenth century under the Scaligeri family, who were energetic patrons of the arts; many of Verona's finest buildings date from their rule.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The city centre nestles in a deep bend of the River Adige, and the main sight of its southern reaches is the central hub of Piazza Bra and its mighty Roman Arena (Mon 1.30–7.30pm, Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; July & Aug closes 3.30pm on performance days; €10). Dating from the first century AD, this Roman amphitheatre originally held seating for twenty thousand, and offers a tremendous panorama from the topmost of the 44 marble tiers. It now houses the largest outdoor opera stage in the world (see box above).

★TREAT YOURSELF

Nowadays the Roman Arena is used as an opera venue for big summer productions. The sight of the stands lit up by the thousands of candles handed out to the audience is a pretty special one. The ticket office (☎045 800 5151, 🌐arena.it) is outside the arena. Prices begin at €22.

Historical centre

To the north of the Roman amphitheatre, Via Mazzini, a narrow traffic-free street lined with expensive clothes shops and pricey gelaterias, leads to a number of squares. The biggest and most appealing is Piazza Erbe, with a market in the middle and cafés lining either side. The adjacent Piazza dei Signori is flanked by the medieval Palazzo degli Scaligeri. At right angles to this is the fifteenth-century Loggia del Consiglio, the former assembly hall of the city council and Verona's outstanding early Renaissance building, while, close by, the twelfth-century Torre dei Lamberti (daily 10am–7pm; €8 including Galleria di Arte Moderna) gives dizzying views of the city; be prepared to block your ears for the hourly ringing of the tower's bells. Juliet's house is situated on the nearby Via Cappello 23 (Mon 1.30–7.30pm, Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; €6) – even if you don't go inside the house, you can see the famous balcony, rub the right breast of her statue (supposedly for luck) and read some of the thousands of love messages dotted around the place.

Arche Scaligere and the Duomo

In front of the Romanesque church of Santa Maria Antica, the Arche Scaligere are the elaborate Gothic funerary monuments of Verona's first family, set in a wrought-iron palisade decorated with ladder motifs, the emblem of the Scaligeri. Nearby, at Via Arche Scaligere 4, is Romeo's House, marked by a lopsided sign. Verona's Duomo (Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm, Sun 1.30–5.30pm; Nov–Feb closes 5pm; €2.50, or Verona Card), with its unfinished bell tower, lies just around the river's bend, a mixture of Romanesque and Gothic styles that houses an Assumption by Titian.

Roman theatre

The Roman theatre (Mon 1.30–7.30pm, Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; €4.50, including Museo Archeologico), on the north side of the river, is worth visiting for its gorgeous views. In the summer months, a Shakespeare festival (in Italian, but it's still great to soak up the atmosphere) and a jazz festival make use of this amazing venue (see below). Reached by a lift, the Museo Archeologico features a number of Greek, Roman and Etruscan finds. From here, head up to Castel San Pietro round the corner for the ultimate views of Verona.

Basilica di San Zeno Maggiore

The Basilica di San Zeno Maggiore (March–Oct Mon–Sat 8.30am–6pm, Sun noon–5pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Sat 10am–1pm & 1.30–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €2.50) is one of the most significant Romanesque churches in northern Italy. Its rose window, representing the Wheel of Fortune, dates from the twelfth century, as do the magnificent portal and medieval frescoes.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train From the train station it's a 20min walk to Piazza Bra.

Destinations Milan (every 30min; 1hr 20min–2hr); Padua (every 30min; 45min–1hr 20min); Rome (8 direct daily; 3hr); Venice (every 30min; 1hr 10min–2hr 15min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via degli Alpini 6 (Mon–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 10am–4pm; ☎ 045 806 8680, 🌐 tourism.verona.it). As well as providing information, it organizes walking tours, runs a hotel-booking service and can book tickets for the Arena.

Discount passes The Verona Card (€22/1 day or €22/2 days) covers most of Verona's museums and churches and can be purchased at the tourist offices, tabacchi and most museums.

Festivals If you're interested in the Shakespeare and jazz festivals that take place in the Roman theatre in the summer, head to the box office on Via Pallone 16 (☎ 045 8011 154 or you can buy at the venue; ticket prices start at €10).

ACCOMMODATION

Arena Stradone Porta Palio 2 ☎ 045 803 2440, 🌐 albergoarena.it. There are hardly any one-star hotels in central Verona – this one, next to Castelvecchio (not as close to the Arena as its name might suggest), has been refurbished quite recently, and is the best of the bunch.

€125

Campaggio Castel San Pietro Via Castel S. Pietro 2 ☎ 045 592 037, 🌐 campingcastelsanpietro.com; bus #41 or #95 from the station to Via Marsala and then a steep walk up the hill. This pleasant shady site out by the old city walls offers marvellous views over the city. Open April–Sept. Per person €10, plus per pitch €10

Ostello della Gioventù Salita Fontana del Ferro 15 ☎ 045 590 360, 🌐 ostelloverona.it; bus #73, or #91 after 7.45pm and on Sun, from the station to Piazza Isolo. HI hostel in the lovely setting of sixteenth-century Villa Francescatti. Offering 241 beds, including family rooms (bunk beds only); some rooms have frescoed ceilings, others a private terrace; many have splendid views over the rooftops. Dinner is available for €8. Dorms €18, family rooms (per person) €20

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Antica Osteria al Duomo Via Duomo 7/A ☎ 045 800 7333. There has been an osteria here for at least a century, and it still serves old Veronese favourites such as pastissada (horse stew) and bigoli with sugo d'asino (donkey sauce). Prices are low (most secondi around €10), the decor is quirky and the hosts are terrific. Mon–Sat 11.30am–3pm & 7pm–midnight.

★ Osteria La Mandorla Via Alberto Mario 23 ☎ 045 597 053. This tiny, old-fashioned, authentic bar is just a minute's stroll from the Arena; the atmosphere is great, and the wines and snacks are very good. Mon 5pm–2am, Tues–Sun 11am–2.30pm & 5pm–2am.

Trattoria Dal Ropeton Via Fontana del Ferro 1 ☎ 045 803 0040, 🌐 trattoriadalaropeton.it. Friendly restaurant tucked away among a maze of streets serving delicious dishes. Try the handmade penne del Ropeton (€7), with a sauce of fresh peppers, sausage, cream and curry. Booking is recommended. Mon & Wed–Sun noon–2.30pm & 7.30–11pm.

PADUA

Hemmed in by industrial sprawl, PADUA (Padova) is not the most alluring city in northern Italy. However, it's a particularly ancient place with a relaxed air and a sense of the real Italia. Donatello and Mantegna both worked here, and in the seventeenth century Galileo researched at the university.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Cappella degli Scrovegni

Just outside the city centre, through a gap in the Renaissance walls off Corso Garibaldi, Cappella degli Scrovegni, affectionately referred to as the “scrawny chapel” for its diminutive size (daily 9am–7pm, slots for a 15 or 20min viewing should be booked 24hr in advance, but bookable on the day if there is space; €13; ☎049 201 0020, 🌐www.cappelladeglisrovegni.it), features some stunning Giotto frescoes beneath a lapis-blue ceiling. These are the main reason for coming to Padua. Commissioned in 1303 by Enrico Scrovegni in atonement for his father’s usury, the chapel’s walls are covered with breathtakingly detailed and largely well-preserved illustrations of the life of Mary, Jesus and the story of the Passion. It’s a bit of a rush to see forty masterpieces in fifteen minutes, but well worth it.

Piazza del Santo

In the southwest of the city, down Via Zabarella from the cappella, is the starkly impressive Piazza del Santo. The main sight here is Donatello’s Monument to Gattamelata of 1453, the earliest large bronze sculpture of the Renaissance. On one side of the square, the basilica of San Antonio, or Il Santo, was built to house the body of St Anthony (a famous disciple of St Francis of Assisi); the Cappella del Tesoro at its far end (daily 7am–12.45pm & 2.30–7.30pm) houses the saint’s tongue and chin in a head-shaped reliquary.

The university

From the basilica of San Antonio, Via Umberto leads back towards the university, which was established in 1221, and is older than any other in Italy except Bologna. The main block is the Palazzo del Bo, where Galileo taught physics from 1592 to 1610. The major sight is the sixteenth-century anatomy theatre in the Palazzo del Bo (45min tours in English & Italian; March–Oct Mon, Wed & Fri 2.30pm, 3.30pm, 4.30pm, Tues & Thurs 9.30am, 10.30am, 11.30am, plus Thurs

2.30pm, 3.30pm & 4.30pm, Sat 9.30am, 10.30am, 11.30am; Nov–Feb Mon, Wed & Fri 2.30pm & 3.30pm, Tues, Thurs & Sat 10.30am & 11.30am; €7; ☎049 827 3047, 🌐unipd.it). The university’s botanical garden, the oldest in the world, is a green haven in the city (Via Orto Botanico 15; April & May daily 9am–7pm; June–Sept Tues–Sun 9am–7pm; Oct Tues–Sun 9am–6pm; Nov–March Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; €10; ☎049 827 3939, 🌐ortobotanicopd.it).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Venice airport is most convenient for Padua. There are regular buses from Marco Polo (every 30min–1hr; €8.50).

By train Trains arrive in the north of the city centre, just a few minutes’ walk up Corso del Popolo from the old city walls.

Destinations Bologna (frequent; 1hr–1hr 30min); Milan (every 30min; 2hr–2hr 50min); Venice (every 20min; 25–50min); Verona (every 30min; 40min–1hr 20min); Vicenza (every 20min; 15–30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office There are tourist offices at the train station (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–4pm; ☎049 201 0080) and in the centre of the city at Galleria Pedrocchi 9 (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm; ☎049 201 0080, 🌐www.turismopadova.it).

Discount passes The tourist office sells the Padova Card (€16/48hr; €21/72hr), which gives access to certain museums (including Scrovegni Chapel frescoes), free bus travel and a parking space.

ACCOMMODATION

Ostello Città di Padova Via Aleardo Aleardi 30 ☎049 875 2219, 🌐ostellopadova.it. Padua’s friendly HI hostel is in a quiet street in the south of the city; it’s a 30min walk from the station, but the tram goes to nearby Prato della Valle. Beds are in six-bed dorms, with some four-bed rooms for families. Wi-fi and laundry facilities. Rates include breakfast. Dorms €19

Sporting Center Via Roma 123 ☎049 793 400, 🌐sportingcenter.it. Extremely well-equipped, spacious campsite 15km away in Montegrotto Terme, with a reasonable two-star hotel on site. Also a restaurant, large swimming pool and thermal spa. Served by frequent trains (15min). Per person €9.40, plus per tent €13.50

Verdi Via Dondi dell’Orologio 7 ☎049 836 4163, 🌐albergoverdipadova.it. A friendly small three-star, very near to Piazza dei Signori. The fourteen rooms are all a good size and have modern furnishings, and the tariffs are low. €110

EATING AND DRINKING

For eating on the go, there's a daily fruit market on Piazza Erbe, which also has a few cheap restaurants and bars. There is a supermarket, Pam, at Piazzetta della Garzeria 3 (Mon–Sat 8am–9pm, Sun 9am–8pm).

★ La Folperia Piazza della Frutta. Max and Barbara bring their seafood stall to the square every night. Mouthwatering and generous portions of gamberi fritti, calamari and other seafood served on paper plates. Portion around €5. Daily 5–9pm.

★ Osteria L'Anfora Via del Soncino 13 ☎ 049 656 629. Fantastic osteria near Piazza Erbe serving hearty portions of delicious fresh pasta is served in a large ramshackle room. Primi around €10, secondi €16. Booking recommended. Mon–Sat 9am–11.30pm; kitchen 12.30–3.15pm & 8–11.30pm.

Piccola Trattoria Via Rolando da Piazzola 21 ☎ 049 656 163, ☎ piccolatrattoria.it. Very popular trattoria, with a distinctive menu that mixes local recipes with Sardinian specialities such as suckling pig, all superbly presented. Its secondi are around €16, and it offers a bargain €15 set lunch. Mon 8–11pm, Tues–Sat noon–2pm & 8–11pm.

VENICE

The first-time visitor to VENICE (Venezia) arrives with a heavy load of expectations, most of which won't be disappointed. It is an extraordinarily beautiful city, and the major sights are all they are cracked up to be. The downside is that Venice is very expensive and deluged with tourists. Twenty-seven million come here each year, most seduced by the famous motifs – Carnival (see p.640), glass ornaments and singing gondoliers. To avoid the mêlée, stroll down one of the intriguing and peaceful side streets or take a boat across to the Lido and relax on its lovely beach.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The 118 islands of central Venice are divided into six districts known as sestieri, with that of San Marco (enclosed by the lower loop of the Canal Grande) home to most of the essential sights. To the east is Castello, to the north Cannaregio. On the other side of the Canal Grande is Dorsoduro, which stretches from the fashionable quarter at the southern tip of the canal to the docks in the west. Santa Croce roughly follows the curve of the Canal Grande from Piazzale Roma to a point just short of the Rialto, where it joins the smartest of the districts on this bank, San Polo.

Piazza San Marco

Flanked by the Grand Canal, Piazza San Marco is probably the busiest square in the whole of Italy. It's lined with some stunning architecture such as the dominating Campanile (daily: Easter–June & Oct 9am–7pm; July–Sept 9am–9pm; Nov–Easter 9.30am–3.45pm; €8; ☎ www.basilicasanmarco.it), which began life as a lighthouse in the ninth century, but is in fact a reconstruction: the original tower collapsed on July 14, 1902. It is the tallest structure in the city, and the 98m-high tower provides magnificent views of the neighbouring islands and lagoons, as well as the red-clay rooftops of the city.

Basilica di San Marco

Across Piazza San Marco, the Basilica di San Marco (Mon–Sat 9.45am–5pm, Sun 2–5pm; Nov–Easter Sun closes 4pm; free) is the most exotic of Europe's cathedrals, modelled on Constantinople's Church of the Twelve Apostles, finished in 1094 and embellished over the succeeding centuries with trophies brought back from abroad. Inside, a steep staircase leads from the church's main door up to the Museo di San Marco and the Loggia dei Cavalli (daily 9.45am–4.45pm; €5), where you can enjoy fine views of the city and the Gothic carvings along the apex of the facade. However, it's the Sanctuary, off the south transept (Easter–Oct Mon–Sat 9.45am–5pm, Sun 2–5pm; Nov–Easter Mon–Sat 9.45am–4pm, Sun 2–4pm; €2), that holds the most precious of San Marco's treasures, the Pala d'Oro, or golden altar panel, commissioned in 976 in Constantinople. This mind-blowingly intricate explosion of gold, enamel, pearls and gemstones is generally considered to be one of the greatest accomplishments of Byzantine craftsmanship. The Treasury (same hours as Pala d'Oro; €3) is a similarly dazzling warehouse of chalices, reliquaries and candelabra, while the tenth-century Icon of the Madonna of Nicopeia (in the chapel on the east side of the north transept) is the most revered religious image in Venice. Considered by Venetians to be the protector of the city after being brought here from Constantinople by Doge Enrico Dandolo in 1204, she was carried at the head of the Imperial Army in battles.

Palazzo Ducale

The Palazzo Ducale (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–7pm; Nov–March 8.30am–5.30pm; ticket office closes 1hr earlier; €19; www.palazzoducale.visitmuve.it) was principally the residence of the doge. Like San Marco, it has been rebuilt many times since its foundation in the first years of the ninth century, but the earliest parts of the current structure date from 1340. As well as fabulous paintings and impressive administrative chambers, the Palazzo contains a maze of prison cells, reached by crossing the world-famous Ponte dei Sospiri (Bridge of Sighs).

Dorsoduro

In the Dorsoduro area west of San Marco is the impressive European art collection of the Galleria dell'Accademia (Mon 8.15am–2pm, Tues–Sun 8.15am–7.15pm; €15; www.gallerieaccademia.org). Five minutes' walk from here the unfinished Palazzo Venier dei Leoni is home to the Guggenheim Collection (daily except Tues 10am–6pm; €15; www.guggenheim-venice.it). Peggy Guggenheim lived here for thirty years until her death in 1979. Her private collection is an eclectic mix of pieces from her favourite Modernist artists, with works by Brancusi, De Chirico, Max Ernst and Malevich.

San Polo

On the northeastern edge of San Polo is the former trading district of Rialto. It still hosts the lively Rialto market, which is located on the far side of the Rialto bridge and has stalls heaving with fresh fruit and vegetables and a shiny array of fish.

Fifteen minutes' walk west of here is the mountainous brick church Santa Maria Gloriosa dei Frari (Mon–Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 1–6pm; €3; www.chorusvenezia.org). The collection of artworks here includes a couple of rare paintings by Titian – most notably his radical Assumption, painted in 1518. Titian is also buried in the church. At the rear of the Frari is the Scuola Grande di San Rocco (daily 9.30am–5.30pm; €10; www.scuolagrandesanrocco.it), home to a cycle of more than fifty major paintings by Tintoretto.

Cannaregio

In the northernmost section of Venice, Cannaregio, you can walk from the bustle of the train station to some of the quietest and prettiest parts of the city in a matter of minutes. The district boasts one of the most beautiful palazzi in Venice, the Ca D'Oro, or Golden House (Mon 8.15am–2pm, Tues–Sun 8.15am–7.15pm; €6; www.cadoro.org), whose facade once glowed with gold leaf, and what is arguably the finest Gothic church in Venice, the Madonna dell'Orto (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €2.50), which contains Tintoretto's tomb and two of his paintings. Cannaregio also has the dubious distinction of containing the world's first ghetto: in 1516, all the city's Jews were ordered to move to the island of the Ghetto Nuovo, an enclave that was sealed at night by Christian guards. Even now it looks quite different from the rest of Venice, its many high-rise buildings a result of restrictions on the growth of the area. The Jewish Museum (Mon–Fri & Sun: June–Sept 10am–7pm; Oct–May 10am–5.30pm; €4; www.museoebraico.it) in Campo Ghetto Nuovo organizes hourly tours in English and Italian of the synagogues (€10, including museum admission).

Castello

Campo Santi Giovanni e Paolo is the most impressive open space in Venice after Piazza San Marco, dominated by the huge brick church of Santi Giovanni e Paolo (Mon–Sat 9am–6pm, Sun noon–6.30pm; €2.50), founded by the Dominicans in 1246 and best known for its funeral monuments to 25 doges. The other essential sight in Castello is the Scuola di San Giorgio degli Schiavoni (Mon 2.45–6pm, Tues–Sat 9.15am–1pm 17 & 2.45–6pm, Sun 9.15am–1pm; €5), to the east of San Marco, set up by Venice's Slav population in 1451. The building has a superb cycle by Vittore Carpaccio on the ground floor.

Venice's other islands

Immediately south of the Palazzo Ducale, Palladio's church of San Giorgio Maggiore (May–Sept Mon–Sat 9.30am–6.30pm, Sun 8.30–11am & 2.30–6.30pm; Oct–April Mon–Sat 9.30am–dusk, Sun 8.30–11am & 2.30pm–dusk; free, campanile €6) stands on the island of the same name and has two pictures by Tintoretto in the chancel – The Fall of Manna and The Last Supper. On the left of the choir a corridor leads to the Campanile, one of the best vantage points in the city. The long island of La Giudecca, to the west, was where the wealthiest aristocrats of early Renaissance Venice built their villas. The main reason to come today is the Franciscan church of the Redentore (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; €3), designed by Palladio in 1577 in thanks for Venice's deliverance from a plague that killed a third of the population. The Lido, home to the world's oldest film festival, is a ten-minute boat ride from San Marco Zaccaria (take traghetto vaporetto #1, #2 May–Sept only, or #5.1) and in summer is a great place to escape the crowds. The quietest stretch of free beach is at the Ospedale Al Mare end of Lungomare Gabriele D'Annunzio.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Marco Polo airport (📍veniceairport.it) is 7km north of the centre on the edge of the lagoon, linked by bus to the terminal at Piazzale Roma: the ATVO coach (Azienda Trasporti Veneto Orientale; every 30min; 20min; €6; 📍www.atvo.it), or the ACTV (Azienda del Consorzio Trasporti Veneziano; €6; 📍actv.it) bus #5, which is equally frequent but usually takes a little longer. For €12 you can buy an ACTV bus-and-boat ticket, which gets you to Piazzale Roma then gives you one vaporetto journey of up to 90min. Alilaguna water-buses operate on three routes from the airport (hourly; just over 1hr to San Marco; €15 to central Venice).

By train Santa Lucia train station is on the north side of the canal, to the west of the city centre (📍trenitalia.com). Waterbus services run to San Marco, and you can cross over Ponte degli Scalzi to reach San Polo or follow the canal along to get to Cannaregio.

Destinations Bologna (frequent; 1hr 15min–2hr); Florence (hourly; 2hr); Milan (every 30min; 2hr 10min–3hr); Padua (every 10min; 25–50min); Trieste (frequent; 2–3hr); Verona (frequent; 1hr–1hr 30min).

By bus All road traffic comes into the city at Piazzale Roma, at the head of the Canal Grande, from where waterbus services run to all parts of Venice.

INFORMATION

Tourist office There are information points at the train station (daily 8am–8.50pm), at the airport (8.30am–7pm) and at Museo Correr in Piazza San Marco (9am–7pm). Call centre Hello Venezia (📞0412424, 📍veneziaunica.it).

Discount passes There are two museum cards for the city's civic museums (📍visitmuve.it). The Musei di Piazza San Marco card costs €17 (€10 for students under 26), is valid for three months, and covers the Palazzo Ducale, Museo Correr, Museo Archeologico and the Libreria Sansoviniana. The Museum Pass, costing €24/€18, covers these four, plus other civic museums. It's valid for six months. Both passes allow one visit to each attraction and are available from any of the participating museums. The sights covered by the Musei di Piazza San Marco card can be visited only with a museum card; at the other places you have the option of paying an entry charge just for that attraction. Accompanied disabled people have free access to all civic museums.

GETTING AROUND

Despite its tangle of narrow, people-choked streets, walking is the fastest way of getting around Venice – you can cross the whole city in an hour.

Gondola Gondolas are expensive although an astonishingly graceful craft, perfectly designed for negotiating the tortuous and shallow waterways. To hire one costs €80/40min for up to six passengers, rising to €100 between 7pm and 8am; you pay an extra €40 for every additional 20min, or €50 from 7pm to 8am.

Traghetti There are just four bridges spanning the Canal Grande – the Ponte Calatrava (at Piazzale Roma), Ponte dei Scalzi (at the train station), Ponte di Rialto and Ponte dell'Accademia – so the traghetti (gondola ferries) that cross it can be useful time-savers. Costing €2 (€0.70 if you're a resident), they are also the only cheap way of getting a ride on a gondola, albeit a stripped-down version, with none of the trimmings and no padded seats: most locals stand rather than sit. There used to be almost thirty gondola traghetti across the Canal Grande, but today there are just seven.

Waterbus There are two basic types of boat: vaporetti, which are the lumbering workhorses used on the Canal Grande and other heavily used routes, and motoscapi, smaller vessels employed on routes where the volume of traffic isn't as great. The standard fare is an exorbitant €7 for a single journey, so it's better to get a multi-day travel tourist card that includes all vaporetti and bus transport (€20/1 day, €30/2 days, €40/3 days; www.veneziaunica.it); a single ticket is valid for an hour, and for any number of changes of water-bus, as long as you're travelling from point A to point B – it cannot, in other words, be used as a return ticket. Should you have more than one piece of large luggage, you're supposed to pay €7/additional item. Note that all tickets and travel cards have to be swiped before each journey at the meter-like machines that are at every stop. If you're 14–29 years old, make sure you buy the Rolling Venice card for just €4, which gives large reductions on transport in the city.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation is the major expense in Venice and you should always book ahead – you might also consider staying in nearby Padua, 30min away by train (see p.631), Mestre or on the Lido. High season officially runs from March 15 to Nov 15 and then from Dec 21 to Jan 6, but many places don't recognize the existence of a low season any more. There is a booking office at the tourist office outside the train station.

Very friendly, and situated a few paces off the Piazza, this is a top recommendation for budget travellers. The top-floor room has a private terrace looking over the roofs of the Basilica and the Torre dell'Orologio, and is one of the most attractive (and, of course, expensive) one-star rooms in the city. All rooms have their own bathroom. €150

Domus Civica Calle Campazzo, San Polo 3082 ☎041 721 103, www.domuscivica.com; map p.634. This Catholic women's student hostel is open to tourists from mid-June to mid-Sept. Most rooms are double with running water; showers free; no breakfast; midnight curfew. Dorms €25

Foresteria Valdese Calle S. Maria Formosa, Castello 5170 ☎041 528 6797, www.foresteriaveneziam.it; map p.634. Run by Waldensians, this hostel is installed in a wonderful palazzo, with flaking frescoes in the rooms and a large communal salon. It has bedrooms for one to four people and small dormitories that can accommodate up to nine; most of the smaller rooms have a private bathroom. Registration 9am–1pm & 6–8pm. Dorms €32, doubles €105

★ Livia Oliva B&B Via Aldo Manuzio 5, Lido ☎041 526 2981; map p.634. An unbeatable choice on the Lido, close to the ferry station and near a lovely sandy beach. The rooms are spotless and there's a lovely terrace overlooking the quiet canal-lined street. Doubles €58

ostello Santa Fosca S. Maria dei Servi, Cannaregio 2372 ☎041 715 775, www.ostellosantafosca.it; map p.634.

Student-run hostel in an atmospheric former Servite convent in a quiet part of Cannaregio, with rudimentary bedrooms sleeping two to seven people (the larger rooms are female-only), nearly all of them with shared bathrooms. 12.30am curfew. Dorms €27

ostello Venezia Fondamenta Zitelle 86, Giudecca ☎041 523 8211, www.ostelloveneziam.it; map p.634. The city's 240-bed, 29-room HI hostel occupies a superb location looking over the water to San Marco, and has been completely revamped, making it one of the best in Italy – bright, spacious, comfortable and even stylish. Rooms range from doubles to sixteen-bed dorms. Breakfast and sheets are included – but remember to add the expense of the boat from central Venice. No kitchen, but you can eat cheaply in the hostel canteen. No curfew. Dorms €25

EATING

Venice is full of great restaurants but it can be a minefield to find cheap places. Avoid the tourist hotspots like Piazza San Marco where prices rocket, and make sure you head to a bàcaro, a bar that offers a range of snacks called cicheti (or ciccheti). Some bàcari also produce one or two more substantial dishes each day, such as risotto or seafood pasta.

Ai Promessi Sposi Calle dell'Oca, Cannaregio 4367 ☎041 241 2747; map p.634. This moderately priced (mains around €15) and cosy little osteria specializes in baccalà and other traditional fish recipes. Excellent range of cicheti at the bar. Tues & Thurs–Sun 11.30am–2.15pm & 6–11pm, Wed 6–11pm.

Alla Vedova Calle del Pistor 3912, Cannaregio ☎041 528 5324; map p.634. This long-established little restaurant is fronted by a bar offering a mouthwatering selection of cicheti and a good range of wines. One of the best-value places in town (antipasti and main courses from just €10), so book ahead. Mon–Wed, Fri & Sat 11.30am–2.30pm & 6.30–10.30pm, Sun 6.30–10.30pm.

Antico Dolo Ruga Rialto, San Polo 778 ☎041 522 6546, www.anticodolo.it; map p.634. You can pop into this tiny and long-established osteria for a few cicheti and a glass of Merlot and come away just a few euros poorer; or you can take a table and eat an excellent meal for something in the region of €40. For lunch, the €18.50 plate of assorted cicheti is a tempting offer. Daily noon–10pm.

Ribot Fondamenta Minotto, Santa Croce 158 ☎041 524 2486, www.ristoranteribot.com; map p.634. Named after a famous racehorse, Ribot is an old-fashioned, good-value, unfussy and relaxed restaurant, with a menu that draws on recipes from beyond the Veneto, and a lovely garden out back. Main courses are mostly under €20, and there are some very well-priced set menus. The wine list is excellent, and the location – near the Tolentini – is off the main tourist routes. Mon–Sat noon–2.30pm & 7–10.30pm.

17 DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Venice is short on clubbing action, but there are plenty of bars, particularly around Campo Santa Margherita and Campo San Giacomo.

Al Timon Fondamenta degli Ormesini, Cannaregio 2754 ☎ 041 524 6066; map p.634. With its attractively spartan neo-traditional decor, this osteria is a big hit with Venice's students and 20-somethings – most nights, the crowd spills out onto the canal side. The meals are generally good, but this is really a place for a snack and a drink or two. Mon–Sat 11am–4pm & 7pm–1am.

Café Noir Crosera S. Pantalon, Dorsoduro 3805 ☎ 041 710 227. A favourite student bar, often with live music on Tues. Mon–Fri 11am–2am, Sat & Sun 7pm–2am.

Caffé Rosso Santa Margherita, Dorsoduro 2963 ☎ cafferosso.it; map p.634. This tiny bar draws a large crowd. Either stand outside or join the chilled-out throng who sit in the square. Mon–Sat 7am–1am.

I Rusteghi Corte del Tentor, San Marco 5513 ☎ 041 523 2205; map pp.636–637. A small osteria, secreted away in a tiny courtyard close to Campo San Bartolomeo, with great cicheti, nice wine and a congenial host – plus a few outside tables. The perfect place for a quiet snack in the San Marco area. Mon–Sat 10am–3pm & 6pm–midnight.

Paradiso Perduto Fondamenta della Misericordia, Cannaregio 2540 ☎ 041 720 581, ☎ ilparadisoperduto.com; map p.634. A fixture on the Venice scene, Paradiso Perduto is packed to the rafters most nights with a young crowd. The restaurant section is like a boho refectory and the atmosphere is usually terrific, though there are better kitchens in the neighbourhood. Go for the drinks, the cicheti and the buzz. Mon & Thurs–Sun 9am–2am.

ENTERTAINMENT

To find out about concerts and events going on throughout the city, head to one of the tourist offices (see p.638). Alternatively, check out websites ☎ musicinvenice.com or ☎ veniceconcerts.com.

La Fenice ☎ 041 786 511, ☎ teatrolafenice.it. The city's opera house was completely rebuilt after a calamitous fire in 1996 and puts on excellent performances. Tickets range €15–200.

VENICE FESTIVALS AND EVENTS

The most famous celebrated annual event is Carnival (Carnevale), which occupies the ten days leading up to Lent, finishing on Shrove Tuesday with a masked ball, dancing in Piazza San Marco, street parties, pageants and performances. The Biennale (☎ labiennale.org) organizes international arts events throughout the year, including the Venice Film Festival.

Venice Jazz Club Ponte dei Pugni, Dorsoduro 3102 ☎ 041 523 2056, ☎ venicejazzclub.com. Live jazz takes place throughout the year at this popular venue.

DIRECTORY

Hospital Ospedale Civile, Campo SS. Giovanni e Paolo (☎ 041 529 4111).

Police To notify police of a theft or lost passport, report to the questura at Rampa S. Chiara 500, on the north side of Piazzale Roma (☎ 041 271 5511).

Post office Calle delle Acque 5016, close to San Salvador (Mon–Fri 8.30am–7pm, Sat 8.30am–12.30pm).

BOLOGNA

BOLOGNA is the oldest university town in Europe (the institution dates back to the eleventh century) and teems with students and bookshops. Known for its left-wing politics, “Red Bologna” has long been the Italian Communist Party’s spiritual home. The birthplace of Marconi boasts some of the richest food in Italy, a busy cultural life and a convivial café and bar scene.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The compact, colonnaded city centre is famous for its 38km of covered arcades, built to cover the horses brought to Bologna by the first university students, and is still startlingly medieval in plan.

Piazza Maggiore and around

Buzzing Piazza Maggiore is the heart of the city, dominated by the basilica of San Petronio, and was originally intended to have been larger than St Peter’s in Rome. Just north of the square, in the centre of Piazza del Nettuno, is the marble and bronze Fountain of Neptune, a famous emblem of the city. Created by Giambologna in the late sixteenth century, it shows the sea god lording it over an array of cherubs, mermaids and dolphins. Northwest of the piazza, at Via Don Minzoni 14, is the MAMbo, the Modern Art Museum of Bologna (Tues, Wed & Fri noon–6pm, Thurs, Sat & Sun noon–8pm; €6; ☎ mambo-bologna.org). Housed in an ex-bakery, the museum contains works by Italian and international artists and hosts regular temporary exhibitions by contemporary artists. MAMbo currently houses the Museo Morandi, while its home in the Palazzo d'Accursio on Piazza Maggiore is restored. The museum is dedicated to the works of Giorgio Morandi, one of Italy's most important twentieth-century painters.

Archiginnasio

Bologna's university – the Archiginnasio – was founded at more or less the same time as the Piazza Maggiore, though it didn't get a special building until 1565. The most interesting portion is the Teatro Anatomico (Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; €3; www.archiginnasio.it), the original medical faculty dissection theatre, whose tiers of seats surround a professor's chair, covered with a canopy supported by figures known as gli spellati – the skinned ones.

Piazza San Domenico

South down Via Garibaldi, Piazza San Domenico is the site of the church of San Domenico, built in 1251 to house the relics of St Dominic. The angel and figures of saints Proculus and Petronius were the work of a very young Michelangelo. It also holds a crucifix by Pizzano.

Due Torri

At Piazza di Porta Ravegnana, the Torre degli Asinelli (daily: March–Oct 9am–6pm; Nov–Feb 9am–5pm; €3) and perilously leaning Torre Garisenda are together known as the Due Torri, the only significant survivors of 180 towers that were scattered across the city during the Middle Ages, when possession of the towers determined the ranks of power within the city. Superstition holds that any student who enters these towers before graduation won't graduate at all. The climb up the 498 steps to the top of the Torre degli Asinelli is tough and takes about fifteen minutes but you'll be rewarded with spectacular views over Bologna's rooftops.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Bologna's airport (bologna-airport.it) is northwest of the centre, linked by Aerobus (every 15min; 25min; €6) to the train station and Via dell'Indipendenza in the centre of town.

By train The train station is on Piazza delle Medaglie d'Oro. Buses #A, #11, #25 and #27 run to Piazza Maggiore or Via Rizzoli, or it's a 20min walk.

Destinations Ferrara (every 30min; 25min–50min); Florence (frequent; 35min); Milan (every 30min; 1–2hr); Rimini (every 30min; 50min–1hr 30min); Rome (frequent; 2hr–2hr 20min); Turin (every 2hr; 2hr 10min–2hr 30min); Venice (frequent; 1hr 30min–2hr); Verona (every 1–2hr; 50min–1hr 30min).

By bus All long-distance buses terminate in Piazza XX Settembre 6, next to the train station. Sena (www.sena.it) runs services to Naples, Rome and Siena.

Destinations Naples (5 daily; 9hr); Rome (7 daily; 6hr 15min); Siena (7 daily; 2hr 40min–4hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Maggiore 1 (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–5pm; ☎ 051 239 660, bolognawelcome.it). Packed with information, including details of gourmet tours and cookery courses. There's a second office at the airport (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–4pm; ☎ 051 647 2201).

Discount passes The 48-hour Bologna Welcome Card costs €20 and includes admission to many of the major museums, plus either free public transport for 24 hours or a free shuttle bus to and from Bologna's airport.

GETTING AROUND

Walking is the best way to see Bologna, as the compact centre can be crossed in under 30min.

City Red Bus This bus (cityredbus.com) offers a day ticket for just €13 and is a great way to explore Bologna outside the city centre.

By bike Demetra Social Bike at Via Capo di Lucca 37, near the bus station, rents bikes for €15/day.

ACCOMMODATION

Trade fairs take place several times a year (March to early May & Sept–Dec are peak times), during which prices can double – so it's best to book ahead. The tourist office has a helpful and free booking service.

★ Garisenda Galleria del Leone 1/Via Rizzoli 9 ☎ 051 224 369, albergogarisenda.com. The seven rooms here are basic – only three have private bathrooms (€85) – but the location is great and the welcome genuine. It's surprisingly quiet for its location, above the Via Rizzoli shops right opposite the two towers. €65

Il Nosadillo Via Nosadella 15 ☎ ilnosadillo.com. This small hostel in the old centre is more convenient, though pricier than Bologna's official HI hostel (6km out of town). As the staff aren't around all day, it feels more like a shared apartment than a hostel, with three mixed dorms sleeping five to seven. They share the bathrooms, kitchens and living room. Check-in 2–8pm. Dorms €24, doubles €70

Panorama Via Livraghi 1 ☎051 221 802, hotelpanoramabologna.it. Offering excellent value, this fourth-floor, one-star hotel has three- and four-bed rooms as well as large doubles and singles; it's a little old-fashioned but spotlessly clean. Only one room comes with private bath; the rest share pleasant facilities down the corridor. Helpful owners. €55

EATING

For a snack, head for the Mercato di Mezzo, the former market hall at Via Clavature 12 where you can buy salads, calamari, platters of ham and cheese plus wine and beer from different stalls and sit at convivial shared tables – or take away (daily 8.30am–midnight).

Al Sangiovese Vicolo del Falcone 2 ☎051 583 057, alsangiovese.com. Tucked away on an unprepossessing backstreet by the Porta San Mamolo, this traditional trattoria serves excellent pasta dishes such as strozzapreti with porcini mushrooms, peas and ham (€8), as well as meaty mains (€12–16), washed down with a fine Sangiovese red from the family vineyard. Mon–Sat noon–2.30pm & 7–10.30pm.

Clorofilla Strada Maggiore 64/C ☎051 235 343. This warmly inviting fish and vegetarian place is just the spot if the “fat of Bologna” has been weighing you down, offering enticing salads with predominantly organic products, all around €8, as well as tofu and seitan dishes and fish specialities from €12. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

Osteria dell'Orsa Via Mentana 1/F ☎051 231 576. Bustling, friendly and cheap, this is where both students and locals go for simple good food. Pastas (€6), salads (€8) and main dishes €10–12. Share one of the big tables and join in the pub-like conviviality. Daily 12.30pm–1am.

★ Tamburini Via Caprarie 1 ☎051 234 726. A fabulous deli with hanging hams and counters bulging with giant cheeses. It's also got a popular wine bar selling roasted meats and plates of filled pasta for around €5–7. Mon–Sat 8.30am–8pm, Sun 10am–6.30pm; wine bar daily noon–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

One of the cheapest and liveliest areas is the pub-and-bar-lined Via Zamboni, where the university students hang out. Piazza Verdi pulls in the crowds on summer evenings with its open-air bars and live music. West of the centre, there is a buzzing scene in the streets around the Mercato delle Erbe, while the nearby Via del Pratello is also lined with bars and restaurants. There's a free open-air cinema in Piazza Maggiore in the summer (late June to late July; 10pm) showing arty and black-and-white films – ask at the tourist office (see p.641).

Altotasso Piazza San Francesco 6/D ☎051 238 003. Small enoteca offering a great spread of aperitivi, with an emphasis on zero kilometre produce. Craft beers on tap and the wines are mostly local and organic. Live jazz and rock in the large back room on Wednesdays. Daily 4.30pm–3am.

Cantina Bentivoglio Via Mascarella 4/B ☎051 265 416, cantinabentivoglio.it. This place has live jazz from around 10pm in the cellars of a sixteenth-century palazzo, and the food (snacks to full meals; mains €9–18) and wines are excellent. Daily 8pm–2am; closed Sun in summer.

Enoteca des Arts Via San Felice 9 ☎051 236 422. This tiny, dark bar is a proper enoteca – all warm wood and dusty bottles – serving cheap local wine and preparing simple snacks (panini, cold meat platters) on request. Mon–Sat 5pm–3am.

PARMA

PARMA is an extremely pleasant town, with dignified streets, large green spaces, a wide range of good restaurants and an appealing air of provincial affluence. The home of Parmesan and Parma ham also offers plenty to see, not least the works of two key late Renaissance artists – Correggio and Parmigianino.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Piazza Garibaldi is the fulcrum of Parma, and its cafés and surrounding alleyways are liveliest at night. The mustard-coloured Palazzo del Governatore flanks the square, behind which stands the Renaissance church of Santa Maria della Steccata (daily 7.30am–noon & 3–6.30pm; free). Inside there are frescoes by a number of sixteenth-century painters, notably Parmigianino. It's also worth visiting the Duomo (daily 9am–12.30pm & 3–7pm), on Piazza del Duomo in the northeast of the city centre, to see the octagonal Baptistery (€6), considered to be Benedetto Antelami's finest work, built in 1196. Frescoes by Correggio are in the Camera di San Paolo (Tues–Fri & Sun 8.30am–1.30pm, Sat 8.30am–5.30pm; €2), in the former Benedictine convent off Via Melloni, a few minutes' walk north.

East of the cathedral square, it's hard to miss Parma's biggest monument, the Palazzo della Pilotta, begun for Alessandro Farnese in the sixteenth century and rebuilt after World War II bombing. It now houses the city's main art gallery, the Galleria Nazionale (Tues–Sun 8.30am–1.30pm; €6; €3 after 2pm; www.gallerianazionaleparma.it), whose extensive collection includes more works by Correggio and Parmigianino. The grassy area around the Palazzo is a popular place for a picnic. If you've had enough of all things cultural and fancy checking out some shopping streets, stroll down the wide and laidback Strada della Repubblica, or alternatively people-watch from a café on Via Farini, take a walk along the river or escape the heat of the day at the Parco Ducale.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Ryanair flies three times weekly from London Stansted to Parma's airport (☎ 0521 9515, ✉ parma-airport.it), 5km from the train station. Bus #6 (every 30min) runs to the station; a taxi will cost around €10.

By train Parma's train station is a 15min walk from the central Piazza Garibaldi, or take bus #1, #8, #9 or #13.

Destinations Bologna (every 30min–1hr; 1hr–1hr 10min); La Spezia (every 1–2hr; 2hr); Milan (frequent; 1hr 15min–1hr 40min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Garibaldi 1 (Mon 1–7pm, Tues–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎ 0521 218 889, ✉ turismo.comune.parma.it). Ask here about connecting to free wi-fi.

Festivals and events Events include the annual Verdi festival in October, held at the Teatro Regio on Via Garibaldi (☎ 0521 203 999, ✉ teatroregioparma.org).

ACCOMMODATION

Al Battistero d'Oro Strada Sant'Anna 22 ☎ 338 490 4697, ✉ albattisterodoro.it. Two delightful rooms in a B&B filled with local eighteenth-century furniture. The friendly owner, Patrizia, can help with information, and also rents out a well-equipped apartment round the corner. €100

D'Autore Strada Nino Bixio 89 ☎ 348 898 2304, ✉ bbdautore.it; bus #1, #6 or #20 from the station. A welcoming B&B in a quiet location on the western side of the river, impeccably run by Giacomo and Roberto, who provide free bikes. Breakfast €5. Cash only. €75

Ostello della Gioventù Via S. Leonardo 86 ☎ 0521 191 7547, ✉ ostelloparma.it; a 10min bus ride north of the centre (#2 & #13 from the train station and the city centre). This hostel offers spick-and-span six-bed dorms, doubles and triple rooms with private bathrooms, and a host of extra facilities. Open 24hr. Breakfast €3 extra. Dorms €20, doubles €44

Palazzo dalla Rosa Prati Piazza Duomo 7 ☎ 0521 386 429, ✉ palazzodallarosapрати.it. Luxurious conversion of an old palazzo in the heart of town with fabulous rooms and suites – suite 5 looks out over the Baptistery, and if the lights are on in the evening you can see the frescoes. It's a friendly place – owned and run by the same family since the 1600s. Breakfast is served in the café downstairs. €110

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Ciacco Strada Garibaldi 11 ☎ 0521 234 063. Artisan ice-cream parlour, named after a Dante character, where the range of seasonal flavours includes some unusual combinations, such as the delicious strudel and the curious liquorice sorbet. Mon–Thurs noon–11pm, Fri–Sun noon–midnight.

★ Gallo d'Oro Borgo della Salina 3 ☎ 0521 208 846. Atmospheric trattoria on a quiet side street off Strada Farini. Excellent filled pastas such as pumpkin ravioli (€8), while the secondi include a tasty rabbit with herbs (€9). Daily noon–2.30pm & 7.30–11pm.

★ Panino d'Artista Strada Farini 19–21 ☎ 0521 236 512. This narrow bar bustles with customers and serves a superb array of antipasti (a glass of wine plus snacks €5). At their Verdi-themed restaurant next door, La Cucina del Maestro, the risotto Verdi is masterful – and great value (€9.50). Mon–Thurs & Sun 7am–1am, Fri & Sat 7am–2am.

★ Tabarro Strada Farini 5/B ☎ 0521 200 223. Cosy little wine bar with geometric-tiled floor, copper-topped bar and beer barrels as tables – a convivial spot for an aperitivo. The meat and cheese plates (from €7) are locally sourced. Tues–Thurs & Sun 5pm–midnight, Fri & Sat 5pm–1am.

RAVENNA

RAVENNA's colourful sixth-century mosaics are one of the crowning achievements of Byzantine art – and undoubtedly the main reason for visiting the town. The mosaics are the legacy of a quirk of fate 1500 years ago, when Ravenna briefly became capital of the Roman Empire, and can be seen in a day. The Basilica of San Vitale, ten minutes northwest of the centre, was completed in 548 AD. Its mosaics, showing scenes from the Old Testament and the life of Christ, are in the apse. Across from the basilica is the tiny Mausoleo di Galla Placidia (daily: April–Sept 9.30am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; March & Oct 9.30am–5.30pm; entry with Museum card), whose mosaics glow with a deep-blue lustre. Galla Placidia was the daughter, sister, wife and mother of various Roman emperors, and the interior of her fifth-century mausoleum, whose cupola is covered in tiny stars, is breathtaking. East of here, on the Via di Roma, is the sixth-century basilica of Sant'Apollinare Nuovo (daily: April–Sept 9.30am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; March & Oct 9.30am–5.30pm; entry with Museum card). Mosaics run the length of the nave, depicting processions of martyrs bearing gifts. Five minutes' walk up Via di Roma, the Arian Baptistery has a fine mosaic ceiling (daily 8.30am–7.30pm; Nov–March closes at 4.30pm; free). Ravenna does have other strings to its bow, including some lovely sandy beaches (take bus #70 from the station).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Ravenna's train station is a 5min walk from the centre.

Destinations Bologna (hourly; 1hr 20min–2hr); Ferrara (hourly; 1hr 15min); Rimini (hourly; 1hr–1hr 10min).

Tourist office Piazza Caduti per la Libertà 2 (April–Sept Mon–Sat 8.30am–7pm, Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–March Mon–Sat 8.30am–6pm, Sun 10am–4pm; ☎ 0544 35 404, ✉ turismo.ravenna.it). The Classe tourist office is by the church at via Romea Sud 226 (Sat & Sun 9.30am–12.30pm; ☎ 0544 473 661).

Museum card A combined ticket (€9.50) is valid for seven days and covers all the church-controlled sights. It's available from any of the participating museums.

ACCOMMODATION

Hostel Dante Via Nicolodi 12 ☎ 0544 421 164, ✉ hostelravenna.com. HI hostel a 10min walk east of the station, handily opposite a large Co-op supermarket. An all-you-can-eat buffet breakfast is included in the price. Lock-out between noon and 2.30pm. Dorms €21, doubles €27

EATING AND DRINKING

Ca' De Ven Via C. Ricci 24 ☎ 0544 30 163, ✉ cadeven.it. Stunning wood-panelled enoteca with painted ceilings that has expanded into the airy glass-covered courtyard next door. It offers a simple menu of a few pizza and pasta dishes, as well as a selection of piadine for around €4.50. There's also a huge range of vintages to sample by the glass from €1.50 upwards. Tues–Sun 10am–2.30pm & 6–10.30pm.

Central Italy

The Italian heartland of Tuscany is one mass of picture-postcard landscapes made up of lovely, walled hill-top towns and rolling, vineyard-covered hills. Florence is the first port of call, home to a majestic

Duomo, the extensive Uffizi gallery and the elegant Ponte Vecchio. Siena, one of the great medieval cities of Europe, is also the scene of Tuscany's one unmissable festival – the Palio – which sees bareback horseriders careering around the cobbled central square, while Pisa's leaning tower, a feat of engineering against gravity, and intricately decorated cathedral justifiably attract hordes of tourists. To the east lies Umbria, a beautiful region of thick woodland and undulating hills; the capital, Perugia, is an energetic student-dominated town, while Assisi is famed for its gorgeous setting and extraordinary frescoes by Giotto.

FLORENCE

FLORENCE (Firenze) is undoubtedly the highlight of Tuscany. Its chapels, galleries and museums are works of art in themselves, and every corner brings you face to face with architectural splendour. Some of the most famous pieces in Western art are on display here, including Michelangelo's David in the Accademia and Botticelli's Birth of Venus in the Uffizi.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Florence's major sights are contained within an area that can be crossed on foot in a little over half an hour. From Santa Maria Novella train station, most visitors gravitate towards Piazza del Duomo, beckoned by the pinnacle of the dome. Via dei Calzaiuoli, which runs south from the Duomo, is the main catwalk of the Florentine passeggiata, a broad pedestrianized avenue lined with shops. It ends at Florence's other main square, the Piazza della Signoria, fringed on one side by the graceful late fourteenth-century Loggia della Signoria and dotted with statues, most famously a copy of Michelangelo's David.

The Duomo

The Duomo (daily 10am–5pm; free; €15 il Grande Museo del Duomo ticket includes entry to the sights below; ✉ ilgrandemuseodelduomo.it) was built between the late thirteenth and mid-fifteenth centuries. The third-largest church in the world, its ambience is more that of a great assembly hall than of a devotional building. The seven stained-glass roundels, designed by Uccello, Ghiberti, Castagno and Donatello, are best inspected from a gallery that forms part of the route to the top of the dome (daily 8.30am–6.20pm), from where the views are stupendous. Next door to the Duomo stands the Campanile (daily 8.15am–6.50pm), begun by Giotto in 1334. As well as offering an impressive bird's-eye view of Florence, this contains several enormous bells and more than fifty intricately carved marble reliefs. Opposite, the Baptistry (daily 8.15–10.15am & 11.15am–6.30pm), generally thought to date from the sixth or seventh century, is the oldest building in the city. Its gilded bronze doors were cast in the early fifteenth century by Lorenzo Ghiberti, and described by Michelangelo as “so beautiful they are worthy to be the gates of Paradise”. Inside, it is equally stunning, with a thirteenth-century mosaic floor and ceiling and the tomb of Pope John XXIII, the work of Donatello and his pupil Michelozzo.

The Palazzo Vecchio

The tourist-thronged Piazza della Signoria is dominated by the colossal Palazzo Vecchio, Florence's fortress-like town hall (April–Sept Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun 9am–11pm, tower closes at 9pm, Thurs 9am–2pm; Oct–March Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun 9am–7pm, tower closes 5pm, Thurs 9am–2pm; palazzo €10, tower €10, combined ticket €14), begun in the last year of the thirteenth century as the home of the Signoria, the highest tier of the city's republican government. A staircase leads to its tower; the view at the top of the 223-step climb rivals that from the cathedral dome.

The Uffizi

Immediately south of the Palazzo Vecchio, the Galleria degli Uffizi (Tues–Sun 8.15am–6.50pm; booking advisable online; €8; www.uffizi.firenze.it) is the greatest picture gallery in Italy. Highlights include Filippo Lippi's Madonna and Child with Two Angels and some of Botticelli's most famous works, notably the Birth of Venus. While the Uffizi doesn't own a finished painting that's entirely by Leonardo da Vinci, there's a celebrated Annunciation that's mainly by him, and Michelangelo's Doni Tondo, found in Room 18, is his only completed easel painting.

Bargello

The Bargello museum (Tues–Sat 8.15am–1.50pm, plus 2nd & 4th Sun of month and 1st, 3rd & 5th Mon of month, same hours; €4, €7 during exhibitions) lies just northwest of the Uffizi in Via del Proconsolo. The collection contains numerous works by Michelangelo, Cellini and Giambologna. Upstairs is Donatello's sexually ambiguous bronze David, the first freestanding nude figure since classical times, cast in the early 1430s.

San Lorenzo

The church of San Lorenzo (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 1.30–5pm; Nov–Feb closed Sun; €7 combined ticket with Biblioteca Medicea-Laurenziana), north of Piazza del Duomo, has a strong claim to be the oldest church in Florence. At the top of the left aisle and through the cloisters, the Biblioteca Medicea-Laurenziana (Mon–Sat 9.30am–1.30pm; same ticket) was designed by Michelangelo in 1524; its most startling feature is the vestibule, a room almost filled by a flight of steps resembling a solidified lava flow.

Accademia

Northeast of San Lorenzo, the Accademia (Tues–Sun 8.15am–6.50pm; €8), Europe's first school of drawing, is swamped by people wanting to see Michelangelo's David. Finished in 1504, when the artist was just 29, and carved from a gigantic block of marble, it's an incomparable show of technical bravura.

Santa Croce

Down by the river, to the southeast of the centre, the church of Santa Croce (Mon–Sat 9.30am–5.30pm, Sun 2–5.30pm; €6), begun in 1294, is 17 full of tombstones and commemorative monuments, including Vasari's memorial to Michelangelo and, on the opposite side of the church, the tomb of Galileo, built in 1737 when it was finally agreed to give the scientist a Christian burial. Most visitors, however, come to see the dazzling frescoes by Giotto.

Oltrarno and beyond

The photogenic thirteenth-century Ponte Vecchio, loaded with jewellers' shops overhanging the water, leads from the city centre across the river to the district of Oltrarno. Head west, past the relaxed, café-lined square of Santo Spirito, to the church of Santa Maria del Carmine – an essential visit for the superbly restored frescoes by Masaccio in its Cappella Brancacci (Mon & Wed–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 1–5pm; €6).

Palazzo Pitti

South of Ponte Vecchio is the massive bulk of the fifteenth-century Palazzo Pitti. It contains six separate museums, the best of which, the Galleria Palatina (Tues–Sun 8.15am–6.50pm; €8.50 combined ticket with Galleria d'Arte Moderna, €13 if a special exhibition is on), houses some superb Raphaels and Titians. The rest of the first floor is dominated by the state rooms of the Appartamenti Monumentali. The Pitti's enormous formal garden, the delightful Giardino di Boboli (Tues–Sun 8.15am–4.30pm; March till 5.30pm; April, May, Sept & Oct till 6.30pm; June–Aug till 7.30pm; €7, €10 during exhibitions; ticket includes the Bardini Gardens, the Argenti, Porcellane and Costume museums), is also worth a visit. Beyond here, the multicoloured facade of San Miniato al Monte (Mon–Sat 9.30am–1pm & 3–7pm, Sun 3–7pm; free) lures troops of visitors up the hill. The interior is like no other in the city, and its form has changed little since the mid-eleventh century.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Pisa's Galileo Galilei airport (see p.651) is the main airport for Tuscany. A small number of international air services use Peretola (or Amerigo Vespucci) airport (☎055 306 1300, ✈aeroporto.firenze.it), 5km northwest of the city centre; the Volainbus service provides shuttles from here into Florence Santa Maria Novella station every 30min.

By train The main train station is at Piazza Santa Maria Novella, in the northwest of the city centre, a 10min walk from the Piazza del Duomo.

Destinations Bologna (frequent; 35min–1hr 20min); Milan (frequent; 1hr 40min); Naples (hourly; 3hr); Perugia (every 2–4hr; 2hr 10min); Pisa (every 20min; 50min–1hr 25min); Rome (frequent; 1hr 30min); Venice (hourly; 2hr); Verona (every 1–2hr; 1hr 35min–2hr 30min).

By bus The main bus station is close to the train station on Via Santa Caterina da Siena. Use bus company Sena (☎sena.it) for longer journeys. ATAF (☎www.ataf.net) runs the reliable local service.

Destinations Perugia (1 daily; 4hr); Siena (hourly; 1hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office The main tourist office is at Via Cavour 1r, a 5min walk north of the Duomo (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–2pm; ☎055 290 832, ✉www.firenzeturismo.it); this office provides information on the whole Florence province. Smaller offices are at the Loggia del Bigallo, by the Baptistery (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–2pm), and opposite the train station, at Piazza della Stazione 5 (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–2pm).

Discount card Pick up the Firenze card (☎www.firenzecard.it) at the offices; it's pricey at €72/3 days but includes scores of the city's museums and all use of all transport in the city; it also enables you to bypass the queues at the major museums.

GETTING AROUND

By bus For cross-town journeys you might want to use ATAF buses. Tickets are valid for unlimited journeys within 90min (€1.20), 24hr (€5) or 72hr (€12). A Biglietto Multiplo gives four 90min tickets for €4.50; they can be bought from tabacchi.

Bike rental Rentway, Piazza San Benedetto 1r (daily 10am–7.30pm; €14/day; ✉segwayrentflorence.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Florence's most affordable hotels are close to the station, in particular along and around Via Faenza, Via Fiume, Via della Scala and Piazza di Santa Maria Novella. Advance booking is advisable, or head to the tourist office on Piazza Della Stazione where there is a hotel booking office inside the same building.

Academy Hostel Via Ricasoli 9 ☎055 239 8665, ✉academyhostel.it. Set in a seventeenth-century palazzo just a short walk from the Duomo, this hostel offers airy, high-ceilinged rooms and a common area with flatscreen TV, plus a sunny terrace. Dorms €38

Camping Panoramico Via Peramondo 1, Fiesole ☎ 055 559 069, ☎ florencecamping.com. Located in Fiesole, a short bus ride from central Florence, this 120-pitch three-star site has a bar, restaurant, pool and small supermarket. Mid-March to Nov. Pitches per adult €7, plus per tent €6

Cestelli Borgo SS. Apostoli 25 ☎ 055 214 213, ☎ hotelcelestelli.com. Spotlessly maintained by its young Florentine-Japanese owners and offering excellent value for money, this eight-roomed one-star occupies part of a house that once belonged to a minor Medici. The rooms are a good size, and most are en suite. €100

Foresteria Valdese Firenze—Istituto Gould Via dei Serragli 49 ☎ 055 212 576, ☎ firenzevaldesi.it. Run by the Waldensian Church, this hostel-cum-evangelical college occupies part of a seventeenth-century palazzo. The 99 beds are extremely popular, so book in advance. Street-front rooms can be noisy but the old courtyard, terracotta floors and stone staircases provide atmosphere. Dorms €25

Hostel Archi Rossi Via Faenza 94r ☎ 055 290 804, ☎ hostelarchirossi.com. Lively, arty and ultra-efficient hostel right by the station with a superb private garden. Cheap evening meals are available. There are also free pizza and pasta nights and free daily walking tours. Dorms €30, doubles €100

Santa Monica Via S. Monica 6 ☎ 055 268 338, ☎ ostello.it. This hostel in Oltrarno, close to the Carmine, has 115 beds in rooms sleeping up to 22, both mixed and female-only. Kitchen facilities (no utensils), washing machines and a useful noticeboard with information on lifts and onward travel. Check-in 6am–2am; bedrooms have to be vacated between 10am and 2pm. Curfew 2am. Dorms €20

EATING

The best place to find picnic food and snacks is the Mercato Centrale, just east of the train station, or Mercato di Sant'Ambrogio. Both markets close at 2pm. Supermarket Il Centro is at Borgo Degli Albizi 57.

Da Mario Via Rosina 2r ☎ 055 218 550, ☎ trattoria-mario.com. Located close to the Mercato Centrale, Da Mario has probably been packed out every lunchtime since the Colsi family started running the place in 1953. For earthy Florentine cooking at very low prices, there's nowhere better. Mon–Sat noon–3.30pm.

Il Contandino Via Palazzuolo 69–71r ☎ 055 238 2673. This small place is an excellent choice for lunch, with set meals at €9 or €11. Set dinner starts at €13.50. Daily noon–10pm.

Il Magazzino Piazza della Passera 2–3 ☎ 055 215 969. This earthily authentic osteria-tripperia serves hearty dishes of pasta, tripe and beef at around €10–18. Daily noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

La Casalinga Via Michelozzi 9r ☎ 055 218 624, ☎ trattorialacasalinga.it. People are willing to queue a long time for a table at this great-value trattoria that serves old-style family Italian cooking. Primi around €7. Mon–Sat noon–2.30pm & 7–10pm.

★ Trattoria Sostanza 25 Via Porcellana ☎ 055 212 691. Affectionately known as “the trough”, this is where the real Florentines have been going for the best bistecca in town (about €25 for two) since 1869. A simple, no-frills affair, with hearty portions of superlative food. Booking recommended. Mon–Fri 12.30–2pm & 7.30–9.45pm; April, May, Sept & Oct open Sat.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Mercato Centrale, just east of the train station, has some of Florence's cheapest bars. For listings information, call in at the box office, Via Delle Vecchie Carceri 1 (☎ 055 210 804).

Auditorium FLOG Via Michele Mercati 24b ☎ 055 477 978, ☎ www.flog.it; bus #4 or #28 from Santa Maria Novella. One of the city's best-known mid-sized venues, and a perennial student favourite for all forms of live music (and DJs), but particularly local indie-type bands. It's usually packed, despite being way out in the northern suburbs.

★ Le Volpi e l'Uva Piazza dei Rossi 1r, off Piazza di Santa Felicità ☎ 055 239 8132. This friendly and successful little enoteca serves at least two dozen wines by the glass, most of them from small vineyards. A selection of tasty cold meats and snacks is on offer, and there are a few tables on the nice little terrace. Mon–Sat 11am–9pm.

Tenax Via Pratese 46 ☎ tenax.org. Bus #29 or #30. The city's biggest club and one of its leading venues for new and established bands, playing an eclectic mix of indie, trance, pop and old classics. Admission €20–25. Mid–Sept to Mid–May Thurs–Sat 10pm–3am.

Yab Yum Via de' Sasseti 5r ☎ 055 215 160, ☎ yab.it. Smart city-centre basement club near the Duomo, known throughout the country for Monday's Yabsmoove – Italy's longest-running hip-hop night. Oct–May Mon & Wed–Sat 7pm–4am.

FLORENCE'S FESTIVALS AND EVENTS

In summer there are often open-air screens at various places – check Firenze Spettacolo for the latest screenings. In May the Maggio Musicale (☎ maggiofiorentino.com) puts on concerts, gigs and other events throughout the city, while St John's Day (June 24) sees a massive fireworks display on Piazzale Michelangelo and the final of the Calcio Storico on Piazza Santa Croce, a violent hybrid of rugby, boxing and wrestling, played out between the city's four quartieri.

17 DIRECTORY

Consulates The UK consulate for northern Italy is in Milan; the US has a consulate in Florence, at Lungarno Amerigo Vespucci 38 (☎055 266 951).

Hospitals Santa Maria Nuova, Piazza Santa Maria Nuova 1 (☎055 69 381, 🌐www.asf.toscana.it. English-speaking doctors are on 24hr call at the Tourist Medical Service, Via Roma 4 (☎055 475 411, 🌐medicalsevice.firenze.it).

Post office Via Pellicceria 3 (Mon–Fri 8.20am–7.05pm, Sat 8.20am–12.35pm).

PISA

The Leaning Tower in PISA is an iconic image, yet its stunning beauty is often underrated, with its intricate carvings appearing as though they are icing details on a very large wedding cake. It's set alongside the Duomo and Baptistry on the manicured grass of the lovely Campo Piazza dei Miracoli, whose buildings date from the eleventh and twelfth centuries, when Pisa was one of the great Mediterranean powers. Beyond this pretty square, the city synonymous with Galileo, Shelley and Byron may lack the polish of a Siena or a Florence but it is still definitely worth a meander along its charming narrow streets.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Leaning Tower

Perhaps the strangest thing about the Leaning Tower (daily: Jan & Dec 10am–5pm; Feb & Nov 9.40am–5.40pm; March 9am–6pm; April–Sept 9am–8pm; Oct 9am–7pm; €18; book ahead at 🌐www.opapisa.it/boxoffice), begun in 1173, is that it has always tilted; subsidence disrupted the foundations when it had reached just three of its eight storeys. For the next 180 years a succession of architects was brought in to try to correct the tilt, until 1350 when the angle was accepted and the tower completed. Eight centuries after its construction, it was thought to be nearing its limit, and the tower, supported by steel wires, was closed to the public in the 1990s – though it's open for visits once again now that the tilt (and 3.9m overhang) has been successfully halted.

PISA'S FESTIVALS

Pisa is known for its Gioco del Ponte, usually held on the last Sunday in June, when teams from the north and south banks of the city stage a series of "battles", including pushing a seven-tonne carriage over the Ponte di Mezzo. But the town's most magical event is the Luminara on June 16, when buildings along the river are festooned with candles to celebrate San Ranieri, the city's patron saint.

Duomo and Baptistry

The Duomo (daily: March 10am–6pm; April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct 10am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–12.45pm & 2–5pm; no admittance to tourists before 1pm on Sun; free) was begun a century earlier than the Tower, its facade – a delicate balance of black and white marble, and tiers of arcades – setting the model for Pisa's highly distinctive brand of Romanesque. The third building of the Miracoli ensemble, the circular Baptistry (daily: March 9am–6pm; April–Sept 8am–8pm; Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; €5), is a slightly bizarre mix of Romanesque and Gothic, embellished with statues (now largely copies) by Giovanni Pisano and his father Nicola. The originals are displayed in the Opera del Duomo museum (March 9am–6pm; April–Sept 8am–8pm; Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; €5) to the east of Piazza del Duomo.

Camposanto

Along the north side of the Campo dei Miracoli is the Camposanto (daily: March 9am–6pm; April–Sept 8am–8pm; Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; €5), a cloistered cemetery built towards the end of the thirteenth century. Most of its frescoes were destroyed by Allied bombing in World War II, but two masterpieces survived relatively unscathed in the Cappella Ammannati – a fourteenth-century Triumph of Death, and The Last Judgement, a ruthless catalogue of horrors painted around the time of the Black Death.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Pisa's airport (www.pisa-airport.com) is about 1km south of the city centre. The PisaMover rail connects the airport to the city centre every 5–8min in less than 10min. Alternatively, the LAM Rossa city bus (€1.30) connects the airport to Pisa Centrale.

By train Pisa's picturesque train station is south of the centre on Piazza della Stazione, a 30min walk from Campo dei Miracoli. Take bus LAM Rossa for the 10min journey to the Leaning Tower.

Destinations Florence (every 15–30min; 50min–1hr 20min); Lucca (every 30min; 25min).

By bus A bus shuttles between Florence and Pisa airport (hourly; 1hr 10min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Vittorio Emanuele 16, near the train station (daily 10am–1pm & 2–4pm; ☎ 050 42 291, www.turismo.pisa.it and pisaunicaterra.it). There's usually also an information desk at Piazza del Duomo 7, by the Leaning Tower (daily 9.30am–5.30pm).

Discount card A tourist ticket (€9) gives admission to most of Piazza dei Miracoli's sights and museums, but not the Leaning Tower. Available from the ticket office on the north side of the Leaning Tower, and inside the Museo delle Sinopie (or book online www.opapisa.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Campeggio Torre Pendente Viale delle Cascine 86 ☎ 050 561 704, campingtorrependente.it. Large, well-maintained campsite 1km west of Campo Piazza dei Miracoli, with a restaurant, shop and large outdoor swimming pool. Open week before Easter–early Nov. Per person €11, plus tent €11

Hostel Pisa Via Corridoni 29 ☎ 050 520 1841, hostelpisa.it. An excellent hostel a 5min walk from the train station. Great courtyard and facilities including billiards and chess; rental bikes from €5/day. Dorms €15, doubles €40

Michele Guest House Via Vespucci 103 ☎ 333 601 1287, guest-house.it. Run by photographer Michele, this excellent B&B has luxurious rooms full of his work. Take advantage of the owner's extensive knowledge of the area. Doubles €65

EATING

Avoid eating around the Tower if you can, as prices here are sky-high for tourists. There are plenty of cheap eateries and studenty bars around Piazza Dante and Piazza delle Vettovaglie, and between Piazza Garibaldi and Piazza Cairoli. Da Cucciolo Vicolo Rossellini 9. The family-run Cucciolo has been in business for almost half a century, and is one of the city's most reliable trattorias, offering unfussy and delicious traditional meals, at around €10 for a main course. Mon–Sat noon–2.30pm & 7.30–10pm.

De' Coltelli Lungarno Pacinotti 23. The De' Coltelli family are credited with having devised the recipe for ice cream back in the seventeenth century, and the shop that bears their name is one of Italy's top-rank gelaterie, with a penchant for adventurous concoctions – anyone for seafood ice cream? Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–10.30pm, Fri & Sat noon–midnight.

Osteria dei Cavalieri Via San Frediano 16. Tucked away behind Piazza dei Cavalieri, this restaurant boasts a great menu (most secondi under €15) and wine list. Reservations recommended in high season. Mon–Fri 12.30–2pm & 7.45–10.30pm, Sat 7.45–10.30pm.

Vineria di Piazza Piazza delle Vettovaglie 13. Reliable and good-value dishes (mains about €8–10) are served at this friendly little place where the menu is scribbled on a blackboard. Tues–Sun 12.15–2.30pm.

SIENA

SIENA, 60km south of Florence, is the perfect antidote to its better-known neighbour. Self-contained behind excellently preserved medieval walls, its cityscape is a majestic Gothic attraction that you can roam around and enjoy without venturing into a single museum. During the Middle Ages, Siena was one of the major cities of Europe – the size of Paris, it controlled most of southern Tuscany and developed a highly sophisticated civic life, with its own written constitution and a quasi-democratic government.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Campo is the centre of Siena in every sense: the main streets lead into it, the Palio (see box, p.653) takes place around its café-lined perimeter, and it's the natural place to gravitate towards. It deserves its reputation as one of Italy's most beautiful squares, and taking a picnic onto the red stones to watch the shadows move around the square is a good way to while away an afternoon.

The Palazzo Pubblico

The Palazzo Pubblico with its 107m-high bell tower, the Torre del Mangia, occupies virtually the entire south side of the square, and although it's still in use as Siena's town hall, its principal rooms have been converted into a museum (daily: mid-March to Oct 10am–7pm; Nov to mid-March 10am–6pm; €9), frescoed with themes integral to the secular life of the medieval city.

Around the Campo

Between buildings at the top end of the Campo, the fifteenth-century Loggia di Mercanzia, built as a dealing room for merchants, marks the intersection of the city centre's principal streets. From here Via Banchi di Sotto leads east to the Palazzo Piccolomini and on into the workaday quarter of San Martino. From the Campo, Via di Città cuts west across the oldest quarter of the city, fronted by some of Siena's finest private palazzi. At the end of the street, Via San Pietro leads to the Pinacoteca Nazionale (Mon & Sun 9am–1pm, Tues–Sat 10am–6pm; €4; pinacotecanazionale.siena.it), a fourteenth-century palace housing a roll call of Siennese Gothic painting.

The Duomo

Southwest of Il Campo, the Duomo (March–Oct Mon–Sat 10.30am–7pm, Sun 1.30–6pm; March only Sun 1.30–5.30pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Sat 10.30am–5.30pm, Sun 1.30–5.30pm; €4, or €7 during the summer uncovering of the marble pavement; early Nov & early Jan–Feb entrance free, but €2 for Libreria Piccolomini) was completed to virtually its present size around 1215; plans to enlarge it withered with Siena's medieval prosperity. The building is a delight, its style an amazing mix of Romanesque and Gothic, delineated by bands of black and white marble on its facade. Inside, a startling sequence of 56 panels, completed between 1349 and 1547, features virtually every artist who worked in the city. Midway along the nave, the Libreria Piccolomini, signalled by Pinturicchio's brilliantly coloured fresco of the Coronation of Pius II, has superbly vivid frescoes.

Museums

Opposite the Duomo is the complex of Santa Maria della Scala (May–Oct daily 10.30am–6.30pm; Nov–April Mon, Wed & Thurs 10.30am–4.30pm, Fri–Sun 10.30am–6.30pm; €9), the city's hospital for over eight hundred years and now a vast museum that includes the frescoed Sala del Pellegrinaio. The Museo dell'Opera del Duomo (March–Oct Mon–Sat 10.30am–7pm, Sun 1.30–6pm, March only Sun 1.30–5.30pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Sat 10.30am–5.30pm, Sun 1.30–5.30pm; €7), tucked into a corner of the Duomo extension, offers a fine perspective: follow the “Panorama dal Facciato” signs to steep spiral stairs that climb up to the top of the building; the views are sensational but the topmost walkway is narrow and scarily exposed.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Siena's train station is 2km northwest of town. Cross the road and take bus #3 or #9 to Tozzi; #7, #17 or #77 to Garibaldi/Sale; #8 or #10 to Gramsci (it's a good 20–25min uphill walk to the centre from the station, and not recommended).

Destinations Florence (hourly; 1hr 30min); Pisa (via Empoli; every 30min–1hr; 1hr 45min).

By bus Most intercity buses arrive on or near Viale Federico Tozzi, the road running alongside Piazza Gramsci–Piazza Matteotti, or at nearby La Lizza, but some terminate at the train station or at San Domenico. Buses are run by Tiemme (☎0577 204 111, sienamobilita.it), which also runs services to and from Florence.

Destinations Bologna (2 daily; 3hr); Florence (30 daily; 1hr 15min–3hr); Pisa airport (1 daily; 1hr 50min); San Gimignano (10 daily; 1hr 5min–1hr 15min); Turin (4 weekly; 6hr 45min); Venice (2 daily; 5hr 20min).

THE SIENA PALIO

The Siena Palio is the most spectacular festival in Italy, a minute-and-a-half-long bareback horse race around the Campo contested twice a year (July 2 and August 16, each of which is preceded by all manner of trial races and processions) between the seventeen ancient wards – or contrade – of the city. Even now, a person's contrada frequently determines which churches they attend and where they socialize. There's a big build-up, with trials and processions for days before the big event, and traditionally all Siennese return to their contrada the night before the race; emotions run too high for rivals to be together, even if they're husband and wife. The Palio itself is a hectic spectacle whose rules haven't been rewritten since the race began – thus, supposedly, everything is allowed except to gouge your opponents' eyes out. On occasions it can take up to an hour to even start the race due to false starts. For the best view, you need to have found a position on the inner rail by 2pm and to keep it for the next seven hours. Beware that toilets, shade and refreshments are minimal, the swell of the crowd can be overwhelming, and you won't be able to leave the Campo for at least two hours after the race. If you haven't booked a hotel room, reckon on staying up all night (for more information see ilpalio.org).

FESTIVALS

Open-air film festival Cinema in Fortezza runs from the end of June until the beginning of September. Screenings of the films, varying from slapstick American comedies and world arthouse to old Italian classics, begin at 9.45pm at the Anfiteatro della Fortezza Medicea (€7; 📞cinemanuovopendola.it). There are also a number of open-air jazz concerts (📞sienajazz.it) and wonderful operas held in different evocative settings all over Siena and the surrounding areas (📞www.chigiana.it).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Santa Maria della Scala, Palazzo Squarcialupi, Piazza Duomo 1 (Mon–Fri 10.30am–4.30pm, Sat & Sun 10.30am–6.30pm; 📞0577 280 551, 📞www.terresiena.it).

ACCOMMODATION

In summer, Siena gets ridiculously booked up, especially during the Palio; book far in advance.

★ Alma Domus Via Camporegio 37 📞0577 44 177, 📞hotelalmodomus.it. Originally a pilgrim hostel, this fourteenth-century building, reached via a stairway close to San Domenico church, offers great-value and remarkably peaceful accommodation; its en-suite doubles, triples and quads enjoy wonderful views. €82.50

★ Antica Residenza Cicogna Via delle Terme 75 📞0577 285 613, 📞anticaresidenzacicogna.it. Charming B&B on the first floor of a medieval palazzo not far north of the Campo, with seven a/c, soundproof en-suite rooms, all beautifully decorated. The breakfast is delicious, there's free computer use and wi-fi, and free tea and biscuits add to the home-from-home feel. €85

Bernini Via della Sapienza 15 📞0577 289 047, 📞albergobernini.com. Charming one-star hotel run by a friendly family; the views from the huge windows and wonderful breakfast terrace are breathtaking. Midnight curfew. Doubles with shared bathroom €80, en suite €100

★ Podere Le Vigne Via Tufi 56 📞0577 286 952, 📞poderelevigne.it. Picturesque B&B in a typical Tuscan farmhouse a 20min walk from the centre. There is lots of outdoor space to enjoy and the charming Federica also offers cooking lessons. Take bus #54 from the centre. Doubles €90

Siena Hostel Via Fiorentina 89 📞0577 169 8177, 📞sienahostel.it. A friendly and comfortable hostel that is a bit of a walk (1.5km) from the centre; take bus #10 from the train station or Piazza Gramsci, or bus #35 and #36 from Piazza Gramsci. If you're coming from Florence, ask the bus driver to let you off at "Lo Stellino". Rates include breakfast. Dorms €21, doubles €48

EATING

You can buy pizza by weight from many central hole-in-the-wall places, or gourmet supplies at De Miccoli, Via di Città 95 (daily 8am–8pm), for cheeses and cold meats.

Osteria Boccon del Prete Via di S. Pietro 17. A cellar-like little restaurant, with a vaulted ceiling, close to the Pinacoteca. Starters include classic bruschetta and crostini, primi dishes such as gnocchi with sea bream (from €8), and mains from €10 such as pork fillet with roast potatoes. Mon–Sat 12.15–3pm & 7.15–10pm.

Osteria Enoteca Sotto le Fonti Via Esterna di Fontebranda 114. This friendly osteria with a rustic, homespun feel offers Tuscan specialties such as ribollita (vegetable soup), pappardelle with wild boar (€7.50) and an array of meaty mains from €10. It's also an enoteca, with over a hundred wines, many offered by the glass. Mon–Sat 12.30–2.30pm & 7.30–10pm.

Osteria Nonna Gina Piano del Mantellini 📞0577 287 247. No-nonsense, ultra-fresh, Italian home cooking in a friendly family atmosphere with some outdoor tables. Most dishes are under €10 (it's renowned for its gnocchi). Tues–Sun 12.30–2.30pm & 7.30–10.30pm..

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The main action of an evening is the passeggiata from Piazza Matteotti along Banchi di Sopra to the Campo – and there's not much in the way of nightlife after that, though there are a handful of bars scattered over town.

Bar Porrione Via del Porrione 14. Just an ordinary bar off the Campo, but it's popular with a studenty crowd at weekends thanks to its late opening hours. Tues–Sun 9am–3am.

Caffè del Corso Banchi di Sopra 25 📞0577 226 656. This diminutive bar serves up a decent aperitivo with snacks from 7 to 9pm, and gets lively later on with students thanks to its loud music and cheap cocktails (€3.50). It has a few tables on the tiny alley outside too. Tues–Sun 8am–3am.

SAN GIMIGNANO

One of the best-known villages in Tuscany, SAN GIMIGNANO's skyline of towers, framed against the classic rolling hills of the Tuscan countryside, has justifiably caught the tourist imagination, and in high season can get uncomfortably busy. The little hill town was a force to be reckoned with in the Middle Ages: it had a large population of fifteen thousand but was hit hard by the Black Death and never quite recovered – today there's half that number.

You can walk across the town in fifteen minutes and around the walls in an hour. The main entrance gate, facing the bus terminal on the south side of town, is Porta San Giovanni, from where Via San Giovanni leads to the town's interlocking main squares, Piazza della Cisterna and Piazza del Duomo. The more austere Piazza Duomo, off to the left, is flanked by the Collegiata (April–Oct Mon–Fri 10am–7.30pm, Sat 10am–5.30pm, Sun 12.30–7.30pm; Jan 1–14, Feb, March, Nov 1–14 & Dec Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 12.30–5pm; Jan 15–31, March 12 & Nov 15–30 closed except for services; €4), frescoed with Old and New Testament scenes. The Palazzo Comunale next door (daily: March 10am–5.30pm; April–Oct 9.30am–7pm; Nov–Feb 11am–5.30pm; €6) gives you the chance to climb the 218 steps of the Torre Grossa, the town's highest surviving tower. North from Piazza Duomo, Via San Matteo is one of the grandest and best preserved of the city streets, with quiet alleyways running down to the walls. The small Wine Museum (call ☎0577 941 267 for details), at the Parco della Rocca, is free to enter, and you can enjoy a glass of wine at the adjoining bar while admiring some of the most spectacular views the town has to offer.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus From Siena catch one of the direct buses (#130) from Via F. Tozzi (10 daily; 1hr 5min–1hr 20min), or take a bus to Poggibonsi station (hourly; 45min) and change there for the bus to San Gimignano. Buses from Florence to Poggibonsi run at least hourly (50min).

By train From Siena take a train to Poggibonsi (40min) and change there for the 20min bus trip (every 15–30min) up to San Gimignano.

INFORMATION

Tourist office On the south side of Piazza del Duomo (daily: March–Oct 10am–1pm & 3–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎0577 940 008, www.sangimignano.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Boschetto di Pietma Località Santa Lucia 38/c ☎0577 907 134, www.boschettopietma.it. The nearest campsite, with camping pitches and chalets as well as a bar, restaurant and pool. Closed Nov to mid-March. Per person €11, plus per pitch €9.

Foresteria del Monastero S Girolamo Via Folgore 30 ☎0577 940 573, www.monasterosangiolamo.it. Run by Benedictine monks, this basic but excellent budget choice in a quiet monastery has comfortable rooms. Booking essential. €60

Le Vecchie Mura 15 Via Piandornella 15 ☎0577 940 270, www.vecchiemura.it. The most fabulous restaurant in San Gimignano also rents out private rooms with a/c, and dinner on your doorstep. Doubles €65

EATING AND DRINKING

Take a picnic up to the Parco Della Rocca or the Parco di Montestaffoli and enjoy the views of the village and surrounding countryside.

Di Vinorum Piazza Cisterna 30/Via degli Innocenti 5. Despite the inauspicious entrance on the piazza, this is a lovely spot for an early evening drink. The bar is built into the town wall and has a cool stone interior. The outdoor tables have fantastic views. Wine from €3. Bruschetta from €5. Daily 11am–9pm, reduced opening times in winter.

Il Trovatore Viale dei Fossi 17. A cheerful, no-frills place just outside the walls, serving forty types of deliciously crispy pizzas cooked in a wood-fired oven (€5.50–9.50). Daily except Wed 6.30pm–midnight.

Le Vecchie Mura Via Piandornella 15 ☎0577 940 270, www.vecchiemura.it. Romantic restaurant with wonderful views of the Tuscan hillside from its well-kept terrace. Booking essential. Primi €9, secondi €13. Mon & Wed–Sun 6–10pm.

PERUGIA

PERUGIA, the Umbrian capital perched on a hill, is an attractive medieval university town dominated by young people of every nationality, many at the Università per Stranieri (Foreigners' University). It's known for its nightlife, people-watching, and chocolate – some of Italy's most famous chocolate, Perugini, is made here.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Perugia hinges on a single street, Corso Vannucci, a broad pedestrian thoroughfare. At the far end, the austere Piazza Quattro Novembre is backed by the plain-faced Duomo San Lorenzo (Mon–Sat 7.30am–12.30pm & 3.30–6.45pm, Sun 8am–1pm & 4–7pm; free) and is interrupted by the thirteenth-century Fontana Maggiore. The lavishly decorated Collegio di Cambio (Mon–Sat 9am–12.30pm & 2.30–5.30pm, Sun 9am–1pm; Nov–March closed Mon pm; €4.50) sits at Corso Vannucci 25. This is the town's medieval money exchange, frescoed by the famous architect Perugino and said to be the most beautiful bank in the world. The Palazzo dei Priori houses the Galleria Nazionale dell'Umbria (daily 8.30am–7.30pm; €6.50), one of central Italy's best galleries, whose collection includes statues by Cambio, frescoes by Bonfigli and works by Perugino. Via dei Priori is a lovely, winding, cobbled street that bends gently through the rambling white buildings. This leads down to Agostino di Duccio's colourful Oratorio di San Bernardino, whose richly embellished facade is by far the best piece of sculpture in the city. On the southern side of town, along Corso Cavour, the cloisters of the large church of San Domenico hold the Museo Archeologico Nazionale dell'Umbria (Tues–Sun 10am–7.30pm; €4), home of one of the most extensive Etruscan collections around.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By air Arriving by air (Ryanair flies from the UK), you'll land at the Aeroporto "San Francesco d'Assisi" (☎ 075 592 141, ✉ airport.umbria.it), 12km east of the centre. ACAP-SULGA shuttles meet incoming flights and run to Piazza Italia (2–4 daily; 15min; €8), with intermediate stops, including Perugia's train station; these should be booked in advance by phone (☎ 075 500 9641).

By train Trains arrive well away from the centre of Perugia on Piazza Vittorio Veneto; buses go from outside the station to Piazza Italia or Piazza Matteotti (20min).

Destinations Assisi (every 30min–1hr; 20–30min); Florence (every 2hr; 2hr); Rome (hourly; 2–3hr).

By bus Buses arrive at Pian di Massiano; take the Minimetrol (see below) up to Piazza Italia.

Destinations Florence (1 daily; 2hr–2hr 30min); Rome (5 daily; 2hr 30min); Rome Fiumicino airport (2–4 daily; 3hr 45min); Siena (3–7 daily; 1hr 30min).

By minimetrol The light-rail system takes people up and down the hill of Perugia in 12min (daily; every 2–3min; Mon–Sat 7am–9.20pm, Sun 9am–8.45pm, €1.50).

THE UMBRIA JAZZ FESTIVAL

One of the most prestigious jazz events in Europe, the Umbria Jazz Festival (☎ umbriajazz.com) has featured stars such as Dizzy Gillespie and Keith Jarrett. It takes place in July, and while the main events tend to be in Perugia, there are offshoots – performances and workshops that often make use of stunning churches, courts and open-air spaces – in towns across the region.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Matteotti 18 (daily 9am–7pm; ☎ 075 573 6458, ✉ turismo.comune.perugia.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Centro Internazionale di Accoglienza per la Gioventù Via Bontempi 13 ☎ 075 572 2880, ✉ ostello.perugia.it. The town's original hostel is perfectly situated in a historic palazzo just 2min from the Duomo. It has frescoed common areas and a panoramic terrace that some of the rooms share. Dorms €17

★ Hotel Rosalba Piazza del Circo 7 ☎ 075 572 8285, ✉ hotelrosalba.com. Standing alone and impossible to miss with its pink facade, this friendly place offers fresh rooms equipped with Sky TV, kettle and tea in a quiet but central location. Doubles €75

Little Italy Hostel Via della Nespola 1 ☎ 075 966 1997, ✉ littleitalyhostel.it. A fine, modern "design" hostel housed in an ancient church, with a bright dorm room for twelve (in three-tier bunks), and a smaller room for eight (with four two-tier bunks) that costs an extra €2. Free, light breakfast. Check-in is 2–6pm. Dorms €18, doubles €70

Ostello AIG Mario Spagnoli Via Cortonese 4, Località Pian di Massiano ☎ 075 501 1366, ✉ hihostels.com. Down near the main station, this hostel has 186 beds in 33 four- and six-bed dorms. It has its own restaurant, and breakfast is included. Dorms €14, singles €27, doubles €31

EATING

Being a student city, there are plenty of cheap cafés and takeaways. Co-op supermarket is on Piazza Matteotti 19, while the market on Piazza Circo (daily 8am–1pm) sells plenty of fresh produce.

Al Mangiar Bene Via della Luna 21 ☎ 075 573 1047, ✉ almangiarbene.it. This lovely, brick-vaulted space is a rare find: all organic, with produce sourced from local farms. Pasta dishes start from €6 (with pizzas in the evening only from just €5). Tues–Sat 12.30–2.45pm & 7.30–11.45pm, Mon & Sun 7.30–11.45pm.

Civico 25 Via della Viola 25 ☎ 075 571 6376, ✉ civico25.com. Wine bar with food close to the Università degli Stranieri, great for a glass of wine with a bruschetta of fava beans, chickpeas or chicken-liver pâté, or for a full meal. Expect to pay around €30 for a full meal. Mon–Sat 7pm–2am.

Dal Mi'Cocco Corso Garibaldi 12 ☎ 075 573 2511. They keep it beautifully simple at this local favourite. The four-course meal costs €13 and the portions are large and hearty. It's best to book. No credit cards. Tues–Sun 1–3pm & 8–10.30pm.

Mediterranea Piazza Piccinino 11 ☎ 075 572 4021. Simple and tasteful pizzeria with a small wood-fired oven and a couple of brick-vaulted rooms, a few steps beyond the entrance to the Pozzo Etrusco. It has over 25 varieties (€6). Daily 12.30–2.30pm & 7.30–11pm.

PERUGIA FESTIVALS

As well as its jazz festival, Perugia has a stream of eclectic events throughout the year. Around September there's a chocolate festival (eurochocolate.com) that lasts for ten days, while the Christmas market is splendid in its scale and opulence.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

La Terrazza Via Matteotti 18a. Outdoor bar with sweeping views over the Umbrian countryside. Cocktails around €6. Open late May–Sept. Daily 11am–2am.

Punto di Vista Viale dell'Indipendenza 2. Extremely popular bar with beautiful views of the rolling countryside and snowcapped peaks in the distance. Beer €4. Daily 5.30pm–2.30am; closed in winter.

Velvet Fashion Café Viale Roma 20 ☎ 075 572 1321. Perugia's most central club. Offers smart dining, drinking and occasional live music. Daily 9pm until late; closed Mon–Wed in winter and all summer.

ASSISI

ASSISI is Umbria's best-known town thanks to St Francis, Italy's premier saint and founder of the Franciscan order. It has a medieval hill-town charm and is easy to navigate around in just a few hours.

The Basilica di San Francesco, now restored to its former glory after a devastating earthquake in 1997, is at the end of Via San Francesco (Lower Church Mon–Sat 6am–7pm; Nov–March closes 5.45pm; Upper Church Mon–Sat 8.30am–7pm; Nov–March closes 6pm; free). It houses one of the most overwhelming collections of art outside a gallery anywhere in the world. St Francis lies under the floor of the Lower Church, in a crypt only brought to light in 1818. The walls have been lavishly frescoed by artists such as Cimabue and Giotto, and the stained-glass windows cast a dim light that enhances the magical atmosphere. The Upper Church, built to a light and airy Gothic plan, is richly decorated too, with dazzling frescoes about the life of St Francis. A short trek up the steep Via di San Rufino leads to the thirteenth-century Duomo (daily: April–July, Sept & Oct 7am–12.30pm & 2.30–7pm; Aug 7am–7pm; Nov–March 7am–1pm &

2.30–6pm), which holds the font used to baptize St Francis.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Bus #C connects the station, 5km southwest of the centre, with Piazza Matteotti every 30min.

Tourist office Piazza del Comune (April–Oct Mon–Fri 8am–2pm & 3–6/6.30pm, Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–6pm; Nov–March Mon–Fri 8am–2pm & 3–6pm, Sat & Sun 9.30am–5pm; ☎ 075 81 381, visit-assisi.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Ostello della Pace Via di Valecchie 4 ☎ 075 816 767, assisihotel.com. In a quiet setting a 10min walk downhill from Piazza dell'Unità d'Italia, this hostel occupies an old farmhouse, and has a garden, lots of facilities and welcoming staff. Ask to be dropped at "Villa Guardì" if you're arriving by bus from the station. Dorms €18, doubles €50

EATING

Buca di San Francesco Via Eugenio Brizzi 1 ☎ 075 812 204. The Buca has been around for ever, and is generally a reliable choice for a decent meal, with typical primi (from €9) that might include handmade spaghetti with roast mushroom, beef and herbs, and mains (from €12) such as lamb cooked with wild herbs. Tues–Sun 12.30–2.30pm & 8–10.30pm.

Pallotta Via Volta Piana 2 ☎ 075 812 649. An unpretentious and welcoming trattoria with a lovely wood-beamed dining room. Primi (€5–9) include stringozzi alla Pallotta, handmade pasta (without egg) served with mushroom, chilli flakes and a generous swirl of local olive oil. Secondi (€6–15) might include suckling pig, lamb chops or braised pigeon. Daily set three-course menu with wine €25 (vegetarian menu €24). Daily except Tues noon–3pm & 7–10.30pm.

SPOLETO

SPOLETO is a tiny hill-top town adorned with small and winding cobbled streets, beautiful Romanesque churches and the remains of an ancient amphitheatre.

Piazza della Libertà is where you will find the Museo Archeologico (daily 8.30am–7.30pm; €4), and where you can also glimpse the ancient arena. From here it's a short walk to the elegant Duomo (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–12.30pm & 3.30–7pm; Nov–March closes 5.30pm; free). The apse frescoes inside were painted by the fifteenth-century Florentine artist Fra Lippo Lippi – he died shortly after their completion amid rumours that he was poisoned for seducing the daughter of a local noble family. The Ponte delle Torri, a photo-favourite, is an astonishing piece of medieval engineering, best seen as part of a circular walk (allow around 5hr 30min) around the base of the Rocca. Piazza del Mercato and its surrounding streets are a great place to head for a spot of lunch.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is just northwest of the Lower Town; shuttle buses (€1.30 or €2 on board; buy tickets from the station bar) to the centre depart from outside the station. Destinations Florence (1 daily; 2hr 50min); Rome (14 daily; 1hr 20min–1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza della Libertà 7 (April–Oct Mon–Sat 9am–1.30pm & 2–7pm, Sun 9am–1pm & 3–5.30pm; Nov–March Mon–Sat 9am–1.30pm & 2.30–6.15pm, Sun 9.30am–1pm & 3–5pm; ☎0743 218 620, 🌐www.comunespoletto.gov.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Monteluco ☎0743 220 358, 🌐campeggiomonteluco.com. An attractively small pastoral site behind San Pietro, with several bungalows, 35 camping places and a bar/pizzeria, but quite an uphill trek to the Upper Town. April–Sept. Pitches €12

Gattapone Via del Ponte 6 ☎0743 223 447, 🌐hotelgattapone.it. A welcoming and beautifully styled family-run hotel with lovely views from most rooms, which are spectacularly situated above the gorge and almost alongside the Ponte delle Torri. €110

EATING

Canasta Piazza della Libertà 14 🌐canastaspoleto.it. Historic café on the main square, which keeps the townspeople happy with tasty savouries and tempting pastries. Set three-course menus at €18 and €25. A great place to start the day. Daily except Wed, all day.

La Lanterna Via della Trattoria 6. A convivial, central place and the best of the town's mid-price trattorias, on a side street left off the hill between Piazza della Libertà and Piazza Fontana. It serves huge helpings of delicious pasta from €7 and grilled meats and other mains from €8. Daily except Wed 12.30–3pm & 7.30–10.30pm.

URBINO

URBINO boasted one of the most prestigious courts in Europe in the fifteenth century, and today the highlight of a visit to this hill-top town is the grand

FERRIES FROM ANCONA

The main arrival and departure port on Italy's eastern coast is the transit town of Ancona, with ferries taking you to Croatia, Albania, Greece and Montenegro. Ferries leave from Ancona's Stazione Marittima, a couple of kilometres north of the train station (bus #1 or #4), close to the centre of town. For the best at-a-glance idea of timetables and routes, visit 🌐doricaportservices.it. Each of the main ferry lines has a ticket office (closed 1–3pm) and you can also buy tickets from the agencies all around the port, but booking online gets you the cheapest deals. Always aim to arrive at the Stazione Marittima two hours before departure (3hr if you're taking a camper van).

Palazzo Ducale and its impressive collection of Renaissance paintings.

The Palazzo Ducale was built by the extravagant Federico da Montefeltro, the fifteenth-century Duke of Urbino. It is now home to the excellent Galleria Nazionale delle Marche (Mon 8.30am–2pm, Tues–Sun 8.30am–7.15pm; €6.50). Among the paintings in the Appartamento del Duca is Piero della Francesca's strange Flagellation and the portrait of The Mute by Raphael, who was born in Urbino. The most interesting of the Palazzo's rooms is Federico's Studiolo, a triumph of illusory perspective.

Buzzy Piazza della Repubblica is a great place for lunch or a drink.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Urbino has no train station, and its bus station is at Borgo Mercatale at the foot of the Palazzo Ducale. The easiest way to reach the city is by train to Fano or Pesaro and then by bus from there.

Destinations Fano (at least hourly; 1hr 10min); Pesaro (every 30min; 45min–1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Duca Federico 35 opposite the Palazzo Ducale (Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 2.30–5.30pm, Sun 9am–1pm; ☎0722 2613, 🌐www.turismo.pesarourbino.it). There's a small office at Borgo Mercatale by the entrance to the ramp and lift (daily 7am–9pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Il Cortegiano Via Veterani 1 ☎340 844 1181, ilcortegiano.it. Urbino's best-situated B&B, just across from the Palazzo Ducale above a bar-restaurant, has six large basic rooms, some with shared bathrooms. Free wi-fi and a ten percent discount in the restaurant for guests. €60

Raffaello Via Santa Margherita 40 ☎0722 4896, albergoraffaello.com. In a typical red-brick, shuttered old-town building, this hotel has fourteen simply furnished rooms with panoramic views over the pantiled roofs of Urbino. Changing art exhibitions in the communal areas and free wi-fi. €65

EATING AND DRINKING

Angolo Divino Via Sant'Andrea 14 ☎0722 327 559. Geranium-covered on the outside, and atmospheric within, this osteria is located in a pink palazzo near the Botanical Gardens. It's well known for regional delicacies, including home-made pasta (primi around €10), and there are some good vegetarian choices. Tues–Sun noon–3pm & 7pm–midnight.

Da Franco Via del Poggio 1 ☎0722 2492. Studenty lunchtime hangout (self-service) with primi such as home-made strozzapreti pasta – “strangled priests” – with vegetables, and secondi including rabbit cooked with fennel. A meal will set you back around €20 including wine. Mon–Sat noon–2.30pm.

Southern Italy

The Italian south (mezzogiorno) offers a decidedly different experience from that of the north; indeed, few countries are more tangibly divided into two distinct, often antagonistic, regions. Naples is the obvious focus of the south, an utterly compelling city just a couple of hours south of Rome. In the Bay of Naples, highlights are the resort of Sorrento and the island of Capri, crawling with tourists but beautiful enough to be worth your time, while the ancient sites of Pompeii and Herculaneum are Italy's best-preserved Roman remains. South of Naples, the Amalfi Coast is a contender for Europe's most dramatic stretch of coastline. In the far south, Matera, jewel of the Basilicata region, harbours ancient cave dwellings dug into a steep ravine. Puglia – the long strip of land that makes up the “heel” of Italy – boasts the Baroque wonders of Lecce, and is also useful for ferries to Greece and Croatia.

NAPLES

Wherever else you travel south of Rome, the chances are that you'll wind up in NAPLES (Napoli). It's the kind of city people visit with preconceptions, and it rarely disappoints: it is dirty and overbearing; it is crime-ridden; and it is most definitely like nowhere else in Italy – something the inhabitants will be keener than anyone to tell you. One thing, though, is certain: a couple of days here and you're likely to be as staunch a defender of the place as its most devoted inhabitants.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The area between the vast and busy Piazza Garibaldi, the city's transport hub, and Via Toledo, the main street a kilometre or so west, makes up the old part of the city – the Centro Storico, whose buildings rise high on either side of the narrow, crowded streets. South of here is the busy port, and, to the northwest, Naples' finest museums.

The Duomo

From Piazza Garibaldi, Via dei Tribunali cuts through to Via Duomo, where you'll find the tucked-away Duomo (Mon–Sat 8.30am–1.30pm & 2.30–8pm, Sun 8.30am–1.30pm & 4.30–7.30pm; free), a Gothic building from the early thirteenth century dedicated to San Gennaro, the patron saint of the city, martyred in 305 AD. Two phials of his blood miraculously liquefy three times a year – on the first Saturday in May, on September 19 and on December 16. If the blood refuses to liquefy, disaster is supposed to befall the city. The first chapel on the right as you walk into the cathedral holds the precious phials, as well as Gennaro's skull.

MADRE

A short walk up Via Duomo, Naples' superb modern art museum, MADRE, at Via Settembrini 79 (Mon, Wed–Fri 10am–7.30pm, Sun 10am–8pm; €7; madrenapoli.it), shows off works by some big-name contemporary artists. The most prominent of these is by Francesco Clemente, a New York-based Neapolitan artist who created the huge, vibrant mural of Naples. The museum also holds works by the likes of Jeff Koons and Anish Kapoor, as well as a massive anchor – symbolizing the city’s maritime roots – by Jannis Kounellis.

NAPLES CENTRO STORICO

Spaccanapoli and around

Busy Via dei Tribunali and its parallel, Via San Biagio dei Librai – commonly known as Spaccanapoli – make up the heart of the old city and Naples' busiest and architecturally richest quarter. A maelstrom of hurrying pedestrians, revving cars and buzzing scooters, this is the best place to get a sense of the city and its inhabitants. At 253 Via dei Tribunali is the Cappella Pio Monte della

Misericordia (Thurs–Tues 9am–2.30pm; €7; piomontedellamisericordia.it), an unassuming jewel of a church thanks to its breathtaking altarpiece: Caravaggio's Seven Works of Mercy, which elegantly juxtaposes warm acts of charity with ribald picaresque street life, reflecting something of Naples's own appeal. The picture gallery is well worth a visit, containing works by Francesco de Mura, Luca Giordano and others.

Gesù Nuovo and Santa Chiara

West up Spaccanapoli is the Gesù Nuovo church, distinctive for its lava-stone facade, prickled with pyramids that give it an impregnable, prison-like air. Facing it, the church of Santa Chiara is quite different, a Provençal-Gothic structure built in 1328 (and rebuilt after World War II). The attached cloister (Mon–Sat 9.30am–5.30pm, Sun 10am–2.30pm; €6; monasterodisantachiara.com), covered with colourful majolica tiles depicting bucolic scenes, is one of the gems of the city.

Castel Nuovo

A ten-minute walk south of Santa Chiara, Piazza del Municipio is a busy traffic junction that stretches down to the waterfront, dominated by the brooding hulk of the Castel Nuovo (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm; €6). It was built in 1282 by the Angevins and later the royal residence of the Aragon kings. It's the views over the port from the upper terrace that steal the show – along with the Sala dei Baroni, accessed from the courtyard, a huge room with magnificent umbrella-ribbed vaults that were once covered in frescoes by Giotto.

Palazzo Reale and around

Some 500m west of the castle, Piazza del Plebiscito, with its impressive sweep of columns, was modelled on Bernini's Piazza San Pietro in Rome. On one side of the square, the dignified Palazzo Reale (daily except Wed 9am–8pm; €4; palazzorealenapoli.it) was built in 1602 to accommodate a visit by Philip III of Spain. Upstairs, the first-floor rooms are sumptuously decorated with gilded furniture, trompe-l'oeil ceilings, and seventeenth- and eighteenth-century paintings.

Just beyond the castle, the opulent Teatro San Carlo is the largest opera house in Italy, and one of the most distinguished in the world (guided tours Mon–Sat hourly 10.30am–12.30pm & 2.30–4.30pm; Sun 10.30am, 11.30am & 12.30pm; €6; teatrosancarlo.it).

Museo Archeologico Nazionale

Arrowing north from the Piazza del Plebiscito, Via Toledo leads to the Museo Archeologico Nazionale (Wed–Mon 9am–7.30pm; €8), home to the best of the finds from the nearby Roman sites of Pompeii (see p.664) and Herculaneum (see p.664). The ground floor concentrates on sculpture, the mezzanine houses the museum's collection of mosaics, while upstairs, wall paintings from the villas of Pompeii and Herculaneum are the museum's other major draw. Don't miss the "secret" room of erotic Roman pictures and sculptures, once thought to be a threat to public morality.

Museo Nazionale di Capodimonte

The city's second major museum, the Museo Nazionale di Capodimonte (Thurs–Tues 8.30am–7.30pm; €7.50; €6.50 after 2pm; museocapodimonte.beniculturali.it) is a bus ride away from town (#R4 from Via Toledo or #178 from the Museo Archeologico). The former residence of the Bourbon King Charles III, built in 1738, it has a huge and superb collection of Renaissance and Flemish paintings, including a couple of Brueghels, canvases by Perugino and Pinturicchio, an elegant Madonna and Child with Angels by Botticelli, and Lippi's soft, sensitive Annunciation.

Vomero

Vomero, the district topping the hill immediately above the old city, can be reached by funicular from Corso Vittorio Emanuele, west of the Gesù Nuovo, or Piazza Augusteo near the Teatro San Carlo. A five-minute stroll from the station, the star-shaped fortress of Castel Sant'Elmo (Wed–Mon 8.30am–7.30pm;

17 €5) was built in the fourteenth century and hosts occasional exhibitions. Occupying Naples' highest point, it has lovely views which are only topped by those from the terraced gardens of the Certosa e Museo di San Martino (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 8.30am–7.30pm; €6), a former Carthusian monastery. Now a museum, it contains seventeenth- and eighteenth-century Neapolitan painting and sculpture.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Capodichino airport (✈ aeroporto.inapoli.it) is about 7km north of the centre. The red-and-white official airport bus Alibus (every 20min; €3) connects the airport to Piazza Garibaldi (20min) and Piazza Municipio (30min).

By train Trains arrive at Piazza Garibaldi, the main hub of all transport services.

Destinations Lecce (5 daily; 5hr 30min); Palermo (3 daily; 9hr 30min–11hr); Pompeii (from Stazione Circumvesuviana; every 30min; 40min); Rome (hourly; 1hr 10min–2hr 40min); Siracusa (3 daily; 8hr 30min–10hr 30min); Sorrento (from Stazione Circumvesuviana; every 30min; 1hr 5min; reach Amalfi by bus or ferry from Sorrento).

By bus Most long-distance, inter-regional buses and local buses use Corso Meridionale behind the train station by Piazza Garibaldi.

Destinations Assisi (2 daily; 5hr); Lecce (3 daily; 5hr 30min); Matera (2 daily; 4hr); Perugia (2 daily; 4hr 30min).

By ferry Ferries arrive at Calata Porta di Massa, and are connected with Molo Beverello by free shuttle bus. Hydrofoils dock at Molo Beverello, a short bus ride or a 15min walk from the centre.

Ferry destinations Capri (10 daily; 1hr 20min); Palermo (2 daily; 8hr–10hr 30min).

Hydrofoil destinations Capri (every 30min–1hr; 40min); Sorrento (6 daily; 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Information desk at Capodichino airport (daily 8am–11pm), and two offices in the centre of the city: Piazza del Gesù Nuovo (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 9am–1pm; ☎ 081 551 2701); and Via S. Carlo 9, on the south side of Galleria Umberto I across from Teatro San Carlo (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 9am–1pm; ☎ 081 402 394).

Discount cards If you are around for more than a day, invest in the Artecard (from €21; sold in the train station, museums and online at ☎ www.campaniaartecard.it), which is valid on various combinations of city transport, along with free and discounted museum entrance.

GETTING AROUND

Tickets TIC tickets (issued by UnicoCampania; ☎ unicocampania.it) are valid on all city buses, metro lines and funiculars as well as the Circumvesuviana and Cumana lines (within Naples), and can be bought in advance from tabacchi, newsstands or metro stations. Fares cost a flat €1.50 (valid 90min), or you can buy an all-day ticket (€4.50) or a weekly ticket (€15.80).

By bus and metro City buses will get you almost everywhere, although they are crowded and slow. The bus system is supplemented by the metropolitana, which is more useful for longer hops across the city. Two urban lines are handy for visitors, each snaking across the city centre from Piazza Garibaldi. The older Line 2 has three stops between Garibaldi and Mergellina before continuing on to Pozzuoli Solfatara. The newer Line 1 has useful stops at Municipio (for the harbour), Toledo, Museo, Dante and Vanvitelli (for Vomero).

By funicular Three funiculars scale the hill of the Vomero every 10–15min: the Funicolare di Chiaia (daily 6.30am–12.30am), from Piazza Amedeo; the Funicolare Centrale (daily 6.30am–12.30am), from the Augusteo station, just off the bottom end of Via Toledo; and the Funicolare di Montesanto (daily 7am–10pm), from the station on Piazza Montesanto. A fourth, the Funicolare di Mergellina, runs up the hill above Mergellina from Via Mergellina (daily 7am–10pm).

EATING

Colourful produce markets are found all over the centre; one of the best (daily 8am–1pm) takes up the streets around Via Pignasecca, a few streets west of the Gesù Nuovo.

Da Michele Via Cesare Sersale 1–3 ☎ damichele.net. Historic pizzeria serving some of Naples' best pizzas: marinara, margherita or double margherita are the sole choices here, from €4. Arrive early as the queues can get epic (get a ticket from the cash desk), or order to take away if you can't wait. Mon–Sat 10.30am–11pm.

★ Di Matteo Via Tribunali 94. A must for a truly exceptional pizza (€3–6). Order a frittatina (€1) as you wait, a heavenly bundle of pasta, mince, peas, cheese and black pepper, deep-fried. Mon–Sat 7pm–midnight.

Gay Odin Via Benedetto Croce 61 (plus other branches around the city) ☎ gay-odin.it. This well-established chocolate shop offers a selection of superb ice creams whose many flavours were inspired by the 300-plus inventive chocolate fillings. About €1.80 for a cup or cone. Mon–Thurs 9am–8.30pm, Fri & Sat 9am–11.30pm, Sun 10am–8.30pm.

La Masardona Via Giulio Cesare Capaccio 27. Truly local street-food joint a few minutes from the train station specializing in authentic fried pizzas stuffed with tomatoes, pork scratchings and provola and ricotta cheese (€2); watch owner Enzo at work as he expertly kneads while his wife Anna fries, and enjoy the exquisite result. Tues, Wed, Fri & Sun 7am–3pm, Sat 6.30am–10pm.

Trattoria La Campagnola Via dei Tribunali 47. Small, busy, and serving excellent, well-priced Neapolitan food, with great spaghetti con polpette (spaghetti with meatballs; €10) and hearty mains like salsiccia (sausage), cotoletta (breaded cutlet) and scaloppina (veal escalope). Mon & Sun 7.30–11pm, Wed–Sat noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Most clubs close in July and August and move to the beach; the Neapolitans who remain congregate for a beer in the studenty bars around Piazza Bellini and Piazza del Gesù Nuovo.

Bourbon Street Via Bellini 52/53 ☎ 338 825 3756, bourbonstreetjazzclub.com. A premier venue for Italian and international jazz acts, bringing a slice of New Orleans to the heart of Naples' centro storico. Tues–Sun 8pm–3am.

Intra Moenia Piazza Bellini 70 ☎ intramoenia.it. This café-cum-bar located in one of the city's most popular nightlife spots is dotted with knick-knacks, books and trinkets for sale, with Thursday jazz, fusion and bossanova sessions at 10pm. Cocktails (€7), beer and wine (both €4). Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–2am, Fri & Sat until 3am.

Kestè Largo San Giovanni Maggiore Pignatelli 26–27 ☎ keste.it. Fun little bar with tables spilling onto the square attracting a laidback crowd. DJs liven the scene on Wednesday and Fridays plus there are weekly jazz, reggae and rock sessions. Aperitivo at 6.30pm; cocktails €5. Tues–Sun 6.30pm–2.30am.

THE BAY OF NAPLES

Of the islands that dot the bay, Capri is the best place to visit if you're here for a short time. Sorrento, the brooding presence of Vesuvius and the incomparable Roman sites of Herculaneum and Pompeii are further draws.

17 Vesuvius

Its most infamous eruption, in 79 AD, buried the towns and inhabitants of Pompeii and Herculaneum, and VESUVIUS has long dominated the lives of those who live on the Bay of Naples. It's still an active volcano – the only one on mainland Europe – and there have been hundreds of (mostly minor) eruptions over the years, the last in 1944 when 28 people died. Considered to be one of the world's most dangerous volcanoes, a future eruption would lead to the evacuation of nearly one million inhabitants who populate the surrounding area.

The walk up to the crater from the bus stop takes about half an hour on marked-out paths. At the top (admission €10), the crater is a deep, wide, jagged ashtray of red rock emitting the odd plume of smoke. You can walk about halfway round (700m) while soaking in breathtaking sea views. See www.vesuviopark.it for information on trails.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train and bus Catch the Circumvesuviana train to either Pompeii or Ercolano Scavi. EAVBus buses leave from Pompeii's main station and Piazza Anfiteatro (roughly every 2hr; 8am–3.30pm; just over 1hr, last bus back 4.40pm; €10 return). Busvia del Vesuvio runs 4WD truck excursions from Pompeii-Villa dei Misteri station to within 600m of the summit (hourly, 9am–3pm; €22 including park admission; ☎ 340 935 2616, busviadelvesuvio.com). From Ercolano train station, buses run by Vesuvio's Express head to the car park by the crater (every 40min; 9.45am–4pm; last bus back to Ercolano at 5.30pm; €10 return; ☎ 081 739 3666, vesuvioexpress.it). There are two buses daily from Naples, starting at Piazza Piedigrotta in Mergellina (9am & 10am) and stopping in Piazza Garibaldi (Hotel Terminus; 9.25am & 10.25am), reaching the car park by the crater at about 10.30am and 11.30am, and returning at 12.30pm and 2pm; tickets cost €15 return.

Pompeii

Destroyed by Vesuvius, POMPEII (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–7.30pm, last entry 6pm; Nov–March 8.30am–5pm, last entry 3.30pm; €13; pompeiiisites.org) was, in Roman times, one of Campania's most important commercial centres. Of a total population of twenty thousand, it's thought that two thousand perished in the great eruption of 79 AD, asphyxiated by the toxic fumes of the volcanic debris, their homes buried under several metres of ash and pumice. The full horror of their death is apparent in plaster casts made from the shapes their bodies left in the volcanic ash – gruesome, writhing figures, some with their hands covering their eyes.

Seeing the site will take you half a day at least. Entering from the Pompeii-Villa dei Misteri side, you come across the Forum, a slim open space surrounded by the ruins of some of the town's most important official buildings. North of here lies a small baths complex, and beyond, the House of the Faun, its "Ave" (Welcome) mosaic outside beckoning you in to view the atrium and the copy of a tiny bronze dancing faun. A few streets southwest, the Lupanare was Pompeii's only purpose-built brothel, worth a peek for its racy wall paintings. A short walk from the Porta Ercolano is the Villa dei Misteri, the best preserved of all Pompeii's palatial houses, which contains frescoes depicting the initiation rites of a young woman into the Dionysiac Mysteries, an orgiastic cult transplanted to Italy from Greece in the Republican era.

On the other side of the site, the Grand Theatre is still used for performances, as is the Little Theatre on its far left side. From here, it's a short walk to the Amphitheatre, one of Italy's most intact and also its oldest, dating from 80 BC.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The Circumvesuviana links Pompeii Scavi-Villa dei Misteri with Naples (35min) and Sorrento (30min).

Tourist office Via Sacra 1, just off the modern town's main square (Mon–Fri 9am–3.30pm; ☎ 081 850 7255).

Herculaneum

The town of Ercolano is the modern offshoot of the ancient site of HERCULANEUM (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–7.30pm; Nov–March 8.30am–5pm; €11; pompeiiisites.org), situated at the seaward end of Ercolano's main street. A residential town destroyed by the eruption of Vesuvius on August 2, 79 AD, it's much smaller than Pompeii, and as such is a more manageable site – less architecturally impressive, but with better-preserved buildings. Highlights include the House of the Mosaic Atrium, with its mosaic-laid courtyard, the large baths complex and the Casa del Bel Cortile, which contains a group of skeletons, poignantly lying in the pose they died in.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Ercolano is a 15min hop on the train from Naples on the Circumvesuviana line (€2.50 one-way).

Tourist office Via IV Novembre 44 (Mon–Fri 8am–4pm, Tues & Thurs 8am–5pm; ☎081 788 1243, 🌐www.comune.ercolano.na.it).

SORRENTO

Topping the rocky cliffs close to the end of its peninsula, SORRENTO's inspired location and pleasant climate have drawn travellers from all over Europe for two hundred years. Nowadays it caters mostly to the package-tour industry, but this bright, lively place retains its southern Italian roots. Accommodation and food, though not exactly cheap, are much better value than most of the other resorts along the Amalfi Coast, making it a good base from which to explore the area.

Sorrento's centre, Piazza Tasso, makes a lively focus for the evening  Passeggiata. The town isn't well provided with beaches: most people make do with the rocks and a tiny, crowded strip of sand at Marina Grande – fifteen minutes' walk or a short bus ride from Piazza Tasso.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Sorrento's train station lies about 300m east of the main Piazza Tasso. Trains depart roughly every 30min to Naples (1hr 10min), with stops in Pompeii (35min) and Ercolano (15min).

By bus The bus station – for buses to the Amalfi Coast and the airport – is just in front of the train station. Tickets on SITA buses to the Amalfi Coast are available from tabacchi and can't be bought on board (Positano €1.80; Amalfi €2.70).

By hydrofoil There are connections to Naples (6 daily; 35min; €12.30) and Capri (every 30min–1hr; 25min; €18.30).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via de Maio 35, just off Piazza Sant'Antonino (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 9am–1pm; June–Sept also Sun 9am–6pm; ☎081 807 4033, 🌐sorrentotourism.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Nube d'Argento Via del Capo 21 ☎081 878 1344, 🌐nubedargento.com. A 15min walk south from Piazza Tasso up the main road, this campsite has a pool, restaurant, minimart with basic food provisions and wonderful sea views. Closed mid-Jan to mid-March. Per person €12, plus per tent €6

Seven Via Iommella Grande 99, Sant'Agnesello ☎081 878 6758, 🌐sevenhostel.com. A 20min walk north of town or one stop north on the Circumvesuviana train. Set in a former monastery, this large modern hostel has clean and functional dorms, all with a/c, lockers, individual reading lamps and sockets; the views from the rooftop terrace with deckchairs are, quite simply, breathtaking. Dorms €23, doubles €80

Ulisse Via del Mare 22 ☎081 877 4753, 🌐ulissedeluxe.com. More of a four-star hotel than hostel, "deluxe" Ulisse has sparkling rooms, all with a/c, fridge, satellite TV and private bath; there are only two six-bed dorms (one male, one female), so book way ahead. Guests have access to the spa next door. Dorms €25, doubles €100

EATING

Da Emilia Via Marina Grande 62 🌐daemilia.it. This trattoria serves simple food in perhaps Sorrento's best location – on the waterfront at Marina Grande. Very good for pasta dishes, with half a dozen great seafood and tomato-based primi (seafood paccheri €13), and the same number of principally fish secondi. Daily noon–3pm & 6.30–10pm.

Da Gigino Via degli Archi 15. A good, no-nonsense restaurant and pizzeria, and one of the oldest spots in town, with a menu of standards, including decent pasta dishes from €8, main courses from around €10 (good saltimbocca alla romana €10) and excellent pizzas from €8. Daily noon–11.45pm.

★ Inn Bufalito Vico Fuoro I 21 🌐innbufalito.it. Warm, friendly mozzarella bar and restaurant serving great pasta dishes and inventive mains, big baskets of country breads, cheese platters, delicious antipasti misti, and excellent daily chef recommendations such as paccheri with buffalo sauce (€13). Daily noon–midnight; closed Jan & Feb.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Chaplin's Pub Corso Italia 18. True Irish pub serving pints of lager (€5), Guinness and Magners (both €6), with major sporting events shown on screen. Soak up the booze with some fish and chips (€9). Daily 11am–3am.

Fauno Piazza Tasso 13 🌐faunonotte.it. Sorrento's only club attracts tourists and locals alike with its themed nights and weekly live music shows. No entry fee, but obligatory €10 spend on drinks. Daily 11.30pm–3am; Oct–March Sat only.

17 CAPRI

Rising from the sea off the far end of the Sorrentine peninsula, the island of Capri is the most sought-after destination in the Bay of Naples. During Roman times the Emperor Tiberius retreated here to indulge in debauchery; more recently the Blue Grotto and the island's remarkable landscape have drawn tourists in their droves. Capri is a busy and expensive place, but it's easy enough to visit as a day-trip (there's no budget accommodation on the island). In July and August, however, you may prefer to give it a miss rather than fight through the crowds.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

CAPRI TOWN is a very pretty place, with winding alleyways converging on the tiny main square of Piazza Umberto. The Giardini di Augusto give tremendous views of the coast below and the towering jagged cliffs above. Opposite, take the hairpin path, Via Krupp, down to MARINA PICCOLA, a huddle of houses and restaurants around a few patches of pebble beach – pleasantly quiet out of season, though in summer it's heaving. You can also reach the ruins of Tiberius' villa, the Villa Jovis, from Capri Town (Mon & Wed–Sun: April–Oct 9am–6pm; Nov–March 10am–2pm; €2; free first Sun of the month), a steep 45-minute trek east. The site is among Capri's most exhilarating, with incredible views.

ANACAPRI, the island's other main settlement, though less picturesque, is the starting point for some worthwhile excursions: from here a chairlift (daily: March & April 9.30am–4pm; May–Oct 9.30am–5pm; Nov–Feb 9.30am–3.30pm; €7.50 one-way, €10 return) carries you up 596m Monte Solaro, the island's highest point, where there's a pricey but picturesquely sited café. The island's most famous attraction, the Blue Grotto, is an hour's trek down Via Lo Pozzo, but it's best to take a bus from the main square. At €13.50 it's a bit of a rip-off, with boatmen whisking visitors through the grotto in five minutes flat, but the intense, glowing blue of the cave is undeniably beautiful.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By ferry Ferries and hydrofoils dock at Marina Grande, from where it's a steep walk up 300 steps (20–45min) or a short funicular ride (€1.80) to Capri Town, which perches on the hill above. Buses link the main centres – Marina Grande, Capri Town, Marina Piccola and Anacapri – every 10min (€1.80, or €8.60 for a day ticket).

INFORMATION

Tourist office There are offices in Marina Grande (April–Oct Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 3–6pm, Sun 9.30am–1.30pm; Nov–March Mon–Sat 9am–3pm; ☎081 837 0634, capritourism.com); in Capri Town in the Piazzetta (April–Oct Mon–Sat 9.30am–1.30pm & 4–6.45pm, Sun 9.30am–1.30pm; Oct–April closed Sun; ☎081 837 0686); and Anacapri, at Via G. Orlandi 59 (Mon–Sat 9am–3pm; ☎081 837 1524).

EATING

Picnics are a good way to avoid paying Capri's inflated restaurant prices.

Capri Pasta Via Canale 12, Capri Town. This local delicatessen offers a great selection of home-made dishes to go; try the ravioli caprese or the melanzane parmigiana (both €6). For dessert, head to Buonocore nearby for the island's best ice cream. Mon–Sat 9am–8pm, Sun 9am–2pm.

Il Solitario Via G. Orlandi 96 trattoriailsolitario.it. A family-run restaurant where the food is excellent – they do a very generous spaghetti alle vongole with home-made pasta, and great pizzas too; the prices are moderate, and the service very friendly. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun noon–3pm & 7pm–midnight; closed two months in winter.

THE AMALFI COAST

Occupying the southern side of Sorrento's peninsula, the Amalfi Coast is one of Europe's most beautiful stretches of coast, its corniche road winding around the towering cliffs. There are no trains; buses from Sorrento and Naples take the coast road – a spectacular ride of hairpin bends with fantastic views of the undulating coastline.

Amalfi

In Byzantine times, AMALFI was an independent republic and a naval superpower, with a population of some seventy thousand. Vanquished by the Normans in 1131, it was then devastated by an earthquake in 1343. A few remnants of Amalfi's past glories

BARI AND BRINDISI TRANSPORT

Numerous ferries arrive at the busy ports of Bari and Brindisi daily, and the two cities are also served by budget airlines Ryanair and easyJet.

BARI

By plane Bari airport (☎080 580 0200, aeroportidipuglia.it) is 25km northwest of the city centre. Pugliairbus (pugliairbus.aeroportidipuglia.it) connects Bari airport with those of Brindisi and Foggia, and with Lecce, Taranto, Matera and the Gargano promontory.

By train Bari has excellent rail connections and three train stations.

Destinations Alberobello (FSE, every 30min–1hr; 1hr 30min); Brindisi (36 daily; 1hr 20min); Lecce (33 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr); Locorotondo (20 daily; 1hr 40min); Matera (FAL, 14 daily; 1hr 30min); Rome (5 daily; 4hr 40min); Taranto (20 daily; 1hr 20min).

By bus From the coastal towns north of Bari you'll arrive at Piazza Eroi del Mare; SITA buses from inland and southern towns, Miccolis buses from Rome and FAL buses from Basilicata pull up in Largo Sorrentino (behind the train station). FSE buses from Brindisi pull in at Largo Ciaia (Mon–Sat), and on Largo Sorrentino (Sun), when they substitute for the train service. Bus services to Naples (3hr) are quicker than the train.

By ferry Ferries all use the Stazione Marittima, next to the old city, which is connected with the main FS train station by bus #20.

9hr); and Greece (Igoumenitsa: 2–3 daily; 8hr 30min; Corfu: 3 weekly; 8hr; Pátra: 6 weekly, 16hr 30min).

BRINDISI

By plane Brindisi's airport (☎080 580 0200, aeroportidipuglia.it) is 7km from the city centre. There are buses from the airport direct to Lecce (€7.50), Bari (€10) and Taranto (€6.50).

By train The train station is on Piazza Crispi, at the foot of Corso Umberto, a 10- to 15min walk from the port.

Destinations Lecce (36 daily; 30min); Ostuni (25 daily; 25min); Taranto (13 daily; 1hr).

By bus Services to Rome, Florence and Pisa (Marozzi buses) and Naples (Miccolis buses) arrive at, and depart from, Viale P. Togliatti, a continuation of Viale A. Moro in the new part of town.

Destinations Florence (1 daily; 13hr); Naples (3 daily; 5hr 30min); Pisa (1 daily; 14hr); Rome (4 daily; 7hr).

By ferry Arriving by ferry from Greece leaves you at Costa Morena, a couple of kilometres southeast of town; a shuttle bus run by the port authority links this with the town centre, dropping off and picking up at the intersection of Corso Garibaldi and Lungomare Regina Margherita, in front of the maritime station, before continuing to the airport.

Destinations Cephallonia (weekly in July & Aug; 16hr); Corfu (6 weekly; from 7hr); Igoumenitsa (6 weekly; 8hr); Patras (at least 1 daily in summer; 13hr).

survive, and its narrow alleyways and tucked-away piazzas make it fun to wander through. The Duomo dominates the main piazza, its toy-town facade topped by a glazed-tiled cupola. St Andrew is buried in its crypt, though the most appealing part of the building is the cloister (daily 9am–7pm, earlier in winter; €3) – Arabic in feel, with its whitewashed arches and palms. Opposite Piazza Gioia, the Arsenale (daily 11am–6pm; €2) displays the Tavole Amalfitane – the book of maritime laws that governed the Republic, and the rest of the Mediterranean, until 1570, as well as an exhibition about the evolution of the compass, which was said to have been invented by Amalfitan Flavio Gioia in 1302. Beyond these, the focus is the busy seafront, where there's a crowded beach.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Buses stop at Piazza Flavio Gioia, on the waterfront.

Destinations Ravello (every 30min; 30min); Rome (Marozzi bus; 3 daily; 5hr 30min); Sorrento (hourly; 1hr 40min); Salerno (hourly; 55min).

By ferry Ferries and hydrofoils use Amalfi's tiny harbour, a stone's throw away from the centre.

Destinations Capri (4 daily; 1hr 30min); Positano (hourly; 30min); Salerno (hourly; 25min); Sorrento (hourly; 50min).

By train The nearest major train station is at Salerno, from where there are SITA buses and ferries to Amalfi.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via delle Repubbliche Marinare, on the seafront (Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 2.30–5.30pm; ☎089 871 107, amalfitouristoffice.it).

17 ACCOMMODATION

Almost all the hotels in Amalfi are expensive; it makes sense to base yourself in a hostel in one of the nearby towns, such as Atrani, a 10min bus ride from Amalfi.

A' Scalinatella Piazza Umberto I 5–6, Atrani ☎ 089 871 492, www.hostelscalinatella.com. SITA bus to Atrani or 1km walk from Amalfi. This budget hostel-cum-hotel has small rooms, some with private kitchen, in Atrani, as well as accommodation at a country farmhouse nearby. Dorms €30, doubles €90

Centrale Largo Piccolomini 1 ☎ 089 872 608, www.amalfihotelcentrale.it. An excellent location, with good-sized and pleasantly furnished rooms – some with a great view of Amalfi's Duomo – and breakfast served on the hotel's lovely roof terrace. €120

Sant'Andrea Salita Costanza d'Avalos 1 ☎ 089 871 145, www.albergosantandrea.it. One of the cheaper options in town, this pleasant hotel on the central square has views of the Duomo from most rooms. Doubles €90

EATING

Stock up on food provisions at the grocery Melchiorre Alimentari, just off Piazza dei Dogi; you can order freshly made sandwiches to go for €2.50.

★ Cuoppo d'Amalfi Via Supportico dei Ferrari 10, just off Piazza dei Dogi. This little joint offers a selection of dishes sizzled in front of your eyes: take your cuoppo – a paper cone filled with shrimps, squid and small local fish (€8) – to the beach with a glass of white wine (€3) and enjoy. Daily noon–midnight.

Taverna Buonvicino Largo S. Maria Maggiore 13, www.tavernabuonvicino.com. This restaurant and wine bar makes the most of its atmospheric little square – perhaps Amalfi's prettiest – offering a seasonal menu with local favourites such as squid stuffed with potatoes (€14). Book ahead. Daily noon–3pm & 6.15–10.15pm.

Ravello

The best views of the coast are inland from Amalfi, in RAVELLO. For a time an independent republic, nowadays it's little more than a large village. What makes it more than worth the thirty-minute bus ride up from Amalfi is its unrivalled location, spread across the top of one of the coast's mountains. The Duomo (daily 9am–noon & 5.30–8pm) is a bright eleventh-century church with a richly ornamented interior, but Ravello's real draws are its two villas: by the Duomo are the gardens of the Villa Rufolo (daily 9am–8pm, earlier in winter; €5), the spectacular venue for a renowned arts festival in the summer (tickets from €25, some events free; www.ravellofestival.com); a ten-minute walk south is the stunning Villa Cimbrone (daily 9am–sunset; €7), undoubtedly worth a visit for the spectacular views of the coast from the Terrace of Infinity, adorned with eighteenth-century marble busts.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via Roma 18 (daily: March–Oct 9am–6pm; Nov–Feb 9am–4pm; ☎ 089 857 096, www.ravello.time.it).

MATERA

Tucked into the instep of Italy in the Basilicata region, MATERA is one of the south's most fascinating cities. The main point of interest is its sassi, rock dwellings dug out of a ravine. During the 1950s and 1960s the residents were evicted, as the city had degenerated into a slum. New blocks were constructed outside the town to house the population and the sassi were left empty, but in 1993 the area was declared a World Heritage Site and has since been slowly repopulated with hotels, restaurants and workshops, as well as starring as the set of many a film, including The Passion of The Christ. In 2019, it will be one of Europe's Capitals of Culture.

The focus of the sassi district, a warren of rock streets, is the chiese rupestri or rock-hewn churches, of which you can visit two, the spectacular Santa Maria de Idris (daily: April–Oct 10am–7pm; Nov–March 10am–2pm; €3), with frescoes dating from the fourteenth century, and, adjacent, Santa Lucia alle Malve (daily: April–Nov 10am–7pm; Nov–March 10.30am–1.30pm; €3, or €5 for both churches). For an insight into what life was like for the sassi-dwellers, stop by the Casa Grotta, just below Madonna de Idris (daily: April–Oct 9.30am–7.30pm; Nov–March 9.30am–5.30pm; €2), or the C'era una Volta exhibition at Via Fiorentini 251 (daily 8.30am–8pm; €1.50), a sassi dwelling with its life-size inhabitants and their furniture sculpted out of the local tufa by generations of the same family. The Palombaro Lungo Cistern (daily 9am–1pm & 4–8pm; €3, includes 20min guided tour), entirely dug by hand and with a capacity of over five million litres of water, served as a vital water supply for inhabitants of the area. Musma at Via San Giacomo (Tues–Sun: April–Sept 10am–2pm & 4–8pm; Oct–March 10am–2pm; €5; 🌐 musma.it) is a museum of contemporary sculpture strikingly set in rooms gouged out of the rock.

★ TREAT YOURSELF

If you're going to splash out on one of the atmospheric cave hotels, the Antica Locanda San Martino (Via Fiorentini 71; ☎ 0835 256 600, 🌐 locandadisanimartino.it; doubles €185) is a special choice: a cool, fragrant sassi conversion with individual terraces and an underground swimming pool and sauna. The Hotel Sassi (Via S. Giovanni Vecchio 89; ☎ 0835 331 009, 🌐 hotelsassi.it; doubles €94) has gorgeous rooms with film-set-worthy views, some of which can sleep large groups on request to make it more affordable.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Matera is 60km southwest of Bari airport. Buses operated by Pugliairbus (5 daily; 1hr 15min; €5) run to Piazza Matteotti.

By bus Coaches stop at the Matera Villa Longo station, a 20min walk out of town but connected by bus.

Destinations Naples (2 daily; 4hr); Rome (3 daily; 7hr).

By train The train station, on Piazza Matteotti, is served by the private FAL rail line (🌐 ferrovieappulolucane.it) from Bari. If you're travelling from Naples, consider a train running to Ferrandina, 30km outside Matera, from where buses to Matera meet the trains.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via Ridola (Mon–Sat 9.30am–1.30pm & 3–7pm, Sun 9.30am–7pm; ☎ 0835 311 655, 🌐 aptbasilicata.it). Tours Bike Basilicata (🌐 bikebasilicata.it) rent mountain bikes (€25/day), while Walk Basilicata (🌐 walkbasilicata.it) offer hiking tours of the surrounding area.

ACCOMMODATION

★ La Dolce Vita Rione Malve 51 ☎ 0835 310 324, 🌐 ladolcevitamatera.it. This small, intimate B&B with welcoming management has two beautiful cave-like doubles, as well as two mini apartments equipped with kitchen. Rates include breakfast. Doubles €80

Le Monacelle Via Riscatto 9/10 ☎ 0835 344 097. This ex-friary is now a smart hostel, with two large dorms sleeping 13 and 16, both nicely decorated with wooden furniture. The latter has partitioned areas for privacy, while the former preserves a wonderful original stone floor. There's a 1am curfew for the dorms. Dorms €19, doubles €90

EATING AND DRINKING

L'Arturo Piazza del Sedile 15. This welcoming wine and food shop prepares great sandwiches (€3) and offers excellent cheese and meat boards. Daily 10am–3.30pm & 7pm–midnight.

La Gatta Buia Via Margherita 90/92. Popular restaurant and wine bar with tables on a pretty square offering a selection of creatively prepared local dishes which change monthly. Primi €8–10, secondi €10–17. Tues–Sun noon–3pm, 7.30pm–midnight.

Oi Mari Via Fiorentini 66 🌐 oimari.it. Authentic Neapolitan pizzas (€4–9) and a selection of regional dishes made with local ingredients to be enjoyed in a cavernous setting. Primi and secondi from €8. Daily dinner only 8–11pm, plus Fri & Sat lunch 1–3pm.

LECCE

LECCE, 40km south of Brindisi port, is often called the “Florence of the south”. These alleys may be well trodden, but a real sense of discovery still accompanies a visit to the city's vine-enveloped stonework. Carved from soft sandstone, these buildings were built for wealthy families, churchmen and merchants during the fifteenth to seventeenth centuries, and are among the most beautiful examples of the style. A short walk from the central Piazza Sant'Oronzo is Santa Croce (daily 9am–noon & 5–8pm, earlier in winter; free), the most famous of Lecce's churches, where delicate engravings soften the Baroque outline of the building. Inside, the excess continues with a riot of stars, flowers and foliage covering everything from the top of columns to chapel altarpieces. Lecce's other highlight is the Piazza del Duomo, an elegantly proportioned square surrounded by Baroque palazzi. The Duomo itself (daily 9am–noon & 4–6.30pm, earlier in winter; free) is an explosion of Baroque detail.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Lecce is 40km from Brindisi airport (🌐 brindisiairport.net); Pugliairbus (9 daily; €7.50) connects the airport to the City Terminal on Piazza Carmelo Bene in the centre of town.

By train The train station is a 15min walk south of the centre on Viale Ortonzo Quarta.

Destinations Bari (9 daily; 1hr 20min–1hr 50min); Bologna (9 daily; 7–9hr); Brindisi (every 30min–1hr; 25min); Naples via Caserta (5 daily; 6hr); Rome (3 daily; 3hr 30min); Turin (2 daily; 13hr); Milan (8 daily; 8–12hr).

By bus Buses arrive at the City Terminal, a 10min walk from the centre; some buses for southern destinations also use the train station.

Destinations Bologna (1 daily; 10hr 50min); Naples (3 daily; 5hr 20min); Palermo (1 daily; 11hr 30min); Rome (4 daily; 8hr).

INFORMATION

Infopoints also at Piazza Sant'Ortonzo (daily: June–Sept 9.30am–9pm; Oct–May 9.30am–1.30pm & 3.30–7.30pm; ☎ 0832 242 099) and in the castle, at Viale 25 July (June–Aug 9.30am–9pm, open until 11pm mid-July–end Aug; Oct–May 9am–8.30pm; closed Sept; ☎ 0832 246 517).

ACCOMMODATION

B&B Azzurreta Via Vignes 2b ☎ 0832 242 211, bblesce.it. Occupies the top floors of a sixteenth-century palazzo boasting a glorious terrace. Pleasantly furnished, with large wooden beds and airy rooms. Doubles €70

Centro Storico B&B ☎ 0832 242 727, bedandbreakfast.lecce.it. This attractive B&B occupies the same palazzo as B&B Azzurreta. Doubles without bath €60, with bath €80

Le Comari Salentine Via Duca degli Abruzzi 67 ☎ 347 426 9404, lecomarisalentine.it. This itty bitty B&B has three neatly presented rooms decked out in minimalist Ikea furniture; all are spotless, and two have a kitchenette, ideal for self-caterers. Doubles €50

EATING AND DRINKING

In the evenings, the bars that line Piazza Vittorio Emanuele II liven up, with DJs, live music, and tables spilling onto the leafy square.

Caffè Letterario Via G. Paladini 46 ☎ caffeleterario.org. This arty café-bar with mismatched furniture and board games organizes a wealth of events, including theatre performances and live music. Check the website for the full programme. Aperitivo from €5. Tues–Sat 7pm–2.30am, Sun 5pm–2am; open Mon in summer.

La Vecchia Osteria Via Dasumno 3. You will see owner and chef Totò hard at work in the kitchen rustling up excellent home-made dishes; the vegetables are mostly home-grown, the olive oil is from Totò's own olive grove and he even makes the house wine. Primi €5–12, secondi €6–12. Tues–Sun 1–3pm & 8pm–midnight.

★ Le Zie Via Costadura 19 ☎ 0832 245 178. A simple trattoria serving superb home-style cooking – try Puglia's famous orecchiette pasta (€8); more adventurous types can go for the local speciality, horsemeat in spicy sauce (€12). The home-made liqueurs are a must-try. Booking advisable. Tues–Sat 12.30–2.30pm & 8–10.30pm, Sun 12.30–2.30pm.

Sicily

Perhaps the most captivating of Italy's islands, SICILY (Sicilia) feels socially and culturally separate from the rest of Italy. Occupying a strategically vital position, the largest island in the Mediterranean has a history and outlook that have less in common with its modern parent than with its erstwhile rulers – from the Greeks who first settled the east coast, in the eighth century BC, through a bewildering array of Romans, Arabs, Normans, French and Spanish, to the Bourbons, seen off by Garibaldi in 1860. Substantial relics remain, and temples, theatres and churches are scattered across the island.

The capital, Palermo, is a bustling city with an unrivalled display of Norman art and architecture and Baroque churches. The most obvious other target is the chic eastern resort of Taormina. From here you can visit Mount Etna, or travel south to the ancient Greek centre of Siracusa. To the west, the greatest draw is the grouping of temples at Agrigento, the largest concentration of the island's Greek remains.

PALERMO

In its own wide bay beneath the limestone bulk of Monte Pellegrino, PALERMO is stupendously sited. Originally a Phoenician, then a Carthaginian, colony, this remarkable city was long considered a prize worth capturing, and under Saracen and Norman rule in the ninth to twelfth centuries it became the greatest city in Europe, famed for the wealth of its court and peerless as a centre of learning. Nowadays it's a brash, exciting city, whose uniquely varied architecture and museums are well worth exploring.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Around the Quattro Canti

The heart of the old city is the Baroque Quattro Canti crossroads, with Piazza Pretoria and its racy fountain just around the corner. In nearby Piazza Bellini, the church of La Martorana (Mon–Sat 8am–1pm & 3.30–5.30pm, 6.30pm in summer, Sun 8.30am–9.45 & noon–1pm; free) is one of the finest survivors of the medieval city. Its slim twelfth-century campanile and spectacular mosaics make a marked contrast to the adjacent squat chapel of San Cataldo (daily 9.30am–12.30pm & 3–6pm; €2.50) with its little Arab red golfball domes representing the Trinity.

Alberghiera

In the district of Alberghiera, a warren of narrow streets, you'll find the deconsecrated church of San Giovanni degli Eremiti (Via dei Benedettini; Tues–Sun 9am–6.30pm; €6), built in 1148. Established on the remains of a mosque, it's topped with five rosy domes and has late thirteenth-century cloisters. From here it's a few paces north to the Palazzo dei Normanni (generally Mon–Sat 8.15am–5.40pm, Sun 8.15am–1pm, but check www.federicosecondo.org; Fri–Mon €8.50, Tues–Thurs €7 when the Royal Apartments are closed; entrance on Piazza Indipendenza), the seat of the Sicilian regional parliament. It was originally built by the Saracens and was enlarged by the Normans, under whom it housed the most magnificent of medieval European courts. The beautiful Cappella Palatina (closed to visitors Sun 9.45am–11.15am), the private royal chapel of Roger II, is almost entirely covered in glorious twelfth-century mosaics.

The impressive Norman Cattedrale (Mon–Sat 9am–5.30pm, Sun 4.30–6pm; free) boasts a fine portal and tombs containing the remains of some of Sicily's most famous monarchs (entry €1.50).

The Museo Archeologico Regionale, Vucciria and around

The beautiful Neoclassical Teatro Massimo, Italy's largest opera house, built in honour of King Victor Emmanuel II, is on Via Roma. Regular performances take place, and the interior of the theatre can be visited as part of a guided tour (every 20min; 30min; daily 9.30am–6pm, last tour at 5.30pm; €8). Although the Museo Archeologico Regionale (www.regione.sicilia.it/beniculturali/salinas), to the northeast of the Teatro off Via Roma, has been closed for restoration for years, small sections open sporadically, while occasional temporary exhibitions offer a chance to see some of its magnificent collection of artefacts, which spans the island's Phoenician, Greek and Roman heritage.

Southeast of the Museo Archeologico is the Vucciria market area (daily from 8am), which offers glimpses of the Palermo of old. You can cut through to Sicily's Galleria Regionale (Tues–Sat 9am–6pm with sporadic Sunday openings; €8), on Via Alloro, in the rough-and-ready La Kalsa district. It's a stunning art collection, with works from the eleventh to the seventeenth centuries.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Palermo airport (☎091 702 0273, www.gesap.it) is 35km west of town. Prestia e Comandè buses meet arrivals and have stops at various city-centre locations before reaching the terminal at the train station – tell the driver where you're going and he can advise where best to get off (55min; €6.10). Trinacria Express run trains to the central station (1hr; €6.30).

Destinations Milan (several daily; 1hr 30min); Naples (2 daily; 55min); Pisa (2 daily; 1hr 25min); Rome (several daily; 1hr).

By train Trains arrive at the Stazione Centrale, at the southern end of Via Roma – bus #101 runs to the centre. Buy tickets (€1.30; valid for 1hr 30min) at tabacchi shops.

Destinations Agrigento (10 daily; 2hr 10min); Siracusa (change at Messina; 4 daily; 6hr 30min–7hr 30min); Taormina (change at Messina; 8 daily; 4hr–5hr 20min).

By bus Buses (services run by SAIS and Interbus) are quicker than trains in Sicily, taking scenic cross-country routes rather than lumbering round the coast. The bus terminal is at Piazza Cairoli right by the train station.

EATING

The city's markets are a great place to pick up a picnic; try Ballarò, between Piazza Carmine and Piazza Ballarò in the Alberghiera district. There's a GS supermarket in Piazza Marina.

Franco "U Vastiddaru" Corso Vittorio Emanuele 102, corner Piazza Marina. A local hangout with outdoor seating serving traditional panelle (fried chickpea flour; €2.50) and arancini (€2), as well as the much-loved focaccia with milza (veal spleen and lung; €2.50). Daily 8am–2am.

Il Maestro del Brodo Via Pannieri 7. Simple Sicilian home cooking with a focus on fish dishes; there's a wonderful buffet selection of antipasti (€8) to choose from. Tues–Sun 12.30–3.30pm, Fri & Sat also 8–11pm; July & Aug lunch only.

Osteria Io Bianco Via E. Amari 104 ☎ 091 251 4906. Decorated with Juventus souvenirs and religious brick-a-brac, this is one of the cheapest places to eat in town, serving traditional Palermitano food. Primi €5, secondi €7. Mon–Sat 12.30–2.30pm & 7.30–10.30pm, Sun 12.30–2.30pm.

Pasticceria Cappello Via Colonna Rotta 68 ☎ pasticceriacappello.it. A sweet lover's delight, offering all manner of cakes and tarts (from €2.50), as well as artisanal ice cream including lactose-free fruit options, to take away or to enjoy at one of the little tables outside. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 7am–9.30pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

In summer, nightlife shifts to the beach resort of Mondello, which is full of lively bars, a half-hour bus ride from Palermo (#806 from Teatro Politeama). The Vucciria district, in particular Via dei Chiavettieri, Piazza Rivoluzione and nearby Piazza Maggiore, has scores of bars that are packed most nights of the week. Piazza Marina also attracts a crowd and a half.

★ Ai Chiavettieri Via Chiavettieri 16/18. Welcoming bar with handcrafted wooden furniture, attracting a hip artsy crowd who flock here for the great cocktails (€6), selection of over sixty wines (€4), cheap chupitos (shots €2) and the friendly vibe. Main dishes (€6–13), too. Tues–Sun 7pm–3am.

Qvivi Piazza della Rivoluzione 5. A young studenty crowd spills in for the great aperitivo that kicks off as doors open at 6.30pm; drinks are knocked back on the lively square and are sometimes accompanied by live jazz, blues or rock. Tues–Sun 6.30pm–3am.

Taverna Azzurra Discesa Maccheronai 9. A rustic bar attracting a large crowd for the cheap beers (€1.50) and sangue (literally "blood", fortified wine €1) enjoyed on the street outside. Mon–Sat 9am–2pm & 5pm–4am.

TAORMINA

On Sicily's eastern coast, and dominating two grand sweeping bays, TAORMINA is the island's best-known resort. The outstanding remains of its classical theatre, with Mount Etna as an unparalleled backdrop, arrested passing travellers when Taormina was no more than a medieval hill village. Nowadays it's rather chichi, full of designer shops and pricey cafés, but still has plenty of charm. Its pedestrianized main street, Corso Umberto I, is lined with fifteenth- to nineteenth-century palazzi interspersed with intimate piazzas. The Teatro Greco (daily 9am–1hr before sunset; €8) was founded by the Greeks in the third century BC, though most of what's left is a Roman rebuilding from the first century AD, when a deep trench was dug in the orchestra to accommodate animals and gladiators. Don't miss the beautiful Villa Comunale, a charming public garden once part of a sumptuous private villa owned by Lady Florence Trevelyan. For breathtaking views of the bay and Mount Etna, climb the steps up the Via Crucis footpath to the church of the Madonna della Rocca. From here it's a steep but beautiful uphill walk to the wonderful hamlet of Castelmola, one of Italy's most beautiful villages, renowned for its almond wine (for an unusual experience sample a glass at Bar Turrisi (see p.674).

The closest beach to Taormina is at MAZZARÓ, with its much-photographed islet, Isola Bella: it's a scenic thirty-minute descent on foot, or use the cable car (every 15min; €3 each way) from Via Pirandello.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The closest airport is Catania (✈ catania-airport.com), 45km south; buses run between the airport and Taormina (11 daily; 1hr 25min; €7.90).

By bus The bus terminal is at Via Pirandello, a 5min walk from the centre.

Destinations Catania (every 30min; 1hr 10min); Palermo (via Catania; hourly; 3hr 40min).

By train The train station, Taormina-Giardini Naxos, is way below town – it's a steep 30min walk up or a short bus ride to the centre (€1.90).

Destinations Catania (15 daily; 40–50min); Palermo (via Messina; 12 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr 40min); Siracusa (6 daily; 2hr–2hr 50min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Palazzo Corvaja, Piazza Santa Caterina (Mon–Fri 8.30am–2.30pm & 3.30–7pm; ☎ 0942 23 243).

ACCOMMODATION

★ Hostel Taormina Via Circonvallazione 13 ☎ 0942 625 505, ✉ taorminahotel.net. Welcoming intimate hostel equipped with a kitchen for guests' use, dorms with lockers, and a wonderful terrace with lounge chairs and great views over the bay. The friendly staff are always ready to help. Dorms €22, doubles €66

Taormina's Odyssey Via Paternò di Biscari 13 ☎ 0942 24 533, ✉ taorminaodyssey.com. Comfortable, with four double rooms and two dorms. There is a kitchen for guest use, rooms have a/c and TV, and there's even a terrace. It is understandably popular, so book well ahead. Dorms €20, doubles €40

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Smarten up and head to Taormina's luxurious and historic Grand Hotel Timeo (Via Treatro Greco 59 ☎ 0942 627 0200, ✉ grandhoteltimeo.com), whose guests have included all manner of illustrious figures, from D.H. Lawrence to Somerset Maugham. Sip a cocktail (€12) on the wonderful terrace – the panoramic views over Etna and the bay are, quite simply, breathtaking. Dinner will set you back about €70 per person.

EATING

★ Bam Bar Via di Giovanni 45. This pleasant café with outdoor seating serves over twenty natural flavours of icy sweet granita (€3.50), including ricotta and pistachio, typically enjoyed with a freshly baked brioche. Heavenly. Tues–Sun 7am–9pm.

★ Da Cristina Via Strabone 2. The town's best freshly baked arancini (€2.50) come in six exquisite flavours, including pistachio, aubergine and wild fennel; you can also get bargain take-away or eat-in pasta dishes for €5. Daily 7.30am–1am.

Tutti c'ca Fratelli Ingegnere 12. The candle-lit tables of this welcoming restaurant line the steps of a quiet cobbled street with views over the Roman Theatre. Primi €8–16, secondi €10–22. Daily 11am–1am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

In town, the action takes place in picturesque but posey Piazza Paladini, off the Corso. Alternatively, the summer beach-bars of nearby Spisone are reachable on foot from Taormina or by bus from Via Pirandello.

Bar Turrisi Piazza Duomo 19, Castelmola. This unique bar in the beautiful neighbouring village of Castelmola attracts crowds from all over keen to sample traditional almond wine (€3) in an unusual setting – how often have you visited a bar decked out entirely in phallic memorabilia? Daily 9.30am–3am.

Daiquiri Piazza Duomo. This trendy lounge bar knocks up exceptional cocktails – including over ten types of daiquiris and even Pimm's – to be enjoyed on the lantern-lit cushioned seats lining the outdoor steps. Cocktails €8. Daily 5pm–2am.

★ Morgana Bar Scesa Morgana 4. Dress up for this snazzy bar and nightclub with open-air lounge area that attracts a well-heeled local crowd who sip cocktails (from €10) until the early hours. DJs spin a melange of musical flavours: contemporary commercial, vintage Italian and international hits. Daily 8pm–3am; Nov & Dec closed Tues.

MOUNT ETNA

Mount Etna's massive bulk looms over much of the coastal route south of Taormina. At 3340m, it is a substantial mountain and the ascent is a spectacular trip; the fact that it's also one of the world's biggest volcanoes – and still active – only adds to the draw. Getting up can be costly and is weather-dependent, so get as much advice as possible on the ground beforehand (see box, p.675).

CLIMBING MOUNT ETNA

The safest and easiest way to ascend Mount Etna is with a tour from Taormina. Etna People (etnapople.com) offer a range of tours, including classic full day and sunset tours, from €58. If you do decide to go it alone, catch the bus (daily, leaves 8am; 1hr) from Catania train station (Catania is approx 50km south of Taormina) up to the huddle of souvenir shops and restaurants at the Rifugio Sapienza (see below), which marks the end of the drivable road up the south side of Etna. To get as high up as possible, you can either take a cable car then a jeep with guide (2hr 30min; €57.50 return), or take the cable car (daily 9am–5pm; €29.50 return) and walk up the remaining 400m. Alternatively, if you're a huddle of souvenir walker, go on foot: the trip up will take four hours, the return a little less. Take warm clothes, good shoes and glasses to keep the flying grit out of your eyes. The return bus to Catania leaves at 4.30pm, so if you want to walk all the way you'll have to stay the night in the rifugio.

If you don't have the time or funds to reach the summit, the Circumetnea rail service (€7.25; no service on Sundays; InterRail passes not valid; circumetnea.it) train offers a hop-on hop-off service stopping off at a number of towns. It trundles around the base from Giarre-Riposto, thirty minutes by train or bus from Taormina. The whole tour takes three and a half hours and ends in Catania.

ACCOMMODATION

Rifugio Sapienza North Nicolosi, Etna Sud ☎095 915 321, rifugiosapienza.com. A cosy, chalet-style rifugio hotel equipped with central heating for the colder months. Each of the 25 en-suite rooms has a TV, the restaurant's worth a look, and you can reach it on public transport. Breakfast included. Per person €55

SIRACUSA

SIRACUSA (ancient Syracuse), 115km south of Taormina, was first colonized by the Greeks in 733 BC and grew to become their main power base in Sicily. Today, the city boasts some of the best Greek archeological remains anywhere, and also has a strong Baroque character in its old town, squeezed onto the island of Ortygia, and connected to the new town by two bridges.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Ortygia

Near the bridge that connects Ortygia to the mainland, the Temple of Apollo, built in the sixth century BC, is probably Sicily's most ancient Doric temple. Over the years, it was transformed into a Byzantine church, then an Arab mosque, and into a church again under the Normans. At the centre of the island, the most obvious attraction is the Duomo (daily 8am–noon & 4–8pm; €3), set in a piazza studded with Baroque architecture, and itself incorporating twelve fluted columns from the fifth-century BC temple that originally stood here. At the other end of the square, the church of Santa Lucia (Tues–Sun 11am–2pm & 3–7pm; free) harbours a Caravaggio painting, the Burial of Santa Lucia. Round the corner at Via Capodiceci 16 is the severe thirteenth-century facade of the Galleria Regionale di Palazzo Bellomo (Tues–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–1pm; €8), an outstanding collection of medieval art, and paintings by Antonello da Messina.

The Archeological Museum

North of the train station the city is mainly new, though the best of Siracusa's archeological sights are also here. It's a twenty-minute walk to Viale Teocrito (or take bus #12 from Riva Nazario Sauro), from where you walk east for the Museo Archeologico Regionale (Tues–Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 9am–1pm; €8, €13.50 including entrance to Parco Archeologico, valid 3 days), housing a wealth of material from the early Greek colonies, including a wonderful coin and jewellery collection; the museum's highlight is a headless marble Venus, sculpted rising from the sea. Round the corner, the ruined Basilica di San Giovanni has interesting catacombs (daily 9.30am–12.30pm & 2.30–5pm; €8 ticket includes guided tour departing every 30min; 40min).

17 The Archeological Park

Siracusa's extensive Parco Archeologico (daily 9am–1hr before sunset; €10, €13.50 combined ticket with Museo Archeologico Regionale) is a ten-minute walk west of the archeological museum. Here, the Ara di Ierone II, an enormous third-century BC altar, is the first thing you see, though the highlight is the Teatro Greco. Cut out of the rock and looking down towards the sea, it hosts a summer season of Greek plays (indafondazione.org). Nearby, the Latomia del Paradiso, a leafy quarry, is best known for the Orecchio di Dionisio, an S-shaped cave, 65m long and 20m high, that Dionysius is supposed to have used as a prison.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Interbus run services from Catania airport (catania-airport.com) to Siracusa (hourly; 1hr 15min).

By train Siracusa's train station is on Via Crispi, a 20min walk from Ortigia.

Destinations Agrigento (via Catania and Caltanissetta; 1 daily; 5hr); Catania (8 daily; 1hr 10min); Palermo (via Messina; 4 daily; 7hr 20min); Taormina (10 daily; 2hr).

By bus Buses stop in Corso Umberto, near the train station. Destinations Agrigento (via Catania; hourly; 4hr 30min); Palermo (3 daily; 3hr 15min); Taormina (hourly; 3hr 10min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via Roma 31 (Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 9.30am–6.30pm; ☎ 800 055 500, toll-free).

ACCOMMODATION

Ares Via Mirabella 49 ☎ 0931 461 145, aresbedandbreakfast.it. Comfortable B&B on a quiet street, near the sea. Rooms are smart and spotless, there's a lovely roof terrace, and owner Enzo is a great source of information on Ortigia. €80

Casa Cristina Via Chindemi 8 ☎ 0931 62 205, casa.cristinasr.it. The airy a/c rooms at this little B&B all have wonderful views over the temple of Apollo; there's a kitchen for guests' use and all-day tea and coffee. Doubles €80

Casa Mia Corso Umberto 112 ☎ 0931 463 349, bbcasamia.it. More of a small hotel than a B&B, Casa Mia has pleasant rooms with a/c and private bath in a nineteenth-century palazzo; there's also a pleasant sunny breakfast terrace. Doubles €90

★ Lol Hostel Via F. Crispi 94 ☎ 0931 465 088, lolhostel.com. Siracusa's only hostel has a spacious lounge area, a modern kitchen and immaculate dorms with lockers and reading lamps. Private rooms all have flat-screen TVs and are en suite. Dorms €23, doubles €75

EATING

Fratelli Burgio Piazza Cesare Battisti 4 ☎ fratelliburgio.com. Tickle your taste buds as you explore the food market in the morning, then head to this wonderful deli for a large plate of exceptional cold cuts for around €10. Mon–Sat 8am–3.30pm.

La Gazza Ladra Via Cavour 8 ☎ 340 060 2428, gazzaladrasiracusa.com. The owners of this cosy, itty-bitty restaurant head to the market every morning to stock up on fresh produce, which they lovingly prepare all afternoon. Try the sought-after pasta alla palermitana (€10). Book ahead. Tues–Sun 7.30–11.30pm.

Viola Bakery Café Via Roma 43 ☎ 331 861 8415. A contemporary urban look, free, reliable wi-fi and friendly staff have made the Via Roma branch of Viola popular. At lunchtime there are salads, focaccia and scacce (a bread pie stuffed with combinations of vegetables, cheeses and ham) all priced at €5 and under. Daily 7.30am–9pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Nightlife centres on the lively little square of the Corte dei Bottari and Piazzetta San Rocco in Ortigia.

Enoteca Solaria Via Roma 86 ☎ www.enotecasolaria.com. Laidback wine bar with a few tables dotting the pavement serving Sicilian wines (€3) and tasty nibbles (€5–15). Mon–Sat 11am–2.30pm & 6pm–midnight.

Sale Via Amalfitania 56/2. Happening bar with brick vaulted ceilings and tables spilling onto the lively square; there are live jazz and blues bands on Thursday (Sept–June). Cocktails €5. Daily 7.30pm–late.

Tinkità Via della Giudecca 61/63, corner of Via Minniti. A happening little bar-cum-café, serving lovely cakes for breakfast and delicious snacks come aperitivo hour (cocktails €5). Sporadic live music bands. Daily 8.30am–1am & 5.30–11pm, Wed 5.30–11pm only.

AGRIGENTO

Halfway along Sicily's southern coast, AGRIGENTO is primarily of interest for its substantial Greek remains, strung out along a ridge facing the sea a few kilometres below town. The series of Doric temples here, mostly dating from the fifth century BC, are the most evocative of Sicily's remains. They are also the focus of a constant procession of tour buses, so budget accommodation should be booked in advance (though Agrigento could be a day-trip from Palermo). A road winds down from the modern city to the sites; buses (#1, #2 and #3 from outside the train station, tickets from the bar inside station) drop off at a car park between the two separate zones of archeological remains at the Valle dei Templi (daily 8.30am–7pm; €10, €13.50 combined ticket with archeological museum). The eastern zone is home to the scattered remains of the oldest of the temples: the Tempio di Ercole, probably begun in the last decades of the sixth century BC; the better-preserved Tempio della Concordia, dating to around 430 BC, with fine views of the city and sea; and the Doric Tempio di Giunone, probably completed in 440 BC.

The western zone, back along the path and beyond the car park, is less impressive but still worth wandering around. The mammoth construction that was the Tempio di Giove, the largest Doric temple ever known, was left in ruins by the Carthaginians and further damaged by earthquakes. Valle dei Templi leads back to the town from the car park via the excellent Museo Archeologico Regionale (Tues–Sat 9am–1pm & 2–7pm, Mon & Sun 9am–1pm; €8, €13.50 joint ticket with Valle dei Templi) – an extraordinarily rich collection devoted to local finds. From June/July to mid-September the Valle dei Templi usually opens at night: once the sun has set over the ruins, they're spectacularly illuminated by floodlights.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The closest airports are Catania and Palermo. Regular buses serve Catania airport (hourly; 2hr 40min) and Palermo airport (3 daily; 2hr 30min) from the terminal at Piazza Rosselli.

By bus The bus terminal is at Piazza Rosselli. Destinations Catania (hourly; 2hr 50min); Naples (1 daily; 12hr); Palermo (every 1hr 30min; 2hr); Rome (2 daily; 14hr).

By train Trains arrive at Agrigento Centrale at the edge of the old town (don't get out at Agrigento Bassa).

Destinations Palermo (every 2hr; 2hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Via Atene 272 (Mon–Fri 9.30am–1.30pm plus Tues & Thurs 3.30–7.30pm; ☎ 0922 596 168).

ACCOMMODATION

★ Camere a Sud Via Ficani 6 ☎ 349 638 4424, camereasad.it. Welcoming B&B with five cute and cosy rooms, all with private bath, decked out in mellow colours. Staff are exceptionally friendly and there's a pleasant little roof terrace. Doubles €70

Piccolo Gellia Vico Gozza 2 ☎ 0922 27157, piccologellia.com. An enchanting B&B set in a nineteenth-century building: artsy photos grace the walls, a convivial breakfast is laid out in the morning and the two roaming cats make you feel at home. Doubles with shared bath €55, with private bath €69

Villa Pirandello Via Francesco Crispi 34 ☎ 0922 22 275, villapirandello.it. A Sicilian-Yorkshire family run this B&B in a nineteenth-century villa with five rooms, a shady garden and a sunny terrace. A more therapeutic post-temple spot is hard to imagine. Breakfasts, featuring fresh fruit and artisan pastries, are superb. €75

EATING AND DRINKING

In town, Piazza San Francesco off Via Atenea livens up substantially in the evenings. Along the beachfront, the area of San Leone has plenty of places offering cheap drinks.

Ambasciata di Sicilia Via Giambertoni 2 ☎ ristorantelambasciataadisicilia.it. Revel in the wonderful views over the bay as you dig into a hearty plate of linguine all'ambasciata (linguine with bacon, calamari and courgette; €9). Tues–Sun noon–3pm & 7–11pm; Mon July & Aug only.

Le Cuspidi Piazza Cavour 19. The best ice creams in town (small cone €1.30), with unusual flavours such as fresh ricotta and almond, as well as the classics. Mon & Wed–Sun 7.30am–midnight.

Mojo Piazza San Francesco 11. Popular bar with thumping music attracting a young crowd who mingle on the square over €6 cocktails. Tues–Sun 7.30pm–3am.

Sardinia

Just under 200km from the Italian mainland, SARDINIA (Sardegna) is often regarded as the epitome of Mediterranean Europe. Its blue seas, white sands and rolling hills are beautiful and its way of life relaxed. Sardinia also holds fascinating vestiges of the various powers – Roman, Carthaginian, Genoese and Pisan – that have passed through, alongside striking remnants of Sardinia's only significant native culture, known as the Nuraghic civilization, in the seven thousand tower-like nuraghi that litter the landscape. The capital, Cagliari, is worth exploring for its excellent museums and some of the island's best nightlife. From here, it's only a short trip to the renowned ruined city at Nora, and the quieter beaches at Chia. The other main ferry port and airport is Olbia, in the north, little more than a transit town for the exclusive resorts of the Costa Smeralda. There's a third airport at the relaxed resort of Alghero in the northwest.

CAGLIARI

Rising up from its port and crowned by an old citadel squeezed within a protective ring of fortifications, CAGLIARI has been Sardinia's capital since at least Roman times and is still the island's biggest town. Nonetheless, its centre is easily explored on foot, with almost all the wandering you will want to do encompassed by the citadel.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The citadel

The most evocative entry to the citadel is from the monumental Bastione San Remy on Piazza Costituzione. From here, you can potter in any direction to enter its intricate maze. The citadel has been altered little since the Middle Ages, though the tidy Romanesque facade on the mainly thirteenth-century cathedral (Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 8am–1pm & 4.30–8.30pm; free) in Piazza Palazzo is in fact a fake, added in the twentieth century in the old Pisan style.

Piazza dell'Arsenale

At the opposite end of Piazza Palazzo, a road leads into the smaller Piazza dell'Arsenale, site of several museums including the Museo Archeologico Nazionale (Tues–Sun 9am–8pm, last entry 7.15pm; €5). In the same complex, the Pinacoteca Nazionale (Tues–Sun 9am–7.15pm; €5) features some glowing fifteenth-century altarpieces, while the Museo delle Cere (Tues–Sun 9am–1pm & 4–7pm; €1.55) displays a series of thought-provoking anatomical waxworks executed by Clemente Susini for nineteenth-century medical students.

Towers

Off Piazza Palazzo stands the Torre San Pancrazio, the best preserved of Cagliari's fortified towers, from where it's a ten-minute walk to the Torre dell'Elefante (both towers daily: May–Sept 10am–7pm; Oct–April 9am–5pm; €3 each), named after the small carving of an elephant on one side; climb to the top of either for stupendous views over the city and coast.

Beaches

To get to Poetto Beach, the long stretch connected to Cagliari, take bus #PF or #PQ from outside the train station for the fifteen-minute ride and get off wherever a patch takes your fancy.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Cagliari's airport (☎ www.sogaer.it) is linked to town by train (every 15–30min; 5–10min).

By ferry Cagliari's Stazione Marittima is a short walk from Via Roma and the train and bus stations. Tirrenia's ticket office is at Via Riva di Ponente (☎ 070 666 065 or ☎ 892 123, ☎ tirrenia.it).

Destinations Civitavecchia (1 daily; 13–15hr); Naples (2 weekly; 13hr 30min); Palermo (1–2 weekly; 12hr).

By train The train station is on Piazza Matteotti.

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Lillicu Via Sardegna 78 ☎070 652 970. Locals cram into this excellent trattoria that serves traditional Cagliari food, often at shared long wooden tables. The large portions, excellent seafood and singing waiters make this an unforgettable experience. Pasta and a quart of wine €15. Mon–Sat 1–3pm & 8.30–11pm.

L'Isola del Gelato Piazza Yenne 35. This extremely popular gelateria serves many flavours of ice cream but also offers everything from breakfast cakes to aperitifs. Outdoor seating available. Daily 7am–3am (closes earlier out of season).

Vinvoglio Via Lamarmora 45–47 ☎070 204 2094. Squeezed into a tiny space in Castello, this “wine jazz bar” has a cool, late-night ambience and live jazz most nights. There's a great selection of wines and beers, and you can eat here too (booking recommended). Tues–Sat 7pm–3am.

PULA AND NORA

The charming little town of Pula, an hour south of Cagliari, is a great base to explore Nora and the stunning southern beaches at Chia.

Nora Archeological Centre

Nora is the site of an ancient city (daily: mid-Feb to March 10am–6pm; April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct 10am–6.30pm; Nov to mid-Feb 10am–5.30pm; last entry 1hr before closing; €7.50), thought to date from the eighth century BC. An administrative, religious and commercial centre for over 1000 years, it was abandoned around the seventh century AD when the Arab invasion forced the inhabitants to retreat inland. The monuments – a theatre, thermal baths (which made use of natural springs here), a forum, a temple, an aqueduct and noble houses – suggest a sophisticated people, and many of the intricate mosaics decorating the town remain intact.

To get here from Pula, take an eight-minute ride on the Follasa bus (follesa.com) from Piazza Giovanni XXIII, or follow the signs and walk (25min).

Laguna di Nora

Next to the Nora Archeological Centre is the lagoon (daily: June–Aug 10am–8pm; Sept 10am–7pm; €8; ☎070 920 9544, lagunadinora.it), originally a fish farm and now an environmental park where you can observe nesting birds and local wildlife, paddle around in a canoe (€25/3hr, including entry to the lagoon park), or take a snorkelling trip to see the Roman remains on the bed of the bay (€25/3hr). Nora beach itself, flanked by the Torre del Coltellazzo and the Torre di Sant'Efisio (which you can climb up for a view over to the mountains of Santa Margherita), is a lovely, family-orientated place for a swim.

Chia

For secluded beaches, take a bus from Pula's Via Lamarmora to Chia (hourly; 25min); Chia beach is a five-minute walk from where the bus terminates. From here, white sands lapped by turquoise-blue waters stretch along the west coast for about 4km.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus ARST buses connect Pula with Cagliari roughly every hour, less frequently on Sun (50min). From Pula, a local minibus runs to Nora and the campsites at Santa Margherita di Pula (5–9 daily; Oct–May Mon–Sat only).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza del Comune (Tues–Sun 10.15am–1pm & 2–4.30pm; ☎070 920 9033).

ACCOMMODATION

If you get stuck for accommodation in Pula, your best bet is to ask at the helpful tourist office.

Campaggio Torre Chia ☎070 923 0054, campaggiotorrechia.it. A large campsite just a stone's throw from Chia beach, which has a small on-site shop and restaurant; take a left off the main road from the Chia junction and head towards the sea. Per person €9.50, plus per tent €9

Hotel Quattro Mori Via Cagliari 10, Pula ☎070 920 9124. Basic but clean hotel that's also the cheapest accommodation option in town. Doubles €40

EATING

Su Furriadroxo Via XXIV Maggio 11, Pula ☎070 924 6148. With an arcaded courtyard, this place specializes in dishes from the Campidano area. Try the ravioli stuffed with ricotta and saffron, cooked in butter and orange, or a mixed meat grill. Pastas and soups are €7, mains €10–13. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 8–10.45pm.

ALGHERO

In the northwest of Sardinia, ALGHERO is a lively resort with a Catalan flavour. From the Giardino Pubblico, the Porta Terra is the first of Alghero's seven defensive towers, erected by the prosperous Jewish community before their expulsion in 1492. Via Roma runs down from here through the old town's puzzle of lanes to the pedestrianized Via Carlo Alberto, home to most of the bars and shops. Turn right to reach Piazza Civica, the old town's main square, at one end of which rises Alghero's mainly sixteenth-century cattedrale (daily 7am–7.30pm; free).

Coastal trips

The best excursions are northwest along the coast, past the long bay of Porto Conte to the point of Capo Caccia, where the spectacular sheer cliffs are riddled by deep marine caves. The most impressive of these is the Grotta di Nettuno, or Neptune's Grotto (daily: April & Oct 10am–6pm; May–Sept 9am–8pm; Nov–March 10am–4pm; last tour 1hr before closing; €13), a long snaking passage that delves far into the rock and is full of stalagmites and stalactites. To get there, join a boat trip from the port (€16, excluding entrance to the caves; 20–40min), or take the bus from Alghero's Giardini Pubblici (1–3 daily; €4.50 return), leaving you at the top of a long and steep flight of steps that corkscrews down to the cave mouth. If you do have time for another excursion, head down the coast to the picturesque town of Bosa (4 daily buses; 1hr).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane From Alghero airport (✈️ aeroportoalghero.it) there are hourly local buses into the centre of town (30min; €1 from machines in the terminal, €1.50 on board), or direct services to Sassari and, in summer, Cagliari.

By train Trains arrive 2km north of the centre and are connected to the port by regular local buses.

Destinations Sassari (frequent; 35min).

By bus Buses from the airport and from out of town arrive at the Giardini Pubblici, by the port and old centre.

Destinations Bosa (2–5 daily; 55min); Sassari (4–10 daily; 1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Piazza Porta Terra (April–Sept Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 10am–1pm; Oct–March Mon–Sat 8am–8pm; ☎️ 079 979 054, 🌐 alghero-turismo.it).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostal de l'Alguer Via Parenzo 79 ☎️ 079 930 478, 🌐 algherohostel.com. This slightly shabby HI hostel is located in a fairly distant but tranquil spot 5km along the coast at Fertilia, reachable by local bus from Alghero. Dorms €15, doubles €35

La Mariposa Via Lido 22 ☎️ 079 950 480, 🌐 lamariposa.it. Popular, friendly, well-equipped campsite 2km north of town, with direct access to the seaweed-covered beach. April to mid-Oct. Per person €13, plus per tent €12

★ L'loc D'or B&B Via Logudoro 26 ☎️ 334 289 7130, 🌐 llocdor.com. Friendly B&B a short walk from the old town, with two large, airy rooms and a self-contained apartment. Breakfasts on the patio include fresh fruit and yoghurt. Doubles €80

EATING AND DRINKING

Al Vecchio Mulino Via Don Deroma 3. In the heart of the old town, this locals' favourite serves up tasty seafood and meat dishes (mostly €12–16) and pizzas in low-vaulted rooms. Daily 7pm–midnight; mid-Sept to mid-June closed Tues.

Casablanca Via Umberto 76. With vaulted rooms, this is a great venue for a straightforward pizza or pasta dish in a convivial atmosphere; mains are €10–15. Oct–May Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 12.30–2.30pm & 7.30–11.30pm; June–Sept closed all day Mon & Thurs lunchtime.

Poco Loco Via Gramsci 8 ☎️ 079 983 604. Superb modern pizzeria and cocktail bar hosting live music gigs. The metre-long pizza serves four (€32), while cocktails start at €6. Daily 7.30pm–midnight.

Introduction

Since becoming a member of the European Union in 2004, Latvia has enjoyed a bumpy ride of boom and slump, although the decision to adopt the euro in January 2014 seems to point to a measure of stability in future. The Soviet occupation left the country with a large Russian minority population, and it remains a place divided by language and culture – Riga in particular is a strikingly bilingual city, although all road signs and public notices are in Latvian. While it's the country's boisterous capital to which most visitors are attracted, to experience the true spirit of Latvia you'll need to head into the spectacularly unspoiled countryside, with its lakes, forests and sandy beaches.

The most obvious destination is the capital, Riga. Its architectural treasures, lively nightlife and countless eating options make it a prime destination for budget travellers. Places within easy reach of the capital include the palace of Rundāle, while those wishing to hit the beach can head either to the nearby resort area of Jūrmala or to the port city of Ventspils. In the scenic Gauja Valley, the attractive small town of Sigulda makes a good base for hiking, biking, canoeing and other outdoor pursuits.

CHRONOLOGY

2500 BC The Balts (ancestors of today's Latvians and Lithuanians) occupy present-day Latvia.

1201 German crusaders found the city of Riga.

1285 Riga joins the Hanseatic League, bringing closer economic ties with the rest of Europe.

1500s Protestantism takes hold in much of Latvia except the south – which falls under Polish-Lithuanian rule and remains Catholic.

1629 Most of Latvia is conquered by Sweden.

1721 Sweden loses its Latvian possessions to Peter the Great of Russia.

Late 1800s Cultural and intellectual movements led by the "Young Latvians" increase Latvian national consciousness.

1905 A peasant revolt against the land-owning German nobility is followed by brutal repression.

1918–1920 Latvia gains independence, despite German and Soviet military intervention.

1940 Latvia is taken by the Soviets at the beginning of World War II, then occupied by the Germans a year later. Both occupations cause horrendous suffering for Latvians.

1945 By the end of the war, Soviet occupation is re-imposed.

1991 Collapse of the Soviet Union brings about the restoration of independence.

1999 Vaira Vīke-Freiberga, the first female president of Latvia, takes office.

2004 Latvia joins the EU and NATO.

2008–11 A period of rapid economic growth is followed by recession.

2014 Latvia adopts the euro.

2015 Russian aggression in Ukraine places Latvia on the front line of defence against a newly militant Muscovite empire.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Riga International Airport (Lidosta Rīga) is served by numerous European airlines, including Ryanair, Lufthansa, Turkish Airlines and Wizz Air as well as Latvia's low-cost airBaltic (airbaltic.com).

Options for cross-border train travel are fairly limited, with connections to Moscow and St Petersburg, but not to Lithuania or Estonia. Eurolines (eurolines-latvia.lv), LuxExpress (luxexpress.eu) and Ecolines (ecolines.net) offer frequent bus services linking Riga with Tallinn, Vilnius and St Petersburg, among other international destinations.

A daily overnight ferry service runs from the Riga terminal to Stockholm, Sweden (tallinksilja.com), as well as from Ventspils daily to Nynäshamn, Sweden (60km from Stockholm), and twice weekly to Travemünde in Germany.

GETTING AROUND

Rīga has plentiful cheap public transport. Buy train tickets in advance: stations have separate windows for long-distance (starpilsetu) and suburban (pirpilsetu) trains. Long-distance services are divided into “passenger” (pasazieru vilciens) and “fast” (ātrs) – both are quite slow but the latter, usually requiring a reservation, stops at fewer places. On timetable boards, look for atiet (departure) or pienāk (arrival). Check train timetables online at pv.lv.

Buses are slightly quicker than trains, though marginally more expensive. Buy long-distance tickets in advance from the ticket counter and opt for an express (ekspresis) bus if possible.

Cycling is a great way of getting around the resort areas and small towns – an increasing number of local agencies can organize bike rental.

ACCOMMODATION

Outside Rīga and Jūrmala, there are few backpacker hostels, though inexpensive guesthouses and campsites can be found in many Latvian towns. Hostels are particularly prolific in the centre of Rīga, while a number of small, good-value hotels and guesthouses are also available, though rooms are in short supply in peak season and advance reservations are required in summer. In Rīga and Jūrmala, agencies offer well-priced private rooms (istabas) of a reasonable standard. There’s a handful of decently equipped campsites in Rīga, Jūrmala, Sigulda and Ventspils.

FOOD AND DRINK

While meat or fish and potatoes remain the bedrock of Latvian cuisine, Rīga has something to suit every palate, with a lot of good international cuisine and vegetarian options. Eating out, particularly in the capital’s classier joints, is fairly expensive, but there are plenty of self-service fast-food places, offering filling meals for around €5–6. Numerous supermarkets and markets make self-catering a viable option too.

Restaurants tend to be open from noon to midnight, with bars keeping similar hours (although some stay open past 2am). Cafés typically open at 9 or 10am.

Popular national starters include cabbage soup (kāpostu zupa), sprats with onions (sprotes ar sīpoliem) and pelekie zirņi (mushy peas in pork fat). Slabs of pork garnished with potatoes and sauerkraut constitute the typical main course, although freshwater fish (zivs) is common too. Rasols (cubes of potato, ham and gherkin drenched in cream) is the staple salad. Pelmeni (Russian ravioli) are ubiquitous – you’ll find them on most menus.

DRINK

Rīga has excellent bars, though some are expensive. Imported beer (alus) is widely available, and local lager beers like Aldaris and Cēsu are perfectly palatable.

LATVIAN

In Latvian, the stress always falls on the first syllable of the word. The exception is the word for thank you (paldies), which has the stress on the second.

Boutique-brewed ales are increasingly common in Rīga – check out the better-quality beers produced by small breweries like Valmiermuiža. Worth trying once is Rīga Melnais Balzāms (Rīga Black Balsam), a bitter liqueur (45 percent) made from a secret recipe of roots and herbs, and supposed to cure all ailments.

Coffee (kafija) and tea (tēja) are usually served black – ask for milk (piens) and/or sugar (cukurs).

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Latvians are reserved and greet each other with handshakes rather than effusive hugs. The distinctive Russian and Latvian communities do not mix much and some resent being mistaken for the other. At work, women still fill more traditional roles, and the general attitude to women travelling alone can be mildly sexist, although there is little risk of harassment. Leave a ten percent tip for good service in a restaurant.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Ice hockey is the national sport, and the revered national team plays at the 12,500-seat Arena Rīga (Skanstes 21, ☎6738 8200, arenariga.com). You'll need to book in advance for important games.

Outside Rīga there is plenty of scope for outdoor pursuits. A number of beautiful national parks, best visited in the summer and home to dozens of protected species, offer extensive hiking and biking trails ripe for exploration. Canoeing, rafting and extreme sports such as mountain boarding, quad biking and bungee jumping are on offer around Cēsis and Sigulda in the Gauja Valley. Skiing and snowmobiling take over in winter, while the port of Ventspils attracts kitesurfers.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post offices (pastas) are generally open from 8am to 7pm during the week and from 8am to 3pm on Saturdays. Those with mobile phones from EU countries pay no roaming charges in Latvia; visitors from non-EU countries should check roaming charges with their phone company and consider buying a local SIM card. An increasing number of wi-fi hotspots in Rīga has led to few internet cafés remaining, and free internet and wi-fi is offered by almost all guesthouses, hotels and youth hostels.

EMERGENCIES

Theft is the biggest hazard. If you're staying in a cheap hotel, don't leave valuables in your room. Muggings and casual violence are not unknown in Rīga; avoid parks and backstreets after dark. Police (policija), who are unlikely to speak much English, will

Exchanging cash is straightforward, even outside banking hours, as Riga is full of currency exchange offices (valūtas maiņa); shop around to get the best rate. ATMs are plentiful nationwide and accept most international cash cards. Credit cards are accepted in an increasing number of establishments.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shops are usually open weekdays from either 8 or 10am to 6 or 8pm, and on Saturdays from 10am to 7pm. Some food shops are open until 10pm and are also open on Sundays. In Riga there are a few 24-hour shops, which sell food and alcohol. Most shops and all banks close on the following public holidays: January 1, Good Friday, Easter Sunday, Easter Monday, May 1, May 4, the second Sunday in May, June 23 and 24, November 18, December 24, 25, 26 and 31.

Rīga

RĪGA is the largest, liveliest and most cosmopolitan of the Baltic capitals, with a great selection of accommodation to suit any budget and a wide variety of world cuisine. A heady mixture of the medieval and the contemporary, the city has much to offer architecture and history enthusiasts in the narrow cobbled streets of Old Riga and the wide boulevards of the New Town, where beautiful examples of Art Nouveau architecture line Strēlnieku iela and Alberta iela.

The city also has all the trappings of a modern capital, with excellent shopping, and a notoriously exuberant nightlife.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Old Riga (Vecrīga), grouped loosely around Town Hall Square (Rātslaukums) and Cathedral Square (Doma laukums), forms the city's nucleus and is home to most of its historic buildings. With its cobbled streets, narrow lanes and hidden courtyards, it gives the impression of stepping back in time. To the east, Old Riga is bordered by Bastejkalns Park, beyond which lies the New Town (known locally as "Centrs"). Built during rapid urban expansion between 1857 and 1914, its wide boulevards are lined with four- and five-storey apartment buildings, many decorated with extravagant Art Nouveau motifs.

Town Hall Square

Riga's Rātslaukums, or Town Hall Square, is dominated by the House of the Blackheads (Melngalvju nams), whose facade is an opulent masterpiece of Gothic architecture and which once served as the headquarters of Riga's bachelor merchants, who adopted the North African, non-white St Maurice as their patron (hence the name "Blackheads"). Largely destroyed in 1941, the House was lovingly reconstructed for the 800th anniversary of Riga's foundation in 2001.

The ugly oblong structure next door belongs to the old Occupation Museum (Latvijas okupācijas muzejs), which is currently closed for renovation – you can see its collection on temporary display in the former US embassy building at Raiņa bulvāris 7 (see p.689).

Museum of the Sun

One of Riga's most intriguing sights is the quaint and curious Museum of the

LOFTY VIEWS

If you want to see the city unfold before you, with its melange of church domes, vast parks, ribbon of river and squat Soviet creations, follow the urban throng to Šķūņu iela to St Peter's Church (Pēter baznīca; Tues–Sun; May–Aug 10am–7pm; Sept–April 10am–5pm), a large red-brick structure with a graceful three-tiered spire; climb the tower (€9) for excellent panoramic views. Battling the church for the finest vistas of Riga is "Stalin's Birthday Cake" – the Academy of Sciences (April–Sept daily 8am–8pm; €3.60), a 1950s Empire State Building lookalike at Akadēmijas laukums 1. The 65m skyscraper, adorned with hammers and sickles near the top, has a 360-degree viewing platform on the 17th floor.

Sun at Valnu iela 30 (Saules muzejs; Mon–Sat 9am–6pm; €4), a private collection of artworks, ornaments and cult objects connected with the fiery life-giving orb in the title. Visually attractive throughout, the display also has interesting things to say about the position of the sun in religion and folk belief, and the development of astronomy.

Cathedral Square

Cathedral Square is dominated by the towering red-brick Riga Cathedral (daily 10am–5pm; €3), established in 1211 and featuring one of the biggest organs in Europe. On the other side of the cathedral, at Palasta 4, is the worthwhile Museum of Riga's History and Navigation, featuring Bronze Age and medieval artefacts, such as a mummified criminal's hand, as well as temporary art exhibitions (Wed–Sun 11am–5pm; €4.50).

Riga Bourse Art Museum

Opposite the cathedral, the former building of the Latvia stock exchange at Doma laukums 6 contains the Riga Bourse Art Museum (Mākslas muzejs Rīgas birža; Tues–Thurs, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm, Fri 10am–8pm; €3; rigasbirza.lv), the nation's collection of old masters and archeological treasures. A small Monet landscape and a Rodin sculpture are the main big-name draws, although the Flemish still lifes and classical antiquities are enough to keep the interest from flagging.

The Castle and the Three Brothers

From Cathedral Square, Pils iela runs down to Castle Square (Pils laukums) and Riga Castle (Rīgas pils), built in 1515 and now home to the Latvian president. Follow Mazā Pils iela from Pils laukums to see the Three Brothers (Trīs brāļi), three charming medieval houses, one of which, built in the fifteenth century, is thought to be the oldest in Latvia.

Swedish Gate and the Powder Tower

On Torņa iela, you'll find the seventeenth-century Swedish Gate (Zviedru vārti), the sole surviving city gate. At the end of Torņa iela is the Powder Tower (Pulvertornis), a vast, fourteenth-century bastion, home to the excellent War Museum (Kara muzejs; daily: April–Oct 10am–6pm; Nov–March 10am–5pm; free) – three floors of the country's turbulent history, from medieval weaponry to world wars I and II, and Latvia's struggle for independence.

Bastion Hill

Bastion Hill (Bastejkalns) – the park that slopes down to the city canal at the end of Torna iela – is a reminder of the city's more recent history: on January 20, 1991, four people were killed by Soviet fire during an attempted crackdown on Latvia's independence drive. Stones bearing the victims' names mark where they fell near the Bastejas bulvāris entrance to the park.

The Freedom Monument

The modernist Freedom Monument (Brīvības pieminēklis), known affectionately as “Milda”, dominates the

JEWIS IN LATVIA

Jews living in Riga and other parts of Latvia suffered the same fate as Jews in other parts of Eastern Europe when Latvia was overrun by Nazis. The Riga Ghetto and Latvian Holocaust Museum, Maskavas 14a (entry from Krasta; Mon–Fri & Sun 10am–6pm; suggested donation €5; 0rgm.lv), built on the site of the Jewish ghetto behind the Central Market, consists of two outdoor exhibits: a seemingly endless wall of victims' names, and photographs and text illustrating the life of the Jewish community in different parts of Latvia before World War II. On Peitavas iela 6/8, you'll find the last surviving synagogue in Riga; when all the synagogues in the city were burned down by the Nazis in 1941, this building and its treasures – the sacred scrolls – escaped destruction due to its close proximity to other buildings. There's a memorial on Gogoļa iela where the Great Choral Synagogue was burnt down in July 1941 with a large number of Lithuanian Jewish refugees trapped inside. At Skolas 6, you will find a small but gritty and informative Jews In Latvia Museum (Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–5pm; donation; 0jewishmuseum.lv), telling the history of Jewish life in Latvia from the eighteenth century onwards, including persecution by both Nazis and Soviets, and the survival and rebirth of Judaism in independent Latvia.

view along Brīvības bulvāris as it enters the New Town, holding aloft three stars symbolizing the three regions of Latvia. Incredibly, the monument survived the Soviet era, and nowadays two soldiers stand guard here in symbolic protection of Latvia's independence.

Occupation Museum

Temporarily housed in the former building of the American Embassy at Raiņa bulvāris 7, the Occupation Museum (Latvijas okupācijas muzejs; May–Sept daily 11am–6pm; Oct–April Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; donation welcomed; 0okupacijasmuzejs.lv) documents the atrocities committed against Latvia's population by both Nazi and Soviet occupations. Harrowing and moving exhibits include letters to loved ones thrown from trains by Latvians forcibly removed to Siberia, and the simple household items (children's toys, Christian crosses) they fashioned by hand to make life bearable once they got there.

National Art Museum

Esplanade Park runs north from Brīvības bulvāris. At the far end of the park, the Latvian National Art Museum (Valsts mākslas muzejs; Tues–Thurs 10am–6pm, Fri 10am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm; €3.50; 0lnmm.lv) contains an impressive array of twentieth-century Latvian paintings, by artists from post-impressionist Vilhelms Purvītis to doyen of Soviet agit-prop Gustavs Klucis. In a separate building on Torņa iela 1, the Arsenāls Exhibition Hall (Tues, Wed & Fri noon–6pm, Thurs noon–8pm, Sat & Sun noon–5pm; €3.50) stages cutting-edge temporary exhibitions by contemporary artists.

Riga Art Nouveau Museum

The Riga Art Nouveau Museum at Alberta iela 12 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; May–Sept €6; Oct–April €3.50), housed in the former apartment of renowned artist and engineer Konstantīns Pēksšens, is a must for anyone with an interest in Art Nouveau. You can view original period furniture and some of Pēksšens' work, and the visit culminates in the viewing of a short video which will enable you to tell the difference between “romantic” and “vertical” Art Nouveau facades on the city's streets.

Riga Motor Museum

It's worth travelling 8km out of town to one of Riga's odder attractions – the Motor Museum (Rīgas motormuzejs; daily 10am–6pm; €10). Home to an impressive collection of vehicles through the ages, its pride and joy are those belonging to Soviet heads of state – see Stalin lounging in the back seat of his bulletproof ZIS. To get here, take bus #21 east along Brīvības to the Pansionāts stop (20min), cross the road and take the main road that runs to the right of the housing development (5min).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Riga Airport (Lidosta Rīga; ✈️ riga-airport.com) is located about 13km west of the city centre. Bus #22 (every 20min; €1.15 if ticket is bought from vending machine or newspaper kiosk; €2 if bought from driver) drops passengers at Strēlnieku laukums, just west of Rātslaukums, and by the train station. A taxi from the airport should cost no more than €20.

By train Riga's main train station (Centrālā stacija) is just southeast of Old Riga on 13 Janvāra iela; it takes about 15min to walk to Rātslaukums from here. Facilities include ATMs, currency exchange and an information centre.

Destinations Majori, Jūrmala (every 30min; 40min); Moscow (1 daily at 5.30pm; 16–18hr); Salaspils (1–2 hourly; 15min); Sigulda (8–10 daily; 1hr); St Petersburg (1 daily at 5.30pm; 15hr).

Destinations Bauska (every 30min; 1hr 10min–1hr 30min); Kaunas (1–2 daily; 4hr 30min); Klaipēda (3 daily; 5hr); Moscow (1 daily; 17hr); Pärnu (9–11 daily; 3hr 30min); Sigulda (at least 8 daily; 1hr 15min); St Petersburg (4 daily; 12–14hr); Tallinn (9–11 daily; 5hr 30min); Tartu (3 daily; 5hr); Ventspils (hourly; 3hr); Vilnius (8 daily; 5hr–5hr 30min).

By ferry The ferry terminal (Jūras pasažieru stacija) is to the north of Old Riga. Tram #5, #7 or #9 runs from the stop in front of the terminal on Ausekļa iela to Aspazijas bulvāris in the city centre (two stops).

Destinations Stockholm (1 daily; 16hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information The main tourist office, at Rātslaukums 6 in the centre of the Old Town (daily 10am–6pm; ☎️ 6703 7900, 🌐 liveriga.com), has plenty of information on Latvia's attractions and sells copies of Riga In Your Pocket (€3) as well as the Riga Card (€25/€30/€35 for 24/48/72hr; 🌐 rigacard.lv), which gives unlimited use of public transport plus museum discounts.

Tours EAT Riga/Riga Explorers Club (☎️ 2246 9888, 🌐 rigaexplorersclub.com or 🌐 eatriga.lv) organizes a big range of themed walking tours, bike tours and food tours, all with an English-speaking guide. Prices (anything from €15 to €80 per person) depend on numbers.

GETTING AROUND

Both Old Riga and the New Town are easily navigated on foot, and you can reach outlying attractions by frequent and efficient public transport.

By bus, tram and trolleybus Buses, trams and trolleybuses run 5.30am–midnight. You can buy flat-fare one-way tickets from the driver for €2, or purchase cheaper e-talons from public transport ticket machines or from Narvesen newsstands for one (€1.15), two (€2.30), five (€5.75) or ten rides (€10.90); or for one, three or five days of travel (€5/€10/€15).

ACCOMMODATION

Riga has extensive budget accommodation, mostly concentrated in the southern half of Old Riga, with a few options in nearby New Town and by the Central Market. Reserve in advance in summer. All accommodation options listed offer wi-fi.

OLD TOWN

Friendly Fun Franks Backpackers Hostel Novembra krastmala 29 ☎️ 2599 0612, 🌐 franks.lv; map p.688. Clean, laddish, Aussie-run hostel for those seeking crush-your-beer-can-against-your-forehead action. Perpetually full and not shying away from hosting stag parties, this firm favourite welcomes you on arrival with a free beer at its 24hr bar. Raucous fun. Dorms €15, doubles €50

Hotel Monte Kristo Kalēju 56 ☎️ 6735 9100, 🌐 hotelmontekristo.lv; map p.688. Reliable three-star hotel that's enduringly popular due to its location; on the fringes of the Old Town but only a short hop away from the bus station. Small but comfortable rooms; buffet breakfast included. Doubles €65

The Naughty Squirrel Backpackers Hostel Kalēju iela 50 ☎️ 6722 0073, 🌐 thenaughtysquirrel.com; map p.688. One of the most sociable places to stay in the Old Town, with daily tours and themed nights – from Movie Night to Latvian Food Night. Lockers are provided, and the location is hard to beat. Dorms €13, doubles €45

★ Tree House Riga Kalju iela 11a ☎️ 2571 3126, 🌐 facebook.com/TreeHouseRiga; map p.688. One of many hostels occupying the upper floors of historic central buildings, Tree House has smooth stylish dorms (including one female-only room), a cosy communal space that looks like a domestic living room, yoga classes twice a week, and a yoga practice room. They don't mind you partying providing you do it outside. Dorms €15.50

NEW TOWN

B&B Riga Gertrūdes iela 43 ☎️ 6727 8505, 🌐 bb-riga.lv; map p.687. A friendly family-run guesthouse in Central Riga offering en-suite rooms equipped with cable TV, fridges and microwaves. Breakfast vouchers and airport transfers available. Doubles €70

★ Cinnamon Sally's Merkela iela 1, 3rd floor ☎️ 2204 2280, 🌐 cinnamonsally.com; map p.687. More like the luxury apartment of a good friend than a hostel, this place has spacious dorms (with extra touches like a make-up table in the girls' dorm); the combined lounge/kitchen is a great place to socialize and the incomparable Sally herself is always ready for a chat with her guests. Dorms €15, doubles €35

Dodo Hotel Jersikas iela 1 ☎ 6724 0220, 🌐 dodohotel.com; map p.687. Budget hotel offering tastefully decorated, spacious en-suite rooms with flat-screen TVs and free wi-fi, as well as a French pancake breakfast (€4), all just a 15min walk or short tram ride from Old Riga. Doubles €50

Hotel Multilux Barona iela 37 (entrance from Gertrūdes) ☎ 6731 1602, 🌐 multilux.lv; map p.687. This Art Nouveau building in Central Riga boasts thoroughly modern en-suite rooms with cable TV, wi-fi and breakfast buffet included in the price. Doubles €35

EATING

Many bars and cafés offer cheap and filling food and there are also plenty of reasonably priced restaurants serving international cuisine.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Café Kūkotava Tērbatas iela 10/12; map p.687. Cosy café that not only serves some of the city's best coffee but also tantalizes you with its delectable home-made cakes. Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm.

Emihls Gustavs Chocolate Blaumaņa iela 11a; map p.687. Try the exquisite chocolate truffles or sip the bliss-in-a-cup white and dark molten chocolate (with a glass of water on the side in case it proves too rich for you). Hot chocolate €2.50. Mon–Fri 9am–10pm, Sat 10am–10pm, Sun 10am–8pm.

Fontaine Delisnack Teatra iela 2; map p.688. Tucked in an alley behind the Centrs department store, this has quickly become the place in the Old Town for freshly flipped gourmet burgers (€5.50), all-day breakfasts and a handful of Asian- and Mexican-inspired snacks – although the chilli con carne tends to run out by teatime. There's a fully stocked bar if you want to make a night of it. 24hr.

LIDO Vērmanītis Elizabetes iela 65; map p.687. Pretty much everything in the Baltic culinary repertoire is available at this vast order-at-the-counter canteen restaurant, decked out in kitsch-folklore style and patrolled by staff in traditional costume. Mains €3–4. Daily 9am–10pm.

Martīna Beķereja Valnu iela 28; map p.688. Locals queue at the counter of this café-pâtisserie to stock up on freshly baked piragi (from €0.40), doughy parcels filled with bacon bits, shredded cabbage or eggs and leeks. It's also a comfortable city-centre venue for a coffee-and-cake break. Mon–Fri 7.30am–9pm, Sat & Sun 8am–9pm.

★ Miit Lāčplēša iela 10; map p.687. Vegetarian café-bar with sleek modern interior, excellent-value lunch menus (€4.80) and Valmiermuižas beer. Miit also houses a bicycle design workshop and is a popular meeting spot for cyclists. Mon 7am–9pm, Tues–Thurs 7am–11pm, Fri 7am–2am, Sat 9am–2am, Sun 10am–6pm.

Muffins and More Gertrūdes iela 9; map p.687. You'll smell the delicious muffins even before you set foot in this tiny, welcoming café. There are more than a dozen varieties and the blueberry ones just might be the best in Eastern Europe. The "More" of the name consists of soup and baguettes. Muffins €1.10; soup €3.75. Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 11am–6pm.

Pelmeni XL Kalķu iela 7; map p.688. Popular canteen-style eatery offering six types of pelmeni (Russian ravioli) filled with meat or cheese, plus soups and drinks. Gourmet cuisine it ain't, but it will fill your belly. €1.65/200g. Mon–Sat 9am–4am, Sun 10am–4am.

RESTAURANTS

Aragats Miera iela 15; map p.687. The effusive hostess won't have to tell you off for not finishing your food, because you will: the Armenian-style grilled meats and stews, with the fresh herbs chopped up right at your table, are the best in the city. Mains €9–15. Tues–Sun 1–10pm.

DAD Cafe Miera iela 17; map p.687. Homely café with simple rustic furnishings and a largely vegetarian menu that's particularly strong on pastas and salads. With two-course set lunches weighing in at €4.50, it's a great place for a daytime feed. Mon–Sat noon–9pm.

DaDa Audēju iela 16 (Centrs department store); map p.688. Its decor reflects the anarchist art movement, but DaDa specializes in Mongolian barbecue. Fill up a bowl with fresh meat, seafood, vegetables and noodles, pick a sauce and have it cooked in front of you. Small/large bowl €7.25–10. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–10pm, Fri & Sat 10am–midnight.

Indian Raja Skarnu iela 7; map p.688. Authentic, flavourful Indian food in a cosy cellar setting – an expat favourite. The menu is varied and there's plenty for vegetarians. Huge mains €12–15. Daily noon–11pm.

Istaba Barona 31A; map p.687. Cosy, chic and quirky café tucked into the second floor of an enjoyably odd art gallery-cum-gift shop. Coffee, tea and cakes are tip-top, and there's a range of meals – the menu is not written down, and you'll be asked what kind of food you like by a waiter-cum-chef. Mon–Sat noon–midnight.

Kabuki Tērbatas 46 (entrance from Mārtas); map p.687. One of the most pleasant and reliable among the crop of sushi restaurants that has opened in Riga in recent years, with a functional but chic interior, a big choice of sushi and noodle dishes, generous pots of tea and reasonable prices. Daily 11am–10.30pm.

Raw Garden Skolas iela 12; map p.687. A stylish, vegan non-dairy restaurant, where no dish is cooked above 45°C, and where you'll probably join the crowd of satisfied patrons clamouring for more. Two-course set lunches are a steal at €6.50. Mon–Fri 8am–9pm, Sat 11am–9pm.

DRINKING, NIGHTLIFE AND ENTERTAINMENT

The Old Town offers innumerable opportunities for bar-hopping, with a wide range of watering holes (many serve decent food too) filling up with fun-seeking locals. Many double as restaurants during the day but close at 1/2am.

BARS

Chomsky Bar Lačplēša iela 68; map p.687. Looking a bit like a roomy student flat, the gruff but welcoming Chomsky Bar is a refreshing alternative to the mass-tourist pubs of the Old Town. A mural of left-wing guru Noam Chomsky sets the tone. Affordable local beers and spirits, and a lively front yard in summer. Mon–Thurs 4pm–midnight, Fri & Sat 4pm–3am.

Gauja Tērbatas 56; map p.687. Loving re-creation of a Latvian domestic interior circa 1973, complete with mismatching furniture, frumpy textiles, old-style board games and shelves of boring-looking books. Good draught beer. Daily noon–11pm.

Kaņepes kultūras centrs (KKC) Skolas iela 15 ☞ facebook.com/Zoo.KKC; map p.687. Alternative cultural centre offering art exhibitions, occasional theatre and live music, and a supremely mellow bar. Daily 1pm–2am.

Labiētis Alus Darbnīca Aristīda Briāna iela 9A; map p.687. Wooden tables and lights made out of beer glasses provide a suitably solid-but-stylish atmosphere in which to sample the outstanding ales produced by the Labiētis brewery – which you can see through a glass window at the back. With a big choice of seasonal brews on tap (€2.50–5.50/0.5L) there's a lot to work your way through. Mon 4–10pm, Tues 3–11pm, Wed & Fri 3pm–3am, Thurs 3pm–1am, Sat & Sun 1pm–1am.

No Problem Tirgoņu 5/7; map p.688. The best of the capital's beer gardens, No Problem boasts a prime spot overlooking Doma laukums (Cathedral Square), more than 20 beers on tap, live music nightly and some of the best burgers in town, served by friendly, efficient staff. Daily 11am–3am.

Skyline Bar Elizabetes iela 55; map p.687. Behold Riga's splendour from a window seat on the 26th floor of the Reval Hotel Latvija. There's a long list of quality cocktails (€9–12) Mon–Wed & Sun 11.30am–1am, Thurs 11.30am–2am, Fri & Sat 11.30am–3am.

Taka Miera iela 10; map p.687. Intimate bar with beat-up furniture and a hip young clientele drawn by an indie-rock soundtrack and an excellent range of craft beers. With set lunches at €4 it's also a good place to eat. Mon & Tues 2pm–midnight, Wed 3pm–midnight, Thurs & Sat 2pm–2am, Fri 3pm–3am, Sun 6–10pm.

Tims Mints Jaņa Sēta 5; map p.688. Located in an Old Town courtyard, this quirky living room-style bar serves improvised cocktails in jam jars and packs 'em in at weekends when eclectic DJs draw an arty-but-hedonistic crowd. Tues & Wed noon–2am, Thurs & Fri noon–4am, Sat 2pm–4am, Sun 2–10pm.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC

Depo Valņu iela 32 ☞ klubsdepo.lv; map p.688. Post-industrial cellar space with alternative DJ nights, live garage bands and an eclectic mix of experimental, reggae, punk, metal and other genres. Daily noon–5am.

Folkklubs Ala Pagrabs Peldu iela 19 ☞ folkklubs.lv/en; map p.688. Live folk music is just as popular as rock in Latvia, and this welcoming, barrel-vaulted cellar club is the ideal place to find out why. With a full menu of food (and a choice of over 25 beers on tap), it's a popular place to dine – so don't be surprised if all the tables are booked. Mon & Tues noon–1am, Wed noon–3am, Thurs noon–4am; Fri noon–6am, Sat 2pm–5am, Sun 2pm–1am.

Nabaklab Z. A. Mierovica bulvāris 12 ☞ nabaklab.lv; map p.688. Part art gallery, part bohemian club with live bands, DJs and a summer terrace for enjoying their own Nabaklab brew. Mon–Wed & Sun noon–2am, Thurs, Fri & Sat noon–6am.

Pūce Peldu iela 26/28 ☞ facebook.com/KlubsNaktiPuce; map p.688. A dark roomy space centred on a splendid circular bar, this is an excellent place to drink the night away while listening to an eclectic menu of indie, house and 1980s pop. Wed 8pm–2am, Thurs 8pm–4am; Fri 6pm–6am, Sat noon–6am, Sun noon–midnight.

CINEMA

Forum Cinemas (Coca-Cola Plaza) 13 Janvāra iela 8 ☞ forumcinemas.lv; map p.687. Second-largest cinema in northern Europe, with 14 screens. Tickets €6–9.

Splendid Palace Elizabetes iela 61 ☞ splendidpalace.lv; map p.687. Riga's oldest cinema, showing art films as well as blockbusters. Tickets €5.

SHOPPING

Art Nouveau Riga Strēlnieku iela 9 ☞ artnouveau.riga.lv; map p.687. Dedicated entirely to Art Nouveau merchandise, such as small plaster faces copied from the decorations on Riga's facades. Daily 10am–7pm.

Berga Bazārs Elizabetes iela 83/85; map p.687. Soviet kitsch, freshly baked bread, organically grown produce and gourmet food samples. Every Saturday 10am–4pm.

Central Market (Centrāltirgus) Next to the bus station; map p.687. This row of massive 1930s former Zeppelin hangars is worth visiting just to appreciate the sheer size of it. It sells everything from half a cow to bread, smoked meats and fake designer watches. Daily 8am–5pm.

Lukabuka Gertrudes 62; map p.687. Art and design bookshop with cards and stationery – they also sell cool comic books (including titles in English) by local independent publisher Kušl. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Tine Valņu 2; map p.688. Large store selling ceramics, amber trinkets, linen goods and plenty of woolly mittens and socks. Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–5pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies Canada, Baznīcas iela 20/22 ☞ 6781 3945; Ireland, Alberta iela 13 ☞ 6703 9370; UK, Alunāna iela 5 ☞ 6777 4700; US, Samnera Velsa 1 ☞ 6710 7000.

The rest of Latvia

In summer, the whole of Latvia seems to head to the beach – be it Jūrmala, the lively string of seaside resorts near Rīga, or the picturesque port of Ventspils, with its unspoiled stretch of sand and its music festival. Nature lovers can head inland to the picturesque little town of Sigulda.

JŪRMALA

A 20km string of small seaside resorts lining the Baltic coast west of Rīga, JŪRMALA was originally favoured by the tsarist nobility and later drew tens of thousands of holiday-makers from all over the USSR. It continues to be a popular beach resort today, with its wide, clean, sandy beach backed by dunes and pine woods, and dotted with beer tents and climbing frames. It pulses with sun worshippers during the summer, especially during the week-long music festival in July. The central resort of the Jūrmala strip, Majori is the best place to get off the train if you're just here for the day.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Jomas iela, the pedestrianized main street running east from the station square, teems with people and has a number of excellent restaurants and cafés, as well as craft stalls and art exhibitions. A few paths lead to the beach from Jūras iela, north of Jomas iela. The beach aside, Jūrmala's attractions include the wonderful new interactive Jūrmala City Museum, Tirgonu 29, Majori (Wed–Sun 10am–5pm; free), which charts the town's history as a popular beach resort. Upstairs is reserved for excellent temporary art and photography exhibitions.

The next settlement east of Majori is Dzintari, home to the Forest Park (Dzintaru mežaparks), a dense rectangle of pinewoods criss-crossed by footpaths, with a children's playground and space for rollerskating and skateboarding. Skates can be hired from the Skritulslidu noma kiosk at the park's western end (Mon–Fri 5–9pm, Sat & Sun noon–8pm). A viewing tower in the middle of the park provides sweeping views of Jūrmala, the Lielupe River and the coast.

A further 3km east of Majori, beside the Lielupe River, Livu Akvaparks at Viestura iela 24 (Mon–Sat 11am–10pm, Sun 11am–9pm; €21 for 2hr, or day pass €29; ☎ akvaparks.lv) is Latvia's biggest swimming complex, with a variety of wave pools, palm trees and plummet-down waterslides: it's a fifteen-minute walk from both Bulduri and Lielupe train stations.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Trains leave Riga's station from platforms 3 and 4. Majori is the main stop for Jūrmala, eleven stops from Riga. Destinations Riga (roughly every 30min until around 11pm; 30min).

By minibus Minibuses depart from Riga's Central Minibus Station, opposite the train station (every 10min, 6am–midnight; 25min). Take either the Riga–Sloka or the Riga–Dubulti minibus and get off in front of the Majori train station.

Tourist information Lienes iela 5, Majori (Mon 9am–6pm, Tues–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 10am–3pm; ☎ 6714 7900, ☎ tourism.jurmala.lv). Helpful staff have info on the town's attractions and accommodation.

ACCOMMODATION

Elna Lienes iela 43, Majori ☎ 6776 1665, ☎ elinahotel.lv. This popular guesthouse has clean en-suite rooms with TV, in a quiet residential street a 10min walk from the beach. Doubles €60

Kempings Nemo Atbalss iela 1, Vaivari ☎ 2610 0500, ☎ nemo.lv. Large campsite at the western end of Jūrmala (alight at Vaivari station) in a pleasant middle-of-the-forest location just behind the beach, with reasonably clean facilities and a small aquapark on site. There are also double rooms in cabins. Camping/person €4.50, plus per tent €6, cabins €23

EATING AND DRINKING

Kalnkrastu Raušu Fabrika Vienības prospekts 35, Lielupe. Located at the Livu Akvaparks end of the resort, this popular bakery with a scattering of eat-in tables is very much a cult destination among locals. Stop by to gorge on delicious pastries, tarts and speķa pirāgi (savoury buns filled with bacon bits). Daily 8am–8pm.

Sue's Asia Jomas iela 74, Majori. Busy restaurant serving large portions of excellent Indian, Thai and Chinese cuisine. The Tom yum kuung is spicy and flavoursome (€9). Daily noon–11pm.

Zangezur Jomas iela 80, Majori. Popular Armenian restaurant specializing in grilled meats and other tasty dishes, such as aubergines with garlic and walnuts. Try the hinkale – large meat dumplings (€6). Daily 11am–11pm.

SALASPILS

The concentration camp at SALASPILS, 14km southeast of Rīga, is where most of the city's Jewish population perished during World War II. One hundred thousand people died here, including prisoners of war and Jews from other countries. The site is marked by monumental sculptures, with the former locations of the barracks outlined by white stones. Look for the offering of toys by the children's barracks, and the bunker, inscribed with the words "Behind this gate the earth groans" – here there's a haunting exhibition (open access; free) about the camp.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train To get here take a suburban train from Rīga central station in the Ogre direction and alight at Dārziņi (at least one hourly; 30min), though be aware that the stop is not well signposted; it's the first one to be completely surrounded by pine forest. From here a clearly signposted path leads to the clearing, a 15min walk through the forest.

RUNDĀLE PALACE

One of the architectural wonders of Latvia, Baroque Rundāle Palace (Rundāles Pils; daily: May–Oct 10am–6pm; Nov–April 10am–5pm; combined ticket to the palace, exhibitions and gardens €6; rundale.net) lies 77km south of Rīga. Its 138 rooms were built in two phases during the 1730s and 1760s, and designed by Bartolomeo Rastrelli, the architect responsible for the Winter Palace in St Petersburg. It was privately owned until 1920 when it fell into disrepair, but has been meticulously restored pretty much to its former glory.

Each opulent room is decorated in a unique fashion and there are changing art exhibitions both inside the palace and in the vast landscaped gardens.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus There are frequent buses from Rīga to Bauska (every 30min, 7am–8pm; 1hr 30min); then take a local service to Pilsrundāle (up to 9 daily; 30min). The palace is across the street from the bus stop.

SIGULDA

Dotted with parks and clustered above the southern bank of the River Gauja around 50km northeast of Rīga, SIGULDA is Gauja National Park's main centre and a good jumping-off point for exploring the rest of the Gauja Valley.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

From the train station, Raiņa iela runs north into town, passing the bus station. After about 800m a right turn into Baznīcas iela brings you to the impressive seven-hundred-year-old Sigulda Church (Siguldas baznīca).

Turaida Castle

Sigulda is home to three castles: Krimulda Castle (Krimuldas pilsdrupas), Sigulda Castle (Siguldas pilsdrupas), a former stronghold of the German Knights of the Sword, and from which you can see Turaida Castle (Turaidas pilsdrupas), the most impressive of the three. Built on the site of an earlier stronghold by the bishop of Rīga in 1214, the castle was destroyed when lightning hit its gunpowder magazine in the eighteenth century. Today, its exhibitions chart the castle's history (daily: May–Sept 9am–7pm; €5; Oct–April 10am–5pm; €3) and it's possible to climb up the main tower for 360-degree views of the valley below.

You can reach the castle by bus #12 (for Turaida or Krimulda) from Sigulda bus station (several daily; €0.70). Alternatively, take the cable car from Poruka iela, 20 minutes' walk northwest of Sigulda bus station (daily 10am–6.30pm, every 30min; Mon–Fri €2, Sat & Sun €3), across the Gauja River to Krimulda Castle – daredevils can bungee jump from the cable car (Thurs–Sun 6.30pm until the last customer; €60; 📞 bungee.lv). From Krimulda Castle, descend the wooden staircase signposted “Gūtmanis Cave”, then follow the path past the cave – the setting for a legend of “star-crossed lovers”. The path turns to the right before rejoining the main road just short of Turaída itself.

The bobsleigh track

West of Sigulda train station along Ausekļa iela is a bobsleigh track where you can hurtle down a concrete half-tube at 80km an hour (June–Sept Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; €10/person/ride), or try the exhilarating professional winter bob (Oct–March daily noon–7pm; €50).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is a 10min walk southwest of the bus station.

Destinations Riga (up to 9 daily; 1hr 15min).

By bus Frequent buses from Riga serve Sigulda's bus station, located a 2min walk south of the town centre.

Destinations Riga (at least hourly; 1hr 15min).

Tourist information Raiņa iela 3, just to the left of the entrance to the bus station (Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat 9am–2pm; 📞 6797 1335, 🌐 tourism.sigulda.lv). Helpful multilingual staff can book you into private rooms and provide information on exploring the Gauja Valley. They can also arrange hot-air ballooning (book in advance; 📞 2928 8448, 🌐 www.altius.lv) and bungee jumping from the cable car.

Gauja National Park Administration Turaidas iela 2a (daily: May–Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–April 9am–6pm; 📞 2665 7661, 🌐 gnp.gov.lv). Located on the north side of the river, this helpful office provides information on hiking trails in the Gauja National Park, including the popular trail from Sigulda to the village of Ligatne. Hiking map €3.

ACCOMMODATION

Kaķis Pils iela 8 📞 2661 6997, 🌐 cathouse.lv. Spotless, compact rooms with a bar and canteen-style restaurant next door. The disco may keep you awake on Fri and Sat. Doubles €35

Livkaļns Pēteralas iela 4b 📞 2651 7416. This charming hotel's appeal lies in its secluded location, attractive rooms (the more luxurious doubles have their own jacuzzis), some with a/c and satellite TV, and a splendid cellar restaurant serving regional cuisine. Breakfast included. Doubles €65

Siguldas Pludmale Peldu iela 2 📞 2924 4948, 🌐 makars.lv. Large campsite in a shady riverside spot northwest and downhill from the town centre; the only drawback is the queue for the bathroom. Arranges canoeing and rafting trips. Open May–Sept. Camping/person €6, plus per tent €3

EATING AND DRINKING

Kaķu Māja Pils iela 8. The Black Cat café offers large helpings of inexpensive canteen-style food and a tempting range of cakes in the bakery next door. Main and a drink: €5.50. Daily 11am–midnight.

Zalumnieku Piestātne Kafējnica Pils iela 9. Another canteen-style place with a roomy, rustic interior serving large portions of Latvian food; pay by weight. Complete meal €4.50. There's also a separate pizza restaurant; medium pizza €5. Daily noon–10pm.

VENTSPILS

An attractive seaside city, VENTSPILS, 200km northwest of Riga, is Latvia's biggest commercial port. The city's Old Town, with its cobbled streets, its beach – the best in Latvia – and handful of museums, makes Ventspils a great place to while away a couple of days.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

One of the city's main draws is the long stretch of clean white-sand beach at the town's western end – a worthy recipient of the Blue Flag and popular with sun worshippers, volleyball players and kitesurfers in summer. Still, it's so big that you needn't jostle other beachgoers for elbow space even at the height of peak season. In Jūrmalas Park near the beach, you'll find the popular Beach Aquapark, with slides, wavepools and other watery attractions (Mon–Fri noon–10pm, Sat 10am–10pm, Sun 10am–7pm; €7/2hr,

GAUJA NATIONAL PARK

Encompassing a diverse range of flora and fauna, Gauja National Park (🌐 facebook.com/GaujaNPF) covers more than 920 square kilometres of near-pristine forested wilderness, bisected by the 425km Gauja River. The valley is ideal for exploring by bike, as most of the hiking trails are accessible to cyclists. Numerous “wild” campsites are located along the river's banks, and major campsites in Sigulda, Cēsis and Valmiera, at the north end of the park, can arrange overnight canoeing and rafting trips.

plus €1 for each extra hour; ☎ udensparks.lv), and also an open-air museum (daily 11am–6pm; €2), with ethnographic displays featuring traditional fishermen's dwellings and equipment.

At the northern end of the beach, a long boardwalk, overlooked by a viewing tower, stretches towards the lighthouse. Here you can spot one of several specimens from Ventspils' bizarre Cow Parade – the Sailor Cow. Other cow sculptures are found along the Ostas iela promenade that leads east towards the ferry port; don't miss the Travelling Cow, shaped like a giant suitcase. South of the promenade lies the Old Town, with its Art Nouveau buildings and attractive main square, overlooked by the jolly yellow Nicholas Evangelical Lutheran Church and featuring a giant quill sculpture due to the town's popularity with international writers. The Old Town's most interesting feature is the thirteenth-century Castle of the Livonian Order at Jāņa iela 17 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €2.20), home to an excellent interactive museum featuring the history of the city and port and a disturbing exhibit on the Soviet prison in the barracks.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is in the centre at Kuldīga iela 5. Destinations Liepāja (6 daily; 2hr 45min–3hr); Rīga (hourly; 3hr); Talsi (4–5 daily; 1hr 40min).

By ferry Ferries from Travemünde in Germany, Nynashamn in Sweden and Saaremaa in Estonia arrive at the ferry terminal at Dārza iela 6: check ☎ stenaline.lt for schedules. Destinations Nynashamn, Sweden (Tues–Thurs, Sat & Sun 1 daily; 10hr); Saaremaa, Estonia (check schedule with tourist office); Travemünde, Germany (Tues & Sat 1 daily; 27hr 30min).

Tourist information At the ferry terminal building at Dārza iela 6 (May–Sept Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–4pm; Oct–April Mon–Fri 8am–5pm, Sat & Sun 10am–3pm; ☎ 6362 2263, ☎ visitventspils.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Kupfernams Kārļa iela 5 ☎ 6362 6999, ☎ hotelkupfernams.lv. Delightful, centrally located guesthouse with funky en-suite attic rooms with sloping roofs. Wi-fi and breakfast included, and there's a good restaurant downstairs. Doubles €59

Ventspils Piejūras Kempings Vasarīcu iela 56 ☎ 6362 7925, ☎ camping.ventspils.lv. To the southwest of the city centre, right next to its white sandy beach, this large, popular campsite offers tent spaces and fully equipped 4-person holiday cottages, as well as a guest kitchen and sauna. Camping/person €4.50, plus per tent €5, cottages €40

EATING AND DRINKING

Don Basil Annas iela 5. Cosy bistro-style place with a fair selection of freshwater fish dishes, pastas and risottos. Mains €10–12. Mon–Thurs 11am–8pm, Fri & Sat 11am–10pm, Sun noon–6pm.

Kupfernams Kārļa iela 5. Cosy café and restaurant serving tasty local staples such as grilled fish with grated potato pancakes and crêpes with a variety of fillings. Mains €5–8. Mon–Sat 8am–10pm, Sun 8am–6pm.

Skroderkrogs Skroderu iela 6. A traditional-style pub-restaurant bang in the centre serving up lashings of traditional Latvian pork-and-potatoes fare. Also a great place for a quick coffee and cake. Mains €5–8. Daily 11am–10pm.

CAPE KOLKA AND SLĪTERE NATIONAL PARK

To really get away from it all, take a trip to the village of Kolka at the northern-most tip of Cape Kolka, where the Gulf of Rīga meets the Baltic Sea, passing through pine forest and numerous coastal villages along the way. Kolka is part of Slītere National Park, a former Soviet military base turned protected nature reserve, and there are a number of nature trails to be hiked, not to mention the seemingly endless expanse of virtually deserted beach.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Direct bus from Riga (3 daily; 3hr 45min). If coming from Ventspils, change at Talsi: Ventspils–Talsi (4 daily; 1hr 40min); Talsi–Kolka (3 daily; 1hr 15min–2hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Ūši 10min walk north of the bus stop ☎ 2947 5692, ☎ kolka.info. You can stay at this friendly guesthouse (go past the church on your left, then a field to your right), or pitch a tent in the adjacent meadow. Meals are provided on request, or you can buy local smoked fish. Camping/person €4, doubles €46

Introduction

Lithuania is a vibrant, quirky and largely unspoiled country, which has undergone rapid change since becoming independent from the Soviet Union in 1991. You'll find a lively nightlife, both in Vilnius and on the coast, ample grounds for outdoor pursuits in the national parks and a number of great beaches, as well as a stark contrast between city life and rural simplicity. Fiercely proud of their country, Lithuanians are more exuberant and welcoming than their Baltic neighbours and you are likely to encounter their hospitality everywhere.

19 Lithuania's small size makes getting around inexpensive; even in well-trodden destinations the volume of visitors is low, leaving you with the feeling that there's still much to discover here. Vilnius, with its Baroque Old Town and narrow alleys, also boasts a boisterous nightlife, while the second city, Kaunas, has an attractive centre and a couple of interesting museums, along with some excellent restaurants and bars. The port city of Klaipėda is a great place to break your journey en route to the resorts of Neringa (the Curonian Spit), a unique sliver of sand dunes and forest that shields Lithuania from the Baltic Sea, or to Palanga, Lithuania's party town, where everyone flocks in the summer for a good time.

CHRONOLOGY

2000 BC The ancestors of the Lithuanians settle in the Baltic region.

1009 AD First recorded mention of the name Lithuania in the Quedlinburg Annals.

1236 Grand Duke Mindaugas unites Lithuania to ward off German crusaders.

1386 After an arranged marriage between the King of Lithuania and the Queen of Poland, Lithuania converts to Christianity.

1410 The Polish–Lithuanian alliance defeats the Teutonic Knights, increasing their hold over the Baltic region.

1547 First Lithuanian book, The Simple Words of Catechism, is published.

1795 Russia takes control of Lithuania.

1865 Growth of the liberation movement leads to violent repression by the Russians.

1900 Mass emigration across the world to escape Russian repression and rural poverty.

1918 Lithuania gains independence.

1940 Lithuania is occupied by the Soviet Union.

1941 Lithuania is invaded by Nazi Germany. Thousands of Lithuanian Jews are killed.

1944–5 Soviet occupation returns. Thousands are deported.

1991 (Jan) Soviet crackdown on the independence movement leaves 14 dead.

1991 (Aug) The Soviet Union collapses and Lithuania regains independence.

2004 Lithuania joins the EU; thousands emigrate to work in Western Europe.

2009 Dalia Grybauskaitė becomes the country's first female president. She is re-elected in 2014.

2015 Lithuania adopts the euro.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Most tourists arrive by air; Vilnius airport is served by several European airlines, including budget airlines Wizz Air (wizzair.com), Norwegian Air Shuttle (norwegian.com) and Ryanair (ryanair.com); the latter also flies to Kaunas. Lithuania has poor rail connections with its neighbours; international buses from neighbouring countries to Vilnius and Kaunas are far more numerous, with plenty of services from Latvia and Estonia. There are also frequent ferries from Kiel in Germany, and Karlshamn in Sweden, to Klaipėda on Lithuania's Baltic coast (dfdsseaways.co.uk).

GETTING AROUND

Buses are slightly quicker, more frequent and more expensive than trains. It's best to buy long-distance bus tickets in advance, and opt for an express (ekspresas), to avoid frequent stops. You can also pay for your ticket on board, although this doesn't guarantee you a seat.

You should also buy long-distance train tickets in advance – stations have separate windows for long-distance and suburban (priemiestinis or vietinis) trains. Long-distance services are divided into “passenger” (keleivinis traukinys) and “fast” (greitas); the latter usually require a reservation. On timetable boards, look for isvyksta (departure) or atvyksta (arrival).

In Vilnius and Kaunas public transport is frequent and efficient: buses, trolleybuses and route taxis cover most of the city. The Curonian Spit is best explored by bicycle; bike rentals are inexpensive and plentiful.

ACCOMMODATION

A good way to keep accommodation costs down is by staying in private rooms, which typically cost €35–40 with breakfast. The most reliable agency for these is Litinterp (litinterp.com), which has offices and guesthouses in Vilnius, Kaunas and Klaipėda; the latter can book rooms in Palanga and on the Curonian Spit. Spartan double rooms in budget hotels can cost as little as €30; smarter mid-range places charge €40–60.

There are an increasing number of hostels, especially in Vilnius and Kaunas, usually charging €10–15 per night for a dorm bed; it's best to reserve in advance. There are also plenty of campsites in rural areas; expect to pay €3–6 per person, plus the same per tent.

FOOD AND DRINK

Lithuanian cuisine is based on traditional rural fare. Typical starters include marinated mushrooms (marinuoti grybai), herring (silke) and smoked sausage (rukya deša) along with cold beetroot soup (saltibarsčiai). A popular national dish is cepelinai, or zeppelins – cylindrical potato parcels stuffed with meat, mushrooms or cheese. Others include potato pancakes (bulviniai blynai), and koldūnai – ravioli-like parcels filled with meat or mushroom. Popular beer snacks include deep-fried sticks of black bread with garlic (kepta duona) and smoked pigs' ears. Pancakes (blynai, blyneliai or lietiniai) come in a plethora of sweet and savoury varieties.

Most cafés and bars serve reasonably priced food. Well-stocked supermarkets, such as Iki and Maxima, are found in the main cities and towns. Many restaurants are open between 11am and midnight daily, with cafés open from 8/9am and bars closing at 2am at the earliest.

Beer (alus) is popular, with big local brands like Švyturis, Utenos and Kalnapilis competing with a healthy microbrewery scene. Also popular is mead (midus), Lithuania's former nobleman's drink. The leading local firewaters are Starka, Trejos devynierios and Medžiotojų – invigorating spirits flavoured with herbs. Most bars in Vilnius and Kaunas follow contemporary international styles, although there are also plenty of folksy Lithuanian places, while cafés (kavinė) come in all shapes and sizes. Coffee (kava) and tea (arbata) are usually served black; ask for milk (pienas) and/or sugar (cukrus).

Forego international fizzy beverages in favour of gira (kvass), a refreshing drink made from fermented bread.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Many city dwellers enjoy a thoroughly modern lifestyle, but there is a stark difference between the towns and the far poorer rural Lithuania, where traditional culture remains firmly in place. If eating with locals, it is rude to refuse second helpings of food; when toasting someone, always look them in the eye. Always give an odd number of flowers when visiting Lithuanians, as even numbers are for the dead. Shaking hands across the threshold is bad luck. Family ties are strong, and extended family gatherings are common. Only tip in restaurants to reward good service; ten percent is fair.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Lithuania's top sport is basketball, and locals religiously follow the matches on TV. Try to catch a game at Vilnius's Siemens Arena (@siemensarena.lt). Lithuania's national parks, as well as the Curonian Spit, offer various opportunities for outdoor activities such as hiking, biking and canoeing.

COMMUNICATIONS

In major towns, post offices (pastas) are open Monday to Friday 8am to 6pm and

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

An ISIC or an IYTC card will usually get you fifty percent discount on museums and sights, as well as on public transport and some long-distance trains during term time. A YHA card gets discounts at HI-affiliated youth hostels, while ISIC/IYTC cards are accepted at any hostel.

Saturday 8am to 3pm; in smaller places hours are more restricted. Stamps are also available at some kiosks and tourist offices. Using an EU mobile phone in Lithuania will not incur any roaming charges; visitors from non-EU countries should contact their operator about charges, or consider buying a local prepaid SIM card with either Bitė, Omnitel or Tele 2 (€3). Most cafés and restaurants have free wi-fi.

EMERGENCIES

You're unlikely to meet trouble in Lithuania; pickpocketing, car theft and late-night mugging are the most common crimes. One common scam involves foreign men being accosted by beautiful women, who invite them for a drink in a nearby rip-off bar – the victims are then charged extortionate amounts for drinks. The police expect to be taken seriously, so be polite if you have dealings with them. Emergency health care is free, but if you get seriously ill, head home.

INFORMATION

Most major towns have tourist offices, often offering accommodation listings and event calendars in English. The In Your Pocket guides to Vilnius, Kaunas and Klaipėda (available from bookshops, newsstands, tourist offices and some hotels; 📍 inyourpocket.com; €2) are indispensable sources of practical information. Regional maps and detailed street plans of Vilnius are available in bookshops and kiosks.

MONEY AND BANKS

Lithuania adopted the euro (€) in January 2015. Bank (bankas) opening hours vary widely from one firm to another (Mon–Fri 8am–3/4pm is a fairly typical schedule). If you're looking to exchange money or get a cash advance outside banking hours, find an exchange office (valiutos keitykla). There are plentiful ATMs in all major towns as well as at the Curonian Spit; credit and debit cards are widely accepted.

OPENING HOURS AND PUBLIC HOLIDAYS

Opening hours for shops are 9/10am to 6/7pm. Outside Vilnius, some places take an hour off for lunch; most close on Sunday (though some food shops stay open). Most shops and all banks close on the following public holidays: January 1, February 16, March 11, Easter Sunday, Easter Monday, May 1, June 24, July 6, August 15, November 1, December 25 and 26.

Vilnius

A cosmopolitan city with an ancient, Baroque heart, VILNIUS is relatively compact and easy to get to know, with a variety of inexpensive attractions and a lively nightlife. Its numerous churches and palaces jostle for space in the Old Town's winding cobbled alleys, where glitzy restaurants stand incongruously beside dilapidated old buildings. The large student population lends the place a tangible air of energy and optimism. Beguiling, and sometimes downright odd, Vilnius has an addictive quality.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

At the centre of Vilnius, poised between the medieval and nineteenth-century parts of the city, is Cathedral Square (Katedros aikštė). To the south of here along Pilies gatvė and Didžioji gatvė is the Old Town, containing perhaps the most impressive concentration of Baroque architecture in northern Europe. West of the square in the New Town is Gedimino prospektas, a nineteenth-century boulevard and the focus of the city's commercial and administrative life. The traditionally Jewish areas of Vilnius between the Old Town and Gedimino prospektas still retain some sights, and the community that once lived here is remembered in a brace of good museums.

Cathedral Square

Cathedral Square is dominated by the Neoclassical cathedral (daily 7am–7pm), which started out as a thirteenth-century wooden church built on the site of a pagan temple. The highlight of the airy, vaulted interior is the opulent Chapel of St Casimir, the patron saint of Lithuania. Next to the cathedral on the square is the white belfry, once part of the fortifications of the vanished Lower Castle. Between the cathedral and the belfry lies a small coloured tile with stebuklas (miracle) written on it, marking the spot from where, in 1989, two million people formed a human chain that stretched all the way to Tallinn, Estonia, to protest against Soviet occupation.

The Grand Dukes' Palace

Immediately behind the cathedral stands the Grand Dukes' Palace (Valdovu rūmai; Tues, Wed, Fri & Sat 10am–6pm, Thurs 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–4pm; €3; @valdovurumai.lt), a twenty-first-century reconstruction of a Renaissance palace that fell into ruin at the end of the eighteenth century. Rebuilt more or less accurately by following old paintings and drawings, the courtyard-edged complex now holds a sumptuous collection of furnishings and artworks displayed in over thirty rooms, reflecting the opulent style in which Lithuania's Grand Dukes might once have lived.

Gediminas Castle and Museum

Rising behind Cathedral Square is the tree-clad Castle Hill, its summit crowned by the red-brick Gediminas Castle – one of the city's best-known landmarks – founded by Grand Duke Gediminas, the Lithuanian ruler who consolidated the country's independence. The tower houses a small museum (daily: April–Sept 10am–9pm; Oct–March 10am–6pm; €4), with models showing the former extent of Vilnius's fortifications. The view of the Old Town from the top is unparalleled. Take the funicular (same times as castle museum; €2 return) from the courtyard of the Applied Art Museum.

The Lithuanian National Museum

About 100m north of the cathedral, the Lithuanian National Museum, at Arsenalo 1 (Lietuvos Nacionalinis Muziejus; Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €2; @lnm.lt), traces the history of Lithuania from the Middle Ages to 1940: its fascinating collection of folk crafts, paintings and photographs includes a display of wooden crucifixes and ethnographic reconstructions of peasant life. A little further north on Arsenalo, the much snazzier Prehistoric Lithuania Exhibition (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €2) displays flint, iron, bronze and silver objects covering the history of Lithuanians up to the Middle Ages.

The National Art Gallery

On the north side of the River Neris, on Konstitucijos 22, the National Art Gallery

(Nacionalinė Dailės Galerija; Tues, Wed, Fri & Sat 11am–7pm, Thurs noon–8pm, Sun 11am–5pm; ndg.lt; €2) houses a permanent display of eleven galleries of Lithuanian art since 1900, as well as temporary exhibitions. The works explore Lithuania's frequently dramatic historical context of war, independence and Soviet occupation; check out the photo documentaries of Antanas Sutkus in particular.

The Old Town

The Old Town, just south of Cathedral Square, is a network of narrow, often cobbled streets that forms the Baroque heart of Vilnius, with the pedestrianized Pilies gatvė cutting into it from the southeastern corner of the square. To the west of this street is Vilnius University, constructed between the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries around nine linked courtyards that extend west to Universiteto gatvė. Within its precincts is the beautiful Baroque St John's Church (Šv. Jono baznyčia), founded during the fourteenth century, taken over by the Jesuits in 1561.

St Anne's Church and Užupis

Napoleon Bonaparte, who stayed in Vilnius briefly during his ill-fated campaign against Russia in 1812, is said to have been so impressed by St Anne's Church, on Maironio gatvė (Šv. Onos Bažnyčia; May–Sept Tues–Sun 10am–6pm), that he wanted to take it back to Paris on the palm of his hand. Studded with skeletal, finger-like towers, its facade overlaid with intricate brick traceries and fluting, this late sixteenth-century structure is the finest Gothic building in the capital. Just south of St Anne's, a bridge over the River Vilnia forms the border of the self-declared independent republic of Užupis, home to a flourishing population of artists, bohemians and yuppies. Stroll up from Užupio Café across the bridge to find a gaggle of bars and art galleries as well as the Užupis Angel, a trumpet-blowing statue unveiled in April 2001.

Town Hall Square and around

West of Užupis, Pilies gatvė becomes Didžioji gatvė as it heads south, with the restored Baroque palace at no. 4 housing the Vilnius Picture Gallery (Vilniaus Paveikslų Galerija; Tues–Sat 11am–6pm, Sun noon–5pm; €2), with a marvellous collection of sixteenth- to nineteenth-century paintings. The colonnaded Neoclassical building at the end of Town Hall Square (Rotušės aikštė) is the Town Hall itself. The Contemporary Art Centre (Suolaikinio meno centras or SMC; Tues–Sun noon–8pm; €2.50; @cac.lt) lies behind it, hosting modern art exhibitions with interactive elements and a good café. East of the square is the striking St Casimir's Church (Šv. Kazimiero Bažnyčia; Mon–Fri 4.30–6.30pm, Sun 9am–1.30pm), the oldest Baroque church in the city, dating from 1604, and possessing a beautiful interior including a marble altarpiece.

South of here, Didžioji becomes Aušros Vartų gatvė, leading to the Gate of Dawn (Aušros Vartų), the sole survivor of the nine city gates. A chapel above the gate houses the image of the Madonna of the Gates of Dawn, said to have miraculous powers and revered by Catholics from all over Lithuania and Poland; open-air Mass is held on Sundays.

The synagogue

Today the Jewish population of Vilnius numbers only five thousand, and, out of over 100 that once existed, the city has just one surviving synagogue, built in 1903, at Pylimo 39 (daily except Sat 10am–2pm; free).

Jewish Museum

The Vilna Gaon Jewish State Museum (Valstybinis Vilniaus Gaono Žydų Muziejus; @www.jmuseum.lt) is housed in two separate branches. The Holocaust Exhibition in the so-called Green House at Pamėnkalnio 12 (Mon–Thurs

JEWISH VILNIUS

Before World War II, Vilnius was one of the most important centres of Jewish life in Eastern Europe. The Jews – first invited to settle in 1410 by Grand Duke Vytautas – made up around a third of the city's population, mainly concentrated in the western fringes of the Old Town around present-day Vokiečių gatvė, Žydų gatvė and Antokolskio gatvė. Massacres of the Jewish population began soon after the Germans occupied Vilnius on June 24, 1941, and those who survived the initial killings found themselves herded into two ghettos. The smaller of these ghettos centred on the streets of Žydų, Antokolskio, Stiklių and Gaono, and was liquidated in October 1941, while the larger occupied an area between Pylimo, Vokiečių, Lydos, Mikalojaus, Karmelitų and Arklių streets, and was liquidated in September 1943. Most of Vilnius's 80,000 Jewish residents perished in Paneriai forest, 10km southwest of the city.

9am–5pm, Fri 9am–4pm, Sun 10am–4pm; €3; combined ticket with Tolerance Centre €5) contains a harrowing display on the fate of Vilnius and Kaunas Jews during World War II, including eyewitness accounts, and many extremely disturbing photographs with some captions in English. The most recent addition to the Jewish State Museum is the Tolerance Centre, Naugarduko 10/2 (Mon–Thurs 10am–6pm, Fri & Sun 10am–4pm; €3; combined ticket with Holocaust Exhibition €5), housing some excellent twentieth-century Jewish artwork and an engrossing display charting the history of Jews in Lithuania from the fourteenth century until the present day.

Frank Zappa statue

On Kalinausko Street, the bronze head of rocker Frank Zappa is perched on a column against a backdrop of street art. Civil servant Saulis Paukstys founded the local Zappa fan club and, in 1992, commissioned the socialist-realist sculptor Konstantinas Bogdanas to create this unique memorial.

Gedimino prospektas and the Genocide Museum

Gedimino prospektas, running west from Cathedral Square, is the most important commercial street. On the southern side of Lukiskiu aikšte, a square around 900m west of Cathedral Square, is Gedimino 40, Lithuania's former KGB headquarters. The building also served as Gestapo headquarters during the German occupation, and, more recently, the Soviets incarcerated political prisoners in the basement. It's now the Genocide Museum, entrance at Aukų 2a (Genocido aukų muziejus; Wed–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 10am–5pm; €4; genocid.lt/muziejus) with torture cells and an execution chamber that make a grim impression. Well-labelled, detailed exhibits on Soviet occupation, deportation and Lithuanian partisan resistance are upstairs; the optional English-language audio commentary (€3) is worthwhile if you want a detailed prison tour.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport is 5km south of the centre, with regular trains to the central station (every 30min, 6.30am–7.30pm; 7min; €1). Buses #1 and #2 (every 30min; 20min; €1) will also take you to the centre. A taxi costs around €15.

By train The main train station is at Geležinkelio 16, with 24hr luggage storage in the basement, a 24hr currency exchange, ATMs, detailed timetables, information office and a Maxima supermarket.

Destinations Kaunas (every 30min; 1hr 15min–1hr 45min); Klaipėda (4 daily; 3hr 50min–4hr 35min); Moscow (1–2 daily; 13–15hr); St Petersburg (2 weekly; 18hr 30min); Trakai (8 daily; 35min).

By bus The bus terminal, just across the road from the train station, has luggage storage and an ATM.

Destinations Kaunas (every 20–30min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Klaipėda (hourly; 4hr); Nida (via Klaipėda; 1 daily at 7am; 5hr 50min); Palanga (10 daily; 5hr); Riga (8 daily; 5hr–5hr 30min); Tallinn (5 daily; 9–10hr); Trakai (every 30min; 30min); Warsaw (2 daily; 8hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The two main tourist office branches at Vilniaus 22 (daily 9am–6pm; ☎ 5262 9660, vilnius-tourism.lt) and Didžioji 31, in the town hall (daily 9am–1pm and 2–6pm; ☎ 5262 6470), offer advice on accommodation, events listings and festivals (vilniusfestivals.lt).

GETTING AROUND

By bus Tickets cost €1 from newspaper kiosks or from the driver. Validate your ticket by punching it in the machine on board. An electronic ticket (vliniečio kortelė; €1.50 deposit) is more useful if you're travelling around, and can be topped up in increments of €3.50/€6.20/€12 for 1/3/10 days.

By taxi Prices are usually reasonable and fares should cost no more than €0.60/km. Phoning ahead guarantees you a better rate; try Ekipažas (☎ 1446).

ACCOMMODATION

B+B+B+B+B Kauno 5 ☎ 6264 5614, 5bhostelvilnius.com. In the same building as Kablys club (see p.707), this won't appeal to early risers. There is however a good mix of dorms and private rooms, in an intelligently designed thrift-chic space. Late breakfast €3 extra in the Kablys café. Dorms €12, doubles €30

★ Bernardinų B&B House Bernardinų 5 ☎ 6720 3277, bernardinuhouse.com. Great-value B&B with spacious, tastefully decorated rooms, all with cable TV and some en suite. Offers excursions throughout Lithuania. Breakfast €4 extra. Doubles €45

Downtown Forest Paupio 31a ☎ 6868 4523, downtownforest.lt. A large suburban mansion some fifteen minutes' walk east of the Old Town, with neat bright dorms and private rooms, and a large garden with tent space. It also has an outdoor bar and bike rental: breakfast is included. Dorms €10, doubles €40

Downtown Market Pylimo 57 6798 5476, downtownmarket.lt. A quirky, friendly boutique hotel close to the Gate of Dawn. The six en-suite rooms are each decorated in market themes (flower market, flea market etc). Organic breakfast included. Doubles €40

Hostelgate Aušros Vartų 17-1 6383 2818, hostelgate.lt. This bustling central hostel, run by outgoing, helpful staff, offers clean dorms, kitchen, table football and wi-fi. Organized excursions include sauna tours and trips to fire weaponry in the countryside. Private doubles are located a few streets away at Mikalojaus 3. Dorms €9, doubles €32

★ Jimmy Jumps House Savičiaus 12 5231 3847, jimmyjumpshouse.com. Difficult to find but worth it, this backpackers' hostel has a great party feel and offers free walking tours of Vilnius. Kitchen and breakfast included. Dorms €10, doubles €32

Litinterp Bernardinų 7 5212 3850, litinterp.com. Stay in this central guesthouse with airy, comfortable rooms and shared bathrooms and kitchenettes. Book in advance in summer. Breakfast delivered to your door for an extra €3. Doubles €46

Pogo Hostel Barboros Radvilaitės 3-1 6846 7060, facebook.com/pogohostel. A bright, neatly renovated town house in the heart of the action, with modern design touches and pop art on the walls. Dorms €15, doubles €42

EATING

There's a fast-growing range of eating options in Vilnius plus a variety of cuisines. Bars and cafés serve both snacks and meals, and often represent better value for money than restaurants.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Coffee Inn Vilniaus 17; also at Vokiečių 18. It may be a café chain, but it's local and has character, boasting homely mix-and-match furnishings and a young crowd. Excellent coffee, smoothies, muffins, sandwiches, wraps – and cheesecake to die for. Mon–Fri 7am–midnight, Sat & Sun 8am–midnight.

Forto Dvaras Pilies 16. An excellent place to try fairly authentic cepelinai (€4), which come with a variety of fillings as well as the usual minced meat version, or stuffed potato pancakes (€3.50). Cheap, tasty and filling. Daily 11am–11pm.

Gusto Blyninė Aušros Vartų 6. Substantial, tasty crêpes with every imaginable sweet or savoury filling (€2.50). A good place to enjoy Lithuania's legendary potato pancakes, served with lashings of sour cream and bacon bits. Daily 9am–10pm.

Wok To Walk Vilniaus 19. A great little spot where you choose from an array of noodles, rice, vegetables and sauce, all wok-fried in front of you. Quick and tasty. Mains €4. Mon–Thurs 11am–10pm, Fri 11am–3am, Sat noon–midnight, Sun noon–8pm.

RESTAURANTS

Alinė Leičiai Stiklių 4. Quality Lithuanian food in a part modern, part medieval building, offering filling inexpensive staples (cepelinai; €4.50) as well as hearty feasting fare (pork knuckle marinated in beer; €10). They brew their own ales too; try the hemp beer (€3/0.5lt). Daily 11am–midnight.

Balti Dramblių Vilniaus 41. Vegetarian restaurant with a loyal, mildly bohemian clientele, in a many-chambered, red-brick basement decorated with pictures of deities. Tasty, inexpensive tofu-based stews with couscous or rice form the backbone of the menu. Live bands and DJs on summer weekends lend a clubby feel. Mains €4. Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–10pm, Fri & Sat noon–midnight.

La Bohème Šv Ignoto 4/3 5212 1087. Wine bar-cum-restaurant in a fine barrel-vaulted setting. Food is modern European with a Mediterranean slant, including excellent risottos, pastas and tapas-style nibbles. Lived-in wooden furnishings and candles add to the atmosphere. Mains €8–11. Mon–Wed 11am–midnight, Thurs 11am–1am, Fri 11am–2am, Sat noon–2am, Sun noon–midnight.

Lokys Stiklių 8 5262 9046. Cosy Lithuanian cellar restaurant specializing in well-cooked game dishes that are worth the splurge. Beaver stew with mushrooms €12; quail with pear and blackberry sauce €16. Daily noon–midnight.

Meat Lovers Šv Ignoto 14. This small, smart and functional restaurant serves expertly grilled steaks (€15) and succulent pork roasts (€8), washed down with tasty small-brewery Lithuanian beers (€2.70/0.5lt). Mon–Fri 11.30am–midnight, Sat noon–midnight, Sun noon–8pm.

★ Sue's Indian Raja Odminių 3 5266 1888. One of the best restaurants in town, this place is popular with expats and locals alike. Gorge yourself on excellent curry (€9–12), though be warned that the dishes are authentically spicy. Mon & Sun 11am–10pm, Tues–Sat 11am–11pm.

Vieta Šv Ignoto 12. Vegetarian restaurant and wine bar with a regularly changing menu of soups, stews and pies, many with an East-West fusion approach to the spicing. Only problem is they tend to run out of mains come the evening. Mains €4–7. Daily noon–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

A rapidly developing bar strip along Vilniaus gatvė (and adjacent Islandijos) has given Vilnius a new-found every-night-of-the-week buzz. Most bars are open late and many feature DJs at weekends, offering effective competition to the pay-to-enter disco clubs.

BARS

Bambalynė Stiklių 7. A vaulted brick cellar harbours this popular beer shop and bar selling over 100 Lithuanian beers – including a handful of its own tasty brews at €3/0.5lt. Furnished with chairs and tables that look like they belonged to impoverished nineteenth-century aristocrats, it's delightfully odd. Tues–Sat 11am–midnight, Sun & Mon 11am–10pm.

Dėvėti vyrai Sodų 3. Just outside the Old Town but still within bar-crawl distance, this dark but welcoming bar serves beers from the renowned Dundulis brewery and decent cocktails. Cheap set lunches bring in a discerning daytime crowd on weekdays. Mon–Fri 9am–1am, Sat & Sun 5pm–1am.

Gringo Vilniaus 31. Animated and cheerful café-bar with sofas and tables in the back corner and a constant crush around the bar. One of the key stations on the Vokiečių-Vilniaus crawl, it attracts a fair crowd come the weekend. Mon–Wed & Sun 11am–2am, Thurs 11am–3am, Fri & Sat 3pm–4am.

In Vino Aušros vartų 7. Wine bar and much more besides, with candlelight and wooden chairs and tables creating a nineteenth-century French-farmhouse-kitchen feel in the main room, and a more loungey area around the corner. Background jazz and chansons create a bit of extra class. Sun–Thurs 4pm–2am, Fri & Sat 4pm–4am.

Pianoman Story Bar Islandijos 1. One of a string of bars along Islandijos, Pianoman is in many ways the ideal pub – a good place to sit and talk, watch midweek sport on TV, or enjoy the raw party mood come the weekend. Mon–Thurs 5pm–2am.

Snekutis Šv. Stepono 8. An excellent place to sample microbrews and ales from all over Lithuania (€2.50/0.5lt). The rustic decor and tasty bar snacks are a nice touch. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm.

Tappo D'oro Vokiečių 8. Wine bar with a mildly bohemian edge – it's constantly full of everyone from students to established cultural figures, with the weekend fun usually extending out onto the pavement. Mon–Sat 5pm–4am.

Who Hit John Didžioji 19. This cupboard-sized bar with barely room to swing a cocktail umbrella has become something of a cult thanks in large part to its eclectic music policy and equally eclectic clientele. Very good for cocktails, a list of which is chalked up above the bar. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8pm–5am, Fri & Sat 8pm–6am.

CLUBS

Kablys Kauno 5 @facebook.com/kabylsvilnius. Housed in an elegantly colonnaded Soviet-era cultural centre, "The Hook" has long been at the centre of indie activity in Vilnius, with regular alt-rock gigs, and DJ nights from hip-hop to dub reggae. Daily 11am–2am.

Loftas Švitrigailos 29 @menufabrikas.lt. A big post-industrial space that hosts hands-in-the-air DJ events as well as gigs by international jazz and rock acts. Thurs–Sat 10pm–4am.

Salento Disco Pub Didžioji 28. Various themed nights (most involving foam), cheesy pop tunes, large TV screens and a young and up-for-it crowd. Entry €3. Daily 10pm–6am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Forum Cinemas Akropolis Ozo 25 @forumcinemas.lt. Modern, multi-screen cinema in Vilnius's largest shopping mall, showing the latest blockbusters in original language, with subtitles. Entry €6.

Opera & Ballet Theatre Vienuolio 1 @5262 0727, @opera.lt. Stunning building featuring well-attended performances by local opera and ballet companies.

Skalvija Goštauto 2/15 @5261 0505, @skalvija.lt. International art films are shown in this central venue by the river. Entry €3–5.

Vilnius Congress Concert Hall Vilniaus 6/14 @5261 8828, @lvso.lt. Chamber music, orchestra performances and ballet.

SHOPPING

Akropolis Ozo 25. Huge shopping complex around 3km north of town with a variety of clothing and jewellery shops, plus an indoor ice rink and the Vichy Aqua Park with water slides (€20). Daily 8am–10pm.

Ambler Aušros Vartų 9. An extensive array of amber jewellery and handicrafts. Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun till 5pm.

Senamiesčio Krautuvė Literatų 5. Fresh Lithuanian fare including pickles, sausages and cakes, all laid out in baskets for you to sample. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 11am–5pm.

DIRECTORY

Banks and exchange ATMs are plentiful. Citadele, outside the station at Geležinkelio 6 (24hr), changes money at decent rates.

Embassies and consulates Australia, Vilnius 23 @5212 3369; Canada, Jogailos 4 @5249 0950; Ireland, Gedimino 1 @5262 9460; UK, Antakalnio 2 @5246 2900; US, Akmenų 6 @5266 5500.

Hospital Vilnius University Emergency Hospital, Šiltnamių 29 @5216 9069.

Left luggage Train station has 24hr luggage storage in the basement. Bus station also has baggage room (5.30am–9.45pm).

Pharmacy Eurovaistinė, Gedimino 18 (Mon–Fri 7am–9pm, Sat 9am–9pm, Sun 9am–8pm); Gedimino Vaistinė, Gedimino 27 (Mon–Fri 7.30am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm).

Police Saltoniškių 19 @5271 9731.

Post office Gedimino prospektas 7 (Mon–Fri 7.30am–7pm, Sat 9am–4pm).

TRAKAI

Around 30km west of Vilnius lies the little town of TRAKAI, a mix of concrete Soviet-style buildings merging with the wooden cottages of the Karaite community, Lithuania's smallest ethnic minority. Standing on a peninsula jutting out between two lakes, Trakai is the site of two impressive medieval castles and makes for a worthwhile day-trip from the capital.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Once you arrive, follow Vytauto gatvė and turn right down Kėstučio gatvė to reach the remains of the Peninsula Castle, now partially restored after having been destroyed by the Russians in 1655. Skirting the ruins along the lakeside path, you will see the spectacular Island Castle (Salos pilis), one of Lithuania's most famous monuments, accessible by two wooden drawbridges and preceded by souvenir and rowing-boat rental (€5) stalls. You can also rent yachts here (€25 for 40min cruise with skipper). Built around 1400 AD by Grand Duke Vytautas, under whom Lithuania reached the pinnacle of its power, the castle fell into ruin from the seventeenth century until a 1960s restoration returned it to its former glory (May–Sept daily 10am–7pm; March, April & Oct Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; Nov–Feb Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €6, students €3, permission to take photos €2). The history museum inside displays artefacts discovered while excavating the site.

Trakai is home to three hundred Karaïm – a Judaic sect of Turkish origin whose ancestors were brought here from the Crimea by Grand Duke Vytautas to serve as bodyguards. You can learn more about their cultural contribution to Trakai at the Karaite Ethnographic Exhibition, 22 Karaïmų gatvė (Wed–Sun 10am–5pm; €1.50).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus and train Take a bus from Vilnius's main bus station (at least one hourly; 35min; last bus from Trakai at 8.45pm) or a train (8 daily; 35min).

EATING

Kybynlar Karaïmų 29. Several places in Trakai serve kibinai, traditional Karaite pasties stuffed with minced meat, mushrooms or other savoury fillings. This place, just off the main street, has the biggest choice (€2–3 per pasty), as well as grilled meats and salads. Wash it down with gira, a semi-alcoholic drink made from fermented bread. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–9pm, Fri & Sat noon–10pm.

The rest of Lithuania

Lithuania is predominantly rural – a gently undulating, densely forested landscape scattered with lakes, and fields dotted with ambling storks in the summer. The major city of Kaunas, west of the capital, rivals Vilnius in terms of its historical importance. Further west, the main highlights of the coast are the Curonian Spit, whose dramatic dune-scapes can be reached by ferry and bus from Klaipėda, and Palanga, which fills up in summer with thousands of people looking for fun.

KAUNAS

KAUNAS, 98km west of Vilnius and easily reached by bus or rail, is Lithuania's second city, seen by many Lithuanians as the true heart of their country; it served as provisional capital during the interwar period of 1920–39. It is undergoing rapid modernization, with the mirror-like exteriors of new buildings reflecting parts of the medieval city wall. While much of Kaunas is a busy urban sprawl, visitors will invariably be drawn to the old heart of the city where the main attractions lie.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The most picturesque part of Kaunas is the Old Town (Senamiestis), centred on Town Hall Square (Rotušės aikštė), on a spur of land between the Neris and Nemunas rivers. The square is lined with fifteenth- and sixteenth-century merchants' houses in pastel stucco shades, but the overpowering feature is the magnificent Town Hall itself, its tiered Baroque facade rising to a graceful 53m tower.

The cathedral and castle

Occupying the northeastern shoulder of the square, the red-brick tower of Kaunas's austere cathedral stands at the western end of Vilniaus gatvė. Dating back to the reign of Vytautas the Great, the cathedral was much added to in subsequent centuries. After the plain exterior, the lavish gilt-and-marble interior comes as a surprise; the large, statue-adorned Baroque high altar (1775) steals the limelight. Predating the cathedral by several centuries is Kaunas Castle, whose scant remains survive just northwest of the square. Little more than a restored tower and a couple of sections of wall are left, with temporary art exhibitions inside (€2), but in its day the fortification was a major obstacle to the Teutonic Knights.

The New Town

The main thoroughfare of Kaunas's New Town is Laisvės alėja (Freedom Avenue), a broad, pedestrianized shopping street running east from the Old Town. At the junction with L. Sapiegos the street is enlivened by a bronze statue of Vytautas the Great facing the City Garden. Here, a contemporary memorial composed of horizontal metal shards commemorates the 19-year-old student Romas Kalanta, who immolated himself in protest against Soviet rule on May 14, 1972 and whose death sparked anti-Soviet rioting. Towards the eastern end of Laisvės alėja, the silver-domed Church of St Michael the Archangel looms over Independence Square (Nepriklausomybės aikštė). The striking modern building in the northeast corner, with the controversial naked "Man" statue in front, is one of the best art galleries in the country, the Mykolas Žilinskas Art Museum (Tues, Wed, Fri–Sun 11am–5pm, Thurs 11am–7pm; €2), housing a collection of Egyptian artefacts, Japanese porcelain and Lithuania's only Rubens.

The museums

Just north of Unity Square (Vienybės aikštė), a block north of Laisvės, Kaunas has two unique art collections. The Devil Museum (Vėlinių Muziejus), at Putvinskio 64 (Tues, Wed, Fri–Sun 11am–5pm, Thurs 11am–7pm; €2), houses an entertaining collection of over 2000 devil and witch figures put together by the artist Antanas Žmuidzinavičius and donated from around the world. Diagonally opposite, at Putvinskio 55, the dreamy, symbolist paintings of Mikalojus Čiurlionis, Lithuania's cultural hero credited with the invention of abstract art, are on display in the vast M. K. Čiurlionis State Art Museum (Tues, Wed, Fri–Sun 11am–5pm, Thurs 11am–7pm; €2), along with excellent temporary exhibitions. Nearby, the Vytautas the Great Military Museum, at Donelaičio 64 (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €2), is an admirable introduction to the nation's dramatic history. Note the poignantly preserved wreckage of the Lituania, the plane flown across the Atlantic by pilots Darius and Girenas before crashing just short of Kaunas in 1933.

Christ's Resurrection Church

Heading east along V. Putvinskio from the Devil Museum, you'll come to a funicular, leading up to Kaunas's most striking modernist church, Christ's Resurrection Church (Kristaus Prisikėlimo Bažnyčia). A marvel or an eyesore? You decide. Designed by Latvian Kārlis Reisons, the man also responsible for the city's Military Museum, its 70m tower offers sweeping views of Kaunas (€2).

Jewish Kaunas

Kaunas has experienced its share of anti-Jewish violence, both during local pogroms and then under the Nazis. During World War II, the city's large Jewish population was all but wiped out; all that remains is the city's sole surviving synagogue at Ožėškienės 13 in the New Town, which sports a wonderful sky-blue interior (services Sat 10am–noon) and a memorial to the 1700 children who perished at the Ninth Fort (see below). The small and austere former Japanese consulate, at Vaižganto 30 on the other side of the city, is now a museum to Chiune Sugihara (May–Oct Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; Nov–April Mon–Fri 11am–3pm; €3), the consul who saved thousands of Jewish lives during the war by issuing Japanese visas against orders.

The Ninth Fort Museum, at Žemaičių plantas 73 (Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–6pm; €3), 24km northwest of the centre, is housed in the tsarist-era fortress where Jews were kept by the Nazis while awaiting execution: exhibits cover extermination of Jews by the Nazis and the deportation of Lithuanians by the Soviets. A massive, jagged stone memorial crowns the site. Take bus #35 from Kaunas bus station (every 30min) and get off at the IX Fortas stop.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Kaunas's international airport is located around 20km north of Kaunas. Bus #29 (€1) passes through the Old Town and stops at the main bus and train stations.

By bus and train Kaunas's bus and train stations are both along Vytauto at the southeastern end of the centre, a 10min walk from Laisvės alėja; take any trolleybus passing in front of the stations to the Old Town (€0.80). There is luggage storage at both, and an ATM out on the main street.

Destinations (train) Vilnius (every 30min; 1hr 15min–1hr 45min).

Destinations (bus) Klaipėda (hourly; 3hr); Nida (1 daily at 7am; 4hr 10min); Palanga (7 daily; 3hr 30min); Riga (9–14 daily; 4hr–4hr 30min); Tallinn (1 daily via Riga at 9pm; 9hr); Vilnius (every 20–30min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Warsaw (4 weekly; 7hr).

EATING

Bernelių Užėiga Valančiaus 9 ☎ 37 200 913. Dine on huge portions of meaty Lithuanian staples in an attractive rustic interior. Tuck in to traditional fare like rabbit stew with potato and red cabbage (€6.30), or a pile of potato pancakes with a choice of dips (€3.50). Mon–Wed & Sun 11am–11pm, Thurs 11am–midnight, Fri & Sat 11am–1am.

Coffee Inn Laisvės 72. Great coffee, smoothies and a good choice of wraps (€4), plus cosy sofas and free wi-fi. Mon–Fri 7am–10pm, Sat 10am–10pm, Sun 10am–9pm.

Pizzeria Milano Mickėvičiaus 19. Tucked away in a functional 1930s block, this busy but informal restaurant serves up fairly authentic pizzas (€4–6) and pasta dishes (€3–5). Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–1am, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Skliautas Rotušės 26. Set in a courtyard near the town hall, this small bar/restaurant has a brick-vaulted ceiling and evokes the atmosphere of the 1940s with old clocks, photos, candles and interwar music. Pork with cranberry sauce €4. Live gigs on the terrace in summer. Mon–Thurs 11am–midnight, Fri 11am–2am, Sat 11am–2am, Sun 11am–11pm.

★ Spurginė Laisvės 84. Traditional café that hasn't changed in decades, dishing out delicious springy Lithuanian doughnuts (spurgos), and also tasty small pies stuffed with cabbage, mushroom and other savoury fillings. Mon–Fri 8.30am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9am–7pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Avilys Vilniaus 34. Excellent microbrewery in a cosy cellar offering two types of honey-flavoured beer (€4/0.5lt), beer soup and a range of standard meat dishes and bar snacks. Wash down a plate of fried plums and bacon with a

HILL OF CROSSES

Up on a hill, 12km north of the town of Šiauliai, 188km northwest of Vilnius and 170km east of Klaipėda, lies the Hill of Crosses (Kryžių Kalnas), an ever-growing, awe-inspiring collection of more than 200,000 crosses, statues and effigies. There are many myths surrounding the Hill's origin, some dating back to pagan times, although the most plausible is that it was to commemorate rebels killed in nineteenth-century uprisings against the Russian Empire. In the Soviet era, they were planted by grieving families to commemorate killed and deported loved ones, and kept multiplying despite repeated bulldozing by the authorities. Today, crosses are often planted to give thanks for a happy event in a person's life. To get here, take a train to Šiauliai from Vilnius (5–8 daily; 2hr 30min) or Klaipėda (5 daily; 2hr) and then take a taxi (15min; €10).

pint of grog (warmed honey beer with extra honey and lemon). Mon–Fri noon–midnight, Fri & Sat noon–2am.

BarBar'a Vilnius 56. Dress smart, look beautiful and if you make it in, enjoy some cocktails along with Kaunas's pretty young things. Theme nights, happy hours and weekend DJs keep the crowd happy. Wed–Sat 11pm–5am.

B.O. Muitinės 9. This friendly, popular and unpretentious bar is one of the best places to hook up with a young, arty crowd. The choice of Lithuanian and international beers is among the best in the city. Mon–Thurs & Sun 5pm–2am, Fri & Sat 5pm–3am.

Džem Pub Laisvės 59. Take the lift up to this cosy bar with regular live bands, a good range of beers and a superb view of the city. Tues–Thurs 4pm–3am, Fri & Sat 6pm–4am.

Kavinė Kultūra Donelaičio 14–16. This laidback bohemian hangout with shabby-chic furnishings is a great place to snap up a set lunch (Mon–Fri only; €4) or enjoy a beer or few on the outdoor terrace. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–10pm, Fri & Sat noon–2am.

KLAIPĖDA

KLAIPĖDA, Lithuania's third-largest city and most important port, lies on the Baltic coast, 275km northwest of Vilnius. Home to an evocative Old Town and a medieval castle, the city serves as an ideal staging post en route to the Curonian Spit, or to the party town of Palanga.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Just east of the Old Town, Klaipėda's Old Castle Port is a former industrial zone renovated to create an attractive area of seaside promenades backed by nineteenth-century warehouses. It is reached via the cast-iron Swing Bridge, which is opened (by a manually operated cog mechanism) to allow boats into the marina once every hour. The nearby Castle Museum (Pilies muziejus; Tues–Sat 10am–6pm; €1.80) tells the history of the city through a varied collection of exhibits – from medieval weapons to Renaissance ceramics.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus and train Klaipėda's train and bus stations lie on opposite sides of Priestoties gatvė, a 10min walk north of the Old Town.

Destinations (train) Vilnius (4 daily; 3hr 50min–4hr 35min).

Destinations (bus) Kaunas (hourly; 3hr); Nida (direct: 1–2 Fri–Sun; from Smiltynė: 8 daily; 50min); Palanga (every 30min; 30min); Riga (4 daily; 4–5hr); Vilnius (hourly; 4hr).

By ferry The old ferry terminal at Pilies 4 – which you'll want instead of the new ferry terminal at Nemuno 8 if you don't have a car – has regular departures to Smiltynė, the gateway to the Curonian Spit.

Destinations Smiltynė (June–Aug every 30min, 5am–2am; Sept–May at least 1 hourly, 7am–9pm; 15min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The tourist office in the Old Town at Turgaus 7 (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–4pm; ☎46 412 186, 🌐klaipėdinfo.lt) stocks the excellent Klaipėda in Your Pocket (€1).

ACCOMMODATION

Klaipėda Hostel Butkų Jūzės 7–4 ☎6559 4407, 🌐klaipėdahostel.com. Handy if you arrive late, this basic but friendly HI-affiliated hostel is located right next to the bus station. Dorms €11

Litinterp Guest House Puodžių 17 ☎46 410 644, 🌐litinterp.lt. A 15min walk west along S. Daukanto gatvė from the bus and train stations, this is a better bet than Klaipėda Hostel, with clean, attractive rooms and a facility for booking private rooms in Klaipėda or Nida (see p.714). Reception open: Mon–Fri 8.30am–7pm, Sat 10am–3pm. Doubles €40

EATING AND DRINKING

Ararat Liepų 48a. An outstanding Armenian establishment serving tender, delicately spiced grilled meats (from €7), excellent red wine, and Armenian "Ararat" cognac. Mon–Sat noon–midnight, Sun 1–11pm.

Herkus Kantas Kepėjų 17. Welcoming Old Town cellar pub with a magnificent array of Lithuanian and international beers. The food menu features everything from Irish stew to quiche, with plenty of bar snacks in between. Tues–Sat 5pm–1am.

PALANGA

Around 25km north of Klaipėda, PALANGA is Lithuania's top seaside resort – and party central in the summer.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Palanga's biggest attraction is its white, 18km-long sandy beach; throughout the summer months it hosts a number of outdoor all-night music events. The wooden pier, jutting into the sea at the end of Basanavičiaus gatvė, is where families and couples gather to watch the sunset (around 10pm in July).

From the beach, head east along pedestrian Basanavičiaus with the rest of the human tide, past the street musicians and vendors, countless restaurants, arcade games, amusement park rides and amber stalls. You can dance until morning at one of the clubs on Vytauto gatvė, the main street, or on S. Darius ir S. Girėno gatvė, which leads off Vytauto gatvė to the beach.

The lush Botanical Garden (Botanikos Sodas) houses a fascinating Amber Museum (June–Aug Tues–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–7pm; Sept–May Tues–Sat 11am–5pm, Sun 11am–4pm; €2.30; pgm.lt) displaying around 25,000 pieces of “Baltic Gold”, many with insects and plants trapped inside.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station on Kretingos gatvė is a couple of blocks away from Basanavičiaus gatvė, the main tourist street.

Destinations Kaunas (7 daily; 3hr 30min); Klaipėda (every 30min; 30min); Riga via Liepāja (1 daily at 11.15am; 4hr 30min); Vilnius (10 daily; 5hr).

Tourist information Vytauto 94 (June–Aug Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–4pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 10am–2pm; ☎ 460 48811, palangatic.lt). Helpful, multilingual staff can book private rooms, organize excursions and provide information on events in and around town.

ACCOMMODATION

Due to the town's immense summertime popularity, advance bookings are advised. Otherwise the cheapest option is to haggle with the locals holding up “Nuomojami kambariai” (rooms for rent) signs as the bus enters Palanga, although the quality may vary considerably. Outside high season prices can fall to around half of those quoted below.

Ema Jurasės gatvė 32 ☎ 460 48608, ema.lt. This brightly painted guesthouse has seven cute rooms with TV, most featuring cosy attic ceilings, plus a colourfully decorated café on site. Doubles €44

Vandenis Birutės 47 ☎ 460 53530, vandenis.lt. A comfortable hotel away from the bustle, home to a good café-restaurant with outdoor seating and a live music club. All rooms are en suite and have cable TV. Breakfast included. Doubles €70

Vila Ramybė Vytauto 54 ☎ 460 54124, vilaramybe.lt. A great boutique hotel with colourful themed rooms, all en suite and some with kitchen or balcony. The restaurant-bar downstairs is one of the best in town. Breakfast included. Doubles €70

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

1925 Basanavičiaus 4. Bar-restaurant resembling a log cabin, with a rustic wooden interior and an open fire in winter. Also has a pleasant patio garden. Mains around €8. Daily 10am–midnight.

Čagino Basanavičiaus 14. With its glass-box architecture and patio seating, this bright Russian restaurant is good for people-watching and ample portions of hearty meat dishes (€9), soups and pancakes. Daily noon–midnight.

Exit Nėries 39. Two-tiered entertainment: lively disco with kitschy decor upstairs, and a packed nightclub downstairs. Upstairs Mon–Thurs & Sun 7pm–3am, Fri & Sat 9pm–6am; downstairs daily 10pm–6am.

Laukinių Vakarų Salūnas Basanavičiaus 16. Packed with a young crowd and offering nightly karaoke and wet T-shirt competitions plus the occasional live band. Cocktails around €5. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9pm–5am, Fri & Sat 9pm–6am.

★ Žuvinė Basanavičiaus 37a. Fish restaurant with books on the shelves and a smart interior; the generous portions of well-prepared seafood dishes, such as monkfish in spinach sauce (€26) or mussels in white wine (€12), cannot be faulted. Daily 11am–midnight.

THE CURONIAN SPIT

Shared between Lithuania and Russia's Kaliningrad province, the CURONIAN SPIT is a 98km sliver of land characterized by vast sand dunes and pine forests. Much of the Lithuanian stretch is covered by the Curonian Spit National Park (nerija.lt). Some of the area can be seen as a day-trip from Klaipėda, though it really warrants a stay of several days to soak up the unique atmosphere.

CYCLING THE SPIT

The best way to explore the Curonian Spit is by cycling along well-marked biking trails that meander through pine forest and along the sand dunes. Juodkrantė, 30km away from Nida, is home to Witches' Hill (Raganų kalnas), an entertaining wooden sculpture trail in the woods with wonderfully macabre statues of devils, witches and folk heroes. Vila Flora, right on Juodkrantė's waterfront, serves simple but excellent fresh fish (€6–8) and pancakes (€3.70). Heading back towards Nida, stop off at the side of the road to catch a glimpse of the huge heron and cormorant colony in the trees. When passing through Preila, look for the rukya žuvis (smoked fish) signs and stop at a smokery for some delicious samples, cheaper here than in Nida. Numerous informal bike rental stalls pop up throughout central Nida in summer (€3/hr, €10/day).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By ferry and minibus Ferries depart from the quayside towards the end of Žvejų gatvė in Klaipėda (€0.80 return), sailing to Smiltynė on the northern tip of the spit. From the landing stage, frequent minibuses (€3.40) run south towards more scenic parts of the spit, stopping at the villages of Juodkrantė, Pervalka and Preila, and terminating at Nida, 35km south.

NIDA

NIDA is the most famous village on the spit – a small fishing community boasting several streets of attractive blue- and brown-painted wooden houses. Although there are plenty of visitors in the summertime, it never feels crowded. There are several good restaurants on Naglių gatvė and Lotmiškio gatvė, as well as along the waterfront. From the end of Naglių, a shore path runs to a flight of wooden steps leading up to the top of the Parnidis dune south of the village. From the summit you can gaze out across a Saharan sandscape stretching to Russia's Kaliningrad province. Retrace the trail along the waterfront to see elaborate weather vanes with unique designs – each village has its own. Stop by the Neringa History Museum, Pamaris 53 (June–Aug daily 10am–6pm; Oct–May Tues–Sat 10am–5pm; €1), which traces the village's heritage through photos of crowd-eating locals and fishing paraphernalia. Also along Pamaris is the church cemetery, with krikštai – carved wooden grave monuments – placed upright at the foot of the resting body. Nida's long, luxuriant beach is on the opposite side of the spit, a thirty-minute walk through the forest from the village.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses from the mainland and from Smiltynė stop on Naglių, Nida's main street. Everything in Nida is within walking distance.

Destinations Kaunas (via Klaipėda; 1 daily; 4hr 10min); Smiltynė (8 daily; 1hr 30min); Vilnius (via Klaipėda; 1 daily; 5hr 50min).

Tourist information The tourist office at Taikos 4 (June–Aug Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–1pm & 2–7pm; Sept–May Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎ 469 52345, 🌐 visitneringa.com) has info on lodging and events.

ACCOMMODATION

Nida has a few budget guesthouses, but as they tend to fill up in the summer, advance reservations are recommended. Private rooms (€35–50) and local B&Bs (€50–70) can be booked via the tourist office.

Inkarokaimas Naglių 26 ☎ 469 52123, 🌐 inkarokaimas.lt. A beautifully decorated double, quad and a two-room apartment are on offer at this welcoming seaside guesthouse. All are en suite and have satellite TV and kitchenette. Doubles €64, apartment €87

Misko Namas Pamaris 11 ☎ 469 52290, 🌐 miskonamas.com. Colourful house with a range of en-suite rooms and apartments, a communal kitchen and a lovely private garden. Breakfast €7.50; bike rental €8/day. Doubles €65, 4-person apartment €90

EATING AND DRINKING

Baras Bangomūša Naglių 5. Homely, informal place, and one of the best spots in Nida to try the local smoked fish. Koldūnai (ravioli-like meat parcels; €3.80) and other Lithuanian dishes also available. Daily 9am–midnight.

In Vino Taikos 32. Enjoy the best views in Nida from the terrace of this popular wine bar on the roof of the Urbo Kalnas hotel, uphill from the village centre. Extensive drinks menu, and good tapas. Daily 10am–midnight.

Kuršis Naglių 29. Popular and breezy café-restaurant with good views of the coast, serving a range of Lithuanian dishes, including smoked fish, roast pike-perch (€8.30) and excellent šaltibarščiai (cold beetroot soup; €2). Daily 9am–midnight.

Introduction

Macedonia is, quite simply, one of Europe's most relaxing travel destinations. Outside the capital it's almost all countryside, with vineyards, mountains, forests and rolling fields lending their hues to a pleasantly green patchwork. Look a little closer at the few urban areas, though, and you'll likely come to understand why the French refer to a mixed salad as a macédoine: this hotchpotch of Ottoman rule, Yugoslav domination, Orthodox faith and Albanian influence represents one of Europe's most varied societies.

The capital, Skopje, is something of a Yugoslav symphony in grey, though one whose brutal architecture is softened by an appealing Ottoman centre, as well as by friendly locals. Most travellers prefer to base themselves around Lake Ohrid, a delightful, mountain-fringed expanse straddling the Albanian border. Between Skopje and Ohrid, a glut of immaculately painted monasteries competes for your attention; Sveti Jovan Bigorski is the most enjoyable, and lies within Mavrovo, a national park that provides great hiking opportunities, as well as skiing in the winter.

CHRONOLOGY

168 BC The Macedonian area is absorbed by the Roman Empire.

395 AD The Roman Empire splits. Macedonia falls under Byzantine rule.

447 Attila the Hun rampsages through the area.

1394 Five hundred years of Ottoman rule begin.

1878 Russian victory over the Ottoman Empire; Macedonia is ceded to Bulgaria, though soon returned at the instigation of Western powers.

1910 Gonxha Agnesë Bojaxhiu, an ethnic Albanian, known to the world as Mother Teresa, is born in Skopje.

1912 The Turks are ousted in the Balkan Wars; Macedonia is shared between Serbia and Greece.

1918 The Serb-ruled area that comprises today's Macedonia is given to the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.

1945 Macedonia becomes part of socialist Yugoslavia.

1963 Over one thousand people killed by an earthquake in Skopje.

1991 Macedonia gains independence from Yugoslavia.

1993 Admitted to the UN as "Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia".

2001 Civil war between government and ethnic Albanian insurgents.

2005 Macedonia becomes an official candidate for EU membership.

2008 Greece blocks Macedonia's entry to NATO over name dispute (see box below).

2014 Completion of the "Skopje 2014" project, a gigantic facelift of Macedonia's capital city.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Skopje's "Alexander the Great" airport (@airports.com.mk) hosts a few Balkan flag carriers and European budget airlines; the one with most connections is Wizz Air (@wizzair.com), whose destinations include London, Brussels and Stockholm. Ohrid also has an international airport but flights are few and far between; Thessaloniki and Sofia are also within striking distance. Most,

"THEN WHAT ARE WE? FYROMANIANS?"

As soon as Macedonia declared independence from Yugoslavia, a different kind of battle broke out along the Greek border, one regarding two matters integral to a new country: name and flag. Athens objected to the use of the name – the bulk of historical Macedonia now lies under Greek control – and also to a flag featuring the ancient kingdom's sixteen-pointed Vergina Sun. The new nation squeezed into the UN as the "Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia", or FYROM for short, and later changed its flag to end a Greek economic blockade. Many nations now recognize the "Republic of Macedonia", but this battle of nomenclature remains locked in stalemate, and is unlikely to end anytime soon.

however, make their way to Macedonia overland. There are a couple of daily bus services from Tirana in Albania (via Struga), but poor neighbourly relations mean that there are very few direct services from Greece. In summer you may be able to catch a minibus from Thessaloniki to Skopje; this was once easier by train but the Greek government, in its wisdom, cut off all international services in 2011. Mercifully, the daily service from Belgrade to Skopje is still running. Citizens of some countries (notably South Africa and India) still need visas to enter Macedonia; check mfa.gov.mk for more information.

GETTING AROUND

Almost all travel in Macedonia is by bus. Services are punctual and reasonably frequent, and the vehicles themselves could be worse. Note that buses take one of two routes between Skopje and Ohrid: one through Bitola, and a shorter, more picturesque trip through Kičevo. The limited train network suffers from slow and irregular services and is rarely used by visitors. The best domestic line is the thrice-daily service between Skopje and Bitola, which passes through wonderful mountain scenery.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation is not terribly varied but it's generally quite affordable. Skopje's overpriced hotels are now supplemented by a number of cut-price alternatives (from around €25), while in the hinterlands – including Ohrid – you'll be able to make use of private rooms, known as sobi; you'll often be met at bus stations by homeowners with rooms to spare. Prices vary wildly depending upon location and facilities, but generally expect to pay from €10 to €30 for a double room. There are a few hostels in Skopje and Ohrid, each costing around €10 for a dorm bed, while campsites can be found around the lakes of Ohrid and Prespa; the cost of camping is usually less than €10 per tent.

FOOD AND DRINK

The Macedonian diet is dominated by barbecued meat (skara), of which the most popular variety are sausage-shaped kebabs (kebabčinja), usually served with chopped onion and spongy, freshly baked bread. Other items to look out for on a regular menu are soups (čorba) and tavče gravče, a bean casserole served on a hot clay plate. The ubiquitous burek – pastry filled with meat, cheese or spinach – is a good, cheap breakfast. Vegetarians can find solace in excellent salads and ajvar – a meze-like starter made from red peppers – while pizzerias are everywhere and always offer veggie choices. You'll find baklava – syrupy Turkish sweets – all over the country.

DRINK

The consumption of coffee (kafē) seems almost obligatory, and it's traditionally served Turkish-style (black, with grounds at the bottom), though espresso is gaining currency. More local in nature is boza, a refreshing millet-based drink available in cake shops come summer. There are some good domestic beers (pivo), with Skopsko the most popular brand, but Macedonia is more famed for uniformly good wines. Vranec (red) and Smederevka (white) are two local grape varieties worth trying; you may be lucky enough to find shops selling fresh, home-made concoctions for just €1.50 per litre, but otherwise Tikveš is a reliable, widely sold bottled brand. After 7pm, alcohol can only be bought in bars and licensed restaurants.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Macedonia is a real mishmash of cultures, and it's very important to take note of a few political and ethnic issues – taking Greece's side in the country's naming or flag disputes

(see box, p.716) won't win you any friends, nor will promoting Albanian or Macedonian nationalism to the "wrong" side. Only two-thirds of the population are Macedonians of Slav ethnicity – the vast majority of whom belong to the Orthodox Church – while most of the remaining third are ethnic Albanian. Tensions still run high between the two groups – 2001 saw a civil war between the government and Albanian insurgents – though travellers are unlikely to be affected.

Smoking regulations have been tightened of late, while tipping at restaurants is generally a simple exercise in rounding up.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Activities in Macedonia centre on the mountains. The national parks of Mavrovo, Galičica and Pelister are excellent for hiking – Mavrovo and Pelister also offer good skiing opportunities – while the crystal waters of Lake Ohrid make it the country's most appealing place for diving and swimming. The country's empty roads are ideal for cycling, but since there are precious few places to rent bikes it makes sense to bring your own.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most post offices (pošta) are open Monday to Friday 7am to 5pm, and sometimes on Saturday mornings. These are the best places to make phone calls or purchase phonecards. International roaming charges have fallen in recent years, but apps such as Skype or Viber are the best deal for calling abroad. Wi-fi is widely available in hotels, hostels, bars, restaurants and cafés.

EMERGENCIES

The crime rate is pretty low by European standards, even in Skopje. However, it's prudent always to carry your passport, or

MACEDONIAN

Macedonia uses the Cyrillic alphabet, which poses problems with street signs, train and bus timetables. For most of these there's no transliteration into Latin script, but many restaurants have dual-language menus, and a decent level of English is spoken across the country.

a photocopy of the picture page. You'll find pharmacies (apteka) in all major towns and cities, and a surprising number have English-speaking staff; opening hours vary but some are 24hr. If you need a hospital, outside Skopje taxis may be faster than ambulances.

INFORMATION

There are now a number of tourist information offices dotted around the country. They're slowly starting to learn what travellers require, though many keep irregular hours.

MONEY AND BANKS

The currency is the denar (usually abbreviated to MKD), comprising coins of 1, 2, 5, 10 and 50MKD, and notes of 10, 50, 100, 500, 1000 and 5000MKD. Exchange rates are currently around €1 = 61MKD, £1 = 78MKD and US$1 = 54MKD. Accommodation prices are usually quoted in euros, though you can also pay in denar. Money can be exchanged at an exchange office or bank; the latter are usually open Monday to Friday 8am to 5pm. ATMs are easy to find in urban areas, though stock up on cash if you're heading into the sticks.

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Many museums and galleries offer cut-price student tickets; in practice, a youthful appearance will be acceptable in lieu of an ISIC card. InterRail and Balkan Flexipass tickets are valid.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops stay open until 8pm on weekdays, and mid-afternoon on Saturdays. Sundays are still special in Macedonia – don't expect too much to be open, even in central Skopje. Things also grind to a halt on public holidays: January 1, 2 and 7, Orthodox Easter (March or April), May 1 and 24, August 2, September 8 and October 11.

20 Skopje

Other than the mazy lanes of the delightful, Ottoman-era Čaršija district, SKOPJE (Скопје) is best described as “appealingly ugly”; the city was ravaged by an earthquake in 1963, and its stately buildings were replaced by brutal Yugoslav-era designs. These have, in turn, been superseded by the works of Skopje 2014, a government-sponsored renovation scheme. Almost universally unpopular with locals, its focal point is a chain of monumental Neoclassical buildings along the riverfront, joined by literally hundreds of new statues. For the traveller, all of this change is rather absorbing, and worth keeping tabs on while you're sampling the city's excellent food and nightlife.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Čaršija district north of the river contains the bulk of Skopje's sights, and is the obvious place from which to kick off a trip around the city. Despite the recent completion of two pedestrian bridges (each sporting thirty statues), the area remains in a state of flux as new statues continue to be installed on a regular basis.

Čaršija and the Kale

Turkish times linger on in the shape of several mosques, of which Mustapha Pasha is the largest and most intricately decorated. Two splendid former bathhouses, the copper-domed Daud Pasha on ulitsa Kruševska and the nearby Čifte Amam, are long out of use as hammams and both now serve as homes of the National Gallery (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 100MKD; nationalgallery.mk). Those seeking history instead can head to the National Museum of Macedonia (Tues–Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 9am–1pm; 100MKD), which is well worth an hour or two. All are outdone, however, by wonderful little Sveti Spas (ul. Makarija Frčkovski; daily 9am–4pm; 120MKD), a secluded fourteenth-century monastery. Its church was built mostly underground – under Ottoman rule churches were not allowed to be higher than mosques – and its carved-walnut iconostasis is jaw-dropping. Northwest of Čaršija, and up from the eastern ramparts of the old castle (now closed to visitors), is the excellent National Museum of Contemporary Art (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 9am–1pm; free; msuskopje.org.mk), from where you can see the whole of Skopje. The collection, which comprises mainly local art, is not bad, either.

South of the Vardar

Cross the Stone Bridge (Kamen Most) and you'll find yourself in Skopje's main square, Plošad Makedonija. You won't be able to miss the gigantic equestrian statue of the original Ali G, Alexander the Great (although, owing to political sensitivities with Greece, its official name is Warrior on Horse) – it's by far the largest of the truly bewildering number of statues in the area. Just west of the bridge's southern end are two of the most distinctively Yugoslav buildings in the city. The Mepso building is a fusion of Le Corbusier-style design and Communist-era factory, now used as office space; behind it is the Central Post Office, a bizarre concrete spaceship whose lavish interior will once more count as a Skopje must-see if repairs following a catastrophic fire in 2013 are ever completed.

Marking the start of largely pedestrianized Makedonija, a crescent of elegant buildings (survivors of the quake) provides some much-needed respite from all the new construction. Mother Teresa was born further up the road, and a memorial hall, chapel and statue have been placed here in her honour. At the very end of the road, you'll see the imposing Skopje Museum (Mon–Sat 9.30am–5pm, Sun 9.30am–1pm; 100MKD); fronted by a large clock that stopped during the earthquake, it's worth a quick look.

Mount Vodno

Look south from any vantage point in Skopje and you'll see Mount Vodno, within walking distance of the city and topped with a huge cross. The mountain is great for hiking – the 1066m peak is only a couple of hours' walk from central Skopje. A cable car from the base of the mountain whisks visitors to the top in just seven minutes (Tues–Sun: April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct–March 10am–5pm; 100MKD return). To reach the cable car costs 250MKD by taxi or 35MKD on hourly buses from the bus station.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane Skopje's Alexander the Great airport is 21km east of the city. Taxis are expensive at around €20 (1220MKD), though buses are an option: Vardar Ekspres (vardarekspres.com.mk) runs shuttles (7–9 daily; 150MKD) to a schedule loosely connected to flight times. You can board at several places; the most useful spots are the bus station, and the central Holiday Inn.

By train The train station is located a 20min walk or 150MKD taxi ride southeast of the centre. It's not the kind of place you'll want to hang around for too long. Destinations Belgrade (2 daily; 9hr); Bitola (3 daily; 3hr–3hr 50min).

By bus The main bus station sits alongside the train station, and is marginally more pleasant. Destinations Belgrade (11 daily; 6hr); Bitola (12 daily; 2hr 40min); Debar (2 daily; 3hr); Istanbul (4 daily; 14hr); Mavrovi Anovi (7 daily; 1hr 45min); Ohrid (12 daily; 3–4hr); Sofia (4 daily; 5hr); Tirana (1 daily; 7hr).

ŠUTKA

The Skopje district of Šuto Orizari, more commonly referred to as Šutka, is home to Europe's largest Roma community. The area is impoverished and dilapidated, but a visit can be quite fascinating – colourful buildings, litter-lined streets and a bustling daily market make it feel something like an Indian town transported to the Balkans. It's also one of Macedonia's foremost centres of song and dance (see culturalcornerstones.org for images and audio samples), but events run to no schedule – sunny summer afternoons are your best bet. Buses #19 and #20 run here from the post office and train station respectively, or it's only 250MKD by taxi.

Tourist office The staff at the office on Vasil Agilarski bb (daily 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎ 02 322 3644) hand out pamphlets and give practical advice.

GETTING AROUND

By bus Skopje surely has the world's greatest concentration of London buses outside London. Tickets on these Chinese-built replicas and the old Yugoslav models that run in tandem with them cost 35MKD.

By taxi Fares start at a very reasonable 50MKD, and a city-centre trip will rarely cost more than 200MKD. It's the normal way of getting around, even for locals.

ACCOMMODATION

HOSTELS

★ Shanti Hostel Rade Jovcevski Koragin 11 ☎ 02 609 0807, shantihostel.com. A short walk from the bus and train stations, this is still the best hostel in town, despite its slightly cramped common areas. There's also a second hostel around the corner; staff at both are friendly and knowledgeable, and if you fancy a walk into town it's a simple stroll along the river. Dorms €8

Urban Hostel Mother Teresa 22 ☎ 02 614 2785, urbanhostel.com.mk. Good, modern hostel a 20min walk west of the town centre, and accessible on a number of bus routes from the station. The common area is large and inviting, with a piano its focal point, while the dorm rooms are clean and spacious. Dorms €9

HOTELS

City Park Mihail Covok 1 ☎ 02 329 0860, hotelcitypark.com.mk. Friendly and modern boutique-style hotel located right next to a park – bring your jogging shoes. You'll almost always be able to knock a little off the rack rate. Doubles €80

Santos Bitpazarska 125 ☎ 02 322 6963. A great budget option with cute little rooms that's full of local character.

You'll see it signed off Bitpazarska. Doubles €30

Square Nikola Vapcarov 2 ☎ 02 322 5090, hotelsquare.com.mk. Stylish mini-hotel set atop an apartment complex; its thoroughly modern rooms are a pleasant surprise after the Communist-era lifts used to access their floor, and you can gaze down at the Alexander statue as you eat breakfast (included). Doubles €40

EATING

The terms "café" and "bar" are somewhat fuzzy; what passes for the former during the day will generally morph into the latter by night. The Čaršija area has become one of the most buzzing parts of town, though it's rivalled by the row of café-bars along the waterfront east of Plošad Makedonija.

CAFÉS

Broz Crvena Voda 4. A bizarre Communist-themed coffee-chain parody – Starbucks? – whose walls are lined with subtle revolutionary pictures. Upstairs seats have good mountain views. Open 24hr.

Kapan An Kapan An, off Bitpazarska. Housed in the fifteenth-century Kapan An, a delightful former traders' hostel, this tiny venue is a lovely spot in the old town, serving coffee from just 40MKD and nargile (Turkish hookah) for the same ridiculously low price. Daily noon–11.30pm.

RESTAURANTS

Harmonija Skopjanka Shopping Centre 37. A world away from Macedonia's typically meaty fare, this tranquil spot serves superb macrobiotic and vegan dishes sold by weight (400MKD/kg). Mon–Sat 11am–midnight.

Kaj Maršalot Guro Gakovik 8. Take a trip back to Tito times at this Yugoslav-themed restaurant. The food is little different to what you'll find elsewhere in the city, but where else would you be served by students dressed as Young Pioneers? Daily 8am–10pm.

Pelister Makedonija 1. Hugely popular with both locals and tourists – you may well struggle to get a seat. Order a pizza (from 260MKD), something more interesting like breaded mozzarella with saffron, or go for the healthy salad bar option. Daily 8am–midnight.

Pivnica An Kapan An, off Bitpazarska. Don't let the name (which means beerhouse) deceive you – this is a classy restaurant in the charming ground level of Kapan An. Extensive and inventive local menu, with grills starting at around 200MKD – the sausages are particularly good. Daily 10am–midnight.

Stara Kuka Pajko Maalo 14. Highly regarded traditional restaurant within one of the city's oldest buildings serving hearty meals that are worth splurging on; the casseroles are excellent. Walking distance from the centre, and taxi drivers know the name. Mains 250–650MKD. Daily 10am–midnight.

SKOPJE'S FESTIVALS

Buskerfest 📍 buskerfestmakedonija.com. Over a week of eclectic street performances, usually taking place in May or June.

Pivo-Lend 📍 pivolend.com.mk. Beer festival held each September within the fortress walls.

Skopje Jazz Festival 📍 skopjejazzfest.com.mk. Acclaimed event featuring musicians from around the world, spread over a week each October.

Skopje Film Festival 📍 skopjefilmfestival.com.mk. Well worth checking out. Screenings in the Kultura cinema at Luj Paster 2. April.

Vino-Skop 📍 vinoskop.com. Wine festival offering the opportunity to taste local produce, usually held in October.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Colosseum Železnička 66. A surprisingly polished house venue that regularly ropes in DJs from overseas. In summer they host outdoor events in Gradski Park. Admission 200MKD. Daily 10pm–4am.

Menada Podgraje bb. Overlooking the old Daud Pasha baths, this is a favourite with Skopje's artier set, largely due to the regular live music sets. Also a great place to head for coffee or a light lunch in the daytime. Daily 10am–late.

Rakija Bar Kaldarma Podgradje 14. The most expensive rakija at this buzzing bar costs 240MKD a glass and tastes quite good; the cheapest goes for 50MKD and may well make you heave. Either way, you won't remember in the morning. Daily 8am–midnight, Fri & Sat till 2am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Macedonian National Theatre Ilijo Vojvoda bb. A new venue, built as part of the Skopje 2014 project, that plays host to ballet and operatic performances. Tickets from 200MKD. Ticket office Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat noon–8pm.

Milenium Kej 13 Noemvri. Multiplex cinema in the Trgovski Centar shopping mall; tickets 180MKD.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates Australia, Londonska 11b 📞 02 306 1834; Canada, Praska bb 📞 02 322 5630; UK, Salvador Aljende 73 📞 02 329 9299; US, Samoilova 21 📞 02 310 2000.

Hospital Re-Medika, Makedonska Brigada 18 📞 02 260 3100.

Money There are ATMs all around the city centre, and in the bus station, which also has exchange booths.

Pharmacy Apteka Viola. Vostanichka 59 (24hr).

Post office Orce Nikolov (Mon–Sat 7am–5.30pm, Sun 7am–2.30pm).

LAKE MATKA

A mere half-hour drive from Skopje, pretty LAKE MATKA (Матка езеро) provides an easy break from the grey of the capital. The artificial lake is surrounded by richly forested peaks, and its edges are dotted with restaurants, many of which can only be accessed by boat. You'll be approached by boat owners, who typically charge €10 for a short ride around, and a trip to either a restaurant or some nearby caves. Ask at the Skopje tourist office about the lake-side guesthouses here. Take bus #60 from the station (8 daily; 60MKD), or hop in a taxi (600MKD).

Western Macedonia

Travellers heading from Skopje to Ohrid have two bus routes to choose from. The first heads south through the major – for Macedonia – city of Bitola, a pleasant place with some interesting nineteenth-century architecture. Heading west instead will bring you close to the national park of Mavrovo, good for hiking in summer and skiing in winter. This latter route also takes an hour less. Ohrid itself is Macedonia's prime attraction, the name referring both to a large, mountain-ringed lake, and the beautiful old town that sits on its northern shore. Just to the east, and sitting next to another pristine lake, is charming Pelister National Park.

MAVROVO NATIONAL PARK

Mavrovo National Park (Националниот Парк Маврово; 📍 npmavrovo.org.mk) spreads its wings over one of Macedonia's most beautiful corners, a rich and rugged land where rushing streams tumble down slopes cloaked with pine and birch. There is a wealth of sights and activities to choose from – the wonderful monastery of Sveti Jovan Bigorski is a particular delight to visit. Camping and hiking are possible most of the year, while winter snows make for some of the most affordable skiing and snowboarding in Europe.

Mavrovo

Most travellers base themselves in the little town of Mavrovo (Маврово). Popular with locals, this resort sits next to a lake of the same name, but is sadly not accessible on public transport; to get here, head by bus to Mavrovi Anovi, 8km away on the other side of the lake, from where it'll be a 250MKD taxi ride. Hotel Bistra (☎042 489 027, 🌐bistra.com; doubles €100) is right next to the ski slopes; although rooms here are beyond the budget of most backpackers, staff can help to organize (cheaper) private accommodation.

Sveti Jovan Bigorski

Macedonia has no shortage of wonderful monasteries, but Sveti Jovan Bigorski (Свети Јован Бигорски; daily 8am–8pm; free) takes the biscuit. Tucked away in delightfully bucolic countryside near the Albanian border, its whitewashed buildings are edged with dark wood, and should the fireflies come out to play in the evening it will feel like you've stepped into a Hayao Miyazaki anime. Most of the older buildings were destroyed in a fire in 2009, though reconstruction was swift. Travellers can stay for a nominal fee; this is best arranged through the hostels or tourist offices of Skopje or Ohrid. To get here, jump on any bus heading between Debar and Gostivar (both accessible from Skopje and Ohrid), and ask to be let off at the monastery.

SKIING IN MAVROVO

Mavrovo (🌐skimavrovo.com) is the best place to head for wintertime fun. The season lasts from mid-Nov to mid-April, day-passes cost just 1100MKD (half-day 850MKD), and skis can be rented for a similar price.

BITOLA

Pretty little BITOLA (Битола) is one of Macedonia's few attractive urban centres; you'll doubtless wonder if it can really be the second-largest city in the country. Its laidback air also disguises some historical pedigree – in the Ottoman era, such was the importance of this trading hub that a string of consulates set up on the main thoroughfare. Amazingly, some remain: the Turkish one still functions because of Bitola's sizeable Turkish minority, while both the UK and France retain a small diplomatic presence here. All are housed in splendid nineteenth-century buildings, more of which line the city's pedestrianized main road, Maršal Tito.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Bitola's train and bus stations sit side by side in contrasting states of disrepair, a 15min walk south of the centre.

Train destinations Skopje (5 daily; 3hr 30min).

Bus destinations Ohrid (hourly; 1hr 30min); Skopje (hourly; 2hr 40min).

ACCOMMODATION

There's no real reason to stay overnight, but it makes a convenient break on the Skopje–Ohrid route.

Domestika Hostel Ivo Lola Ribar bb ☎070 496 585. Cheap and cheerful hostel with dated interior but adequate facilities and a great €2 breakfast. Shared kitchen, double, triple and quadruple rooms. Dorms €5

PELISTER NATIONAL PARK

A pristine national park between Bitola and Ohrid, Pelister (Националниот парк пелистер) overlooks Lake Prespa, a shimmering expanse that, while nowhere near as deep as Ohrid, boasts surrounding mountain scenery every bit as beautiful. On the northern side of the park sits the small Pelister ski resort. From here a spine trail zigzags south to Malo Ezero, a picturesque lake at the park's centre. The lake can also be approached from the wonderfully unspoilt village of Brajičino (Брајчино), a great hiking base to the southwest. With its hand-stacked stone walls it shows almost no signs of the modern day. Malovište (Маловиште) is another gorgeous old village whose population has nose-dived to almost nothing. Now being thrown funds to polish up and lure people back, it's well worth a visit to walk the cobbled streets, breathe some fresh air and admire this relic of a bygone age.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Pelister ski resort is accessible from Bitola: take a bus to Turnovo and then a taxi the rest of the way (€20 all in). Buses to Brajčino leave on the half-hour from Resen, a town on the main Ohrid–Bitola stretch. Malovište is off the Resen–Bitola road; ask to be dropped off the bus in Kažani, from where it's a 4km walk, hitch or taxi ride south.

ACCOMMODATION

It's quite easy to score a sobi (private room) in Brajčino; in summer you'll likely be met coming off the bus.

Vila Raskrsnica ☎075 501 830. The only official accommodation in the village is at this delightfully rustic hotel and restaurant where most rooms have stunning mountain views. Doubles €40

LAKE OHRID

Vast almost to the point of appearing sea-like, Lake Ohrid (Охридско Езеро) is Macedonia's major draw. A backdrop of mountains encircles it like a torn sky, looping through Albanian territory on the way back around. This is the only place in the country that can be described as touristy, but even in peak season the combination of Ohrid town's genteel streets and quietly lapping waves produces a relaxed air.

Not only is this one of the deepest lakes in Europe – over 300m in places – but it's also one of the oldest. Appropriately, it has played host to lakeside communities since the Neolithic period, but it was not until Roman times that OHRID (Охрид), on the lake's northeastern fringe, developed as a town. Large basilicas were constructed from the fifth century, and Slavic tribes started moving in shortly after that. Ohrid's importance as a religious centre was maintained under Ottoman rule, the town becoming a tourist destination during the Yugoslav period.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Many sights are located among the steep lanes of the walled Old Town. There are a couple of monasteries in the area, but most visitors are here for the timeless majesty of Lake Ohrid itself – locals swear that the water remains clean enough to drink, and with visibility of up to 20m they may well be right. Motorized “water-taxis” are available for tours of varying lengths (from €10).

The Old Town

The best place to start a tour around the Old Town is the Upper Gate. In the area immediately to the south you'll find a fascinating icon gallery (Tues–Sun 10am–2pm & 6–9pm; free), home to some of the best examples found in the Ohrid area. Staff here should also be able to open up the adjacent Sveta Bogorodica, a thirteenth-century church with wonderful interior frescoes.

West of the gate you've a choice of uphill paths; one heads to the Fortress of Tsar Samoil (daily 9am–7pm; 30MKD), which has a disappointingly messy interior but some superlative views of the town and lake. The other path leads past an old Roman amphitheatre to Sveti Kliment (daily 8am–8pm; free), a large, modern church inside which you'll see the remains of twelfth-century graves; Saint Clement himself is interred in the far corner. The church is built next to the ruins of another that dates from the fifth century; its foundations (including tremendous mosaics) are on display under a rather ugly shelter.

From Sveti Kliment it's a hop and a skip down the slopes to Sveti Jovan Kaneo (daily 8am–6pm; 100MKD), whose lakeside setting makes it Ohrid's most appealing church. The walk east back into town is rather lovely, and passes the tranquil residential enclave of Kaneo. Back in the centre you'll find the National Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–2pm & 6–9pm; 100MKD), full of historical relics and an interesting place to while away an hour or two.

The monasteries

Some 30km south along the eastern shore of the lake is the wonderful monastery of Sveti Naum, which lies within walking distance of the Albanian border. Magical grounds surround the seventeenth-century building, whose interior (daily 7am–7pm; 100MKD) is filled with vivid frescoes. In the summer you can get here by boat from Ohrid town, and buses (600MKD return) run every couple of hours during the day; it'll cost the same in a shared taxi. The road heads between the lake and Galičica National Park (galicica.org.mk), which is a great place for a hike. On the way to Sveti Naum from Ohrid town you'll pass the village of Gradište, which boasts remains of a Bronze Age village hauled from the bottom of the lake. You can also dive into the surrounding crystal waters from €40 per person (amfora.com.mk).

Heading north then west instead from Ohrid will eventually bring you to the wonderful lakeside monastery of Kališta, where monks once lived in caves dug into the cliffs – these, and other mural-lined halls, are open to visitors (100MKD), though you'll probably have to ask around for the key.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The station is inconveniently located 2km north of the Old Town; it'll cost 100MKD by cab, although it's certainly walkable if your bag isn't too big. To get to Debar, it's usually best to catch a bus from nearby Struga (5 daily; 1hr 30min); to get to Struga, you're usually best off grabbing a shared taxi (15min) for 100MKD per person from the main road just north of the tourist area.

Destinations Bitola (3 daily; 1hr 30min); Resen (6 daily; 50min); Skopje (9 daily; 3–4hr).

Tourist information The General Turist 2000 agency at Partizanska 6 (daily 9am–8pm; ☎046 260 423) is the best option for tours and local information.

ACCOMMODATION

There are some great places to stay in Ohrid, but sobi (private rooms) are also an option, especially when the hotels are booked up in summer months. You're likely to be met at the bus station by those with rooms to spare. Camping is possible at three sites along the lake between Ohrid and Sveti Naum (around 400MKD/tent).

Di Angollo Just off the main square ☎046 260 003, apartmanidiangolo.com.mk. So what if the reception is inside a pizza restaurant? The dorms at this simple, central hostel are clean and colourful, and there's a decent little communal area. Dorms €10

★ Sunny Lake Klimentov Univerzitet 38 ☎075 629 571, sunnylakehostel.mk. Superb hostel that strikes the right balance between relaxation and partying. The common areas are great places to meet people, especially in the summer over barbecued meat and a few glasses of rakija. Dorms €10

Vila Lucija Kosta Abraš 29 ☎046 265 608. So close to the lake that you may wake to see your ceiling shimmering with reflected sunlight. The spick-and-span rooms are excellent value, and come with almost painfully powerful showers. Doubles €35

Vila Sofija Kosta Abraš 64 ☎046 254 370, vilasofija.com.mk. Well-equipped boutique rooms set in a beautiful, traditionally styled building – great value, especially for the €30 single rooms. Doubles €65

EATING AND DRINKING

Ohrid's culinary scene is terribly uninspired for a place with such tourist appeal. In summer, a curl of "beach" bars opens up along the lakeside east of the Old Town. More interesting, for some, will be the Skovin Winery (Dimche Malenko 12, just off the main pedestrian square), where a litre of freshly made wine – fired into plastic bottles from petrol-station-like pumps – costs just 70MKD. You can buy regular bottles too, but it's not half as much fun.

Liquid Kosta Abraš 52. This bar is busy most nights with a young and fun-loving clientele, so it's a good place to make new friends, get drunk with existing ones, or combine the two. Daily 6pm–late.

★ Plaza Potpeš Kaneo. This marvellous Kaneo restaurant is so close to the lake you can bathe your feet in the water as you eat. Prices are generally reasonable, while some items on the menu are just plain cheap, such as the 100MKD hamburger (it puts many a fast-food version to shame). Come for drinks in the evening – the boardwalk stroll alone is quite magical. Daily 11am–11pm.

Sveta Sofija Tsar Samoil 88. Popular spot with a delightful patio overlooking the church. Mains start at around 200MKD and include Ohrid trout, fried squid and traditional local dishes baked in clay pots. Daily 8am–midnight.

THE REPUBLIC OF VEVČANI

Fancy a quirky half-day trip? Head to Vevčani, a village that declared tongue-in-cheek independence after the fall of Communism. The only real evidence of this is its weird banknotes, and even these are rarely available; ask at Domkiska Kuka, a terrific restaurant. Instead, it's best to come for the pleasant springs area, signed uphill from town – the water here may be the best in the Balkans, and the energetic can make use of a 5.2km-long mountain trail. To get here you'll need to take a bus from the town of Struga, located on Lake Ohrid.

Introduction

The tiny state of Crna Gora is better known under its Italian name, Montenegro. The English translation – “Black Mountain” – may sound a little bleak, but Montenegro is a land exploding with colour. Carpeted with flowers for much of the year, the country’s muscular peaks are dappled with the dark greens of pine, beech and birch from which turquoise streams rush down to a tantalizingly azure blue sea. Fringing it, the coastline is dotted from border to border with beaches of yellow and volcanic grey, and huddles of picturesque, orange-roofed houses – a postcard come to life.

While the coastline is most appealing for the traveller, Montenegro’s most precious jewel – phenomenally photogenic Kotor – sits just a little inland at the end of a fjord-like bay. The beach town of Budva is the other real highlight, but you should also try to make time for the ruins of Stari Bar. Away from the coast, the country’s pleasures are mainly confined to the mountains, particularly the spectacular national park of Durmitor, while the old Montenegrin capital of Cetinje is also well worth a visit; the present-day capital, Podgorica, gets few visitors but certainly has its charms.

CHRONOLOGY

9 AD Roman annexation of the region incorporates most of present-day Montenegro into the province of Dalmatia.

395 The Roman Empire splits into eastern and western halves, with Montenegro lying on the line of division.

990 Slav state of Duklja established.

1190 Successor state of Zeta annexed by Serbia.

1499 Much of Montenegrin interior falls to the Ottoman Empire; the Venetian Empire controls the coast.

1697 Ottomans defeated in the Great Turkish War; Petrović clan assumes control.

1797 Venice falls to Napoleon, who transfers the Gulf of Kotor to Austrian rule.

1878 Montenegro granted independence following the Congress of Berlin.

1918 Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes formed, incorporating Montenegro.

1929 Montenegro becomes part of the new Kingdom of Yugoslavia.

1945 Tito becomes prime minister (president from 1953) and ushers in the era of Communist rule; Podgorica renamed Titograd.

1979 The coast between Bar and Ulcinj is damaged by an earthquake.

1991 Break-up of Yugoslavia; Montenegro votes to stay with Serbia in a referendum.

2006 Montenegro gains independence following a second referendum.

2012 Montenegro opens negotiations for accession to the EU.

2015 NATO invites Montenegro to join, with a view to full membership in 2017.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Flights to Montenegro are in surprisingly short supply. National flag carrier Montenegro Airlines (✉montenegroairlines.com) has a monopoly of sorts, and the only budget carrier to have been able to enter the market is Ryanair (✉ryanair.com), with cheap flights twice a week between Podgorica and Brussels. However, Montenegro is easily reached overland from Croatia – there are buses along the coast from Dubrovnik (served by budget flights) and Split, though some of these will require a bus change after a short walk across the border. From Serbia, there are several daily buses between Belgrade and the Montenegrin coast, via Podgorica; daily trains – including a night service – also run from Belgrade to Bar along the same route. From Bosnia-Herzegovina there are direct buses to Podgorica from Trebinje and Sarajevo. The only decent connection with Albania is a daily bus (✉kotortotirana.com) that departs at 8.30am from Tirana and Kotor with stops at Budva, Podgorica and Shkodra along the way; alternatively, Montenegro Hostel (see p.734) can organize taxis direct to Tirana from Budva or Kotor for around €35 per person.

Perhaps the most romantic way to arrive in Montenegro is by ferry from Italy – Montenegro Lines (www.montenegrolines.net) runs between two and six weekly services to Bar from Bari (from €50).

Note that citizens of some countries, notably South Africa and India, still need visas to enter Montenegro; check online at www.visit-montenegro.com. You may have to apply at a Serbian embassy, since Montenegrin ones remain a little thin on the ground.

GETTING AROUND

For a country with such a small population, the frequency of intercity buses is quite remarkable. In addition, Montenegro has poured substantial funds into upgrading its main travel arteries, and travel times are accordingly short.

A train line heads to Bar from the Serbian border – a beautiful journey. While services are infrequent, prices are dirt-cheap and almost every centimetre of track affords breathtaking views, especially the run into Podgorica from the Serbian border.

ACCOMMODATION

Searching for accommodation in Montenegro can be frustrating. Partly because of the country's premature marketing as a "luxury" destination, hotels are almost uniformly overpriced – in some areas, it's tough to find anything for under €50 in peak season. A number of hostels have opened up in recent years and standards are improving. Many travellers end up staying in private rooms (sobe). Prices vary dramatically depending on the quality of room, the time of year and the location in question – rates in less heralded towns dip below €10 per person in the off-season, though you may pay three times more during summer in popular destinations such as Budva and Kotor. In warmer months, proprietors with rooms to spare wait for travellers outside the bus stations – see what's on offer before handing over any cash – while travel agencies are often able to make bookings. Given the high prices, you might also try your luck on a site such as @airbnb.com.

FOOD AND DRINK

Travellers often come away disappointed by Montenegro's restaurant scene. In tourist areas, traditional meals have largely been ousted by pizza and pasta, and prices have risen beyond those of neighbouring countries. Traditional restaurants are known as konoba, and can help those willing and able to escape said Italian staples. Menu items to look out for include grilled kebabs (čevapčići), cabbage leaves stuffed with mincemeat (sarma), bean soup with flecks of meat (pasulj), goulash (gulaš), and the artery-clogging karadorde vasnicla, a breaded veal cutlet roll stuffed with cheese. Vegetarians can take refuge in the hearty salads available almost everywhere. Also ubiquitous are the Turkish snack staples of burek, pastry filled with meat, cheese, spinach and occasionally mushroom, and syrupy baklava sweets.

DRINK

Coffee (kafa) is consumed with almost religious fervour, usually served Turkish-style with unfiltered grounds, but also available in espresso form. Strong-as-hell rakija remains the alcoholic drink of choice – you'll be offered it constantly if visiting someone's home – but travellers usually subsist on some fine local beers, most notably Nikšičko, which also comes in a dark variety (tamno). There are good wines too, with Vranac an interesting local grape variety – the Plantaže label has it in their roster, and is both cheap and easy to find.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

As might be expected in one of the world's newest countries, Montenegrins are proud of their nationality, though don't expect all to be anti-Serb: only 55 percent voted in favour of independence in the 2006 referendum. The vast majority of locals belong to the Orthodox Church, though you'll find mosques in majority-Albanian areas, such as Ulcinj. As always, try to dress modestly if visiting religious buildings.

Tippling at restaurants is becoming more common; simple places will expect to keep small change, and posh restaurants to receive up to ten percent of the bill. Despite an official ban on smoking in public places, Montenegrins still do much of their breathing through slim, tobacco-filled cylinders: non-smokers may have a tough time avoiding the fumes.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Outdoor activities come in two main flavours: mountain and coastal. Hiking is a joy around the peaks of Montenegro's

MONTENEGRIN

Montenegrin is the official language, though it's essentially the same as Serbian (except that it uses the Roman alphabet rather than Cyrillic). You should be able to get by using Croatian (see box, p.158), with which it has strong similarities, though English is widely spoken in tourist areas.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police ☎92; Ambulance ☎94; Fire ☎93.

national parks, most notably Durmitor, which is also good for kayaking, and skiing in winter. On the beach, watersports including jet-skiing, parasailing and zorbing are all available at various points along the coast – Budva is the prime spot, though kayaking around Kotor Bay is a delight.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most post offices (pošta) are open Monday to Friday 8am to 7pm, Saturday 8am to noon. These are also your best bet for phone calls as public phones are in extremely short supply; local landlines are cheap to call, though calls to mobile phones are more expensive. International roaming charges have fallen in recent years, but apps such as Skype or Viber are the best deal for calling abroad. Hotels, hostels, restaurants, bars and cafés usually offer wi-fi.

EMERGENCIES

Montenegro has a pretty low crime rate as far as muggings and petty theft go, though of course it pays to be vigilant, especially around bus stations. The police (policija) are generally easy-going, and some speak basic English.

Pharmacies (apoteka) tend to follow shop hours, though you'll find emergency 24-hour telephone numbers posted in the windows. If they can't help, you'll be directed to a hospital (bolnica).

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Quite a few sights and museums offer discounted fares to students – an ISIC card is useful, but may not be essential if you look to be in the right age bracket. For what it's worth, InterRail tickets are valid on Montenegro's one train line (which never costs more than a few euros anyway).

MONTENEGRO ONLINE

🌐 go.montenegro.travel Slick official tourist board site.

🌐 visit-montenegro.com Handy resource for all things travel related in Montenegro.

🌐 rivijera.net Useful listings of coastal accommodation in the Budva region, often including pictures.

INFORMATION

Many towns and resorts now have a tourist information office, but hours can be infrequent and staff do not always speak English. Although they can advise on local accommodation, it's unlikely that they'll book rooms for you – head to a travel agent instead.

MONEY AND BANKS

Though not yet a member of the EU, Montenegro uses the euro (€). Banks are generally open Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm and Saturday 9am to noon, while ATMs are widespread.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops open Monday to Saturday 9am to 8pm, with many closed on Sundays. Very few museums are open on Mondays, and all shops and banks close on public holidays: January 1, 6 and 7, Orthodox Easter (April or May), May 1 and 21, and July 13.

The coast

Blessed with sunshine, pristine beaches lapped by clear Adriatic waters, and appealing, whitewashed old towns, the Montenegrin coast has become one of Europe's hottest properties. Heading north-south from Croatia to the Albanian border, you'll first hit charming Herceg Novi, before the coast ducks inland to meet magnificent Kotor – without doubt the most picturesque town in the land. South of here, the littoral swings back out to the beaches

21 of Budva, which is something of a party capital during the summer. It's then mountain-edged coast all the way to Bar, home to some terrific ruins.

HERCEG NOVI

Developed as a coastal resort during eighteenth-century Austro-Hungarian rule, little HERCEG NOVI is a thoroughly likeable town, and yet one that is usually bypassed by tourists. Its steep maze of lanes is lined with stately, crumbling villas, while plants and flowers from around the world abound, bequeathed by countless sailors down the years. Nearby beaches, meanwhile, make for excellent swimming.

Most sights are concentrated within Herceg Novi's appealing, walled Old Town. At its centre you'll find the Church of Archangel Michael, which is barely over a hundred years old, yet looks like it has been around rather longer. From here you can climb the steps to take in views from Kanli Kula tower (summer only daily 9am–10pm; €1). Down from the Old Town, the seafront promenade makes for a delightful walk. Head east for twenty minutes, then turn inland to find the elegant, seventeenth-century Savina Monastery (daily 6am–8pm; free).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus There's a small station on Jadranski put, a 5min walk from the Old Town. Heading south, most buses cross the Bay of Kotor by ferry (no extra charge). Travelling via Kotor increases the following journey times – except to Kotor – by around 45min.

Destinations Bar (6 daily; 2hr 30min); Budva (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 15min); Dubrovnik (3 daily; 1hr 15min); Kotor (hourly; 45min); Podgorica (every 30min; 3hr).

Information and tours The Tourist Information Centre is close to the bus station at Jova Đabovića 12 (Mon–Sat 8am–2pm; ☎ hercegnovi.travel). The nearby Black Mountain agency, Pet Danica 21 (daily 8am–8pm; ☎ 067 640869, ☎ montenegroholiday.com), can book tours and also arrange rafting trips to Durmitor (see box, p.740).

ACCOMMODATION

There's a dearth of hotel accommodation in the centre, though the Black Mountain agency (see above) can book private rooms from €10/person and apartments can be booked online through sites such as ☎ booking.com; most hotels are on the outskirts of town.

Apartments Pavlovic Njegoševa 156 ☎ 068 623328. Spotless apartments with self-catering kitchens and wonderful sea views located within walking distance of the old town. €45

Autocamp Zelenika Sunčana obala ☎ 067 678631. Campsite 3km east of town; open April–Oct. Pitches €13

Garni Hotel Bokoška Noć Brace Grakalica 42A ☎ 069 341018, ☎ garnihotelbokeskanoc.com. Lovely place in the vicinity of Savina Monastery with glorious sea views from most rooms. €80

Villa Živanović Zelenica bb ☎ 031 678148, ☎ villazivanovic.com. Great budget option on the outskirts of town with comfortable a/c rooms and good breakfast. €30

EATING

Cafés, bars and restaurants cluster around the harbour.

Kafana Pod Lozom Trg Nikole Đurkovića. A 2min walk from the church (past the clock tower and turn right), this restaurant cooks up cheap local specialities – you'll be able to fill up for €5. Try the gulaš, or the sarma. Daily 10am–9pm.

Konoba Feral Šetalište Pet Danica 47. A great harbour-side fish restaurant renowned for its generous portions and excellent service. Local seafood options include cuttlefish, mussels and octopus – the superb seafood platter is more than enough for two. Daily 9am–midnight.

KOTOR

Perched on the edge of a majestic bay, the medieval Old Town of KOTOR is the undisputed jewel in Montenegro's crown. Though no longer Europe's best-kept secret, Kotor's sudden elevation to the tour-bus league has failed to dim the timeless delights of its cobbled alleyways and secluded piazzas. Enclosing cafés and churches galore, the town walls are themselves glowered down upon by a series of hulking peaks. Down below, a harbour bustling with sleek yachts marks the end of the Bay of Kotor, made fjord-like by the 1000m cliffs that rise almost vertically from the serene waters.

First colonized by the Greeks, Kotor came to prominence in the twelfth century, then passed through Serb, Austro-Hungarian and Bosnian hands before fifteenth-century Ottoman conquests forced it under the protective wing of Venice. Venetian rule ended in 1797, the shape of today's Kotor having been laid out in the intervening years.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Kotor's charms are best appreciated by heading to the Old Town, sans map, and getting lost in the labyrinthine streets. You'll likely enter through the Sea Gate, next to the harbour, and emerge onto the main square, Trg od Oružja. Cafés spill out from glorious buildings, the most notable of which are the old Rector's Palace and a leaning clock tower. Burrow through the streets and before long you'll end up at St Tryphon's Cathedral (daily 8am–7pm; €2.50), backed by a wall of mountains and perfect for photos; it's well worth the entry fee for a peek inside. Elsewhere there are several churches that merit a look, as well as a fascinating Maritime Museum (July–Sept Mon–Fri 8am–11pm, Sat & Sun 10am–4pm; Oct–June Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat &

Sun 9am–noon; €4), a repository of nautical maps and model ships.

The old fortress walls (daily 8am–8pm; €3) sit proudly above the town, and make for a rewarding climb that's best begun from the North Gate. Allow at least ninety minutes for the round-trip to St Ivan's Castle, from which you'll have tremendous views of the fjord. On hot summer days it's best to set off early or wait until evening, and note that the first building you come to, the Church of Our Lady of Health, is not even halfway up.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is a 5min walk south of the Old Town.

Destinations Bar (5 daily; 1hr 45min); Budva (every 30min; 30min); Cetinje (hourly; 1hr); Podgorica (hourly; 1hr 30min).

Tourist office Located just outside the main entrance to the Old Town (daily 8am–5pm; July & Aug to 8pm; ☎ 032 322886, 🌐 tokotor.me), and able to book accommodation.

Tours Both hostels lay on good day-trips; the Montenegro Hostel's famous 12hr “Big Montenegro” tour (€40) covers much of the country.

Bike rental The Old Town Hostel rents bikes from €7 per day.

ACCOMMODATION

At all times of year, you're likely to be approached by sobe owners as you get off the bus. Rooms are mainly grouped in two areas: Škaljari, uphill from the industrial mess near the bus station, and the more pleasant area of Dobrota, on the bayside just north of the Old Town.

Montenegro Hostel Trg od Muzeja ☎ 069 039751, 🌐 montenegrohostel.com. There's a bit of noise from bars at night and churches in the morning, but the location is excellent – right in the heart of the Old Town – and the rooms in the back are quieter. Dorms €15

★ Old Town Hostel In from south gate ☎ 032 325317, 🌐 hostel-kotor.me. Fantastic hostel, located in a rambling, centuries-old building which once belonged to local nobility. Dorms are spick-and-span, and their private rooms even better. Dorms €20, doubles €54

Rendez-Vous Trg od Mlijeka ☎ 032 323931. The Old Town's cheapest hotel option sits on “Milk Square”, a lovely place off the tour-group trail. Its comfortably furnished rooms are en suite with wi-fi and a/c. Doubles €60

EATING

Given the Old Town's status as a tourist magnet, its culinary scene is disappointing, especially for those on a budget – though you'll find places serving slices of pizza for €2.

Bastion Trg od Drva. Seafood restaurant offering a more authentic Old Kotor atmosphere than you'll find elsewhere; the interior is far from showy, and the outdoor terrace is located in a charming square. Tuna steak with shrimp sauce €15, fish salad €5. Daily 10am–midnight.

Dolce e Salato Trg od Mlijeka. Outdoor seats in this quiet square are a perfect place for breakfast – a slice of burek, a Turkish coffee and a piece of strudel will come to just €3.50. Daily 7am–5pm.

Forza Trg od Oružja. Despite occasionally lethargic service, this is the best of a whole clutch of cafés on the main square, and a perfect place to watch Kotor strolling by. Don't dare step inside to peek at their cakes – you'll almost certainly emerge €4 lighter and a little heavier elsewhere. Daily 8am–10pm.

Scala Santa Just inside the south gate. This pricey but attractive restaurant is one of the few places in the Old Town specializing in Montenegrin food, rather than pizza and pasta – try the huge njeguški steak (€15), topped with prosciutto-like cured ham. Daily 10am–midnight.

NIGHTLIFE

The nightlife in Kotor can be surprisingly good, and there's usually live music at weekends, which see the cobbled streets thumping until midnight.

Maximus Citadella. Take your pick from several music-themed floors at the country's biggest nightclub which lies right in the heart of the Old Town and occasionally hosts big-name DJs. Entry can be €10–15 on weekends. Daily 9pm–late.

BUDVA

Of Montenegro's seemingly never-ending chain of picturesque coastal towns, BUDVA is by far the most popular. Filled to the brim with bars, restaurants and limestone houses, its Old Town is almost as pretty as the one in nearby Kotor, and there's plenty of fun to be had on the beaches, as well as at the seafront bars which pop up in the summer.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Budva's focal point is the Old Town – more of a place to stroll and sip coffee than to sightsee – though most travellers are here for the beaches, and there are plenty to choose from.

FESTIVALS IN AND AROUND KOTOR

Kotor's festival year kicks off on February 1, with folk dances and church music on the day of St Tripun; this is closely followed by the Masked Ball, a colourful event that sees processions through the Old Town. In April there's the wonderfully varied Montenegrin Dance Festival, before the International Summer Carnival (late July/early August) celebrates the sunny season with theatrical and musical performances. Around the same time is Refresh (🌐 refreshfestival.me), a four-day music festival that ropes in some big-name DJs. All pale in comparison, however, to late August's Boka Nights, when boats fill the bay, fireworks electrify the night sky, and everyone goes just a little bit mad.

The Old Town

The highlight of the Old Town is the area around the Church of the Holy Trinity (daily July–Sept 8am–noon & 5pm–midnight; Oct–June 8am–noon & 4–7pm), home to frescoes that, while far from ancient, are rather beautiful. Looming over this is the fifteenth-century citadel (May–Oct daily 8am–midnight; €2), which offers splendid views of the Adriatic waves pummeling in. Still, you're best advised to try instead to hunt down the entrances to the Old City wall, which boasts even better views. There are only two of these, and almost no tourists ever get up there – one is just to the left when you enter through the Terra Ferita gate, and the other is down an alley opposite Hong Kong restaurant at Vuka Karadžića 1. Also in the Old Town are the Town Museum (Tues–Fri 9am–10pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm; €2), which houses Greek and Roman booty from the ruins being unearthed beneath the citadel, and a Museum of Modern Art (Mon–Sat 8am–2pm & 4–10pm; €2).

Beaches and islands

The main beach, Slovenska Plaža, curls a few pebbly kilometres east from the Old Town, but far nicer are the sandy Mogren beaches, west of the Old Town, which attract a more youthful crowd – just follow the path around the cliffs from the Mogren Hotel. Better still is the beach on uninhabited Sveti Nikola Island, which you'll see jutting up offshore. In summer, regular water taxis will shuttle you across; prices start at around €5 per person, though you'll have to haggle.

WATER ACTIVITIES IN BUDVA

Slovenska Plaža, the main beach, is the place to head for all kinds of watery fun. Jet-skis and parasailing are on offer for the adventurous (from €40), while kayaks and pedaloes are a calmer option (€4–8/hr).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The station is a 15min walk from the Old Town, and a 10min walk north from Slovenska Plaza. Terrae Taxis are reliable and can be booked by phone or SMS (☎ 19717 or ☎ +382 69 444334).

Destinations Bar (hourly; 1hr); Cetinje (every 30min; 1hr); Kotor (every 30min–1hr; 30min); Podgorica (every 30min; 1hr 30min).

Tourist office There's a tourist information centre outside the town hall (☎ 033 453416) in the Old Town and another at Njegoševa 28 ☎ 033 452750 (both Mon–Sat 8am–8pm). They won't advise on accommodation, but are good for maps and travel information.

ACCOMMODATION

If you're not met at the bus station – almost a certainty in summer – your best option for private rooms is to head to Ata (Iva Mikovića 14; ☎ 069 240242, 🌐 atabooking.com) in the Old Town who can make bookings for €20–45/room.

Mojo Vojvodanska 3 ☎ 069 711986, 🌐 mojobudva.com. Perfectly located between the bus station and the Old Town, this offers a cheap yet relaxing stay in immaculately clean rooms, most of which are private. Doubles €55

Montenegro Hostel Vuka Karadžića 12 ☎ 069 039751, 🌐 montenegrohstel.com. Colourfully decorated hostel in the Old Town. The three dorms are effectively private rooms with more beds inside (each has its own kitchenette and bathroom), and there's a handy common area up top. Dorms €18

Vila Lux Jadranski put bb ☎ 033 455950, 🌐 vilalux.com. Delightful central hotel with high standards and free breakfasts that will fill you up until lunchtime. Good discounts for single travellers. Doubles €75

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Astoria Njegoševa 4 (☎ 033 451110, 🌐 astoriamontenegro.com). Friendly boutique hotel just inside the Old Town, offering artistically designed rooms and wonderful views from a rooftop terrace. Doubles from €200, though off-season you may get a suite for the same price. They also have a hugely popular restaurant that spills out from the town walls. €200

EATING

Restaurant prices are surprisingly reasonable in Budva; those on a tight budget will be able to fill up on €2 slices of pizza around the Old Town.

Jadran Slovenska Obala 10. Hugely popular waterfront restaurant whose international menu includes schnitzels, mussels or stuffed squid (all €10). In the summer, they even have a bunch of tables on the beach itself. Daily 9am–1am.

Juice Bar Budva Vranjak 13. Top rated Old Town café with superb salads, fresh juices (€3–5), sandwiches (€3–4) and other light dishes. With its shaded outdoor seating, it's a great spot to relax and watch the world go by. Daily 9am–midnight.

Konoba Stari Grad Njegoševa. One of the better venues in the Old Town, serving excellent seafood dishes – their squid is excellent whether fried, stuffed or grilled, as is the black risotto (all €10) – as well as traditional Montenegrin cuisine. There's a grand beach terrace outside, which also makes this one of the most appealing places for coffee. Daily 11am–1am.

Verde At the corner of Velji Vinogradi bb and Jadranski put. Highly regarded budget eatery a short walk from the Old Town serving a broad choice of takeaway salads (€2–3), pasta dishes (€3), fresh juices and pancakes. Daily 8am–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

On summer evenings Budva can be quite wild, especially at the open-air bars dotting the harbour road – pole-dancers, rakija and Russian tourists are a potent mix.

Casper Bar Cara Dušana 10. Still the trendiest bar in the Old Town, this is a tiny place with a fun but loungey vibe, and regular DJ sets. Daily 10am–2am.

Chest O'Sheas Mitrov Ljubiše. Small and appealing Irish pub right in the middle of the Old Town, with sports events on screen and Guinness (€7) on tap. Daily noon–1am.

BAR

The pleasant town of BAR is literally the first port of call for many visitors to Montenegro, thanks to regular ferry connections with Italy. While the beach is rocky and there are no real attractions in the centre, it's worth at least an afternoon thanks to the magnificent ruins of Stari Bar (daily: June–Aug 8am–10pm; Sept–May 8am–8pm; €2) – stari means old – which sit 5km up the hill. The beauty of its setting is quite staggering – sheer cliffs surround this old town on all sides, and tiny farming communities dot the valleys below.

SVETI STEFAN

Take a look at any local tourist brochure and you'll soon spot a small, incredibly beautiful island fishscaled with orange roofs. This is Sveti Stefan, located a few kilometres south of Budva (most easily accessed by taxi), and visible from the road if you're heading to or from Bar. It's now cordoned off as luxury accommodation, but such is its beauty that people stop all day long to take pictures from the adjacent main road – this, at least, is free. Those with a steady hand may be able to nab a good shot when passing by on a bus.

Fragments of pottery found in the area date it as far back as 800 BC, though it wasn't until the sixth century that the Byzantine Empire created what you see today; the destruction also in evidence was caused during the Ottoman resistance battles of the 1870s. A trip to Stari Bar should set you back no more than €6 by taxi, or grab one of the marked buses from the main drag or the bus and train stations (every 15min; €1).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The station is located 2km south of town, a €4 taxi ride from the centre.

Destinations Belgrade (2 daily; 11hr); Podgorica (10 daily; 1hr); Virpazar (9 daily; 25min).

By bus 300m from the train station; you can often hop on or off buses far nearer the town centre.

Destinations Budva (hourly; 1hr); Kotor (9 daily; 1hr 45min); Podgorica (hourly; 1hr 45min).

By ferry The terminal is immediately west of the centre, serving daily ferries from Bari year-round (see box, p.667).

Tourist office Obala 13 Julia, on the opposite side of the main road from the ferry terminal (June–Sept daily 8am–9pm; Oct–May Mon–Sat 8am–4pm; ☎ 030 311633, ☉ bar.travel).

ACCOMMODATION

There are few sobe rooms in central Bar, so it's best to head to Sušanj, a pleasant district hanging over the almost unpronounceable beach of Zukotrlica. It's a 20min walk north along the seafloor, or a €2 taxi ride; once there, keep your eyes open for "sobe" signs.

Le Petit Chateau Obala Kralja Nikole ☎ 030 314400. Located on the seafloor opposite the port, this characterful old building is one of the few central hotels. Rooms are smartly furnished and many have lovely sea views. Doubles €65

Villa Monegro Ilino bb ☎ 069 915415. Good-value hotel in the Sušanj district, a short walk from the beach, with a/c doubles and apartments with self-catering kitchens. Doubles €35

EATING AND DRINKING

Kaldrma Stari Bar. Adorable veggie restaurant – think cushions and rugs – near the entrance to the ruins. Summer daily 11am–10pm; often closed in the winter.

Karađuzović Stari Bar. Cosy family-run café near the ruins that's great for breakfast; €3 will buy you a slice of burek, a Turkish sweetie and an espresso. Daily 9am–8pm.

Pulena Vladimira Rolovića 11. Popular pizzeria-pub tucked into the fantastic Yugoslav-era Robna Kuka centre on the main drag. They have a nice range of local dishes as well as their Italian roster, and you can fill up for under €10. Daily 11am–11pm.

ULCINJ

ULCINJ sits near the Albanian border, and most travellers use the town as a simple conduit between the nations – the twice-daily bus connections to and from Shkodra (see p.728) are the only scheduled services of any kind linking Albania and Montenegro. You won't need to stay the night, and few foreign travellers choose to, but it's an attractive place for sure – from the bus station, a €4 taxi ride or 30min walk will bring you to the main beach, which sits under a delightful Old Town. The latter is a diametric opposite to those in Kotor and Budva – scruffy, unpolished, and quite fascinating as a result.

The interior

The mountains visible from the Montenegrin coast hint at the beauty of its interior, an area sadly bypassed by most travellers. The capital, Podgorica, is overlooked by backpackers but certainly merits a visit, while Cetinje, the former capital, makes a delightful stopover. Best of all is the mountainous north, particularly Durmitor, a spectacular

21 national park where you can hike through unspoilt pastureland, ski past 2000m-plus peaks, or raft through the colossal Tara Canyon.

CETINJE

Sleepy CETINJE sits just over the mountainous crest from Budva and Kotor, and is well placed for a visit if you're heading between coast and interior. Cetinje became Montenegro's capital on independence in 1878, and of the clutch of embassies that were established, many remain visible today as faded relics of the city's proud past. Though the status of capital has long been passed to Podgorica, many government offices – and, in fact, the presidential seat – remain in Cetinje.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Central Cetinje is small enough to walk around in an hour or two, and almost all sights are located on or near Njegoševa, a mostly pedestrianized central thoroughfare. The sights listed below are all open daily 9am–5pm, and can be visited on a €10 combined ticket (available from any of the museum ticket offices) or cost from €3 to €5 each.

Trg Dvorski and Trg Revolucije

The Palace of King Nikola sits at the southern end of Trg Dvorski. Prior to becoming king in 1910, Nikola was a military leader and poet (as well as a prince, of course), and his old palace is full of regal bric-a-brac. Opposite this is the Ethnographic Museum, which mainly features nineteenth-century costumes. Down the road in Trg Revolucije you'll find the Biliarda, once the residence of King Petar II, and named after a billiard table – still visible today – that he once had hauled here from Kotor. Near the Biliarda you'll find the National Museum, worth visiting for its first-floor art gallery, and nestled into the hillside across the square is Cetinje Monastery.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses pull into a tiny terminal that's a 10min walk into town; there's a small map at the station.

Destinations Budva (every 30min; 1hr); Kotor (hourly; 1hr 15min); Podgorica (every 30min; 45min).

Tourist office Njegoševa 39, in the large car park near the Grand Hotel (June–Sept daily 8am–7pm; Oct–May Mon–Fri 9am–2pm; ☎ 041 230250, 🌐 cetinje.travel). It's good for local maps but little more.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Grand Njegoševa st. 1 ☎ 041 231652, 🌐 hotelgrand.me. Yugoslav-era beast at the end of Njegoševa that'll be of great interest to fans of well-worn retro interiors. Doubles €€5

Kole Crnogorskih Junaka 12. Great-value local favourite that serves up generous portions of local dishes and seafood accompanied by delicious homebaked bread. Mains €5–10. Daily 7am–midnight.

La Vecchia Casa Vojvode Batrića 6 ☎ 067 629660. Rooms and apartments in a glorious old house with a wonderful garden right in the centre of town. Highly recommended. Doubles €30

Restoran Vinoteka Vasa Raičevića. Rich and varied menu of local specialties, including delicious gulaš and sarma. Dine with a view on the outdoor terrace, head up to the quiet upper level or down to the basement wine bar. Mains €5–10. Daily 10am–8pm.

PODGORICA

Though there may not be a great deal to see in PODGORICA, the Montenegrin capital has been attracting an increasing number of backpackers in recent years, and the hostel scene has expanded to accommodate them. It is the newest capital city in Europe, one of the smallest, and, until recently, one of the least visited. It also might be the only European capital in which the river water looks positively drinkable – the city centres on the Morača, a fast-flowing turquoise river edged by parkland and spanned by a couple of pedestrian bridges, one of which – the Gazela – dives down below street level. There are also some interesting fortress remains in this area, while Gorica Forest Park is worth a visit for its pleasant walking trails; it's to the north of town, behind the easy-to-find national stadium.

CETINJE'S EMBASSIES

Cetinje's former embassies are quite fascinating, and it's fun to track them down – basically, look for any oldish building sporting a crest. Nearest the bus station is the grey French embassy, covered with an assortment of lemon and blue tiles. Down on Trg Dvorski, the Serbian embassy contains the aforementioned ethnographic museum, and the Bulgarian one is now a great café. Further down the road, the crumbling British embassy is now a music academy; turn left for the Turkish embassy, now home to the University of Cetinje's Faculty of Drama, and the pick of the bunch – the gorgeous, peach-coloured Russian embassy.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane The airport lies 11km south of the city. A minibus usually meets incoming Montenegro Airlines flights to transport passengers to Podgorica's central square (€3). The only other alternative is to take a taxi – those parked outside will expect €20 to the centre; taxis booked by phone (Alo Taxi ☎ 19700; City Taxi ☎ 19711; Taxi Gold ☎ 19805) charge €5–10 for the same journey.

By train The train station is a 15min walk from the centre. Destinations Bar (11 daily; 1hr); Belgrade (2 daily; 10hr); Virpazar (9 daily; 35min).

By bus The terminal is adjacent to the train station. Destinations Bar (8 daily; 1hr 45min); Budva (every 30min; 1hr 30min); Cetinje (every 30min; 30min); Herceg Novi (hourly; 2hr 30min); Kotor (hourly; 2hr); Žabljak for Durmitor National Park (5 daily; 2hr 30min).

Tourist office Slobode 47 (June–Oct Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat 9am–1pm; Nov–May Mon–Fri 8am–4pm; ☎ 020 667535, 🌐 podgorica.travel). A good source of information, and can advise on accommodation.

ACCOMMODATION

Evropa Orahovačka 16 ☎ 020 623444, 🌐 hotelevropa .co.me. How convenient – Podgorica's cheapest hotel is located down a side street leading from the train and bus stations. Rooms are good and there's a restaurant downstairs. Doubles €50

Hostel Podgorica Bratstva Jedinstva 7-III, Apartment 1 ☎ 069 206909, 🌐 hostelpodgorica.com. Expect a warm welcome at this converted apartment that lies 5min east of the stations and offers comfortable four- and six-bed dorms. Dorms €11

Montenegro Hostel Radoja Jovanovića 52 (old street name)/Spasa Nikolića 52 (new street name) ☎ 069 255501, 🌐 montenegrohostel.com. A 15min walk east from the stations, with bright spacious dorms and private rooms in a detached house close to the river. Pleasant common area, shared kitchen, laundry and bike rental (€7/day). Dorms €11

EATING AND DRINKING

Restaurants in Podgorica are better value than the hotels, and burek-serving snack bars are easy to find. For nightlife, the best streets are Njegoševa and Bokeška – take your pick from the various bars on offer.

Buda Bar Stanka Dragojevića 26. Though it's a poor copy of the hip Buddha Bar chain, this popular place attracts a lively young crowd that parties till the early hours. Daily 8am–3am.

Duhovny Centar Njegoševa 27. Scoff down cheap, tasty local fare – mostly veggie – in this church-run and church-like restaurant: try the salty pancakes with cream. You can eat for under €5. Daily 8am–midnight.

★ Karver Obala Ribnice. Charming riverside café set inside an old Turkish bath, whose top was lopped off to make room for a bridge. Squashed it may be, but this is as cool as Podgorica gets – it's a great hangout for evening drinks, and also has a bookshop with a few English-language titles. Latte €1.50. Daily 9am–11.30pm.

Lanterna Imarka Miljanova 41. Traditional-style restaurant with rough stone walls and chunky wooden furniture that's renowned for its superb pizzas (extra large €7) and attentive service. Daily 10am–11pm.

★ Stara Kuca Iva Andrića 5. The "Old House" occupies a charming stone building with roaring open fire in winter and shaded rustic terrace for the hot summer months. Serves hearty portions of fish dishes and meat-based local specialities. Daily 10am–midnight.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates UK, Ulcinjska 8 ☎ 020 618010; US, Džona Džeksona 2 ☎ 020 410500.

Hospital Podgorica Hospital, Ljubljanska 1 ☎ 020 225125.

Post office Slobode 1 (Mon–Sat 7am–8pm). Has telephones for public use.

LAKE SKADAR

Oozing over the Albanian border, beautiful Skadar is the largest lake in the Balkans, and also one of its most untouched. However, since it lies on the train line, it's easily accessible and can make a good stopoff on your way to or from the coast. The main jump-off point is Virpazar, a cute little fishing village at the northern end of the lake, 1km back down the line to Podgorica from the station. From here it's a pleasant walk along the lake's western shore, and though there's nowhere to rent bikes, if you've brought one along you'll be in heaven – an hour's ride will bring into

ACTIVITIES IN DURMITOR

There's plenty to do in and around the park, though this area is most famed for its rafting, which is among the best in Europe. This can be arranged through agencies on the coast, Montenegro Hostel in Kotor or Budva, or in Žabljak itself – try Summit, Njegoševa bb (☎069 016502, 🌐summit.co.me), which charges €45 per person for a half-day trip and also runs jeep, mountain biking, canyoning and hiking tours. Hiking is great from June to September, but do come prepared since this is a wild area, and be warned that the weather can change rapidly, even in summer. The aforementioned agencies can provide maps. Wintertime opens up skiing possibilities, and snowboarding is on the rise too; the main slopes are accessible from Žabljak, with day-passes costing around €15, and ski rental almost the same.

sight a clutch of offshore monasteries, though to get any nearer you'll have to search for a boat.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Country House Djurisić Boljevci bb (☎69 406584). Perched on a picturesque hillside just outside Virpazar, this charming guesthouse has a lovely garden and clean, cosy rooms with wonderful views. Inexpensive home-cooked meals are available and the breakfasts are exceptional. Tours of the region can be arranged by the affable owners who also offer free bikes for guests to use. Doubles €40
Pelikan Virpazar (☎020 711107, 🌐pelikan-zec.com). A one-stop shop for lodging, dining and motorboat tours; the simply furnished rooms are comfortable, though they're outdone by the excellent lakeside restaurant, which specializes in local fish. Doubles €55

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Boskovica Brvnare (☎069 541728). A little south of Žabljak (call to be picked up), this highly appealing clutch of self-catering pine-clad chalets makes for great value – the views are simply stupendous. Discounts for stays of over five days. Chalets €110

DURMITOR NATIONAL PARK

A land of jagged, pine-cloaked mountains and alpine pastureland, Durmitor is the most scenic place in inland Montenegro, and a hive of outdoor activity throughout the year, a prime spot for skiing, hiking, camping, rafting and far more.

Dozens of 2000m-plus peaks drop down to the spectacular Tara Canyon, a 1000m-deep rip in the Earth bisected by a crashing river. The park is centred on the mountain town of Žabljak, accessible by bus along a winding road that can turn even the stomachs of the locals; it's a two-and-a-half-hour bus ride from Podgorica (five daily).

ACCOMMODATION

There's plenty of accommodation in the area, though as elsewhere in the country the hotels are a little dear. Better for budget travellers are private rooms – from €10 per person – which you'll be offered on getting off the bus. Durmitor is also a great place for camping, and there are a number of sites around the park.

Ivan Do Autocamp Žabljak (☎069 041749, 🌐autocamp-ivando.com). Well-established campsite in stunning location just outside town. Caravans (€5) and camper vans (€5) are also catered for. Per person €2, plus per tent €2

Introduction

It's just an hour's ferry ride from Spain, yet Morocco seems worlds away from Europe. Its culture is Islamic and, despite its 44 years of French and Spanish colonial rule, a more distant past constantly makes its presence felt. A visit here is a challenging, intense and rewarding experience.

Berbers, the indigenous people, make up over half of Morocco's population; only around ten percent of Moroccans claim to be "pure" Arabs. Until independence in 1956, the country was divided into Spanish and French zones, the latter building Villes Nouvelles (new towns) alongside the long-standing Medinas (old towns) in all the country's main cities.

Many people come to Morocco on cheap flights, mainly to Marrakesh, but coming by boat from Europe, your most likely introduction to the country is Tangier in the north, still shaped by its heyday as an "international zone" in the 1950s. To its south, in the Rif Mountains, the town of Chefchaouen is a small-scale and enjoyably laidback place, while inland lies the enthralling city of Fez, the greatest of the four imperial capitals (the others are Meknes, Rabat and Marrakesh). The sprawl of Meknes, with its ancient walls, makes an easy day-trip from Fez.

The power axis of the nation lies on the coast in Rabat and Casablanca. "Casa" looks a lot like Marseille, while the elegant, orderly capital, Rabat, has some gems of Moroccan architecture. Further south, Marrakesh is an enduring fantasy that won't disappoint. The country's loveliest resort, Essaouira, a charming walled seaside town, lies within easy reach of both Marrakesh and Casablanca.

CHRONOLOGY

42 AD Romans take control of the coastal regions of Morocco.

600s Arabs conquer Moroccan lands, introducing Islam.

1062 Marrakesh is built by the Berber dynasty of Almoravids.

1195 Almoravids are replaced by the Almohads, who conquer southern Spain.

1269 The capital is moved to Fez.

1415 The Portuguese capture the Moroccan port of Ceuta.

1492 Influx of Muslim and Jewish Andalusian refugees following the fall of Granada.

1524 Foundation of Saadian kingdom at Tagmadert.

1666 English occupy Tangier, introduce tea to Morocco.

1672 Alaouites under Moulay Rashid take power in Fez.

1860 Spanish wage war with Morocco, ultimately gaining land in Ceuta.

1904 France and Spain divide various areas of influence in Morocco.

1912 Treaty of Fez divides Morocco into protectorates controlled by France and Spain.

1943 Moroccan Independence Party, Istiqlal, is founded.

1956 Morocco declares independence from France.

1963 First general elections.

1975 Morocco occupies the Western Sahara.

1999 Accession of Mohammed VI to the throne.

2006 Introduction of cheap flights to Marrakesh.

2011 Bomb in Marrakesh kills fifteen people in April. Moderate Islamist PJD wins parliamentary elections in November.

2015 High turnout in local elections.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

To reach Morocco from Europe you can either fly or take a ferry. The main airports are in Casablanca, Fez and Marrakesh, the last of which is served regularly by budget airlines from UK and European airports. Ryanair (ryanair.com) and easyJet (easyjet.com) both sell cheap online tickets.

Ferries from Algeciras (Spain) take you to the new port of Tangier Med or the Spanish enclave of Ceuta. Ceuta is 3km from the Moroccan town of Fnideq, where you can take buses or shared taxis to Tangier or Tetouan. Tangier Med – also served by ferries from places like Sète, Genoa and Barcelona – is inconveniently situated but has shared grands taxis to Tangier. Only ferries from Tarifa (served by a free shuttle bus from Algeciras for ferry ticket holders) actually take you to Tangier, which has all the major transport links, and is itself worth a visit. Boat tickets can be booked online (@trasmediterranea.es, @balearia.com and @frs.es) or at the ports of departure.

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

For travel between the major cities, trains are the best option. A table of direct and connecting services to any other station is available at any station ticket office or on the website of the national rail company, ONCF (@www.oncf.ma). Couchettes (154dh extra) are available on night trains from Tangier to Marrakesh (10hr 15min), and are worth the money for extra comfort and security. Only direct trains are listed in this chapter.

BY TAXI

Shared grands taxis are usually big Peugeots or Mercedes, plying set routes for a set fare, and are much quicker than buses, though the drivers can be reckless. Make clear you only want une place (one seat), otherwise drivers may assume you want to charter the whole car. Expect to wait until all six places in the taxi are taken, though you can pay for the extra places if you are in a hurry. Within towns petits taxis do short trips, carrying up to three people. They queue in central locations and at stations and can be hailed on streets when they're empty. Payment – usually no more than 20dh – depends on distance travelled.

BY BUS

Buses are marginally cheaper than shared grands taxis, and cover longer distances, but are slower. The national company, CTM (@ctm.ma), is the most reliable. Supratours (@supratours.ma) run express buses that connect to train services.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation is inexpensive, generally good value and usually pretty easy to find, although it's more difficult in main cities and resorts in the peak seasons: August, Christmas, and Aid el Kebir (expected dates are Sept 1 2017; Aug 21 2018; Aug 11 2019; July 31 2020). Cheap, unclassified hotels and pensions (charging about 120–200dh for a double) are mainly in each town's Medina (old town), while hotels with stars tend to concentrate in the Ville Nouvelle (new town). At their best, unclassified Medina hotels are beautiful, traditional houses with whitewashed rooms grouped around a central patio. The worst can be extremely dirty, with a poor water supply. Few have en-suite bathrooms, though a hammam (public Turkish bath) is usually close at hand. Most cheap hotels do not include breakfast in their room price. HI hostels (auberges de jeunesse), often bright, breezy and friendly, generally require you to be in by 10 or 11pm and out by 10am daily. Campsites are usually well out of town and tend to charge around 20–25dh per person plus the same again for your tent.

FOOD AND DRINK

Moroccan cooking is wholesome and filling. The main dish is usually a tajine (casserole). Classic tajines include chicken with lemon and olives, and lamb with prunes and almonds. The most famous Moroccan dish is couscous, a huge bowl of steamed semolina piled with vegetables, mutton, chicken or fish. Restaurant starters include salade marocaine, a finely chopped salad of tomato and cucumber, or soup, most often the spicy, bean-based harira. Dessert will probably be fruit, yogurt or a pastry. Breakfast is cheapest if you buy msimmen or melaoui (which taste like pancakes), harsha (a heavy gritty griddle bread) or pastries from street-side shops and eat them at cafés.

The best budget meals are at local diners, where tajines or roast chicken with chips and salad are usually under 60dh. Even cheaper are sandwiches and shawmas, which cost 15–20dh from street-side vendors; however, be careful about ordering kefta (minced lamb) if you have a weak stomach. Fancier restaurants, definitely worth an occasional splurge, are mostly in the Ville Nouvelle and may offer bargain set menus at 150–250dh.

Vegetarianism is not widely understood and meat stock may be added even to vegetable dishes. If invited to a home, you're unlikely to use a knife and fork; copy your hosts and eat only with your right hand.

DRINK

The national drink is thé à la menthe – green tea with a large bunch of mint and a massive amount of sugar. Coffee (café in French; qahwa in Arabic) is best in French-style cafés. Moroccans tend to take their coffee with half milk and half coffee (nus-nus) in a glass. Many cafés and street stalls sell freshly squeezed orange juice, and mineral water is readily available. As an Islamic nation, Morocco gives alcohol a low profile, and it's generally hard to find in the Medinas, although bars are always around in the Ville Nouvelle. Moroccan wines, usually red, can be very drinkable, while the best-value beer is Flag Speciale. Most local bars are male domains; hotel bars, on the other hand, are more mixed and not much more expensive. Supermarkets often sell alcohol; ask a petit taxi to take you to the nearest Acima or Marjane.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Morocco is a Muslim country, and in rural areas particularly, people can be quite conservative about dress and displays of affection. It's not the done thing to kiss and cuddle in public, nor even for couples to hold hands. Dress is more conservative in rural areas, though even in the cities you can feel uncomfortable in sleeveless tops, short shorts or skirts above the knee. The heat can also be oppressive, so long, light, loose clothing is best. A shawl allows women to cover up while wearing sleeveless tops.

SHOPPING

You can pick up bargains throughout Morocco, and you will kick yourself if you go home empty-handed. However, getting a price you can brag about in the hostel requires a willingness to enter into the spirit of haggling. The first price you will be given may be three to ten times more than the going rate; if you're a student, it's always worth pointing that out when bargaining. Though quality makes a difference, we've included rough prices for some popular goods you could reasonably fit into a backpack. Fixed-price shops in the Ville Nouvelle also give a good approximation of what you should be paying in the Medina.

- Small kilims (coarse rugs) 500–800dh
- Leather bags (cheaper in Fez than Marrakesh) 150–500dh
- Leather babouches (slippers) 50–250dh
- Cotton scarves 10–100dh
- Jelaba (traditional Moroccan dress) 200–2000dh

Be sensitive when taking photographs, and always ask permission. In certain places, particularly the Jemaa el Fna in Marrakesh, people may demand money from you just for happening to be in a shot you have taken. Also note that it is illegal to photograph anything considered strategic, such as an airport or a police station.

When invited into people's homes, remove footwear before entering the reception rooms. If invited for a meal, take a gift: a box of sweets from a posh patisserie usually goes down well.

It is acceptable (and a good idea) to try bargaining at every opportunity (see box above). If you do it with a smile, you can often get surprising reductions.

Morocco is inexpensive but poor, and tips can make a big difference; it's customary to tip café waiters a dirham or two.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Casablanca and Essaouira cater to surfers: the former has better waves while the latter is excellent for windsurfing. Mohammedia, a thirty-minute ride from both Rabat and Casablanca, is also a great destination for surfers. Tangier and Rabat have decent surf beaches but with less developed services.

The Moroccan mountain ranges offer great hiking opportunities. Good starting points include: Chefchaouen, in the Rif; Fez and Meknes near the Middle Atlas; and Marrakesh, two hours away from Mount Toubkal – the second-highest mountain in Africa. Consult local tourist information offices or hotels for advice and details of the trails.

Horseriding is an increasingly popular tourist pursuit in Morocco. La Roseaie Hotel, located in the High Atlas, 60km from Marrakesh (☎0524 439128, @laroseaiehotel.com), is a great place from which to hire horses and venture into the mountainous countryside. Prices depend on your itinerary but it's not cheap.

Football is Morocco's most popular sport. You will see it being played in every conceivable open space. If you start up a game on a beach it won't be long before you are joined by some Moroccans; equally you'll usually be welcome in pick-up games. All the major cities have teams and money is being poured into new stadiums.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post offices (La Poste) are open Monday to Friday 8am to 4.15pm; larger ones stay open until 6pm, and open Saturday 8am to noon. You can also buy stamps at postcard shops and sometimes at tobacconists. International phone calls are best made with a phonecard (from post offices and some tobacconists). Alternatively, there are privately run téléboutiques, open late. You must dial all ten digits of Moroccan phone numbers. Internet access is available pretty much everywhere, and at low rates: 5–10dh per hour is typical. Tourist hotels (even cheap ones) often have wi-fi, as do some trendy cafés and all major rail stations; Casablanca even has a few public wi-fi hotspots.

EMERGENCIES

Street robbery is rare but not unknown, especially in Tangier and Casablanca. Hotels are generally secure for depositing money; campsites less so. There are two main types of police – grey-clad gendarmes, with authority outside city limits; and the navy-clad sûreté in towns. There's sometimes a brigade of "tourist police" too. Steer clear of marijuana (kif) and hashish – it's illegal, and buying it leaves you vulnerable to scams, as well as potentially large fines and prison sentences.

Moroccan pharmacists are well trained and dispense a wide range of drugs. In most cities there is a night pharmacy, often at the town hall, and a rota of pharmacies de garde that stay open till late and at weekends. You can get a list of English-speaking doctors in major cities from consulates.

Also be aware that there have been occasional bomb attacks on Western and tourist targets, the most recent occurring in 2011 at a café on Marrakesh's Jemaa el Fna, in which seventeen people were killed; you may wish to check the travel advice offered by organizations such as the US State Department (@travel.state.gov) or UK Foreign Office (@gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice) before visiting.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police – Sûreté ☎ 19, Gendarmes ☎ 177; Fire and ambulance ☎ 15.

INFORMATION

There's a tourist office (Délégation du Tourisme) run by the Office National Marocain du Tourisme (ONMT) in every major city, and sometimes also a locally funded Syndicat d'Initiative. They stock a limited selection of leaflets and maps, and can put you in touch with official guides. Local bookshops and street-side kiosks sometimes sell local maps. There are scores of "unofficial guides", some of whom are students, while others are out-and-out hustlers (though these have been clamped down on). If they do find you, be polite but firm; note that it's illegal to harass tourists.

MONEY AND BANKS

The unit of currency is the dirham (dh), divided into 100 centimes; in markets, prices may be in centimes rather than dirhams. There are coins of 10c, 20c, 50c, 1dh, 5dh and 10dh, and notes of 20dh, 50dh, 100dh and 200dh. At the time of writing, £1 = 14dh, $1 = 9.80dh, €1 = 11.20dh. Note that different accommodation establishments quote their prices in different currencies. You can get dirhams in Algeciras (Spain) and Gibraltar, and can usually change foreign notes on arrival at major sea- and airports. For exchange purposes, the most useful and efficient chain of banks is the BMCE (Banque Marocaine du Commerce Extérieur). Post offices will also change cash, and there are bureaux de change in major cities and tourist resorts. Many banks give cash advances on credit cards, which can also be used in tourist hotels (but not cheap unclassified ones) and the ATMs of major banks. Banking hours are Monday to Friday 8.15am to 3.45pm (Mon–Fri 9.30am–2pm during the holy month of Ramadan).

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shops and stalls in the souk (bazaar) areas open roughly 9am to 1pm and 3 to 6pm. Ville Nouvelle shops are also likely to close for lunch, and also once a week, usually Sunday. Islamic religious holidays are calculated on the lunar calendar and

MOROCCAN ARABIC

Moroccan Arabic is the country's official language, and there are three Berber languages, but much of the country is bilingual in French. For some useful French words and phrases see p.280.

change each year. In 2017–2020 they fall (approximately) as follows: Ramadan (when all Muslims fast from sunrise to sunset) is in May–June; the end of Ramadan is celebrated with Aïd es Seghir (aka Aïd el Fitr), a two-day holiday; Aïd el Kebir, in August or September, is when Abraham offered to sacrifice his son for God; the Muslim New Year is a couple of weeks after that, with Mouloud (the birthday of Mohammed) in November or December. Non-Muslims are not expected to observe Ramadan, but should be sensitive about not breaking the fast in public. Secular holidays are considered less important, with most public services (except banks and offices) operating normally even during the two biggest ones – the Feast of the Throne (July 30), and Independence Day (Nov 18).

Northern Morocco

The northern tip of Morocco alone justifies the short ferry ride from Spain: in three days or so you could check out the delightfully seedy city of Tangier and the picturesque mountain town of Chefchaouen in the Rif Mountains.

TANGIER

For the first half of the twentieth century TANGIER (Tanja in Arabic; Tanger in French) was an “International City” with its own laws and administration, attracting notoriety through its flamboyant expat community. With independence in 1956, this special status was removed and the expat colony dwindled. Its mixed colonial history and proximity to Spain means that Spanish is a preferred second language. Today Tangier is a grimy but energetic port, mixing modern nightclubs and seedy Moroccan bars with some fine colonial architecture.

The Grand Socco, or Zoco Grande – once the main market square (and, since Independence, officially Place du 9 Avril 1947) – offers the most straightforward approach to the Medina. The arch at the northern end opens onto Rue d’Italie, which leads up to the Kasbah. To the right, Rue es Siaghin leads to the atmospheric but seedy Petit Socco, or Zoco Chico, the Medina’s main square. Rue des Almohades (aka Rue des Chrétiens) and Rue Ben Raisouli lead to the lower gate.

Kasbah

The Kasbah (citadel), walled off from the Medina on the highest rise of the coast, has been the palace and administrative quarter since Roman times. The main point of interest is the former Sultanate Palace, or Dar el Makhzen (Mon & Wed–Sun 9–11.30am & 1.30–4pm; 10dh), now converted into a museum of crafts and antiquities, which gives you an excuse to look around, though the exhibits are rather sparse.

Beaches

Tangier’s best beaches are a twenty-minute ride out of town. There are few vendors selling refreshments, so it’s best to bring your own food and drink. Plage Sidi Kacem has a trendy beach restaurant,

L’Océan (daily noon–5pm; ☎0539 338137), which rents out deckchairs and serves hamburgers and European food, as well as being licensed. A petit taxi from town will cost around 150dh each way.

Caves of Hercules

Perhaps the area’s most popular tourist spot is the Caves of Hercules (Grottes d’Hercule), 16km southwest of town, where the sea has eroded the cave entrance to form the shape of Africa. In summer there are very occasional buses (#2 from St Andrew’s Church near the Grand Socco), but otherwise you’ll have to charter a grand taxi to get here (around 100dh for the round trip including waiting time. The caves (9am–sunset; 5dh) have been occupied since prehistoric times, later serving as a quarry for millstones (you can see the erosion on the walls) and in the 1920s becoming a rather exotic brothel.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport is 15km southwest of the city centre. A petit taxi into town is 150dh.

By train All trains terminate at Tanger Ville station 2km east of town. A petit taxi into town is around 20dh on the meter, but drivers may demand more. The overnight train from Tangier to Marrakesh allows you to venture south without losing time.

Destinations Casablanca Voyageurs (8 daily; 4hr 40min); Fez (3 daily; 4hr 35min); Marrakesh (1 nightly; 10hr 15min); Meknes (3 daily; 4hr); Rabat (8 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The gare routière bus station, used by all intercity buses and shared grands taxis, is 1.5km southeast of the centre on Av Youssef Ben Tachfine.

By boat Ferries from Tarifa dock at the terminal immediately below the Medina, while ferries from Algeciras arrive at Tangier Med, 40km east of town.

Destinations from Tangier (city) Tarifa (12 daily; 1hr).

Destinations from Tangier Med Algeciras (16–22 daily; 1hr–2hr 30min); Genoa, Italy (2 weekly; 48hr); Gibraltar (1 weekly; 1hr 30min); Sète, France (3 weekly; 35–40hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The tourist office is at 29 Bd Pasteur, just down from Place de France (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎0539 948050).

ACCOMMODATION

There are dozens of hotels and pensions, but the city can get crowded in summer, when some places double their prices.

MEDINA

Al-Andalusi 64 Rue Ibn Battuta ☎ 0539 936052. Friendly hostel with dorm rooms sleeping 2–4, as well as a welcoming salon and a rooftop terrace with sweeping views of the city. Dorms 125dh

Mamora 19 Rue des Postes ☎ 0539 934105. A good-value option with pleasant rooms, some with en-suite showers; make sure you ask for a room facing the mosque, as the views are worth it. Doubles 120dh

Melting Pot 3 Rue de Tsouli ☎ 0539 331508, meltingpohostels.com. Clean and well-run hostel with a choice of double rooms or dorms sleeping 4–8. Bathrooms are shared but there's plenty of hot water. Dorms €11, doubles €35

VILLE NOUVELLE

Camping Miramonte Off Rue Shakespeare, 300m west of Stade Marshan ☎ 0672 207055, campingmiramonte.com. Often closed for no apparent reason, so call ahead before trekking out here. Per person 25dh, plus per tent 25dh

★ El Muniria 1 Rue Magellan ☎ 0539 935337. Pick of Tangier's hotels, decorated in a laidback modern Moroccan style. William Burroughs wrote his most famous book, The Naked Lunch, here. Doubles 250dh

Magellan 16 Rue Magellan ☎ 0539 372319. Great value for money: sparkling clean with tangerine-coloured public areas and tastefully painted rooms. Doubles 150dh

Pension Dar Omar Khayam 8 Rue el Antaki ☎ 0539 343036, daromarkhayam.com. Former convent with cell-like singles or a/c en-suite doubles. Rooms at the back are quieter. Doubles 150dh

Pension Miami 126 Rue de la Plage ☎ 0539 932900. Beautifully tiled old Spanish townhouse with pleasant rooms, and bathrooms on each corridor. Doubles 150dh

EATING

Tangier is best enjoyed from a café, and the Petit Socco is packed with them, each offering the opportunity to relax and observe the hustle on the street. The two main centres for food in general are the Grand Socco, where you can pick up cheap, filling Moroccan staples, and the more diverse (and licensed) strip on Av d'Espagne.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Africa 83 Rue de la Plage. The 55dh (plus 7dh tax) four-course set menu here is one of the best bargains in town, or you can settle for the usual tajine and brochette dishes instead (45–65dh). Daily 11am–10pm.

Café de Paris Place de France. For a more upmarket choice, head to Tangier's most famous and reputedly oldest café. Daily 7am–11pm.

Café Hafa Off Rue Shakespeare by the Punic Tombs. Cut into the cliff face and looking across the Mediterranean to Spain, this place offers basic snacks (including bissara, a fava bean soup usually eaten for breakfast) and cakes or croissants to go with your tea. Daily 10am–7pm.

Dolcy's Eastern end of Bd Pasteur. A great spot for breakfast, offering eggs, toasted sandwiches and fresh juices. Daily 7am–11pm.

Eric's Hamburger Shop Arcade Mentoubi, between Bd pasteur and Rue el Moutanabi. Wooden stools lined up against a stainless-steel counter, and a menu consisting of hamburgers and hot dogs. Daily 24hr.

RESTAURANTS

Anna e Paolo 77 Rue Prince Héritier ☎ 0539 944617. The pastas are the speciality at this Italian family-run restaurant (mains 75–145dh). Licensed. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

El Dorado 23 Rue Allal ben Abdallah. There's a wide variety of marine denizens to be had at this Spanish fish restaurant, as well as couscous on Fridays and paella on Sundays (mains 60–140dh). Daily noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

Le Nabab 4 Rue al Kadiria ☎ 0661 442220. Former fondouk (or caravanserai, an old merchants' hostel) restored to a classy restaurant. The Moroccan menu includes both traditional dishes and some more inventive offerings. Mains 90–140dh, set menu 175dh. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7.30–11pm.

Rif Kabdani 14 Rue dar el Baroud ☎ 0539 371760. Small French-style bistro with a menu of Moroccan standards, complimentary tapas and mint tea. Mains 55–85dh. Daily noon–10pm.

San Remo 15 Rue Ahmed Chaouki ☎ 0539 938451. Good-value Mediterranean cooking, including seafood and meat grills (mains 70–240dh), and pizzas. They also have a cheaper pizzeria across the road. Daily noon–3pm & 7–11pm.

Valencia 6 Av Youssef Ben Tachfine ☎ 0539 945146. Very popular fish restaurant, whose straightforward menu includes a variety of fried and grilled dishes (mains 35–80dh). Mon & Wed–Sun 11am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Many of Tangier's nightlife venues attract a rather seedy crowd; the places listed here are the most dependable.

Atlas Bar 30 Rue Prince Héritier. Intimate, atmospheric dive-bar that's been serving beer and tapas (and barely changed) since 1928. Daily 8pm–1am.

Dean's Bar 2 Rue d'Amérique du Sud. Former haunt of Tennessee Williams, Francis Bacon and Ian Fleming, now a smoky but cheap and welcoming Moroccan drinking hole. Daily noon till late.

Tanger Inn Hotel El Muniria, 1 Rue Magellan. Mingle with young Moroccans at this lively joint which was once frequented by the Beat Generation authors (Burroughs, Ginsberg and Kerouac); beers 20dh. Thurs, Fri & Sat are best. Mon–Sat 10pm–2am.

DIRECTORY

Bank and exchange BMCE, 21 Bd Pasteur, has a bureau de change and ATM. Bureaux de change at 68 Rue es Siaghin and 47 Bd Pasteur.

Internet Cybercafé Juliana, corner Rue el Antaki and Rue Abou Alaa al Maari; Euronet, 5 Rue Ahmed Chaouki (off Bd Pasteur); Club Internet 3000, 27 Rue el Antaki.

Pharmacies There are several English-speaking pharmacies on Place de France and Bd Pasteur.

Police The Brigade Touristique (☎ 0539 931129), based at the former train station by the port.

CEUTA/FNIDEQ

Due to the fast ferry from Algeciras, the Spanish enclave of CEUTA is a popular entry point from Spain. On disembarking you can get a taxi or local bus to the Moroccan border. Across the border, shared grands taxis will take you the 3km to the Moroccan town of FNIDEQ (5dh) where there are bus and shared taxi connections to Tetouan (20–35dh) and Tangier. Arrive early to leave time for moving on.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The bus station (gare routière) in Fnideq is in the centre of the town, a couple of blocks back from the seafront highway.

Destinations Casablanca (3 daily; 6hr); Rabat (3 daily; 4hr 30min); Tangier (10 daily; 2hr); Tetouan (11 daily; 1hr).

By ferry Tickets can be booked at Ceuta port; it is advisable to arrive an hour early. Times to avoid are at the end of Easter week and the last week of August due to a huge increase in demand.

Destinations Algeciras, mainland Spain (12–22 daily; 1hr–1hr 30min).

By taxi Buses are infrequent, so it's often quicker and similarly priced to get a shared grand taxi to Tetouan or Tangier for better connections. Shared grands taxis have ranks at the bus station and (for Ceuta) at the northern end of town.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Dreamland Av Hassan II, Fnideq ☎ 0539 976357. Clean, modern hotel in the middle of town; rooms are en suite, but those facing the sea also face the busy road. Doubles 258dh

Hotel Nador 134 Av Mohammad V, Fnideq ☎ 0539 675345. This modest but decent little place is the cheapest of the hotels along the one main road, with smaller and darker rooms than the others, but lower prices to match. Doubles 150dh

TETOUAN

Coming from Ceuta, it's generally most convenient to pick up onward transport at TETOUAN, a Spanish colonial town with quite a large Medina.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The bus station is 1km southeast of town.

Destinations Casablanca (15 daily; 7hr); Chefchaouen (15 daily; 2hr); Fez (14 daily; 6hr); Fnideq (for Ceuta; 11 daily; 1hr); Marrakesh (6 daily; 10hr); Meknes (5 daily; 6hr); Rabat (15 daily; 6hr); Tangier (24 daily; 1hr 30min).

By taxi Shared grands taxis for Tangier and Chefchaouen leave from Av Khaled Ibnou el Oualid, a 20min walk west of town or 15dh by taxi. For Fnideq and the Ceuta frontier they leave from Av Hassan II.

By train The ONCF office on Av 10 Mai, alongside Place Al Adala, sells train tickets that include a shuttle bus to Asilah from where you can catch a connecting train service.

ACCOMMODATION

La Unión 1 Pasaje Achaach (through the arcades opposite Cinema Español). Standard Moroccan fare, including harira, brochettes and a reasonable meat tajine (mains 25–40dh). Daily noon–9.30pm.

Pensión Iberia 5 Place Moulay el Mehdi, 3rd floor (above BMCE bank) ☎ 0533 963679. Central, clean and good value. Some rooms have balconies overlooking the Plaza, but bathrooms are shared. Doubles 108dh

CHEFCHAOUEN

Shut in by a fold of the Rif Mountains, CHEFCHAOUEN (sometimes abbreviated to Chaouen or Xaouen) had, until the arrival of Spanish troops in 1920, been visited by just a handful of Europeans. It's a town of extraordinary light and colour, its whitewash tinted with blue and edged by golden stone walls. Pensions are friendly and cheap and Chefchaouen is one of the best places to spend your first few days in Morocco.

The main entrance to the Medina is a tiny arched entrance, Bab el Ain, but the quickest way to negotiate your way to the centre is to get a petit taxi to Place el Makhzen (ask for the Kasbah), where you will find Hotel Parador, an expensive hotel but a good place to pop into for a beer or a swim. From here it is only a two-minute walk to Place Outa el Hammam, where most of the town's evening life takes place. By day the town's focus is the Kasbah (Mon, Wed, Thurs & Sun 10am–2pm & 4–7.30pm, Tues 4–7.30pm, Fri 10am–1pm & 4–7.30pm; 10dh), a quiet ruin with shady gardens and a small museum, which occupies one side of the square.

Chefchaouen is best enjoyed pottering around the Medina or relaxing at coffee shops. For the more adventurous there are hiking trails that start from the town. Or you can charter a grand taxi from Place el Makhzen to go to the Oued Laou beach, about 60km away, or hike along rivers and waterfalls at Akchour, a thirty-minute grand taxi ride away.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Buses arrive at the station southwest of town; it's a 15min uphill walk into the centre, or a 10dh petit taxi ride. Buy tickets a day in advance for Fez and Meknes.

Destinations Casablanca (3 daily; 6hr); Fez (9 daily; 4hr 30min); Meknes (3 daily; 5hr 30min); Rabat (3 daily; 5hr); Tangier (11 daily; 3hr); Tetouan (15 daily; 2hr).

By shared taxi Tangier and Tetouan services operate from Av Jamal Dine el Afghani, off the west side of Pl Mohammed V.

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Azilan Rue Sidi Abdelhamid ☎ 0539 986979. Located up on the hill above town, by the modern Hôtel Asma. Chefchaouen's campsite is inexpensive but can be crowded in summer. Price is for two people and a tent. 95dh

Hotel Andaluz 1 Rue Sidi Salem ☎ 0539 986034. Behind the jolly blue-and-white entrance, the rooms are a bit sombre, but staff are friendly and there's a very decent English-language book collection. Doubles 120dh

Hotel Ouarzazat Rue de Alkharazine ☎ 0539 988990. Rooms are decked out in local furniture and bathrooms are pretty spick and span. Doubles 140dh

Hotel Salam 39 Av Hassan II ☎ 0539 986239. Cheap, friendly and a favourite with backpackers who don't want to be in the Medina, with high-ceilinged rooms and shared bathrooms. Doubles 120dh

Pension La Castellena 4 Sidi Ahmed El Bouhali ☎ 0539 986295. The rooms are a little bit small at this perennially popular pension, but they're all beautifully decorated, individually furnished and painted by hand with colourful motifs. Doubles 150dh

EATING AND DRINKING

Al Azhar At the bottom of the steps on Av Moulay Idriss. Popular local snack restaurant with good food and service. Fast and cheap (mains 20–50dh). Daily 10am–10pm.

Assada On a nameless lane just north of Bab el Ain, opposite the Hôtel Bab el Ain. Extending across the lane and above to an open rooftop terrace, a favourite of locals and travellers alike. Food served all day (breakfasts 18–25dh, mains 20–45dh). Daily 9am–9pm.

Casa Aladin Rue Targi 17, off the north end of Place Outa El Hammam. Two floors and a terrace, beautifully done out in Arabian Nights style, as its name suggests, serving great tajines, couscous (including vegetarian) and other staples (mains 45–85dh, set menus 75dh). Daily 11am–11pm.

Central Morocco

Between the mountain ranges of the Rif to the north and the Atlas to the south lie the cities that form Morocco's heart: the great imperial centres of Meknes and Fez, the modern capital, Rabat, and the country's largest city and commercial capital, Casablanca.

MEKNES

More than any other Moroccan town, MEKNES is associated with a single figure, the Sultan Moulay Ismail, during whose reign (1672–1727) the city went from provincial centre to spectacular capital showcasing over fifty palaces and 24m of exterior walls. Today Meknes is a more sedate and calm version of Marrakesh, and the palaces and monuments of its Medina reward a day's exploration. The town also serves as a perfect base to explore the nearby ancient site of Volubilis and holy town of Moulay Idriss.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The heart of the town, Place El Hedim, originally formed the western corner of the Medina, but Moulay Ismail had the houses here demolished to provide a grand approach to his palace quarter. There are a fair few sights to explore leading off the place.

Dar Jamaï and the souks

The Dar Jamaï (Mon & Wed–Sun 9am–6pm; 10dh), at the back of Place El Hedim, is a superb example of a nineteenth-century Moroccan palace, and the museum inside is one of the best in Morocco, with a fantastic display of Middle Atlas carpets. The lane immediately to the left of the Dar Jamaï takes you to the Medina's major market street: on your left is Souk en Nejjarin, the carpet souk; on your right, leading to the Great Mosque and Bou Inania Medersa (a medersa is a Koranic school), are the fancier goods offered in the Souk es Sebbat. The Bou Inania Medersa (daily 9am–6pm; 10dh), constructed around 1340–50, has an unusual ribbed dome over the entrance hall, and from the roof you can look out to the tiled pyramids of the Great Mosque.

Koubba el Khayatane and Moulay Ismail's Mausoleum

Behind the magnificent Bab Mansour (open for occasional exhibitions) is Place

Lalla Aouda. Straight ahead from that gate, and bearing left, you come into another open square, on the right of which is the green-tiled dome of the Koubba el Khayatane (daily 10am–6pm; 10dh), once a reception hall for ambassadors to the imperial court. Below it a stairway descends into a vast series of subterranean vaults, known as the Prison of Christian Slaves, though it was probably a storehouse or granary. Nearby is the entrance to Moulay Ismail's Mausoleum (Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 9am–noon & 2.30–6pm; free), where you can approach the sanctuary.

Moulay Idriss and Volubilis

A short grand taxi ride from Meknes takes you to two of the most important sites in Morocco's history. Moulay Idriss, 25km north of Meknes (10dh by shared grand taxi from Avenue des Nations Unies) was established by the Prophet's great-grandson, who is credited with bringing Islam to Morocco. Today, it is a small but bustling town, which Moroccans treat with great respect. It is worth a trip for the views from the top of the town and for an insight into the religious heart of Morocco (particularly true in the festival, or mousssem, that takes place in the second week of August). Note that non-Muslims are barred from visiting the religious shrines of Moulay Idriss for which the town is famous.

Five kilometres northwest of Moulay Idriss, Volubilis (daily 8am–6.30pm; 10dh) was once the Roman capital of the province; it's still possible to follow the outline of the old city and walk among some well-preserved ruins. A small on-site museum houses Roman artefacts found here.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Meknes has two train stations, both in the Ville Nouvelle. All trains stop at Gare de Ville, but Gare el Amir Abdelkader (some services only) is more central.

Destinations Casablanca Voyageurs (19 daily; 3hr); Fez (23 daily; 40min); Marrakesh (8 daily; 6hr 55min); Rabat (19 daily; 2hr); Tangier (4 daily; 4hr).

By bus and taxi Private buses and most shared grands taxis arrive west of the Medina by Bab el Khemis. CTM buses arrive at their terminus on Av de Fès, near the Gare de Ville.

Destinations (private) Casablanca (10 daily; 4hr 30min); Chefchaouen (3 daily; 5hr 30min); Fez (12 daily; 1hr); Marrakesh (8 daily; 9hr); Rabat (10 daily; 2hr 30min); Tangier (9 daily; 5hr 30min); Tetouan (4 daily; 6hr).

Destinations (CTM) Casablanca (9 daily; 4hr); Fez (15 daily; 1hr); Marrakesh (3 daily; 7hr 15min); Rabat (10 daily; 2hr); Tangier (5 daily; 5hr); Tetouan (1 daily; 6hr).

Tourist information 27 Place Administrative, Ville Nouvelle (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm, Sat 8–11am; ☎ 0535 516022).

ACCOMMODATION

All places listed here are in the Medina, the most atmospheric place to stay, where everything is on your doorstep.

Agadir 9 Rue Dar Smen ☎ 0535 530141. Clean and friendly, with small basic rooms tucked away in odd crannies of an eccentric, rambling building. Hot showers are available (7dh), and there's a hammam nearby. Doubles 100dh

Maroc 7 Rue Rouamzine ☎ 0535 530075. The spartan rooms on the interior courtyard benefit from a welcome cross-breeze, while the hole-in-the-floor bathrooms could do with similar ventilation. In summer, those on restricted budgets can sleep on the roof terrace for 50dh. Doubles 200dh

★TREAT YOURSELF

Riad Felloussia 23 Derb Hammam Jdid ☎ 0535 530840, 🌐 riadfelloussia.com.

The quaint labyrinthine corridor leads to a beautiful indoor garden with tiled fountain and cedar beams, and the Riad's four suites are beautifully decorated with local fabrics and materials. Breathtaking views from the rooftop terrace, too. Breakfast included. Doubles €90

Nouveau 65 Rue Dar Smen ☎ 0667 309317. This blue-tiled place claims to be the first hotel in the Medina (despite the name). It's cool and shady, but staff are rather surly, the facilities are basic and there are no external windows. Hot showers 5dh. Doubles 120dh

Riad Hiba 20 Rue Lalla Aicha Addouya ☎ 0535 460109, 🌐 riadhiba.net. Heavy ornate furnishings and added bonuses like flatscreen cable TV, a/c and wi-fi. Breakfast included. Doubles €32

EATING

There are cheap eats on Rue Rouamzine near Hôtel Maroc and you can also pick up inexpensive bites from one of the many restaurants in Place Hedim.

Diafa 12 Rue Badr el Kobra ☎ 0535 528302. Looks like a private house, with extremely good and reasonably priced cooking, but only a choice of five mains on the menu (set menu 150dh). Daily noon–midnight.

Le Collier de la Colombe 67 Rue Driba ☎ 0535 555041. The speciality here is Atlas mountain trout, to be savoured on the rooftop terrace with sunset views over the golden Medina. Mains from 80dh. Daily 11am–3pm & 7pm–midnight.

Omnia 8 Derb Ain El Fouki. Friendly restaurant set in a family home courtyard brimming with local knick-knacks. Sit in one of the little cushioned salons as fresh aromas waft out of the kitchen. Mains around 85dh. Daily noon–3pm & 7–10pm.

Place Lahdim Derb Sidi Amar Bouaouada (just off the northern corner of Place El Hedim). Tuck into generous portions of tasty Moroccan food or unwind on the terrace with some mint tea as you watch the world go by in the square below. Daily 8.30am–11pm.

FEZ (FÈS)

The most ancient of the imperial capitals, FEZ (Fès in French) stimulates the senses with its colours, sounds and smells, and seems to exist somewhere between the Middle Ages and the modern world. Some two hundred thousand of the city's

FEZ ORIENTATION

The Medina in Fez is uniquely vast and beautiful, with two distinct parts: the newer section, Fès el Jedid, established in the thirteenth century, is mostly taken up by the Royal Palace; the older part, Fès el Bali, founded in the eighth century on the River Fez, was populated by refugees from Tunisia on one bank – the Kairaouine quarter – and from Spain on the other bank – the Andalusian quarter. In practice, almost everything you will want to see is in the Kairaouine quarter.

There are several different gates through which you can enter Fès el Bali. The blue-tiled Bab Boujeloud gateway at its western end is the most popular and recognizable entry point and is a useful landmark. From here you can turn left at the Restaurant La Kasbah to get on to Talâa Kebira, the Medina's main thoroughfare. From the north, Bab el Guissa offers another port of entry. For views of the Medina, have a drink at the Hotel Palais Jamaï (next to Bab Jamaï) or Hotel les Merinides. There's also an impressive view from the Arms Museum in the fort above the bus station (Mon & Wed–Sun 8.30am–noon & 2.30–6pm; 30dh).

half-million inhabitants (though actual figures are probably much higher than official ones) live in the oldest part of the Medina, Fès el Bali.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Getting lost is one of the great joys of the Fez Medina. However, if you want a more informed approach, pick up a small green book called Fès from newsstands (100dh); it ties in with tourist trails in the Medina that are marked out by coloured stars. Tour guides can be found at Bab Boujeloud; the official ones wear medallions to identify themselves.

Talâa Kebira

Talâa Kebira, the Medina's main artery, is home to the most brilliant of Fez's monuments, the Medersa Bou Inania (daily 9am–5.30pm; closes 4pm during Ramadan, and sometimes closes briefly for prayers; 10dh), which comes close to perfection in every aspect of its construction, with beautiful carved wood, stucco and zellij tilework. Continuing down Talâa Kebira you reach the entrance to the Souk el Attarin (Souk of the Spice Vendors), the heart of the city. To the right, a street leads past the charming Souk el Henna – a tree-shaded square where traditional cosmetics are sold – to Place Nejjarin (Carpenters' Square). Here, next to the geometric tilework of the Nejjarin Fountain, is the imposing eighteenth-century Nejjarin Fondouk, now a woodwork museum (daily 10am–5pm; 20dh), though the building is rather more interesting than its exhibits. Immediately to the right of the fountain, Talâa Seghira is an alternative route back to Bab Boujeloud, while the alley to the right of that is the aromatic carpenters' souk, ripe with the scent of sawn cedar, and top on the list of great Medina smells.

Zaouia Moulay Idriss II

The street opposite the Nejjarin Fountain leads to the Zaouia Moulay Idriss II, one of the holiest buildings in the city. A zaouia is a shrine dedicated to a local saint: buried here is the son and successor of Fez's founder, who continued his father's work. Only Muslims may enter to check out the zellij tilework, original wooden minbar (pulpit) and the tomb itself. Just to its east is the Kissaria, where fine fabrics are traded. Over to your left (on the other side of the Kissaria), Souk el Attarin comes to an end opposite the fourteenth-century Attarin Medersa (daily 9.30am–6pm; 10dh), the finest of the city's medieval colleges after the Bou Inania.

Kairaouine Mosque

To the right of the Medersa, a narrow street runs along the north side of the Kairaouine Mosque. Founded in 857 AD by a refugee from Kairouan in Tunisia, the Kairaouine is one of the oldest universities in the world, and the fountainhead of Moroccan religious life. Its present dimensions, with sixteen aisles and room for twenty thousand worshippers, are essentially the product of tenth- and twelfth-century reconstructions. Non-Muslims can look into the courtyard through the main door.

Place Seffarine

The street emerges in Place Seffarine, strikingly picturesque with its faïence fountain, gnarled fig trees and metalworkers hammering away. On the west side of the square, the thirteenth-century Seffarine Medersa is still in use as a hostel for students at the Kairaouine.

Souk Sabbighin

If you're beginning to find the medieval prettiness of the central souks and medersas slightly repetitive, then the area beyond the square should provide the antidote. The dyers' market – Souk Sabbighin – is directly south of the Seffarine Medersa, and is draped with fantastically coloured yarn and cloth drying in the heat. Below, workers in grey toil over cauldrons of multicoloured dyes. Place er Rsif, nearby, has buses and taxis to the Ville Nouvelle, the French-built part of town, outside the city walls.

The tanneries

The street to the left (north) of the Seffarine Medersa leads to the rather smelly tanneries, constantly visited by tour groups with whom you could discreetly tag along if you get lost. Inside the tanneries, water deluges through holes that were once windows of houses. Hundreds of skins lie spread out on the rooftops, above vats of dye and others containing the pigeon dung that's used to treat the leather. Straight on, the road eventually leads back round to the Attarin Medersa.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is in the Ville Nouvelle, a 15min walk north of the hotels around Place Mohammed V. If you prefer to stay in the Medina, take a petit taxi (12dh), or bus #19 which will drop you off at R'cif in the Medina; alternatively, walk down to Place de la Résistance (aka La Fiat) and pick up bus #9 to Dar Batha/Place de l'Istiqlal, near the western gate to Fès el Bali, Bab Boujeloud.

Destinations (private) Casablanca (18 daily; 3hr 30min); Marrakesh (8 daily; 7hr 30min); Meknes (23 daily; 35min); Rabat (19 daily; 2hr 30min); Tangier (4 daily; 5hr 20min).

By bus The bus station is just outside the walls near Bab Boujeloud. The terminal for CTM buses is off Rue de l'Atlas, which links the far end of Av Mohammed V with Place de l'Atlas.

Destinations (private) Casablanca (18 daily; 5hr); Chefchaouen (7 daily; 5hr); Marrakesh (8 daily; 10hr); Meknes (approximately every 30min; 1hr); Rabat (15 daily; 4hr); Tangier (5 daily; 8hr); Tetouan (12 daily; 6hr).

Destinations (CTM) Casablanca (16 daily; 4hr 30min); Chefchaouen (4 daily; 4hr); Marrakesh (6 daily; 9hr); Meknes (11 daily; 1hr); Rabat (17 daily; 3hr); Tangier (6 daily; 6hr); Tetouan (4 daily; 5–6hr).

By taxi Shared grands taxis mostly operate from the bus station; exceptions include some of those serving Meknes (from the train station).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Staff at the office on Place Mohammed V (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎ 0535 624769) can tell you about June's seven-day Festival of World Sacred Music (☎ 0535 740535, 🌐 fesfestival.com) and the five-day cherry festival which usually follows immediately after it in nearby Sefrou.

ACCOMMODATION

There's a shortage of hotel space in all categories, so be prepared for higher-than-usual prices; booking ahead is advisable. For atmosphere and character, the Medina is the place to be.

Cascade Just inside Bab Boujeloud, Fès el Bali ☎ 0535 638442; map p.756. An old building with a useful public hammam just behind. Rooms are small and basic, but the management is friendly; the fantastic view from the terrace, where you can drink if you bring your own, is the real draw. Doubles 150dh

★ Dar Bouanania 21 Derb ben Salem (signposted on Talâa Kebira), Fès el Bali ☎ 0535 637282, 📧 darbouanania@gmail.com; map p.756. Not quite a riad, but the budget equivalent, with spacious rooms and traditional decor for reasonable enough prices. Doubles 300dh

Funky Fes 60 Arset Lamdisi, Fès el Bali ☎ 0535 633196, 🌐 funkyfes.com. Mellow hostel on the southern fringes of the Medina, a popular spot for backpackers, with a range of dorms and en-suite doubles. Breakfast included. Dorms 100dh, doubles 370dh

Glacier 9 Derb Jedid, Mellah (down an alleyway off Rue des Merenides) ☎ 0535 626261. The best budget choice in the old Jewish ghetto, a brightly painted hotel with basic but tidy rooms, some overlooking the Jewish cemetery. Doubles 100dh

HI hostel 18 Rue Abdeslam Seghrini, Ville Nouvelle ☎ 0535 624085; map p.758. One of Morocco's best hostels – well kept, friendly and spotlessly clean. Breakfast included. Dorms 75dh, doubles 170dh

Lamrani Talâa Seghira, Fès el Bali ☎ 0535 634411; map p.756. Friendly place in a very central location, with small but bright and clean rooms, most with double beds, some with shared bathrooms (hot showers 10dh). Doubles 150dh

Pension Batha 8 Sidi Lakhayat, Batha, Fès el Bali ☎ 0535 741150; map p.756. Airy pension, difficult to miss thanks to its pink shutters, with half a dozen pleasant, old-fashioned rooms, and a terrace overlooking Pl Batha. Doubles 250dh

EATING

Fès el Bali has two main areas for cheap local food: around Bab Boujeloud and along Rue Hormis (running from Souk el Attarin towards Bab Guissa), while the Ville Nouvelle is mainly home to pricier Western-style restaurants serving European cuisine.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Café Boutouail Rue Boutouail, Fès el Bali; map p.756. Coffee and pastries in the heart of the old city, with extra seating hidden away upstairs. The speciality is panaché, a mixture of cow's milk, almond milk, raisins and ice cream (10dh). Daily 7.30am–9pm.

Café Clock 7 Derb El Magana, Fès el Bali 🌐 fez.cafeclock.com; map p.756. A maze of comfy little salons leads off the three-tiered courtyard; forget tajines – you're here for the camel burger (95dh) or the falafel with hummus and tabbouleh (55dh). Daily 8.30am–10.30pm.

★ Cremerie La Place On the northeast corner of Place Seffarine, Fès el Bali; map p.756. Tiny café perfect for enjoying a tea and delectable patisseries as you watch the coppersmiths hammering and shaping merchandise under the shade of the picturesque plane tree. Daily 7am–7pm.

Fez Café 13 Akbat Sbaa, Fès el Bali; map p.756. Walk through a beautiful oasis of greenery to reach the shady patio of this quiet café where you can relax with a tea or juice; the menu changes every day, so there's always something new to try (mains 190dh). Daily noon–3pm & 7.30–10pm.

La Kasbah Inside Bab Boujeloud, Fès el Bali; map p.756. The draw here is the roof terrace overlooking the blue gate and the windy Medina alleyways below; the tajines (40dh) can be a little insipid, though. Menus 70dh. Daily 9am–midnight.

★TREAT YOURSELF

The Ruined Garden Riad Idrissy, 13 Derb Idrissy, Fès el Bali ☎0535 633066, ruinedgarden.com; map. p.756. Set in a sunken garden that was only discovered while renovating the adjoining riad. Tasty Moroccan tapas (chickpea cake, smoky zaalouk, popcorn maâkouda; 85dh for four), or push the boat out with a mechoui feast (240dh/kg; order in advance). Daily 1–9.30pm.

La Noria Off Av Moulay Hassan, Fès el Jedid; map p.756. Quiet spot by a water wheel, good for breakfast (until 11am) and a bargain cup of coffee, though you can also grab harira soup (25dh) or a Berber omelette (40dh), with set menus from 80dh. Daily 7am–11.30pm.

Venezia Sandwich 7 Av el Houria; map p.758. A superior fast-food joint in a row of similar places, with grilled sausages, fried fish and a range of cheap panini (20dh). Daily noon–1am.

RESTAURANTS

Dar Saada 21 Rue el Attarine, Fès el Bali; map p.756. Tasty Moroccan dishes (grilled meat from 80dh, tajines from 90dh) all in vast portions in an old palace. Licensed. Daily 10am–9pm.

★L'Italian Av Omar Ibnou Khattab, Champs de Course; map p.758. Fun and fashionable restaurant that is by far the best Italian in town, with proper wood-fired pizzas (70–115dh) and exquisite pastas. Daily noon–4pm & 7pm–midnight.

Thami's 50 Serrajine, Bab Boujeloud, Fès el Bali; map p.756. People-watch to your heart's content over simple but satisfying food, great value at around 40dh for dishes such as egg-topped kefta tajine. Daily 9am–midnight.

DRINKING

★Mezzanine 17 Ksbat Chams, Av des Français, Fès el Bali; map p.756. Sun yourself on the funky lounge terrace at lunchtime or soak in the trendy atmosphere over a chilled beer and a tapa (from 50dh) as you peer over the city ramparts at the spectacular gardens below. Mon–Sat 1pm–1am, Sun 1pm–midnight.

DIRECTORY

Banks and exchange ATMs at Place R'cif and Bab Boujeloud in the Medina; plenty of banks (all with ATMs) on Mohammed V in the Ville Nouvelle, including BMCE on Place Mohammed V; also on Place de l'Atlas and Place Florence.

Internet Cyber, above the téléboutique on Av Hassan II (daily 9am–10pm).

Pharmacy There are pharmacies opposite the SGMB bank by Bab Boujeloud, on Batha and on the Grande Rue des Merenides in the Mellah, plus numerous ones throughout the Ville Nouvelle. The Pharmacie du Municipalité, just up from Pl de la Résistance, on Av Moulay Youssef, is open overnight.

Police At the Préfecture de Medina around the corner from the Musée Batha, and by the post office on Bd Mohammed V.

Post office Corner of avenues Mohammed V and Hassan II, Ville Nouvelle; also in Place Batha and Place des Alaouites, Medina.

RABAT

Often undervalued by tourists, Morocco's capital city, RABAT, has a modern political centre (with elegant French architecture), several historical monuments, accessible bars and an ancient Kasbah overlooking a sandy beach. Though it should not take priority over Fez, Marrakesh or Chefchaouen, it is worth a visit if you have the time.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Rabat's compact Medina – the whole city until the French arrived in 1912 – is wedged on two sides by the sea and the river, on the others by the twelfth-century Almohad and fifteenth-century Andalusian walls. Laid out in a simple grid, its streets are very easy to navigate.

Kasbah des Oudaïas and around

North of the Medina lies the Kasbah des Oudaïas, a charming and evocative quarter whose principal gateway – Bab el Kasbah or Oudaïa Gate, built around 1195 – is one of the most ornate in the Moorish world. Its interior is now used for art exhibitions. Down the steps outside the gate, a lower, horseshoe arch leads directly to Moulay Ismail's Palace (Mon & Wed–Sun 9am–4pm; 20dh), which hosts quite an interesting jewellery museum. The adjoining Andalusian Garden – one of the most delightful spots in the city – was actually constructed by the French in the last century, though true to Arab Andalusian tradition, with deep, sunken beds of shrubs and flowering annuals.

Hassan Mosque

The most ambitious of all Almohad buildings, the Hassan Mosque (daily 24hr; free), with its vast minaret, dominates almost every view of the city. Designed by the Almohad ruler Yacoub el Mansour as the centrepiece of the new capital, the mosque seems to have been more or less abandoned at his death in 1199. The minaret, despite its apparent simplicity, is among the most complex of all Almohad structures: each facade is different, with a distinct combination of patterning, yet the whole intricacy of blind arcades and interlacing curves is based on just two formal designs. Facing the tower are the Mosque and Mausoleum of Mohammed V, begun on the sultan's death in 1961 and dedicated six years later.

Archeological Museum

On the opposite side of the Ville Nouvelle from the mausoleum is the Archeological Museum on Rue el Brihi (Mon & Wed–Sun 9am–4.30pm; 10dh), the most important in Morocco.

Although small, it has an exceptional collection of Roman-era bronzes, found mainly at Volubilis (see p.754).

Chellah

The royal burial ground, Chellah (daily 8am–6pm; 10dh), is a startling sight as you emerge from the long avenues of the Ville Nouvelle, with its circuit of fourteenth-century walls, legacy of Abou el Hassan (1331–51), the greatest of the Merenid rulers. Off to the left of the main gate are the partly excavated ruins of the Roman city that preceded the necropolis. A set of Islamic ruins is further down to the right, situated within a second inner sanctuary, approached along a broad path through half-wild gardens.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The best way to arrive is by train, as Rabat Ville train station is at the heart of the Ville Nouvelle; don't get off at Rabat Agdal station, 2km from the centre.

Destinations Casablanca Port (every 30min; 1hr); Casablanca Voyageurs (27 daily; 1hr); Fez (19 daily; 2hr 30min); Marrakesh (9 daily; 4hr 25min); Meknes (19 daily; 2hr); Tangier (8 daily; 3hr 50min).

By bus The main bus terminal is 3km southwest of the centre, served by local buses #17, #30 and #41, and by petits taxis. It's easier, if you're arriving by bus from the north, to get off in Salé across the river, and take a tram or shared grand taxi from there into Rabat.

Destinations Casablanca (frequent; 1hr 30min); Essaouira (10 daily; 8hr 30min); Fez (at least hourly; 4hr 30min); Marrakesh (hourly; 5hr 30min); Meknes (hourly; 3hr); Tangier (14 daily; 5hr).

By taxi Shared grands taxis for most intercity destinations operate from outside the main bus station; those to Casablanca cost only a couple of dirhams more than the bus and leave more or less continuously. Shared taxis to Meknes and Fez run from Av Hassan II at the corner with Av Chellah.

INFORMATION

Tourist information Corner Rue Oued el Makhazine and Rue Zalaka, Agdal (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎ 0537 278300).

GETTING AROUND

By bus Local buses to the intercity bus station leave opposite Bab el Had.

By tram There are two tram lines, both serving Salé and the Hassan Mosque, from which one runs to Rabat Ville train station, the other along Av Hassan II.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation can fill up in summer and during festivals; it's best to phone ahead.

Al Maghrib al Jadid 2 Rue Sebbahi ☎ 0534 732207. Basic and clean, though the candy-pink and bright blue decor is garish. Hot showers 8am–9.30pm (10dh). Doubles 120dh

Central 2 Rue al Basra ☎ 0537 707356. One of the better cheapies, conveniently located, as its name suggests. Most rooms have patterned colonial floor tiles. Hot water mornings and evenings only. Doubles 200dh

Doghmi 313 Av Mohammed V, just inside Bab Jedid ☎ 0537 723898. Clean and simple rooms lead off a pleasant white and azure veranda, all with shared bathrooms. Doubles 130dh

Gaulois 1 Rue Hims (corner of Av Mohammed V) ☎ 0537 723022. Two-star with grand entrance and decent rooms, some en suite. Pricier than other options if the cheap rooms have gone, but can be good value for money. Doubles 220dh

HI hostel 43 Rue Marrassa ☎ 0537 725769. Just outside the Medina walls north of Av Hassan II, this centrally located hostel has plain and simple dorms with shared bathroom facilities. HI membership sometimes required. Dorms 60dh

Majestic 121 Av Hassan II ☎ 0537 722997, @hotelmajestic.ma. Excellent option with a 24hr reception and porter; rooms are bright and spotless. Doubles 366dh

Splendid 8 Rue Ghazza ☎ 0537 723283. A great option with clean rooms, some of which give onto a leafy courtyard – perfect for relaxing in after a day of exploration. Hot water evenings only. Doubles 226dh

EATING

Rabat has a wide range of good restaurants serving both Moroccan and international dishes. The cheapest ones are in the Medina.

★ 7ème Art Av Allal Ben Abdallah. Trendy good-value café with tables set around a garden area with a fountain, serving light dishes such as salads, omelettes, burgers and panini, and more substantial tajines, pastas and grills (20–75dh). Daily 7am–7pm.

De la Jeunesse 305 Av Mohammed V. One of the city's better budget restaurants, with generous portions of couscous, and decent tajines (10–25dh). Upstairs is quieter and has more seating. Daily noon–10pm.

El Bahia Av Hassan II, built into the Andalusian wall, near the junction with Av Mohammed V. Sit at one of the tables that line the Andalusian wall or retreat to the leafy inner patio for reasonably priced tajines, brochettes and salads (25–65dh), though service can be slow. Daily noon–10pm.

Grill 23 386 Av Mohammed V. Cheap but delicious shwarma, burgers (28–38dh) and big, crunchy salads

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Le Grand Comptoir 279 Av Mohammed V ①0537 201514, ②legrandcomptoir.ma. Classy, Parisian-style brasserie with wonderful 1920s-style decor and live music that ranges from jazz to traditional Moroccan. Serves excellent meat and seafood dishes and a decent selection of wines. Main courses 85–280dh. Daily 9am–1am.

(15–35dh). Convenient for a takeaway to carry with you on a train journey (it's just up the street from the station). Daily 7am–1am.

La Mamma 6 Rue Tanta, behind the Hôtel Balima. Good pasta dishes and wood-oven pizzas in a rustic trattoria setting (mains 45–95dh). Daily noon–3pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

★ Tajine wa Tanjia 9 Rue Baghdad. This lovely little place – all low cushioned seating and Moroccan paintings – serves a wide range of excellent tajines and tanjia (jugged beef or lamb). Mains 76–120dh. Mon–Sat 11am–3pm & 6pm–midnight.

Weimar 7 Rue Sana'a, inside the Goethe Institute. Studenty, expat hangout serving pastas, salads and meats, or a “half-half” (half pizza and half-size salad, 70dh), washed down with German beer. Daily 9am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Avenues Mohammed V and Allal Ben Abdallah have some good cafés, but the best bars are situated in Agdal, a bit of a trek from the centre. Those itching for a boogie should head to the Centre Commercial Prestige along the Route des Zaers, a 10min taxi ride out of town, home to a cluster of nightclubs.

Hotel Balima Bar Av Mohammed V. This bar is conveniently located in the centre of town and has a terrace overlooking the parliament. Daily noon–10pm.

DIRECTORY

Banks and exchange BMCE at the northern end of Av Mohammed V has a bureau de change (daily 8am–8pm). Others are on Av Moulay Youssef between hotels Bélère and Caleche d'Or, and on the corner of Av Mohammed V & Rue Ghaza.

Embassies Australia represented by Canada; Canada, 66 Av Mehdi Ben Barka, Souissi ①0537 544949; New Zealand represented by the UK; UK, 28 Av S.A.R. Sidi Mohammed, Souissi ①0537 633333; US, km 5.7, Av Mohammed VI, Souissi ①0537 637200. Ireland has an honorary consul in Casablanca (①0522 272721).

Internet Most open daily 9am–9pm, 5–8dh/hr; cheapest places are on or off Rue Souika in the Medina; in the Ville Nouvelle, try 113 Av Hassan II by Hôtel Majestic.

Police Av Tripoli, near the cathedral. Police posts at Bab Jedid and north end of Rue des Consuls.

Post office Halfway down Av Mohammed V.

CASABLANCA

Morocco's main city and economic capital, CASABLANCA (or “Casa”) is also North Africa's largest port. Casa's Westernized image does not fit with most travellers' stereotype of Morocco but the city offers good food, beaches and fun nightlife.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Casablanca's Medina, above the port and recently gentrified, is largely the product of the late nineteenth century, when Casa began its modest growth as a commercial centre. Film buffs will be disappointed to learn that Bogart's Casablanca wasn't shot here (it was filmed entirely in Hollywood) – Rick's Café (expensive) commemorates it as a gimmick at 248 Boulevard Sour Jedid.

Mosquée Hassan II

The awe-inspiring Mosquée Hassan II (guided tours only Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 9am, 10am, 11am & 2pm, Fri 9am & 2pm; 120dh) is a must-see. After Mecca and Medina, it's the world's third-largest mosque, with a minaret soaring 200m, and space for a hundred and five thousand worshippers. Commissioned by the last king, who named it after himself, it cost an estimated US$800m. It's a short taxi ride northeast of the centre.

Musée du Judaïsme Marocain

Five kilometres south of town, in the suburb of Oasis, the Musée du Judaïsme Marocain at 81 Rue Chasseur Jules Gros (Mon–Fri winter 10am–5pm, summer 10am–6pm; 40dh; wheelchair accessible; ①0522 994940, ②casajewishmuseum.com) is the only Jewish museum in any Muslim country. Many Moroccan Muslims are proud of the fact that Jewish communities have, historically, been protected in Morocco. The museum gives an insight into the disproportionate role that Jews have played in Moroccan life.

The beaches

The Ain Diab beach, to the west of Mosque Hassan II, and at the end of the tram line, is one of Morocco's best and most easily accessible beaches. Surf lessons and equipment are readily available along the corniche, which runs alongside the beach. Mohammedia, 30km from Casa, is a less crowded option, with better surf. Take the train (16dh) from Casa Port station.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane If you're arriving at Mohammed V airport, catch one of the regular trains (hourly 5.55am–9.55pm; 35min) to Casa Voyageurs and the more convenient Casa Port. Grands taxis are 250dh (300dh at night) for the 45min drive.

By train Intercity trains stop at Casa Voyageurs (2km southeast of the centre). From there, trams run into town (6dh); otherwise, it's a 20min walk or a petit taxi ride. Local services from Rabat (every 30min 6.30am–8pm; 1hr 10min) continue to Casa Port station (Gare du Port), between the town centre and the port.

Destinations from Casa Voyageurs Fez (hourly; 4hr); Marrakesh (9 daily; 3hr 20min); Meknes (hourly; 3hr 15min); Rabat (27 daily; 1hr); Tangier (8 daily; 5hr).

Bybus Arrive by CTM if possible, as it drops you downtown on Rue Léon l'Africain by the Sheraton Hotel. Private buses use the Gare Ouled Ziane bus station southeast of town on Route des Ouled Ziane.

Destinations (CTM) Essaouira (4 daily; 6hr 15min); Fez (15 daily; 5hr); Marrakesh (17 daily; 3hr 30min); Meknes (11 daily; 4hr); Rabat (31 daily; 1hr 20min); Tangier (7 daily; 5hr 30min); Tetouan (6 daily; 6hr 30min).

Destinations (private) Essaouira (10 daily; 8hr); Fez (10 daily; 5hr); Marrakesh (roughly every 30min); 4hr); Meknes (10 daily; 4hr); Rabat (frequent; 1hr 30min); Tangier (10 daily; 6hr 30min); Tetouan (10 daily; 7hr).

By taxi Most shared grands taxis arrive at Gare Ouled Ziane; some from Rabat arrive a block east of the CTM terminal; those from Essaouira come into a station south of the centre on Bd Brahim Roudani in Maarif, a longish walk (2km) or a cheap taxi ride away.

INFORMATION

Tourist information The Syndicat d'Initiative at 98 Bd Mohammed V (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm, Sat 8.30am–noon; ☎ 0522 221524) has free maps. The Délégation de Tourisme is south of the centre at 55 Rue Omar Slaoui (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎ 0522 271177). The Conseil Régional du Tourisme have a kiosk just north of Pl Mohammed V, on Av Hassan II, and another next to the Hassan II Mosque (both Mon–Sat 8.30am–12.30pm & 2.30–6.30pm; ☎ visitcasablanca.ma).

Internet Most internet cafés are open daily from 9am–10pm and cost 10dh/hr. Club Internet, Bd Mohammed V; soukaina.net, 38 Rue Mouftaker Abdelkader.

Police Bd Ibrahim Roudani (☎ 0522 989865).

ACCOMMODATION

There are plenty of hotels, though they are often near capacity; cheaper rooms in the centre can be hard to find by late afternoon.

Camping Oasis Dar Bouazza Rte d'Azour, 25km from town ☎ 0522 290767. Spacious, with modern, clean ablutions, but rather a long way from town. Price is for two people and a tent. 120dh

Colbert 38 Rue Chaouia ☎ 0522 314421, 📞 hotelcolbert.ma. Huge (103 rooms) well-priced hotel with decent rooms (some with shower), and good-value singles (100dh). Doubles 210dh

Du Centre Rue Sidi Balyout ☎ 0522 446180. A warm welcome at reception, along with clean and pleasant, honey-hued, en-suite rooms, makes this an excellent option in the centre. Doubles 200dh

★ Galia 19 Rue Ibnou Batouta ☎ 0522 481694, 📞 galia_19@hotmail.fr. The city's best budget option, with friendly English-speaking management and a handy location by the Marché Central tram station near the CTM. Doubles 270dh

Miramar 22 Rue León l'Africain ☎ 0522 310308. One of the cheapest among the little hotels in the city centre, with some en-suite rooms (otherwise a shower is 10dh). Doubles 140dh

Mon Rêve 5 Rue Chaouia ☎ 0522 311439. Long-standing budget travellers' favourite, also popular among locals. Book ahead. Doubles 220dh

Negociant 116 Rue Allal Ben Abdallah ☎ 0522 314023. A popular choice with Moroccan families – clean, comfortable rooms, some en suite, and shared-bathroom singles (120dh). Doubles 220dh

Touring 87 Rue Allal Ben Abdallah ☎ 0522 310216. Refurbished old French hotel that's friendly and excellent value; the best option in a street of cheap hotels. Doubles 200dh

EATING

Al Mounia 95 Rue du Prince Moulay Abdallah. Excellent Moroccan cuisine in a palatial salon or shaded garden. Vegetarians will love the meze and salads, while the house specialities are chicken tajine and pigeon pastilla (mains 120–150dh). Licensed. Mon–Sat 7.30–11pm.

La Bodega 127 Rue Allal Ben Abdallah 📞 bodega.ma. Jam-packed with Latino and Spanish memorabilia as well as a large TV screen for sporting events, this lively place serves a decent selection of tapas (60dh); once the drinks (beers from 35dh) start flowing, the downstairs bar and little dancefloor liven up a fair amount. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7pm–2am, Sun 7pm–2am.

La Taverne du Dauphin 115 Bd Felix Houphouët Boigny ☎ 0522 221200. One of Casa's most famous and popular spots, with great seafood served in the restaurant and bonhomie dished up in the cramped bar. Mains 46–145dh, fixed-price menu 115dh. Mon–Sat noon–11pm.

Le Petit Poucet 86 Bd Mohammed V ☎ 0522 275420. A slice of old Casablanca, this restaurant is dressed up like a 1920s Parisian salon. The food (mains 45–125dh) is fine but nothing special, though the soupe à l'oignon is pretty good. Licensed. Daily 9am–10pm.

Ostrea Port de Pêche. Excellent, super-fresh seafood, although not cheap: Oualidia oysters, lobster or crayfish by weight, and for non-seafood eaters, there are grillés, pasta dishes and even frogs' legs à la provençale (mains 75–240dh). Licensed. Daily noon–11pm.

Rôtisserie Centrale 36 Rue Chaouia. Best of a bunch of cheap chicken-on-a-spit joints on this little stretch of road opposite the Marché Central. Chicken, chips and salad here won't set you back much more than 30dh. Daily 11am–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

There are scores of bars and clubs along the Corniche, 10min west of the centre, playing everything from hip-hop to house music.

Bao Bd de la Corniche, Aïn Diab. African beats and a laidback atmosphere make this a popular spot to get down to the sound of West African rhythms. Entry 100dh. Fri & Sat are the best days. Daily 11pm–4am.

La Cigale 10 Bd Ibrahim Roudani. The room at the back is where it all takes place – once the first tune is on the jukebox, the night has begun. Come for couscous Fri lunchtime. Daily 11am–midnight.

Trica 5 Rue al Moutanabi. You could nearly be in NYC at this stylish warehouse bar with brick walls and old-school tunes in the background. Mon–Sat 6.30pm–1am, Sun 6.30pm–midnight.

Southern Morocco

Few places on earth can better the abiding memory of the Sahara desert meeting the Atlantic, while Marrakesh, with its colourful Medina, is undoubtedly Morocco's best-known city; further south loom the scenic Atlas Mountains and west lies the coastal city of Essaouira, the country's best windsurfing spot.

MARRAKESH

MARRAKESH (Marrakech in French) is a city of immense beauty, sitting low and pink before a great range of mountains. It's an immediately exciting place, especially its ancient Medina. Marrakesh's population is growing and it has a thriving industrial area; the city remains the most important market and administrative centre in southern Morocco.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Marrakesh's Medina is big, taking up a fair part of the city. At its heart is the Jemaa el Fna, from which most things of interest radiate. There are lots of cheap pensions and hotels near here. To the north of the Jemaa are the famous souks of Marrakesh, where you can spend hours getting lost and picking up bargains. Just to the west is the great minaret of the Koutoubia mosque. This towers over the start of Avenue Mohammed V, which connects the Medina to Gueliz, where you can find the train station, CTM office and tourist information as well as some modern cafés, supermarkets and bars. It's a fairly long walk between Gueliz and the Medina, but there are plenty of taxis and the regular buses #1 and #16 between the two. Further west of the Koutoubia, just past Bab Jedid, there is a district of opulent hotels with fantastic, if pricey, bars.

Jemaa el Fna

There's nowhere in the world like the Jemaa el Fna: by day it's basically a market, with a few snake charmers and an occasional troupe of acrobats; in the late afternoon it becomes a whole carnival of musicians, storytellers and other entertainers; and in the evening dozens of stalls set up to dispense hot food to crowds of locals, while the musicians and performers continue. If you get tired of the spectacle, or if things slow down, you can move over to one of the numerous cafés' rooftop terraces.

Koutoubia

Nearly 70m high and visible for many kilometres, the minaret of the Koutoubia mosque was begun shortly after the Almohad conquest of the city, around 1150, and displays many features that were to become widespread in Moroccan architecture – the wide band of ceramic inlay, the pyramid-shaped merlons, and the alternation of patterning on the facades.

The northern Medina

Just before the red ochre arch at its end, Souk Smarine (an important Medina thoroughfare) narrows and you get a glimpse through passageways of the Rahba Kedima, a small and fairly ramshackle square whose most interesting features are its apothecary stalls. At the end of Rahba Kedima, a passageway to the left gives access to another, smaller, square – a bustling, carpet-draped area known as La Criée Berbère, which is where slave auctions used to be held.

Cutting back to the main thoroughfare, whose next section is named Souk el Kebir rather than Souk Smarine, you emerge at the kissarias, the covered markets at the heart of the souks. Kissarias traditionally sell more expensive products, which today means a predominance of Western designs and imports. Off to their right is Souk des Bijoutiers, a modest jewellers' lane, while at the north end is a convoluted web of alleys comprising the Souk Cherratin, essentially a leatherworkers' market.

Ben Youssef Medersa

If you bear left through the leather market and then turn right, you should arrive at the open space in front of the Ben Youssef Mosque. The originally fourteenth-century Ben Youssef Medersa (daily 9am–5pm; 10dh) – the annexe for students taking courses in the mosque – stands off a side street just to the east. It was almost completely rebuilt in the sixteenth century under the Saadians, with a strong Andalusian influence.

Marrakesh Museum and Almoravid Koubba

Next door to the Medersa is the Marrakesh Museum (daily 9am–6pm; 50dh), which exhibits jewellery, art and sculpture, both old and new, in a beautifully restored nineteenth-century palace. Almost facing it, the small Almoravid Koubba (daily 9am–6pm; closed for restoration at time of writing but visible from the street) is easy to pass by, but it is the only building in the whole of Morocco from the eleventh-century Almoravid dynasty still intact. The motifs you’ve just seen in the Medersa – the pine cones, palms and acanthus leaves – were all carved here first.

The Saadian Tombs

Sealed up by Moulay Ismail after he had destroyed the adjoining El Badi Palace, the sixteenth-century Saadian Tombs (daily 9am–4.45pm; 10dh), accessed by a narrow alley near the Kasbah Mosque south of Jemaa el Fna, are home to two main mausoleums. The finer is on the left as you come in, a beautiful group of three rooms built to house El Mansour’s own tomb and completed within his lifetime. The tombs of over a hundred more Saadian princes and royal household members are scattered around the garden and courtyard, their gravestones likewise brilliantly tiled and often elaborately inscribed.

El Badi Palace

Though largely in ruins, enough remains of Ahmed el Mansour’s El Badi Palace (daily 9am–4.45pm; 10dh) to suggest that its name – “The Incomparable” – was not undeserved. It took a later ruler, Moulay Ismail, over ten years of systematic work to strip the palace of everything moveable or of value but, even so, there’s a lingering sense of luxury. What you see today is essentially the ceremonial part of the palace complex, planned for the reception of ambassadors. To the rear extends the central court, over 130m long and nearly as wide, and built on a substructure of vaults in order to allow the circulation of water through the pools and gardens. In the southwest corner of the complex is the original (and, in its day, much celebrated) minbar (pulpit) from the Koutoubia mosque (admission is an extra 10dh, payable at the main gate).

Rue Zitoun el Jedid

Heading north from El Badi Palace, Rue Zitoun el Jedid leads back to the Jemaa, flanked by various nineteenth-century mansions. Many of these have been converted into carpet shops or tourist restaurants, but one of them has been kept as a museum, the Palais el Bahia (daily 9am–4.45pm; 10dh), former residence of a grand vizier. The name of the building means “The Brilliance”; indeed, it’s a beautiful old palace with two lovely patio gardens and some classic painted wooden ceilings. Further north is the Maison Tiskiwin (8 Rue de la Bahia; daily 9.30am–12.30pm & 2.30–6pm; 20dh), which houses a superb collection of Moroccan and Saharan artefacts. If you’re pressed for time, however, prioritize the lovely Dar Si Said palace nearby on Derb Si Said, as it also houses the Museum of Moroccan Arts (Mon & Wed–Sun 9am–4.45pm; 10dh), with a plethora of interesting historical arts and crafts.

CLIMBING MOUNT TOUBKAL

Imllil, the setting-off point for trekkers wanting to climb the second-highest peak in Africa, is within two to three hours’ grand taxi drive of Marrakesh (30dh for a place, leaving from Place Youssef Tachfine, and usually changing taxis at Asni; 180dh to charter the taxi one-way). Most trekkers set out early to mid-morning from Imlil to stay the night at the Toubkal refuge (5–7hr), which gets crowded in summer. It’s best to start from here at first light the next morning in order to get the clearest possible panorama from Toubkal’s heights (afternoons can be cloudy). The ascent is not difficult if you are fit, but it can be very cold. Reckon on 2hr 30min–4hr going up by the southern route, 4hr 30min by the northern, and 2hr–2hr 30min to descend by either route.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane From the airport, 4km southwest of town, bus #19 runs to Place Foucauld by the Jemaa and along Av Mohammed V (every 30min 7am–9.30pm; 30dh) – petits taxis (70dh by day, 120dh by night) are a more convenient option.

By train From the train station, west of Gueliz, cross Av Hassan II and take bus #8/#10/#14/#66 or a petit taxi (15dh) for Place Foucauld by the Jemaa.

Destinations Casablanca Voyageurs (11 daily; 3hr 20min); Fez (8 daily; 7hr 35min); Meknes (8 daily; 6hr 46min); Rabat (9 daily; 4hr 25min); Tangier (1 daily; 10hr 15min).

By bus The bus terminal is just outside the northwestern walls of the Medina by Bab Doukkala; from here it's a 20min walk to the Jemaa, or take bus #6/#8/#10/#14/#16 (opposite Bab Doukkala), or a petit taxi (10dh). CTM buses arrive and depart from their office south of the train station, though you can buy tickets and sometimes pick them up at the main terminal.

Destinations (private) Casablanca (every 30min, 4am–9pm; 3hr 30min); Essaouira (18 daily; 3hr); Fez (8 daily; 10hr); Meknes (8 daily; 9hr); Rabat (24 daily; 5hr 30min); Tangier (6 daily; 10hr).

Destinations (CTM) Casablanca (20 daily; 3hr 30min); Essaouira (2 daily; 2hr 30min); Fez (5 daily; 8hr); Meknes (3 daily; 7hr); Rabat (9 daily; 4hr 30min); Tangier (2 daily; 9hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Place Abdelmoumen Ben Ali (Mon–Fri 8.30am–4.30pm; ☎ 0524 436239).

ACCOMMODATION

The Medina has the main concentration of cheap accommodation – most of the places quite pleasant – and, unusually, has a fair number of classified hotels too. Given the attractions of the Jemaa el Fna and the souks, this is the first choice. Booking in advance is advisable. Our recommendations are in the Medina unless stated otherwise.

Afriquia 45 Sidi Bouloukate ☎ 0524 442403. Basic but hospitable rooms with a Gaudíesque top-floor terrace. The shady orange trees twitter with swallows (be warned that this invariably means an early-morning wake-up call). En-suites cost 100dh extra. Doubles 150dh

★ Atlas 50 Sidi Bouloukate ☎ 0524 391051, 🌐 hotel-atlas-marrakech.com. Calm and clean hotel set around two courtyards, with decorative iron and woodwork throughout; there's an appealing rooftop chill-out lounge for the weary tourist. Excellent rates for single travellers (90dh). Rooms with a/c are twice the price. Doubles 170dh

three-tiered courtyard with pleasantly decorated rooms, some en suite. There's also a couscous restaurant on the roof terrace. Doubles 155dh

Des Voyageurs 40 Av Zerketouni, Gueliz ☎ 0524 447218. Old-fashioned hotel with welcoming management, spacious rooms and a little patio-cum-garden. Doubles 144dh

Equity Point Marrakech 80 Derb el Hammam Mouassine ☎ 0524 440793, 🌐 equity-point.com. A hostel in a riad, with a fun crowd, four- to eight-bed dorms (each with its own bathroom), plus a pool, bar and restaurant. Dorms €13, doubles €65

Essaouira 3 Derb Sidi Bouloukate ☎ 0524 443805. The entrance opens onto a beautiful courtyard with intricately painted woodwork. Be prepared for the vibrantly tiled rooms – the patterns might just make you dizzy after a heavy night. Doubles 100dh

HI hostel Rue El Jahid, Gueliz ☎ 0524 447713, 📧 aubergemarrakech@hotmail.fr. Neat and tidy single-sex dorms, good for those with an early start as it's close to the train station and the CTM. Dorms 70dh

Medina 1 Derb Sidi Bouloukate ☎ 0524 442997. A perennial favourite among the cheapies, this place is clean, friendly and good value, and there's always hot water in the shared showers. Doubles 110dh

EATING

The most atmospheric place to eat is the Jemaa el Fna, where food stalls set up around sunset and serve up everything from harira soup and couscous to stewed snails and sheep's heads, all eaten at trestle tables. Cheap restaurants gather in the Medina, along with French-style cafés and virtually all the city's bars. You'll find more upmarket places uptown in Gueliz.

Hotel Farouk 66 Av Hassan II, Gueliz. Excellent-value set menu with soup or salad, then couscous, tajine or brochettes, and dessert, for 50dh. Wood-oven pizzas 30–40dh. Daily 6am–11pm.

Le Bougainvillier Rue El Mouassine 33. Old French crooners set the mood at this atmospheric café with a leafy sunny patio and little salons, serving teas and tajines (90dh). Daily 10am–10pm.

Oscar Progrès 20 Rue Bani Marine. One of the best budget restaurants in town, with large servings of couscous (veg 30dh, lamb 40dh), or be a real pig and go for the 100dh set menu. Daily noon–11pm.

Snack Toubkal In the southeast corner of Jemaa el Fna. Despite its touristy appearance, the food here is popular with locals and tourists alike. Set menus are 45–50dh. Daily 24hr.

★ Winoo 77 Bd Moulay Rachid, Gueliz. Justifiably popular café-restaurant serving big salads (25–50dh) and tajines (20–25dh), all freshly made, well presented and very inexpensive. Daily 7am–3am.

SHOPPING IN THE SOUKS

Marrakesh is famous for its souks, where you can buy goods from all over Morocco. Prices are rarely fixed, so before you set out, head to the supposedly fixed-price Ensemble Artisanal (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 9am–noon), on Avenue Mohammed V, midway between the Koutoubia and the ramparts at Bab Nkob, and get an idea of how much things are worth. It pays to bargain hard, as the first price you are told can easily be five or ten times the going rate, with the most obscene prices to be found around the edges of the souks.

DRINKING

African Chic 5 Rue Oum Errabia. One of Marrakesh's most congenial bars, with cocktails, wines and beers, tapas (five for 70dh, eight for 100dh), not to mention live Latin and Gnaoua music every night from 10pm. Daily 8pm–4am.

Grand Balcon On top of the Café Glacier on Jemaa el Fna. "Obligatory consumption" is required here – you won't be allowed in unless you pay for your drinks or passable tajines (50–55dh) at the door. The incredible view over the square attracts a large crowd, though. Daily 10am–10pm.

DIRECTORY

Banks and exchange BMCE has branches with adjoining bureaux de change and ATMs in the Medina (Rue Moulay Ismail, facing Place Foucauld) and Gueliz (114 Av Mohammed V).

Internet Moulay Abdeslam Cyber-Park on Av Mohammed V opposite the Ensemble Artisanal (daily 10am–1pm & 2–7pm; 5dh/hr); Jawal, behind 12 Bd Mohammed Zerktouni (daily 9am–9pm; 6dh/hr).

Pharmacies and doctor Pharmacie du Progrès, Place Jemaa el Fna at the top of Rue Bab Agnaou; Pharmacie de la Liberté, just off Place de la Liberté. If you're in need of a doctor, try Dr Abdelmajid Ben Tbib, 171 Av Mohammed V (☎0524 431030).

Police Tourist police on Jemaa el Fna (24/7; ☎0524 384601).

Post office Place du 16 Novembre, midway along Av Mohammed V, and on the Jemaa el Fna (Mon–Fri 8am–7.15pm, Sat 8.30am–5.30pm).

ESSAOUIRA

ESSAOUIRA, the nearest beach resort to Marrakesh, is a lovely eighteenth-century walled seaside town. A favourite with the likes of Frank Zappa and Jimi Hendrix back in the 1960s, its tradition of hippy tourism has created a much more laidback relationship between local residents and foreign visitors than you'll find in the rest of Morocco. Today Essaouira is a centre for arts and crafts in addition to being the country's top windsurfing spot.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Orientation in Essaouira is simple, and it's a great place for a wander; the ramparts are an obvious starting point. Heading north along the lane at the end of Place Prince Moulay el Hassan, you can access the Skala de la Ville (daily sunrise till sunset), a great sea bastion topped by a row of cannons, which runs along the northern cliffs. At the end is the circular North Bastion, with panoramic views. Along the Rue de la Skala, built into the ramparts, are woodcarving workshops, where artisans use thuja, a distinctive local hardwood. You can find another impressive bastion by the harbour, the Skala du Port (daily 9am–5pm; 10dh).

The souks

The town's souks spread around and to the south of two arcades, on either side of Rue Mohammed Zerktouni, and up towards the Mellah (former Jewish ghetto), in the northwest corner of the ramparts. Don't miss the Marché d'Épices (spice market) and Souk des Bijoutiers (jewellers' market). Art studios and hippie-style clothing shops cluster around Place Chefchaoui by the clock tower. For those wanting to spice up their culinary skills, Atelier Madada (7 Rue Youssef el Fassi ☎0524 475512, lateliermadada.com) offers cookery classes in local specialities.

The beaches

The southern beach (the northern one is less attractive) extends for many kilometres, past the Oued Ksob river bed and the ruins of an old fort known as the Borj el Berod. If you're after watersports, Club Mistral (☎0524 783934) on the south beach rents out surfboards, kayaks and wind/kitesurfing gear, and offers lessons too.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is about 500m (10min walk) northeast of Bab Doukkala gate. It's worth taking a petit taxi (about 7dh), especially at night.

Destinations Casablanca (20 daily; 7hr); Marrakesh (18 daily; 3hr 30min); Rabat (15 daily; 8hr 30min).

By taxi Shared grands taxis to Marrakesh and Casablanca operate from just next to the bus station, though they may drop arrivals at the more central Bab Doukkala or Place Prince Moulay el Hassan.

Tourist information Tourist office at Av du Caire (Mon–Fri 9am–4pm; ☎ 0524 783532).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation can be tight over Easter and in summer, when advance booking is recommended.

Camping Sidi Magdoul 1km south of town behind the lighthouse ☎ 0524 472196, ✉ labo.flash@hotmail.com. Clean, friendly and well managed, with hot showers, campervan pitches and an area of soil and trees for pitching tents in. Per person 17dh, plus per tent 20dh

Cap Sim 11 Rue Ibn Rochd ☎ 0524 785834, ✉ hotelcapsim.com. Rooms at this refurbished budget hotel with fourth-floor sun terrace are beautifully kept and decorated, in colours as warm as the welcome. Breakfast included. Doubles 220dh

Central 5 Rue Dar Eddhab, off Av Mohammed Ben Abdallah ☎ 0524 783623. Cheap and cheerful basic rooms and friendly staff in a nice old house around a patio with a fig tree. Shared hot showers (8dh). Doubles 120dh

Majestic 40 Rue Laâlouj ☎ 0524 474909. The lobby and stairs in this budget hotel (formerly the French colonial courthouse) aren't very inspiring, but the rooms are decent enough for the price – nothing fancy, but fresh and clean. Doubles 150dh

Souiri 37 Rue Attarine ☎ 0524 475339, ✉ hotelsouiri.com. Very central and deservedly popular, this welcoming little hotel offers a range of rooms, the cheaper ones having shared bathroom facilities. Rooms at the front are considered the best, though those at the back are quieter. Doubles 228dh

EATING AND DRINKING

For an informal meal, you can do no better than eat at the line of grills down at the port. Restaurants can be a bit expensive, but there are plenty of places to pick up cheap sandwiches.

Bab Laâchour By Pl Prince Moulay el Hassan. A café with a restaurant upstairs, overlooking the plaza, with fish dishes and tajines (mains 30–100dh), and an 85dh set menu. Licensed. Daily: café 8am–9pm, restaurant noon–3pm & 7–10pm.

Dar Tata In the grain souk. A budget restaurant right in the middle of the Medina. The 95dh fish menu starts with delicious fish soup, followed by whatever's good from the day's catch, all beautifully presented. Daily 9.30am–6.30pm.

Essalam 23 Place Prince Moulay el Hassan. A great-value no-frills restaurant which serves up some of the cheapest set menus in town (30–65dh). The walls are decorated with watercolours by Breton artist Charles Kérival. Daily 9am–4pm & 7–10pm.

La Petite Perle 2 Rue el Hajjali. Sit on cushioned benches in this restaurant, styled like a Berber tent, and dig into a good-value tajine or couscous. Set menus 60–95dh. Daily noon–3pm & 7–10.30pm.

Laayoune 4 bis Rue Hajjali. A popular place for Moroccan staples in a warm, relaxed setting with low-lying, candlelit tables and friendly service. Set menus based on tajines or couscous go for 78–98dh. Daily noon–3pm & 7–10.30pm.

Taros Place Moulay Hassan. Along the theme of a boat deck on a Greek island tour, with palm parasols and patio furniture, this jolly rooftop bar is a perfect spot to enjoy an early-evening beer (35dh) or a cocktail (from 75dh). Daily 9am–1am.

Introduction

Despite the popular reputation of its most celebrated city, Amsterdam, the Netherlands is not all sex and drugs (and there's little rock'n'roll). Delve deeper and you will find a diminutive country with a heavyweight cultural heritage: its A-list of art superstars, Rembrandt, Vermeer and Van Gogh, rivals that of any country, and you could easily spend a solid week just scraping the surface of its museums. Dutch cities also provide plenty of architectural eye candy with pretty gabled houses and peaceful canals perfect for aimless wandering, while its flat fertile landscape means cycling can get you almost anywhere, from iconic tulip fields to sandy, dune-backed islands.

Though most people travel only to atmospheric Amsterdam, nearby is a group of worthwhile towns known collectively as the Randstad (literally "rim town"), including Haarlem and Delft with their old canal-girded centres, and Den Haag (The Hague), a stately city with fine museums and easy beach access. The dynamic port city of Rotterdam is a showcase for noteworthy architecture and alternative art. Outside the Randstad, life moves more slowly. To the south, the landscape undulates into heathy moorland, best experienced in the Hoge Veluwe National Park. Further south lies the compelling city of Maastricht, squeezed between the German and Belgian borders.

CHRONOLOGY

58 BC Julius Caesar conquers the area of the present-day Netherlands.

1275 Amsterdam is founded by Count Floris V of Holland.

1477 The Austrian Habsburgs take control.

1500s Protestant Reformation spreads through the Netherlands, leading to wars against the Catholic Habsburg rulers based in Spain.

1579 The Union of Utrecht is signed by seven provinces to form the United Provinces against Spain. The Netherlands are declared independent two years later, heralding a "Golden Age" of trade and colonial expansion.

1603 The Dutch East India Company establishes its first trading post in Indonesia, an area that it would gradually colonize.

1806 Napoleon annexes the Kingdom of Holland for France.

1813 The French are driven out and the Prince of Orange becomes sovereign of the United Netherlands.

1853 Vincent Van Gogh is born.

1914–18 The Netherlands remains neutral during World War I.

1940 Nazi Germany invades the Netherlands, forcing the deportation and murder of Dutch Jews, including Anne Frank's family.

1944 Operation Market Garden sees heavy fighting around Arnhem but fails to dislodge German troops.

1947 Anne Frank's diary is published.

1953 More than 1800 killed in severe flooding on Jan 31. The disaster forms the inspiration for the massive Delta land reclamation project.

1975 Cannabis is decriminalized – tourism booms.

1980 Coronation of Queen Beatrix.

1992 The Maastricht Treaty is signed, transforming the European Community into the European Union.

1997 Treaty of Amsterdam clears the way for the introduction of a single European currency.

2001 The Netherlands becomes the first country to legalize same-sex marriage.

2002 Anti-immigration politician Pim Fortuyn is killed shortly before elections.

2004 Film-maker Theo Van Gogh is murdered by a radical Islamist.

2010 Coalition government led by Geert Wilders collapses following dispute over troops in Afghanistan.

2012 Maastricht bans tourists from smoking cannabis in coffeshops. Attempts to instil a nationwide ban fail.

2013 Queen Beatrix, aged 75, abdicates in favour of her son Prince Willem-Alexander – the first male monarch in over a century.

2016 Study published by eLife pronounces Dutch men officially world's tallest, with an average height of 6ft (1.8m).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Regular high-speed trains (📍thalys.com) run to Amsterdam from Brussels (1hr 50min) and Paris (3hr 15min), with Eurostar (eurostar.com) trains from London connecting at Brussels Midi (total journey time 4hr). German ICE (nsinternational.nl) trains also run direct to Amsterdam from Cologne (2hr 40min) and Frankfurt (3hr 45min). Coming from the UK it is cheaper to use the overnight ferry from Harwich to the Hook of Holland (stenaline.co.uk /ferry-to-holland) or Hull to Rotterdam ([pof ferries.com](http://pof ferries.com)).

Low-cost airlines operate flights from across Europe to five Dutch airports: Amsterdam Schiphol, Eindhoven, Groningen, Maastricht and Rotterdam. Of these, Schiphol offers by far the widest choice of routes and is a mere fifteen minutes by train to Amsterdam Central.

GETTING AROUND

Trains (ns.nl) are fast and efficient, fares relatively low, and the network comprehensive. With any ticket, you're free to stop off en route and continue later that day. Buses are rarely used for long-distance journeys except for the more remote areas of the country not covered in this guide. The website 9292.nl is a useful journey planner for both trains and buses.

The Netherlands has a nationwide public transport ticket (9ov-chipkaart.nl) that is valid on all trains, metro, trams and buses, and comes in two formats – paper and plastic. Sold at NS automatic ticket machines and by most tram and bus drivers, the paper (disposable)

OV-chipkaart is designed for occasional transport use – either for single journeys or one- or two-day bus or rail passes. For extended stays, a rechargeable, plastic OV-chipkaart – valid for five years – costs €7.50 and is sold only at train and bus stations, not by drivers. Before your journey, load up the card with credit – a minimum of €6 for urban transport and €20 for rail: unspent credit can be reclaimed at any public transport ticket office. Bear in mind that most ticket machines do not accept foreign debit or credit cards or cash – though ticket offices do.

The Netherlands has a nationwide system of cycle paths. You can rent bikes cheaply from main train stations and outlets in almost any town and village. Theft is rife: never leave your bike unlocked, and don't leave it on the street overnight – most stations have a storage area. For more on cycling see "sports and activities".

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation can be pricey, especially in Amsterdam during peak season. Many of the smaller towns such as Haarlem have few budget options, so it may be cheaper to stay in Den Haag or Rotterdam and make day-trips to the Randstad towns. The cheapest one- or two-star hotel double rooms start at around €70; three-star hotel rooms begin around €95. Prices usually include a reasonable breakfast. The national hostel association Stayokay (9stayokay.com) runs 27 clean, efficient (and bright orange) hostels nationwide, charging around €20–35 per person including a decent breakfast. If you use them extensively then it may be worth buying a Stayokay Card, which costs €17.50 and gives a discount of €2.50 a night. Larger cities have independent hostels with slightly lower prices but a tad more character. There are plenty of well-equipped campsites: expect to pay around €6 per person, plus €3–5 for a tent. Some sites also have cabins for up to four people, for around €40 a night.

FOOD AND DRINK

Dutch food largely revolves around bread, cheese and deep-fat fryers. Some specialities to look out for include: kroketten, bite-size chunks of meat and cheese sauce deep-fried in breadcrumbs; fricandel, a frankfurter-like sausage; and poffertjes, delicious airy little pancakes dusted in icing sugar. Seafood is often excellent, though the national craze for downing a whole salted herring (maatjes) may require some practice. As in Belgium, frites and mayo are served on almost any street corner.

In restaurants, the dish of the day (dagschotel) is the cheapest option. Usually the best-value restaurants are Indonesian (a legacy of Dutch colonial history), serving lots of lovely nasi or bami goreng (rice or noodles with meat), while another former colony, Surinam, has brought South American/Indian fusion cuisine (roti and curried plantain, anyone?) to the streets of major Dutch cities. Turkish-style kebabs (shoarma) and falafel are on offer almost everywhere.

DRINK

Sampling the Dutch and Belgian beers is a real pleasure, often done in a cosy brown café (bruine kroeg, named after the tobacco-stained walls); the big brands Heineken, Amstel, Oranjeboom and Grolsch are just the tip of the iceberg. A standard, small glass is een fluitje; a bigger glass is een vaasje. You may also come across proeflokalen or tasting houses, small, old-fashioned bars that close around 8pm, and specialize in jenever, Dutch gin, drunk straight; oud (old) is smooth, jong (young) packs more of a punch.

DRUGS

Purchases of up to 5g of cannabis, and possession of up to 30g (the legal limit) are tolerated; in practice, many “coffeeshops” offer discounted bulk purchases of 50g with impunity. When you walk in, ask to see the menu, which lists the different hashes and grasses on offer. Take care with spacecakes (cakes or biscuits baked with hash), mainly because you can't be sure what's in them, and don't ever buy from street dealers. All other narcotics are illegal, and don't even think about taking a “souvenir” home with you.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

The Dutch are renowned for their liberal and laidback attitude, so there isn't much in the way of etiquette to observe. Don't be embarrassed about speaking to locals in English – unlike many of their fellow Europeans, the Dutch are happy to converse in English and are generally helpful. Tippling is not usually expected and service charges are often added to the bill in restaurants. Many bars and cafés continue to allow smoking (tobacco, that is), despite a national ban. Prostitution is legal, regulated and somewhat in your face in the form of window brothels in Amsterdam and other cities.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

The Netherlands is a nation of cyclists. Renting bikes and cycling from city to city is very easy. For a more rural experience, the island of Texel and the Hoge Veluwe National Park near Arnhem are ideal, with the park even providing free bicycles for visitors. Football is also extremely popular, with the season

DISCOUNT CARDS

The European Youth Card (eyca.org; €14) offers discounts at most museums, galleries and tourist attractions throughout the country, as well as theatre, film and other leisure activities. Amsterdam and Rotterdam also offer tourist cards (see p.785 & p.796), with Rotterdam's being by far the best deal.

running from September to May and matches held on Sunday at around 2.30pm, with occasional games on Wednesday too. The major teams are PSV Eindhoven, Feyenoord in Rotterdam, and Amsterdam's Ajax.

COMMUNICATIONS

Free wi-fi is available in most cafés, hostels and hotels and many libraries and museums; just ask for the password. KPN, T-Mobile and Vodafone are the main mobile operators and offer a range of SIM-only deals. There are only a few public phones left near train stations, mainly for tourists – most take phonecards, which can be bought from TNT stores and tourist offices. The Dutch postal service is run by TNT and called PostNL, with counters within large stores and supermarkets. Stamps are sold at a wide range of outlets, mini-markets and hotels. Postboxes are legion – post international items in the “Overige” slot.

EMERGENCIES

The Netherlands is one of the safest countries in Europe, and most brushes with the law involve tourists who have overindulged in coffeeshops or bars or both (note that urinating in the street carries a €50 fine). Pharmacies (apotheek) are open Monday to Friday 8.30am to 5.30pm; if they are closed there'll be a note of the nearest open pharmacy on the door. When in need of a doctor, enquire at the reception of your accommodation; otherwise head for any hospital (ziekenhuis). If you need the emergency services, police, ambulance and fire are all on 112.

INFORMATION

Official Dutch tourist offices known as VVVs are usually in town centres or by train stations and have information in English, including maps and accommodation lists; they will also book rooms for a small charge.

MONEY AND BANKS

The Dutch currency is the euro (€). Banking hours are Monday 1 to 5/6pm, Tuesday to Friday 9am to 5/6pm; in larger cities some banks also open Thursday 7 to 9pm and occasionally on Saturday mornings. GWK exchange offices at train stations open late daily.

You can also change money at most VVV tourist offices, though rates are worse. ATMs are widespread.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Many shops close on Monday mornings, although markets open early. Otherwise, opening hours tend to be 9am to 5.30/6pm, with many shops staying open late on Thursdays or Fridays. Sunday opening is becoming increasingly common, with many shops open between noon and 5pm. In major cities, night shops (avondwinkels) open 4pm to 1/2am. Museum times are generally Tuesday to Saturday 10am to 5pm, Sunday 1 to 5pm, although these vary widely. Shops and banks are closed, and museums adopt Sunday hours, on public holidays: January 1, Good Friday, Easter Sunday and Monday, April 27, May 5, Ascension Day, Whitsun and Monday, December 25 and December 26.

Amsterdam

A “bucket-list” city for many travellers, AMSTERDAM is a cosmopolitan capital packed with world-class attractions such as the Rijksmuseum, the Van Gogh Museum and the heart-rending Anne Frank House.

Gradually growing from a fishing village at the mouth of the River Amstel to a major European trading centre, Amsterdam accommodated its expansion with the cobweb of canals that gives the city its distinctive and elegant shape today.

In the 1960s Amsterdam emerged as a fashionable centre for the alternative movement, famously hosting John Lennon and Yoko Ono’s “Bed-In for Peace”. The city still takes a progressive approach to social issues, with its cannabis café culture and red-light district, though recent years have seen a more conservative shift. The tacky city centre souvenir and sex shops and the famous red-light windows are slowly being replaced by boutiques and artists’ studios. And today, many of the city’s trendsetters are heading out of the centre to the vibrant up-and-coming districts such as Amsterdam Noord and NDSM.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Amsterdam’s compact Old Centre contains many of the city’s attractions and takes about forty minutes to walk across. Centraal Station lies on its northern edge, and from here the city fans south in a web of concentric canals (grachten), surrounded by expanding suburbs. To the south is the city’s main square and energetic party venue, Leidseplein, with the leafy Vondelpark and Museum quarter just over the Singelgracht to the south. The Jordaan to the northwest features mazy cobbled streets and dreamy canals, and offers perfect strolling territory. North and east of Centraal Station are the expanding docklands, full of sleek modern architecture, bars and restaurants.

Centraal Station and the Damrak

The cathedral-esque Centraal Station is most people’s first impression of Amsterdam. Exiting the station, you’re greeted with chaotic Stationsplein which has for years resembled a building site crisscrossed with tram tracks, cyclists, buses and pedestrians, a legacy of the Metro works due to continue until 2020. From here, the busy thoroughfare Damrak marches into the heart of the city, lined with overpriced restaurants and bobbing canal boats, and flanked on the left first by the Modernist stock exchange, the Beurs van Berlage (now a concert hall), and then by the enormous De Bijenkorf department store.

The Red Light District

East of Damrak, the infamous Red Light District, stretching across two canals – Oudezijds Voorburgwal and Oudezijds Achterburgwal – is a curious mixture of unabashed sleaze (live sex shows and vibrator shops) and some quite lovely cafés, restaurants and bars. It’s perhaps more fun to visit at night, when the neon-lit window brothels become strangely scenic. A few frivolous attractions worth seeking out here include the Condomerie, the world’s first condom speciality shop (see p.788), and the Hash Marihuana Hemp Museum at Oudezijds Achterburgwal 148 (daily 10am–10pm; €9). Similarly frolicsome is the Erotic Museum, Oudezijds Achterburgwal 54 (Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–1am, Fri & Sat 11am–2am; €7), which has some hilarious exhibits.

ROYAL REVELRY

The annual King’s Day – on 27 April – is the city’s biggest party, with up to half a million people dusting off their orange wigs and packing the streets and canals until it looks like a waterside disco: book accommodation well ahead for this date.

The Oude Kerk and Nieuwmarkt

Behind the Beurs, off Warmoesstraat, the Oude Kerk (Mon–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 1–5.30pm; €7.50), a bare, mostly fourteenth-century church, often puts on exhibitions including the excellent World Press Photo. Just beyond, on the other side of the Red Light District, Zeedijk leads to the Nieuwmarkt square, usually full of market stalls, particularly on Saturday when an organic farmers' market is a great spot for picnic treats. The square is centred on the turreted Waag building, an original part of the city's fortifications.

Kloveniersburgwal, heading south, was the outer of the three eastern canals of sixteenth-century Amsterdam and boasts, at no. 29, one of the city's most impressive canal houses, built for the Trip family in 1662.

The Koninklijk Paleis and Nieuwe Kerk

At the southern end of Damrak, the Dam (or Dam Square) is the centre of the city, its war memorial serving as a meeting place. On the western side, the Koninklijk Paleis (Royal Palace; daily 10am–5pm but closed during official ceremonies, check paleisamsterdam.nl; €10) was built as the city hall in the mid-seventeenth century and now hosts state functions and the odd royal appearance on the balcony. Vying for importance is the adjacent Nieuwe Kerk (exhibitions daily 11am–5pm), a fifteenth-century church rebuilt several times.

Rokin and Amsterdam Museum

South of Dam Square, Rokin follows the old course of the Amstel River, lined with grandiose nineteenth-century mansions. Running parallel, Kalverstraat is a monotonous strip of clothes shops, halfway down which, at no. 92, a gateway forms the entrance to the former orphanage that's now the Amsterdam Museum (daily 10am–5pm; €12.50), where artefacts, paintings and documents survey the city's development from the thirteenth century. Close by, the Spui is a lively corner of town whose mixture of bookshops and packed bars centres on a statue of a young boy known as 't Lieverdje (Little Darling).

The Muntplein and Bloemenmarkt

Right at the southern end of Rokin, the Muntplein is a busy intersection where pedestrians, cyclists, cars and trams conduct a kind of urban ballet. Right in the centre is the Munttoren – originally a mint and part of the city walls, topped with a seventeenth-century spire. Across the Singel canal is the fragrant daily Bloemenmarkt (Flower Market). To the south is Reguliersgracht, an appealing canal with seven distinctive steep bridges stretching in line from Thorbeckeplein. One of the canals which crosses it, Keizersgracht, is home to FOAM at no. 609 (Sat–Wed 10am–6pm, Thurs & Fri 10am–9pm; €10; foam.org), a hip, modern photography gallery.

Around Leidseplein

From the Spui, trams and pedestrians cross Koningsplein onto Amsterdam's main drag, Leidsestraat – a long, slender shopping street that cuts across the main canals. On the corner with Keizersgracht, the department store Metz & Co has a top-floor café with one of the best views of the city. Leidsestraat broadens at its southern end into Leidseplein, home to a vast Apple store and lined with identikit bars and clubs that form the hub of the city's mainstream nightlife. On the far corner, the Stadsschouwburg is the city's prime performance space after the Muziektheater.

The Jordaan and Anne Frank House

West of Centraal Station and across Prinsengracht, the Jordaan is a beguiling area of narrow canals, narrower streets and architecturally varied houses. With some of the city's best bars and restaurants, alternative clothes shops and good outdoor markets, especially those on the square outside the Noorderkerk (which hosts an antique and household goods market on Mondays and a popular farmers' market on Saturdays), it's a wonderful area to wander through. It is most famous, however, for the Anne Frank House (April–Oct daily 9am–10pm; Nov–March

AMSTERDAM CYCLING: A ROUGH GUIDE

Pretty much all Amsterdammers own a bike (fiets) and around two-thirds use them every day to get around. If you're thinking of joining them, it's worth bearing in mind some tips:

- start off with a bicycle tour (see p.785); you'll get your bearings and learn some useful road etiquette.
- to warn the locals that you're a beginner, rent a bright-red cycle from MacBike (📞macbike.nl). If you want to blend in, try a classic Dutch burco from Ajaxbike (📞ajaxbike.nl).
- beware tram tracks (these can buckle a wheel in seconds). You can't take a bike on a tram, but trains are okay providing you have the right ticket.
- always lock your bike to something solid. Bike thieves simply carry off cycles that only have a wheel lock.
- a lot of traditional Dutch bikes have pedal brakes rather than handlebar brakes – you may want to pay a little more for a regular bike.

Sun–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 9am–9pm; before 3.30pm entrance is only with online tickets for a booked time slot; after 3.30pm tickets sold at the entrance; €9; 📞annefrank.org), where the young diarist lived, at Prinsengracht 267. It's deservedly one of the most popular tourist attractions in town. Anne, her family and friends went into hiding from the Nazis in 1942, staying in the house for two years until they were betrayed and taken away to labour camps. The plain, small rooms have been well preserved, and include moving details such as the film-star pin-ups on Anne's bedroom wall and video interviews with her former classmates.

On the Prinsengracht, south of Anne Frank House, stands the Westerkerk (April–Nov Mon–Fri 10am–3pm, Sat 11am–3pm; Dec–March Mon–Fri 10am–3pm; free), burial place of Rembrandt. You can climb its impressive 85m tower (June–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–3pm guided tours every 30min; €7.50).

The Vondelpark

The lush Vondelpark – immediately south of the buzzing Leidseplein – is the city's most enticing open space, packed in summer with young Amsterdammers lazing by the lake and listening to music; in June, July and August there are free concerts every Sunday at 2pm. Southeast of the park is a residential district, with designer shops and delis along chic P.C. Hooftstraat and Van Baerlestraat, and some of the city's major museums grouped around the grassy wedge of Museumplein.

The Rijksmuseum

One of the world's premier art museums, the Rijksmuseum, accessed from Museumstraat (daily 9am–5pm; €17.50; 📞rijksmuseum.nl), displays a chronologically organized collection, ranging from Dutch masters (pre-eminent among them Rembrandt, Frans Hals and Vermeer) to Van Gogh self-portraits and some wonderful Southeast Asian and Japanese art. Highlight is Rembrandt's huge The Night Watch, but don't miss the Dutch landscapes by Jan van Goyen, the intricate scale model of an East India Company merchant ship and the comically smug 1642 portrait of one Gerard Andriesz Bicker (son of the mayor of Amsterdam) by Bartholomeus van der Helst (all covered in the excellent multimedia tour; €5). Buy tickets online to avoid the queues.

The Van Gogh Museum and Stedelijk Museum

An Amsterdam institution, the Van Gogh Museum at Paulus Potterstraat 7 (Sat–Thurs 9am–6pm, Fri 9am–10pm; €17; 📞vangoghmuseum.nl) features paintings from the artist's early years in Holland including the dark The Potato Eaters, and continues through to the celebrated colourful works he produced after moving to Arles in the south of France, such as The Yellow House and the Sunflowers series (again, book online to avoid the queues). Along the street, the bold new-look Stedelijk Museum of Modern Art (daily 10am–6pm, Fri until 10pm; €15; 📞stedelijk.nl) has acres of exhibition space displaying major works by Van Gogh, Mondrian, Kandinsky and Matisse – look out for Picasso's Seated Woman with Fish-Hat.

The Heineken Experience and De Pijp

The vast Heineken Experience at Stadhouderskade 78, east from the Rijksmuseum (July & Aug daily 10.30am–9pm; Sept–June Mon–Thurs 10.30am–7.30pm, Fri–Sun 10.30am–9pm; €16; heinekenexperience.com), provides a slick overview of one of the Netherlands' biggest brands, with a couple of free beers thrown in afterwards. South of here is the neighbourhood known as De Pijp (The Pipe) after its long canyon-like streets of brick tenements. It's a lively close-knit community with numerous inexpensive Surinamese and Turkish restaurants mixed in among the hip bars and organic delis. The main focus is lengthy Albert Cuypstraat, whose market (see p.788) is the largest in the city. Just south is the lovely landscaped Sarphatipark.

Waterlooplein and the Rembrandt House

East of Rembrandtplein across the Amstel, the large, squat Muziektheater and Stadhuys (commonly known as Stopera) flank Waterlooplein, home to the city's excellent flea market (see p.788). Behind, Jodenbreestraat was once the main street of the Jewish quarter (emptied by the Nazis in the 1940s); no. 6 is Het Rembrandthuis (Rembrandt House; daily 10am–6pm; €13; rembrandthuis.nl), which the painter bought in 1639 at the height of his fame. The main attraction here is the house itself, decorated in seventeenth-century style, rather than its relatively modest collection of Rembrandt etchings.

The Jewish Quarter and Hermitage Amsterdam

The award-winning Joods Historisch Museum, at Nieuwe Amstelstraat 1 (Jewish Historical Museum; daily 11am–5pm; closed Yom Kippur; €15; jhm.nl), is cleverly housed in a complex of Ashkenazi synagogues dating from the late seventeenth century and gives a vivid impression of Amsterdam's long-gone Jewish ghetto, while interactive pieces explain Jewish customs.

From here it's a short stroll towards the River Amstel and the Hermitage Amsterdam at Amstel 51 (daily 10am–5pm; €17.50; hermitage.nl), the first foreign branch of Russia's leading art museum in St Petersburg, possessing an extensive collection of paintings of Old Masters, as well as Oriental art and Post-Impressionist work. Inside, the new Outsider Art Museum promotes work by artists who did not study at art academies, such as Shinichi Sawada.

The Scheepvaartmuseum

One of the city's most popular attractions, the Scheepvaartmuseum (Maritime Museum) on Kattenburgerplein in the eastern docklands (daily 9am–5pm; €15; scheepvaartmuseum.nl) occupies the old arsenal of the Dutch navy built on its own mini-islet in the 1650s. Highlight is the full-scale replica of an East Indian merchant ship De Amsterdam – you can explore its decks and galleys, storerooms and gun bays.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Trains run from Schiphol airport, 15km southwest of Amsterdam, to Centraal Station (6am–midnight every 10min, midnight–6am hourly; 15min; €4.10 one-way;

HIT THE DOCKS

For a change of perspective head out to the wide-open spaces of the eastern docklands. A short tram trip (#26) or cycle ride east of Centraal Station, you'll find the futuristic Muziekgebouw concert venue (muziekgebouw.nl) and the Lloyd Hotel (lloydhotel.com), a one- to five-star hotel and "cultural embassy", which hosts exhibitions and events in its huge light-filled public spaces.

A 10min (free) ferry ride north of Centraal Station takes you to the former shipyards of the Amsterdam Shipping Company. Now known as NDSM, this area is being rapidly redeveloped and boasts a couple of cool places to eat and drink, and rummage for antiques. Check ndsm.nl for information.

ns.nl). Alternatively, the Airport Express bus #197 (bus197.nl) leaves from platform B9 at Schiphol Plaza for the city centre (stopping at Museumplein, the Rijksmuseum and Leidseplein) every 15min; €4.75 one-way.

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office The main VVV is opposite Centraal Station, at Stationsplein 10 (daily 9am–6pm; ☎020 702 6000, www.iamsterdam.com); there's also an office in the airport in Arrivals hall 2 (daily 7am–10pm).

Discount card The Iamsterdam City Card (€55/65/75/85 for 24/48/72/96hr; www.iamsterdam.com) covers city transport and entry to many attractions. Given the price, though, it's only worth considering if you visit a lot of museums (note that it doesn't include the Rijksmuseum or Anne Frank House).

Bike tours Mike's Bike Tours (☎020 233 0216, www.mikesbiketoursamsterdam.com) does a good city tour leaving at noon from Prins Hendrikkade 176 (€25; 3hr 30min). Yellow Bike, at Nieuwezijds Kolk 29 (☎020 620 6940, www.yellowbike.nl), offers similar excursions departing at 1.30pm (€27.50), while Toms Travel Tours (☎06 1311 9892, www.tomstraveltours.com) runs bike trips plus photo and eco tours.

GETTING AROUND

By public transport There's an excellent network of trams, buses and metro (all daily 6/7am–midnight). The GVB public transport office in front of Centraal Station (Mon–Fri 7am–9pm, Sat & Sun 8am–9pm; ☎0900 8011, www.gvb.nl) has free route maps and sells OV-chipkaart (see p.776). After midnight, night buses take over, running roughly hourly from Centraal Station to most parts of the city (one-way ticket €4).

By bike Most hostels rent bikes for around €10 per day. Otherwise try MacBike (from €14.75 per day; ☎020 620 0985, www.macbike.nl), which has convenient branches at Centraal Station, Leidseplein, Marnixstraat and Waterlooplein, or the slightly cheaper Ajax Bike (from €8.50 per day; ☎0615 6 8 4831, www.ajaxbike.nl) in De Pijp.

ACCOMMODATION

It's always worth booking ahead in high season, and at weekends throughout the year. Some hostels demand a two-night minimum stay.

★Generator Amsterdam Mauritskade 57 ☎020 708 5600, www.generatorhostels.com; tram #9 to Alexanderplein. Once the university's zoology department, this hotel-style hostel is the hippest new option in town. Light-filled modern rooms; cocktails served in the lecture-hall-turned-bar; pizza and espresso at an on-site café, plus free bikes. Dorms €15, doubles €85

★TREAT YOURSELF

Lucky Lake Hostel 📍luckylake.nl; metro to Holendrecht station then free shuttle bus. This rural idyll by the manmade Vinkeveen lakes, 15km southeast of central Amsterdam, offers a mixture of brightly decorated caravans, cabins sleeping two to three, and four-bed dorms. Rent a bike or kayak, cook in the outdoor kitchen or chill out in the lounge. Free breakfast. April to mid-Sept. Dorms €36, caravans €60, cabins €66

Stayokay Vondelpark Zandpad 5, Museum Quarter 📍020 589 8996, 📍stayokay.com. One of the largest hostels in Europe, with bar, restaurant, secure lockers, and bike rental and shed: no curfew. Book two months ahead in high season. Dorms €40, doubles €115

HOTELS

Amstel Botel NDSM Pier 3 📍020 626 4247, 📍amstelbotel.nl. This three-star floating hotel in the NDSM district has “waterside” or “landside” rooms, plus five designer “Loftletter” rooms – one even has a half pipe for skateboarders! Rooms are fairly functional, but the bar has a pool table, juke box and pinball machine. Doubles €120

Easyhotel Amsterdam Van Ostadestraat 97 📍020 3769 5901, 📍easyhotelamsterdam.com; tram #16 or #24 stop at Albert Cuypstraat. South of the centre, this clean, modern hotel charges for extras such as flatscreen TV, hairdryer and wi-fi. No breakfast, just vending machines. Doubles €58

Hotel Not Hotel Piri Reisplein 34 📍020 820 4538, 📍hotelnothotel.com. Here each room is a work of art created by young designers. And the art is not just hanging on the walls – you can sleep in a tram cart, in a printed house or behind a secret bookcase. On-site bar serves Thai food and cocktails. Doubles €113

CAMPSITES

Camping Zeeburg Zuider IJdijk 20 📍020 694 4430, 📍campingzeeburg.nl; tram #26 from Centraal Station to Zuiderzeeweg or night bus #359 to Flevoweg. Located on an island amid trees, this campsite also rents out eco-cabins. Min two-night stay. Free wi-fi. Open all year. Camping/person €14, plus per tent €10, cabins €100

Vliegenbos Meeuwenlaan 138 📍020 636 8855, 📍vliegenbos.com; bus #32, #33 or night bus #361 from Centraal Station. Located a 10min ferry ride away in Amsterdam North, this site is well equipped with a homely restaurant and lots of shade. April–Oct. Per tent €22

EATING

Amsterdam has many ethnic restaurants, especially Indonesian, Surinamese and Thai, as well as eetcafés that serve decent, well-priced food in an unpretentious setting.

CAFÉS

★Café de Ceuveel Korte Papaverweg 4 📍cafedeceuveel.nl. Genial vegetarian café whose friendly owners have transformed a polluted shipyard into a sustainable green “business” park, of which the café – constructed from recycled materials – forms the hub. The quiches, salads and sandwiches (€8) include ingredients and herbs grown from their converted houseboat garden. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–midnight, Fri & Sat noon–2am; closed Mon in winter. ★Gartine Taksteeg 7 📍gartine.nl. Tucked down an alleyway just off the Kalverstraat, Gartine is an oasis of calm, and most of the ingredients in its delicious sandwiches (€7), salads (€11.50) and afternoon teas are grown in its own allotment. Wed–Sun 10am–6pm.

Singel 404 Singel 404. A favourite among students for decades, Singel 404 serves arguably the best sandwiches in Amsterdam – try the smoked chicken, avocado, sun-dried tomatoes and Brie. Get there early or you’ll wait for a table. Daily 10am–6pm.

RESTAURANTS

Harlem Soul Food Haarlemmerstraat 77. Stylish New Orleans-style joint knocking out filling nachos (€8), jerk chicken (€5.40), plus more sophisticated evening dishes (crayfish salad €14). Daily 10am–1am, Fri & Sat until 3am.

Loetje Johannes Vermeerstraat 52 📍loetje.com. The original Amsterdam branch, this restaurant serves excellent steaks and salads on a pleasant outdoor terrace in summer: mains around €11.50. Other branches at Centraal Station (Stationsplein 10), Werfkade 14 and Ruyschstraat 15. Daily 10am–10.30pm.

Pannenkoekenhuis Upstairs Grimborgwal 2 📍upstairspannenkoeken.nl. Minuscule place in a tumbledown house, accessible via a steep staircase/ladder, and with dozens of teapots hanging from the ceiling. It serves hearty sweet and savoury pancakes for under €10. Wed–Sun noon–6pm.

★Plek Tt Neveritaweg 59 📍plek.nl. One of several hip venues at the NDSM wharf, Plek is housed in co-joined shipping containers. Dishes are international and affordable: mains like wild boar stew will set you back around €19. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9.30am–1am, Fri & Sat 9.30am–3am.

YamYam Frederik Hendrikstraat 88-90 ☎ 020 681 5097, yamym.nl. Top pizzeria with traditional dining room and open kitchen. Excellent pizza toppings include fresh rucola and truffle sauce. Pizzas €8–13. Booking strongly advised. Tues–Sat 6–10pm, Sun 5.30–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

There is a distinction between bars and coffeeshops, where smoking dope is the primary pastime (ask to see the menu). You must be 18 or over to enter these, and don't expect alcohol to be served. Drinks cost double those in a bar, but entry prices are low and there's rarely any kind of door policy. Check djguide.nl to see who's hitting the decks.

BARS

★ Brouwerij 't IJ Funenkade 7 ☎ brouwerijhetij.nl. Long-established brewery in the old public baths adjoining the Gooyer windmill. Serves up an excellent range of home-made beers and ales, from the thunderously strong Columbus amber ale to the easier-drinking Natte. Daily 2–8pm.

Café 't Smalle Egelantiersgracht 12 ☎ t-smalle.nl. Candlelit café-bar with a pontoon on the canal out front for relaxed summer afternoons. In winter, be sure to try the gluhwein. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–1am, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Gollem Raamsteeg 4 ☎ cafegollem.nl. Cosy split-level bar with rickety furniture, wood panelling and a comprehensive selection of Belgian beers, plus a few Dutch brews. Three other branches at Overtoom 160, Daniel Stalpertstraat 74 and Amstelstraat 34. Mon–Fri 4pm–1am, Sat & Sun noon–3am.

★ Wynand Fockink Pijlsteeg 31 ☎ wynand-fockink.nl. Just off Dam Square, this is one of the city's oldest proeflokalen, and it offers a vast range of its own flavoured jenever. It's standing room only here. Daily 3–9pm.

COFFEESHOPS

Barney's Breakfast Bar Haarlemmerstraat 102 ☎ barneys.biz. This popular café-cum-coffeeshop is one of the most civilized places in town to enjoy a big hit with a fine breakfast at any time of day. A few doors down, at no. 98, Barney's Farm affords a nice sunny spot in the morning and serves alcohol, while across the street the trendier Barney's Uptown serves cocktails. Daily 8am–1am.

Dampkring Handboogstraat 29 ☎ dampkring-coffeeshop-amsterdam.nl. Colourful coffeeshop with loud music and a laidback atmosphere, known for its good-quality hash. There's a second branch on Haarlemmerstraat, just west of Centraal Station. Daily 10am–1am.

Siberië Brouwersgracht 11. Bright, modern coffeeshop that is less commercial than some of the larger chains. Very relaxed and friendly with a good selection of magazines and a chessboard – worth a visit whether you smoke or not. Mon–Thurs 9am–11pm, Fri & Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 10am–11pm.

CLUBS

Bitterzoet Spuistraat 2, Old Centre ☎ bitterzoet.com. Spacious but cosy two-floor bar and theatre hosting a mixed bag of events: DJs playing punk and disco, film screenings and occasional urban poetry nights. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8pm–3am, Fri & Sat 8pm–4am.

Disco Dolly Handboogstraat 11, Old Centre ☎ discodolly.nl. The reincarnation of the Dansen bij Jansen club, this two-floor club plays a soundtrack of soul, boogie-woogie, disco, deep house and occasional hip-hop. Very popular with students. Mon–Thurs 10pm–4am, Fri–Sun 10pm–5am.

Escape Rembrandtplein 11, Grachtengordel ☎ escape.nl. A feature of Amsterdam's clubbing scene since the 1980s, this vast place can hold two thousand people. Recently updated, with an impressive sound system and visuals, its new café and lounge pull in the crowds. Thurs 11pm–4am, Fri & Sat 11pm–5am, Sun 11pm–4.30am.

Panama Oostelijke Handelskade 4, eastern docklands ☎ panama.nl. Overlooking the River IJ and hosting top-name international DJs (Thurs–Sun), this club also has a restaurant, Mercat. Dress to impress. Mon–Wed noon–1am, Thurs & Sun noon–3am, Fri & Sat noon–4am.

LIVE MUSIC

Bimhuis Piet Heinkade 3, eastern docklands ☎ 020 788 2150, ☎ bimhuis.nl. The city's premier jazz and improvised music venue is located right next to the Muziekgebouw. There are gigs from Dutch and international artists throughout the week, as well as jam sessions and workshops, plus a bar and restaurant for concertgoers, with pleasant views over the river. Mon–Thurs & Sun 6.30pm–1am, Fri & Sat 6.30pm–3am.

Melkweg Lijnbaansgracht 234a, Grachtengordel ☎ 020 531 8181, ☎ melkweg.nl. A former dairy, the Melkweg ("Milky Way") is probably Amsterdam's most respected entertainment venue, with two halls for live music covering a broad range of genres, from reggae to rock. There's also a café-restaurant (Marnixstraat entrance; Wed–Sun noon–9pm).

Paradiso Weteringschans 6–8, Grachtengordel ☎ 020 626 4521, ☎ paradiso.nl. This converted church just around the corner from the Leidseplein is popular with an alternative crowd. On Wed and Thurs eclectic dance night "Noodlanding" draws in the crowds, and DJ sets feature live performances on Sat. Hours vary.

ENTERTAINMENT

Amsterdam buzzes with places offering everything from English-language comedy to arthouse cinema. Grab a copy of A-mag from the tourist office or visit the “what’s on” section of iamsterdam.com for the latest listings. Last-minute tickets are sold by lastminuteticketshop.nl.

★ Boom Chicago Rozengracht 117, Jordaan ☎ 020 217 0400, boomchicago.nl. This rapid-fire improv comedy troupe hailing from the US performs nightly to crowds of both tourists and locals, and receives rave reviews. Inexpensive food, cocktails and beer served in pitchers.

Concertgebouw Concertgebouwplein 2–6, Museum Quarter ☎ 0900 671 8345, concertgebouw.nl. One of the most impressive venues in the city, with a star-studded international programme, yet very reasonable prices (€15–50). Free 30min Wednesday lunchtime concerts are held from September to May (doors open 12.15pm; arrive early), and in July and August there’s a heavily subsidized series of summer concerts.

EYE IJ promenade 1 ☎ eyefilm.nl; take the GVB Buiksloterwegveer passenger ferry service across the River IJ from the back of Centraal Station. This sleek riverside cinema screens a mixture of blockbusters and arthouse films (€9) and provides engaging views of the river and city centre.

GAY AMSTERDAM

Amsterdam has one of the biggest and best-established gay scenes in Europe. The nationwide organization COC (cocamsterdam.nl) can provide information and contacts. Otherwise check gayamsterdam.com.

Café Entre Nous Halvemaanstee 14. Camp brown café that’s packed at peak times, when everyone joins in the sing-alongs to cheesy 1980s music. Women welcome. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8pm–3am, Fri & Sat 8pm–4am.

Prik Spuistraat 109 ☎ prikamsterdam.nl. Voted the Netherlands’ best gay bar of 2015 by Rainbow Awards, with tasty cocktails, smoothies and snacks, plus DJs at weekends. Mon–Thurs 4pm–1am, Fri & Sat 4pm–3am, Sun 3pm–1am.

Vivelavie Amstelstraat 7 ☎ vivelavie.net. Casual lesbian bar, where gay men are very welcome. Quiet during the week, but packed at the weekends. Mon–Thurs & Sun 4pm–3am, Fri & Sat 3pm–4am.

SHOPPING AND MARKETS

Albert Cuypstraat Market Albert Cuypstraat. Amsterdam’s biggest market stretches for over 1km along De Pijp’s longest street. As well as cheap clothes and homewares you’ll find plenty of ethnic food stalls. Mon–Sat 9am–5pm.

American Book Center Spui 12, Old Centre ☎ abc.nl. This store has a vast stock of titles in English, as well as lots of imported US magazines and books. Mon noon–8pm, Tues, Wed & Fri 10am–8pm, Thurs 10am–9pm, Sun 11am–6.30pm.

Condomerie Het Gulden Vlies Warmoesstraat 141, Old Centre ☎ condomerie.com. This shop sells condoms of every shape, size and flavour imaginable (and unimaginable) – all in the best possible taste. Mon–Wed & Fri 11am–6pm, Thurs & Sat 11am–9pm, Sun 1–6pm.

The Head Shop Kloveniersburgwal 39, Old Centre ☎ headshop.nl. Every dope-smoking accessory you could possibly need, along with assorted marijuana ephemera. Mon–Fri 11am–6pm, Sat 11am–7pm, Sun noon–7pm.

★ Van Dijk & Ko Papaverweg 46, NDSM ☎ vandijkenko.nl. A treasure trove of reasonably priced vintage furniture, books, school supplies, glassware, etc. Can deliver internationally. Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun noon–6pm.

Waterlooplein Flea Market Waterlooplein behind the Stadhuis ☎ waterloopleinmarkt.nl. An Amsterdam institution and the city’s best central flea market is sprawling and chaotic, with wonderful antique/junk stalls to root through. Mon–Sat from 9am.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates In Den Haag (p.793).

Exchange GWK Travel Stationsplein 13f, Kalverstraat 150, and Leidsestraat 103.

Hospital VU Medisch Centrum De Boelelaan 1117 ☎ 020 444 4444, www.vumc.nl.

Internet Wi-fi is available at all hostels and hotels, and pretty much all cafés and restaurants. If you need a terminal, try the Central Library at Oosterdokskade 143 (daily 10am–10pm; €1/30min; ☎ oba.nl).

Post office Amsterdam’s main post office is at Singel 250 (Mon–Fri 7.30am–6.30pm, Sat 9am–5pm; ☎ postnl.nl). Otherwise postal transactions can be carried out at stores with the PostNL logo and branches of Albert Heijn supermarkets (including Jodenbreestraat 21).

Police Dial ☎ 0900 8844 and the operator will direct you to the nearest police station.

The Randstad

The string of towns known as the Randstad, or “rim town”, situated amid a typically Dutch landscape of flat fields cut by canals, forms the country’s most populated region and still recalls the landscapes painted in the seventeenth century. Much of the area can be visited as day-trips from Amsterdam. Haarlem is worth a look for the outstanding Frans Hals Museum, while to the south, the university centre of Leiden makes a pleasant detour before you reach the refined tranquillity of Den Haag (The Hague) and the modern urban landscape of Rotterdam. Nearby Delft and Gouda repay visits too, the former with one of the best-preserved centres in the region.

HAARLEM

Just over fifteen minutes from Amsterdam by train, HAARLEM is a handsome, mid-sized town that can be easily explored in a few hours. It also makes a good alternative base to Amsterdam at busy times. Those after a decent pint will also love the Jopenkerk, a church converted into a brewery.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The core of Haarlem is Grote Markt and the adjoining Riviermarkt, flanked by the gabled, originally fourteenth-century Stadhuis and the impressive bulk of the Grote Kerk (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; €2.50). Inside, the mighty Christian Müller organ of 1738 is said to have been played by Handel and Mozart. The town's main attraction is the wonderful Frans Hals Museum, at Groot Heiligland 62 (Tues–Sat 11am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €12.50; www.franshalsmuseum.nl), that houses a number of his lifelike seventeenth-century portraits, including the Civic Guard series, which established his reputation.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is north of the centre, about a 10min walk from the Grote Markt.

Destinations Alkmaar (every 30min; 30min); Amsterdam CS (every 10min; 15min); Delft (every 30min; 40min); Den Haag HS (every 30min; 30min); Leiden (every 10min; 20min).

Tourist office Stadhuis, Grote Markt 2 ☎023 531 7325, www.vvvhaarlem.nl (April–Sept Mon–Fri 9.30am–5.30pm, Sat 9.30am–5pm, Sun noon–4pm; Oct–March Mon 1–5.30pm, Tues–Fri 9.30am–5pm, Sat 10am–5pm).

ACCOMMODATION

★ Hello I'm local Spiegelstraat 4 ☎023 844 6916, www.helloimlocal.nl. Boutique twelve-room B&B/hostel with three dorms sleeping 8–14 and nine doubles/twins and quads, each beautifully decorated and many boasting lovely views. Dorms €19, doubles €75

Stayokay Haarlem Jan Gijzenpad 3 ☎023 537 3793, www.stayokay.com. Spick-and-span modern hostel near the sports stadium, about 3km north of the town centre. To get there, take bus #2 from the station – a 10min journey. Dorms €33, doubles €115

EATING AND DRINKING

De Roemer Botermarkt 17 www.cafederoemer.nl. Cosy bar with a covered outside terrace, tucked away on the edge of the old centre. It serves sandwiches and salads (€5–9) at lunch, and decent burgers and excellent steaks at dinner. Mon–Thurs 10am–1am, Fri & Sat 10am–2am, Sun noon–1am.

De Vlaminc Warmoesstraat 3. Takeaway serving classic crispy Dutch frites served with a dollop of fresh mayo. Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun 11am–7pm, Thurs 11am–9pm.

★ Jopenkerk Gedempte Voldersgracht 2 www.jopenkerk.nl. A converted church that is home to the Jopen microbrewery, bar and restaurant, with long benches, comfy sofas and its own cloudy, unfiltered beer. The food is simple rather than splendid, but you should at least try one of the dozen or so Jopen brews at the bar. Daily 10am–1am; lunch noon–3pm; dinner 5.30–8pm.

LEIDEN

The charm of LEIDEN lies in the peace and prettiness of its gabled streets and canals, though the town's museums are varied and comprehensive enough to merit a visit. It also has a thriving student population thanks to a university consistently rated one of Europe's finest.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The most appealing quarter is Rapenburg, a peaceful area of narrow pedestrian streets and canals that is home to the country's best archeological museum, the Rijksmuseum Van Oudheden (National Museum of Antiquities; Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €9.50; www.rmo.nl). Outside sits the first-century AD Temple of Tefekh, gifted by the Egyptian government, while inside are more Egyptian artefacts, along with classical Greek and Roman sculptures and exhibits from prehistoric, Roman and medieval times. Across Rapenburg, a network of narrow streets converges on the Gothic Pieterskerk. East of here, Breestraat marks the start of a vigorous market (Wed & Sat), which sprawls right over the sequence of bridges into Haarlemmerstraat, the town's major shopping street. Close by,

FLOWER POWER: THE KEUKENHOF

Along with Haarlem to the north, Leiden and Delft are the best bases for seeing the famous Dutch bulbfields that flourish in spring. The view from the train as you travel from Haarlem to Leiden can be sufficient in itself as the line cuts directly through the main growing areas, the fields divided into stark geometric blocks of pure colour. Otherwise, head for Lisse, home to the Keukenhof (mid-March to mid-May daily 8am–7.30pm; €16; www.keukenhof.nl), the world's largest flower gardens. Some six million blooms are on show, complemented by five thousand square metres of greenhouses. Bus #54 (every 30min; 25min) runs to the Keukenhof from Leiden bus station. To skip the queues, it's worth getting Connexion's combined bus and entry ticket (€20; available from Leiden Station as well as Schiphol and Amsterdam VVV).

the Burcht (daily 10am–10pm; free) is a shell of a fort, whose battlements you can clamber up for views of the town centre. The Molenmuseum de Valk, on Molenwerf at 2e Binnenvestgracht 1 (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 1–5pm; €4; www.molenmuseumdevalk.nl), is a museum housed in a classic Dutch windmill. Walk west along the 2e Binnenvestgracht and soon you'll hit the Museum Volkenkunde (Museum of Ethnology; Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €14), with an impressive collection of artefacts from every continent.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Leiden's train station is on the northwest edge of town next to the bus station.

Destinations Amsterdam CS (every 10min; 35min); Amsterdam Schiphol (every 10min; 20min); Delft (every 10min; 20min); Den Haag HS (every 10min; 15min); Haarlem (every 10min; 20min); Rotterdam (every 15min; 35min).

Tourist office Right outside the train station at Stationsweg 41 (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11am–3pm; ☎ 071 516 6000, www.leiden.nl).

ACCOMMODATION

ground floor serves a buffet breakfast and finger food until late. Doubles €86

Vliet 39 Vliet 39 ☎ 071 513 40 48, www.menscorpus.nl. In a seventeenth-century canalhouse, 1km from the centre, this first-floor en-suite suite comes with DVD player, free wi-fi and sitting room. Breakfast €12.50 per person. Cash only. Doubles €124

EATING AND DRINKING

Barrera Rapenburg 56 www.cafebarrera.nl. A fashionable café-bar and student favourite with a traditional brown interior. Has a great canal-side location, a good, long beer menu and a pavement terrace. Also many wines by the glass and filling bar food – try the Rapenburger for €7.50. Mon–Sat 10am–1am, Sun 11am–1am.

★ De Bonte Koe Hooglandsekerkkorsteeg 13 www.cafedebontekoe.net. One of the grooviest café-bars in Leiden, "The Colourful Cow" occupies vintage premises – apparently it was a butcher's shop (hence the tiles) that never managed to open. Serves a good range of beers on draught and a tasty home-made burger. Mon–Thurs 4pm–1am, Fri 4pm–3am, Sat 12.30pm–3am & Sun 1.30pm–1am.

La Bota Herensteeg 9 by the Pieterskerk www.labota.nl. Hidden studenty spot which serves great-value food and beers. Dagschotel for €7 and steak or salmon for €10. Daily 5pm–1am; kitchen open 5–10pm.

DEN HAAG

Urbane DEN HAAG (THE HAGUE) is different from any other Dutch city. Since the sixteenth century it has been the Netherlands' political capital and from 1945 the home of the International Court of Justice. The main attraction for visitors is its wonderful museums packed with Dutch masters and its proximity to Scheveningen, the Netherlands' biggest beach resort.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The modern and historical centres of the city interweave about 1km north of Den Haag HS station, with the main sights clustered together. More attractions – including the seaside at Scheveningen – are further north, all of which are easily accessible on public transport.

The Binnenhof, Mauritshuis and around

The central Binnenhof is the home of the Dutch parliament and incorporates elements of the town's thirteenth-century castle set around a pretty, tree-lined lake. Immediately east of here, at Plein 29, is the Mauritshuis (Mon 1–6pm, Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs 10am–8pm; €14; www.mauritshuis.nl), a magnificent seventeenth-century mansion housing an extensive range of Flemish and Dutch paintings including Vermeer's Girl with a Pearl Earring and View of Delft, plus one of Rembrandt's final self-portraits. Best to visit after 3pm or on Thursday evening to avoid the crowds. For an artistic contrast don't miss the nearby Escher in Het Paleis, at Lange Voorhout 74 (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €9; mescherinhetpaleis.nl), dedicated to the Dutch master of optical illusion, M.C. Escher.

Panorama Mesdag and the Gemeentemuseum

Panorama Mesdag, just west of the pedestrianized shopping area of town at Zeestraat 65 (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm; €10; panorama-mesdag.nl), is an astonishing 360-degree painting of seaside scenes of Scheveningen from the 1880s. North, the Gemeentemuseum, Stadhouderslaan 41 (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €13.50; gemeentemuseum.nl; tram #17 from Centraal Station), contains superb collections of musical instruments, Islamic ceramics and modern art, with the world's largest collection of Mondrian paintings. The attached Museum of Photography and GEM contemporary art museum can be accessed with a combined ticket (Tues–Sun noon–6pm; €18.50).

Scheveningen

Just 4km from Den Haag city centre and easily accessible by tram #9 from Den Haag Central or tram #1 from Kneuterdijk, Scheveningen is a big brash beach resort with all the usual attractions like a pier, casino and Sea Life Centre. In summer it becomes a kind of mini Ibiza thanks to its beachside bars and surfers tackling the (bone-chilling) North Sea swells. Another way to experience the sands is to take a “fat bike” tour with Lola Bikes (see below).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The city has two train stations – Den Haag Central (CS) and Den Haag Hollands Spoor (HS), the latter about 1km southeast, close to the Stayokay hostel. There are frequent rail services between the two (5min), or you can take tram #1 from HS direct to the city centre. Trains generally arrive at, and depart from, both stations, so your choice will be down to which is closest to your accommodation. The exceptions are the slow intercity trains to Belgium which only stop at HS (connecting to the Thalys service at Rotterdam is much faster), and services to Schiphol which are slightly more frequent from CS.

Destinations Amsterdam CS (every 30min; 50min); Amsterdam Schiphol (every 15–20min; 28min); Antwerp (Den Haag HS only; every 2hr; 1hr 32min); Brussels (Den Haag HS only; every 2hr; 2hr 13min); Delft (every 15min; 12min); Gouda (every 20min; 20min); Leiden (every 30min; 20min); Rotterdam (every 15min; 25min); Utrecht (every 15min; 40min).

Tourist office Spui 68, inside the public library (Mon noon–8pm, Tues–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; ☎ 070 361 8860, denhaag.com).

GETTING AROUND

By tram Trams are the best way to get around Den Haag and out to Scheveningen. A day card costs €6.50, less if you own an OV-chipkaart (see p.776). Line #1 runs between the train stations, then continues north to the beach.

ACCOMMODATION

DEN HAAG

Room 11 Veenkade 6 & 7–9; reception at Café de Bieb, Veenkade 7 ☎ 070 346 3657, hotelroom11.nl; tram #17 from Den Haag CS to the Noordwal tram stop. Bargain hotel with ten rooms spread over three three-storey terrace houses. Although they are far from luxurious, all are en suite, pleasant enough and very affordable. A handy location, too, plus organic breakfasts. Doubles €70

Stayokay Den Haag Scheepmakersstraat 27 ☎ 070 315 7888, stayokay.com. This large and comfortable HI hostel is located just 400m northeast of – and across the canal from – Den Haag HS station. A good range of facilities includes luggage and bicycle storage, bike rental, a café and a small library. Dorms €19, doubles €60

SCHEVENINGEN

Jorplace Beach Hostel Keizerstraat 296 ☎ 070 338 3270, jorplace.nl; tram #1. Within easy walking distance of the beach, Scheveningen's well-equipped hostel offers ten- to 24-bunk dorms. Also has several double rooms, including a campervan in the back garden. There's a café and a bar, plus bike and longboard rental. Dorms €22, doubles €50, campervan €30

EATING

Bij Hem Molenstraat 21a. Inventive sandwiches (try the Surinam spicy chicken, €9.75) and some excellent mains (Wagyu burger, €18.95) await at this bright little café-restaurant on one of the city's most chi-chi streets. Mon–Wed & Sun 10am–11pm, Thurs–Sat 11am–late.

De Paraplu Bagijnestraat 9 paraplu-eetcafe.nl. Simple eetcafé always jam-packed with people looking for good food at a reasonable price. Known for its Giant Plu-burger for around €16. Mon–Thurs & Sun 4–11pm, Fri–Sat 4pm–1am.

★ Lola Bikes & Coffee Noordeinde 91, lolabike.sandcoffee.nl. Bike shop/espresso bar with cool artwork and retro cycles hanging on the wall. Don't miss their Fatbike Experience cycle tour of the beach and dunes (every Sun 8.30am; €35). Daily 8am–6pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Danzig Lange Houtstraat 9 ④ danzig.nl. Basement dance bar, hugely popular with students for its free entrance and cheap beer. Thurs–Sat 11pm–4am/5am.

De Oude Mol Oude Molstraat 61. Good old traditional bar and neighbourhood joint down a narrow side street. Oodles of atmosphere and an enjoyable range of beers. Upstairs is a tiny tapas bar. Daily from 5pm; kitchen Wed–Sat from 5.30pm.

Paard Prinsegracht 12 ④ paard.nl. Den Haag's main music venue, often featuring international acts (Florence and the Machine and Calvin Harris have appeared), and frequent DJ nights (many with free entry). Check online for the full schedule, show times and early bird discounts.

Rootz Grote Marktstraat 14 ④ rootz.nl. This large, heaving café-bar debunks Den Haag's staid reputation. Its saloon-style interior serves more than 200 Dutch and Belgian beers. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–12.30am, Fri & Sat 10am–1am.

Strandpaviljoen Zuid Wieringse Pad Stroke 11, Duindorp ④ gmdh.nl/zuid; tram #12 to Duindorp and follow the signs. Popular beach bar-restaurant south of the main Scheveningen strands. Also hosts live music and DJ sets. Summer daily 9am–11pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates Australia, Carnegiealaan 4, Den Haag ④ 070 310 8200; Canada, Sophialaan 7, Den Haag ④ 070 311 1600; Ireland, Scheveningseweg 12, Den Haag ④ 070 363 0993; New Zealand, Eisenhowerlaan 77N, Den Haag ④ 070 346 9324; UK, Lange Voorhout 10, Den Haag ④ 070 427 0427; US, Lange Voorhout 102, Den Haag ④ 070 310 2209.

DELFT

DELFT, 2km inland from Den Haag, is perhaps best known for Delftware, the delicate blue and white ceramics to which the town gave its name in the seventeenth century, and as the home of the painter Johannes Vermeer. With its gabled red-roofed houses standing beside tree-lined canals, the town has a faded tranquillity – though one that can suffer beneath the tourist onslaught in summer.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Delft's main square, the Markt, is framed by the impressive Nieuwe Kerk (Feb–March Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; April–Oct Mon–Sat 9am–6pm; Nov–Jan Mon–Fri 11am–4pm, Sat 10am–5pm; church €4 including entrance to Oude Kerke, tower

€4, churches & tower €7; ④ oudeen nieuwekerkdelft.nl) and the Renaissance Stadhuis opposite. William the Silent – leader of the struggle for Dutch independence in the sixteenth century – is buried in the Nieuwe Kerk, and you can climb the 370 steps of the tower for spectacular views. West of here, Wynhaven, an old canal, leads to Hippolytusbuurt and the Gothic Oude Kerk (same hours and fee as Nieuwe Kerk), with an unhealthily leaning tower. Vermeer fans should check out the Vermeer Centrum at Voldersgracht 21 (daily 10am–5pm; €8; ④ vermeerdelft.nl), which explains Vermeer's technique well with the aid of reproduction paintings.

A fifteen-minute walk south of the centre at Rotterdamsweg 196 is the Royal Delft Experience (daily 9am–5pm; Nov to mid-March as above but noon–5pm Sun; €12.50; ④ www.royaldelftexperience.nl) where you can see Delftware being painstakingly painted.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Delft's glassy new train station is a 10min walk from the Markt.

Destinations Amsterdam (every 15min; 1hr); Den Haag CS (every 10min; 10min); Rotterdam (every 5min; 10min).

Tourist office Delft's VVV, called TIP, is just off the Markt at Kerkstraat 3 (April–Sept Sun & Mon 10am–4pm, Tues–Sat 10am–5pm; Oct–March Tues–Sat 10am–4pm; Sun 11am–3pm; ④ 05 215 40 51, ④ www.delft.nl).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostel Delft Voldersgracht 17a ④ 061 649 6621, ④ hosteldelft.nl. Recently revamped, this bright and breezy city-centre hostel ambles round three old buildings, its six en-suite dorms sleeping between four and sixteen guests in tidy bunk beds. The six-bunk attic room is especially convivial. Has a communal kitchen, a TV lounge and four rooftop terraces. No breakfast. Dorms €22

Leeuwenbrug Koornmarkt 16 ④ 015 214 7741, ④ leeuwenbrug.nl. Pleasant, medium-sized, three-star hotel occupying attractively renovated, canal-side premises – nothing fancy, just cosy and homely. Rooms are perhaps a little spartan, but those at the front have nice views and the breakfasts are very good. Doubles €90

EATING AND DRINKING

Café Zondag Voldersgracht 7 ④ zondag-delft.nl. "Every day is Sunday" at this relaxed café on pretty Voldersgracht. Good coffee and snacks (sandwiches €7.45), plus a decent range of beers. Mon–Wed 10am–5.30pm, Thurs 10am–6pm, Fri & Sun 10am–10pm, Sat 9am–10pm.

★ Kleijweg's Stadskoffyhuys Oude Delft 133 ☎ stads-koffyhuys.nl. Charming little café that regularly wins awards for its inventive range of sandwiches (€6–9) and also serves the best pancakes in town (€6–12). Mon–Fri 9am–8pm & Sat 9am–6pm.

★ Kobus Kuch Beestenmarkt 1 ☎ kobuskuch.nl. Located on one of Delft's most atmospheric squares, this café is famous for its homebaked apple pie with whipped cream (€4) served in an old-fashioned woodpanelled setting; sandwiches around €7. Great terrace too. Mon–Thurs 9.30am–1am, Fri & Sat 9.30am–2am, Sun 10am–1am.

★ Lunchcafé Vrij Brantse Turfmarkt 61 ☎ lunchcafevrij.nl. Buzzing little café serving some of the best coffee in the Netherlands, plus home-made pastries and Portuguese platters (€15.50) served with artisan bread: gluten-free options too. Tues–Fri 9.30am–5.30pm, Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 10.30am–5.30pm.

★ Trappistenlokaal 't Klooster Vlamingstraat 2 ☎ www.trappistenlokaal.nl. Smashing little bar with traditional decor and an excellent range of international beers, both on tap and bottled. They often organize tastings. Mon–Thurs & Sun 4pm–1am, Fri 4pm–2am, Sat 2pm–2am.

ROTTERDAM

Looming skyscrapers, gritty docklands – ROTTERDAM is the Netherlands but not as we know it. The largest seaport in Europe, Rotterdam's urban landscape is largely a result of the hammering it received during World War II when bombing completely levelled the city. Today, with its elegant Erasmus bridge, playful Blaak cube houses and the vast Tetris-block “De Rotterdam”, the city can boast some of the most adventurous architecture in the world. There's also plenty to keep you entertained, including a great museum park, the bohemian Witte de Wittstraat artistic quarter and, last but not least, the welcoming and independent-spirited Rotterdammers themselves.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

You can get a feel for the city by walking from Centraal Station (or taking tram #7 from just outside) down to the Museumpark along Mauritsweg. More idiosyncratic attractions lie further east, while Delfshaven is a short, and rewarding, journey southwest.

The Museumpark and around

The impressive Boijmans Van Beuningen Museum, at Museumpark 18 (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €15; ☎ boijmans.nl), has a superb collection of works by Monet, Van Gogh, Picasso, Gauguin and Cézanne, as well as several by Bosch (don't miss his Tower of Babel) Brueghel the Elder and Rembrandt. A stroll south through the Museumpark brings you to the Kunsthall at Westzeedijk 341 (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm; €12; ☎ kunsthall.nl), which hosts first-rate exhibitions of contemporary art, photography and design, and the Natuur Museum (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €7; ☎ hetnatuurhistorisch.nl), displaying more than 400,000 objects related to natural history. For alternative art, you can't do better than a browse around the tiny, inexpensive galleries along Witte de Withstraat, northeast of the Museumpark.

The Maritiem Museum and the Kubuswoningen

The chief exhibit of the entertaining Maritiem Museum at Leuvehaven 1 (Maritime Museum; Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm; €10; ☎ maritiemmuseum.nl), is the iron-clad Buffel, a nineteenth-century Dutch navy ship. A short walk east along Blaak is a remarkable series of 1980s cube-shaped houses, the Kubuswoningen: you can look round one, the Kijk Kubus, at Overblaak 70 (Show Cube; daily 11am–5pm; €2.50; ☎ kubuswoning.nl).

Delfshaven

Little in Rotterdam city centre can be called postcard pretty, but Delfshaven, a short metro ride from Beurs, makes up for it. Its two canals are lined with lovely old warehouses and it was from here that the Pilgrim Fathers set sail for the New World in 1620, a connection marked by the elegant Pelgrimvaderskerk (Pilgrim's Church) and the excellent De Pilgrim brewery (see p.797).

The Erasmusbrug and Wilhelminakade

To experience Rotterdam's new architecture, cross the 800m Erasmusbrug to Wilhelminaplein (or take metro line

CHEESE FEAST: GOUDA

A pretty little town some 25km northeast of Rotterdam, GOUDA makes an enchanting day-trip. Its Markt – the largest in the Netherlands – hosts a touristy cheese market every Thursday (April to late Aug 10am–1pm), an event dates from the Middle Ages when farmers would barter their goods using a handjeklap (hand-clapping) ritual. Gouda can also easily be reached from Utrecht and The Hague.

23

D/E), where you'll find the 150m-high De Rotterdam by Rem Koolhaas, a "vertical city" of upscale apartments, offices, a hotel and a handful of bars. The nearby Nederlands Fotomuseum, at Wilhelminakade 332 (Tues–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat & Sun 11am–5pm; €9; nederlandsfotomuseum.nl), hosts changing exhibitions, while at the end of the street is the fabulous Hotel New York, the former head office of the Holland-America Line.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Just north of the centre, Rotterdam's vast futuristic Centraal Station is served by regular intercity departures plus high-speed Thalys and Frya trains.

Destinations Amsterdam CS (every 10min; 1hr); Amsterdam Schiphol (every 10min; 50min); Antwerp (hourly; 32min); Brussels (hourly; 1hr 10min); Delft (every 5min; 10min); Den Haag CS (every 10min; 25min); Gouda (every 10min; 20min); Leiden (every 10min; 30min); Paris (hourly; 2hr 40min); Utrecht (every 15min; 40min).

Tourist office The main VVV is at Coolingsingel 195–197 (daily 9.30am–6pm; ☎010 790 0185, rotterdam.info); there's also a smaller "info café" on the main concourse at Centraal Station (daily 9am–5.30pm). For budget ideas on where to eat, drink and sleep, visit Use-It Rotterdam at Vijverhofstraat 47 (use-it.nl).

Discount card The Rotterdam Welcome Card (€11/16/20 for 24/48/72hr) covers city transport and provides discounts on entry to attractions, plus discount vouchers for shops, restaurants and tours.

GETTING AROUND

By metro and tram Rotterdam's spotless, efficient metro is probably the best in the Netherlands (all lines intersect at Beurs, two stops south of Centraal Station). Both metro and tram services use the ov-chipkaart system (€3.50 for 2hr; €7.50 one day).

By water bus This fast ferry runs every 30min from near the Erasmusbrug to Dordrecht, 15km south (Mon–Fri 7am–8pm, Sat 8am–9m, Sun 11am–7.30pm; €2–6; ov-chipkaart accepted; waterbus.nl). On the way you can see Rotterdam's vast docklands as well as the famous windmills at Kinderdijk.

Boat trips Leaving from beside the Erasmusbrug, Spido cruises (☎010 275 9988, spido.nl) runs tours of Rotterdam's waterways and port.

ACCOMMODATION

Bazar Witte de Withstraat 16 ☎010 206 5151, hotelbazar.nl. Popular Middle Eastern-style hotel whose rooms are themed by country – African, Middle Eastern, South American etc – so choose your favourite from the website before you book. Doubles €80

King Kong Hostel Witte de Withstraat 74 ☎010 818 8778, kingkonghostel.com. Located on one of Rotterdam's most fashionable streets, this bright and breezy hostel has a cool and arty vibe with hammocks in the dorms and (private) rain showers in the single/double rooms. Dorms €26, doubles €100

★ Room Hostel Van Vollenhovenstraat 62 ☎010 282 7277, roomrotterdam.nl. Funky central hostel in bright orange and purple colours, sleeping up to a hundred people in dorms with themes such as art, festivals, port and zoo. There's a busy bar downstairs. Dorms €16.50, doubles €65

Stayokay Rotterdam Overblaak 85 ☎010 436 5763, stayokay.com. Inspiring HI hostel inside one of Rotterdam's kubuswoningen (see p.794). Has a handy central location, but the facilities, which include luggage storage and bike rental, are fairly basic. Dorms €21, doubles €60

EATING

The best places for cheap and tasty food are Oude and Nieuwe Binnenweg, and groovy Witte de Withstraat, while the futuristic Market Hall, Ds. Jan Scharpstraat 298, opposite Blaak station (daily noon–midnight; markthal.nl) – the first covered market in the Netherlands – houses a host of speciality food shops, bars and restaurants.

Bazar Witte de Withstraat 16 bazarrotterdam.com. Big, bustling North African/Middle Eastern restaurant with strikingly vivid decor and a good variety of vegetarian dishes. Mains such as couscous or chicken kebab cost around €13, while the daily special is €9. Mon–Fri 8am–1am, Sat 9am–2am, Sun 9am–midnight.

★ Hamburg Witte de Withstraat 94B restauranthamburg.nl. The best burgers in town (free-range Black Angus, chicken or tofu from €7) at this new US-style diner. Mon–Thurs 4–10.30pm, Fri–Sun noon–10.30pm.

Sijf Oude Binnenweg 115 sijf.nl. Downbeat café-bar with appealing Art Deco decor; serves filling snacks and light meals such as wild salmon or satay for around €14. There's an intimate little terrace too, great for people-watching. Sun & Mon 10am–midnight, Tues–Sat 10am–1am; kitchen till 10pm, 11pm on the weekend.

Spirit Mariniersweg 9 spiritrotterdam.nl. A New York loft-style one hundred percent organic vegetarian restaurant with a pay-by-weight buffet that will fill you up nicely for around €12.50. Mon–Sat 8am–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Bird Raampoortstraat 26 bird-rotterdam.nl. You can hear anything from jazz to Latin to hip-hop at this club/restaurant under the arches of the Hofbogen viaduct. Tues–Thurs 5.30pm–1am, Fri & Sat 5.30pm–4am.

De Witte Aap Witte de Withstraat 78 dewitteaap.nl. Funky little café-bar with faded furniture, an arty clientele and displays of modern art on the walls. Occasional DJ sounds too – and a lively spill-out pavement terrace. Daily 1pm–4am.

★Stadsbrouwerij De Pelgrim Aelbrechtskolk 12 pelgrimbeer.nl. Rotterdam's most popular brewery is located in the old Delfshaven council building, dating from 1580 with an attractive terrace overlooking the harbour. Its Mayflower Tripel beer with a hint of caramel is especially tasty. Wed–Sun noon–midnight.

UTRECHT

A short hop from Amsterdam, UTRECHT, with its world-class university, stunning medieval architecture and canals full of people lazily boating about in summer, has an almost Oxbridge feel. The city is perhaps best known for the 1713 Peace of Utrecht, a series of treaties which ended the War of the Spanish Succession.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Although it boasts few stellar sights, Utrecht's historic centre is perfect for aimless wandering. Its focal point is the fourteenth-century 110m-high Dom Tower – the highest church tower in the country. A one-hour guided tour (April–Sept Mon & Sun noon–4pm hourly; Tues–Sat 11am–4pm hourly; Oct–March Mon–Fri & Sun 3 daily; Sat noon–4pm hourly; €9; domtoren.nl) takes you unnervingly close to the top, from where you can see Rotterdam and Amsterdam on a clear day.

Around 1km south of the centre at Nicolaaskerkhof 10, the Central Museum (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €12.50, includes

UTRECHT FROM THE WATER

The best way to experience the low-slung canals and architecture of Utrecht is from the water – the main Oudegracht and Nieuwegegracht loop can be done in under an hour by kayak. Kanoverhuur at Oudegracht 275 (March to mid-Oct Mon 1–8pm, Tues–Sun 10am–8pm; €5/hour; kanoverhuurutrecht.nl) rents out kayaks and Canadian-style canoes.

entrance to Miffy Museum; centraalmuseum.nl; bus #2) is worth a visit for its collection of Dutch art, mostly by local Utrecht artists. The nearby Miffy Museum, at Agnietenstraat 1 (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; over 12s €3.50, 2–12s €8.50, under 2s free; nijntjemuseum.nl), is devoted to Dick Bruna, Utrecht artist and creator of children's favourite and global bestselling cartoon rabbit Miffy.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Utrecht's train station is located inside the large Hoog Catharijne shopping centre. Follow the signs and you will eventually be spat out at Vredenburg which leads to the main canal, Oudegracht.

Destinations Amsterdam (every 15min; 30min); Arnhem (every 30min; 40min); Gouda (every 10min; 20min); Maastricht (every 30min; 2hr); Rotterdam (every 15min; 45min).

Tourist office Beside the Dom Tower at Domplein 9 (Sun & Mon noon–5pm, Tues–Sat 10am–5pm; 030 236 0000, visit-utrecht.com). It offers the usual services and organizes tours of the Domtoren (see above). Pick up the Use-It Utrecht (use-it.travel) map filled with budget eating suggestions and free sights.

ACCOMMODATION

Stayokay Utrecht-Bunnik Rhijnauwenselaan 14b 030 656 1277, stayokay.com; bus #40 or #41 from the train station direction Wijk bij Duurstede to Rhijnauwen. Peaceful, family-orientated HI hostel located a good 5km out of the centre in an old country manor house. Dorms €25, doubles €59

Strowis Budget Hostel Boothstraat 8 030 238 0280, www.strowis.nl. This central hostel, in a seventeenth-century townhouse on a tatty side street, has a good range of facilities including a small library, bike rental and a self-catering kitchen. Rooms, painted in cheerful colours, range from single to large dorms. Breakfast €6. Dorms €20, doubles €65

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Andersom Vismarkt 23. There aren't too many coffeeshops in the centre of Utrecht, but this well-established place fits the bill – and it's metres from the Domtoren. Mon–Sat 10am–11pm, Sun noon–11pm.

Beers & Barrels Oudegracht aan de Werf 125 beersbarrels.nl. Pick of the old brick cellars along the Oude Gracht canal, this deep and dark, busy and atmospheric bar has a great range of local and foreign beers, some brewed on the premises, plus inexpensive barbecue food, from pulled pork (€7.50) through to burgers (€12). Daily 4pm–midnight; kitchen till 10pm, 11pm Thurs–Sat.

Broodje Mario Oudegracht 132. This market stall is a local institution, selling pizza slices and the famous Mario sandwich with cheese, salami and red pepper. Fill up for only €3.50. Mon–Sat 10.30am–6pm.

Kimmade Mariastraat kimmade.nl. Arguably the best Vietnamese restaurant in town, this well-established place offers everything from honey pork through to fried tofu at excellent prices; mains are around €7. Mon–Sat noon–10pm, Sun 1–8pm.

★ The Village Voorstraat 46, thevillagecoffee.nl. Probably the hippest café in Utrecht – all exposed brickwork, bearded baristas and boasting a great location for people-watching. Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–6pm.

Beyond the Randstad

Outside the Randstad towns, the Netherlands is relatively unknown territory to visitors. To the north, there's superb cycling and hiking to be had through scenic dune reserves and delightful villages, with easy access to pristine beaches, while the island of Texel offers the country's most complete beach experience, and has plenty of birdlife. The Hoge Veluwe National Park, near Arnhem, boasts one of the Netherlands' best modern art museums and has some delightful cycle paths. Further south, a rougher landscape of farmland and forests leads to Maastricht, a city with a vibrant, pan-European feel.

TEXEL

The largest of the islands off the north coast – and the easiest to get to (2hr from Amsterdam) – TEXEL (pronounced “tessel”) offers diverse and pretty landscapes, and is one of Europe's most important bird-breeding grounds.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Texel's main settlement, DEN BURG, makes a convenient base and has bike rental outlets. On the coast 3km southeast of Den Burg, OUDESCHILD is home to the new Kaap Skil Museum van Jutters & Zeelui at Heemskerckstraat 9 (April–Oct Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun noon–5pm; €8.50; kaapskil.nl), a fascinating collection of marine-related miscellanea. On the way into town, at Schilderweg 214, the Texelse Bierbrouwerij (tours Tues–Fri 2pm & 3pm, Sat 2pm, 3pm & 4pm; €11.50; texels.nl) offers tours of the brewery and tastings. In the opposite direction is DE KOOG, with a good sandy beach and the EcoMare nature centre, at Ruijslaan 92 (daily 9.30am–5pm; €9.75; ecomare.nl), a bird and seal sanctuary as well as natural history museum. Fishing boat tours from Oudeschild harbour (several daily year-round; hetwadop.nl) stop at the Wad, banks of sand and mud to the east of the island, where seals and birds gather.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By boat Car ferries, run by Teso (Mon–Sat 6.30am–9.30pm, Sun 7.30am–9.30pm; 0222 369 600, teso.nl), leave Den Helder for Texel hourly on the half-hour with extra departures in high season, and the journey takes about 20min. Return tickets cost €2.50 for foot passengers, plus €2.50 for a bike or moped; cars including passengers cost €37 at peak times. Once on Texel, various buses greet the ferry's arrival and depart for destinations across the island.

By bus Texelhopper bus #28 from Den Helder's train station uses the ferry to cross to Texel and then drives on to Den Burg and De Koog. It departs at twelve minutes past the hour and the tickets (€5.50 to anywhere on the island) include the ferry.

Tourist office Den Burg's VVV is at Emmalaan 66 (0314 741, texel.net; June–Oct Mon 9am–9pm, Tues–Fri 9am–5.30pm, Sat 9am–5pm, Sun 6–9pm; Nov–May Mon–Fri 9am–5.30pm, Sat 9am–5pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping is the most popular option here, with good campsites dotted around the island. The VVV website has a full list including some funky yurt options.

HOGE VELUWE NATIONAL PARK

Just north of Arnhem (80km from Amsterdam/55km from Utrecht) is the huge, privately owned Hoge Veluwe National Park (daily: Jan–March, Nov & Dec 9am–6pm, April & Sept 8am–8pm, May & Aug 8am–9pm, June & July 8am–10pm, Oct 9am–7pm; €9.15; hogeveluwe.nl). Apart from being a wonderful place to hike and cycle (there are 1700 free “White Bikes” to use), it’s also home to the superb Kröller-Müller Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €18.30 including park admission; krollermuller.nl), a collection of fine art that includes nearly three hundred paintings by Van Gogh, plus works by Picasso, Seurat, Léger and Mondrian, and is surrounded by an imaginative sculpture garden.

To get to the park, take the train from Amsterdam to Ede-Wageningen (every 30min; 1hr) and then bus #108 to Otterlo (every 30min; 20min), then cycle (30min), or catch bus #106 to Hoenderloo (every 30min; 15min), which stops near the entrance. If you fancy staying, there’s an excellent campsite near the Hoenderloo entrance (open April–Oct; per person €8, plus per tent €7; pampel.nl).

Kogerstrand Badweg 33 ☎0222 390 112, texelcampings.nl. Campsite set among the beachside dunes in De Koog, the island’s busiest resort. Part of a network of four sites across the island. Closed Oct–March. Per person €17

Stayokay Texel Haffelderweg 29 ☎0222 315 441, stayokay.com. HI hostel on the outskirts of Den Burg that’s well suited to families and groups, and it has a big bar and terrace. Dorms €32, doubles €75

EATING AND DRINKING

De Twaalf Balcken Weverstraat 20 ☎12balcken.nl. The Tavern of the Twelve Beams is a Texel institution, an eetcafé serving well-priced salads, tortilla and ribs (mains from €16). Mon–Thurs 10am–1.30am, Fri & Sat 10am–3am, Sun 5pm–1.30am.

Pangkoekhuus Kikkertstraat 9 ☎pangkoekhuus.nl. They serve a great line in pancakes here – both sweet and savoury – and you can sit outside on the large terrace and watch the world go by. Prices start at around €4. Daily noon–8.30pm, July & Aug until 9pm.

Van der Star Heemskerkstraat 15, Oudeschild ☎vispaleitexel.nl. Well-priced seafood café located on Oudeschild harbour. It’s pretty basic – wicker chairs and tables – but you won’t care when you taste the delicious fresh and smoked fish. Mon–Sat 8am–6pm.

MAASTRICHT

Squashed between the Belgian and German borders, MAASTRICHT is one of the most delightful cities in the Netherlands. A university town popular with foreign students, it made a fitting location for the 1992 treaty that established the modern EU and the euro (you’ll find € symbols decorating the pavement). It’s worthy of a couple of nights to explore properly. If you can, try to time your visit to coincide with the excellent pinkpop music festival (mid-June; pinkpop.nl) in nearby Landgraaf.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

A short walk from the train station is the trendy Wyck quarter, home to a cluster of bars, restaurants and the city’s most interesting shopping street, Rechstraat. From here the pretty Sint Servaasbrug leads west over the Maas River to the old town.

The old town and caves

The heart of the old town is busy Markt square, set around the impressive seventeenth-century Stadhuis. South of here are several notable churches, the most affecting being the Onze Lieve Vrouw Basiliek (daily 7.30am–5pm; free) which houses a beautiful Gothic chapel of Our Lady, full of flickering candles.

Continuing south brings you to the ancient city walls and the university quarter, with its pretty cobbled streets, shady squares and affordable cafés. You can explore a series of defensive tunnels beneath the city walls at Casemates (book guided tours in Dutch only €6.40; maastrichtunderground.nl), though far more impressive are the labyrinthine Zonneburg Caves, a short boat ride away (gaslit tours in English at 2pm; €5.90 including boat trip from Maaspromenade 58; maastrichtunderground.nl).

Bonnefantenmuseum

On the east side of the river, the newest part of Maastricht, Céramique, offers a complete contrast to the historic city, and is home to Maastricht's main art gallery, Bonnefantenmuseum, at Avenue Céramique 250 (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; €10; ☎ bonnefanten.nl). Its collection ranges from Old Masters to contemporary artists, but the building itself, designed by Aldo Rossi, with its stunning cupola and monumental stairs, is just as impressive.

ARRIVAL, INFORMATION AND TOURS

Introduction

Norway's extraordinary, postcard-perfect landscapes put the country at the top of any bucket list. Though its high prices will stretch your wallet, the payoff comes in the country's mix of likeable, easy-going cities and magnificent wilderness – during summer, you can hike up a glacier in the morning and thaw out in an urban bar in the evening, watching the sun dip below the horizon for all of half an hour, if at all. Deeper into the countryside, you'll find vast stretches of forests surrounded by distinctive glacier-formed landscapes. And because of Norway's small population, it really is possible to travel for hours in this natural grandeur without seeing a soul.

Beyond Oslo – a pretty and increasingly cosmopolitan capital surrounded by mountains and fjords – the major cities of interest are historic Trondheim, Bergen, on the edge of the fjords, and northern Tromsø. Anyone with even a passing fondness for the great outdoors should head to the western fjords: dip into the region from Bergen or Ålesund, or linger in one of the many quiet waterside towns and villages. Further north, deep in the Arctic Circle, the astounding Lofoten Islands have some of the most striking mountain scenery and clearest waters in Norway. To the north of here, the tourist trail focuses on the long journey to Nordkapp, the northernmost accessible point in Europe; the route leads through Finnmark, one of the last strongholds of the Sámi and their reindeer herds. Tourism reaches its height from late June to August when opening hours are long and activities plentiful; the rest of the year, you'll find many establishments closed unless you're in major towns.

CHRONOLOGY

10,000–2000 BC Seal- and reindeer-hunting tribes move into present-day Norway.

800–1050 AD Norwegian Vikings become a powerful force in Europe.

900 King Harald becomes the first ruler of a united Norway.

1030 The Norwegians adopt Christianity.

1262 Norway increases her empire, colonizing Greenland and Iceland.

1350 Almost two-thirds of the population die during the Black Death.

1396 The Kalmar Union unites Norway with Denmark and Sweden under a single ruler.

1536 Sweden leaves the Kalmar Union, leaving Norway under Danish control.

1814 Norwegian hopes of independence are dashed after Sweden invades and takes control.

1905 Parliament declares independence from Sweden. Haakon VII is crowned the first king of an independent Norway in 525 years.

1911 Explorer Roald Amundsen's expedition is the first to reach the South Pole ahead of the ill-fated Scott expedition.

1913 Norway becomes one of the first countries in the world to give women the vote.

1914 Norway remains neutral during World War I.

1940–45 German forces overrun Norway in sixty days, and it's five years before the country is liberated in May 1945.

1960s The discovery of oil and gas in the North Sea leads to greater economic prosperity.

1981 Gro Harlem Brundtland becomes Norway's first female prime minister.

1994 EU referendum: Norwegians decide not to join the EU.

2005 Prime Minister Kjell Bodevik is defeated in the general elections, and is replaced by Labour candidate Jens Stoltenberg.

2011 Right-wing extremist Anders Breivik kills 77 people and wounds 319 in a combined shooting spree and the bombing of government buildings in Oslo.

2014 A major in the Norwegian army becomes the first woman to command a UN peacekeeping force.

2016 Decline in world oil prices leads to economic retrenchment.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

The four busiest airports for budget travellers are Oslo, Bergen, Trondheim and Stavanger. The main low-cost carrier is Norwegian (norwegian.no), an excellent budget airline serving a wide range of destinations, both direct and indirect. Its main rivals are Ryanair (ryanair.com), SAS (flysas.com) and Widerøe (wideroe.no).

Oslo and Norway's southern coastline can be reached by car ferry from Germany and Denmark by Color Line (colorline.com), DFDS Seaways (dfdsseaways.com) and Fjordline (fjordline.com). Fjordline boats also link Denmark with Bergen and Stavanger.

There are international trains to Oslo from Stockholm and Gothenburg in Sweden and to Trondheim from Östersund. International buses run from various Swedish cities to Oslo (swibus.se), and from northern Finland to northern Norway (eskelisen.fi).

GETTING AROUND

Public transport is very reliable, but in the winter (especially in the north), services can be cut back severely. Regional bus, ferry and train timetables are available at all tourist offices.

There are four main train routes, linking Oslo to Stockholm in the east, to Kristiansand and Stavanger in the southwest, to Bergen in the west and to Trondheim and on to Bodø in the north. The main discount scheme for train tickets is the advance-booking Minipris, which can save you upwards of 50 percent. InterRail and Eurail rail passes are valid in Norway. For train timetables, check nsb.no.

You'll need to use a combination of ferries and buses principally in the western fjords and mainly buses in the far north. Long-distance bus tickets can be expensive, though seats are always guaranteed and tickets are usually bought on board; in addition, the country's principal bus company, Nor-Way Bussekspress (nor-way.no), gives a ten percent discount for online purchases.

Travelling by ferry is one of the real pleasures of a trip to Norway. The Hurtigruten ferry (hurtigruten.co.uk) still retains its traditional role of connecting remote coastal towns, linking Bergen with Kirkenes, on the Russian border in the far north, with ferries running once a day in each direction. Shorter port-to-port trips can be surprisingly economical, especially if you are not obliged to book a cabin (as you are on longer voyages). There are also scores of car ferries, especially in the western fjords, as well as a plethora of Hurtigbåt (express passenger ferries).

If you book in advance and particularly if you are travelling long distances, flying is far quicker and often cheaper than taking a bus; check wideroe.no or norwegian.no for offers.

Norway is a great place for cycling, but be prepared for narrow mountain roads, long distances and many tunnels that are closed to non-motorized traffic. Bike Norway (bike-norway.com) has all the information you need.

ACCOMMODATION

For budget travellers as well as hikers, climbers and skiers, hostels provide the accommodation mainstay; most are run by Norske Vandrerhjem (hihostels.no), but there are some excellent independent hostels too.

Expect to pay 300–400kr for a dorm bed, and 500–700kr for a double room. Sleeping bags are not allowed, but bringing a sleeping bag liner saves paying bed linen costs. The more expensive hostels nearly always include breakfast in the price of the room. HI members get a fifteen percent discount. Some HI hostels close between 11am and 4pm, there's often an 11pm/midnight curfew and most hostels tend to be inconveniently located. Many hostels close altogether during the winter months.

There are around four hundred official campsites around the country (camping.no), plenty of them easily reached by public transport. Expect to pay 150–180kr per night for two people using a tent. Sites also often have cabins (hytter), usually four-bedded affairs with kitchen facilities, with prices ranging between 300 and 750kr. Many campsites come equipped with a guest kitchen, lounge, wi-fi access and sauna. A Camping Card Scandinavia (CCS), available from campsites or online (www.camping.no), gives you numerous discounts. DNT (Norwegian Mountain Touring Club; dnt.no) maintains several hundred mountain huts along popular wilderness routes in Norway's national parks, which range from staffed lodges to unmanned huts

PLANNING YOUR TRIP

Travelling the length of Norway involves serious logistical planning, since each part of the country is covered by its own baffling array of buses and boats. Furthermore, some bus routes are only open in summer. Below are some useful websites to assist you with planning.

• nsb.no Norway train timetables and tickets.

• rutebok.no Compendious route-planner site covering boats, buses, trains and flights.

• nor-way.no National bus company connecting all major cities as far north as Trondheim.

• 177nordland.no Buses and ferries in Nordland, from Trondheim northwards.

• hurtigruten.no Timetables and tickets for Norway's main coastal ferry.

• skyss.no Buses in the western fjords.

• norled.no Boats and buses in the western fjords.

• torghtatten-nord.no Ferries to the Lofoten Islands from the mainland.

with kitchen facilities (pick up the key at the nearest DNT office). You can camp rough in any wild area in Norway as long as you are at least 150m from houses or water sources, and leave no trace.

Hotels are generally pricey, beginning at about 900kr, although rates are linked to demand and vary greatly. Guesthouses (pensjonat or gjestehus) cost around 750kr for a double, and B&Bs (@bbnorway.com) can offer even better value. Finally, in the Lofoten Islands, sjøhus (literally “sea houses”) and rorbuer (converted fishermen’s cabins) can be rented from 500kr per cabin and sleep between two and eight people.

FOOD AND DRINK

Norwegian food is excellent: fish is plentiful, while reindeer steak and elk can be sampled in the north. However, eating well on a tight budget can be difficult. Breakfast (frukost) – bread, cheese, eggs, jam, cold meat and fish buffet, washed down with unlimited tea and coffee – is usually decent at hostels, and very good in hotels. If it isn’t included in the room rate, reckon on an extra 75kr.

Picnic food is the best stand-by, and most supermarkets sell disposable barbecues for spontaneous fry-ups. Fast-food alternatives include kebab and burger joints, pølse (hot dogs) and pizza slices at any Narvesen or 7-Eleven, and sandwiches and cakes at Deli de Luca branches in Oslo, Bergen and Stavanger. Food markets sell smørbrød, huge open sandwiches heaped with a variety of garnishes. In the larger towns, traditional cafés (kaffistovas) serve good-quality Norwegian food at reasonable prices. At lunchtime (lunsj), most restaurants offer a separate lunch menu (mains 150–200kr) or cheaper daily specials (dagens rett), while dinner (middag) can be prohibitively expensive, with mains from 220kr. All large towns have authentic Thai, Chinese and Indian restaurants, which offer cheaper meals than their Norwegian equivalents. Restaurant business hours are usually 11am/noon to 3pm for lunch and 4/6 to 11pm for dinner.

DRINK

The Norwegians have a complicated relationship with alcohol, with the result that booze is both heavily regulated and taxed; alcohol prices are the highest in Europe. Buying from the supermarkets and Vinmonopolet (state-run off-licences) is cheapest: in a bar, beer costs from around 70kr for 500ml. It comes in three strengths: class I is light, class II is what you get in supermarkets, while class III is the strongest and only available at Vinmonopolet. In the cities, bars stay open until at least 1am, if not later; in the smaller towns, they tend to close at 11pm. Look out for the national drink, aquavit, served ice-cold in little glasses; at forty percent ABV, it’s real headache stuff. Outside bars and restaurants, wines and spirits can only be purchased from Vinmonopolet; opening hours are usually Monday–Friday 10am–5/6pm, Saturday 9am–1/3pm. You have to be 18 to buy wine and beer, 20 to buy spirits. No shop will sell you alcohol on a Sunday.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Norwegian people are generally scrupulously polite, helpful and self-deprecating. The famous Nordic reserve is apparent, but usually evaporates under the influence of direct friendliness.

In most restaurants it’s common to round up the bill, whereas in upmarket places a ten percent tip is generally expected. Almost everyone speaks excellent English, even in the most isolated towns.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

Every type of snow-based sport is enjoyed in Norway, but skiing (both cross-country and downhill) is the national winter pastime and is taken very seriously indeed. In the north of the country, dogsledding and snowmobile trips can also help you make the most of the snow, though you pay dearly for the privilege, while sailing and kayaking are great ways to enjoy the western fjord region. The chill, clear waters around the Lofoten Islands are prime snorkelling, diving and whale-watching territory, while Norway's vast national parks are a hiker's dream. There are plentiful hiking and climbing routes, as well as glacier walk excursions, with transport details and maps available from local tourist offices and DNT offices.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most accommodation options offer (usually) free wi-fi access, and most libraries have free internet access for at least 15 minutes at a time. Post office opening hours are Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm, Saturday 10am to 2/3pm. Mobile phone coverage is excellent almost everywhere, and EU citizens will pay minimal or no roaming charges.

EMERGENCIES

Violent crime is extremely rare. Hotels, pharmacies and tourist offices have lists of local doctors and dentists. Norway is not in the EU, but it is in the EEA and reciprocal health agreements mean EU/EEA citizens get free hospital treatment with the appropriate proof of identity.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police ☎112; Ambulance ☎113; Fire ☎110.

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Students and under-26s often get a discount on transport on presentation of an ISIC card or similar. They can also get about thirty percent off most sights and museums and inexpensive meals in some student restaurants.

INFORMATION

Every town has a helpful tourist office (@visitnorway.com). Many book accommodation, some rent out bikes and change money. During the high season – late June to August – they normally open daily for long hours; outside of these months, they mostly adopt shop hours, and many close down altogether in winter. Some cities, such as Oslo, Bergen and Stavanger, also have local DNT offices (Den Norske Turistforening; @dnt.no) which stock hiking maps and information on Norway's national parks.

MONEY AND BANKS

Norway's currency is the krone (kr), divided into 100 øre. Coins come in 50 øre, 1kr, 5kr, 10kr and 20kr denominations; notes are in 50kr, 100kr, 200kr, 500kr and 1000kr denominations, though many retailers aren't keen on the latter. At the time of writing €1 = 9.20kr; £1 = 10.6kr; and US$1 = 8.20kr.

Banking hours are Monday to Friday 8am to 3pm, Thursday till 5pm. Most airports and some train stations have exchange offices, open evenings and weekends. ATMs are commonplace even in the country's villages, and credit and debit cards are accepted pretty much everywhere.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Supermarkets are open Monday to Friday 9am to 9pm and on Saturdays 9am to 6pm. Opening hours for shops are Monday to Wednesday and Friday 10am to 5pm, Thursday 10am to 7pm, Saturday 10am to 2pm. Almost all shops and supermarkets close on Sundays, the main exceptions being newspaper and snack-food kiosks (Narvesen). Most businesses are closed on public holidays: January 1, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter Sunday and Monday, May 1 (Labour Day), Ascension Day (mid-May), May 17 (Norway's National Day), Whit Monday, December 25 and 26.

Oslo

Downtown OSLO is largely the work of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, an era reflected in the wide avenues, dignified parks and gardens, solid buildings and long, classical vistas. Oslo's residents enjoy the trappings of metropolitan life yet live but a stone's throw from dense forest and sandy beaches.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Oslo is graced by a clutch of first-rate museums and sights, a growing number of (admittedly expensive) cafés and restaurants, and a hip bar, clubbing and live music scene, all of which will keep you happily occupied for a few days.

Oslo Cathedral and Stortinget

The cathedral (Domkirke; Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 10am–4pm, Fri 4–6pm; free; @oslodomkirke.no) is located just off Karl Johans gate. Its elegant interior and striking altarpiece are well worth a visit. From here, it's a brief stroll up Karl Johans gate to the Stortinget, the parliament building, an imposing chunk of neo-Romanesque architecture that was completed in 1866. In front of the parliament, a narrow park-piazza flanks

OSLO PASS

Given the average cost of an Oslo museum, if you're planning on much sightseeing, the Oslo Pass can save you a significant amount of money. Available at the tourist office, the pass is valid for 24, 48 or 72 hours and costs 335kr, 490kr or 620kr respectively, with children aged four to fifteen and seniors (67+) charged 170kr, 250kr or 310kr.

National Gallery

City Hall

You can't miss the monolithic brickwork of the massive City Hall or Rådhus (daily, 9am–4pm; free; rft.oslo.kommune.no), near the waterfront, which opened in 1950 to celebrate the city's 900th anniversary. Venture inside to admire an enormous hall decorated with murals by several prominent Norwegian artists – this is where the Nobel Peace Prize is awarded on December 10 each year.

Nobel Peace Center

No visitor to Oslo should miss the Nobel Peace Center (Mid-May to Aug daily 10am–6pm; Sept to mid-May Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 100kr; www.nobelpeacecenter.org), a state-of-the-art interactive museum charting the history of the world's most prestigious prize and the lives and work of its winners. The excellent temporary exhibitions often include shows of modern photography.

Holmenkollen Ski Jump & Museum

At the Ski Jump & Museum (June–Aug daily 9am–8pm; May & Sept daily 10am–5pm; Oct–April daily 10am–4pm; 130kr; holmenkollen.com), the ski-jump tower gives you an exhilarating view of the city and of the ski jump itself, which attracts the world's best ski jumpers during the annual ski festival in March. The absorbing museum immerses you in the 4000-year history of skiing, while the entertaining ski-jump simulator (separate entry fee: 75kr), complete with movement and sound effects, is not for the weak of stomach. Take T-bane line 1 towards Frognerseteren and alight at Holmenkollen.

Oslo Opera House

One of the most striking pieces of architecture in Oslo, the Opera House (foyer Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat 11am–6pm, Sun noon–6pm; free; operaen.no) is all white and blue angles, like the icebergs from which its shape takes its inspiration. Wander up onto its sloped roof, play the musical rods on the roof or by the entrance, or explore the beautiful, light-filled interior. Even if you don't attend one of the ballet or opera performances (tickets 100–1000kr), it's well worth joining an English-language tour (mid-April to Aug daily at 2pm; Sept to mid-April Fri–Sun 2pm; 100kr).

Akershus Castle & Fortress

On the eastern side of the harbour, the thirteenth-century Akershus Fortress (May–Sept daily 8am–9pm; Oct–April Mon–Fri 7am–6pm, Sat & Sun 8am–6pm; free; ☎forsvarsbygg.no), featuring a seventeenth-century Renaissance castle, is particularly worth visiting for the excellent Norwegian Resistance Museum (June–Aug Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 10am–4pm, Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; 50kr; ☎forsvaretsmuseer.no), with its detailed and unbiased treatment of the five years of Norway's occupation by Germany in World War II. It exhibits documents, photos, posters and artefacts in several absorbing displays, and the sections on the Resistance are particularly illuminating.

Folk Museum and Viking Ship Museum

The absorbing Norsk Folkemuseum, at Museumsveien 10 (mid-May to mid-Sept daily 10am–6pm; mid-Sept to mid-May Mon–Fri 11am–3pm, Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; 125kr; ☎norskfolkemuseum.no), combines an extensive collection of nineteenth-century household objects with folk art, lots of wonderful painted wooden furniture, and an open-air display of around 150 buildings from different periods of Norwegian history.

GETTING TO THE BYGDØY PENINSULA

The leafy Bygdøy peninsula is easily reached by passenger ferry from the Rådhusbrygge, behind the Rådhus (pier 3; April–Oct 8am–8.45pm, every 20min; shorter hours outside summer months; 60kr each way on board, 60kr return from the pierside ticket machine). Boats stop first at Dronningen pier (15min from Rådhusbrygge) for the Viking Ship and Folk museums, and then the Bygdøynes piers (20min) for the Kon-Tiki and Fram museums. Alternatively, take bus #30 (every 10–20min), which runs from Oslo S.

Nearby, the Vikingskipshuset (Viking Ships Museum; May–Sept daily 9am–6pm; Oct–April daily 10am–4pm; 80kr; ☎khm.uio.no) houses a trio of ninth-century oak Viking ships, retrieved from ritual burial mounds in southern Norway, with viewing platforms to let you see inside the hulls, as well as beautifully intricate animal head carvings. The star exhibit is the magnificent Oseberg ship.

Kon-Tiki Museum and Fram Museum

No Thor Heyerdahl fan should miss the Kon-Tiki museet (March–May & Sept–Oct daily 10am–5pm; June–Aug daily 9.30am–6pm; Nov–Feb daily 10am–4pm; 100kr; ☎kon-tiki.no), which displays the balsawood raft on which he made his now legendary, utterly eccentric 1947 journey across the Pacific to prove the first Polynesian settlers could have sailed from pre-Inca Peru, alongside accounts of his other journeys and his life's work.

Inside the Frammuseet, next to the Bygdøynes dock (May & Sept daily 10am–5pm; June–Aug daily 9am–6pm; Oct–April daily 10am–4pm; 100kr; ☎framuseum.no), you can clamber aboard the most famous Norwegian ship, the polar vessel Fram; this was the ship originally used by Fridtjof Nansen, explorer-turned-ambassador and Nobel Peace Prize winner, and which later carried Roald Amundsen to Antarctica in 1912, allowing him to beat the ill-fated Robert Falcon Scott to the South Pole. Complete with most of its original fittings, the interior gives a superb insight into the life and times of these early polar explorers.

Munch Museum

The Munchmuseet, Tøyengata 53 (Mid-June to late Sept daily 10am–5pm; late Sept to mid-June daily 10am–4pm; 100kr; ☎munchmuseet.no), is reachable by T-bane – get off at the Tøyen station and it's a signed 5min-walk. Born in 1863, Edvard Munch is Norway's most famous painter. His lithographs and woodcuts are on display here, as well as his early paintings plus a handful of the great signature works of the 1890s. The museum owns one version of The Scream – there are four versions in total. The museum will be closed and moved to the harbourfront near the Opera House (see p.809) by 2020.

Vigeland Sculpture Park

Reachable by tram #12 from the centre (get off at the Vigelandsparken stop), Frogner Park's star feature is the wonderful open-air Vigeland Sculpture Park (daylight hours; free), the remarkable lifetime's achievement of another modern Norwegian artist, Gustav Vigeland. Vigeland started on the sculptures in 1924 and was still working on them when he died in 1943. A long sequence of life-size bronze and granite figures frowning, fighting and playing leads up to the central fountain, an enormous bowl representing the burden of life, supported by straining, sinewy bronze Goliaths, with an intricately carved obelisk towering behind it.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Oslo Gardermoen International Airport is located 45km north of the city centre. From the airport, FlyToget express trains go straight to Oslo S (daily every 10–20min 5am–11.30pm; 180kr one-way, 360kr return; ☎ flytoget.no), as do the cheaper and slower NSB (Norwegian rail) intercity and local trains (hourly, fewer on Sat; 30min; 95kr each way). The Flybussen airport bus (Mon–Fri 5.20am–1am, Sat & Sun 5.30am–1am; every 20–30min; 180kr one-way, 275kr return; ☎ flybussen.no) runs to the bus station, which is attached to Oslo S. Ryanair flights land at Torp airport, some 110km southwest of Oslo; Torp-Ekspressen buses connect arriving flights with Oslo bus terminal (2hr; 240kr one-way, 440kr return; ☎ torpekspressen.no).

By train All trains arrive at Oslo Sentralstasjon (Oslo S), at the eastern end of the city centre.

Destinations Åndalsnes (4 daily, change at Dombås; 5hr 30min); Bergen (3–4 daily; 6hr 50min); Stavanger (4 daily; 8hr); Tønsberg (hourly; 1hr 20min); Trondheim (3 daily; 6hr 40min).

By bus Connected to Oslo S by a pedestrian bridge, the Oslo bus terminal handles long-distance and international buses. The website ☎ rutebok.no has public transport timetables for all the different bus companies and routes. Destinations Bergen (1–2 daily; 9hr 30min); Sogndal (2 daily; 7hr 30min); Stavanger (1–2 daily; 9hr); Trondheim (1–2 daily; 8hr 30min).

By boat DFDS Seaways (☎ dfdsseaways.co.uk) operates car ferries between Copenhagen and Oslo, while Stena Line (☎ stenaline.co.uk) runs car ferries from Fredrikshavn, in Denmark, to Oslo. Ferries dock at the Vippetangen quay, a 15min walk (1200m) from Oslo S – or catch bus #60 marked “Jernbanetorget” (every 20–30min; 8min). Color Line (☎ colorline.co.uk) car ferries from Kiel berth at the Hjortneskaia, some 3km west of the city centre. A connecting bus runs from the quay to Jernbanetorget and then Oslo bus station.

INFORMATION

CITY TOURIST OFFICE

Oslo Visitor Centre Jernbanetorget 1, in the Østbanehallen, a converted former railway station next to Oslo S train station (Sept–May daily 9am–6pm; June–Aug Mon–Sat 8am–8pm & Sun 9am–6pm; ☎ 81 53 05 55, ☎ visitoslo.com). The Oslo Visitor Centre has a full range of information about Oslo and its environs. They issue handy, free city maps marked with tram and principal bus routes and supply free copies of both the thorough Oslo Guide and the listings brochure What's On in Oslo. They also sell public transport tickets, concert tickets and the Oslo Pass (see p.807), as well currency exchange and accommodation reservations.

YOUTH INFORMATION CENTRE

Unginfo (Use-it) Møllergata 3, a brief walk from Oslo S (Mon–Fri 11am–5pm, Sat noon–5pm; ☎ 24 14 98 20, ☎ use-it.no). Oslo's Youth Information Centre provides help and support to young people (26 years and below). They also do a sideline in youth tourism, producing an annual Free Map for Young Travellers, which provides tips and hints and gives a roundup of their favourite bars and clubs, etc – and marks them on a map. They carry all manner of fliers for gigs and concerts as well, plus there's lots more information on their website.

HIKING INFORMATION OFFICE

Den Norske Turistforening (DNT) Storgata 3 (Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Thurs 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎ 22 82 28 00, ☎ dntoslo.no). The Norwegian hiking organization's city-centre office stocks a full range of Norwegian hiking maps, books and equipment. Also sells DNT membership (640kr per annum), which confers substantial discounts at DNT huts.

GETTING AROUND

By tram and bus Trams run on six lines, crossing the centre from east to west. Most bus routes, of which there are many, converge at Oslo S.

By metro The Tunnelbanen (T-bane or metro) has five lines and they share a common slice of track crossing the city centre from Majorstuen in the west to Tøyen in the east, with Jernbanetorget/Oslo S in between.

By passenger boat Numerous local ferries cross the Oslofjord to the south of the centre, connecting the city with its outlying districts and archipelagos; ferries leave from the jetties behind the Rådhus.

Tickets The Oslo conurbation is divided into zones, and the more zones you cross, the higher the fare. However, central Oslo and its immediate surroundings are all in Zone 1, where flat-fare tickets cost 32kr if purchased before the journey, 50kr if purchased from a bus or tram driver. A Zone 1 unlimited 24hr pass (Dagskort) costs 90kr and can be bought at the automatic ticket machines.

ACCOMMODATION

HOSTELS

Anker Hostel Storgata 55 ☎ 22 99 72 00, ankerhostel.no. Enormous, clean and friendly hostel on the edge of the hip Grunerløkka district, attracting an international clientele. Amenities include guest kitchens and a bar. The attached hotel has somewhat better-turned-out rooms for 1000kr. Dorms 260kr, en-suite doubles 700kr

★ Oslo Haraldsheim Vandrerhjem Haraldsheimveien 4, Grefsen ☎ 22 22 29 65, haraldsheim.no. Best of the HI hostels, 4km northeast of the centre, consisting mostly of four-bed dorms, many en-suite. To get there, take tram #17 from outside Oslo S train station, and get off at the Sinsenkrysset stop, from where it's a signed 5min walk. Open all year except Christmas week. Dorms 255kr, doubles 610kr

HOTELS AND GUESTHOUSES

Cochs Pensjonat Parkveien 25 ☎ 23 33 24 00, cochspensjonat.no. Pleasant guesthouse just north of the royal palace, with spartan but well-kept rooms. The least expensive rooms are those with shared facilities – en-suites cost 850kr (single 650kr) and those with a kitchenette 900kr (single 690kr). Breakfasts (42kr extra) are served just along the street at Espresso House. Doubles 720kr

Comfort Hotel Xpress Youngstorget Møllergata 26 ☎ 22 03 11 00, nordicchoicehotels.com. Opened in 2011, and aimed firmly at the youth/clubbing market, this chain hotel in a seven-storey block does its best to create a cool/relaxed vibe, beginning with the striking Pop Art decor in the foyer. There are few formalities at reception – you check in at the electronic kiosks – and the 175 guest rooms beyond (modernism-meets-spartan) are similarly hi-tech. Doubles 650kr

Ellingsens Pensjonat Holtegata 25 ☎ 22 60 03 59, ellingsenspensionat.no. Competitively priced accommodation in a large, well-equipped and attractively decorated late nineteenth-century house on the west side of the city centre, just beyond the Slottsparken. Rooms are spacious and those with en suite cost 990kr. Guests have access to a small garden. Doubles 800kr

Permalen Øvre Slottgate 2 ☎ 24 00 55 00, permalen.no. This hostel-like hotel has two things going for it – a central location and budget prices: a bed in a four- or six-berth room costs just 425kr, a single 685kr. At these rates, it's hardly surprising that the guest rooms are positively frugal, though at least all the doubles and singles are en suite. Popular with the Norwegian military. Doubles 960kr

CAMPSITE

Ekeberg Camping Ekebergveien 65 ☎ 22 19 85 68, www.ekebergcamping.no. Sprawling campsite in a field just 3km southeast of the city centre – and on the east side of the Ekebergparken. Rudimentary but still popular. Take bus #34 from Oslo S – it's a 10min journey. June–Aug. Per tent (sleeping up to 4) 300kr

EATING

For those counting their kroner, Godt Brød, Thorvald Meyersgate 49, is best for freshly baked bread and doorstep sandwiches. You can also buy a bag of freshly cooked prawns from a fishing boat at the Rådhusbrygge pier, or head to the open-air market on Youngstorget (Mon–Sat 7am–2pm).

Kafé Celsius Rådhusgata 19 ☎ kafecelsius.no. Great little café-bar in refurbished old premises off a cobbled square, with a fetching courtyard for sunny days and fresh, light dishes such as chicken salad (190kr). Mon–Fri 11am–11pm, Sat noon–11pm, Sun 11am–11pm.

Kaffistova Rosenkrantz gate 8 ☎ kaffistova.com. Set in a hotel, this self-service café feels a bit like a canteen but serves open sandwiches and traditional Norwegian dishes such as meatballs and reindeer cakes – reckon on 160kr for a main course. Mon–Fri 11am–9pm, Sat & Sun 11am–7pm.

Mucho Mas Thorvalds Meyersgate 36 ☎ muchomas.no. Cute, relaxed bar-restaurant that does a roaring trade in less-than-authentic (but still tasty) Mexican food. The portions are enormous. Mains from 120kr. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–midnight, Fri & Sat noon–3am.

★ Nighthawk Diner Seilduksgata 15 ☎ nighthawkdiner.com. Immensely popular replica 1930s diner, complete with original jukebox. The burgers are not cheap (from 150kr) but are truly excellent; most dishes are organic, and the blueberry milkshakes are to die for. Mon 7am–11pm, Tues & Wed 7am–midnight, Thurs 7am–1am, Fri 7am–2.30am, Sat 10am–2.30am, Sun 10am–11pm; kitchen closes 9pm Mon & Sun, 11pm otherwise.

Punjab Tandoori Grønland 24 ☎ punjabtandoori.no. Superb curries at bargain prices served up at this simple, canteen-style restaurant in Grønland; mains from 70kr. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm, Sun noon–10pm.

Spisestedet Hjelmgate 3 ☎ spisestedet.vpweb.co.uk. A centrally located vegetarian restaurant with a thirty-year reputation; there's an emphasis on organic produce, and dishes are mostly vegan. Meal 50–100kr. Mon–Thurs 2–8pm, Fri 2–7.30pm.

Tim Wendelboe Grünersgata 1 ☎ timwendelboe.no. Run by an award-winning coffee grinder, this café serves high-quality coffee that's slightly above average in price. Mon–Fri 8.30am–6pm, Sat & Sun 11am–5pm.

★Ya Ya's Øvre Vollgate 13 ☎ yayas.no. The som tum (green papaya salad) at this superb Thai restaurant is spicy enough to satisfy the harshest of palates, the red curry is authentic down to the tiny pea aubergines, and the decor (complete with artificial thunderstorm during meal) manages to convince you that you're in a tropical Thai garden. Mains 179kr. Daily 4–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Oslo's hippest cafés and bars can be found in the trendy Grünerløkka area. The capital also has a lively music scene, with everything from local bluegrass bands to metal to clubs featuring top DJs. For entertainment listings, consult Use-It's website (☎ use-it.no) or What's On Oslo, a free, monthly English-language brochure produced by Oslo tourist office.

BARS

Aku-Aku Thorvald Meyersgate 32 ☎ www.akuaku.no. Tiki bar with a South Pacific vibe, great tropical cocktails and a boat strapped to the ceiling that belonged to Thor Heyerdahl, on loan from the Kon-Tiki Museum. Try their signature Chilli Punch. Mon–Thurs 6pm–1am, Fri & Sat 3pm–3am, Sun 3pm–1am.

Bar Boca Thorvald Meyers gate 30. Tiny, friendly 1950s retro bar in Grünerløkka, with great cocktails. Live jazz once or twice weekly. Get there early. Mon–Thurs 2pm–1am, Fri & Sat 2pm–3am, Sun noon–1am.

Café Tekehtopa St Olavs plass 2 ☎ tekehtopa.no. This busy little bar, set within a former pharmacy, draws in a student crowd on account of its quirky environs and wide range of draught and bottled beers. They also serve inexpensive pizzas, salads and omelettes. Mon–Fri 11am–midnight, Sat noon–midnight & Sun noon–10pm.

Mir Toftesgate 69 ☎ lufthavna.no. Popular with local rockers, this adorably oddball bar is tucked away in a courtyard, complete with old aeroplane seats, candlelight and even a book exchange. Live music and other events three or four nights a week. Daily 8pm–1am.

Stratos Youngstorget 2 ☎ stratos.as. Set atop a large Art Deco tower, this inviting summer rooftop bar has great panoramas and even better cocktails served in a cool brickwork setting. Accessible by lift. Late June to mid-Aug Tues–Sat 3pm–3am, Sun 8pm–3am.

Teddy's Soft Bar Brugata 3. A local stalwart, this genuine 1950s US dive bar is a good place to wind down with a beer or a milkshake. Mon–Sat 11am–3am.

CLUBS

Café Mono Pløensgate 4 ☎ cafemono.no. Popular rock 'n' roll bar-club just by Youngstorget. The decor and music are rock-themed; you can often catch local and international bands here. Mon–Sat 11am–3am, Sun 6pm–3am.

Herr Nilsen C.J. Hambros plass 5 ☎ hermilnsen.no. Small and intimate jazz club whose brick walls are decorated with jazz memorabilia. Live jazz – sometimes traditional and bebop – most nights. In a handy, central location too. Daily 2pm–3am.

LIVE MUSIC

★Blå Brenneriveien 9c ☎ blaaslo.no. Cultural nightspot that's rated in the world's top 100 jazz clubs, featuring primarily live jazz, but DJs, salsa and metal nights, public debates and poetry readings too. Open daily, hours dependent on acts; till 3.30am at weekends.

Last Train Karl Johans gate 45 ☎ 22 41 52 93, ☎ lasttrain.no. Premier hard rock club with gritty decor, that hosts great live bands. Mon–Fri 3pm–3.30am, Sat 6pm–3.30am.

Rockefeller Music Hall Torggata 16 ☎ rockefeller.no. One of Oslo's major concert venues, hosting well-known and up-and-coming bands – mostly rock or alternative.

ENTERTAINMENT

Black Box Theatre Stranden 3 ☎ blackbox.no. Cutting-edge alternative dance and theatre at this arty venue in Aker Brygge.

Saga Kino Stortingsgata 28 ☎ nfkino.no. Six-screen cinema showing the latest Hollywood blockbusters and other international films.

SHOPPING

Chillout Markveien 55, Grünerløkka ☎ chillout.no. Excellent travel shop stocking a wide range of guidebooks, maps and travel gear, with a little café serving perk-me-ups to assist with the browsing. Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat 10am–6pm, Sun noon–6pm.

Oslo Sweater Shop Tullins gate 5 ☎ shopatnorway.com. Classic Norwegian sweaters are not known for being affordable, but this shop – the largest selection in the city – frequently has items on sale. Also sells trolls, shoes and bunads (national dress). Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm.

Trabant Vintage Markveien 56 ☎ trabantclothing.com. Pick up vintage and vintage-inspired fashions at this impeccably cool Grünerløkka boutique. Its other branch at Youngstorget 4 specializes in rock-related designs. Mon–Fri noon–6pm, Sat 11am–5pm.

JOTUNHEIMEN NATIONAL PARK

North of Oslo, the 1151-square-kilometre Jotunheimen is the country's largest and most popular national park. Its valleys, lakes and mountains are a veritable playground for hikers and climbers. The park boasts northern Europe's highest peak, Galdhøpiggen (2469m), the Sognefjellet – possibly Norway's most scenic road (and a tough challenge for serious cyclists) – plus numerous trails with DNT staffed huts along many of them. Popular hikes include the precarious Besseggen ridge, which scythes its way between two glacial lakes; the Hurrungane massif, with fabulous views from the summit of Fanaråken (2069m); and Galdhøpiggen, a tough day-hike showcasing some dramatic glaciers. You'll need to equip yourself with Staten kartveer's Jotunheimen Aust and Jotunheimen Vest maps, and Oslo's DNT office (see p.811) can help you with trip planning. Public transport to the park only runs between late June and mid-August, so check schedules in advance.

Southern Norway

Regular trains run from Oslo to the lively harbour town of Stavanger on the south coast. Near Stavanger, the spectacular Lysefjord accounts for some of the most dramatic landscape in this part of the country and features one of Norway's biggest hiking attractions, Preikestolen (Pulpit Rock) – a dramatic clifftop viewpoint overlooking the fjord far below. The region's forests provide ample opportunity for camping and walking, while watersports, sailing in particular, are popular on the many lakes and beaches; and Stavanger has a vibrant harbourside bar and restaurant scene.

STAVANGER

STAVANGER is a breezy and busy fjordside city that has prospered as the hub of Norway's oil industry. The presence of a thriving university gives the town a real buzz, and there's a number of excellent but unpretentious bars that wouldn't be out of place in any of the Scandinavian capitals.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The heart-shaped pond, Breiavatnet, in the middle of the compact town centre is a helpful reference point; the twelfth-century Norman cathedral (June–Aug daily 9am–6pm; Sept–May Mon–Thurs 9am–4pm, Fri 9am–6pm & Sat 11am–4pm; 30kr) is just north of here, and the tapering harbour is visible from the cathedral steps.

Stavanger's delightful old town is just northwest of the cathedral – stroll around the charming cobbled streets or drop into the entertaining Norwegian Canning Museum at Øvre Strandgate 88 (mid-May to mid-Sept daily 10am–4pm; mid-Sept to mid-May Tues–Fri 11am–3pm, Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; 90kr; ☎museumstavanger.no), part of the multi-site Stavanger Museum, which takes you through the twelve-step process of canning fish – a traditional local industry – from the salting to the smoking and packing; freshly smoked sardines are available to taste. Further east along the harbour, the excellent must-see Norwegian Petroleum Museum (June–Aug daily 10am–7pm; Sept–May Mon–Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 10am–6pm; 120kr; ☎norskolje.museum.no) is a slick, well-designed space detailing the history of Norway's most important industry.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Stavanger airport, 15km south of the city, is connected to the bus station by regular flybussen (120kr one-way, 180kr return; ☎flybussen.no).

By train The train station is on Jernbaneveien, facing Breiavatnet, the small and central lake.

Destinations Kristiansand (4–6 daily; 3hr); Oslo (2–4 daily; 8hr).

By bus The bus terminal is right next to the train station. Destinations Bergen (every 1–2hr; 5hr to 5hr 30min); Kristiansand (5 daily; 4hr).

By boat Most domestic ferries from the islands and fjords around Stavanger, including both Hurtigrått passenger express boats and car ferries, dock at the Fiskepiren terminal, a shortish walk northeast of lake Breiavatnet – and about 800m from the train and bus stations.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Opposite the cathedral at Domkirkeplassen 3 (June–Aug daily 9am–8pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–4pm, Sat 9am–2pm; ☎ 51 85 92 00, 🌐 regionstavanger.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Budget accommodation anywhere near the centre is hard to come by; book ahead.

Stavanger Bed and Breakfast Vikedalsgaten 1A ☎ 51 56 25 00, 🌐 stavangerbedandbreakfast.no. This friendly, hostel-like B&B has over 20 simple modern rooms, most with showers and sinks (but shared toilets). Every evening, guests gather in the dining room for the complimentary coffee and waffles – and a very sociable affair it is too. The B&B is in a residential area just 10min walk from the train station. A real snip, even if some of the inter-room walls are paper-thin. Doubles 890kr

Stavanger Camping Mosvangen Henrik Ibsensgate 21 ☎ 51 53 29 71, 🌐 stavangercamping.no. On the south side of lake Mosvatnet, just 3km from the centre – and not far from the nearest HI hostel (see below) – this large and well-equipped campsite has space for tents and caravans as well as a selection of cabins for up to six people. Open May to mid-Sept. Camping/tent (sleeping 2) 280kr, cabins 500kr

Stavanger Vandrøhjem St Svithun Gerd-Ragna Bloch, Thorsensgate 8 ☎ 51 51 26 00, 🌐 hihostels.no. In a modern block attached to the university hospital, this all-year HI hostel has self-catering facilities, a laundry and a café. Most of the rooms are en-suite singles or doubles, but there are 6-bunk dorms with shared facilities. The hostel is located about 2km south of the train/bus station – a 20min walk or take bus #4 or #11 and ask to be put off. Dorms 295kr, doubles 900kr

EATING

★ Bøker og Børst Øvre Holmegate 32 ☎ bokeroogborst.no. Charming café-bar where the decor really does set the tone – from the vintage posters and Oriental bric-a-brac through to the jam-packed bookshelves. There's a pavement terrace at the front and a mini-courtyard at the back. The drinks – both soft and alcoholic – are the main event, but they also sell snacks and there are live gigs here too. Daily 9/10am–2am.

Nero Øvre Holmegate 8 ☎ restaurant-nero.no. Well-turned-out Italian restaurant where they make good use of local ingredients – from rhubarb to cheese and seafood. The menu is creative and imaginative – and a three-course set meal costs 600kr. Tues–Sat 6pm–1am.

STAYING IN A LIGHTHOUSE

The rocks and reefs of the southwest coast between Kristiansand and Stavanger house a string of disused lighthouses, several of which offer simple, hostel-like accommodation for the intrepid traveller. Lighthouse lodging is inexpensive, though you'll have to bring your own food, water and bed linen – if you don't speak Norwegian, the local tourist office can help book the accommodation. Getting there by boat can be both difficult and pricey: most people arrive on their own boats, and scheduled ferries are rare – again, ask the local tourist office who will sail where and at what cost. The number of lighthouses offering accommodation varies from year to year – check 🌐 northsearoad.co.uk and the more detailed 🌐 lighthousesofnorway.com for an up-to-date list.

LIGHTHOUSES OFFERING ACCOMMODATION

Hatholmen Fyr Hatholmen ☎ 95 94 75 82, 📧 mandalkystlag@gmail.com. Out in the Skaggerak, about 15min by boat from Mandal, the stumpy Hatholmen lighthouse perches on a rocky headland with a trio of white-painted houses in its lee. There are 20 beds here, with self-catering facilities, an outside toilet and a cold shower – and they do mean cold. The return boat trip from Mandal costs about 250kr; the tourist office will make the necessary arrangements, or call the boatman on ☎ 90 28 27 62. Late June to late Aug. Per person 200kr Lindesnes Fyr Lindesnes ☎ 38 25 54 20, 🌐 lindesnesfyr.no. At Norway's most southerly point, on a knobbly, lichen-stained headland that's accessible by car, the old lighthouse keeper's cottage has been modernized to house an apartment sleeping six. There's a couch for two in the living room and a first-floor bedroom for a maximum of four, plus a shower, toilet and kitchen – and superb views out to sea. The most dramatic time to visit is during bad weather: the headland is exposed to ferocious storms, when the warm westerly currents of the Skagerrak meet cold easterly winds. Apartment 1200kr

Ryvingen Fyr Ryvingen ☎ 97 77 93 50, 🌐 www.ryvingensvenner.no. There's been a lighthouse way out in the Skagerrak on the rocky islet of Ryvingen since 1867. The present lighthouse, a sturdy red and white structure, is glued to a large shank of rock with the churning ocean down below. Nearby, the old lighthouse keeper's quarters have been pleasantly modernized with eight cheerful rooms (19 beds) and an outside toilet, but no showers. Late June to late Aug. Several boat owners will make the 45min journey from Mandal, near Kristiansand, for a round trip price of about 600kr: ring Knut Joseland (☎ 90 17 44 21) or ask the nearest tourist office to make the necessary arrangements. Per person 400kr

PREIKESTOLEN (PULPIT ROCK)

The region's biggest highlight, Pulpit Rock is responsible for one of Norway's most arresting images: people balancing precariously on the edge of the sheer cliff with a 604m drop into Lysefjord below. To get there from Stavanger, take the ferry east from the Fiskepiren terminal to Tau (every 40min–1hr; 40min; passengers 52kr; ☎ norled.no), from where there are connecting buses (mid-March to mid-May 4 daily; mid-May to mid-Sept every 40min to 1hr; 35min; 175kr return) to the Preikestolen car park). From the car park, it's a four-hour hike there and back to Preikestolen along a clearly marked trail. The first half of the hike is steep in parts and paved with uneven stones, while the second half – over bedrock – is a good bit easier. The change in elevation is 350m and you should take food and water; the hike is not feasible in winter unless you really know what you are doing; sturdy footwear is essential.

Thai Cuisine Kirkegata 41 ☎ thaicuisine.no. Sociable and very popular restaurant in trim modern premises that serves the best Thai food in Stavanger. The menu, which covers all the classics and then some, has main courses from around 260kr. Mon–Fri 11am–11pm, Sat noon–11pm & Sun 2–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

★ Café Sting Valberget 3 ☎ cafesting.no. Next to the Valbergtårnet watchtower, this laidback café-bar attracts a youthful, vaguely arty crew. The food is filling and inexpensive, there's a pleasant albeit small pavement terrace, and the place doubles as an art gallery and live music venue. Mon–Wed 11am–midnight, Thurs–Sat 11am–1am, Sun 1pm–midnight.

Cardinal Skagen 21 ☎ cardinal.no. One of the best pubs in town with a dark and antique interior, a long wooden bar and a first-rate range of ales, both in bottle and on draught. Rammed at the weekend – quite rightly so. Sun–Thurs 3pm–1.30am, Fri & Sat noon–1.30am.

Taket Natklub Nedre Strandgate 13 ☎ 51 84 37 01, ☎ herlige-stavanger.no. The best club in town, strong on house music with great cocktails too; don't be surprised if you have to queue. It's located a few metres west of Torget. Wed–Sun midnight–3.30am.

Norway's longest and deepest. North of the Sognefjord, Nordfjord is the smaller and less stimulating, though there's superb compensation in the Jostedalbreen glacier (Europe's largest), which nudges the fjord from the east. The tiny S-shaped Geirangerfjord, further north again, is magnificent too – narrow, sheer and rugged.

BERGEN

Norway's first capital, BERGEN is now the second-biggest city in Norway, but somehow doesn't feel like it – its centre is relaxed and easygoing, its cobbled streets a pleasure to explore. It's one of the rainiest places in rainy Norway, but benefits from a lovely setting among seven hills, and is altogether one of the country's most enjoyable cities, with a lively student scene.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

There's plenty to see in Bergen, from fine old buildings to a series of good museums. The city is also in the heart of fjord country, within easy reach of some of Norway's most stunning scenic attractions.

Torget and Bryggen

The obvious place to start a visit is Torget, an appealing harbourside plaza that's home to the best fish market in the country. From here, it's a short stroll round to Bryggen, where a string of distinctive, brightly painted wooden buildings (a UNESCO protected site) lines the waterfront. These once housed the city's merchants and now hold shops,

Bergen and the fjords

The fjords are the most familiar and alluring image of Norway – huge forested clefts in the landscape which dwarf the large ferries that travel along them. Bergen is a handy springboard for the fjords, notably the Flåm valley and its inspiring mountain railway, which trundles down to the Aurlandsfjord, a tiny arm of the mighty Sognefjord – restaurants and bars. Although most of the original structures were destroyed by fire in 1702, they carefully follow the original Hanseatic German design. Among them, the Hanseatic Museum (May–Sept daily 9am–5pm; Oct–April Tues–Sat 11am–2pm, Sun 11am–4pm; 100kr; www.museumvest.no), an early eighteenth-century merchant's dwelling kitted out in late Hansa style, is the most diverting.

Nearby, the Bryggens Museum (mid-May to Aug daily 10am–4pm; Sept to mid-May Mon–Fri 11am–5pm, Sat noon–3pm, Sun noon–4pm; 80kr; www.bymuseet.no) features a series of imaginative exhibitions that attempt to re-create local medieval life.

KODE 3

The pick of Bergen's art museums is the KODE 3, Rasmus Meyers Allé 7 (Rasmus Meyer Samlinger; daily 11am–5pm; mid-Sept to mid-May closed Mon; 100kr; www.kodebergen.no), which displays an extensive collection of Norwegian paintings spanning the eighteenth to early twentieth centuries and including several prime works by Edvard Munch and beautiful landscapes by Thomas Fearnley and J.C. Dahl.

Aquarium and VilVite

Bergen's other attractions include a large Aquarium at Nordnessbakken 4 (daily 9am–7pm May–Aug; Sept–April 10am–6pm; 250kr; www.akvariet.no), featuring a shark tunnel and fish and sea mammals from around the world. For hands-on fun, it's well worth heading to VilVite at Thormøhlensgate 51 (late June to mid-Aug daily 10am–5pm, mid-Aug to late June Tues–Fri 9am–3pm, Sat & Sun

LOFTY VIEWS

If it's not raining, take a ride on the Floibanen, a funicular railway (every 15min: Mon–Fri 7.30am–11pm/midnight, Sat 8am–11pm/midnight, Sun 9am–11pm/midnight; 45kr each way), which runs to the top of Mount Fløyen (320m), from where there are incredible panoramic views over the city and the fjord beyond. For even wider views, take the shuttle bus from Torget (May–Sept 9am–6pm) to the Ulriksbanen cable car (100kr one-way, 160kr return), which takes you up Mount Ulriken (620m). From here, you can hike the well-marked trail to the top of Mount Fløyen and come back down on the funicular.

10am–5pm; 175kr. Children 135kr; viltvite.no), an interactive science museum where you can defy gravity by riding a bicycle upside down.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Bergen's airport, 20km south of the city, is connected to the bus station by regular flybussen (45min; 100kr each way; flybussen.no), which stops at Torget, the main bus and train stations and the Radisson SAS Royal Hotel.

By train The train station faces Strømgaten, a 10min walk southeast of the head of the harbour.

Destinations Myrdal/Flåm (3–4 daily; 2hr/3hr); Oslo (3–4 daily; 6hr 30min).

By bus The bus station is adjacent to the train station.

Destinations Ålesund (1 daily; 9hr 30min); Oslo (express 3 weekly, 9hr; otherwise 1–3 daily, 11hr); Stavanger (every 1–2hr; 5hr); Trondheim (1 daily; 14hr 20min).

By boat International ferries and cruise ships arrive at Skoltegrunnskaia quay on the northeast tip of the harbour; domestic ferries and catamarans (skyss.no) line up on the opposite side of the harbour at the Strandkaierterminalen. A bus (5pm daily; 50kr) runs to the Hurtigruten ferry terminal near Nøstebryggen, a 25min walk from the Radisson SAS Royal Hotel.

Destinations Norled (norled.no) operates a Hurtigbåt high-speed ferry to Balestrand (May–Sept 1–2 daily; 4hr); and Flåm (May–Sept; 1 daily; 5hr 30min). The Hurtigruten coastal ferry heads north to Ålesund (12hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Torget (May & Sept daily 9am–8pm; June–Aug daily 8.30am–10pm; Oct–April Mon–Sat 9am–4pm; 55.55.20.00, visitbergen.com). Issues maps and the excellent Bergen Guide booklet; books Norway in a Nutshell tours and other trips; and sells the very worthwhile Bergen Card (240kr/24hr, 310kr/48hr), which allows travel on all the city's buses and free entrance to (or discounts for) most of the city's sights, including sightseeing trips.

Hiking information The Bergen Turlag DNT office at Tverrgaten 4–6 (Mon–Wed & Fri 10am–4pm, Thurs 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–2pm; 55.33.58.10, bergen.oghordalandturlag.no) can advise on hiking trails and mountain huts in western Norway and also sells hiking maps.

ACCOMMODATION

Book ahead in summer, especially if you want to stay in the town centre.

BERGEN'S FESTIVALS

Bergen International Festival (fib.no)

Twelve days of music, ballet, folklore and drama in May/June.

Borealis (borealisfestival.no) A big music festival in late March, celebrating all genres of music.

Octoberfestival Beer-related festivities at Bergen's version of Oktoberfest.

FLÅM VALLEY

One of the most spectacular attractions in the region is the Flåmsbana, a remarkable railway line that plummets 866m from the village of Myrdal down the verdant Flåm valley to the Aurlandsfjord. The track is one of the steepest anywhere in the world, making a wondrously dramatic journey.

Flåm

The village of FLÅM, the train's destination, lies alongside meadows and orchards on the Aurlandsfjord, a matchstick-thin branch of the Sognefjord. There are some excellent opportunities for both kayaking and hiking: hikers can get off the train at Berekvam station, the halfway point, and stroll down from there. Flåm itself is a tiny village that has been developed for tourism to within an inch of its life, but out of season – or on summer evenings, when the day-trippers have gone – it can be a pleasantly restful place.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train To get to Flåm, take a train from Bergen to Myrdal, where you change for the Flåmsbana; the round trip takes the whole day and you can combine the Flåmsbana with a fjord cruise on the "Norway in a Nutshell" excursion (see box, p.820).

Information The tourist office (April–Oct daily 9am–6pm; Oct–March Thurs–Sat 9am–3pm; ☎ 95 43 04 14, sognefjord.no), by the train station, can book ferry tickets and provide information on local hikes.

EATING AND ACCOMMODATION

You can pick up groceries at the Coop behind the tourist office or grab a large helping of Norwegian staples at the dockside café (mains 150kr).

Flåmsbrygga flamsbrygga.no. Metres from the train station, this recent addition to the Flåm scene boasts a bar built in the style of a Viking long hall. The architecture may be strange, but it serves excellent beer made in the on-site Ægir microbrewery. Daily 11am–5pm, later in summer.

NORWAY IN A NUTSHELL

If you're short of time, Norway in a Nutshell is the prime offering of Fjord Tours (📞fjordtours.com), who specialize in coordinating tours of the fjord country, using either Bergen or Oslo as the starting/finishing point. These range from day-trips to the Flåm valley, Sognefjord and Hardangerfjord to multi-day excursions up and down the coast. Guides are not provided; Norway In a Nutshell simply saves you the trouble of trying to coordinate the complex local boat and bus timetables by booking the relevant transport for you. Pick up the tickets at the train station or the Bergen tourist office using the reference number provided.

Flåm Camping og Vandrerhjem 📞94 03 26 81, 🌐flaam-camping.no. This large, excellent campsite across the river from the train station also has sparkling hostel facilities. March to Oct. Camping/person 220kr, dorms 290kr, doubles 850kr

SOGNEFJORD AND JOSTEDALSBREEN

With the exception of Flåm, the southern shore of the Sognefjord remains sparsely populated and relatively inaccessible, whereas the north shore boasts a couple of very appealing villages. Pretty Balestrand makes an ideal base for excursions to the breathtaking Jostedalbreen glacier.

VISITING THE JOSTEDALSBREEN GLACIER

The Jostedalbreen glacier is a vast ice plateau that dominates the whole of the inner Nordfjord region. The glacier's many arms – or nodules – melt down into the nearby valleys, giving the local rivers and glacial lakes their distinctive blue-green colour. The glacier is protected within the Jostedalbreen Nasjonalpark, and it's possible to organize glacier walks on Nigardsbreen, its longest arm, with Jostedalen Breførarlag, based in Jostedal village (June–Sept; from 550kr; 🌐bfl.no). Walks range from two-hour excursions to all-day, fully equipped hikes. If you just want to see the glacier, it's possible to do so on a day-trip from Bergen (the ferry from Balestrand to Fjærland – Norway's book town – from where the bus takes you to the glacier, is timed to meet the boat from Bergen), though an overnight stay in Balestrand is highly recommended. Along the way, the bus makes a stop at the diverting Glacier Museum (April, May, Sept & Oct 10am–4pm; June–Aug 9am–7pm; 120kr; 🌐bre.museum.no), which features an interesting panoramic film on the glacier and climate change.

Balestrand

A particularly pretty place to base yourself, scenic BALESTRAND has been a tourist destination since the mid-nineteenth century. The beauty of the fjord aside, there is little to see in town apart from the quaint little stave church of St Olaf, though Fjærland and Jostedalbreen (see box below) are within easy striking distance; daily excursions from Balestrand will take you to the village, glacier museum and glacier itself for around 750kr.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses from Bergen (via Vadheim) and Flåm (via Sogndal) arrive at Balestrand's minuscule harbourfront.

Destinations Bergen (3 daily; 4–6hr); Oslo (3 daily; 8hr 10min–8hr 50min).

By boat Boats from Bergen and Flåm arrive at the small dock just north of the Kviknes hotel.

Destinations Aurland (May–Sept 1–2 daily; 1hr 45min); Bergen (May–Sept 2 daily; 4hr); Flåm for passengers (May–Sept 1–2 daily; 2hr); Flåm via Dragsvik and Vangsnes for vehicles (every 40min–1hr; 30min).

Tourist office At the harbourfront (mid-June to mid-Aug Mon–Sat 7.30am–6pm; mid-Aug to mid-June Mon–Fri 10am–5.30pm; 📞57 69 12 55, 🌐sognefjord.no); it provides a map of hikes around the village.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Cider House Sjøtunsvegen 32, 🌐ciderhuset.no. Summertime-only restaurant specializing in innovative local dishes with a Turkish influence made from organic produce and home-made cider. Give the white scallops with caviar appetizer (100kr), or manti, Turkish dumpling main (205kr), a try. Late June to late Aug daily 4–10pm.

Kafé Me Snakkast Holmen 13. A simply furnished café with an outdoor terrace, just behind the tourist office. They serve inexpensive local dishes, such as salads (from 80kr) and soups, plus cakes, ice cream and wine. June–Aug daily 10am–10pm, Sept–May Fri 10.30am–6pm, Sat 10.30am–4pm.

Sjötun Camping Sjøtunsvegen 1 ☎95 06 72 61, sjotun.com. This fully equipped campsite is a 10min walk along the shoreline road. June to mid-Sept only. Camping/person 40kr plus per tent 130kr, two-person cabins 300kr

ÅLESUND

An overnight ferry ride from Bergen, the fishing and ferry port of ÅLESUND, which many Norwegians consider to be the best place to live in the country, is immediately – and quite obviously – different from any other Norwegian town. In 1904, a disastrous fire destroyed the town centre, which was then speedily rebuilt largely in the German Jugendstil (Art Nouveau) style, though with original Norwegian touches, such as the recurring dragon motif. The finest buildings are concentrated on the main street, Kongensgate, and around the slender, central harbour and the Brosundet. The excellent Jugendstil Art Nouveau Centre (June–Aug 10am–5pm; Sept–May Tues–Sun 11am–4pm; 80kr; jugendstilsenteret.no) tells the story of Art Nouveau and the rebuilding of the city through the entertaining visual “From Ashes to Art Nouveau” exhibition.

Not to be missed is the vast Atlantic Ocean Park (June–Aug Mon–Fri & Sun 10am–7pm, Sat till 4pm; Sept–May Tues–Sun 11am–4pm; 180kr; atlanterhavsparken.no), 3km from the town centre. As one of the best aquariums in Norway, it provides a comprehensive introduction to the North Atlantic undersea world.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Ålesund's airport is located on Vigra island just outside of town. Flybussen (100kr single, 150kr return; 25min) are timed to correspond with flight arrivals and departures.

Destinations Bergen (3 daily; 45min); Oslo (up to 10 daily; 55min); Trondheim (2 daily; 40min).

By bus The town's bus station is by the waterfront on Sjøgata, a few metres south of the town harbour, Brosundet.

Destinations Åndalsnes (2 daily; 2hr 20min); Bergen (at least 2 daily; 7hr); Trondheim (2–3 daily; 7hr 30min).

By boat The Hurtigruten ferry docks just north of the tourist office by the harbour.

Destinations Hurtigruten ferry once daily to: Bergen (13hr); Geiranger (mid-April to mid-Sept; 3hr 45min); Trondheim (mid-April to mid-Sept, 23hr; mid-Sept to mid-April, 15hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office On the harbourside at Skateflukaia 1 (June–Aug daily 8.30am–6pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–4pm; ☎70 15 76 00, visitalesund-geiranger.com), this tourist office hands out a free walking tour booklet covering Ålesund's architectural high points.

ACCOMMODATION

Ålesund Vandrerhjem Parkgata 14 ☎70 11 58 30, hihostels.no. Central HI hostel in a creaky but clean old building, with self-catering facilities. Dorms 300kr, doubles 750kr

EATING AND DRINKING

Anno Apotekergata 9 ☎anno.no. Sleek bar, with atmospheric lighting, hardwood floors and leather banquettes, plus an outside terrace. Mon–Thurs 11am–11pm, Fri & Sat 11am–3am, Sun 1–8pm.

Lyspunktet Kipervikgata 1 ☎lyspunktet.as. Modern café with a massive chandelier and generous coffees. Big slouchy sofas, tacos (135kr), burgers (175kr) and imaginative meaty dishes at low prices. Mon noon–5pm, Tues–Fri 10am–10pm, Sat noon–5pm, Sun noon–6pm.

Maki Brosundet Hotel, Apotekergata 5 ☎brosundet.no. Immaculate, intimate restaurant, with harbour views and an always excellent, locally sourced menu. Mains average around 300kr. Mon–Sat 6–11pm.

GEIRANGERFJORD

Inland from Ålesund lies the S-shaped Geirangerfjord, one of the region's smallest and most breathtaking fjords. It cuts deeply inland, before terminating at the small village of Geiranger, which is invaded daily by cruise-ship passengers in summer. Many impressive waterfalls can be seen throughout the fjord, and the sheer cliffs rising on either side dwarf the cruise ships passing through.

It's best to approach the Geirangerfjord by bus from the north, if you can, as the views are prettiest from this direction. From Åndalsnes (see below), the nerve-racking hairpin bends of the wonderfully scenic Trollstigen Highway climb through some of the country's highest mountains before sweeping down to the tiny Norddalsfjord. From here, it's a quick ferry ride and dramatic journey along the Ørnevegen, the Eagle's Highway, for a first view of the Geirangerfjord.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The twice-daily bus only runs between Geiranger and Åndalsnes from late June to August (timetables on rutebok.no; 3hr).

By boat In the summer, an enjoyable alternative to taking the bus, with fantastic views, is to take the Hurtigruten ferry from Ålesund (June–Aug; 4hr each way); the same ferry heads back to Ålesund at 1.30pm.

ÅNDALSNES

Whether you're coming from the south via the dramatic Trollstigen, or from Oslo by train (via Dombås) on the incredible Rauma line, arriving in ÅNDALSNES is nothing short of spectacular. Its magnificent setting amid lofty peaks and looking-glass water makes for a good day hike up a mountain overlooking the town.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is located at Jernbanegata 1. Destinations Dombås (2 daily; 1hr 40min); Oslo (4 daily via Dombås; 5hr 30min–6hr).

By bus Buses arrive to the same complex as the train station.

Destinations Ålesund (2–3 daily; 2hr 10min); Geiranger (mid-June to Aug; daily at 8.20am, also Mon–Fri & Sun at 5.15pm, Sat at 3.45pm; 3hr 10min).

Tourist office Next to the train station (July–Aug Mon–Fri 8am–4pm, Sat & Sun 8am–2pm, Sept–June Mon–Fri 9am–3pm; ☎ 71 22 16 22, visitandalsnes.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Åndalsnes Hostel Setnes ☎ 71 22 13 82, hihostels.no. Located 1.5km outside of town, the HI-affiliated hostel is a great place to stay overnight. The bus to and from Geiranger stops right outside. Dorms 345kr, doubles 860kr

Central and Northern Norway

The long, thin counties of Trøndelag and Nordland mark the transition from pastoral southern to blustery northern Norway. Trondheim, Trøndelag's appealing main town, is easily accessible from Oslo by train. In Nordland, you reach the Arctic Circle, beyond which the land becomes ever more spectacular, not least on the exquisite, mountainous Lofoten Islands. Further north still, the provinces of Tromsø and Finnmark appeal to those who appreciate untamed, severe natural beauty, with the lively university town of Tromsø the obvious stopping (and jumping-off) point. As for Finnmark, many visitors head straight for Nordkapp, from where the midnight sun is visible between early May and the end of July, while those interested in Sámi culture go east towards Finland and the Sámi town of Karasjok.

TRONDHEIM

TRONDHEIM, a loveable and atmospheric city with much of its partly pedestrianized nineteenth-century centre still intact, has been an important Norwegian power base for centuries, its success guaranteed by the excellence of its harbour. The early Norse parliament, or Ting, met here, and the city was once a major pilgrimage centre.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Easy-going Trondheim possesses a marvellous cathedral and several low-key sights, as well as a clutch of good restaurants, cafés and popular student bars.

Nidaros Cathedral and Archbishop's Palace

The colossal Nidaros Cathedral – Scandinavia's largest medieval building, gloriously restored following the ravages of the Reformation and several fires – remains the focal point of the city centre (May Mon–Fri 9am–3pm, Sat 9am–2pm, Sun 1–4pm; June–Aug Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–2pm, Sun 1–5pm; Sept–April Mon–Sat 9am–2pm, Sun 1–4pm; cathedral 90kr, tower 40kr; ☎nidarosdomen.no). Taking Trondheim's former name (Nidaros means “mouth of the River Nid”), the cathedral is dedicated to King Olav, Norway's first Christian ruler, who was buried here. Now it is the traditional burial place of Norwegian royalty and the place of coronation for Norwegian monarchs. Highlights of the interior include the Gothic choir with its pointed arches.

Behind the cathedral lies the heavily restored twelfth-century Archbishop's Palace, home to the Norway Crown Regalia (May Mon–Sat 10am–3pm, Sun noon–4pm; June–Aug Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–3pm, Sun noon–4pm; Sept–April Tues–Fri 10am–1pm, Sat 10am–2pm, Sun noon–4pm; 90kr; combined ticket with cathedral and palace museum 180kr) – the crowns, sceptres and ermine ceremonial robes are presented in an atmospheric cellar. Another wing of the palace houses the absorbing Army and Resistance Museum (May–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–4pm & Sun noon–4pm; free). Its most interesting section is on the top floor and details the German occupation of World War II.

Torvet

Torvet is the main city square, a spacious open area anchored by a statue of the Viking Olav Trygvason, perched on a stone pillar. The broad and pleasant avenues of Trondheim's centre that radiate out from here were laid out in the late seventeenth century.

Rockheim

Down on the harbourfront, in a recycled warehouse, Rockheim (Home of Rock; Tues–Sun 10am–6pm 120kr; ☎rockheim.no) is a gallant attempt to make a museum out of popular music. Some exhibits are for listening, others for playing, and there's a “wall of sound” too – where you can stand on a dated circle and see clips of Norway's most popular bands of yesteryear. It's all really rather enjoyable, and you can try to get to grips with one of Norway's specialities too, Black Metal, with a whole room devoted to this genre of music – insert a tape (yes, a tape) and hear those guitars shriek with the likes of Mayhem, Darkthrone and Gorgoroth.

Munkholmen

If you have an extra day in Trondheim, and the weather's fine, squeeze in a day-trip by ferry (daily: late May 10am–4pm & late Aug to early Sept 11am–4pm hourly on the hour; June to mid-Aug 10am–6pm every 30min; 90kr return) to the “Monk's Island” from the harbour. This lovely island with a great beach has a rich history: it was originally the town's execution grounds, but later housed a monastery, which then became a prison and finally a customs house before becoming the recreation spot that it is today.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The city's train terminal, Sentralstasjon, is on the northern edge of the centre, a 10min walk from the main square, Torvet.

Destinations Bodø (2 daily; 10hr); Oslo (4 daily via Dombås, Lillehammer and Oslo Gardermoen airport; 6hr 30min–7hr 45min); Stockholm (2 daily; 12hr).

By bus The bus terminal, Rutebilstasjon, is next to the train station.

Destinations Ålesund (1–2 daily; 7hr); Bergen (1 daily; 14hr); Oslo (1–3 daily; 8hr 30min).

By boat The all-year Kystekspresen (☎kystekspresen.no) passenger express boat from Kristiansund (1–3 daily; 3hr 15min) docks at the Pirterminalen, 5min walk north of the train/bus stations. The quay for the Hurtigruten coastal boat is near the Pirterminalen, another 300m or so to the north.

Destinations Hurtigruten to Ålesund (daily at 10pm; 14hr); Bodø (daily at noon; 24hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office On the first floor of Nordre gate 11 (mid-June to mid-Aug daily 9am–6pm; mid-Aug to mid-June reduced hours; ☎73 80 76 60, ☎visittrondheim.no).

ACCOMMODATION

City Living Schøller Hotel Dronningens gate 26 ☎73 87 08 00, ☎cityliving.no. Independent, economy hotel in the heart of the city. Fifty simple rooms spread over three floors. Competitively priced, but no breakfast. Doubles 800kr

★ Pensjonat Jarlen Kongens gate 40 73 51 32 18, jarlen.no. Friendly central guesthouse, each of its rooms, bar the single, has a gleaming bathroom, a kitchenette, a comfortable armchair and free wi-fi. Doubles 690kr

Singsaker Sommerhotell Rogertsgata 1 73 89 31 00, sommerhotell.singsaker.no. Charming summer-only hotel/hostel with a nice courtyard a short walk or bus ride on bus #63 from the centre. Mid-June to mid-Aug. Doubles 780kr

Trondheim Vandrerhjem Weidemannsveien 41 73 87 44 50, trondheimvandrerhjem.no. Completely razed and rebuilt in 2013, this modern building calls to mind something of a designer hospital, but the dorms are spacious and only sleep 4–5. A 20min, 2km hike east from the centre, or to save your legs, take any bus up Innherredsveien and ask the driver to let you off as close as possible. Open all year. Dorms 330kr, doubles 625kr

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Baklandet Skydsstasjon Øvre Bakklandet 33 skydsstasjon.no. Serves up tasty traditional dishes and is particularly famous for its bacalao (dried salted cod); mains from 250kr. Daily: June–Aug 10am–1am; Sept–May 11am–1am.

Bar Passiar Dokkparken 4 dokkhuset.no. Managing to straddle that fine line between trendy and pretentious, this high-ceilinged spot is the pick of the bars along the Nedre Elvehavn dockside strip, not least for its roof terrace. Mon–Thurs 3–11.30pm, Fri 3pm–2.30am, Sat noon–2.30am.

Bare Blåbær Innherredsveien 16, Nedre Elvehavn barebb.no. Run by the same folks who operate the nearby Bar Passiar (see above), this fast-moving café-restaurant offers excellent-value stone-baked pizzas (from 100kr), which make it very popular with a youthful clientele. A separate area better known as Bær & Bar has house and electro DJs spinning till late. Mon–Thurs 11am–1.30am, Fri & Sat 11am–2.30am, Sun 11am–1.30am.

Café 3B Brattørgata 3B cafe3b.no. Rock'n'roll and indie club-cum-bar, where you can drink well into the wee hours. One of the grooviest places in town. Daily 6pm–2.30am.

Café Ni Muser Bispegata 9A nimuser.no. Fashionable café occupying an older building that might be glum but for the modern art on the walls (for sale) and the terrace out the back. Features a creative menu that emphasizes local, seasonal ingredients – try the simply wonderful creamy cauliflower soup (145kr) or the vegetarian lasagne (165kr). Daily 11am–11pm.

BODØ

North of Trondheim, it's a long, 730km haul beyond the Arctic Circle to BODØ, literally the end of the line: this is where all trains and some long-distance buses from the south terminate. The nine-hour train trip is a rattling good journey, with the scenery becoming wilder and bleaker the further north you go. Bodø is also a stop on the Hurtigruten coastal boat route and the main port of departure for the Lofoten Islands.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is on Jernbaneveien at the northeast edge of the city centre, immediately next to the ferry terminal. Most days, it's possible to get off a night train from Trondheim and catch a ferry to the Lofoten Islands straight away (see opposite), or take a bus north to Narvik via Fauske (2 daily; 6hr 30min).

Destinations Fauske (2 daily; 40min); Oslo (2 daily, change at Trondheim; 17hr); Trondheim (2 daily; 9hr 40min).

By bus The station for long-distance Nor-Way Bussekspress buses is located at the Sentrumsterminalen, at the far end of Sjøgata.

Destinations Ålesund (3–4 daily; 7hr); Bergen (1 daily; 14hr).

Tourist office In the centre at Tollbugata 13 (mid-June to late Aug Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 10am–6pm & Sun 10am–6pm; late Aug to mid-June Mon–Fri 9am–3.30pm; 75 54 80 00, visitbodo.com). They give out information on connections to the Lofoten Islands, rent out bikes and also issue a detailed town and district guide.

ACCOMMODATION

Bodøsjøen Camping Båstøveien 1 75 56 36 80, bodocamp.no. This year-round fjordside campsite is roughly 3km southeast of the centre, not far from the Bodin kirke. Flanked by a ridge of evergreens and spread over a somewhat bleak-looking field is a set of cabins of various shapes and sizes, the smallest just a single small room with two beds. Camping/tent 260kr, cabins 250kr

Bodø Vandrerhjem Sjøgata 57 75 50 80 48, hihostels.no. All-year, HI-hostel with 71 bunk beds in 23 rooms – from singles to an 8-bunk dorm. The rooms are neat and trim in a frugal sort of way, and there are self-catering facilities, a common room and a laundry. Handily located in a three-storey, red-brick block next to the train station. Dorms 325kr, doubles 840kr

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Bryggerikaia Sjøgata 1 bryggerikaia.no. Attractive and modern café/restaurant, where you can pop in for a coffee or a beer or sample some excellent seafood with mains from around 200kr. The verandah offers harbour views, and look out for their special buffet deals. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm, Sun noon–11pm.

Løvdals Kafé Tollbugata 9. A quayside spot with a traditional and inexpensive Norwegian menu of canteen-style dishes featuring local ingredients. Mains around 120kr. Mon–Fri 9am–6pm & Sat 9am–3pm.

LOFOTEN ISLANDS

A skeletal curve of mountainous rock stretched out across the Norwegian Sea, the Lofoten Islands rise dramatically out of the clear waters as you approach from the mainland. Snow-covered mountains loom behind trim little fishing villages with cod drying on traditional wooden racks. Life moves (much) more slowly up here, but there's plenty to keep an active traveller occupied: the islands are perfect for rambling, cycling, sea kayaking, sailing, diving, snorkelling and even whale watching – to say nothing of the cross-country ski opportunities come wintertime. The weather is exceptionally mild, and there's plentiful accommodation (lofoten.info) in rorbuer (originally fishermen's huts), hostels and campsites.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Among several airports, you can fly to the Lofoten Islands from Bodø and Tromsø with Widerøe (wideroe.no).

By bus Lofotenekspressen (☎ 177, 177nordland.no) provides the main bus service from the mainland to the Lofoten, leaving Narvik twice daily for Svolvær via a series of bridges (2 daily; 4hr), then arriving at Å roughly four hours later.

By boat The Hurtigruten calls at two ports in the Lofoten Islands, Stamsund and Svolvær (daily from Bodø, 4/6hr; daily from Tromsø, 17/19hr). In addition, the southern Lofoten car ferry (thn.no) leaves Bodø for Moskenes, Værøy and Røst (1–2 daily; 3hr 30min/5hr 15min/7hr 15min; 196kr per person), while the Nordlandexpressen Hurtigbåt passenger express boat (thn.no) links Bodø with Svolvær (1 daily; 3hr 30min–3hr 45min).

Austvågøy

Austvågøy is the largest and northernmost island of the Lofoten group, with SVOLVÆR its main town and transport hub. Svolvær is home to the excellent War Museum, Fiskergata 12 (June–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–10pm, Sun noon–3pm; Oct–May by appointment; 80kr; lofotenkrigmus.no), comprising a well-presented collection of rare World War II objects that chronicle the British commando raids on Lofoten.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By boat The Hurtigbåt passenger express boat from Bodø (see p.824) docks in the centre of Svolvær, as does the Hurtigruten (see p.804).

By bus The Svolvær bus station is located just in front of the Hurtigruten dock.

Destinations Å (4 daily; 3hr 30min); Narvik (2 daily; 3hr 30min); Sortland (1–4 daily; 2hr 30min).

Tourist office The busy tourist office is on Torget, the main square, near the harbour (March to mid-Oct Mon–Fri 9am–3.30pm; mid-Oct to Feb Mon–Fri 8.15–11.15am & 12.15–3.30pm; mid-May to early Sept also Sat 10am–2pm; early June to early Aug also Sun 10am–9pm; ☎ 76 07 05 75, lofoten.info); they have maps, accommodation lists and public transport details for all the Lofoten Islands.

ACCOMMODATION

Lofoten Rorbuer Jektveien 10, Svolvær ☎ 91 59 54 50, lofoten-rorbuer.no. There are eighteen modest rooms, some with bunk beds, at this long-established place on the Marinepollen lagoon. A few of the rooms share a kitchen and/or a bathroom, while others have self-contained kitchenettes. About 1km north of town along the E10. Doubles 800kr

Svinøya Rorbuer Gunnar Bergsvei 2, Svinøya ☎ 76 06 99 30, svinoaya.no. At the northeast end of town, a causeway crosses over to the long and slender island of Svinøya, which is home to this well-appointed set of rorbuer. They range from the plain and simple to the deluxe. Doubles 1100kr

EATING

★ Børsen Spiseri Svinøya Rorbuer, Gunnar Bergsvei 2, Svinøya ☎ 76 06 99 30, svinoaya.no. Lofoten's most atmospheric restaurant, in a gorgeous old waterfront building, adorned with maritime paraphernalia. Its speciality is stockfish (bacalao), but whatever you order will be skilfully and delicately prepared. Reservations recommended. Daily 6–10pm; closed Mon–Wed in winter.

★ Du Verden Torget 15, Svolvær ☎ 76 07 09 75, duverden.no. On the central square, this place aspires to cover a lot of bases – seafood, pizza, pasta, sushi – and just about succeeds. The food is always attractively presented and the place is generally heaving. Mains average 240kr. Kitchen: Mon–Sat 11am–10pm & Sun 1–10pm; bar till 11pm, 2.30am on Fri & Sat.

Vestvågøy: Stamsund

The next large island to the southwest, Vestvågøy, is the one that really captivates many travellers, due in no small part to the atmospheric village of STAMSUND, whose older buildings are strung along a rocky, fretted seashore. The scenery on this island is truly spectacular, and hikers are rewarded with stunning views.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The island's airport is located 15km west of Stamsund, in the dull administrative centre of Leknes.

Destinations Bodø (8 daily; 25min).

By bus Regular buses run between Stamsund and Leknes, from where you can catch another bus to Å or Svolvær. Buses arrive at the lot alongside the Hurtigruten quay.

Destinations Leknes (6 daily; 30min).

By boat The Hurtigruten (see p.804) calls here on its way north from Bodø and south from Tromsø.

Destinations Honningsvåg (41hr); Svolvær (2hr); Tromsø (19hr).

24

Skjærbrygga Hjelkskjæret ☎ 76 05 46 00, ☎ skjærbrygga.no. This restaurant and bar is located right by Stamsund's harbour in an old and attractively renovated sjøhus. The menu is strong on seafood with mains going for around 250kr. June–Sept daily noon–midnight, kitchen till 10pm; check website for hours at other times of the year.

Stamsund Vandrerhjem Hartvågen 13 ☎ 76 08 93 34, ☎ hihostels.no. This popular and relaxing hostel comprises several rorbuer and a bright yellow sjøhus, all perched on the edge of a bonny little bay. You can rent bikes here (100kr/day) and there are self-catering facilities. About 1.2km north of Stamsund's harbour. March to mid-Oct. Dorms 160kr, doubles 460kr

Flakstadøya and Moskenesøya

By any standard, two of the more southerly Lofoten Islands, Flakstadøya and Moskenesøya, are extraordinarily beautiful, their rearing peaks crimping a sea-shredded coastline and studded with a string of fishing villages. Remarkably, the E10 road travels along almost all of this dramatic shoreline, by way of tunnels and bridges, to MOSKENES, the ferry port midway between Bodø and the remote, southernmost islands of Værøy and Røst.

The delightful village of Å, a huddle of old houses on stilts wedged in tight between the grey-green mountains and the surging sea, is located at the end of the E10 road, 6km south of Moskenes. Highlights in town include the

Norwegian Fishing Village Museum (June to late Aug daily 9am–7pm; late Aug to May Mon–Fri 10am–5pm; 80kr; ☎ museumnord.no), a collection of buildings devoted to traditional trades, such as the 1844 bakery which still bakes amazing cinnamon buns (see below).

Å is also home to the excellent

Tørrfiskmuseum (Stockfish Museum; June to late Aug daily 9am–7pm; late Aug to May Mon–Fri 10am–5pm; 50kr; ☎ lofoten-info.no), a great museum on stockfish, the air-dried fish that served as the staple diet of most Norwegians well into the twentieth century. It's presided over by a gregarious curator who will tell you more than you ever wanted to know about the history of this very typical Norwegian foodstuff.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The Lofoten Ekspressen (☎ 177nordland.com) runs the length of the E10, stopping at most destinations between Narvik and Å.

Destinations Moskenes (6 daily; 10min); Narvik (1–2 daily; 8hr 15min); Svolvær (1–2 daily; 3hr 45min).

By boat Ferries sail between Bodø and Moskenes, 5km from Å. Buses don't always coincide with sailings to and from Moskenes though, so if you're heading from the ferry port to Å, you may have to walk the fairly easy 5km or take an expensive taxi.

Destinations Bodø (2–3 daily; 4hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Å-Hamna Rorbuer & Vandrerhjem Å i Lofoten Å ☎ 76 09 12 11, ☎ hihostels.no. In the centre of Å, by the waterside, this appealing HI hostel has an assortment of smart one- to eight-bedded rorbuer. Also offers equally smart, hotel-standard rooms in the adjacent sjøhus. Open year round. Dorms 260kr, doubles 540kr

Gammelgården Bakery Å In the Norwegian Fishing Village Museum. Built in the 1880s, this good-looking, late nineteenth-century building, with its gabled slate roof, started out as a lodging house for seasonal fishermen. Today, it's Lofoten's best bakery, cooking excellent cinnamon buns in a vintage oven (15kr). Mid-June to mid-Aug daily 9am–5pm.

Hotel Smaken av Lofoten Å ☎ 76 09 21 00, ☎ smakenavlofoten.no. In the centre of Å, down by the harbour, this collection of buildings features rorbuer of various shapes and sizes. Some of the nicest are extremely comfortable and the pick have period furnishings; others have shared facilities. Doubles 1200kr

TROMSØ

Friendly TROMSØ, the “gateway to the arctic”, is the de facto capital of northern Norway. Set on an island, connected to the mainland by bridge and tunnel, and surrounded by dramatic mountains and craggy shoreline, it offers easy access to a multitude of winter and summer activities.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

TROMSØ has two cathedrals, a clutch of interesting museums and a lively nightlife, patronized by its significant student population.

Domkirke and the Polar Museum

In the centre of town, you can't miss the striking woodwork of the Domkirke. From the church, it's a short walk north along the harbourfront to one of the most diverting museums in the city, the Polar Museum, Søndre Tollbodgate 11 (daily: mid-June to mid-Aug 10am–7pm; mid-Aug to mid-June 11am–5pm; 60kr; @polarmuseum.no), whose varied displays include skeletons retrieved from the permafrost of Svalbard and accounts of expeditions by polar explorers Fridtjof Nansen and Roald Amundsen.

Polaria

Also on the waterfront, Polaria, Hjalmar Johansens gate 12 (daily: mid-May to Aug 10am–7pm; Sept to mid-May noon–5pm; @polaria.no; 125kr), the city's star attraction, draws coach-loads of tourists to see the 3pm feeding of the bearded seals. This state-of-the-art aquarium combines its tanks of

ART IN TROMSØ

Tromsø has a couple of excellent free art museums. The Art Museum of Northern Norway, Sjøgata 1 (daily 10am–4pm), focuses on landscape paintings by northern Norwegian artists, as well as modern sculpture and photography exhibitions, while Perspektivet, Storgata 95 (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm), stages cutting-edge photography exhibitions, the most recent including “In Cod we Trust”.

cold-water fish with a walk-through seal tunnel, displays about the region's fragile ecosystem and a stunning panoramic film on Svalbard.

Arctic Cathedral

Across the long Tromsø Bridge from the centre, the white, pointy, ultramodern Ishavskatedralen (mid-May to late May daily 3–6pm; June to mid-Aug Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 1–7pm; mid-Aug to May daily 3–6pm; 40kr; midnight sun concerts in summer 140kr; @ishavskatedralen.no) is outstanding, its shape inspired by the Hoja mountain near Tromsø. It's made up of eleven immense triangular concrete sections representing the eleven Apostles left after the betrayal, with a stunning stained-glass window.

Tromsø Museum

This excellent anthropological and geological museum (June–Aug daily 9am–6pm, Sept–May Mon–Fri 10am–4.30pm, Sat noon–3pm, Sun 11am–4pm; 60kr; @visittromso.no) should not be missed by anyone with an interest in all things northern. Apart from the excellent displays on both traditional and modern Sámi culture, complete with ceremonial objects, traditional dress and household implements, downstairs you can learn about the Aurora Borealis phenomenon – how it works – as well as create your own. Take bus #37 from the centre.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS AND THE MIDNIGHT SUN

Tromsø's northerly location but relatively mild climate has made it one of the most popular spots in the world from which to view the Northern Lights, or Aurora Borealis, which are seen here regularly between November and April. Caused by solar winds as they hit the Earth's atmosphere, they light up the sky in shimmering waves of blue, yellow and green – a spectacle of celestial proportions.

In the summertime there's an entirely different Arctic phenomenon to behold: the midnight sun. In Tromsø you're so far north that the sun never actually dips beneath the horizon. Head for Fjellheisen, a cable car that runs to the top of Mount Storsteinen (take bus #26; mid-May to mid-Aug daily 10am–1am; mid-Aug to mid-May daily 10am–10pm; 170kr) between May 18 and July 25 around midnight, and you'll see the sun, hovering over the horizon in the west, setting the sky spectacularly aglow.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Long-distance buses arrive at and depart from the Prostneset, metres from the tourist office.

Destinations Alta (1 daily; 6hr 30min); Honningsvåg (3 daily; 3hr 20min); Narvik (3–5 daily; 4hr 15min).

By boat The Hurtigruten coastal boat docks in the centre of town at the foot of Kirkegata.

Destinations Honningsvåg (daily at 6.30pm; 17hr); Svolvær (daily at 1.30am; 17hr 30min).

Tourist office Kirkegate 2, near the Domkirke (mid-May to Aug Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; Sept to mid-May Mon–Fri 9am–4pm, Sat 10am–4pm; ☎ 77 61 00 00, ☉ visittroms.no); produces a comprehensive Tromsø guide.

ACCOMMODATION

Ami Skolegata 24 ☎ 77 62 10 00, ☉ amihotel.no. In an old wooden villa on the hillside behind the town centre, this few-frills guesthouse-cum-hotel has twenty-odd simple rooms, both en-suite and with shared facilities. One bonus is the wide views over the city centre. Doubles 1100kr

Tromsø Camping Elvestrandvegen ☎ 77 63 80 37, ☉ tromsocamping.no. Reasonably handy waterside site, about 2km east of the cathedral, on the mainland side of the main bridge, with 55 modern and “rustic” cabins. Open year-round. Take bus #20 or #24. Camping/tent (sleeping 2) 300kr, cabins 700kr

Viking Hotel Grønnegeta 18 ☎ 77 64 77 30, ☉ vikinghotell.no. The 24 bright and modern rooms at this breezy guesthouse are appealing. They also have several contemporary apartment-style rooms with kitchenettes and large living spaces. Centrally located near the Mack Brewery. 1000kr

EATING

You can buy freshly caught cooked prawns straight off the boats at the Stortorget pier, and at weekdays a Thai food stall on Stortorget sells succulent spicy chicken and pork skewers (25kr).

Kafé Globus Storgata 30 ☉ globuskafe.no. Popular Eritrean café with a global menu that includes pitas, salads, Moroccan meat dishes and injera – a large, sponge-like pancake topped with mounds of spicy beef curry, lentils and wilted spinach (175kr). Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat 11am–5pm.

Thai House Storgata 22 ☉ thaihouse.no. Decent Thai cooking – if a little hit and miss – with the welcome inclusion of some excellent fish and vegetable dishes; mains from 220kr. Daily 3–11pm.

Verdensteatret Storgata 93b ☉ verdensteatret.no. Popular café-bar housed in Norway's oldest movie theatre that attracts an arty young crowd with its cheap lunch food, drinks, independent film screenings and pumping DJ nights. Mon–Thurs 11am–2am, Fri & Sat 11am–3.30am, Sun 1pm–2am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Blå Rock Café Strandgata 14. Definitely the place to go for loud – that's very loud – rock music. Also features regular live acts, plus the best burgers in town – try the amazing blue-cheese Astroburger. They serve several dozen beers, most priced at around 70kr. Mon–Thurs 11.30am–2am, Fri & Sat 11.30am–3.30am, Sun 1pm–2am.

Ølhallen Pub Storgata 4 ☉ olhallen.no. With its cosy cellar decor and winning location (attached to the Mack Brewery), the city's favourite pub serves a full range of microbrews (70kr/pint). Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 9am–6pm.

Studentsamfunnet Driv Storgata 6 ☉ driv.no. This large, ambitious and artsy hangout never wants for its share of barflies. In part of the Mack Brewery, it holds four bars and three stages, which together cater for every musical taste, including DJ nights, live concerts and disco. Come early to get a seat. Mon–Thurs noon–1.30am, Fri & Sat noon–3am.

FINNMARK, MAGERØYA AND NORDKAPP

Beyond Tromsø, the northern tip of Norway, FINNMARK, enjoys no less than two and a half months of permanent daylight either side of the summer solstice. Here, the bleak and treeless island of Magerøya is connected to the northern edge of the mainland by an ambitious combination of tunnels and bridges, and the prime target on the island is Nordkapp – the North Cape.

TREAT YOURSELF

Emma's Drømmekjokken Kirkegata 8 ☉ emmasdrommekjokken.no. “Emma's Dream Kitchen” serves sublime locally sourced fare from Arctic char to reindeer at prices to match. At the downstairs café, Emma's Under, prices are slightly lower but the dishes, such as whale steak in peppercorn sauce or grilled fish, are just as delicious. Lunch mains from 190kr. Downstairs: Mon–Fri 11am–10pm, Sat noon–10pm; Upstairs: Mon–Sat 6–10pm.

Alta

A modest north Norwegian town, ALTA's primary claim to fame is the most extensive area of prehistoric rock carvings in northern Europe, which are impressive enough to have been designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The settlement is also the obvious place to overnight if you're heading from Tromsø to the far north, since there's a direct bus to Nordkapp (May–Sept 1–2 daily; 4hr 20min).

Alta's prehistoric rock carvings form part of the Alta Museum, Altaveien 19 (May to mid-June daily 8am–5pm; mid-June to Aug daily 8am–8pm; Sept–April Mon–Fri 8am–3pm, Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; May–Sept 105kr, Oct–April 70kr; alta.museum.no). The museum itself has displays of prehistoric rock art and exhibits on the social history behind these carvings, touching upon the role of religion and commerce in the region. A limited local bus service – bybussen – runs from the main Alta bus station south to the borough of Bossekop and the museum (Mon–Fri every 15–30min; Sat & Sun hourly; 7min).

Count on at least an hour to view the carvings, Helleristningene i Hjemmeluft, and appreciate the site, which is accessed along the E6. The carvings extend down the hill from the museum to the fjordside along a clear and easy-to-follow footpath and boardwalk that stretches for just under 3km. On the trail, there are a dozen or so vantage points offering close-up views of the carvings, recognizable though highly stylized representations of boats, animals and people picked out in red pigment.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Long-distance buses arrive at the tourist office in the centre of Alta.

Destinations Honningsvåg (1–2 daily; 4hr); Karasjok (2 weekly; 3hr 30min); Nordkapp (May–Sept 1–2 daily; 4hr 20min); Tromsø (1 daily; 6hr 30min).

Tourist office The main branch is located at Bjørn Wirkolas vei 11, in the same building as the bus terminal (June & Aug daily 9am–6pm; July daily 9am–8pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–3.30pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎ 99 10 00 22, visalta.no). It issues free town maps, will advise on hiking the Finnmarksvidda and help with finding accommodation.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Alta River Camping ☎ 78 43 43 53, alta-river-camping.no. This well-equipped site is set on a large green riverside plot, with tent spaces as well as hotel-style rooms and cabins, some of which have en-suite baths, plus a sauna right on the water. Located about 5km out of town along Highway 93. Open year-round. Camping/tent 190kr, doubles 600kr, cabins 500kr

Bårstua Gjestehus Kongleveien 2a ☎ 78 43 33 33, baarstua.no. The most appealing of Alta's several guesthouses, this is located just off the E6 on the north side of town. The eight large rooms are pleasant enough, all with kitchenettes. 800kr

Du Verden Matbar Markedsgata 21 ☎ duverden.no/alta. In the centre of Alta, this friendly restaurant has a menu covering all the Norwegian basics – the king crab (460kr) and the grilled stock fish (375kr) come especially recommended. Mon–Sat 10am–11.30pm & Sun 1–10.30pm.

Honningsvåg

The fishing village of HONNINGSVÅG, Magerøya's only significant settlement and a place that claims to be the most northerly "city" in the world, is your last port of call before Nordkapp – the North Cape – just 34km away.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Widerøe (wideroe.no) operates flights from Tromsø to Honningsvåg airport.

Destinations Tromsø (1–3 daily; 1hr 30min).

By bus Buses from the mainland, including the long-distance Nordkappexpressen, pull into the bus station at the southern end of the village.

Destinations Alta (1–3 daily; 4hr); Nordkapp (mid-May to mid-Aug 3 daily; mid-Aug to mid-Sept 2 daily; 45min).

By boat Hurtigruten coastal boats dock at the jetty, adjacent to the bus station, with northbound boats arriving at 11.45am and departing 3.15pm; southbound, the boats don't overlay here, arriving at 6am and departing 15min later; the northbound service is met by special Nordkapp excursion buses – details on board.

Destinations Tromsø (1 daily; 18hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Arctico Icebar Sjøgata 1 ☎ articoicebar.com. Opened a decade ago by two Spaniards, this large storage freezer

THE SÁMI IN NORWAY

Norway's original inhabitants, the Sámi, have survived as reindeer herders in the north of the country for thousands of years. Though their traditions and culture were long under threat by the Norwegian state, today's Sámi are very much alive and kicking; they have their own independence day, their own flag and even their own parliament in the town of Karasjok. A detour to Karasjok, linked by twice-daily buses from Alta, is particularly worthwhile, and you can take a guided tour of the Sámi Parliament, Kautokeinoveien 50 (late June to mid-Aug hourly from 8.30am–2.30pm; mid-Aug to late June Mon–Fri 1pm; free), visit the Sámi National Museum, Mari Boine geaidnu 17 (June–Aug daily 9am–3pm; Sept–May Tues–Fri 9am–3pm; 75kr), with its displays of traditional clothing, tools and art by contemporary Sámi artists, or take a more light-hearted look at Sámi culture at the Sápmi Park, Porsangerveien (daily: Jan–May 10am–2pm; June to mid-Aug 9am–7pm; mid-Aug to late Aug 9am–4pm; Sept Mon–Fri 9am–4pm; 150kr; visitsapmi.no), an excellent high-tech theme park. A great place to stay is the Engholm's Design Lodge (engholm.no), a collection of rustic cabins 6km south of Karasjok along the Rv92, which doubles as the town's HI hostel and arranges husky safaris in winter; hearty meals are available too.

offers a wintertime Arctic experience in the spring- and summertime ice bar. 140kr entrance, which includes two (non-alcoholic) drinks. April to mid-Oct daily 9am–9pm.

Corner Fiskerveien 2 corner.no. This modern bistro serves fresh seafood (as you would expect) – try the sautéed herb-baked king crab symphony (125kr) – but also does good burgers and stews, and even whale steak (229kr). Daily 10am–11pm (kitchen closes 9pm).

Nordkapp Camping Skipsfjorden ☎78 47 33 77, nordkappcamping.no. Set outside Honningsvåg on the road to Nordkapp, this is a good bet for camping out in the middle of nowhere. Camping/tent (sleeping 2) 260kr, doubles 700kr, cabins 600kr, bungalows 1200kr

Scandic Nordkapp Skipsfjord ☎78 47 72 60, scandichotels.com. In a solitary location just off the E69 about 9km from Honningsvåg, this is the largest hotel on Magerøya, with nearly 300 rooms. The rooms are fine, if a little frugal, and there is a canteen-style restaurant. It's popular with groups bound to and from Nordkapp. June–Sept. Doubles 1300kr

Nordkapp

While the 307m-high cliff known as Nordkapp isn't actually the northernmost point of mainland Europe (that honour belongs to Knivskjellodden, reached along an 18km signposted track from Highway E69), it is as far north as you can get by public transport. It's a hassle to reach, but there is something exhilarating about this bleak, wind-battered promontory, bespeckled with grazing reindeer. It is the only viewpoint in Norway that you have to pay to visit, though officially you're paying to enter the blight on the landscape that is Nordkapphallen (North Cape Hall; daily: early to mid-May & Sept to mid-Oct 11am–3pm; mid-May to Aug 11am–1am; mid-Oct to April 12.30–2pm; 260kr), a flashy tourist centre that contains Europe's northernmost (and possibly its most expensive) souvenir shop, café, restaurant, bar, panoramic movie theatre, chapel and post office.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Regular buses run between Honningsvåg and Nordkapp.

Destinations Alta (1–3 daily; 4hr); Honningsvåg (May–Sept 4–6 daily; 45min).

Introduction

Poland has long been a nation steeped in tradition and history, although the past twenty-five years have witnessed such dizzying economic development that the country is starting to feel more and more like the rest of Europe. Still, beneath the gleaming surface lies a culture firmly rooted in hospitality, community values and national pride, while reminders of the country's turbulent past are everywhere. Poland is also a land of considerable natural beauty, whose idyllic lakes, beaches and mountains provide a nice contrast to the urban buzz of the cities.

The capital Warsaw is a fascinating hybrid, its historic centre rubbing up against neighbourhoods of communist-era grey, glittering modern office blocks and energetic pockets of vibrant nightlife. Kraków, the ancient royal capital in the south, is the real crowd-puller, rivalling the elegance of Prague and Vienna, while Gdańsk in the north offers an insight into Poland's turbulent history as well as its Baltic-riviera beach life. In the west, Wrocław charms visitors with its stately architecture and buzzy student life, while Poznań offers a mixture of historical attractions and urban diversions that is quintessentially Polish. The Tatra Mountains on the Slovak border offer exhilarating hiking and affordable skiing.

CHRONOLOGY

966 AD Mieszko I unites Slav tribes to create the Polish state.

1025 Bolesław I, Mieszko's son, is crowned the first King of Poland.

1300s Gdańsk and several other northern cities join the Hanseatic League, and trade prospers.

1386 Polish queen Jadwiga marries Lithuanian Grand Duke Jogaila, creating a dynastic union between the two countries.

1410 Polish-Lithuanian forces defeat the Teutonic Knights at the Battle of Grunwald.

1500s The Renaissance sweeps through Poland-Lithuania, giving it significant cultural importance in Europe.

1700s Russia, Prussia and Austria divide Poland-Lithuania between them in the Three Partitions.

1863 The January Uprising against Russian authority is brutally repressed.

1918 An independent Polish state is created following the collapse of German, Russian and Austro-Hungarian empires.

1939 Poland is invaded by Nazi Germany, beginning World War II.

1945 By the end of the war more than six million Poles are dead. Soviets drive out the Nazis and occupy large parts of Poland; the country's borders shift 200km west.

1947 Polish communists win fixed elections.

1978 Karol Wojtyła, Archbishop of Kraków, is elected Pope, taking the name John Paul II.

1980 A strike in Gdańsk, led by Lech Wałęsa, leads to the formation of Solidarity, a free trade union.

1981 Communist leaders attempt to stamp out Solidarity by declaring martial law.

1990 Wałęsa becomes the first popularly elected president of Poland.

2004 Poland accedes to the EU.

2010 A plane carrying conservative President Lech Kaczyński and over 90 dignitaries crashes near Smolensk, Russia, killing everyone on board.

2015 Elections give the nationalist and anti-liberal PiS ("Law and Justice") party a majority in the Polish parliament.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Several budget airlines fly into Warsaw, Kraków, Gdańsk, Wrocław and Poznań.

Poland has rail connections with all its neighbouring countries. Several direct trains arrive daily in both Kraków and Warsaw from Prague, Budapest and Vienna, while Poznań, Wrocław and Warsaw all have regular connections to Germany.

Eurolines (eurolines.pl) provide bus services from all major European capitals to Warsaw, Kraków, Gdańsk and other Polish cities. In addition, Polski Bus (polskibus.com) runs to Poland from Berlin, Vienna and Prague; while Tiger Express (@tigerexpress.eu) operates minibuses from Brno, Vienna and Prague to Kraków and Wrocław. On the southern border, there are daily buses to Zakopane from the Slovakian resort of Poprad.

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

The Polish railway companies operate many different types of train. International passes such as Eurail and InterRail are valid for all of them, although supplements are charged on the fastest services. If you are buying individual-journey tickets, however, beware that tickets valid for one type of service are rarely valid for another.

Biggest of the rail companies is PKP Intercity, which runs Express InterCity Premium (EIC Premium) using extra-fast pendolino trains, Express InterCity (EIC), InterCity (IC) and TLK trains. EIC Premium, EIC and IC trains run on key routes (such as Warsaw–Kraków or Warsaw–Gdańsk, and Warsaw–Poznań) and only stop at major cities. They're the fastest, most comfortable but also most expensive means of getting around, and seat reservations (miejscówka; 10–12.50zł) are compulsory. TLK are slightly slower than express trains but are around fifty percent cheaper than travelling by EIC Premium or EIC.

The Przewozy Regionalne company is responsible for running Regio and InterRegio services; Regio are usually local services that travel at snail-like speeds and stop at every wayside halt; InterRegio are faster, longer-distance trains that frequently link important cities. To complicate matters further, Koleje Mazowieckie operates local trains in Warsaw and central Poland, while the Warsaw Municipal Transport company (ZKM) operates commuter trains in and around the capital.

The main city stations are generally termed główny; departures (odjazdy) are printed on yellow posters; arrivals (przychydy) on white; peron means platform. You can check times and ticket prices on the PKP timetable online (rozkład-pkp.pl).

BY BUS

It's in rural districts not served by the railway network that buses come into their own, although a growing number of bus companies are offering inter-city routes that provide a viable alternative to rail travel.

BY BIKE

Poland's predominantly flat landscape is a tempting place for cyclists. There are repair shops in many cities and you can transport bikes on most trains. Note, however, that due to poor roads and dangerous driving, Poland is one of Europe's leading nations for traffic fatalities.

ACCOMMODATION

Backpacker-friendly hostels proliferate in all major cities. They generally offer excellent service, with free wi-fi and laundry, for around 45zł per bed; many also offer private doubles too. There's a small but growing choice of apartments and B&Bs in the cities, and family-run pensions in rural resorts. Prices in these categories hover around 120–180zł for a double room.

Polish campsites are often a fair distance out of town and are not always much cheaper than a hostel dorm bed (20–40zł). Though some sites have excellent facilities, in others you'll find a toilet and little else. For a list of campsites in Poland, check eurocampings.co.uk/poland.

FOOD AND DRINK

Poles are passionate about their food, and their cuisine is an intriguing mix of Slavic and Central European influences. While often wonderfully flavoursome and nutritious, it does live up to its reputation for heaviness. Meals generally start with soups, the most popular of which are barszcz (beetroot broth) and zurek (a sour soup of fermented rye). The basis of most main courses is fried or grilled meat, such as kotlet schabowy (breaded pork chops). Two inexpensive specialities (10–15zł) you'll find everywhere are bigos (sauerkraut stewed with a variety of meats) and pierogi, dumplings stuffed with cottage cheese (ruskie), meat (z mięsem), or cabbage and mushrooms (z kapustą i grzybami). The national snack is the zapiekanka, a baguette topped with mushrooms, melted cheese and tomato sauce. There are a few veggie cafés for vegetarians sick of cabbage, including the Green Way chain.

Restaurants stay open until 9 or 10pm, later in city centres, and prices are lower than in Western Europe: in most places outside of Warsaw and Kraków you can have a two-course meal with a drink for 40zł. The cheapest option is the local milk bar (bar mleczny; usually open from breakfast until 6 or 7pm), which provides fast and filling meals for workers, students and anyone else looking for affordable Polish food.

DRINK

The Poles can't compete with their Czech neighbours when it comes to beer (piwo), but a growing range of microbreweries is beginning to challenge the bland national brands. Even in Warsaw, you won't pay more than 12zł for a half-litre. Tea (herbata) and coffee (kawa) are both popular; the former comes with lemon rather than milk. But it's vodka (wódka), ideally served neat and cold, which is the national drink (see box, p.842).

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

As a nation in which around 75 percent of people are practising Roman Catholics, Poland maintains fairly conservative religious and social customs, especially in the countryside. Poland's young, urban population tend to be both more relaxed and wilder than their parents. Yet Poles of all ages are also warm, passionate people, fond of handshakes and of lively, informal conversation over a vodka. Table manners follow the Western norm and it is common to reward good service with a tip (either by leaving ten percent or by rounding up the bill to the nearest convenient figure).

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

The most popular sport is football, and the national and top league teams often attract sell-out crowds. Poles are enthusiastic cyclists and the pavements of Warsaw and Kraków are increasingly full of them. For most hikers, the highlight of Poland is the Tatra Mountains in the south, though the country's 23 national parks offer plenty of opportunities for beautiful walks and horseriding.

Watersports are concentrated around Sopot in the north and Mazury in the northeast, while the skiing season (Nov–Feb) brings tourists flocking to southern mountain resorts like Zakopane.

COMMUNICATIONS

Free wi-fi is ubiquitous, and available in city-centre hotspots, bars, cafés, hostels, hotels and trains. A few internet cafés still exist here and there, charging 4–6zł per hour. Main post offices (Poczta) are usually open Monday to Saturday 8am to 8pm; branches close earlier. For public phones you'll need a card (karta telefoniczna), available at post offices and RUCH newsagent kiosks.

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

The major cities offer tourist cards (available for one day or longer) that give discounts on transport and at the main sights. Your ISIC card can halve entry prices for museums and city transport, especially in Warsaw, and cut inter-city train fares by a third. A Hostelling International card gives up to 25 percent off at HI-affiliated hostels.

🌐 poland.travel/en The official tourist website with general details on Poland's major sights and visa information.

🌐 thenews.pl Polish radio's English-language service, focusing on national news and current events.

🌐 culture.pl News and essays on Polish cultural events and history.

🌐 inyourpocket.com Reliable source of restaurant and bar listings in the big cities.

EMERGENCIES

Poland is a very safe country to travel in, though inevitably thefts from dorms and pickpocketing do occur. Safely store your valuables whenever possible and, on night trains, lock your compartment when you sleep. Polish police (policia) are courteous but unlikely to speak English. Medical care can be basic and most foreigners rely on the expensive private medical centres run by Medicover (☎ 500 900 500, 🌐 medicover.pl). For non-prescription medication, local pharmacists are helpful and often speak English.

INFORMATION

Most cities have a tourist office (informacja turystyczna, or IT), usually run by the local municipality, though some are merely private agencies selling tours.

MONEY AND BANKS

Currency is the złoty (zł/PLN), divided into 100 groszy. Coins come in 1, 2, 5, 10, 20 and 50 groszy, and 1, 2 and 5 złoty denominations; notes as 10, 20, 50, 100 and 200 złoty. At the time of writing, €1 = 4.4zł, US$1 = 3.9zł and £1 = 5.50zł. Banks (usually Mon–Fri 7.30am–5pm, Sat 7.30am–2pm) and exchange offices (kantors) offer similar exchange rates. Major credit and debit cards are widely

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops open on weekdays from 10am to 6pm, and all but the largest close on Saturday at 2 or 3pm and all day Sunday. RUCH kiosks, selling public transport tickets (bilety), open at 6 or 7am. Most museums and historic monuments are closed once a week. Entrance tends to be inexpensive, and is often free one day of the week. Public holidays are: January 1, January 6, Easter Monday, May 1, May 3, Whitsun (May/June), Corpus Christi (May/June), August 15, November 1, November 11, December 25 and 26.

Warsaw

Packed with a bizarre mix of gleaming office buildings and grey, Communist-era apartment blocks, WARSAW (Warszawa) often bewilders backpackers. Yet if any city rewards exploration, it is the Polish capital. North of the lively centre are stunning Baroque palaces and the meticulously reconstructed Old Town; to the south are two of Central Europe's finest urban parks; and in the east lie reminders of the rich Jewish heritage extinguished by the Nazis.

Warsaw became the capital in 1596 and flourished as one of Europe's most prosperous cities. Absorbed by the Russian Empire in 1815, it wasn't until 1918 that Warsaw again became the capital of an independent Poland. The Germans invaded in 1939 and herded the city's large Jewish population into a ghetto, prior to their transportation to the death camps. The Warsaw Uprising of 1944 so infuriated Hitler that he ordered the total destruction of the city, leaving 850,000 Varsovians dead and 85 percent of Warsaw in ruins. Rebuilt after the war, the historic core of the city now stands at the centre of a dynamic, fast-developing metropolis.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The main sights are on the western bank of the Wisła (Vistula) River where you'll find the central business and shopping district, Śródmieście, grouped around Centralna station and the nearby Palace of Culture. The more picturesque Old Town (Stare Miasto) is just to the north.

The Old Town

The title Old Town (Stare Miasto) is, in some respects, a misnomer for the historic nucleus of Warsaw. During World War II the beautifully arranged Baroque streets were destroyed, after which they were painstakingly reconstructed so accurately that the area has been named a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The Old Town comes alive in the summer, as tourists, street performers and festivals take over the cobblestone streets.

Royal Castle

Plac Zamkowy (Castle Square), on the south side of the Old Town, is dominated by the thirteenth-century Royal Castle, now home to the Castle Museum (May–Sept Mon–Wed, Fri & Sat 10am–6pm, Thurs 10am–8pm, Sun 11am–6pm; Oct–April Tues–Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11am–4pm; 23zł, audioguide 17zł; zamek-krolewski.pl). Though the structure is a replica, many of its furnishings are originals. After passing the lavish Royal Apartments of King Stanisław August, you visit the Ballroom with its allegorical ceiling paintings symbolizing the Apotheosis of the Genius of Poland.

Old and New Town squares

On ul. Świętojańska, north of the castle, stands St John's Cathedral, the oldest church in Warsaw. A few metres away, the Old Town Square (Rynek Starego Miasta) is one of the most remarkable bits of postwar reconstruction anywhere in Europe. Flattened during the Uprising, its three-storey merchants' houses have been rebuilt in near-flawless imitation of the Baroque originals.

Crossing the rampsarts heading north brings you to the New Town Square (Rynek Nowego Miasta) at the heart of the so-called New Town (Nowe Miasto), the town's commercial hub in the fifteenth century but now a quiet spot to escape the bustling Old Town.

Krakowskie Przedmieście and Nowy Świat

Running south from pl. Zamkowy is Krakowskie Przedmieście and its continuation Nowy Świat, lined with stately buildings and churches. One highlight is the Church of the Nuns of the Visitation, one of the few buildings in central Warsaw to have come through the war unscathed. Much of the rest of Krakowskie Przedmieście is occupied by university buildings, including several fine Baroque palaces and the Holy Cross Church. Sealed inside a column to the left of the nave is an urn containing Chopin's heart.

WARSAW

Chopin Museum

Warsaw's most lavish tribute to its favourite son is the achingly modern Chopin Museum, east of Krakowskie Przedmieście at ul. Okólnik 1 (Tues–Sun 11am–8pm; 22zł; [Chopin.museum](http:// Chopin.museum)). With interactive handsets to guide visitors through exhibits on the musician's life, it's a must for Chopin enthusiasts, though only a hundred people are allowed into the museum at a time so tickets must be reserved in advance.

The Copernicus Centre

Downhill from the Chopin Museum on the banks of the river, the Copernicus Centre at Wybrzeże Kościuszkowskie 20 (Tues–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–7pm; 27zł; [Kopernik.org.pl](http:// Kopernik.org.pl)) is a hands-on science museum in a spectacularly contemporary building. Aimed mainly at entertaining children and game-playing adults, its wealth of touch-screen computers and mind-bending challenges can keep you occupied for hours.

National Museum

At the southern end of Nowy Świat and east along al. Jerozolimskie is the National Museum (Tues–Fri & Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs 10am–8pm; 15zł, free Tues; [mnw.art.pl](http:// mnw.art.pl)), housing an extensive collection of archeology and fine art, as well as Christian frescoes from medieval Sudan. The contemporary galleries upstairs contain an all-embracing introduction to Polish modern art.

Palace of Culture and Science

Towering over central Warsaw's main east–west thoroughfare, al. Jerozolimskie, the Palace of Culture and Science was a post-World War II gift from Stalin. Today, its vast interior contains theatres, bars and a swimming pool, while the platform on the thirtieth floor (Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–8pm, Fri & Sat 9am–11pm, 20zł; [wplkin.pl](http:// wplkin.pl)) offers impressive views of the city.

Jewish Ghetto

West of the New and Old towns is the former ghetto area, in which an estimated 380,000 Jews – one-third of Warsaw's total population – were crammed from 1939 onwards. By the war's end, the ghetto had been razed to the ground, with only around three hundred Jews and just one synagogue, the Nożyk Synagogue at ul. Twarda 6, left. You can still get an idea of what Jewish Warsaw looked like on the miraculously untouched ul. Prózna.

Museum of the History of the Polish Jews

Located in the midst of the former ghetto area at Anielewicz 6, the Museum of the History of the Polish Jews (Mon, Thurs & Fri 10am–6pm, Wed, Sat & Sun 10am–8pm; 25zł; [polin.pl](http:// polin.pl)) is worth visiting for the building alone – a futuristic glassy slab filled with organic, curvy surfaces. The display pays tribute to the rich Jewish civilization that flourished on the soil of Poland, until all but snuffed out by the Holocaust. The painted wooden ceiling of the seventeenth-century Gwozdziec synagogue is one obvious highlight. Opposite the museum is the Ghetto Heroes Monument, commemorating the doomed Warsaw Ghetto Uprising of April 1943, when lightly armed ghetto inhabitants took on the might of the German SS.

Warsaw Uprising Museum

About 1.5km west of the centre is the Warsaw Uprising Museum at ul. Grzybowska 79 (Mon, Wed & Fri 8am–6pm, Thurs 8am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; 18zł, free Sun; [1944.pl](http:// 1944.pl); tram #22 from Centralna Station). Set in a century-old brick power station, this ultra-modern audio-visual museum retells the grim story of how the Varsovians fought and were eventually crushed by the Nazis in 1944 – a struggle that led to the deaths of nearly two hundred thousand

25 Poles and the destruction of most of the city. Special attention is given to the equivocal role played by Soviet troops, who watched passively from the other side of the Wisła as the Nazis defeated the Polish insurgents. Only after the city was a charred ruin did they move across to “liberate” its few remaining inhabitants.

Łazienki Park

About 2km south of the centre, on the eastern side of al. Ujazdowskie, is the much-loved Łazienki Park (bus #116, #180 or #195 from Nowy Świat). Once a hunting ground, the area was bought in the 1760s by King Stanisław August, who turned it into a park and built the Neoclassical Łazienki Palace (Mon 11am–6pm, Tues, Wed & Sun 9am–6pm, Thurs–Sat 9am–8pm; 25zł) across the lake. But the park itself is the real attraction, with its oak-lined paths alive with peacocks and red squirrels.

Wilanów Palace

The grandest of Warsaw's palaces, Wilanów (May–Sept Mon 9.30am–7pm, Tues, Thurs & Fri 9.30am–4pm, Wed, Sat & Sun 9.30am–6pm; Oct–April Mon & Wed–Sun 9.30am–4pm; 20zł, free Thur; wilanow-palac.pl) makes an easy excursion from the centre: take bus #180 south from Krakowskie Przedmieście or Nowy Świat to its terminus. Converted in the seventeenth century from a small manor house into the “Polish Versailles”, the palace displays a vast range of decorative styles, a mixture mirrored in the delightful palace gardens (daily 9am–dusk; 5zł, free Thurs).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Okęcie airport is 8km southwest of the Old Town. Suburban trains run from the airport to Warszawa Śródmieście (near Centrum) every 30min and Warszawa Centralna every hour (both 6.30am–10.30pm; 25min). Outside these hours night bus #N32 runs into town.

By train The main train station, Warszawa Centralna, is in the modern centre just west of the Centrum crossroads. Destinations Berlin (4 daily; 5hr 45min); Budapest (2 daily; 1 of which overnight; 9hr 30min–11hr 30min); Gdańsk (hourly; 2hr 50min); Kyiv (1 daily; overnight; 16hr); Kraków (hourly; 2hr 30min); Poznań (hourly; 2hr 45min–3hr); Prague (3 daily; 1 of which overnight; 8hr 30min–12hr); Sopot (hourly; 3hr 5min); Toruń (10 daily; 2hr 20min); Vienna (5 daily; of which 2 overnight; 8hr 30min–9hr 30min); Wrocław (5 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The main bus station, Dworzec PKS, is located right next to the Warszawa Zachodnia train station, 3km west of Centralna Station. Catch eastbound buses #127, #130, #158 or #517 into town.

Destinations L'viv (2 daily; 12hr); Riga (1–2 daily; 13hr); Tallinn (1–2 daily; 17hr); Wrocław (1 daily; 6hr 30min); Vilnius (2 daily; 8–10hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information In the Old Town Square at 19/21 (daily: May–Aug 9am–9pm; March & April, Sept & Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–Feb 8am–6pm; ☎22 194 31, warsawtour.pl). There are also tourist offices at the Palace of Culture and the airport.

Travel agents STA Travel, ul. Krucza 41/43 (☎22 529 3800), can reserve international or domestic flights and train tickets, and sells ISIC Cards.

GETTING AROUND

Tickets Tickets for trams, buses and the metro (single trip 4.40zł; single trip of up to 20min duration 3.40zł) are available at green RUCH kiosks or automatic ticket machines. Always punch your tickets in the machines on board, as Warsaw's inspectors are extremely thorough. There are also good-value 1-day passes available (13zł), which should be punched the first time you use them. Tickets for students (ulgowy) are half-price, but you need to show ID.

By bus A well-developed if busy network of buses runs until around 11pm; after that, night buses leave every 30min from behind the main train station.

By tram A crowded but efficient means of transport, running till 11pm.

By metro Warsaw's subway system consists of a north–south line running through the centre of town and an east–west route that connects the centre with the suburb of Praga across the river. Świętokrzyska is where the two lines meet.

By taxi Generally with an initial charge of 8zł, then around 3zł/km, 4.50zł/km after 10pm and on Sun. English is spoken at Ele (☎22 811 1111) and Euro Taxi (☎2219668).

ACCOMMODATION

Warsaw has many good private hostels, mainly in Śródmieście; all the hostels listed below offer free internet, breakfast and free/cheap laundry services unless otherwise stated.

HOSTELS

Camera Hostel ul. Jasna 22 ☎22 828 8600, camerahostel.pl. Functional dorms with film-themed decor, a good range of social areas and hard-to-beat, central location. Dorms 55zł, doubles 160zł

Dream Hostel Krakowskie Przedmieście 55 ☎ 22 419 4848, facebook.com/dreamhostelwarsaw. Superbly located hostel occupying four floors of a renovated town house, Dream comes with modern furnishings, well-equipped social areas and never seems too crowded or frantic. The loft rooms are particularly cute. Breakfast and snacks available for a few extra złotys. Dorms 60zł, doubles 240zł

Hostel Helvetia ul. Sewerynow 7 30 ☎ 22 826 7108, hostel-helvetia.pl. Dead central yet in a quiet street, this nicely furnished hostel has plenty of showers, a women's dorm and a separate apartment. They also offer swish doubles and apartments in Helvetia Plus a 3min walk away (reception at the Helvetia) – breakfast is included at both locations. Dorms 59zł, doubles 170zł

★ New World Street Hostel ul. Nowy Świat 27 ☎ 22 828 1282, nws-hostel.pl. Friendly staff and a cosy common room (complete with board games and books) make this the pick of Warsaw's hostels. While the in-hostel atmosphere is calming, neighbouring streets are packed with bars. Dorms 42zł, doubles 180zł

Oki Doki pl. Dąbrowskiego 3 ☎ 22 828 0122, okidoki.pl. With its eccentric, individually designed rooms and bar (0.5lt beer 7zł), this hostel has the liveliest feel of any in town. Breakfast available for 15zł. Dorms 65zł, doubles 190zł

APARTMENTS

Pragapartments ☎ 792 217 313, pragapartments.pl. A superb option if you're aiming to stay on the up-and-coming east bank of the Wisła River, offering a mixture of smartly furnished, 2-person studio, 1-room and 2-room apartments in different locations in the Praga district. Studio 240zł, 1-room apartment 300zł

★ SleepWell Apartments ul. Nowy Świat 62 ☎ 600 300 749, sleepwell-warsaw.pl. Just off Warsaw's main café strip, this restored apartment offers fairly small rooms (they're cute en-suite doubles rather than "apartments" in the real sense of the word), decked out in bold, kitschy colours. Doubles 227zł

B&B

Chmielna Guest House ul. Chmielna 13 ☎ 22 828 1282, chmielnabb.pl. Surprisingly intimate place for such a central location, with seven rooms arranged around a spacious living room and adjoining kitchen. Some rooms are quite small and share a bathroom in the hallway, but all are stylishly decorated with soothing colours. Doubles 190zł

EATING

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Blikle's Pastry Shop ul. Nowy Świat 35. Blikle's is renowned throughout the nation for its soft springy doughnuts (paczki), but there's a lot more besides including a mouthwatering array of pastries, cakes and chocolates. Cake slices 3.80zł. Daily 9am–9pm.

Familijny ul. Nowy Świat 29. Conveniently located milk bar serving good soups, pancakes and traditional Polish dishes for just a couple of złoty. A Warsaw student favourite. Mains 5–10zł. Mon–Fri 7am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm.

★ Kafka Café ul. Obozna 3. Tasty sandwiches (14zł), pasta dishes (23zł) and strong coffee make this stylish café popular with a student crowd, who spill out onto the chairs outside on the lawn in summer. Mon–Fri 9am–10pm, Sat & Sun 10am–10pm.

SAM ul. Lipowa 7. Bakery with diner attached, serving soups, main dishes and delicious fresh bread. Opt for a roast beef sandwich (14zł) or settle down with the Thai rice and vegetables (25zł). Mon–Sat 8am–10pm, Sun 9am–10pm.

Tel Aviv Poznańska 11. Middle Eastern/vegan café celebrated city-wide for its huge selection of own-recipe hummus spreads. Order something classic like stuffed aubergine (40zł) from the à-la-carte menu, or opt for the two-course set lunch (Mon–Fri only; noon–4pm; 25zł). Mon–Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 10am–10pm.

RESTAURANTS

Bastyia ul. Mokotowska 17. Legendary pancake bar with a chic interior, serving up a large number of sweet and savoury pancakes. Pancake with prosciutto and gruyère 24zł. Daily 8am–11pm.

Browarmia ul. Królewska 1. Roomy beer hall and grill-restaurant with a hugely popular street-facing terrace, brewing its own pilsner and wheat beers (from 12zł/0.5 litre). Use them to wash down a hearty dish of pork knuckle (69zł) or a steak (from 40zł). Daily noon–11pm.

Miedzy Nami ul. Bracka 20. Cultured, gay-friendly café-restaurant that's excellent for a light meal, with some innovative vegetarian choices and a pleasant summer patio. Mains 20–35zł. Mon–Thurs 10am–11pm, Fri & Sat 10am–midnight, Sun 2–11pm.

Zapiecek al. Jerozolimskie 28. A wide variety of pierogis, golabki (stuffed cabbage leaves), nalesniki (pancakes) and other traditional Polish specialities, served by waitresses decked out in folk costumes. Pierogis 22zł. Daily 11am–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The bar scene in Warsaw has really taken off over the last decade, and the city now provides a great night out that rivals Prague and needn't blow your budget. Praga, across the river, boasts a lively, bohemian bar scene – an interesting alternative to the more glitzy hangouts you'll find downtown.

POLAND'S ELIXIR: VODKA STRIKES BACK

The tippie most associated with Poland, vodka is making a major comeback after decades of being overshadowed in the fashion stakes by imported Western drinks. Traditionally made from cereal grains, potatoes or beets, Polish vodka is usually served chilled and neat – although increasingly mixed with fruit juice. Żubrówka, infused with bison grass, is delicious on its own or mixed with apple juice. Other vodkas usually consumed as down-in-one shots include Żołądkowa Gorzka (an amber-coloured herbal vodka), Wiśniówka (from cherries) and the honey-flavoured Krupnik.

BARS

Charlotte: chleb i wino al. Wyzwolenia 18 (entrance on pl. Zbawiciela). Chic and spacious café-bar dishing out coffee and croissants during the daytime, wine and spirits at night. There's outdoor seating beneath plac Zbawiciela's colonnades. Mon–Thurs 7am–midnight, Fri 7am–1am, Sat 9am–1am, Sun 9am–10pm.

Chmielarnia Marszałkowska 10/16. Bustling multi-tap beer pub with one of the best choices of ale in the city, from Polish boutique brews to international craft favourites. Punters also flock here for the irresistible Nepalese food – daily specials (served 11am–4pm; 19–26zł) always include at least one vegetarian choice. Daily 11am–midnight.

Meta ul. Foksal 21. A time capsule stuffed with pop-cultural ephemera from the 1970s and 80s, Meta serves up vodka shots, excellent small-brewery beers (Kasztelan 7zł) and late-night snacks (including the most popular steak tartare in town). Daily 11am–6am.

Plan B al. Wyzwolenia 18. Leading hipster hangout on the popular pl. Zbawiciela, featuring red sofas, rickety wooden chairs and a standing-room-only terrace in the spring and summer. Mon–Sat 11am–3am, Sun 4pm–2am.

Skład Butelek ul. 11 Listopada 22, Praga. Wonderfully quirky gathering place for Warsaw's creative types, serving obscure Ukrainian beers in an old factory. 0.5lt beer 10zł. Wed–Sat 4pm–3am.

W Oparach Absurdu ul. Zabkowska 6, Praga. Chaotic, lively and decorated with all the haphazard charm of a flea market. 0.5lt beer 9zł. Daily noon–3am.

Warszawa Powiśle ul. Kruckowskiego 3b. Located in the UFO-shaped former ticket hall of the Warszawa-Powiśle station, this self-styled "kiosk for wódka and culture" serves drinks and snacks (burgers 12zł) until late. Summer evenings bring the best out in the place, when crowds spill across the pavement out front. Daily 9am–midnight.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC

Hydrozagadka ul. 11 Listopada 22 @hydrozagadka.waw.pl. Courtyard bar-cum-nightclub featuring a bare-bones interior: expect to hear leftfield DJs, and the kind of visiting indie bands that attract an informed alternative audience. Cover 25–50zł. Fri, Sat and gig nights (check the website) 7pm–4am.

Opera Club pl. Teatralny 1. Dancefloors and semi-private rooms scattered throughout the cavernous chambers beneath the Grand Theatre, making for a novel night out. Cocktails 19–25zł. Fri & Sat 10pm–5am.

Tygmont ul. Mazowiecka 6/8 @tygmont.com.pl. The city's top jazz club, with a regular gig roster, retro discos and a stylish, upmarket clientele. Entrance 10zł and upwards depending on event. Tues–Thurs 9pm–2am, Fri & Sat 7pm–4am.

SUMMER-ONLY RIVERSIDE BARS

Between June and September Warsaw nightlife migrates to the banks of the Wisła, home to a variety of al-fresco bars and clubs.

Cud nad Wisłą bul. Flotilly Wiślanej. Sprawling open-air hangout north of the Pilsudski bridge offering drinks, bar snacks, live music, weekend food markets and DJ events. June–Sept daily noon–midnight.

Plac Zabaw bul. Grzywały-Siedleckiego @facebook.com/placzabawnadwisla. Located on the west bank of the river just south of the Świętokrzyskie bridge, the "Playpark" spreads its deckchairs over a grassy part of the riverbank and organizes al-fresco gigs and open-air film screenings throughout the summer. An attached pontoon structure (named "Barka") hosts late-night DJ events. May–Sept daily 11am–11pm; Barka Thurs–Sat until 4am.

Pomost 511 ul. Flotilly Wiślanej @facebook.com/Pomost511. On the same riverside stretch as Cud nad Wisłą and with a similar mixture of culture, music and cold beers, Pomost offers open-air theatre as well as film shows and crowd-pulling DJs. May–Sept Mon–Wed & Sun noon–midnight, Thurs–Sat noon–3am.

MARKETS AND MALLS

For mainstream fashion brands, first explore the gleaming Złote Tęczy shopping centre, behind Centralna train station, before passing through to the mainly pedestrianized streets of ul. Chmielna and ul. Nowy Świat. The daily Hala Mirowska market on al. Jana Pawła II is the place to go for fresh fruits and vegetables, while antique hunters should head for the Kolo Antique Market on ul. Obozowa (Sun 7am–2pm; trams #13 & #23 from the Old Town), where you'll find everything from war medals to old Christian icons.

ENTERTAINMENT

A wealth of cultural festivals brings the city to life in summer, especially the Warsaw "Summer Jazz Days" in June, and "Jazz in the Old Town" (a series of outdoor concerts) throughout July and Aug. Films are usually shown in their original language with Polish subtitles. Tickets 17–30zł.

Grand Theatre (Teatr Wielki) pl. Teatralny 1 ☎ 22 692 3288, ☎ teatr.wielki.pl. Worth visiting just for its Neoclassical facade, but it also hosts the best of Poland's National Opera. 28–320zł depending on seats.

Kinoteka pl. Defilad 1 ☎ kinoteka.pl. Multiplex in the Palace of Culture and Science showing the latest blockbusters.

Muranów ul. Gen. Andersa 1 ☎ muranow.gutekfilm.pl. Art-house cinema that screens a range of films from around the world.

DIRECTORY

Pharmacies There is a 24hr pharmacy on the top floor of Centralna train station.

Post office ul. Świętokrzyska 31/33 (24hr).

Northern Poland

Even in a country accustomed to shifting borders, northern Poland presents an unusually tortuous historical puzzle. Successively the domain of the Teutonic Order, Hansa merchants and the Prussians, it's only in the last seventy years that the region has become definitively Polish. The conurbation of Gdańsk, Sopot and Gdynia, known as the Tri-City, lines the Baltic coast with its dramatic shipyards and sandy beaches, while highlights inland include the medieval centres of Malbork and Toruń.

GDAŃSK

Both the starting point of World War II and the birthplace of the anti-communist Solidarity movement, GDAŃSK has played more than a fleeting role on the world stage. Traces of its past are visible in the steel skeletons of shipyard cranes and the Hanseatic architecture of the old town. After all the social and political upheavals of the last century, the city is now busy reinventing itself as a tourist hub.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

With its medieval brick churches and narrow eighteenth-century merchants' houses, Gdańsk certainly looks ancient. But its appearance is deceptive: by 1945, the core of the city lay in ruins, and the present buildings are almost complete reconstructions.

The Main Town (Główne Miasto)

Huge stone gateways guard both entrances to ul. Długa, the main thoroughfare. Start from the sixteenth-century gate at the top,

Brama Wyzynna, and carry on east through the nearby Brama Złota. You'll soon come across the imposing Town Hall, which houses a Historical Museum (June–Sept Mon 9am–1pm, Tues–Thurs 9am–4pm, Fri & Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 10am–4pm; Oct–May Tues 10am–1pm, Wed, Fri & Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11am–4pm; 12zł, free Mon) with shocking photos of the city's wartime destruction.

Further down, the street opens onto the wide expanse of ul. Długi Targ, where the ornate facade of Arthur's Court (same hours as Historical Museum; 10zł) stands out among the fine mansions. The surrounding streets are also worth exploring, especially ul. Mariacka, brimming with amber traders, at the end of which stands St Mary's Basilica (Mon–Sat 8.30am–6.30pm, Sun 11am–noon & 1–5pm; 4zł), the largest church in Poland.

The waterfront and the Maritime Museum

At the end of ul. Długi Targ the archways of Brama Zielona open directly onto the waterfront. Halfway down is the fifteenth-century Gdańsk Crane, the biggest in medieval Europe, part of the National Maritime Museum (July & Aug daily 10am–6pm; Jan–June & Sept–Nov Tues–Sun 10am–4pm; Dec Tues–Sun 10am–3pm; 8zł; nmm.pl). Highlights include an exhibition of primitive boats; for an extra 10zł you can also tour the cargo ship SS Soldek docked outside. The museum's annexe on the opposite banks of the river, the Maritime Culture Centre (same times; 14zł), has four fascinating floors of interactive displays covering storms and sea life as well as boats from around the world.

The shipyards and the European Solidarity Centre

Further north loom the cranes of the famous Gdańsk shipyards, crucible of the struggle to topple communism in Poland. Poignantly set outside the shipyard gates is the monument to the workers killed during peaceful anti-government demonstrations in 1970. Ten years later, the Solidarity union led by Lech Wałęsa turned a shipyard strike into a snow-balling national movement. It's an inspiring story, told by the multimedia exhibition at the European Solidarity Centre (daily 10am–8pm; 17zł; ecs.gda.pl), a modern building in front of the shipyards that commemorates freedom movements across Central Europe as well as in Poland.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Gdańsk Lech Wałęsa airport lies 8km from the city centre. Trains (every 20min; 35min; 3.50zł) run to Gdańsk Central Station (see below), although some services require a change at Gdańsk-Wrszcz. Taxis cost 50–80zł.

By train Make sure to get off at the Główny (Central) Station, a 10min walk northwest of ul. Długa, the heart of the Main Town.

Destinations Kraków (every 2hr; 5hr 30min); Malbork (every 30min; 30–50min); Poznań (5 daily; 3hr); Sopot (every 15min; 20min); Toruń (6 daily; 2hr 20min); Warsaw (hourly; 2hr 50min); Wrocław (4 daily; 5hr).

By bus The bus station is just behind the train station, reached via an underpass.

Destinations Riga (1 daily; 16hr); Tallinn (1 daily; 21hr); Vilnius (1 daily; 11hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Tourist office at Długi Targ 28/29 (daily: June–Aug 9am–7pm; Sept–May 9am–5pm; ☎ 0505 877 021, gdansk4u.pl). There are also offices at the airport (24hr) and the train station (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat till 5pm, Sun till 4pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Grand Guesthouse Gdansk ul. Długa 4 ☎ 666 061 350, grandguesthouse.pl. Bright, simple doubles (some en-suite) and a small kitchen/social area in a restored townhouse right in the centre. Breakfast included. 230zł

Hostel Cycle On ul. Spichrzowa 15 ☎ 531 153 700, hostelcycleon.com. Small but colourful dorms and private rooms in an evocative red-brick street. There's a small common area and breakfast included. Also rents out bikes (25zł/day). Dorms 70zł, doubles 230zł

Riverside Hostel ul. Powroźnicza 18/24 ☎ 58 718 3854, facebook.com/RiversideHostel. Situated among historic dockside warehouses, this hostel combines relaxing social areas and a fully equipped kitchen with neat, classy dorms and some cute doubles. Dorms 65zł, doubles 180zł

★ Zappio ul. Świętojańska 49 ☎ 58 322 0174, zappio.pl. Budget hotel and youth hostel in a beautiful prewar building, with big windows and period woodwork. Dorms 55zł, doubles 170zł

EATING

Bar Neptune ul. Długa 33/34. Legendary milk bar with the usual Polish barszcz, pierogi and pork-chop fare. Dishes tend to run out well before closing time. Mains from 5zł. Mon–Fri 7.30am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm.

★ Kresowa ul. Ogarna 12. Cuisine from the Polish-Lithuanian-Ukrainian borderlands (kresy), served in a refined atmosphere for a reasonable price. Much of the food is based on historic recipes: don't miss the Zrazy Radziwiłłowskie (beef rolls stuffed with mushrooms; 29zł). Other mains 20–40zł. Daily 10am–10pm.

Pijalnia wódki i piwa ul. Długi targ 35/38. One of Poland's new breed of round-the-clock drinks-and-snack bars, serving vodka shots, beer (4zł), herring snacks and gzik (sour cream, onion and cottage cheese; 8zł) in a communist-era interior. Daily 9am–5am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Local clubbers prefer the nightlife in Sopot (see p.846), but there are several bars on Piwna and Chlebnicka to keep you entertained.

Café Lamus ul. Lawndowa 8 (entrance from ul. Straganiarska). An artful mixture of old furniture and retro wallpaper sets a suitably bohemian tone to this beer-drinkers' favourite, with a fridge full of craft ales from Poland and beyond. Daily noon–2am.

25 Pikawa ul. Piwna 14/15. Something of a shrine to hot chocolate, which comes in all guises (from 6.50zł) and with varying dollops of cream. Apple pie and ice cream provide further reasons to overindulge. Daily 10am–11pm.

U Szkota Pub ul. Chlebnicka 9/10. A friendly Scottish pub that comes complete with kilted waiters and Belhaven Scottish Ale on tap, alongside Irish beers such as Kilkeny and Guinness on tap (14zł for 0.4lt). Mon–Thurs & Sun 4pm–1am, Fri & Sat 4pm–2am.

SOPOT

Some 15km northwest of Gdańsk lies Poland's trendiest coastal resort, which boasts Europe's longest wooden pier (512m) and a broad stretch of golden sand. With its vibrant nightlife, Sopot is a magnet for young party animals. All roads lead to the beach, where aside from lounging you can meander up the pier (entry 7.50zł May–Sept), on which you'll find boat tours operating in summer.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station lies 400m west of the beach and a 5min walk from the main street, ul. Monte Cassino.

Tourist information The tourist office is on the way to the pier at plac Zdrojowy 2 (daily 10am–6pm; ☎ 790 280 884, ✉ sts.sopot.pl), and helps with accommodation, which fills up quickly in summer.

ACCOMMODATION

Cheap accommodation can be hard to find in Sopot. Your best bet is to look for "Wolny Pokój" (free room) signs in private houses, where you can rent rooms for around 50zł/person.

Central Hostel ul. Monte Casino 15 ☎ 53 085 8717, ✉ hostelcentral.pl. Bang in the centre of town, this hostel is sparsely furnished but has a lively party atmosphere and sunny rooms. Dorms 60zł, doubles 250zł

OPEN'ER FESTIVAL

Taking place just north of Gdańsk and Sopot at Gdynia's Kosakovo airfield, the Open'er Festival (✉ opener.pl) in early July is one of Europe's largest outdoor rock events. It's very much Central Europe's answer to Reading or Roskilde: 2016's line-up included Red Hot Chili Peppers, Pharrell Williams, Tame Impala and the ubiquitous Florence & the Machine. Four-day tickets weigh in at around 600zł; add an extra 80zł for camping.

EATING

For best value, avoid ul. Monte Cassino and head for the restaurants around 1km south along the beach.

Bar Przystan al. Wojska Polskiego 11. A touristy but great-value restaurant with a big glass-enclosed dining room right above the beach. Fresh Baltic fish such as cod, halibut or flounder 8–11.50zł/100g. Daily 10am–11pm.

Mocno Nadziane ul. Haffnera 7/9. Contemporary-style pierogi bar serving several variations on the pastry-pocket theme, including some intriguing local fish-flavoured options. Also a good place to drink spirits and cocktails come the evening. Mains 10–20zł. Daily 11am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Atelier al. Mamuszki 2 ✉ klubatelier.pl. Seafront bar and weekend club attracting a hedonistically inclined, bohemian set. Music policy is broader here than elsewhere, with indie rock regularly colliding with retro disco and hip-hop. Mon–Thurs 3pm–midnight, Fri 3pm–5am, Sat 11am–5am, Sun 1am–midnight.

Zatoka Sztuki al. Mamuszki 14, ✉ zatokasztyki.pl. Multi-themed café, restaurant, art gallery and club situated on the beach just north of the pier. Follow up fusion food in the restaurant (salmon in teriyaki sauce 44zł) with a long night of cocktails and DJ-induced dancing. May–Sept 10am–2am.

MALBORK

The spectacular fortress of MALBORK (Tues–Sun: mid-April to mid-Sept 9am–7pm; rest of year 10am–3pm; high season 39.50zł, low season 29.50zł; ✉ zamek.malbork.pl) was built as the headquarters of the Teutonic Order in the fourteenth century and still casts a threatening shadow over an otherwise sleepy town. As the Teutonic Knights sank into deep financial crisis, they were eventually forced to sell the castle in the mid-fifteenth century. The place was then employed as a royal residence and a stopover for Polish monarchs en route between Warsaw and Gdańsk.

You enter over a moat and through the daunting main gate, before reaching an open courtyard. Brooding above is the High Castle, which harbours the vast Castle Church with its faded chivalric paintings. You'll be given an English audioguide for the three-hour self-guided tour, or, in July and August, you can opt for a live tour instead (both are included in the ticket price).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is about a 10min walk south of the castle; there are regular trains to and from Gdańsk (every 30min; 30–50min).

TORUŃ

Once one of the most beautiful medieval towns in Central Europe, TORUŃ was founded by the Teutonic Knights and is still rich with their architectural legacy. It's also famous for being the birthplace of Nicolaus Copernicus, whose house still stands. Now a friendly university city, with bars and cafés sprinkled throughout the compact streets, Toruń combines lively nightlife with its status as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The highlight of Toruń is the mansion-lined Market Square (Rynek) and its fourteenth-century Town Hall, now the District Museum (Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–6pm; Oct–April 10am–4pm; 11zł), with a fine collection of nineteenth-century paintings and intricate woodcarvings. South of the Rynek at ul. Kopernika 15/17, the Copernicus Museum (same hours as District Museum; 11zł), in the house where the great man was born, contains a fascinating model collection of his original instruments as well as facsimiles of the momentous De Revolutionibus and a selection of early portraits. The large, Gothic St John's Cathedral (Mon–Sat 8.30am–7.30pm, Sun 4.30–7.30pm; 5zł), at the eastern end of ul. Kopernika, has a tower offering panoramic views over the city (April–Oct only; 3zł extra). Further north stands the Contemporary Art Centre at Waly Gen. Sikorskiego 13 (Tues–Thurs & Sun 10am–6pm, Fri & Sat 10am–8pm; 10zł), a contemporary building hosting cutting-edge art exhibitions.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Toruń Główny, the main train station, is 2km south of the river; buses #22, #25 and #27 (every 10min; 2.80zł) run from outside the station to pl. Rapackiego on the western edge of the Old Town, the first stop after crossing the bridge.

Destinations Gdańsk (6 daily; 2hr 20min); Poznań (9 daily; 1hr 30min); Warsaw (10 daily; 2hr 20min).

PIERNIKI

You can't leave Toruń without trying the local pierniki, or gingerbread, which has been made here since the town was founded. Pierniczek on Żeglarska 25 offers a mouthwatering range.

By bus The bus station is on ul. Dąbrowskiego, just north of the centre.

INFORMATION

Tourist information Tourist office at Rynek Staromiejski 25 (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat–Sun 10am–6pm; ☎ 56 621 0930, 🌐 it.torun.pl).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostel Freedom Rynek Staromiejski 10 ☎ 731 218 415, 🌐 freedomtorun.pl. Nicely decorated hostel in a creaky-floored main-square apartment, with small kitchen, free breakfast and neat bunk-bed dorms. Dorms 40zł, doubles 100zł

Orange Plus ul. Jeczmienna 11 ☎ 56 651 8457, 🌐 hostelorange.pl. A bright, cosy hostel with friendly staff, comfortable dorms, relaxing social areas but not much of a kitchen. Dorms 35zł, doubles 100zł

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Café Fajka ul. Małe Garbary 1. Chilled-out place filled with cushions, offering a huge range of cocktails and shishas that bubble milk or gin instead of water. Cocktails from 12zł. Mon–Wed & Sun 3pm–2am, Thurs–Sat till 3am.

Manekin ul. Wysoka 5. The perfect place for pancake lovers, with a lengthy menu of innovative meat, veg and sweet fillings (try the salmon and camembert pancake for 17zł). It's not all batter, though – soups and salads also feature. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–10pm, Fri & Sat 10am–11pm.

Oberza ul. Rabsiańska 9. Cosy restaurant near the Market Square offering quick, traditional buffet meals such as stuffed cabbage parcels or pork chop with plums, served up in a farmhouse interior. Mains 15–30zł. Daily 11am–10pm.

Pod Arkadami ul. Rozana 1. Clean, bright milk bar on the Market Square serving superb, filling soups and potato dishes. Potato pancakes 6zł. Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–4pm.

Southern Poland

Southern Poland attracts more visitors than any other region in the country, and its appeal is clear from a glance at the map. The Tatra Mountains bordering

25 Slovakia are the most spectacular in the country, snowcapped for much of the year and markedly alpine in feel. The former royal capital of Kraków is an architectural gem. Pope John Paul II was archbishop here until his election in 1978, but equally important are the city's Jewish roots: before the Holocaust, this was one of Europe's most vibrant Jewish centres. This multicultural past echoes in the old district of Kazimierz, and its culmination is starkly enshrined at the death camps of Auschwitz-Birkenau, 50km west of the city.

KRAKÓW

KRAKÓW was the only major city in Poland to come through World War II essentially undamaged. The city's Old Town (Stare Miasto) swarms with visitors in summer, but retains an atmosphere of fin-de-siècle stateliness, its streets a cavalcade of churches and palaces. A university centre, Kraków has a tangible buzz of arty youthfulness and enjoys a dynamic nightlife.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Kraków is bisected by the River Wisła, with virtually everything of interest on the north bank. At the heart of the Old Town is the Main Square, with Wawel Hill, ancient seat of Poland's kings and Church, and the rejuvenated old Jewish suburb of Kazimierz lying to the south.

The Market Square

The largest square in medieval Europe, the Market Square (Rynek Główny) is now a broad expanse with the vast Cloth Hall (Sukiennice) at its centre, ringed by magnificent houses and towering spires. Originally a collection of outdoor market stalls, the Cloth Hall was first built in 1300 and reconstructed during the Renaissance, and still houses a bustling covered market.

The Rynek Underground

Central Kraków's newest and most entertaining tourist attraction is the Rynek Underground (April–Oct Mon 10am–8pm, Tues 10am–4pm, Wed–Sun 10am–10pm; Nov–March Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–8pm, Tues 10am–4pm; closed second Mon of every Month; 19zł), an extensive subterranean museum that stretches beneath the market square. Recent archaeological excavations have been left in situ and covered by glass walkways, allowing you to explore the layout of the medieval marketplace. The display also features touch-screen computers and videos of role-playing actors dressed up as medieval traders.

St Mary's Church

On the east side of the Market Square is the Gothic St Mary's Church (Tues–Sat 11.30am–6pm, Sun 2–6pm; 10zł), the taller of its two towers, which you can climb in summer (May–Aug Tues–Sat 9–11.10am & 1.10–5.30pm, Sun 1–5pm; 10zł), topped by an amazing ensemble of spires. Inside is the stunningly realistic triptych high altar (1477–89), an intricate woodcarving depicting the Virgin Mary's Quietus among the apostles.

The university

West from the Rynek is the university area, whose first building was the fifteenth-century Collegium Maius at ul. Jagiellońska 15, today housing the University Museum (Mon, Wed, Fri & Sat 10am–2.20pm, Tues & Thurs 10am–5.20pm; 16zł). An optional guided tour is included in the price if you want it – the museum office will sign you up for the next English-language departure. Inside, the ground-floor rooms retain the mathematical and geographical murals once used for the teaching of

THE HEJNAŁ

Legend has it that during one of the thirteenth-century Tatar raids on Kraków, a guard watching from the tower of St Mary's Church saw the invaders approaching and blew his trumpet, only for his alarm to be cut short by an arrow through the throat. Every hour a local fireman now plays the sombre melody (hejnał) from the same tower, halting abruptly at the point when the guard is supposed to have been hit.

figures like Copernicus, one of the university's earliest students.

Wawel Hill

For over five hundred years, Wawel Hill (@wawel.krakow.pl) was the seat of Poland's monarchy. The original cathedral (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm; Sun 12.30–5pm; 8zł) was built in 1020, but the present basilica is a fourteenth-century structure, with a crypt that contains the majority of Poland's 45 monarchs. Their tombs and side chapels are like a directory of European artistic movements, not least the Gothic Holy Cross Chapel and the Renaissance Zygmuntowska chapel. The excellent Cathedral Museum (Mon–Sat 9am–4pm; 12zł) features religious and secular items dating from the thirteenth century, including all manner of coronation robes.

Visitor numbers are restricted, so arrive early or book ahead to visit the various sections of Wawel Castle (ticket office Mon–Fri 9am–5.45pm, Sat & Sun 10am–4.45pm), including the State Rooms (Tues–Sun: April–Oct 10am–5pm; Nov–March 10am–4pm; 18zł), furnished with Renaissance paintings and tapestries, and the grand Royal Private Apartments (same times as State Rooms; 25zł). Much of the original contents of the Royal Treasury and Armoury (April–Oct: Mon 9.30am–1pm, Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; Nov–March: Tues–Sat 9.30am–4pm; 18zł) were sold to pay off royal debts, but still feature some fine works, including the Szczerbiec, the country's original coronation sword.

Kazimierz

A Jewish centre from the fourteenth century onwards, Kraków's Kazimierz district had grown by 1939 to accommodate some 65,000 Jews. After the Nazis took control, however, this population was forced into a cramped ghetto across the river. Waves of deportations to the death camps followed before the ghetto was liquidated in March 1943, ending seven centuries of Jewish life in Kraków. Kazimierz is now a fashionable and bohemian residential district, filled with synagogues – although present-day Kazimierz's Jewish population is a tiny fraction of what it was before 1939.

Just off pl. Nowy, a colourful square surrounded by chic cafés, is the Isaac Synagogue at ul. Kupa 18 (Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–8pm, Fri 9am–2.30pm; 7zł) – now a working synagogue once again, it contains sizeable chunks of Hebrew inscriptions on its walls. At ul. Szeroka 24 is the Old Synagogue (Mon 10am–2pm, Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; 10zł), the oldest surviving example of Jewish religious architecture in Poland and home to the Museum of Kraków Jewry, with its traditional paintings by the area's former inhabitants. Nearby, the Remu'h Synagogue, also on ul. Szeroka (Mon–Fri: May–Sept 9am–6pm; Oct–April 9am–4pm; 8zł) contains lovely original furnishings; in the cemetery behind the synagogue you'll find restored eighteenth-century gravestones.

At the southern end of Kazimierz, the Municipal Engineering Museum at św Wawrzynca 15 (Tues–Sun: June–Sept 10am–6pm; Oct–May 10am–4pm; 10zł) contains a fantastic display of vehicles in a former tram depot.

MOCAK Museum of Contemporary Art

The former industrial district of Podgorze/Zabłocie just across the river from Kazimierz is one of contemporary Kraków's fastest-developing districts, thanks in part to the opening of the MOCAK Museum of Contemporary Art at ul. Lipowa 4 (Tues–Sun 11am–7pm; 10zł; @mocak.com.pl) in 2011. Occupying renovated buildings that once formed part of Oskar Schindler's Emalia Factory (see below), it contains a compelling collection of Polish contemporary art and hosts a regular programme of big-name exhibitions.

The Schindler Factory

Immediately next door to MOCAK, The Schindler Factory is where German industrialist Oskar Schindler manufactured enamel pots during World War II, employing over a thousand Kraków Jews specifically to save them from the death camps – a tale immortalized in Steven Spielberg's Oscar-winning film, Schindler's List. The factory is now home to a superbly arranged exhibition entitled Kraków Under Nazi Occupation (Mon 10am–4pm, Tues–Sun 9am–8pm; first Mon of month 10am–2pm; 21zł), which fills several rooms with photo displays, period newsreels and interviews with survivors. Telling the stories of both Jewish and Gentile Kraków with equal weight, it's an engrossing and rewarding experience.

Wieliczka salt mines

Ten kilometres from Kraków is the “underground salt cathedral” of Wieliczka, 300km of subterranean tunnels that have been used to mine salt since the thirteenth century (daily: April–Oct 7.30am–7.30pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm). The ticket price includes a tour (84zł English, 55zł Polish), which passes by an underground lake and a number of impressive statues and edifices – including chandeliers – carved out of rock salt. Trains to Wieliczka-Rynek run from Kraków Główny roughly every hour.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Kraków airport is situated 15km west of the city centre. It's easiest to catch the free shuttle bus to the airport's train station, which has regular trains to Kraków Główny (every 30min, 4.14am–11.44pm; 18min; 22zł). The equivalent taxi ride costs 70–90zł.

By train Kraków Główny, the central train station, is located a 5min walk northeast of the city's historic centre. Destinations Bratislava (1 daily; 8hr); Budapest (1 daily; 10hr 30min); Gdańsk (every 2 hours; 5hr 30min); Oświęcim/Auschwitz (15 daily; 1hr 45min); Poznań (4 daily; 5–7hr); Prague (1 daily; 8hr 30min); Warsaw (hourly; 2hr 30min); Wrocław (every 2 hours; 3hr 10min); Zakopane (3 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The main bus station is located directly opposite the train station. Nearby, Eurolines (see p.00) runs services to all major European capitals.

Destinations Oświęcim/Auschwitz (2–3 hourly; 1hr 45min); Zakopane (every 20min; 2hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information The municipal tourist office (Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm; ☎012 430 2646, krakow.pl) operates information booths at four central locations: the circular pavilion in the Planty near the train station underpass; the Town Hall Tower on Rynek Główny; the Wyspiański 2000 Pavilion on plac Wszystkich Świętych; and ul. Józefa 7 in Kazimierz.

Tours You'll be bombarded with tour offers for the city and surrounding sights, but these are often rushed and cost four times as much as public transport. If you do want a tour, Cracow City Tours at ul. Floriańska 44 (daily 9am–9pm; ☎12 421 1327, cracowcitytours.pl) offers a wide range of itineraries and discounts for students.

ACCOMMODATION

The number of hostels has mushroomed in the last few years, but it is still worth booking ahead if you want to stay in the most central spots. All hostels have free wi-fi, breakfast and cheap laundry services.

HOSTELS

Blueberry Hostel ul. Wrzesińska 5/5 ☎12 426 4664, blueberryhostel.com. Small, intimate hostel in a beautifully decorated, parquet-floored flat near Kazimierz. Free breakfast and a relaxing boutique feel. Dorms 65zł, doubles 165zł

★Greg & Tom Hostel ul. Pawia 12/7 ☎12 422 4100, gregtomhostel.com. The ideal hostel for those who want home comforts as well as a place to crash, this suave option opposite the train station offers single beds in snazzy designed dorms (no bunks), neat doubles and relaxing social/kitchen space. Dorms 57zł, doubles 150zł

Mosquito Hostel Rynek Kleparski 4/6 ☎12 430 1461, mosquitohostel.com. Comfortable and sharply decorated hostel just round the corner from the Stary Kleparz market, offering a mixture of dorms and private room; buffet breakfast and a cosy galley kitchen. Dorms 65zł, doubles 230zł ★Mundo Hostel ul. Sarego 10 ☎12 422 6113, mundohostel.eu. Probably the most beautiful hostel in Kraków, with each room decorated according to a different national theme. Relaxing kitchen-cum-lounge, and a decent-sized breakfast. Dorms 60zł, doubles 170zł

Secret Garden ul. Skawinska 7 ☎12 430 5445, thesecretgarden.pl. Spacious, bright and cheerful hostel on a quiet street which provides hotel-like standards at hostel prices – there are no dorms, with all the rooms being doubles, triples or quads. There's a roomy kitchen, and a swish first-floor TV lounge. Doubles 150zł

Tutti Frutti ul. Floriańska 29 ☎12 428 0028, tuttifruttihotel.com. This welcoming hostel does the basics (especially breakfast) very well and also provides guides for guests seeking the best places to go out. As well as dorms, it has 4-bed apartments. Dorms 50zł, apartments 260zł

B&B

B&B La Fontaine ul. Sławkowska 1 ☎12 422 6564, bblafontaine.com. Surprisingly affordable B&B in the Old Town, with cute homey rooms located on the attic floor of an apartment block. A good breakfast in the downstairs restaurant is included. Doubles 285zł

Kolory ul. Estery 10 ☎12 421 0465, kolory.com.pl. Bright en-suite rooms above Les Couleurs (see p.852), all with TV and folk-style design details. Some rooms overlook the lively plac Nowy; marginally quieter rooms are at the back. Doubles 240zł

Tango House ul. Szpitalna 4 ☎12 429 3114, tangohouse.pl. Hidden in a secluded courtyard just round the corner from the main square, Tango is a B&B of two halves: the old part has a spectacular nineteenth-century staircase and en-suite rooms in soothing citrus colours, while the new part houses smart studios with kitchenettes. All rooms come with electric kettle; breakfast is 20zł extra. Doubles 280zł

EATING

Kraków's centre is renowned for its restaurants and cafés, which offer much beyond the Polish culinary staples.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Camelot ul. św. Tomasza 15. A chic, artsy café with wooden furnishings, peasant-art motifs on the walls, and occasional cabaret shows in the basement. Excellent desserts, including the best apple pie in town (12.50zł). Daily 9am–midnight.

Chimera ul. św. Anny 3. Expansive buffet selection in a soothing courtyard, with attractively priced main courses, a salad bar and plenty of vegetarian choices. Single portions 5zł, plateful 18zł. Daily 11am–10pm.

La Petite France ul. św. Tomasza 25. An attractive deli-bistro with five small tables and a row of stools pushed against the street-facing window ledge. This is a fantastic place to tuck into what is arguably the best quiche in Kraków (10zł) or a more filling baguette sandwich (13zł). Daily 9am–10pm.

★ Nowa Prowincja ul. Bracka 3–5. Homely, relaxed café owned by local musician legend Grzegorz Turnau, with a wonderful wooden loft, thick hot chocolate and Kraków's best lattes (10zł). Daily 9am–11pm.

U Babci Maliny ul. Sławkowska 17. Upmarket milk bar with a mountain hut interior, serving suitably wholesome Polish classics. Mains 9–18zł. Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm.

U Stasi ul. Mikołajska 16. Lunchtime classic favoured by locals, hidden behind a pizzeria, with unusually friendly service and delicious knedle (dumplings) stuffed with plums (7zł). Mon–Fri 12.30pm until the food runs out.

RESTAURANTS

Dynia Resto-Bar ul. Krupnicza 20. The city's most stylish student hangout, complete with blissful walled garden, has amazing breakfasts (15–30zł), healthy salad or pasta lunches and seductive desserts. Mon–Sat 8am–11pm, Sun 9am–10pm.

Horai Plac Wolnica 4. Long-established pan-Asian eatery that consistently rates highly for quality and price. The menu covers everything from dim sum to sushi sets, although it's the devilishly spicy Thai dishes that stand out. Mains in the 30–35zł bracket. Daily noon–10pm.

Pierogi u Wincenta ul. Bozego Ciała 12. Tiny six-table place with a huge selection of own-recipe pierogi, including plenty of vegetarian options (such as pierogi with broccoli and feta). Mon–Wed & Sun noon–10pm, Thurs noon–11pm, Fri & Sat noon–midnight.

Zielona Kuchnia ul. Grabowskiego 8/9. Hidden away just northwest of the Old Town and with a wonderful garden courtyard, "Green Kitchen" serves up Polish-Mediterranean fusion cuisine with a contemporary twist. The risotto with seasonal vegetables (29zł) makes for a perfect summertime lunch. Mon–Sat 1–10pm, Sun 1–8pm.

★TREAT YOURSELF

Marmolada ul. Grodzka 5. Traditional Polish cuisine with an Italian twist – the Saltimbocca veal (50zł) and roast goose with cherries (52zł) are both memorably rich and satisfying – and there's a lot more to choose from, too. With candles on the tables and floral decor, it's as relaxing as they come. Daily noon–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

For best value head to Kazimierz or the student quarter to the west of the Old Town.

BARS

★ Alchemia ul. Estery 5. Murky, quirky and always packed, this candlelit rabbit warren has a stuffed crocodile over the bar and a full programme of live jazz, rock and cabaret in the adjoining basement club: 0.5lt beer 7.50zł. Mon 10am–3am, Tues–Thurs 9am–3am, Fri & Sat 9am–4am, Sun 9am–2am.

Ambasada Śledzia ul. Stolarska 8/10. The Herring Embassy doffs an ironic cap to the drinking culture of the communist era, with cheap drinks and retro bar snacks (like marinated herring and jellied meats) in a trendy minimalist matt-black interior. Note that sister bar Śledź u Fryzera across the road at Stolarska 5 is open until 5am. Daily 8am–midnight.

Drukarnia Nadwiślańska 1 ☎ drukarniaclub.pl. Roomy bar just over the river from Kazimierz, with several rooms decked out in different styles, from arty Parisian café to brash party pub. There's also a basement-level club venue hosting regular DJs and live music. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–1am, Fri & Sat 9am–4am.

Eszeweria ul. Józefa 9. Characteristically dimly lit Kazimierz café bar that is sometimes so dark inside that you can't even see the person behind the counter, never mind the range of drinks on offer. Once you've succeeded in choosing your tipple, sink into one of the salvage-chic armchairs indoors, or head for the lush garden courtyard at the back. Sun–Thurs 10am–2am, Fri & Sat 10am–5am.

Forum Przestrzenie ul. Marii Konopniczej 28. Occupying the reception of the former Forum Hotel, this hugely popular café-bar extends out onto the riverbank in summer, offering deckchairs, film shows, food fairs and an indie-retro musical mix. A decent food menu (veggie curry 18zł) and fantastic views of the Wawel add to its list of attributes. Daily 11am–2am.

House of Beer ul. św. Tomasza 35. This roomy and convivial Old Town pub is the ideal place to plough your way through a selection of the increasingly excellent ales turned out by Poland's small breweries. Guest ales on tap (from 7zł/0.5lt). Daily 2pm–2am.

Les Couleurs ul. Estery 10. A smoky and colourful Parisian-style café-bar serving light meals and alcoholic beverages of every description: cocktails around 14zł. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8am–midnight, Fri & Sat 8am–2am.

Mostowa Art Café ul. Mostowa 8. Located on the approach to the Podgórze footbridge, Art Café lives up to its name with a pop-art styled interior and contemporary canvases on the walls. Star attraction is the fridge full of craft beers from Poland and beyond. Sun–Thurs noon–10pm, Fri & Sat noon–midnight.

CLUBS

Frantic ul. Szewska 5. With two dancefloors, there's plenty of space here for grooving to a mix of r'n'b and old-school hits. Cocktails from 15zł. Wed–Sat 9pm–4am.

Piec/Art ul. Szewska 12 piecart.pl. One of the city's most reliable and enduring jazz bars, with live music 2–3 times a week in a sleek and snazzy brick-lined cellar. Entrance on gig nights 15–20zł; draught Tyskie beer 8zł/0.5lt. Daily 2pm–3am.

Piękny Pies ul. Bożego Ciała 9. The big back room of legendary bohemian hangout "Beautiful Dog" is devoted to live gigs and DJ action, with everything from alternative rock to electro to get your limbs shaking. Mon–Thurs & Sun 4pm–3am, Fri & Sat 4pm–5am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Cinema tickets are 12–22zł throughout the city.

Ars ul. św. Jana 6 ars.pl. Offers a mixture of Hollywood and international art films in an old-style cinema.

Kino Pod Baranami Rynek Główny 27 kinopodbaranami.pl. Screens a range of Western, Polish and Bollywood titles in an old-fashioned cinema setting.

SHOPPING

Touristy Floriańska and the boutiques in the Rynek contain a few bargain art dealers among the overpriced souvenirs. Kazimierz is filled with reasonably priced galleries and secondhand shops and, on Sun, pl. Nowy becomes a colourful flea market of cheap clothes and jewellery.

Galeria Krakowska next to the train station. An international "mall experience", with all the fashionable global brands that you could wish for, in addition to a large Carrefour supermarket. Mon–Sat 9am–10pm, Sun 10am–9pm.

Massolit Felicjanek 4. You can find a good selection of English used books, including translations of Polish authors, at this café/bookshop, which also serves some of Kraków's best apple pie. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–8pm, Fri & Sat 10am–9pm.

DIRECTORY

Consulate US, ul. Stolarska 9 ☎ 12 424 5100.

Exchange To avoid the large commission charged at the banks, check the kantor exchanges that fill the streets around the Rynek for the best rates.

Hospital Gabriel Narutowicz Hospital (Szpital im. Gabriela Narutowicza) north of the Old Town at ul. Prądnicka 35 (☎ 012 416 2266).

Left luggage The train station has a left-luggage depot (daily 7am–10pm; 5zł/24hr).

Pharmacies Bobilewicz, ul. Grodzka 26 (Mon–Fri 8am–9pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–5pm), and Pod Żłotą Głową, Rynek Główny 13 (Mon–Fri 9am–9pm, Sat 9am–4pm).

Post office ul. Westerplatte 20 (Mon–Fri 8am–8.30pm, Sat 8am–3pm).

AUSCHWITZ-BIRKENAU (OŚWIĘCIM)

Lying 70km west of Kraków and within easy day-trip range, the complex of camps known as AUSCHWITZ-BIRKENAU (auschwitz.org) has become synonymous with World War II and the Holocaust. The camps lie on the western fringes of OŚWIĘCIM, which is in all other respects a perfectly nondescript middle-sized Polish town.

Auschwitz was established by the Germans in 1940 to house Polish political prisoners but swiftly expanded to accommodate Soviet POWs. The Birkenau annexe, built in 1941 to cope with growing numbers, became the site of one of the Nazi regime's most notorious death camps: about 1.3 million people, ninety percent of them Jews, were murdered here. The Germans failed to destroy the camp before they left and over

KRAKÓW FESTIVAL CITY

In spring and summer hardly a week goes by in Kraków without at least one cultural festival taking place. Many events are held on the Main Market Square, or in outdoor locations elsewhere in the city. Stand-out events include the Jewish Culture Festival (June/July; jewishfestival.pl), with exhibitions, seminars and enjoyable Klezmer concerts in Kazimierz; the Summer Jazz Festival (July/Aug; cracjazz.com), with big names taking to a variety of outdoor stages; and Kraków Live Festival (Aug; livefestival.pl), with three days of international pop-rock (Franz Ferdinand and The Chemical Brothers are among previous headliners) in an open-air location – camping is available. One of the most enjoyable and accessible events is the spectacular annual Dragon Parade organized by the Groteska Theatre (early June; groteska.pl), when people from all over Poland parade their dragons prior to a "Battle of the Dragons" son-et-lumière show beside the Wisła.

25 60,000 prisoners survived – which is why the horrors perpetrated here are so well documented. The two sites, Auschwitz and Birkenau, are 3km apart, but are linked by shuttle bus. Together they are visited by over 1.3 million visitors a year.

Auschwitz

Most visitors start at Auschwitz (daily: Feb 8am–4pm; March & Oct 8am–5pm; April, May & Sept 8am–6pm, June–Aug 8am–7pm; Dec & Jan 8am–2pm; English-language tours on the hour 9.30am–3.30pm; guided tour 40zł; non-guided visits free), which is 3km west of Oświęcim town centre. From April to October participation in guided tours is compulsory between 10am and 3pm, so if you want to visit the Auschwitz site on your own, arrive outside these times. Once beyond the entrance gate (bearing the notorious cast-iron inscription Arbeit Macht Frei), the site consists of a series of red-brick barrack blocks, many of which contain a museum display relating to a particular aspect of the camp or a particular nation whose citizens were deported here.

Block 13 contains an account of Europe's Roma and Sinti communities (an estimated 20,000 of whom died here); block 5 contains rooms full of spectacles, prosthetic limbs, pots and pans, all confiscated from inmates of the camp and abandoned here when the Germans retreated. The prison blocks finish by a gas chamber and a pair of ovens where the bodies were incinerated.

Birkenau

The enormous Birkenau camp (same hours as Auschwitz; allow 1–2hr to explore the site fully) was designed as a death camp in 1942, when the Nazis developed their policy of exterminating European Jewry. Large gas chambers at the back of the camp were damaged but not destroyed by the fleeing Nazis in 1945. Victims arrived in closed trains, and those who were fit to work (around 25 percent) were immediately separated from those who were driven straight to the gas chambers. The railway line is still there, just as the Nazis abandoned it.

One of the few buildings still standing here is the so-called Sauna, where the newly arrived were undressed, shaved and assigned camp clothes – a matter-of-fact museum display takes you methodically through the process.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus You can catch one of the regular buses (2–3 hourly; 1hr 45min) to the main Auschwitz site from Kraków's main bus station. There's an hourly shuttle-bus service (April–Oct) to the Birkenau section from the car park at Auschwitz. Taxis are also available; otherwise it's a 3km walk.

THE TATRAS AND ZAKOPANE

Some 80km long, with peaks of up to 2500m, the Tatras are the most spectacular part of the mountain range extending along Poland's border with Slovakia. They are as beautiful as any mountain landscape in northern Europe, the ascents leading along boulder-strewn trails beside woods and streams and culminating in breathtaking, windswept peaks. The peaks are topped with snow for most of the year, making it a great area for skiing (from mid-Dec to March). The mountains are a protected national park and harbour rare species such as lynx, golden eagles and brown bear.

The main base for skiing and hiking on the Polish side is the popular resort of Zakopane. There are good road and rail links with Kraków, 60km north, as well as several mountain resorts across the border in Slovakia.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Skiing here is cheap, with the premier slopes of Kasprowy Wierch just a few minutes out of town, and plenty of places in the town centre to rent equipment.

Hikers may want to avoid the 9km path to the lovely but busy Morskie Oko Lake in high season, but there's no shortage of other, more secluded, trails. Zakopane's

INTO SLOVAKIA

The coach company Strama runs 5 daily buses (mid-Oct to mid-June 2 daily) to Poprad (2hr; 22zł; strama.eu), a Slovakian skiing and hiking centre.

market at the bottom of ul. Krupówki sells a wide range of traditional local goods, including oscypek (smoked sheep's cheese) and small woodcarvings. This latter local tradition is intriguingly displayed in the whimsical wooden tombs of the nearby Old Cemetery (Stary Cementarz).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Zakopane station is on ul. Kosciuszki, a 10min walk east of the pedestrianized main street, ul. Krupówki. Destinations Kraków (3 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The bus station is located next to the train station. Destinations Kraków (every 20min; 2hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Tourist office just west of the stations at ul. Kościuszki 17 (March–June & Sept to mid-Dec Mon–Fri 9am–5pm; July & Aug daily 9am–5pm; ☎ 018 201 2211, 🌐 promocja.zakopane.pl).

Tatra National Park Information Centre near the park entrance at ul. Chałubińskiego 44 (daily: Jan–April & Oct 7am–4pm; May & June 7am–5pm; July & Aug 7am–6pm; Nov & Dec 7am–3pm; ☎ 18 202 3300, 🌐 tpn.pl); provides good-quality maps and information on hiking routes.

ACCOMMODATION

Finding a place to stay is rarely a problem in Zakopane as, in addition to the hostels, many homeowners in town offer private rooms.

★ Goodbye Lenin ul. Chłabówka 44 ☎ 18 200 1330, 🌐 zakopane.goodbyelenin.pl. Lying 3.5km out of town, this cosy house in the woods is the perfect place to focus on hiking and skiing. Call ahead for a ride from the bus station. Dorms 35zł, doubles 120zł

Hotel Fian ul. Chałubińskiego 38 ☎ 18 201 5071, 🌐 fian.pl. With a sauna and jacuzzi to ease hiking aches, this place also prides itself on the “gastronomic experience” offered by its resident chef. Breakfast included. Doubles 235zł

Stara Polana ul. Nowotarska 59 ☎ 18 206 8902, 🌐 starapolana.pl. A warm wood-panelled interior, satellite TV and friendly service make this hostel excellent value. Dorms 40zł, doubles 120zł

Villa Orla ul. Kościeliska 50 ☎ 18 201 2697, 🌐 willaoarla.pl. Traditional partly timbered house with cosy rooms, many with sloping attic ceilings. The buffet breakfast is served up in a sunny room stuffed with vintage clocks. Doubles 160zł

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Head to the area around ul. Krupówki where you'll find plenty of lively bars and restaurants.

★ Bar Mleczny ul. Krupówki 1, entrance from ul. Nowotarska. Pricey for a milk bar, but still the cheapest eats in town with hearty Polish mains for 9–15zł. Daily 9am–7pm.

★ Café Piano in a secluded courtyard behind ul. Krupówki 63. Contemporary design meets rustic chic here, with swings instead of bar stools and a garden patio thick with shrubs and ferns. Daily noon–midnight.

Dobra Kasza Nasza ul. Krupówki 48. Wooden pavilion decorated with banquettes and lounge-bar stylings, offering bowls of baked buckwheat (kasza) with a variety of savoury accompaniments – ranging from bacon and mushroom to chicken curry. Filling, inexpensive, and actually rather good. Daily noon–11pm.

Owczarnia ul. Galicy 4. Giant grilled steaks, kielbasa (sausage) and local trout are the specialties in this lively grill-house. Mains 12–35zł. Daily 10am–midnight.

Western Poland

Tossed for centuries back and forth between the Poles, Germans and Czechs, Poland's southwestern province of Silesia is a fascinating blend of cultures, languages and architectural styles. Its main city, Wrocław, is the focus of Poland's new economic dynamism. Vibrant Poznań to the north, the heart of the original Polish nation, is one of the country's oldest cities and a key commercial link to Western Europe.

WROCLAW

WROCLAW (pronounced “vrots-waf”), the fourth-largest city in Poland, is used to being rebuilt. For centuries it was known as Breslau and inhabited by Germans, but this changed after the war, as thousands of displaced Poles flocked to the ruined city. The various influences are reflected in Wrocław's architecture, with its mammoth Germanic churches, Flemish-style mansions and Baroque palaces. The latest rebuilding came after a catastrophic flood in the early 1990s, which left most of the centre underwater. Fortunately, the reconstruction that followed has rejuvenated the pretty Old Town. Wrocław's term as European Capital of Culture in 2016 gave a significant boost to tourism and the arts, and the city boasts the vigorous air of a place on the rise.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Wrocław's historical centre is delineated by the former city walls, bordered by a moat and a shady park, and by the River Odra to the north, whose pretty islands are home to a handful of churches.

The Market Square

In the heart of the town is the vast Market Square (Rynek) and the thirteenth-century town hall, with its magnificently ornate facades. The hall now houses the applied art collections of the Town Museum (Wed–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 10am–6pm; 20zł). In the northwest corner of the square are two curious Baroque houses known as Jaś i Małgosia (Hansel and Gretel), linked by a gateway giving access to St Elizabeth's, the finest of Wrocław's churches. Its 90m tower (Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun noon–7pm; 5zł) is the city's most prominent landmark.

Jewish quarter

Southwest of the square lies the former Jewish quarter, whose inhabitants were driven from their tenements during the Third Reich. One of the largest synagogues in Poland, the Synagoga pod Białym Bocianem (Synagogue Under the White Stork; Mon–Thurs 10am–5pm, Fri 10am–3pm, Sun 11am–4pm; free), lies hidden in a courtyard at ul. Włodkowica 9, and contains an absorbing museum of Jewish life.

The Raclawice Panorama and the National Museum

East of the city centre, a rotunda houses the famous Panorama of the Battle of Raclawice (mid-April to Sept daily 9am–5pm; Oct Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; Nov to mid-April Tues–Sun 9am–4pm; shows every 30min but expect queues; 30zł, including entrance to the National Museum). This painting – 120m long and 15m high – was commissioned in 1894 for the centenary of the Russian army's defeat by Tadeusz Kościuszko's militia at Raclawice, a village near Kraków. You can also visit the nearby National Museum (Wed–Fri & Sun 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–6pm; closes 1hr earlier Oct–March; 15zł, Sat free), with its colourful exhibition of twentieth-century Polish installation artists like Jozef Szajna.

University quarter

North of the Market Square is the historic and buzzing university quarter, full of bargain eateries and tiny bookshops. At its centre is the huge Collegium Maximum, whose Aula Leopoldina assembly hall, upstairs at pl. Uniwersytecki 1 (Mon, Tues & Thurs 10am–4pm, Fri–Sun 10am–5pm; 12zł), is one of the greatest secular interiors of the Baroque age.

Wyspa Piasek and Ostrów Tumski

Northeast from the Market Hall, the Piaskowy Bridge leads to the attractive island of Wyspa Piasek and the fourteenth-century church of St Mary of the Sands, with its majestically vaulted ceiling. Two elegant little bridges connect the island with Ostrów Tumski, the city's ecclesiastical heart, home to several Baroque palaces and the vast Cathedral of St John the Baptist.

Centennial Hall and the Afrykarium

Two kilometres east of the centre in Szczytnicki Park (trams #4 and #10) looms the huge dome of the Centennial Hall (Hala Stulecia), a celebrated modernist masterpiece dating from 1913. Inside, the Discovery Centre (Centrum Poznawce; Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–6pm, Fri & Sat 9am–7pm; 12zł) contains an audio-visual display devoted to modern architecture.

A short walk south, Wrocław Zoo (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat & Sun 9am–7pm; 40zł) is well worth visiting for the Afrykarium, a striking contemporary pavilion whose huge aquaria hold manatees, crocodiles and other denizens of the African continent.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Take bus #106 from the airport to Wrocław's (reasonably central) main train station (30min; 3zł). The equivalent taxi ride costs 50–70zł.

By train The main train station, Wrocław Główny, faces the broad boulevard of ul. Piłsudskiego, a 15min walk south of the Market Square.

Destinations Dresden (3 daily; 3hr 30min); Gdańsk (4 daily; 5hr); Kraków (every 2 hours; 3hr 10min); Poznań (hourly; 2hr); Warsaw (5 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus The main station is just to the south of the train station.

EATING

Bazyli ul. Kuźnica 42. Stylishly minimalist canteen, with food priced by weight (2.69zł/100g) and a wonderful view onto the Collegium. Expect tasty soups, vegetable side dishes, chicken escalopes and lots of salads. Daily 8am–7pm.

Bułka z masłem ul. Włodkowica 8a. Charming little café with a famously leafy garden terrace, serving everything from late breakfasts to gourmet burgers. Draws a crowd on weekdays due to the excellent two-course set lunch (28zł). Mon–Sat 10am–midnight, Sun 11am–midnight.

Mis ul. Kuźnica 48. Extremely popular and well-known milk bar that provides quick, filling grub for the student crowd. Mains 4zł. Mon–Fri 7am–6pm, Sat 8am–5pm.

Pod II Strusiem ul. Ruska 61. Set in a rejuvenated former lavatory, this place dishes out some tasty pizzas (18–28zł). Particularly good for those who like their pizzas hot – the Ognista ("Fiery One") comes in four varying levels of spiciness; Level Four is definitely a challenge. Mon–Thurs noon–11pm, Fri–Sun noon–midnight.

★ TREAT YOURSELF

JaDka restaurant ul. Rzeźnicza 24/25, ☎ 071 343 6461. A meal at this renowned restaurant may not be cheap (though some classics like pierogi come in at 27–39zł), but you can be assured of world-class Polish cuisine and excellent service. Daily 1–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Art Café Kalambur ul. Kuźnica 29a. This ornate Art Nouveau pub, with its period bronze-work and retro vibe, is a hangout for theatre types and hosts occasional live music. 0.5lt beer 7.50zł. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–2am, Fri & Sat noon–4am.

Barbarka Wyspa Słodowa 6. Consisting of a riverside pontoon and a deckchair-scattered stretch of lawn, thus popular "beach" bar attracts an outdoor café crowd in the daytime and bopping revellers at night. May–Sept Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–midnight, Fri & Sat 9am–3am.

Bezzennosc ul. Ruska 51. Just 10min away from the Rynek in the bar-packed Pasaż Niepolda courtyard, this graffiti-lined cellar resounds to a fun mix of indie, electronic and reggae tunes. Cocktails 15–20zł. Mon–Wed & Sun 7pm–3am, Thurs–Sat 7pm–5am.

Nagi Kamerdyner ul. św. Mikołaja. Retro-American bar that looks like something out of pulp-film noir, serving up cheap drinks and traditional snacks (pierogi, white sausage, herring) to an every-night-is-Friday-night crowd. Snacks 8zł, pizzas 18–24zł, vodka 5zł. Mon–Thurs 5pm–4am, Fri & Sat 5pm–7am, Sun 5pm–3am.

POZNAŃ

Thanks to its position on the Berlin–Warsaw rail line, POZNAŃ is many visitors' first taste of Poland. It's a city of great diversity, encompassing tranquil medieval quarters, a fine main square, dynamic business districts and an arty-bohemian subculture.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The sixteenth-century town hall that dominates the Old Town Square (Stary Rynek) has a striking eastern facade, which frames a frieze of notable Polish monarchs. Inside is the Poznań Historical Museum (mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Thurs 11am–5pm, Fri noon–9pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; mid-Sept to mid-June Tues–Thurs 9am–3pm, Fri noon–9pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; 7zł; Sat free), worth visiting for the Renaissance Great Hall on the first floor. East of the Old Town Square, a bridge crosses to the quiet holy island of Ostrów Tumski, dominated by Poland's oldest cathedral, the Cathedral of St John the Baptist. Most of the building was reconstructed after the war, and Poland's first two monarchs are buried in the crypt. Just east of the cathedral, the Porta Posnania museum at ul. Gdańska 2 (Tues–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–7pm; 15zł; www.bramapoznania.pl) presents multi-media exhibitions about the history of Poznań in an award-winning contemporary building.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Poznań's airport is 7km west of the Old Town and is served by bus #59 (30min; 4.60zł), which runs to the Rondo Kaponiera just north of the train station, and by bus #L to the station itself (4.60zł). The 10min taxi ride from the airport is 50–60zł.

By train The main train station, Poznań Główny, is 2km southwest of the historic quarter; tram #5 runs from the western exit on ul. Głogowska to the city centre.

Destinations Berlin (4 daily; 2hr 50min–3hr 15min); Gdańsk (5 daily; 3hr); Kraków (4 daily; 5–7hr); Toruń (9 daily; 1hr 30min); Warsaw (hourly; 2hr 45min–3hr); Wrocław (hourly; 2hr).

By bus The main bus terminal is a 15min walk south from the Old Town Square, at the intersection of ul. Ratajczaka and ul. Królowej Jadwigi.

INFORMATION

Tourist information Tourist office at Stary Rynek 59/60 (May–Oct Mon–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–April Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm; ☎ 61 852 6156, www.cim.poznan.pl).

GETTING AROUND

By public transport Poznań's public transport works on a timed basis; a 15min (3zł) ticket should be adequate for any travel within the centre.

ACCOMMODATION

The city's trade fairs, which take place throughout the year (except July & Aug), can cause hotel prices to double, so always book ahead.

Melange ul. Rybaki 6a ☎ 50 707 0107, www.melangehostel.com. In a slightly tacky old building 10min south of the centre, but the rooms are comfortable and nicely decorated, and staff are friendly. Dorms 40zł, doubles 120zł

Melody Hostel Stary Rynek 67 (entrance on ul. Kozia) ☎ 61 851 6060, www.melody-hostel.com. Central location, a good choice of either dorms or privates, popular-music-themed decor and a buffet breakfast make this an outstanding choice. Dorms 55zł, doubles 139zł

Mini Hotelik al. Niepodległości 8a ☎ 61 633 1416. This little place not far from the train station may look a bit frumpy, but its rooms are clean, good value and have TVs. Some have shared facilities, others are en suite. Doubles 139zł

EATING

Café Ptasia Radio ul. Kościuszki 74. A favourite with the arty elite, this sophisticated and cosy café provides good breakfasts, pasta dishes, salads and tasty desserts. Leave room for Ptasie's celebrated chocolate cake. Mains 19–39zł. Mon–Sat 8am–midnight, Sun 10am–11pm.

Spaghetti Bar Piccolo ul. Rynkowa 1. The buffet here comprises simple but tasty spaghetti dishes that are ready as you enter. Mains from 5.50zł. Mon–Sat 10am–9pm, Sun noon–9pm.

Warung Bali ul. Żydowska 1. Authentic Indonesian food that hasn't been blandly out to suit Central European taste buds, served in a bright interior. Mains from 35zł. Mon–Sat noon–11pm, Sun noon–9pm.

Wynarnia pod czarnym kotem ul. Wolsztynska 1. This welcoming suburban wine bar a 20min walk from the centre draws dedicated diners thanks to its mix of global fusion mains and Mediterranean tapas. Live gigs, open-air film screenings and a great choice of wine provide extra reasons to venture out this far. Mains 20–30zł. Daily 1–11.30pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Brovaria Stary Rynek 73. This bar in the Old Town Square may be predictably pricey, but the house-brewed pivo is some of Poland's finest. 0.5lt mulled honey beer 10zł. Daily 10am–1am.

Cuba Libre ul. Wrocławska 21. A Latin dance club popular with the student crowd, offering the best late-night party in town. 0.5lt beer 8zł. Mon–Wed 9pm–3am, Thurs–Sat 9pm–5am, Sun 9pm–1am.

Dragon ul. Zamkowa 3. Roomy pub with mix-and-match furniture, a buzzing beer garden and a live music venue (anything from free jazz to freak folk) in the basement. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–3am, Fri & Sat 10am–5am.

Meskalina Stary Rynek 6. Dive into the Arsenal art gallery on the main square to find this throbbing hipster pub popular with a student and post-university set. There's a menu of soups and bites, and frequent live gigs. Mon–Thurs & Sun 5pm–1am, Fri & Sat 5pm–4am.

Za kulisami ul. Wodna 24. Cosy two-room affair stuffed full of vintage domestic oddments and old books. Attracts a colourful and varied student-to-mad-professor crowd. Draught honey beer 10zł. Mon–Thurs 4pm–1am, Fri & Sat 4pm–3am, Sun 6pm–1am.

Introduction

Although Portugal is perhaps best known for the “fun in the sun” resorts of the Algarve, there’s much more to the Iberian Peninsula’s lesser-visited country than beautiful beaches. Portugal is geographically diverse yet small enough to travel around easily, with lively cities, mountain ranges, rural villages and a stunning coastline all within easy reach of each other. Another draw is the relaxed, laidback pace of life, meaning that, even in the biggest metropolises, stress and bustle are remarkably rare. And most importantly for the budget traveller, Portugal is one of the cheapest countries in Western Europe.

Scenically, some of the most interesting parts of the country are in the north: a verdant area home to Portugal’s only national park, Peneda-Gerês, as well as the sensational gorge and valley of the Douro, followed along its course by the spectacular Douro Rail Route. For contemporary Portugal, spend some time in Lisbon and Porto, the two major cities, both treasure-troves of cultural attractions with big party scenes to boot. And if it’s monuments you’re after, head to the centre of the country – above all, Coimbra and Évora – which retain a faded grandeur. The coast is virtually continuous beach, and apart from the Algarve and a few pockets around Lisbon and Porto, resorts remain relaxed, often sleepy. The loveliest of all are the wild, isolated beaches of the southern Alentejo.

CHRONOLOGY

219 BC The Romans capture the Iberian Peninsula from the Carthaginians, taking the settlement of “Portus Cale” in the process.

711 The Islamic Moors take control of large parts of present-day Portugal.

868 Establishment of the First County of Portugal, within the Kingdom of León.

1095 Crusaders help Portuguese to defeat the Moors.

1139 Afonso I, of the Burgundy dynasty, declares himself king of an independent Portugal.

1386 The Treaty of Windsor, the oldest diplomatic alliance in the world, is signed between England and Portugal, securing mutual military support.

1500s Portugal builds a large empire with colonies across the world including Mozambique, Goa and Brazil.

1580 During a succession crisis, Philip II of Spain invades and crowns himself Philip I of Portugal.

1703 Signing of the Methuen trade treaty with England, following which port wine becomes popular internationally.

1755 An enormous earthquake destroys much of Lisbon.

1822 Brazil declares independence from Portugal.

1916 Portugal joins World War I on the side of the Allies.

1926 Military coup sees Portugal fall under a right-wing dictatorship that would last until 1974.

1939 Portugal remains neutral during World War II.

1974 Government overthrown in a near bloodless coup.

1975 Independence is granted to all Portuguese African colonies.

1976 First free elections are held.

1986 Portugal joins the European Community.

2007 Mass demonstrations against the Portuguese government’s economic reforms.

2012 Unemployment exceeds fifteen percent as Portugal struggles through the ongoing European sovereign debt crisis.

2016 An anti-austerity government takes over, tourism booms and the Portuguese football team wins the 2016 Euros in France.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Mainland Portugal’s three main airports are Faro, Lisbon and Porto. Faro and Lisbon in particular are well linked to the rest of Europe by the budget airlines (notably Ryanair and easyJet), with services to and from Faro increasing during the summer rush. Bus is the quickest and most convenient method of overland transport from Spain, particularly if you are arriving from the south. Common daily routes include Seville–Faro, Seville–Lisbon and Madrid–Lisbon. Trains are a more costly but usually more comfortable option; the Madrid–Lisbon trenhotel runs nightly.

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

CP (cp.pt) runs Portugal's trains, which are very reasonably priced – particularly in the case of suburban services from Porto and Lisbon. Those designated Regionais stop at most stations. Intercidades are twice as fast and more expensive. The fastest and most luxurious are the Rápidos (known as “Alfa”), which speed between Lisbon, Coimbra and Porto. InterRail passes are valid, though you must reserve a seat on Alfa services (payable at the train station; €5). You can check timetables online (select “Horários y preços”) or call the information line on ☎ 808 208 208.

BY BUS

The bus network, made up of many regional companies, is more comprehensive and services are often faster, while for long journeys buses can sometimes be slightly cheaper than trains. On a number of major routes (particularly Lisbon–Algarve), express coaches can knock hours off standard multiple-stop bus journeys; Rede Expressos (rede-expressos.pt) is the largest bus operator. Other key operators include Rodonorte in the north (rodonorte.pt), Rodotejo in central Portugal (📍rodotejo.pt), Rodoviária do Alentejo in the Alentejo (📍rodalentejo.pt) and EVA (📍eva-bus.com) and Frota Azul (📍frotazul-algarve.pt) in the Algarve. For 24hr national bus information call 📞707 22 33 44.

BY BIKE

Cycling is popular, with a growing number of facilities to support cyclists. In the north and centre of the country the terrain is hilly, flattening out south of Lisbon. Bikes can be transported on trains for free, as long as there is space. Bus companies' policies vary so enquire before travelling.

ACCOMMODATION

There are more than fifty state-owned youth hostels in Portugal (Pousadas de Juventude; 📍pousadasjuventude.pt); most stay open all year and some impose a curfew. All require a valid HI card; for details see 📍hihostels.com. Alternatively, these hostels in Portugal can provide you with a guest card, which must be stamped every night that you stay (€2 per stamp); once you have five stamps you're a fully paid-up member of HI. A dormitory bed costs €12–17, depending on season and location; double and twin rooms in these hostels cost €30–45. There is also a growing number of independent hostels, particularly in Lisbon and Porto; they're a pricier alternative to official youth hostels but tend to be more conveniently located, and the best have hotel-quality facilities, plus free access to wi-fi and a well-stocked kitchen.

In almost any town you should be able to find a single room for around €30 and a double for under €50; cities are slightly more expensive. The main budget stand-bys are alojamentos particulares (guesthouses). Hotels tend to be more expensive. Seaside resorts invariably offer cheaper rooms (quartos) in private houses; tourist offices have lists. At the higher end of the scale are pousadas (📍pousadas.pt), often converted from old monasteries or castles, which charge at least four-star hotel prices. No matter what type of accommodation you select, breakfast will usually be included (exceptions are noted in this chapter).

Portugal has more than two hundred campsites, most small and attractively located, and all remarkably inexpensive – you'll rarely pay more than €8 a person, plus an additional fee for your tent. You can get a map list from any tourist office, or find details online at 📍roteiro-campista.pt. Camping rough is banned; beach areas are especially strict about this.

FOOD AND DRINK

Portuguese food is cheap and served in large portions. Virtually all cafés dish up a basic meal for less than €10, and for a little more you have the run of most of the country's restaurants. Snacks include tosta mistas (cheese and ham toasties), pastéis de bacalhau (cod fishcakes) and sandes (sandwiches). In restaurants you can usually have a substantial meal by ordering a meia dose (half-portion), or uma dose (one portion) between two. Most serve an ementa turística (set meal), which can be good value, particularly at lunchtime and in cheaper workers' cafés or churrasqueiras (grill restaurants serving meat and fish dishes). It's often worth opting for the prato do dia (dish of the day), usually the cheapest dish on the menu.

Meals may begin with unordered appetizers (from bread, butter and olives to more elaborate entrées), which often carry a hefty price tag if eaten – don't be afraid to send these back if you don't want them. Typical dishes include sopa de marisco (shellfish soup), caldo verde (finely shredded kale leaves in broth) and bacalhau (dried cod, cooked in myriad ways). Caldeirada is a fish stew cooked with onions and tomatoes, arroz marisco a similar stew cooked with seafood and rice. Cabrito assado (roast kid) is common in the north of the country, while down south you're sure to see frango piri-piri (chicken with chilli sauce) on the menu. Puddings include arroz doce (rice pudding) and pudim molotoff (a kind of lightly roasted meringue drenched in caramel sauce). Cakes – bolos or pastéis – are often at their best in pastelarias (patisseries), though you'll also find them in cafés and casas de chá (tearooms). Among the best are custard tarts (pastéis de nata).

DRINK

Portuguese wines (tinto for red, branco for white) are inexpensive and of high quality. The fortified port (vinho do Porto; see p.883) and madeira (vinho

SURFING IN PORTUGAL

Portugal boasts some of Europe's best beaches for surfing. Popular spots include Peniche in central Portugal, Guincho beach near Cascais in Lisbon, the Alentejo coast and the west coast of the Algarve, north of Sagres. First-timers would do well to try a surf school such as Peniche Surf Camp (€550 for a week in high season; 📞 penichesurfcamp.com) or The Surf Experience in Lagos (€467 for a week in high season; 📞 surf-experience.com); accommodation is included in courses. For those with a bit more experience, equipment is available for rent in all popular surfing spots (around €60–70 for a week's board rental).

while Lisbon specializes in the cherry brandy Ginjinha, which is served at tiny hole-in-the-wall bars throughout the city. The two most common Portuguese beers (cervejas) are Sagres and Super Bock.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Portugal is a Catholic country, so it's wise to show respect when visiting churches (bare shoulders should be covered and short skirts may be frowned upon), and avoid visiting during services, which take place on Sundays and sometimes on other days at around 9.30am. Learning a few basic phrases in Portuguese (see box, p.863) will certainly endear you to locals. Outside the main tourist areas in the north, French is more widely understood than English. In restaurants, it is usual to tip five to ten percent if you're satisfied with the service.

Lone women travellers should face no problems, but might attract a bit of curiosity from locals.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

In Portugal, football isn't just a sport: it's a national passion. During all major matches, the streets fall quiet as people flock inside – usually to restaurants and bars – to watch the game. The three biggest and most successful football clubs are FC Porto, Sporting Lisbon and Benfica. Surfing is also popular (see box above), and has become a key part of Portugal's tourist industry. Portugal's natural parks (parques naturais) and its one national park, the Parque Nacional de Peneda-Gerês in the north, provide superb hiking opportunities. More information about the parks can be found at 📞 icnf.pt, while tourist offices near the parks can provide maps and walking routes.

COMMUNICATIONS

Free wi-fi is available at nearly every hostel and café, as well as at libraries and via wi-fi hotspots in most town centres. There are no mobile phone roaming charges for EU citizens; non-EU citizens should consider buying a local SIM card, such as Lycamobile (📞 lycamobile.co.uk/en/Portugal). Post offices (correios) are generally open Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm, Saturday 9am to noon.

EMERGENCIES

Lisbon, Porto and the larger tourist areas are prone to petty crime, such as pickpockets. Pilfering from dorms is relatively rare, but it's wise to use the lockers provided or buy a padlock for your luggage. Travel on trains and buses is safe, with thefts a rarity. Portuguese police are stationed in most towns, and can be recognized by their dark blue uniforms. Lisbon and Porto have separate tourist police to deal with issues affecting visitors.

For minor health complaints go to a pharmacy (farmácia); pharmacists generally speak good English and can dispense many drugs without a prescription. Normal opening hours are Monday to Friday 9am to 1pm and 3 to 7pm, Saturday 9am to 1pm. A sign at each one will show the nearest 24hr pharmacy. You can get the address of an English-speaking doctor from a pharmacy, hotel or consular office.

INFORMATION

You'll find a tourist office (turismo) in almost every town. Staff can help you find a room (usually with commercial partners), and provide local maps and leaflets.

MONEY AND BANKS

Portugal's currency is the euro (€). Banks are open Monday to Friday 9am to 3pm; in Lisbon and in the Algarve, exchange offices may open in the evening to change money. ATMs are easy to find and credit cards are widely accepted.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

As a general guide, most shops' opening hours are Monday to Friday 9am to 12.30/1pm and 2/2.30 to 6/6.30pm, plus Saturday 9am to 12.30/1pm. Larger supermarkets tend to stay open until 8pm, but most shops are closed on Sunday, with some exceptions in the Algarve. Museums, churches and monuments open from around 9/10am to 6pm, with many state institutions free on the first Sunday of the month; almost all close on Mondays and at Easter; smaller

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

If you're under 30 it's worth buying a European Youth Card (🌐 eyca.org; €10), which gives sixty percent off admission costs, plus discounts on train and bus travel, and accommodation in official youth hostels. Some sights offer a smaller discount on production of a valid university card.

places often close for an hour or more at lunch. Restaurants often close on Sunday evenings. The main public holidays are: January 1, February carnival, Good Friday, April 25, May 1, Corpus Christi, June 10, June 13 (Lisbon only), August 15, October 5, November 1, December 1, December 8 and December 25.

Lisbon and around

There are few more immediately likeable European capitals than LISBON (Lisboa). A lively city, it remains in some ways curiously provincial, and rooted as much in the 1920s as the twenty-first century. Wooden trams clank up outrageous gradients, past mosaic pavements, Art Nouveau cafés and the medieval quarter of Alfama, which hangs below the São Jorge castle. The city invested heavily for Expo 98 and the 2004 European Football Championships, reclaiming run-down docks and improving communication links, and today it combines an easy-going pace and manageable scale with a vibrant, cosmopolitan identity.

Lisbon has a huge amount of historic interest. Though the Great Earthquake of 1755 (followed by a tsunami and fire) destroyed most of the grandest buildings, several monuments from Portugal's sixteenth-century golden age survived and frantic reconstruction led to the building of many impressive new palaces and churches across the city's seven hills.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Many of Lisbon's historical sights, such as the Sé (cathedral) and the Castelo de São Jorge, are located in the centre's eastern portion, best reached by following Rua de Conceição and its continuations as they wind away from the Baixa, the city's eighteenth-century core, towards the ancient district of Alfama. The city centre can be explored on foot, but a quick hop on a tram or elevador is a less strenuous way of scaling Lisbon's hills. Public transport is also necessary to reach outlying sights such as those located in Belém, 6km west of the centre, and the Fundação Calouste Gulbenkian, north of the city's main artery, the Avenida da Liberdade. The Baixa is the city's principal shopping district, with more elegant and trendy boutiques located in Chiado and Bairro Alto respectively. Bairro Alto is the area to head for food, fado and fun, while the trendy, riverfront Cais do Sodré is the up-and-coming place to be seen.

LISBON

Baixa

The heart of the capital is the lower town – the Baixa – Europe's first great example of Neoclassical design and urban planning. It's an imposing quarter of rod-straight streets, some streaming with traffic, but most pedestrianized with mosaic cobbles. The Baixa's northernmost boundary is Rossio Square (officially Praça dom Pedro IV), the area's hub, busy at almost all hours of the day and night and housing some old-style cafés and the grand Teatro Nacional Dona Maria II. At the waterfront end of the Baixa lies the city's other main square, the beautiful arcaded Praça do Comércio.

The Sé

Lisbon's Sé or cathedral (daily 9am–7pm; free) stands on Largo da Sé in the city centre's eastern portion. The oldest church in Lisbon, it was founded in 1147 to commemorate the city's reconquest from the Moors, and occupies the site of the principal mosque of Moorish Lishbuna. Like so many of Portugal's cathedrals, it is Romanesque and restrained in both size and decoration. It was damaged in the 1755 earthquake, and extensively restored in the 1930s.

Castelo de São Jorge

East of the Baixa, Rua Augusto Rosa and its continuations wind up towards the castle, past the Miradouro de Santa Luzia, which offers spectacular views over the River Tejo. The Castelo de São Jorge (daily: March–Oct 9am–9pm; Nov–Feb 9am–6pm; €8.50) contains the restored remains of the Moorish palace that once stood here, and its ramparts and towers boast some excellent views of the city, particularly from the camera obscura (half-hourly viewings in summer).

Alfama

The Alfama quarter, tumbling from the walls of the Castelo to the banks of the Tejo, is the oldest part of Lisbon, and one of its most beautiful, thanks to its picturesque narrow alleyways and breathtaking hilltop views. Despite a definite tourist presence, the quarter retains a largely traditional feel. The Feira da Ladra, Lisbon's rambling flea market, fills the Campo de Santa Clara at the northeastern edge of Alfama, from dawn until early afternoon every Tuesday and Saturday. Also worth a visit is the nearby church of São Vicente de Fora (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €5), a former monastery containing some exquisite eighteenth-century azulejos (tiles). The church also houses, in almost complete sequence, the bodies of all Portuguese kings from João IV, who restored the monarchy in 1640, to Manuel II, who lost it and died in exile in England in 1932.

Chiado

Between the Baixa and Bairro Alto, halfway up the hill, lies an area known as Chiado, which suffered much damage in a fire in 1988 but has been elegantly rebuilt by Portugal's premier architect, Álvaro Siza Vieira. It remains the city's most affluent quarter, centred on Rua Garrett and its fashionable shops and chic cafés. The Elevador de Santa Justa (€5 return), built by Eiffel disciple Raul Mésnier de Ponsard, is an elaborate wrought-iron lift which transports passengers from Rua de Santa Justa in the Baixa to a platform next to the ruined Gothic arches of the Convento do Carmo. Once Lisbon's largest church, it was half-destroyed by the 1755 earthquake, becoming perhaps even more beautiful as a result, its vaulted arches reaching dramatically towards the sky. It now houses an archaeological museum (Mon–Sat: June–Sept 10am–7pm; Oct–May 10am–6pm; €3.50) which, alongside sculptures from the original church, contains an eclectic assortment of treasures from prehistoric times to the modern day.

Bairro Alto

High above and to the west of the Baixa is the vibrant quarter of Bairro Alto, Lisbon's after-dark playground. Its narrow streets are lined with trendy clothing outlets, fado clubs, and a multitude of bars and restaurants. The district can be reached by two funicular-like trams – the Elevador da Glória from Praça dos Restauradores or the Elevador da Bica from Rua de São Paulo (€3.60 for up to two trips).

The Fundação Calouste Gulbenkian

The Fundação Calouste Gulbenkian is a ten-minute walk north of Lisbon's main park, the Parque Eduardo VII – or take the metro to São Sebastião. The Foundation, established by the oil magnate and prolific collector Calouste Gulbenkian, helps finance various aspects of Portugal's cultural life, including the two art galleries located here. The Museu Calouste Gulbenkian (daily 10am–6pm; €5, free Sun; gulbenkian.pt/museu) is Portugal's greatest museum, divided into two distinct parts – the first devoted to Egyptian, Greco-Roman, Islamic and Oriental arts, the second to European. There's also a stunning room full of Art Nouveau jewellery by René Lalique. Across the gardens, the Centro de Arte Moderna (same hours; €5, joint ticket €8) houses works by all the big names from the twentieth-century Portuguese scene, as well as top British artists such as Antony Gormley and David Hockney.

Museu Nacional de Arte Antiga

Another of Lisbon's top art museums, the Museu Nacional de Arte Antiga (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €6; museudearteantiga.pt; tram #25 from Praça do Comércio) is situated near the riverfront at Rua das Janelas Verdes 95. Its core collection comprises fifteenth- and sixteenth-century Portuguese works, the masterpiece being Nuno Gonçalves' St Vincent Altarpiece. There are also Portuguese ceramics, textiles and furniture on display, as well as decorative arts from Asia and Africa.

Museu do Oriente

Set in a converted bacalhau warehouse down on the docks en route to Belém, the vast Museu do Oriente, on Av Brasília, Doca de Alcântara Norte (Tues–Thurs, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm, Fri 10am–10pm; €6, free on Fri after 6pm; museu.dooriente.pt; tram #15 from Praça do Comércio), is home to a wealth of artefacts from the Orient, with a particular emphasis on Portugal's former Asian colonies.

LX Factory

A short walk west of the Doca de Alcântara, LX Factory (Rua Rodrigues de Faria 3) is one of Lisbon's coolest cultural spaces – a converted former factory site that now houses artists' studios alongside cafés, design shops and restaurants. Creative use is made of the old buildings, such as a former printing press now transformed into a bookshop and bar.

Belém

Six kilometres west of the centre lies the suburb of Belém, from where, in 1497, Vasco da Gama set sail for India. Partly funded by a levy on all spices other than pepper, cinnamon and cloves, the Mosteiro dos Jerónimos (Monastery of Jerónimos; Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–6.30pm; Oct–April 10am–5.30pm, with last admission half an hour before closing; €10, free on the first Sunday of the month; tram #15 from Praça do Comércio) was begun in 1502 and is the most ambitious achievement in the flamboyant late Gothic style which thrived under Manuel I (1495–1521). Vaulted throughout and fantastically embellished, the cloister is one of the most original and beautiful pieces of architecture in Portugal, perfectly balancing Gothic forms and Renaissance ornamentation.

Another monument from the Age of Discoveries is the turreted Torre de Belém (Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–6.30pm; Oct–April 10am–5.30pm; €6, free first Sunday of the month), on the edge of the river around 500m from the monastery. This iconic landmark was built during the last five years of Dom Manuel's reign to guard the entrance to Lisbon's port.

Commemorating the era in contemporary style is the vast concrete Padrão dos Descobrimentos (Monument to the Discoveries; March–Sept daily 10am–7pm; Oct–Feb Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; last admission 30min before closing; €4), built in 1960 to mark the 500th anniversary of the death of Henry the Navigator, King João I's son, who began Portugal's worldwide explorations; inside is a video exhibition tracing Lisbon's history. A lift takes you to the top for spectacular views.

Step back into the present day at the Centro Cultural de Belém (Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; free; ccb.pt), a modern space which hosts a varied programme of concerts and excellent temporary exhibitions of contemporary art and photography. It's also home to the Colecção Berardo (daily 10am–7pm; free), a captivating collection of modern art including works by Andy Warhol, Paula Rego and Picasso.

Parque das Nações and the Oceanarium

Built on reclaimed docklands for Expo '98, the Parque das Nações (Park of Nations), 5km east of the centre, has become a popular entertainment park, containing concert venues, theatres, restaurants and a large shopping centre, Centro Vasco da Gama. The park occupies a traffic-free riverside zone with water features and some dazzling modern architecture. The main attraction is the Oceanário de Lisboa (daily: May–Sept 10am–8pm, Oct–April 10am–6pm; €14; oceanario.pt; oriente.pt), one of Europe's largest oceanariums, an awe-inspiring collection of fish and sea mammals based around a central tank the size of four Olympic swimming pools.

Football stadiums

Lovers of the beautiful game will find Lisbon a paradise, with two top-ranking Portuguese clubs based in the city. Benfica's home is the impressive Estádio da Luz (daily 10am–6pm except match days; museum €10, or €15 including stadium tour); slbenfica.pt; [colegio militar/luz](http://colegio militar/luz)), built for Euro 2004.

Sporting's Estádio Jose Alvalade was also constructed for the same event, and is equally modern (Mon–Fri 11am–6pm except match days; museum including stadium tour €10; sporting.pt; campo-grande). If you're in town on a match day (season runs Sept–June; see websites for fixtures), head to the stadium a few hours before kick-off to secure a ticket (from €20–50).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane From Humberto Delgado airport, 7km northeast of the centre, the Aerobus (every 20–30min, 7am–11.20pm; 20min; €3.50 single) runs from outside arrivals to Praça dos Restauradores, Rossio, Praça do Comércio and Cais do Sodré. Metro trains on the red line (see below) run from the airport to Oriente train station and to Alameda metro stop where you can change line for services to Rossio and Baixa-Chiado in the city centre.

By train Trains to and from northern and central Portugal stop at Santa Apolónia Station, a 15–20min walk from Praça do Comércio or a quick hop on the metro (take the blue line from Terreiro do Paço). Trains from the Algarve and Évora terminate at Oriente station, at the end of the red metro line. Local trains from Sintra arrive and depart from Rossio station at the northwestern end of the square.

Destinations from Santa Apolónia Braga (13 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr 30min); Coimbra (20 daily; 2–2hr 45min); Porto (18 daily; 2hr 45min–3hr 10min); Tomar (hourly; 2hr).

Destinations from Oriente Faro (6 daily; 3hr–3hr 30min); Madrid (2 nightly; 10hr–11hr 30min); Tavira (5 daily; 4–5hr).

Destinations from Rossio Sintra (every 20–30min; 40min).

By bus The main Rede Expressos bus station is next to the Jardim Zoológico metro stop.

Destinations Alcobaca (4 daily; 2hr); Coimbra (at least hourly; 2hr 20min); Évora (hourly; 1hr 40min); Faro (6–8 daily; 3hr 45min); Lagos (3–8 daily; 4hr 30min); Madrid (2 daily; 7hr 45min–11hr 30min); Porto (hourly; 3hr 30min–4hr); Seville (2 daily; 7hr–7hr 30min); Tomar (3 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr 30min); Vila Nova de Milfontes (3–4 daily; 3hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main tourist office is the Lisboa Welcome Centre, on the corner of Praça do Comércio and Rua do Arsenal (daily 9am–8pm; 210 312 700, visitlisboa.com). There are also Ask Me Lisboa kiosks around the city, including one at the airport (daily 7am–midnight) and one at Santa Apolónia station. Staff at these booths can book accommodation, but only with associated partner hotels.

GETTING AROUND

By metro Lisbon's metro (6.30am–1am; ④ metrolisboa.pt) has four lines: blue (azul), green (verde), red (vermelha) and yellow (amarela). Single tickets within the central zone cost €1.40 each, while a 24hr pass allowing unlimited travel costs €6. If you buy a rechargeable Viva Viagem card (€0.50, added to first purchase), however, a single journey only costs €1.25. Note that a Viva Viagem card bought at a metro station cannot be used on train services (you will need to buy another one).

By tram and bus Trams and buses (④ carris.pt) are the most enjoyable way of getting around. When bought on board, tram tickets cost €2.85 and bus tickets €1.80.

By taxi A short taxi journey within the city centre shouldn't cost more than €10–12, but taxis can be hard to find at night – if you're leaving a bar or club book one by phone from Rádio Táxis de Lisboa (④ 218 119 000) or Teletáxis (④ 218 111 111).

Discount card Tourist offices sell the Lisboa Card (€18.50/€31.50/€39 for 24/48/72hr; ④ askmelisboa.com), which allows free travel on buses, trams, metro services and the train from Rossio to Sintra, as well as free admission to 25 museums and monuments.

ACCOMMODATION

Although prices have risen recently, Lisbon still has plenty of small, cheap guesthouses, many around Rua das Portas de Santo Antão and the Baixa, as well as an excellent selection of funky, well-equipped hostels. Accommodation is easy to find outside Easter and the peak summer months. Addresses below written as 53-3°, for example, describe the street number followed by the floor.

TRAM #28 TO PRAZERES

The picture-book tram #28 is one of the city's greatest rides, but because it's so popular there are often queues to get on and standing room only. Built in England in the early twentieth century, the trams are all polished wood and chrome and give a bumpy ride up and down Lisbon's steepest streets, at times coming so close to shops that you could almost take a can of sardines off the shelves. From Graça, the tram plunges down through Alfama to the Baixa and up to Prazeres, west of the centre. Take care of belongings as pickpockets also enjoy the ride. For a less crowded tram ride, try the equally attractive #25, which heads from the bottom of Elevador da Bica along the waterfront and up through Lapa and Estrela to Prazeres.

HOSTELS

Goodnight Hostel Rua dos Correiros 113-2° ④ 213 430 139, ④ goodnighthostel.com; ④ Rossio; map p.869. Friendly and well-designed hostel in the heart of the Baixa. There's a TV lounge, and a guitar for evening sing-alongs. Dorms €21, doubles €63

Lisboa Camping Parque Florestal Monsanto 📞 217 628 100, lisboacamping.com; bus #714 from Praça Figueira; map pp.866–867. Well-equipped campsite in a large park 6km west of the centre, with pool and shops. The entrance is on Estrada da Circunvalação on the park's west side. Per person €7.60, plus per tent €7.50

EATING

Lisbon has some great cafés and restaurants serving large portions of food at reasonable prices. Lunch is particularly good value, with bargain dishes of the day and set menus on offer. Alongside the usual Portuguese restaurants serving grilled meat and fish, there are lots of seafood places, plus inexpensive options offering food from former colonies (including Angola, Goa and Macau).

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Celeiro Rua 1 de Dezembro 65; 📍 Rossio; map p.869. Just off Rossio in the basement of a health-food supermarket, this inexpensive self-service place offers tasty vegetarian spring rolls, quiches, pizza and the like from around €6. There's also a streetside café offering drinks and snacks. Mon–Fri 9am–6pm & Sat 9am–5pm.

Landeau Chocolate Rua das Flores 70; 📍 Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. You might smell this café before you see it. The dreamy scent of the devilishly good chocolate cake (€4) wafts into the street, drawing in a steady stream of locals and tourists. Daily noon–7pm.

Mercado da Ribeira Avenida 24 Julho; 📍 Cais do Sodré; map p.869. Most of Lisbon's main market building is now given over to a vibrant food hall, with an impressive range of stalls (most representing top chefs and well-known outlets in Lisbon) and plenty of benches to sit at. You can buy everything from hams, cheeses and grilled chickens to gourmet burgers, seafood, organic salads and chocolates. Food stalls Sun–Wed 10am–midnight, Thurs–Sat 10am–2am.

Pastéis de Belém Rua de Belém 84–92; tram #15 from Cais do Sodré or Praça do Comércio; map pp.866–867. This huge, well-known pastelaria could easily have made the move into tourist-trap territory, but its deliciously flaky pastéis de nata still go for under €2. Daily: June–Sept 8am–midnight; Oct–May 8am–11pm.

Pois Café Rua São João da Praça 93–95, Baixa; 📍 Terreiro do Paço; map p.869. Eclectically furnished café with a relaxed atmosphere and plenty of international books and papers to peruse. Serves brunch, quiche, sandwiches (from €6.50) and daily specials, including vegetarian options. Mon noon–11pm, Tues–Sun 10am–11pm.

Santini Rua do Carmo 9, Chiado; 📍 Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. Italian-style ice-cream parlour serving more than a dozen divine home-made flavours. Pay first, then choose which ones you'll go for. Daily 11am–midnight.

RESTAURANTS

Beira Gare Praça Dom João de Câmara 4; 📍 Restauradores; map p.869. Well-established restaurant opposite Rossio station, serving bargain snacks and full meals from €7. Grab a stool at the counter if there are no tables. Daily 9am–10pm.

Bom Jardim Trav. De Santo Antão 11–18; 📍 Restauradores; map pp.866–867. A fairly touristy restaurant, where chicken is the dish to choose – half a roast chicken with chips costs around €8. It's so popular that it's spread over three buildings on either side of a pedestrianized alley, with some outdoor seats as well. April–Sept daily noon–11.30pm; Oct–March Mon, Tues & Fri–Sun noon–11.30pm, Thurs 7–11.30pm.

Cantina LX Rua Rodrigues de Faria 103; tram #15 from Cais do Sodré or Praça do Comércio; map pp.866–867. Former factory canteen serving daily specials from €10. There's a well-shaded seating area around the side. Mon & Sun noon–3pm, Tues–Sat noon–3pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

Cantinho do Bem Estar Rua do Norte 46, Bairro Alto; 📍 Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. The staff might be stropy, but this tiny place is great value for money – its portions of Portuguese classics (around €12.50) feed two with ease. Go early. Tues–Sun noon–2.30pm & 7.15–11.30pm.

Chapitô à Mesa Rua Costa do Castelo 7, Castelo; 📍 Terreiro do Paço; map p.869. Two-in-one venue with tapas and barbecued meat served in a buzzing courtyard, and more expensive international dishes on offer in the upstairs restaurant. Both have excellent river views. Mon–Fri noon–midnight, Sat & Sun 7.30pm–midnight.

Prego da Peixaria Rua Escola Politécnica 40; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. Traditional pregos are steak sandwiches, but this fashionable restaurant has embraced a whole host of varieties. Choose from the likes of bacalhau, tuna, mushroom or salmon with octopus from around €9–13. Daily noon–10pm.

Príncipe do Calhariz Calçada da Combro 28–30; ☺ Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. Busy barbecue joint serving grilled chicken and fillets of fish. Not so hungry? Go for one of the half portions (€6). Mon–Fri & Sun noon–3pm & 7–10.30pm.

★ Rio Grande Rua Nova do Carvalho 55; ☺ Cais do Sodré; map p.869. On a street full of hip bars, Rio Grande is reassuringly traditional, with azulejos on the walls beneath an arched ceiling. The spacious restaurant serves good-value Portuguese classics such as pork steaks and an array of fresh fish for under €9. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sat 12.30pm–3am & 6pm–11pm.

DRINKING, NIGHTLIFE AND ENTERTAINMENT

The densest concentration of bars and clubs is in Bairro Alto and around Rua Nova Carvalho in Cais do Sodré. Lisbon's gay scene centres around Praça do Príncipe Real in the north of Bairro Alto. Clubs don't really get going until at least 2am and tend to stay open till 6am. Admission fees range from €10 to €20 (usually including a drink). What's-on listings can be found in the monthly Agenda Cultural, available free at tourist offices, or at ☺ lisbon.angloinfo.com.

BARs

A Ginjinha Largo de São Domingos 8, Baixa; ☺ Rossio; map p.869. The original ginjinha (cherry brandy) bar, this small stand-up place located in lively Largo de São Domingos is a great place to start a night out in Lisbon. Small shot of Ginjinha €1.40. Daily 9am–10pm.

A Tabacaria Rua de São Paulo 75–77; ☺ Cais do Sodré; map p.869. In a wonderful old tobacco shop dating from 1885 – with many of the original fittings – this small, friendly bar specializes in cocktails (from around €7), made from gin, vodka, whisky and whatever fruits are in season. Mon–Fri noon–1am, Sat 6pm–2am.

Park Calçada da Combro 58, Bairro Alto; tram #28; map p.869. Reached via a poky entrance inside a car park, this chic rooftop bar comes as quite a surprise. There are potted plants and trees, great cocktails and bar snacks, and a stunning view across the river. At weekends there are often guest DJs and cultural events. Tues–Sat 1pm–2am, Sun 10am–8pm.

Pavilhão Chinês Rua Dom Pedro V 89, Bairro Alto; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. Ideal for a cocktail, this famous (and pricey) drinking den is decorated with kitsch toys and models. Daily 6pm–2am.

Pensão Amor Rua do Alecrim 19; ☺ Cais do Sodré; map p.869. The “Pension of Love” is a former brothel, which has retained its eighteenth-century burlesque fittings for its current incarnation as a trendy bar with risqué photos, frescoes and mirrors; also hosts occasional live concerts. Mon–Wed noon–2am, Thurs–Sat noon–4am.

Povo Rua Nova do Carvalho 32–26; ☺ Cais do Sodré; map p.869. Hear fado from up-and-coming stars (Tues–Thurs and Sun from 9.30pm) and late-night weekend DJs at this fashionable tavern in the heart of “pink street” (the tarmac is dyed pink). Daily 6pm–4am.

Solar do Vinho do Porto Rua de São Pedro de Alcântara 45, Bairro Alto; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map p.869. Over 200 types of port, with ten-year-old tawnies for around €3 a glass. Mon–Fri 11am–midnight, Sat 3pm–midnight.

CLUBS

B.Leza Cais da Ribeira Nova Armazém B; Santos station from Cais do Sodré; map p.869. Boisterous African club, with live music and occasional dance lessons on offer. Wed–Sun 10.30pm–4am.

Incógnito Rua Poais de São Bento 37, Bairro Alto ☺ incognitobar.com; ☺ Baixa-Chiado/Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. Student-friendly mainstay spinning synth, new wave and indie sounds until the early hours. Wed–Sat 11pm–4am.

Lux Cais da Pedra Santa Apolónia Armazém A, opposite Santa Apolónia station ☺ luxfragil.com; ☺ Santa Apolónia; map pp.866–867. The city's best-known club, often hosting top DJs and electronic acts, like Fatboy Slim and Hot Chip. See website for events and times.

Main Av 24 de Julho 68, opposite Santos station ☺ mainlisbon.pt; ☺ Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. Swanky place with a minimalist vibe and house tunes, attracting diners and dancers. Thurs–Sat 11.30pm–6am.

Ministerium Club Ala Nascente 72, Praça do Comércio ☺ ministerium.pt; ☺ Terreiro do Paço; map p.869. Fresh from the US, Ibiza and beyond, big-name DJs come to rock Lisbon's former finance ministry. Sat 11pm–6am, plus occasional events on other nights.

Trumps Rua da Imprensa Nacional 104b, Rato ☺ trumps.pt; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. The biggest gay venue in Lisbon, with themed parties in the summertime and a year-round “hetero-friendly” policy. Fri & Sat 11.45pm–6am.

FADO AND LIVE MUSIC

A Tasca do Chico Rua do Diário de Notícias 39; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map p.869. Make like the locals and catch some amateur fado in this bar during the week. Free entry. Daily 7pm–2am, with performances on Mon & Wed.

Coliseu dos Recreios Rua Portas de Santo Antão 96 📍 coliseul Lisboa.com; 📞 Restauradores; map pp.866–867. Portuguese stars fill much of the programme, but this concert hall also attracts international bands. See website for event times.

Hot Clube de Portugal Praça da Alegria 48 📍 hcp.pt; 📍 Avenida; map pp.866–867. The longest-running jazz club in Portugal, with live performances five nights a week. Tues–Sat 10pm–2am.

Music Box Rua Nova do Carvalho 24 📍 musicboxlisboa.com; map p.869. Live music venue near Cais do Sodré, with a schedule packed full of DJs and bands playing almost every musical style imaginable. Mon–Sat 11pm–6am.

SHOPPING

A Outra Face da Lua Rua da Assunção 22; 📍 Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. Vintage emporium stocking a mishmash of goodies, from clothing to toys. There's also an in-store café. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–7pm.

A Vida Portuguesa Rua Anchieta 11; 📍 Baixa-Chiado; map p.869. From tiles to sardines, if it's Portuguese, you'll find it here. Many of the old-fashioned brands on sale would have disappeared had this chain store not made them cool again. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 11am–8pm.

Bairro Arte LX Factory, on Rua Rodrigues Faria; tram #15 from Cais do Sodré or Praça do Comércio; map pp.866–867.

FADO

Often described as somewhere between the blues and flamenco, the emotional and melodramatic musical genre of fado (literally “fate”) is as Portuguese as custard tarts and Cristiano Ronaldo. Fado has its roots in early nineteenth-century Alfama, where it thrived until the early twentieth century, when it was subject to censorship. Despite the authorities' efforts, the genre continued to develop, and still features in the charts today thanks to a new generation of performers. Lisbon is the best place to hear fado, specifically in Bairro Alto, where many restaurants put on performances (from €25 upwards, including dinner), although Coimbra also has its own style (see p.879). To get the most out of a show, first visit the modern Museu do Fado at Largo do Chafariz de Dentro 1 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €5), for an excellent audioguide introduction to the history of the genre and its brightest stars, including grande dame Amália Rodrigues and younger talent Joana Amendoeira.

One of three Bairro Arte shops in Lisbon (the others are in Bairro Alto and Chiado), selling all manner of quirky retro and designer goods. Worth a browse. Daily 9am–midnight.
Entre Tanto Rua Escola Politécnica 42; bus #758 from Cais do Sodré; map pp.866–867. Set in a rambling seventeenth-century building, Entre Tanto is an intriguing jumble of stores and fashionable boutiques selling everything from shoes and hip clothes to perfume and surfboards. There's a lovely terrace café, too, overlooking the Botanical Gardens. Daily noon–8pm.

DIRECTORY

BEACHES AROUND LISBON

The coast around Lisbon offers ample opportunities to escape from the summer heat of the capital. Half an hour south of the capital, dunes stretch along the COSTA DA CAPARICA, a thoroughly Portuguese resort popular with surfers and crammed with restaurants and beach cafés. Solitude is easy enough to find, though, thanks to the transpraia (mini-railway) that runs along the 8km of dunes in summer.

Another popular seaside escape is the former fishing village of CASCAIS, forty minutes to the west of the city, which boasts three beaches and a campsite. Cascais has a particular appeal to surfers due to its proximity to Guincho beach (see box, p.864), reached by local bus, which has hosted the World Surfing Championships.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Costa da Caparica Ferry from Cais do Sodré in Lisbon to Cacilhas (every 15–20min), then the #135 TST bus (every 30min). Buses stop along Avenida Doutor Aresta Branco, close to the main square Praça da Liberdade, and a 5min walk east of the beach.

Cascais Train from Cais do Sodré (every 15–30min; 40min).

SINTRA

The cool, hilltop woodland setting of SINTRA once attracted Moorish lords and the Portuguese kings from Lisbon during the summer months; the palaces they constructed remain among Portugal's most spectacular attractions. Sintra can be visited on a day-trip from Lisbon, though there are certainly enough sights to keep you occupied for several days. Combined tickets reduce the price of admission to the sights; enquire at the tourist office for the latest offers.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

An amalgamation of three villages, Sintra can be confusing, but there are plenty of local buses connecting the sights.

Palácio Nacional

The Palácio Nacional (daily: March–Oct 9.30am–7pm; Nov–Feb 9.30am–5.30pm; €10), about fifteen minutes' walk from the train station, is an obvious landmark, with its distinctive conical chimneys. The palace probably existed under the Moors, but takes its present form from the rebuilding commissioned by Dom João I and his successor, Dom Manuel, in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Its style is a fusion of Gothic and the latter king's Manueline additions. The chapel and its adjoining chamber are well worth seeing, as is the curious Magpies Room, decorated with hundreds of paintings of the birds with the motto "Por Bem" ("For the good") in their beaks.

Quinta da Regaleira

Also within walking distance of the centre is another must-see site, the beautiful

Quinta da Regaleira (daily: Feb, March & Oct 10am–6.30pm; April–Sept 10am–8pm; Nov–Jan 10am–5.30pm; €6, or €10 for guided visits booked in advance on ☎219 106 650). One of Sintra's most elaborate private estates, it lies ten minutes' walk west of the Palácio Nacional on the Seteais–Monserrate road. The house and its fantastic gardens were built at the beginning of the twentieth century by an Italian theatrical set designer for one of the richest industrialists in Portugal. One highlight is the Initiation Well, inspired by the initiation practices of the Knights Templar and Freemasons. The vast gardens are full of surprising delights, with chapels, follies and fountains at every turn.

Monserrate

Beyond Quinta da Regaleira, the road leads past a series of beautiful private estates to recently renovated Monserrate (daily: March–Oct 9.30am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm; €8) – about an hour's walk from the Palácio Nacional – a Moorish-style folly of a palace whose 75-acre garden, filled with exotic trees and subtropical shrubs and plants, extends as far as the eye can see.

Moorish castle and Palácio da Pena

Two of Sintra's main sights can be reached on bus #434 (the €5 ticket allows you to hop on and off at each one), starting at the train station. The bus stops outside the Praça da República tourist office before proceeding to the ruined ramparts of the Castelo dos Mouros (Moorish castle; daily 9.30am–8pm, last ticket 7pm; €8), from where the views over the town and surrounding countryside are extraordinary. Further on, the bus stops at both entrances to the immense Pena Park, at the top of which rears the fabulous Palácio da Pena (daily: March–Oct 9.45am–7pm; €14, or park only €7.50; Nov–Feb 10am–6pm; €11, park only €6), a wild, nineteenth-century fantasy of domes, towers and a drawbridge that doesn't draw. The cluttered, kitschy interior has been preserved as left by the royal family on their flight from Portugal in 1910.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Trains run from Lisbon's Rossio station to the centre of Sintra. From here it's a 10min stroll southeast to the main tourist office.

Destinations Lisbon (Rossio) (every 15–30min; 45min).

Tourist information There's one small tourist office at the train station (daily 10am–6pm) and a larger one (daily 9.30am–6pm, until 7pm Aug; ☎ 219 231 157) just off the central Praça da República.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

★ Café Saudade Av Doutor Miguel Bombarda 6. On the site of an old cheesecake factory, with beautifully ornate ceilings, this café/gallery near the train station does excellent salads for €7. Daily 8.30am–8pm.

Estrada Velha Rua Consiglieri Pedroso 16. On the road to the Quinta da Regaleira, this good-value café-bar with an old-fashioned but cosy interior serves sandwiches, burgers and other quick bites. Daily 11am–2am.

Moon Hill Hostel Rua Guilherme Gomes Fernandes 17 ☎ 969 831 095, 🌐 moonhillhostel.com. Near Sintra station, this modern hostel has friendly staff, stylish decor and a range of contemporary rooms from en-suite doubles with a view of the castle to tidy dorms with smart wooden bunk beds. Dorms €20, doubles €60

Central Portugal

Central Portugal embraces the historic regions of the Beiras, Estremadura and Ribatejo that have played crucial roles in each phase of the nation's history – and the monuments are here to prove it. The vast central plains are dominated by Coimbra, an ancient university town and Portugal's former capital. South of here lie fertile rolling hills, which boast an extraordinary concentration of vivid architecture and engaging towns such as Alcobaça and Tomar, both housing famously grand religious monuments. This region also boasts some of Portugal's best surf beaches round the old fishing port of Peniche.

PENICHE

Gangs of fishermen still repair their nets at Peniche harbourside, which despite a fair amount of development, retains an interesting walled town of narrow streets. This is dominated by a sixteenth-century fortress (Tues–Fri 9am–12.30pm & 2–5.30pm, Sat–Sun 10am–12.30pm & 2–5.30pm; €2), a much-feared jail during the years of Portugal's dictatorship. Still a formidable place of bare yards and high walls, it now houses the municipal museum, while on the top floor you can see the old cells and solitary-confinement pens.

Next to the fortress, boats depart from the marina to the Ilha da Berlenga (mid-May to June & early Sept 1 daily, July & Aug 3 daily; €20 return; 45min), a craggy island 10km offshore. It's now a rack reserve with a tiny beach and seventeenth-century fortress.

Either side of town, you'll find long stretches of duned surf beaches. The best of these are at Baleal, 5km northeast of Peniche, an islet-village joined to the mainland by a narrow causeway, with fine sand beaches either side, and bar-restaurants overlooking the sands at both ends.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Peniche's bus station lies outside the town walls – it's a 10min walk into the centre, across the Ponte Velha to the main Rua Alexandre Herculano.

Destinations Alcobaça (1–2 daily; 1hr 40min); Baleal (Mon–Fri approx hourly; Sat & Sun 8 daily; 10min); Lisbon (9 daily; 1hr 35min).

Tourist information Turismo at Rua Alexandre Herculano (daily 9am–1pm & 2–7pm; Oct–May closes at 5pm; ☎ 262 789 571, 🌐 cm-peniche.pt).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

A Sardinha Rua Vasco da Gama 81–93. The best of the backstreet options, this good-value, family-run place serves a range of fish and seafood, from sardines to clams,

PENICHE SURF-CAMPS

Peniche boasts some of Portugal's best and most consistent surfing. Its turismo hands out a free guide to the nearby beaches and you can rent gear from any of the local surf-camps, including PH Surf School (🌐 penichehostel.com), and Baleal Surfcamp (🌐 balealsurfcamp.com), and Peniche Surf Camp, both in Baleal (🌐 penichesurfcamp.com). Expect to pay from €35 for group lessons, €80 for individual sessions.

and a superb mixed grilled fish for €12.50 (big enough for two). You can sit outside on the narrow street in summer. Daily 11.30am–4pm & 6.30–10.30pm.

Peniche Hostel Backpackers Rua Arquitecto Paulino Montêz 6–1° ☎ 969 008 689, penichehostel.com. A friendly surfers' and backpackers' place in a renovated house just inside the town walls, across from the turismo. It's kind of boutiquey, with a kitchen and lounge. They can arrange lessons at their own surf school, and you can also rent boards and bikes. Dorms €20, doubles €50

ALCOBAÇA

The pretty town of Alcobaça is dominated by the vast, beautiful Mosteiro de Santa Maria de Alcobaça (daily: April–Sept 9am–6pm; Oct–March 9am–5pm; €6, free first Sun of the month). From its foundation in 1147 until its dissolution in 1834, this Cistercian monastery was one of the greatest in the world. Its church (free) is one of the largest in Portugal, with a Baroque facade that conceals an interior stripped of most of its later adornments and restored to its original simplicity.

The monastery's most precious treasures are the fourteenth-century tombs of Dom Pedro and Dona Inês de Castro, sculpted with incredible detail to illustrate the story of Pedro's love for Inês, the daughter of a Galician nobleman (see box below). The monastery's most impressive room is the kitchen, featuring a gigantic conical chimney, and a stream tapped from the river to provide Alcobaça's famously glutinous monks with a constant supply of fresh fish.

TILL DEATH US DO PART: DOM PEDRO AND DONA INÊS DE CASTRO

Dom Pedro's father, Afonso V, forbade his marriage to Dona Inês de Castro, which nevertheless took place in secret. Afonso ordered Inês's murder, and Pedro waited for his succession to the throne before exhuming her corpse and forcing the royal circle to acknowledge her as queen by kissing her decomposing hand. Their tombs have been placed foot to foot so that on Judgement Day the lovers may rise and immediately see one another.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Alcobaça's bus station is a 5min walk from the monastery in the centre of town, across the bridge.

Destinations Coimbra (1–2 daily; 1hr 25min); Lisbon (4 daily; 2hr); Peniche (1–2 daily; 1hr 40min); Porto (Sept–June 1 daily; 4hr 30min); Tomar (3 daily; 2hr).

Tourist information Tourist office at Rua 16 de Outubro 17, a short walk north of the monastery (daily 9am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎ 262 582 377).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Corações Unidos Rua Frei António Brandão 39 ☎ 262 582 142. Neat, clean pensão with modern bathrooms facing the monastery. The restaurant below serves good-value regional cooking (mains €9). Doubles €40

Real Baça Directly opposite the monastery on Praça 25 de Abril. Relaxed pastelaria that serves a good selection of local pastries and cakes (around €1.50), plus ice-cold drinks. Daily 8am–8pm.

Ti Fininho Rua Frei António Brandão 34. Cheap grilled fish and meats, omelettes, and wine by the jug at this simple restaurant a short walk from the monastery. Bacalhau á casa €8. Daily 11am–3.30pm & 6–10pm.

TOMAR

Riverside TOMAR is famous for its spectacular headquarters of the Portuguese branch of the Knights Templar, which overlooks the town from a wooded hill. It's also an attractive town in its own right – especially during the lively Festa dos Tabuleiros, a festival of music and dancing, held once every four years at the beginning of July.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Built on a simple grid plan, Tomar's centre preserves its traditional charm, with whitewashed houses lining narrow cobbled streets. West of the central Praça da República is the former Jewish quarter, where at Rua Joaquim Jacinto 73 you'll find an excellently preserved fourteenth-century synagogue, now the Museu Luso-Hebraicoa Abraham Zacuto (Wed–Sun: May–Sept 10am–1pm & 3–7pm; Oct–April 10am–1pm & 2–6pm; free), one of the few surviving synagogues in Portugal.

A fifteen-minute walk uphill from the town centre, the Convento de Cristo (daily: June–Sept 9am–6.30pm; Oct–May 9am–5.30pm; €6) was founded in 1162 by Gualdim Pais, first Master of the Knights Templar, and became the Order's headquarters. At the heart of the complex, surrounded by serene cloisters, is the Charola, the high-ceilinged, sixteen-sided temple from which the knights drew their moral conviction. The beautiful adjoining two-tiered Principal Cloister is one of the purest examples of the Renaissance style in Portugal. Next door to the convent, but accessed from a separate entrance off Av Dr Vieira Guimarães, the extensive, partly wooded former convent grounds, the Mata dos Sete Montes (daily: May–Sept 8.30am–7.30pm; Oct–April 8.30am–5.30pm; free), makes a lovely place for a picnic.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is on Av dos Combatentes de Grande Guerra, 10min south of the town centre.

Destinations Lisbon (15 daily; 1hr 50min–2hr).

By bus Buses pull in at a lot beside the train station.

Destinations Coimbra (1 daily; 2hr 10min); Lisbon (3 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr 30min); Porto (1 daily; 4hr).

Tourist information Tourist office at the top of Av Dr Cândido Madureira (daily 9am–12.30pm & 2–6pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Parque de Campismo ☎ 249 329 824. 🏕️ campingtomar.wordpress.com. Tomar's campsite is a short walk east of Rua Marquês de Pombal. It's a good-sized site with plenty of trees providing shade and a helpful front desk. Per person €4.20, plus per tent €2.65

União Rua Serpa Pinto 94 ☎ 249 323 161. Faded but appealing guesthouse in a nineteenth-century building on the main street. Cheap walk-up rates and a friendly, English-speaking owner. Doubles €45

EATING AND DRINKING

Café Paraíso Rua Serpa Pinto 127. A Tomar institution with marble pillars and tables on the main pedestrianized street, ideal for a drink (espresso 80c) at any time of day. Mon 9am–2pm, Tues–Sat 8am–2am, Sun 8am–8pm.

Jardim Rua Silva Megalhães 54. With a separate entrance on Rua Sacadura Cabral, this huge warren of a place has several dining areas and an appealing garden. Good for large portions of grilled fish or meat from €8. Mon & Wed–Fri 9am–3pm & 6pm–midnight, Sat 6pm–midnight.

COIMBRA

Portugal's capital from 1143 to 1255, COIMBRA ranks behind only Lisbon and Porto in historic importance, while its university, founded in 1290, is one of the oldest in the world.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

For a provincial town Coimbra has significant architectural riches. Its many students create a vivacious atmosphere during term time – especially in May, when they celebrate the end of the academic year with the Queima das Fitas, a symbolic tearing or burning of their gowns and faculty ribbons followed by some serious partying. This is when you're most likely to hear the Coimbra fado, distinguished from the Lisbon version by its mournful pace and complex lyrics.

The old town

Old Coimbra sits on a hill on the right bank of the River Mondego, with the university crowning its summit. The main buildings of the Old University (daily: mid-March to Oct 9am–7.30pm; Nov to mid-March 9.30am–1pm & 2–5.30pm; €7), dating from the sixteenth century, are set around a courtyard (entrance free) dominated by a Baroque clock tower and a statue of João III. The chapel is covered with azulejos and intricate decoration, but takes second place to the library, a Baroque fantasy with trompe-l'oeil ceilings. It also has some unusual inhabitants: a colony of bats. Other areas included in the visit are the graduation hall and the academic prison. Halfway down the hill towards the centre stands the solid and simple Sé Velha (Old Cathedral; Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm; €2.50), one of Portugal's most important Romanesque buildings.

Central Coimbra

Restraint and simplicity certainly aren't the chief qualities of the flamboyant Igreja de Santa Cruz (Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–12.30pm & 2–5pm, Sun 4–5.30pm; €2.50), at the bottom of the hill on Praça 8 de Maio. It houses the tombs of Portugal's first kings, Afonso Henriques and Sancho I, and an elaborately carved pulpit.

Across the river is the beautifully restored convent of Santa Clara a Velha

(Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–7pm; Oct–April 10am–5pm; €4). Due to the rising tide of the Mondego, its resident nuns moved to higher and higher floors before abandoning the convent for Santa Clara a Nova up the hill in 1677. A century ago, the building had all but disappeared beneath the river: the convent visitor centre shows a film (with English subtitles) about its restoration, as well as detailing life in medieval Portugal.

Other areas of interest include the epicentre of the students' social scene, Praça da República, a ten-minute walk from Praça 8 de Maio up Rua Olímpio Nicolau Rui Fernandes, and the rambling Botanic Garden (daily: April–Sept 9am–8pm; Oct–March 9am–5.30pm; free), which sits in the shadow of the sixteenth-century aqueduct to the east of Praça da República. The gardens also have a fine tree-top adventure course, Sky-Garden, full of zip wires and ropes (©skygardenadventure.com; €24).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Intercity trains stop at Coimbra B, 3km north of the city, from where there are frequent connecting services to Coimbra A in the town centre.

Destinations Lisbon (hourly; 2hr–2hr 50min); Porto (hourly; 1hr 20min–2hr).

By bus The bus station is on Av Fernão de Magalhães, a 15min walk from the centre – turn right out of the bus station and head down the main road. Some buses from the north stop on Av Emídio Navarro.

Destinations Alcobaca (1–2 daily; 1hr 25min); Lisbon (at least hourly; 2hr 20min); Porto (roughly hourly; 1hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main tourist office is on Avenida Emídio Navarro near the bridge (Easter–Sept Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9.30am–1pm & 2.30–6pm; Oct–Easter Mon–Fri 9am–6pm; ☎ 239 488 120, ☞ www.turismodocentro.pt).

GETTING AROUND

By bus The local bus network is run by SMTUC (☞ smtuc.pt) – bus #103 runs from Coimbra A station via the market up to the university, while the #3 runs along the same route to Praça da República. The little electric Linha Azul buses (Mon–Fri, plus Sat mornings in summer) run on a circular route through the otherwise pedestrianized Baixa (lower town). A one-way journey bought on board costs €1.60; 3 tickets bought in advance at a newsstand cost €2.20 or a one-day pass is €3.50.

ACCOMMODATION

Grande Hostel de Coimbra Rua Antero de Quental 196 ☎ 239 108 212, ☞ grandehostelcoimbra.com. Long-established hostel near Praça da República, set in a big old house with a garden, lounge and kitchen providing free tea and coffee. A good place to meet fellow travellers.

Dorms €18, doubles €40

Pousada de Juventude Rua Dr. Henrique Seco 14 ☎ 239 829 28, ☞ pousadasjuventude.pt; bus #7 from Av Emídio Navarro. Basic but cheap hostel 10min north of Praça da República. Dorms €12, doubles €30

Serenata Next to Sé Velha at Largo Sé Velha 21–23 ☎ 239 853 130, ☞ serenatahostel.com. Palatial hostel with dorms, twins and doubles, plus a hotel-like living room, games room and sun terrace. Dorms €15, doubles €39

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Most of the town's restaurants can be found tucked away in the alleys between Largo da Portagem – the place to head for cafés – and Praça 8 de Maio.

★ Adega Paço do Conde Rua Paço do Conde 1. Atmospheric, locally renowned churrasqueira serving tasty barbecued meat and fish (around €5–12), with a dining room either side of a shady covered terrace. Mon–Sat noon–midnight.

Café Tropical Praça da República. The pick of the República bars, this is a favourite haunt of students, with outdoor tables and cheap drinks. Gets packed out at weekends, both inside and out. Daily 10am–5am.

Fado ao Centro Rua do Quebra Costas 7. A good place to hear Coimbra fado, with nightly performances at 6pm (€10 for 50min, including a glass of port). It's only open in the evening for the duration of the performance, though tickets are sold throughout the day.

Quebra Rua de Quebra Costas 45–49. Coimbra's top student music bar. There's a tiny terrace for drinks, and live music and DJ sets later in the evening. Mon–Fri noon–4am, Sat 2pm–4am.

Zé Manel dos Ossos Beco do Forno 12. Not much more than a few tables, this atmospheric little joint serves excellent regional food – around €15 for a decent meal, from soup to coffee. To avoid the queues, arrive at opening time. Mon–Fri noon–3pm & 7.30–10pm, Sun noon–3pm.

Northern Portugal

Porto, the country's second-largest city, is an attractive and convenient centre from which to explore this region. Magnificently located on a rocky cliff astride the River Douro, it is perhaps most famous for the port-producing suburb of Vila Nova de Gaia, on the south side of the river. From Porto, the Douro Valley runs east, traced by a spectacular rail route, passing the vineyards that supply the port lodges.

North of Porto lies some of Portugal's most beautiful landscapes, a lush wilderness of rolling mountain forests and rugged coastlines (the Costa Verde), with some of the most unspoilt beaches in Europe. A quietly conservative region, its towns have a special charm and beauty, among them the religious centre of Braga, and the self-proclaimed birthplace of the nation, Guimarães, both of which can be visited by day-trip from Porto, but which also make good bases from which to explore the rest of the region.

PORTO

Capital of the north, PORTO (sometimes called "Oporto" in English) is very different from Lisbon – unpretentious and unashamedly commercial, yet extremely welcoming. As the local saying goes: "Coimbra sings; Braga prays; Lisbon shows off; and Porto works." Possessing considerable historical appeal, it also boasts such modern attributes as an efficient metro system, state-of-the-art football stadium and a top concert venue, the Casa da Música.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The waterfront Ribeira district is Porto's historic heart, with narrow, winding alleys so picturesque that the area has been declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Boat trips up the Douro (€10; 50min) depart regularly from Cais da Estiva and, across the river, Cais de Gaia, and are a great way to observe Porto's beauty.

Ribeira

Despite being Porto's most touristy quarter, life in the Ribeira continues unaffected by visitors, as a wander through its alleyways will soon reveal. The district is also home to many restaurants and bars, as well as the extraordinary Igreja de São

Francisco on Rua Infante Dom Henrique (daily: March–June & Oct 9am–7pm; July–Sept 9am–8pm; Nov–Feb 9am–6pm; €3.50 including museum). Now deconsecrated, its rather plain facade conceals a fabulously opulent, gold-covered interior, refurbished in the eighteenth century. Around the corner on Rua Ferreira Borges is the Palácio da Bolsa (Stock Exchange; daily: April–Oct 9am–6.30pm; Nov–March 9am–12.30pm & 2–5.30pm; €8), which ceased trading years ago and now offers informative tours every thirty minutes. The highlight is the ornate Salão Árabe (Arab Room), its Moorish style emulating that of the Alhambra palace in Granada, Spain.

Cordoaria to Mercado de Bolhão

The Museu Nacional Soares dos Reis at Rua Dom Manuel II (Tues 2–6pm, Wed–Sun 10am–6pm; €5, free Sun 10am–2pm) lies a few minutes' walk west of Aliados, in the Cordoaria area. Portugal's first national museum, it shows an impressive selection of works by home-grown artists and a vast collection of applied and decorative arts. The museum is named after local nineteenth-century sculptor António Soares dos Reis, and displays his O Desterrado ("The Exiled"), probably the best-known work in Portugal. A short walk away on Campo Mártires da Pátria, in a former prison, the Centro Português de Fotografia (Portuguese Photography Centre; Tues–Fri 10am–12.30pm & 3–6pm, Sat & Sun 3–7pm; free) houses changing photography exhibitions. East of the Photography Centre, the Torre dos Clérigos, attached to the Baroque Igreja dos Clérigos on Rua São Filipe Nery (daily: April–Oct 9.30am–1pm & 2–7pm; Nov–March 10am–noon & 2–5pm; €2), offers superb views of the city. Nearby, on Rua das Carmelitas, Lello & Irmão bookshop (Mon–Fri 10am–7.30pm, Sat 10am–7pm) is worth a look for its stunning Art Nouveau interior, featuring a fabulously ornate staircase, carved wood panelling and stained glass.

Downhill from here is the city's biggest boulevard, the transport hub of Avenida dos Aliados, a short walk east of which is the Mercado de Bolhão (Mon–Fri 7am–5pm, Sat 7am–1pm), which sells fresh produce every day except Sunday, while the city's main shopping area is located a little further east around Rua de Santa Catarina.

Casa da Música

The west of the city is home to some of Portugal's most exciting cultural centres, not to mention some daring architecture. Dominating the Avenida da Boavista and accessible by metro, 3km west of the centre, Casa da Música (ticket office Mon–Sat 9.30am–7pm, Sun 9.30am–6pm; tours in English daily 11am–4pm; €7.50; @casadamusica.com) is a vast, irregularly shaped and strangely beautiful white concrete building designed by Rem Koolhaas. Concerts are held here most nights, though you can peek inside its impressive interior for free.

Fundação Serralves

Three kilometres west of Casa da Música is another architectural gem and one of Porto's key attractions, the Fundação Serralves (April–Sept Tues–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–March Tues–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm; €8.50, park only €4; free Sun 10am–1pm; bus #502 from Bolhão), which comprises the modernist Museum of Contemporary Art, hosting an exciting array of temporary exhibitions by Portuguese and international artists, and the Art Deco Serralves Villa (which also puts on occasional exhibitions), set in a vast, beautiful park. If the exhibition isn't to your taste, skip it and head straight for the park, encompassing everything from formal gardens to wild woods, and even a farm featuring species from northern Portugal.

Foz do Douro

The coastline at Foz makes an easy escape from the city, reached via tram #1 (€2.50 one-way) from Rua Nova da Alfândega. The old wooden tram clanks along the coastline to Passeio Alegre, from where you can take a one-hour stroll along the beachside promenade to the curiously named Castelo do Queijo (Cheese Castle) before taking bus #502 back to the centre. For much of the year the Atlantic Ocean is too chilly for all but the hardiest of swimmers, but the beaches fill with sun-worshippers in summer. Foz is also home to a buzzing nightlife scene.

Vila Nova de Gaia

South of the river and essentially a city in its own right, Vila Nova de Gaia (usually referred to as Gaia) is dominated by the port trade. From the Ribeira, the names of the various companies, spelled out in neon letters above the terracotta roofs of the wine lodges, leave you in no doubt as to what awaits you. You can walk to Gaia across the Ponte Dom Luis I: the most direct route to the lodges is across the Lower Bridge from the Cais da Ribeira, but taking the metro across the top level to the Jardim do Morro stop has the bonus of breathtaking views. Another scenic option is the Teleférico de Gaia cable car (daily: April to mid-Sept 10am–8pm; mid-Sept to Oct 10am–7pm, Nov–March 10am–6pm; €5 single, €8 return), which connects Vila Nova de Gaia's waterfront with the top level of the bridge (though doesn't actually cross the river). Most port lodges offer basic tours (€5–6) explaining the history of the company and port production and ending with a tasting of one or two ports

PORT

Port wine comes in a variety of types and ages, as you'll discover on an afternoon tour of Vila Nova de Gaia's port lodges. The relatively little-known white ports are served as an aperitif, and can be dry or sweet; another refreshing option is Croft's "Pink", which was one of the first rosé ports on the market. After dinner come either tawny or ruby ports: nutty-tasting tawnies are made from a blend of different barrel-aged wines, while deep red rubies age in the bottle. Further varieties include Late Bottled Vintage (LBV), made from good-quality grapes gathered in a single harvest and aged for five years, and the crème de la crème, Vintage port, which uses only the best grapes from a particularly fine harvest.

(more expensive options such as vintage ports are available for an extra fee). If all this sampling whets your appetite, head to Vinologia (see p.886) to learn and taste more.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

26

By plane From the Francisco Sá Carneiro airport, 13km north of the city, take metro line E (daily 6am–1am; €2.45, including purchase of rechargeable Andante card) to the centre.

By train Most trains from the south stop at the distant Estação de Campanhã; you may need to change here for a connection to the central Estação de São Bento (frequent; 5min). Metro line B will also take you into the centre from Campanhã.

Destinations Braga (every 30min–1hr; 1hr); Coimbra (hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr 30min); Guimarães (hourly; 1hr 20min); Lisbon (hourly; 3hr 20min–4hr).

By bus The main bus terminal (Rede-Expressos) is on Rua Alexandre Herculano, a short walk east of São Bento, while the Rodonorte terminal is at Rua Ateneu Comercial do Porto 19, near Bolhão market.

Destinations Braga (every 30min; 1hr); Coimbra (approx hourly; 1hr 30min); Guimarães (2–3 daily; 1hr 15min); Lisbon (at least hourly; 3hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main tourist office is just north of Av dos Aliados at Rua Clube dos Fenianos 25 (daily: June–Oct 9am–8pm; Nov–May 9am–7pm; ☎ 222 393 472, ☉ visitporto.travel). There's also a smaller office opposite the Sé at Terreiro da Sé (daily: June–Oct 9am–8pm; Nov–May 9am–7pm; ☎ 222 393 472), and an information kiosk at Avenida Diogo Leite 242 in Vila Nova da Gaia (Mon–Sat 10am–1pm & 2–6pm), which gives out the helpful Caves do Vinho do Porto leaflet, outlining timetables and prices of port lodge tours.

Tourist passes All tourist offices sell the Porto Card, which offers free public transport and free or discounted entry to most of the city's sights (1/2/3-day for €13/€20/€25). The cheaper one-day card (€5) provides the same discounts, excluding public transport.

GETTING AROUND

Tickets The blue rechargeable Andante card covers the metro, tram, the funicular from opposite the Ponte Luis I to Praça da Batalha, and most bus lines. It costs €0.60, added to the price of your first ticket, and is available at the airport, all metro stations and the main tourist office. Once purchased, it can be loaded with one-way journeys or a 24hr pass (€7, valid on all forms of transport). The card must be validated at the start of each trip (or part thereof). When using a "Z2" (zone 2) pass, for example, you can change freely between vehicles within that zone, revalidating the card each time. When you first validate the card, you are given an hour. As long as your final validation of the card falls within that hour, you will be able to continue to your final destination without paying for a new single-trip pass – so long as it is within the same zone. If you revalidate the card after the first hour is up, you will be charged for a new journey.

By metro Porto's sleek, six-line metro system (daily 6am–1am) is cheap and efficient. A single trip in the central zone costs €1.20 with an Andante card.

By bus One-way bus tickets can be purchased on board for €1.85, or €1.20 with an Andante card.

By taxi Taxis are cheap and plentiful (expect to pay around €8 for a ride across town); two useful ranks are located at Praça da Ribeira and the Rotonda da Boa Vista, near Casa da Música.

ACCOMMODATION

Well-located, good-value rooms can be found in the streets to the east and west of Av dos Aliados. There are also some bargain rooms in the slightly run-down area around Praça da Batalha, east of Estação de São Bento. In addition to guesthouses, Porto has some central, well-equipped hostels.

HOSTELS

★ Gallery Hostel Rua Miguel Bombarda 222 ☎ 224 964 313, ☉ gallery-hostel.com; ☉ Aliados/Trindade. Superb, spacious, hostel-cum-gallery in Porto's emerging artists' quarter. The house, built in 1906 and carefully restored, has its own library, bar and TV room. The helpful family running it offer free tours and trips to local galleries. Dorms €20, doubles €70

Porto Downtown Hostel Praça Guilherme Gomes Fernandes 66-1° ☎ 220 018 094, ☉ portodowntownhostel.com; ☉ Aliados. Friendly, spotlessly clean and central place with different-sized dorms and three double rooms. There's also an inviting lounge and a decent kitchen. Dorms €29, doubles €68

Porto Spot Hostel Rua Gonçalves Cristovao 12 ☎ 224 085 205, ☉ spot-oporhostel.com; ☉ Trindade. A little way out of the city, this smart and sociable hostel has key-card access, clean minimalist rooms and a garden. Dorms €25, doubles €100

Pousada de Juventude Rua Paulo da Gama 551, Pasteleira ☎ 226 177 257, ☉ pousadasjuventude.pt; bus #504 from ☉ Casa da Música, or #207 from São Bento. It's a bit of a way out, but Porto's main hostel has wonderful views of the Douro as it drains into the Atlantic. Dorms €15, doubles €40, apartment for four €70

Rivoli Cinema Hostel Rua Dr Magalhães Lemos 83 ☎ 220 174 634, ☉ rivolicinemahostel.com; ☉ Aliados/São Bento. Efficiently run, cinema-themed hostel which offers dorms and spacious twin rooms. There's also a roof terrace. Dorms €25, doubles €58

GUESTHOUSES

Castelo de Santa Catarina Rua de Santa Catarina 1347 ☎ 225 095 599, castelosantacatarina.com.pt. A 30min walk from the centre or bus #701/#702/#703 from Mercado do Bolhão, this turreted folly of the most romantic kind makes a superb city retreat. The rooms aren't grand or expensive, but are furnished in period style, while breakfast is eaten in the lush azulejo-tiled gardens. Doubles €76

Duas Nações Praça Guilherme Gomes Fernandes 59 ☎ 222 081 616, duasnacoes.com.pt; ☎ Aliados/São Bento. A deservedly popular option, with bright, decent-sized rooms, most of which are en suite. No breakfast. Dorms €15, doubles €38

EATING

Porto's culinary speciality is the mighty francesinha – an acquired taste, it's a gut-busting sandwich of steak, ham and Linguiça sausage, covered in a layer of melted cheese and a spicy beer and tomato sauce. Restaurants in the city are good value, particularly the workers' cafés, which usually offer a set menu at lunchtime (but close around 7.30pm and at weekends). Prime areas are Rua do Almada and Rua de São Bento da Vitória. For Italian, Indian and other international cuisines, head to the riverside Cais de Gaia complex in Vila Nova de Gaia.

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

3maisarte Largo Joaquim Magalhães 12, Vila Nova de Gaia. Perfect for a small lunchtime snack, this delightful tiny warehouse is a community organization that sells local arts and crafts, rescues cats and also serves wine and tapas. You'll pay about €7 for a selection of cheeses, meats and a glass of wine. Daily 11am–11pm.

Café Majestic Rua de Santa Catarina 112; ☎ Bolhão/Aliados. Voted one of the world's most beautiful cafés, with belle époque mirrors and cherubs adorning its walls. Perfect for an elegant (if expensive) snack (sandwiches from €6). Mon–Sat 9.30am–midnight.

Café Piolho D'Ouro Praça de Parada Leitão 45; ☎ São Bento. Near the university, this diner is popular with students and serves incredibly cheap food throughout the day (mains under €7), before morphing into a packed bar at night. Mon–Sat 7am–4am.

Roto do Chá Rua Miguel Bombarda 457; ☎ Aliados. Choose from around 300 different brews at this chilled-out tea shop, a 15min walk from the metro station. There's a tranquil garden at the back and daily lunch specials for €7.50. Mon–Thurs 11am–8pm, Fri–Sat noon–midnight, Sun 1–8pm.

Taxca Rua Da Picaria 26; ☎ Aliados. The best place in town for ham or pork sandwiches (their speciality), soups and octopus salad (dishes around €5), all served below hams hanging above the bar. Mon–Tues noon–10.30pm, Wed–Sat noon–2am.

RESTAURANTS

Antunes Rua do Bonjardim 525; ☎ Aliados. Rustic restaurant that famously cooks its daily specials in wood-fired ovens – notably melt-in-the-mouth roast pork, served with roast potatoes. Add a dessert and a carafe of house rosado, and you'll eat for €15. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7–10pm; closed four weeks in Aug/Sept.

Tasco Rua do Almada 151A; ☎ Aliados. A traditional restaurant serving meat, fish and seafood dishes such as octopus, steak and cod. Expect to pay €16 for steak, side of potatoes and glass of wine or sangria with local dessert. Daily noon–1am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The Ribeira area offers a fairly laidback drinking scene, while Cais de Gaia is good for sophisticated sipping. Livelier late-night bars (open until around 4am at weekends) can be found around Rua Galeria de Paris, near the university. Most of the city's big clubs are in the outlying Matosinhos district or near Foz.

BARS

★ Café Candelabro Rua da Conceição 3; ☎ Aliados. Low-key, cool bar and bookshop with bookcase-lined walls and huge glasses of quality wine for under €2. Also a popular spot for breakfast, with warm croissants. Mon–Fri 10.30am–2am, Sat 2pm–2am, Sun 2.30pm–midnight.

Café Lusitano Rua de José Falcão 137; ☎ Aliados. Fun and lively bar with chandeliers dangling from the ceiling, art on the walls and a mixed gay/straight crowd. Wed–Sat 9.30pm–4am.

Está-se Bem Rua da Fonte Taurina 70–72; ☎ São Bento. A nice little tasca where a pre-club crowd hangs out, probably because drinks are cheap and there's no cover charge. Mon–Sat 6pm–4am.

O Cais Bar Rua da Fonte Taurina 2; ☎ São Bento. Relaxed bar with a clientele as varied as the soundtrack. Serves petiscos snacks, foreign beers and jugs of sangria for €9. Daily 9.30pm–3am.

O Mercado Praça do Infante Dom Henrique; ☎ São Bento. Skip the indoor restaurant of this renovated market building in favour of the terrace bar, which overlooks Jardim do Infante Dom Henrique, and grab yourself a cool glass of port and tonic. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10.30am–midnight, Sat–Sun 2.30pm–2am.

O Meu Mercedes é Maior que o Teu Rua da Lada 30; ☎ São Bento/Jardim do Morro. This stalwart of the Ribeira scene not only wins the Porto bar name prize ("My Mercedes is bigger than yours") but is a wonderfully atmospheric stone-walled wine cellar with regular gigs. Wed–Sat 10pm–4am.

Plano B Rua de Cândido dos Reis 30; ☎ Jardim do Morro. A popular late-night bar with weekend DJs and a programme of live music and performance art. Tues–Wed 10pm–2am, Thurs 10pm–4am, Fri & Sat 10am–6pm.

★ Vinologia Rua de São João 28–30; ☎ São Bento. Innovative bar offering a huge selection of port (from €1.50/glass), with knowledgeable, friendly staff. Even an expert could learn a lot here. Daily 11am–midnight.

CLUBS

Porto's clubs are mostly outside the city centre; catch the #500 to Foz or one of the night buses from Aliados or Casa da Música if you can't afford a taxi.

Indústria Centro Comercial do Foz, Av do Brasil 835–0000; bus #500. A sophisticated dance club out in Foz do Douro, that gets packed in summer and sees Portugal's best DJs play to a cosmopolitan crowd. Thurs–Sat midnight–6am.

Maus Hábitos Rua Passos Manuel 178–4° ☎ maushabitos.com; ☎ Bolhão. Cultural space and bar opposite the Coliseu do Porto theatre, hosting live bands, singer-songwriters and pumping DJ sets. Check the website for listings. Also does veggie lunches until 3pm on weekdays. Bar Wed, Thurs & Sun 10am–2am, Fri–Sat 10am–4am.

Tendina dos Clérigos Rua Conde Vizela 80 ☎ 222 011 438, ☎ tendinhadosclerigos.com; ☎ Aliados/São Bento. One for rockers – a cave-like bar and club with pool table and dancefloor, that's also a regular venue for up-and-coming bands. Tues–Sat 1–6am.

DIRECTORY

Hospital Centro Hospitalar do Porto at Largo Prof Abel Salazar, near the university (☎ 222 077 500, ☎ chporto.pt). In an emergency, call ☎ 112.

Left luggage At Trindade metro station (daily 6am–1am; from €1/hr).

Post office The main post office is on Praça General Humberto Delgado, by the town hall; ☎ Aliados (Mon–Fri 8am–9pm, Sat 9am–6pm).

Tourist police Rua Clube dos Fenianos 11 ☎ 222 833 081 (daily 8am–2am).

BRAGA

BRAGA is Portugal's religious capital – and the scene of spectacular Easter celebrations with torchlight processions. But it's not all pomp and ceremony; it's also a lively university town, with a compact and pretty historical centre.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Rua Andrade Corvo leads from the train station to the centre, entered via the sixteenth-century Arco da Porta Nova.

The City

Just beyond the city gate lies the oldest cathedral in the country, the extraordinary Sé (daily: May–Sept 8am–7pm; Oct–April 8am–6.30pm; free), which dates back to 1070 and encompasses Gothic, Renaissance and Baroque styles. The most impressive areas of the Sé, the Gothic chapels – especially the Capela dos Reis (Kings' Chapel), built to house the tombs of Henry of Burgundy and his wife Theresa, the cathedral's founders – and the upper choir may only be visited by guided tour (same hours as cathedral; €5 for tour of museum, chapels and sacristy). Nearby on Rua dos Biscainhos, the Palácio dos Biscainhos (Tues–Sun 9.30am–12.45pm & 2–5.30pm; €2, free on first Sun of the month) is a beautiful seventeenth-century mansion housing a collection of decorative arts, paintings and sculptures. Just behind the palace lies the lovely Jardim de Santa Bárbara, an oasis of topiary and rose gardens. Braga's main square, the buzzing, café-lined Praça da República, is a short walk northwest of the garden.

Bom Jesus do Monte

Braga's real gem is Bom Jesus do Monte, set on a wooded hillside 3km above the city – its glorious ornamental stairway is one of Portugal's most iconic images. A monumental place of pilgrimage, Bom Jesus was created by Braga's archbishop in the early eighteenth century. The #2 bus runs from Braga's Avenida da Liberdade to Bom Jesus (2 hourly; €1.65). Save the ancient wooden funicular (€1.20) for the return journey and ascend the wide, tree-lined staircases to watch Bom Jesus's simple allegory unfold. Each landing holds a small fountain and a chapel containing rather crumbling tableau depictions of the life of Christ, leading up to the Crucifixion scene on the altar of the Neoclassical church which sits atop the staircase. Beyond the church are wooded gardens and a number of hotels and restaurants.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Braga's train station is almost 1km west of the centre, down Rua Andrade Corvo.

Destinations Lisbon (approx hourly; 3hr 30min–4hr 45min); Porto (at least hourly; 55min–1hr 10min).

By bus The bus station, a regional hub, is north of the centre on Av General Norton de Matos.

Destinations Coimbra (4–6 daily; 2hr–2hr 40min); Guimarães (every 30min; 25min); Lisbon (up to 12 daily; 4hr 30min); Porto (every 30min; 1hr); Vila do Gerês (for Parque Nacional da Peneda-Gerês; 5–11 daily; 1hr 30min).

Tourist information Av da Liberdade 1 (Mon–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–6.30pm, Sat 10am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎ 253 262 550, 🌐 www.cm-braga.pt).

ACCOMMODATION

Albergaria da Sé Rua Dom Gonçalo Pereira 39–51 ☎ 253 214 502. Friendly guesthouse in a great position on a pedestrianized street a stone's throw from the cathedral. The rooms are simple and clean, in a traditional style. €45

Pousada de Juventude Rua de Santa Margarida 6 ☎ 253 263 279, 🌐 pousadasjuventude.pt. Fairly basic but good value, with eight- and ten-bed dorms and three en-suite doubles. Dorms €12, doubles €30

Truthostel Av da Liberdade 738 ☎ 253 609 020, 🌐 truthostel.com. A reboot of an old guesthouse, this is a cheery budget haven with rooms to suit most pockets. The best rooms overlook the flower-filled pedestrianized avenue below. Dorms €15, doubles €35

EATING AND DRINKING

A Brasileira Largo Barão de São Marinho. Bustling café in the pedestrianized centre with drinks, light meals and sandwiches (from €2) served at pavement tables. Mon–Thurs 7.30am–midnight, Fri–Sat 7.30am–2am.

Livraria Mavy Rua Diogo de Sousa 129–133. The glorious old Cruz bookshop, vintage 1888, has been reborn as a hip café-bar. It's a coffee-and-cake place during the day (cheap lunches too) and more of a cocktail and drinks joint at night, with the beautiful interior doubling as a galeria for the work of local artists. Daily 9am–2am.

Taperia Palatu Rua Dom Afonso Henriques 35–37. Cool café-bar that serves a range of Spanish-influenced dishes (€8–12), from tapas and revueltos (fancy scrambled eggs) to steaks and sharing platters. In spring and summer, the small patio garden comes into its own. Daily noon–2am.

GUIMARÃES

The first capital of Portugal, GUIMARÃES remains an atmospheric and beautiful university town. In recent years its prosperity has been helped by the fact that it was named (along with Maribor in Slovenia) as the 2012 European Capital of Culture. The town's chief attraction is the hilltop castle (daily 10am–6pm, free; keep €1.50), whose square keep and seven towers are an enduring symbol of the emergent Portuguese nation. Built by the Countess of Mumadona and extended by Henry of Burgundy, it became the stronghold of his son, Afonso Henriques, Portugal's first independent king. Afonso launched the Reconquest from Guimarães, which was replaced by Coimbra as the capital city in 1143.

Other key sights include the Paço dos Duques de Bragança (daily 9am–6pm; €5) near the castle, a fifteenth-century palace which was perfectly restored and used as a presidential residence for Salazar, Portugal's former dictator. In the picturesque medieval centre, the pretty Praça de Santiago is a popular spot for an alfresco coffee by day, and comes alive again at night.

Guimarães is overlooked by the Penha peak (617m), which you can reach via the Teleférico de Guimarães (daily 10am–6.30pm; Aug open til 8pm; €2.30 return), just a five-minute walk from the edge of the old town.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is south of town, connected to the centre by Av D. Afonso Henriques.

Destinations Braga (up to 16 daily; 1hr 20min–2hr); Porto (hourly; 50min–1hr 20min).

By bus Guimarães's bus station is a 15min walk west of town in a vast shopping centre. Follow Av Conde de Margaride to reach the town centre.

Destinations Braga (every 30min; 40min–1hr); Coimbra (3 daily; 2hr–2hr 30min); Lisbon (2 daily; 5hr); Porto (2–3 daily; 1hr–1hr 15min).

Tourist information Tourist office on Alameda de São Damaso 83 (daily 10am–10pm; ☎ 300 402 012, 🌐 guimaraesturismo.com); there's also a branch office at Praça de Santiago 37 (Mon–Fri 9.30am–6.30pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; ☎ 253 421 221).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Pousada de Juventude Largo da Cidade 8 ☎ 253 421 380, 🌐 pousadasjuventude.pt. Stylish, modern hostel with excellent facilities including four-bed apartments: the best-value accommodation in town. Dorms €13, doubles €36, apartments €65

Trinas Rua das Trinas 29 ☎253 517 358. Well-run guesthouse in a historic building in the heart of the old town, with clean, comfortable en-suite rooms, free wi-fi and in-room TVs. Doubles €40

EATING AND DRINKING

Casa Amarela Rua do Donães 16–24. A funky townhouse with weekend gigs and DJs upstairs in a smallish contemporary bar that opens onto a roof terrace; good food is served downstairs, from tapas to bacalhau, steak or veggie mains (tapas €4, mains €10–13). Sun–Thurs 10am–midnight, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Mumadona Rua Serpa Pinto 260. The cheapest food in town is the set lunch that gets you soup, a choice of main dish, drink and coffee, though it's not much pricier choosing off the menu – generous half-portions start at €5 in this bustling family-run restaurant. Mon–Sat noon–3pm & 7–10pm.

THE DOURO RAIL ROUTE

The Douro Valley, a narrow, winding gorge for the majority of its route, offers some of Portugal's most spectacular scenery. The Douro Rail Route, which joins the river about 60km inland (shortly after Livração) and then sticks to it across the country, is one of those journeys that needs no justification other than the trip itself.

Porto is a good place to begin a trip, though there are also regular connections along the line as far as

PARQUE NACIONAL DA PENEDA-GERÊS

Encompassing mountains, valleys and moors, Portugal's only national park is heaven for nature lovers, with ample opportunities for hiking, as well as more extreme sports. The main bases for exploration are the spa town of Vila do Gerês and Ponte da Barca, where the park's Regional Development Association, Adere-PG, is located. It's worth visiting them at Largo da Misericórdia 10 in Ponte da Barca (Mon–Fri 9am–12.30pm & 2.30–6pm; ☎adere-pg.pt) for information on walking routes and accommodation, including a booking service. Vila do Gerês is easily reached by bus from Braga (5–11 daily; 1hr 30min), as is Ponte da Barca (3–8 daily; 1hr).

Peso da Régua, the depot through which all port wine must pass on its way to Porto. Beyond Régua, there are less frequent connections to Tua and Pocinho, which marks the end of the line. The trip from Porto to Pocinho takes just over three hours (€13).

Southern Portugal

The huge, sparsely populated plains of the Alentejo, southeast of Lisbon, are overwhelmingly agricultural, dominated by vast cork plantations. This impoverished province provides nearly half of the world's cork but only a meagre living for its rural inhabitants. Visitors to the Alentejo often head for Évora, the province's dominant and most historic town. But the Alentejo coast, the Costa Azul, is a breath of fresh air after the stifling plains of the inland landscape, and offers a low-key alternative to the busy Algarve.

With its long, sandy beaches and picturesque rocky coves, the southern coast of the Algarve is the most visited region in the country. West of Faro, the region's capital, you'll find the classic postcard images of the Algarve – a series of tiny bays and coves, broken up by rocky outcrops and fantastic grottoes, which reach their most spectacular around the resort of Lagos. To the east of Faro lie the less developed sandy offshore islets, the Ilhas – which front the coastline for some 40km – and the lower-key towns of Olhão and Tavira. In summer it's wise to book accommodation in advance, as the Algarve is a popular package-holiday destination.

ÉVORA

ÉVORA, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, is one of southern Portugal's most attractive towns and worth a day's exploration. The Romans and the Moors were in occupation for four centuries apiece, leaving their stamp in the tangle of narrow alleys that rise steeply among the whitewashed houses. Most of the monuments, however, date from the fourteenth to the sixteenth centuries, when, with royal encouragement, the city was one of the leading centres of Portuguese art and architecture.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Templo Romano in the central square is the best-preserved Roman temple in Portugal, its remains consisting of a small platform supporting more than a dozen granite columns with a marble entablature. Next to the temple lies the church of the Convento dos Lóios. The convent is now a luxury pousada, but the church (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €7), dedicated to São João Evangelista, contains beautiful azulejos and an ossuary under the floor. Nearby, the Romanesque cathedral (daily 9am–5pm; Oct–May closed 12.30–2pm; cloisters and cathedral €2.50, with tower €4) was begun in 1186, about twenty years after the reconquest of Évora from the Moors. The most memorable sight in town is the Capela dos Ossos (daily 9am–12.30pm & 2.30–5pm; €3) in the church of São Francisco, just south of Praça do Giraldo. A gruesome reminder of mortality, the walls and pillars of this chilling chamber are covered with the bones of more than five thousand monks; an inscription over the door reads, Nós ossos que aqui estamos, Pelos vossos esperamos – “We bones here are waiting for your bones”. Just below the church lies a beautiful, shady park with resident peacocks, a duck pond and a small café.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Évora's bus station is 1km west of the old town.

Destinations Faro (3 daily; 4hr); Lisbon (approx hourly; 1hr 40min).

By train Trains pull in south of the old town, a 15min walk from the central Praça do Giraldo.

Destinations Lisbon (3–4 daily; 2hr 10min).

Tourist information Tourist office at Praça do Giraldo 73 (daily 9am–7pm; ☎ 266 777 071).

ACCOMMODATION

Évora's tourist appeal pushes accommodation prices above the norm. In addition to the places listed below, there are also some attractive turismo rural properties in the nearby countryside; the tourist office has details.

★ Hostel Namaste Largo Doutor Manuel Alves Branco, 12 ☎ 266 743 014, ☞ hostelnamasteevora.pt. Cool, breezy house in a quiet part of town with a shady courtyard, a sun terrace and big, bright dorms and en-suite doubles. There's a ten percent discount for artists, teachers and students. Dorms €17, doubles €45

Parque de Campismo Estrada de Alcáçovas ☎ 266 705 190, ☞ orbitur.pt; bus #41 from Praça do Giraldo. This well-equipped campsite is 2km out of town on the Alcáçovas road. Per tent €22

Policarpo Rua Freiria de Baixo 16 ☎ 266 702 424, ☞ pensaapolicarpo.com. Beautiful, rambling old place full of rustic charm. As well as doubles, there are also rooms sleeping three or four. Doubles €40

Pousada de Juventude Rua Miguel Bombarda 40 ☎ 266 706 050, ☞ pousadasjuventude.pt. In a very grand building, this excellent youth hostel has pristine double rooms and four-bed dorms. There's a pleasant communal lounge and a roof-top terrace with great views. Dorms €14, doubles €42

EATING AND DRINKING

A Choupana Rua dos Mercadores 16–20. Pick a stool along the wooden bar or a seat in the attached restaurant, where bow-tied waiters serve, and tuck into some tasty tapas, such as the alheira (chicken) sausage (€8). Daily noon–1am.

O Combinado Rua de Machede 95a. Near the university, this small, popular local does very good-value dishes such as fish of the day for under €10, and a bargain tourist menu at around €12. Mon & Wed–Fri 9.30am–3pm & 7–10pm, Sat & Sun 11am–10pm.

Páteo Beco do Espinhoso, off Rua 5 de Outubro. This lovely patio café-bar, with tables and chairs beneath shady olive and lemon trees, serves soups and snacks from around €6 and hosts occasional exhibitions. May–Sept daily 11.30am–midnight; March–Oct Mon–Sat 11.30am–8pm, Sun 11.30am–2pm.

★ TREAT YOURSELF

The Évora Inn 11 Rua da República

☎ 266 744 500, ☞ evorainn.com. Tucked away off Praça do Giraldo, this designer guesthouse has smart, individually styled rooms with themes such as pop, travel and revolution. All the double rooms and (slightly pricier) suites come with high-end designer furnishings by the likes of Philippe Starck, and the communal areas boast pieces by Portuguese artists. Doubles €60

THE ALENTEJO COAST

South of Lisbon, the Alentejo coast features towns and beaches as inviting as those of the Algarve. Some of the most attractive are the relaxed resort of Vila Nova de Milfontes, and the surfers' haven of Zambujeira do Mar. Though exposed to the winds and waves of the Atlantic and with colder waters than the Algarve, the Alentejo coast is fine for summer swimming and far quieter than its neighbouring region. Outside the summer season, the area is blissfully peaceful. Surfing is popular along the Alentejo coast, with Milfontes being a good spot for beginners: Surf Milfontes in Vila Nova de Milfontes (☎914 732 652, surfamilfontes.com) gives lessons from €40.

Vila Nova de Milfontes

The attractively low-key resort of VILA NOVA DE MILFONTES sits on the estuary of the River Mira, whose sandy banks merge into the coastline. This is the most popular as well as one of the most beautiful resorts in the region, its streets lined with houses and hotels painted in the typical Alentejan white and blue. Adding to the charm is a handsome little castle and an ancient port, reputed to have harboured Hannibal and his Carthaginians during a storm.

Zambujeira do Mar

Southwest of Odemira, southern Alentejo's main inland town, is the tiny village of ZAMBUJEIRA DO MAR. Here a large cliff provides a dramatic backdrop to the beach, which is prime surfing territory. Quieter than Vila Nova de Milfontes, the village livens up in summer, with an annual music festival (meosudoeste.pt) attracting international names.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Express buses from Lisbon (Rede Expressos; www.rede-expressos.pt) take you within easy reach of the whole coastline, stopping at Vila Nova de Milfontes (3hr 30min) and Zambujeira do Mar (3hr 40min). Destinations from Vila Nova de Milfontes Portimão (1 daily; 2hr 20min); Zambujeira do Mar (2 daily; 25min).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation is plentiful in both Vila Nova de Milfontes and Zambujeira do Mar, but it's wise to book ahead during the summer months.

VILA NOVA DE MILFONTES

Camping Milfontes Pousadas Novas, just north of town ☎283 996 104, campingmilfontes.com. Well-equipped campsite with its own saltwater pool. There are also bungalows and two-person teepees for rent. Per person €4.40, plus per tent €5.40

Casa Amarela Rua Dom Luis Castro e Almeida ☎283 996 632, casaaamarelamilfontes.com. Dorm beds, attractive en-suite rooms and a guest kitchen can be found at this backpackers' favourite. Reductions for longer stays. Dorms €20, doubles €65

ZAMBUJEIRA DO MAR

Camping Zambujeira About 1km east of the cliffs ☎283 958 407, campingzambujeira.com. Campsite with 2-person apartments, plus its own minimarket and pools. Camping/person €6.25, plus per tent €6, apartments €75

FARO

FARO is the capital of the Algarve, with excellent beaches within easy reach, but as regional capitals go, it's surprisingly laidback. While its suburbs may be modern, Faro retains an attractive historic centre south of the marina.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Cidade Velha, or Old Town, is a semi-walled quarter entered through the eighteenth-century town gate, the Arco da Vila. Here you'll find the majestic Sé (Mon–Fri 10am–6.30pm, last admission 6pm, Sat 10am–1pm, last admission 12.30pm; €3), which offers superb views from its bell tower. The nearby Museu Municipal (April–Sept Tues–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun 11.30am–6pm; Oct–March Tues–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10.30am–5pm; €2) is housed in a sixteenth-century convent on Largo Dom Alfonso III; the most striking exhibit is a third-century Roman mosaic of Neptune and the four winds, unearthed near Faro train station.

Faro's most curious sight is the Baroque Igreja do Carmo (Mon–Fri 10am–1pm & 3–6pm, Sat 10am–1pm), near the central post office on Largo do Carmo. A door to the right of the altar leads to a macabre Capela dos Ossos (€1.20), its walls decorated with bones disinterred from the adjacent cemetery. The nearby beach (Praia de Faro) can be reached by bus from the Avenida da República stop opposite the bus station, or by boat from the harbour. Up to five boats a day also go to the more tranquil Ilha do Farol; the tourist information office has timetables or you can check the website of local operator Silnido (silnido.com).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Taxis from the airport, 6km west of town, to the centre cost €12–14, or take bus #14 or #16 (every 45min, 7am–8pm; 20min; €2.25). To get to the airport, catch the bus from the stop opposite the bus station.

By train The train station is a couple of minutes' walk north beyond the central bus station, up Av da República. Destinations Lagos (7–9 daily; 1hr 40min); Lisbon (5 daily; 3hr–3hr 30min); Olhão (up to 13 daily; 11min); Tavira (up to 13 daily; 35min).

By bus Buses use the station below the Hotel Eva, just north of the marina.

Destinations Évora (3 daily; 4hr); Lagos (6 daily; 2hr 10min); Lisbon (6–8 daily; 3hr 45min); Olhão (1–2 hourly; 20min); Seville, Spain (4 daily; 2–3hr); Tavira (up to 11 daily; 1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main tourist office is near the harbour at Rua da Misericórdia 8–12 (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat–Sun 9am–1pm & 2–6pm; ☎289 803 604, turismodoalgarve.pt); there's also a branch at the airport (daily 8am–11.30pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Adelaide Rua Cruz dos Mestres 7 ☎289 802 383, adelaideresidencial.net. A short walk north of the old town, this friendly guesthouse has bright, simply styled en-suite rooms with a/c, cable TV and free wi-fi. Welcoming staff. Doubles €70

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Aeromar Av Nascente 1, Praia de Faro ☎289 817 542, aeromar.net. With its own restaurant, this simple hotel has decent doubles right opposite the beach at Praia de Faro. A five-minute bus ride from the airport, it makes a great first or last night's stay – or longer if you want to lounge on this long sand-spit beach. Doubles €70

★ Casa D'Alagoa Praça Alexandre Herculano 27 ☎289 813 252, farohostel.com. Beautifully restored, 300-year-old house converted into a sociable hostel with its own courtyard, kitchen and roof terrace. Clean dorms, solid wooden bunks with proper mattresses and lots of late-night sangria sessions. Dorms €35, doubles €60
Pousada de Juventude Rua da Polícia de Segurança Pública 1 ☎289 826 521, pousadasjuventude.pt. Basic but friendly hostel a 10min walk east of the centre; some rooms are en suite. Dorms €14, doubles €42

EATING AND DRINKING

A Venda Rua do Compromisso 60. Small local with a living-room like interior, a great place to sample petiscos (most €3.50–6) such as salt-cod rissoles and blood sausage. Bench-like seats outside on an attractive cobbled backstreet. Tues–Sat noon–11pm.

Adega Nova Rua Francisco Barreto 24. A good-value restaurant that seats diners on long, shared benches in a barn-like building. It's always crammed with locals, who come for tasty dishes such as grilled pork steaks (€12). Daily noon–11pm.

Columbus Lounge Bar Jardim Manuel Bivar. Close to the harbour, this fashionable bar has outdoor seats beneath the arcades of a former hospital plus a cosy lounge bar inside with a relaxed, friendly atmosphere and tangy mojitos. Daily 11am–1am.

Fim do Mundo Rua Vasco da Gama 53. This narrow restaurant serving good-value fish and grills from around €7 is a lot more cheery than its name (End of the World) suggests. Mon noon–3pm, Wed–Sun noon–midnight.

Poncha's Bar Rua do Rasquinho 26. Popular student bar with an outside terrace serving inexpensive beer, sangria and, of course, poncha, a punchy Madeiran cocktail made from honey, lemon and firewater. Mon–Sat 9pm–4am.

LAGOS

The seaside town of LAGOS is one of the Algarve's most popular destinations and attracts large numbers of visitors each summer, drawn by its beautiful beaches and lively nightlife. Lagos was also favoured by Henry the Navigator, who used it as a base for African trade.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

On the waterfront and to the rear of the town are the remains of Lagos's once impregnable fortifications, devastated by the Great Earthquake. One rare and beautiful church which did survive was the Igreja de Santo António, on Rua General Alberto Silveira; decorated around 1715, its gilt and carved interior is wildly obsessive, every centimetre filled with cherubic youths struggling with animals and fish. The church is part of – and can be visited in tandem with – the adjacent Museu Municipal (Tues–Sun 10am–1pm & 2–6pm; €3), housing an eclectic collection of artefacts including Roman busts and deformed animal fetuses. Across the square from here, the arcaded former Customs House on Praça do Infante lies on the site of Europe's first slave market, opened in 1444. It now houses a museum tracing the history of the lamentable trade (Mon–Sat 10am–12.30pm & 2–5.30pm; €3).

Lagos's main attraction, however, is its splendid array of beaches, the most secluded of which lie below extravagantly eroded cliff faces south of town. Praia de Dona Ana is considered the most picturesque, though its crowds make the smaller coves of Praia do Pinhão, down a track just opposite the fire station, and Praia Camilo, a little further along, more appealing. Over the river east of Lagos is a splendid sweep of sand – Meia Praia – where there's space even at the height of summer. Meia Praia is ideal for watersports enthusiasts, as various companies based here offer sailing, sea kayaking and waterskiing lessons. Those who like to keep their feet dry might prefer an excursion to the extraordinary rock formations around Ponta da Piedade, a headland that can be viewed by boat (from €15 for an hour, or €20 for longer trips) from the marina. Smaller boats have the advantage of gaining access to some of the smaller grottoes.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is across the river, a 15min walk from the centre across the swing bridge to the marina. Destinations Faro (7–9 daily; 1hr 40min); Lisbon (5 daily, change at Tunes; 4hr).

By bus The bus station is slightly closer to the town centre, just off the main Av dos Descobrimentos.

Destinations Faro (2–5 daily; 2hr 10min); Lisbon (3–8 daily; 4hr 35min); Seville, Spain (2–4 daily; 4hr 15min).

Tourist information The tourist office is inside the old town hall on Praça Gil Eanes, in the central pedestrianized zone (daily 9am–6pm; ☎ 282 763 031). Available from hostels, bars and restaurants around town, the Good Times

Guide to Lagos (📧 goodtimeslagos.com) includes a map of the local area.

ACCOMMODATION

Algarve Surf Hostel Urb Cerro das Mos Lote 55 📧 algarvesurfschool.com. Villa-style hostel a 15min walk from the centre and set around a swimming pool, with sociable areas for playing pool, drinking and barbecuing. Arranges surf trips to nearby beaches. Dorms €29, doubles €80

Campismo da Trindade Rossio da Trindade ☎ 282 763 893. Small, busy campsite close to the sea and just south of the town centre. To reach it, follow the main road 200m beyond the fort. Open all year. Per tent €10

Gold Coast Hostel Rua Gil Vicente 48 ☎ 916 594 225, 📧 goldcoast.lagoshostels.com. Friendly, relaxed hostel with a shared kitchen and a cool outdoor terrace. Not as party-focused as some of the other Lagos hostels. Dorms €22, doubles €58

Jah Shaka Surf Lodge Estrada da Luz-Burgau, on the outskirts of Luz, about 8km west of Lagos ☎ 282 764 848, 📧 jahshakasurf.com. Well-equipped villa, with a pool, TV room and volleyball court. The best dorm has sea views and a big en-suite bathroom. The owners can arrange land- and sea-based activities in the area. Call to arrange free pick-up from town or take a taxi (€15). Camping/tent €35, dorms €30, doubles €40

Pousada de Juventude Rua Lançarote de Freitas 50 ☎ 282 761 970, 📧 pousadasjuventude.pt. Busy, well-equipped hostel in a central location, with both the beach and the main after-dark watering holes within easy reach. Dorms €17, doubles €45

Rising Cock Hostel Travessa do Forno 14 ☎ 968 758 785, 📧 risingcock.com. Popular party hostel with a female-only dorm and free crêpes for breakfast. The facilities are a little worn, but this is still the best place for meeting other travellers. Dorms €30

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Key areas for restaurants and nightlife are the streets around central Praça Gil Eanes, with the cheaper options further back from the water. Avoid the restaurants around the marina, which tend to charge over the odds for very average food.

Adega da Marina Av dos Descobrimentos 35. A great barn of a place with rows of tables serving very good-value food, including huge portions of charcoal-grilled meat and fish; there's occasional live music, too. Most mains under €10. Daily noon–2am.

Bon Vivante Rua 25 Abril 105. This late-night bar/club at the top of the main pedestrianized street has drinking on three floors and a superb roof terrace – a great spot to watch the sun go down. Daily 2pm–4am.

★ Bora Café Rua Conselheiro Joaquim Machado 17. On both sides of a narrow backstreet, serving decent tapas (around €5 a plate) among the wind chimes and cushioned benches. Mon–Sat 8.30am–8.30pm, Sun 9.30am–8.30pm.

Eddie's Bar Rua 25 de Abril 99. Friendly, intimate bar on the main drag – the loud music, TV football and good-value happy hours attract a lively expat crowd. Daily noon–2am.

Fresco Beco Senhora do Loreto. Good value glass-fronted corner café selling fresh, international dishes with a wide selection of veggie options and a three-course menu that changes daily (€8.50). Mon–Fri 9am–6pm.

The Garden Rua de Lançarote de Freitas 27. The big draw here is a large patio garden, with tables beneath shady trees. There's a bit of everything on the menu, from good cocktails, pasta and burgers (from €7) to more pricey Moroccan-influenced mains such as couscous, tagines and kefta. Daily 1pm–1am.

Nahnahbar Travessa do Forno 14. A good spot for dinner or drinks, with home-made burgers (around €9), salads, pasta dishes and cocktails served up by a young, international team. Daily 6–11pm; Oct–March closed Tues.

OLHÃO AND THE ISLANDS

OLHÃO, 8km east of Faro, is the largest fishing port in the Algarve and an excellent base for visiting the local sandbank islands. The narrow streets of the pedestrianized centre, close to the seafont, are pretty yet free of tourist hordes, ensuring the town retains much of its charm.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Although Olhão has no sights to speak of, its café-strewn centre is worth a wander, and there's one of the Algarve's best food markets in two buildings on the waterfront Avenida 5 de Outubro (Mon–Fri 7am–2pm, Sat 6.30am–3pm). The town's main attraction, however, is its close proximity to, and good connections with, two of the sandbank islands that comprise the Ria Formosa Natural Park. The islands of Armona and Culatra boast some superb, spacious beaches, so expansive that they still feel uncrowded even in the height of summer. Ferries to the islands run year-round, and depart regularly (up to 9 daily) from the jetty to the left of the municipal gardens. The service to Armona (30min; €3.70 return) drops you off at a long strip of holiday chalets and huts that stretches right across the island on either side of the main path. On the ocean side, the beach disappears into the distance and a short walk will take you to totally deserted stretches of sand. Boats to Culatra (30min; €3.70 return) call first at Culatra town, a working fishing village around twenty minutes' walk from a fine ocean-facing beach. The same boat then continues to Praia do Farol (1hr; €4.30 return), considered to be one of the most beautiful beaches on the sandbank islands. Heading east, away from the holiday homes, the beach becomes quieter, and eventually leads to the peaceful Praia dos Hangares.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Olhão train station is just east of Av da República, towards the north of town.

Destinations Faro (10–13 daily; 11min); Tavira (10–13 daily; 20min).

By bus The bus station is nearby, to the west of the Avenida.

Destinations Faro (1–2 hourly; 20min); Lisbon (3–4 daily; 4hr).

Tourist information Tourist office at Largo Sebastião Martins Mestre 6a (Mon–Fri 9.30am–1pm & 2–5.30pm; ☎ 289 713 936).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Bela Vista Rua Teófilo Braga 65–67 ☎ 289 702 538. A long-standing favourite, with neat and tidy en-suite rooms with a/c set round an internal courtyard: there's also a roof terrace. No breakfast. Doubles €45

★ Bicuar Rua Vasco da Gama 5 ☎ 289 714 816, ☞ pensionbicuar.com. Spotless guesthouse with a kitchen, roof terrace, and pleasant rooms (sleeping up to four) with shower and sink. Minimum two nights' stay in July & Aug. No breakfast. Doubles €55

Camping Olhão Pinheiros de Marim ☎ 289 700 300. Large, upmarket, well-equipped campsite with a pool, 3km east of town, next to the Quinta da Marim nature reserve. In summer a bus runs from near the municipal garden. Per tent €8.50

Tapas e Lendas Rua Dr Manuel Ariega 18. This attractive tapas bar has seats outside and an upstairs terrace. It serves a good range of drinks and excellent tapas such as goat's cheese with honey in filo pastry, and local sausage, from around €4.50. Mon 6–10pm, Tues–Sat noon–3pm & 6–10pm.

TAVIRA

TAVIRA is a handsome little town made up of cobbled streets, and split into two pretty halves by the River Gilão. The Romans and Moors who once ruled Tavira left behind monuments that contribute to the town's appeal, though the main tourist attractions, the superb island beaches of the Ilha de Tavira, lie offshore. Boats to the island depart approximately once an hour from the quayside on Rua do Cais (June–Sept 9am–6.30pm; July–Aug 8am–7pm; Oct 10am–4.30pm, last return 30min after final departure; €2 return), with year-round boats from Quatro Águas (every 15min–1hr; 5min; €1.50 return), 2km east of town. The beach is backed by dunes and stretches west for some 11km. Despite some development – a small chalet settlement, a campsite, and a handful of bars and restaurants facing the sea – it's easy to find your own peaceful patch of sand.

Back in central Tavira, the small Nucléo Islâmico museum, on Praça da República (Tues–Sat 9am–4.30pm; €2), traces the town's Islamic heritage, with three floors of tiles and utensils from the time the town was under Moorish rule, including an earth-and-stone wall left in situ.

Elsewhere, it's worth wandering up to the remains of the Moorish castle (Mon–Fri 8am–5pm, Sat & Sun 10am–7pm; free), perched high above the town, with its walls enclosing a pretty garden that affords splendid views. Close to the castle, at Calçada da Galeria 12, a former water tower has been converted into a camera obscura, offering views of the town (Feb–June Mon–Fri 10am–5pm; July–Sept Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–1pm; Oct–Jan Mon–Fri 10am–4pm; €4).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is 1km southeast of the town centre, at the end of Av Doutor Mateus Teixeira de Azevedo. Destinations Faro (around 10–13 daily; 35min); Olhão (10–13 daily; 25min).

By bus Buses pull up at the terminal by the river, a 2min walk from the central square, Praça da República. Destinations Faro (7–11 daily; 1hr); Lisbon (3–4 daily; 4hr 20min).

★TREAT YOURSELF

Aquasul Rua Dr Augusto Silva Carvalho 11 ☎ 281 325 166. Perfectly cooked international dishes, stonebaked pizzas (from €9.50) and daily specials are the order of the day at friendly Aquasul. Seasonal starters include beetroot carpaccio with goat's cheese and rocket followed by mains like confit of duck with red cabbage (€13–15). The setting is pretty and peaceful, with pastel-coloured tables spilling out of the restaurant onto a pedestrianized cobbled street. Tues–Sat 6.30–10.30pm.

Tourist information Praça da República 5 (Mon–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–6pm, with extended hours July & Aug; ☎ 281 322 511, 📧 cm-tavira.pt).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Tavira Ilha de Tavira ☎ 281 321 709. Busy campsite with a great location on the Ilha de Tavira; follow the path opposite the ferry dock to reach it. Open Easter–Sept. Per tent €12

Lagoas Rua Almirante Cândido dos Reis 24 ☎ 281 328 243, 📧 al.lagoas@hotmail.com. Long-established guest-house in an old house with small rooms, some of which have en-suite facilities. There are two sun terraces, the highest of which has views across Tavira. Doubles €55

Pousada de Juventude Rua Miguel Bombarda 36–38 ☎ 217 326 731 101, 📧 pousadasjuventude.pt. Pristine hostel with excellent facilities, including a relaxed communal lounge area, simple dorms and attractive private rooms (some of which have en-suite facilities). Dorms €17, doubles €47

EATING AND DRINKING

Casa Simão Rua Rua João Vaz Corte Real 10. This is where the locals go to fill up on Portuguese steaks and grills from €6–9 – it's a bustling place which gets busy early, but if you can't get a seat, Os Arcos next door is a good backup. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm.

Tavira Lounge Rua Gonçalves Velho 16–18. A smart riverside place that acts as a café/ice-cream parlour by day and a restaurant/tapas bar by night. Tapas from around €4. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–2am, Fri & Sat noon–3am.

Zeca da Bica Rua Almirante Cândido dos Reis 22–24. The setting may be basic, but the food can't be faulted – fresh, tasty portions of Portuguese classics such as grilled sardines from around €8. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun noon–3pm & 7–10pm.

Introduction

Nowhere in Eastern Europe defies preconceptions quite like Romania. It still suffers from a poor image abroad, but don't be put off – this intriguing country, dotted with picturesque towns and rural communities following traditions little changed since the Middle Ages, is easily accessible and a pleasure to explore.

Romanians trace their ancestry back to the Romans and tend to stress their Latin roots, although they have Balkan traits too. Viewing their future as firmly within the Euro-Atlantic family, they were delighted to join NATO and then, in 2007, the European Union.

The capital, Bucharest, is perhaps daunting for the first-time visitor – its savage recent history is only too evident, not least in the form of the Communist-era Centru Civic – but parts of this once-beautiful city have retained their appeal. More attractive by far, and easily accessible on public transport, is Transylvania, an ancient region offering some of the most beautiful mountain scenery in Europe as well as a uniquely multi-ethnic character. Its chief cities, such as Braşov, Sibiu and Sighişoara, were built by Saxon (German) colonists, and there are also strong Hungarian and Roma (Gypsy) presences here. In the border region of the Banat, also highly multi-ethnic, Timişoara is Romania's most Western-looking city and famed as the birthplace of the 1989 revolution.

CHRONOLOGY

513 BC The Dacian tribe inhabit the area of present-day Romania.

106 AD The Roman Emperor Trajan conquers the Dacian tribe.

271 Following attacks from the Goths, the Romans withdraw from the area.

1000s Hungary conquers and occupies parts of present-day Romania.

1200s Division of Romanian population into different principalities including Wallachia, Moldavia and Transylvania.

1400s Principalities of Moldavia, Transylvania and Wallachia come under attack from the Turkish Ottomans but remain independent.

1448 Vlad "the Impaler" becomes Prince of Wallachia; he is later credited as the inspiration for the character of Dracula.

1700s The Austrian Habsburgs take control of large parts of the Romanian principalities after military successes over the Ottomans.

1862 After battling for independence, Wallachia and Moldavia unite to form Romania. Bucharest is declared the capital.

1878 Romania's claim to independence is formalized by the Treaty of Berlin.

1881 Carol I is named the first King of Romania.

1918 After invasion by the central powers during World War I, Romania is freed and her borders increased.

1939–45 Romania sides with Germany at start of World War II, but changes allegiance to the Allies towards the end. Soviets take large parts of Romanian territory.

1947 Soviet influence remains and the Communist Party comes into power in Romania.

1965 Nicolae Ceauşescu becomes Communist Party leader and adopts a foreign-policy stance independent of the Soviets.

1989 Revolution leads to the overthrow of the Communist regime.

2004 Romania joins NATO.

2007 Romania joins the European Union.

2012 Following almost a decade of strong economic growth, severe recession and austerity measures trigger widespread unrest and the resignation of Prime Minister Emil Boc.

2014 Romanians are permitted to work without restriction throughout the EU.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

All flights into and out of Bucharest use Otopeni (Henri Coandă) airport, but there are half a dozen regional airports (of which Cluj-Napoca, Iaşi and Timişoara are the most important), served by a growing number of budget airlines such as Wizz Air (wizzair.com), Blue Air (blueairweb.com) and easyJet (easyjet.com).

Travelling to Romania by train is fairly simple via Paris, Vienna and Budapest, and there are also through trains from Istanbul, Chişinău and Sofia. This will usually cost more than flying into the country, but works well as part of a larger Europe-wide trip using a pass or point-to-point ticket options (see p.34), including InterRail (for European residents) and Eurail (for non-European residents).

GETTING AROUND

There are two types of train: InterRegio trains are the fastest and only call at major towns, while Regio trains stop everywhere and are generally pretty grubby and crowded. Some overnight trains have sleeping carriages (vagon de dormit) and couchettes (cuşet) for a modest surcharge. InterRegio tickets include a seat reservation. You'll also need a seat reservation for international trains even if you do not require one before entering Romania, so be sure to book a seat before departure or face a fine. The best place to buy tickets and book seats is at the local Agenţia SNCFR (generally Mon–Fri 7.30am–7.30pm, Sat 8am–noon; ☎cfrcalatori.ro).

The bus (autobuz) network is incredibly confusing, and there are often several bus stations in one town, so it's best to check bus times in advance at ☎autogari.ro. Minibuses (maxitaxi) are also prevalent on many routes, and are generally faster and more frequent than buses; they do also make some surprisingly long inter-city journeys; expect to pay roughly the same as the Regio train fare.

Taxis are cheap and an attractive alternative to crowded public transport, but be sure to choose a taxi with a clearly marked company name, and check that the meter is working.

ACCOMMODATION

Most cities, and some towns, have a reasonable selection of hostels, and you can expect to pay around 45–55 lei for a dorm bed. Cheaper hotels cost 80–130 lei for a basic en-suite double; breakfast is normally an extra 15–20 lei. In season (June–Sept) you may come across locals at train or bus stations offering private rooms (cazare la persoane particulare), particularly in the more touristy areas of Transylvania and the coastal resorts; expect to pay around 50 lei per person. Most campsites are fairly basic; you'll pay around 30 lei per night for tent space. Outside national parks, officials will generally turn a blind eye if you are discreet about camping wild.

FOOD AND DRINK

Breakfast (micul dejun) is typically a fairly light meal of bread rolls, butter and jam and an omelette washed down with a coffee (cafea). The most common snacks are bread rings (covrigi), flaky pastries (pateuri) filled with cheese (cu brânză) or meat (cu carne), and spicy grilled sausages (mici) and meatballs (chiftele). Menus in most restaurants concentrate on grilled meats, or friptura. Cotlet de porc is the common pork chop, while muşchi de vacă is fillet of beef.

Traditional Romanian dishes can be delicious. The best known of these is sarmale – pickled cabbage stuffed with rice, meat and herbs, usually served with sour cream – and tochitură moldovenească, a pork stew, with cheese, polenta (mămăligă) and a fried egg on top.

Vegetarians could try asking for cașcaval pane (hard cheese fried in breadcrumbs), ghiveci (mixed fried veg), ardei umpluții (stuffed peppers), or vegetables and salads. Cakes and desserts are sweet and sticky, as throughout the Balkans. Romanians also enjoy pancakes (clățite) and pies (plăcintă) with various fillings.

DRINK

Most cafés (cafenea or cofetărie) serve the full range of beverages, from coffee (and occasionally tea) to soft drinks and beer, while many also offer cakes, pastries and ice cream. Coffee, whether cafea naturală (finely ground and brewed Turkish-style), filtru (filtered) or nes (instant), is usually drunk black and sweet; ask for it cu lapte or fără zahăr if you prefer it with milk or without sugar. One very welcome recent development has been the growth of specialist coffee houses (particularly in Bucharest, Cluj and one or two other cities), where you can get freshly roasted coffee whipped up by knowledgeable baristas in modern design interiors.

During the summer months, most drinking takes place in open-air cafés, bars and beer gardens (gradina de vară), which are plentiful in towns and cities; beer cellars (cramas) are also tremendously popular. Try țuică, a powerful plum brandy taken neat; in rural areas, it is home-made and often twice distilled to yield fearsomely strong palincă. Most beer (bere) is German-style lager, though there are an increasing number of craft beers on the market, such as Zăganu. Romania's best wines are Grasa (white) and Feteasca Neagră (red), and the sweet dessert wines of Murfatlar.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Generally speaking, Romanians tend to be very open and friendly people. They will think nothing of striking up a conversation on buses and trains, even if they don't speak much English, and will try their best to communicate through any language barrier.

When speaking to older people, it is respectful to address them using either Domnul (Mr) or Doamna (Mrs), while shaking someone's hand is the most common and familiar way of greeting – although bear in mind that a Romanian man may well kiss a woman's hand on introduction. The welcoming attitude of the Romanians may mean you are invited to someone's home; it is considered polite to bring a small gift with you, which you should also wrap.

Tipping in restaurants is not necessary, although it will be appreciated. Smoking is officially banned in any indoor public space, including all restaurants, cafés and bars.

Over the past decade, Romania has made good progress in its attitude

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Romania's landscape is dominated by the spectacular Carpathian Mountains. A continuation of the Alps, they encircle Transylvania and provide the country with a rocky backbone perfect for activities ranging from hiking and skiing to caving and mountain biking.

The main mountain ranges, the Bucegi, the Făgăraş, the Apuseni and the Retezat, provide the best-known destinations for hiking. There are numerous well-marked trails allowing day-trips or longer expeditions, sleeping in a mountain refuge (cabana); these are usually very friendly and sociable places, and make good bases for hiking, caving or climbing. All of the trails are marked on the excellent Hartă Turistica (🌐hartaturistica.ro) maps, which can be found in hiking shops and bookshops in most major towns. Some cabanas also sell maps. Spring and summer are the best seasons to explore the mountains, and a large number of trails should only be attempted in warmer weather.

Between November and April, Romania offers some of Europe's cheapest skiing and snowboarding (🌐ski-in-romania.com), the most popular resorts being Poiana Braşov, near Braşov, and Sinaia; other resorts include Buşteni and Predeal – on the main road north from Bucharest – Păltiniş near Sibiu, Borşa to the north in Maramureş, and Ceahlău and Durău on the border of Moldavia. Most of the larger resorts all have a number of easy and medium pistes and at least one black run.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post offices (poştă) in major cities are open Monday to Friday 7am to 8pm, Saturday 8am to noon; in smaller places they may close an hour or two earlier. You can phone from the orange cardphones (though these are increasingly rare) or post offices. Phonecards (10 or 15 lei – get the latter for international calls) are available from post offices and news kiosks. Cheap SIM cards are available from Romania's three main mobile network providers (Orange, Telekom and Vodafone). Wi-fi is widespread and universally excellent.

EMERGENCIES

Watch out for pickpockets in crowded buses and trams and don't leave bags unattended. EU residents carrying a European Health Insurance Card are entitled to free medical treatment in Romania, but are advised to have travel insurance nonetheless, as state hospitals outside Bucharest and other large towns may not be up to Western standards. Bucharest's central emergency hospital is up to Western standards, while Medicover Unirii, at 64–66 Marasesti Blvd (☎021 3353940, 🌐medicover.ro), also offers Western-standard care, with English-speaking doctors. Pharmacies (farmacie) are open Monday to Saturday from 9am until 6pm, though most towns and cities will have one that's open 24 hours.

EMERGENCY NUMBER

In all emergencies call ☎112.

INFORMATION

Tourist offices remain few and far between, but can be found in most cities and some of the bigger towns; even then, information is often limited. Opening hours are generally Monday to Friday 9am to 4pm.

MONEY AND BANKS

Romania's currency is the leu (plural lei, abbreviation RON), comprising coins of 1, 5, 10 and 50, and notes of 1, 5, 10, 50, 100, 200 and 500 lei. At the time of writing, exchange rates were around €1=4.40 lei, £1=5.60 lei and US$=3.90 lei. Some hotels, rental agencies and other services quote prices in euros. ATMs, even in the smallest towns, are ubiquitous.

Changing money is best done at banks, which are generally open Monday to Friday between 9am and 4pm, though there are exchange offices (casa de schimb valuta) all over the place, some open 24hr; neither banks nor exchange offices charge commission. Never change money on the streets. Credit cards are accepted in most hotels, restaurants and shops.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shop opening hours are Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm, Saturday 9am to 1pm, with many food shops open until 10pm (or even 24hr), including weekends. Museums and castles also open roughly 9am to 6pm, though most are closed on Mondays. Churches are generally open, with no set times.

National holidays are: January 1 and 2, Easter Monday, May 1, December 1, December 25 and 26.

Bucharest

Arriving in BUCHAREST (București), most tourists want to leave as quickly as possible; yet to do so would mean missing out on Romania's most vibrant city. The capital does have its fair share of charm and elegance – it just takes a little seeking out. Among the ruptured roads and disintegrating buildings you'll find leafy squares, beautiful, eclectic architecture (albeit often crumbling), and dressed-up young Romanians bringing a touch of glamour to the surroundings. What's more, it's a dynamic city, changing faster than any other in Romania as new office towers sprout up and shops and bars multiply.

Head south of the centre into the Centru Civic and you'll come across myriad unfinished projects from Ceaușescu's reign – seeing the true scale of what a dictatorship can set in motion is something you won't forget, and reason enough to spend a day or two in the capital.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The heart of the city lies to the north of the Dâmbovița River, between two north–south avenues; it's a jumble of modern hotels, ancient Orthodox churches and decaying apartment blocks, relieved by the buzzing historic quarter and some attractive parks. Beyond lies Ceaușescu's monstrously compelling Centru Civic, centred on the extraordinary Palace of Parliament. The northern outskirts, dotted with woodlands and lakes, also boast a couple of hugely diverting museums.

Piața Revoluției

Most inner-city sights are within walking distance of Calea Victoriei, an avenue of vivid contrasts, with vestiges of ancien régime elegance in among the apartment blocks, glass and steel facades, and cake shops. Fulcrum of the avenue is Piața Revoluției, created during the 1930s on Carol II's orders to ensure a field of fire around the Royal Palace.

On the north side of the square is the Athénée Palace Hotel (now a Hilton), famous for its role as an “intelligence factory” from the 1930s until the 1980s, with its bugged rooms, tapped phones and informer prostitutes. To its east are the grand Romanian Athenaeum, the city's main concert hall, and the University Library, torched, allegedly by the Securitate, in the confusion of the 1989 revolution, but since rebuilt and reopened.

To the southeast of the square is the former Communist Party HQ, now the Senate, where Nicolae Ceaușescu made his last speech from a low balcony on December 21. His speech drowned out by booing, the dictator's disbelief was broadcast to the nation just before the TV screens went blank. He and his wife Elena fled by helicopter from the roof, but were captured and executed on Christmas Day.

The Royal Palace

The Royal Palace, on the western side of Piața Revoluției, now contains the excellent National Art Museum (Wed–Sun: May–Sept 11am–7pm; Oct–April 10am–6pm; 15 lei; ☎mnar.arts.ro), the highlight of which are marvellous collections of medieval and modern Romanian art, the former holding a superb assemblage of icons and fresco fragments, the latter featuring the country's most revered painter, Grigorescu, and the great modern Romanian sculptor Brâncuși.

The Crețulescu Church and Cișmigiu Park

Standing opposite the Senate, the eighteenth-century Crețulescu Church is the city's most celebrated historic building. Badly damaged during the 1989 fighting, but now handsomely restored, it fronts a tangle of streets wending west towards Cișmigiu Park, Bucharest's oldest, containing a boating lake, playgrounds, summer terrace cafés and chess players.

The Military Museum

West of Cișmigiu Park, near the Gara de Nord station, the Military Museum (Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; 8 lei) has a fine display on the army's role during the 1989 revolution. Among the most moving exhibits are the personal belongings of both civilians and soldiers, including the blood-splattered uniform worn by the then Minister of Defence, General Vasile Milea, the manner of whose death is not entirely clear (some say that he was executed, others that he committed suicide) following his refusal to carry out orders to shoot civilians.

The historic centre

The regeneration of Bucharest's historic centre, known locally as Lipscani after the street of the same name, at the southern end of B-dul Brătianu, is ongoing, but in any case it's now the focal point for the city's best nightlife, with a massive influx of bars, cafés and restaurants. Just southwest of Strada Lipscani stands the diminutive Stavropoleos Church; built in the 1720s, it has gorgeous, almost arabesque, patterns decorating its facade, and an elegant columned portico.

The Centru Civic

The infamous Centru Civic was Ceaușescu's pet urban project. After an earthquake in 1977 damaged much of the city, Ceaușescu took the opportunity to remodel the entire southern portion of central Bucharest as a monument to Communism. By the early 1980s bulldozers had moved in to clear the way for the Victory of Socialism Boulevard (now Bulevardul Unirii), taking with them thousands of architecturally significant houses, churches and monuments. Now colossal apartment blocks line Bulevardul Unirii, at 4km long and 120m wide slightly larger – intentionally so – than the Champs-Élysées on which it was modelled.

Parliament Palace

Dominating the entire project is the Parliament Palace (Palatul Parlamentului) – also known as Casa Nebunului ("Madman's House") – supposedly the second-largest administration building in the world. Started in 1984 – though still not complete by the time of Ceaușescu's death – the building contains 1100 rooms, 4500 chandeliers and a nuclear shelter, and now houses the Romanian Parliament. Guided tours in English (daily 10am–4pm, last tour 3.30pm; 25 lei, plus 30 lei for the use of cameras; cic.cdep.ro) usually take in about ten rooms, the most dazzling of which is the magnificent Sala Unirii (Unification Hall); the entrance is to the right of the building as you face it. You must bring your passport to gain entry.

Piața Universității

You're bound to pass through busy Piața Universității, overshadowed by the Hotel Intercontinental on B-dul Carol I. This is where students pitched their post-revolution City of Peace encampment, which was violently overrun, together with the illusion of true democracy, by the miners called in by President Iliescu to "restore order" in June 1990. The miners returned to Bucharest in 1991, this time in protest against the government rather than to protect it.

Museum of the Romanian Peasant

Stretching north from Piața Victoriei, Șoseaua Kiseleff leads into the more pleasant, leafy suburbs. At no. 3, the Museum of the Romanian Peasant (Muzeul Țăranului Român; Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 8 lei; muzeultaranuluiroman.ro) is a must-see, giving an insight into the country's varied rural traditions, with exhibits on everything from costume and textiles to painted glass icons; there are also several superbly reconstructed buildings, including an eighteenth-century windmill and a timber church. In the basement there's a fascinatingly curious exhibition of Communist iconography, while to the rear of the museum there's an excellent souvenir shop and café.

Herăstrău Park and the Village Museum

North of the centre, traffic heading for the airports and Transylvania swings around a familiar-looking Arc de Triumf, commemorating Romania's participation on the side of the Allied victors in World War I. To the right, in Herăstrău Park (the city's largest), is the Village Museum (Muzeul Satului; daily 9am–5pm; 10 lei; muzeul-satului.ro), a fabulous ensemble of wooden houses, churches, windmills and other structures from various regions of the country.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Otopeni (Henri Coandă) airport (☎ 021 204 1000, ☎ bucharestairports.ro) is 17km north of the centre. Express bus #783 (24hr; daily every 15–20min, every 40min through the night; 8 lei, return ticket only) departs from under the international arrivals hall and goes to Piața Unirii via Piața Romană and Piața Universității. Express bus #780 (daily every 30min; same price) heads directly to the Gara de Nord. Ignore all offers of a taxi within the terminal and book one via one of the touch screens in the main arrivals hall; it costs around 50 lei to the city centre.

By train Virtually all trains terminate at the Gara de Nord, from where it's a 30min walk into the centre, or a short ride on the metro (take line M1 to Piața Victoriei then change for line M2 to reach Piața Universității or Piața Unirii).

Destinations Brașov (every 60–90min; 2hr 30min–3hr 45min); Sibiu (3 daily; 5hr 40min); Sighișoara (4 daily; 5hr 15min); Timișoara (5 daily; 9hr).

By bus Bucharest doesn't have a central bus station, but Filaret, on Piața Filaret to the south of the city, is where many buses depart from. Otherwise, there are several maxitaxi stations around Gara de Nord. Your best bet is to check ☎ autogari.ro, which lists daily schedules along with the relevant departure and arrival points.

Destinations Braşov (every 30–45min; 2hr 45min); Sibiu (hourly; 5hr); Sighişoara (8 daily; 5hr 30min); Timişoara (3 daily; 11hr 30min).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information The official tourist office is in the Piaţa Universităţii underpass at Universitate metro station (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–1pm; ☎ 021 305 5500).

Tour agencies For information you're much better off going to the privately run Mr Tripp at Calea Victoriei 68–70 (Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–5pm; ☎ 021 211 2266, mrtripp.ro), which also runs the city's best tours. In any case, try and get hold of the excellent English-language listings magazine Bucharest in Your Pocket.

GETTING AROUND

Public transport Although chaotic and crowded, public transport is very cheap. The most useful lines of the metro system are the M2 (north–south) and M3 (a near-circle). Tickets for two journeys cost 5 lei, and for ten rides cost 20 lei (a daily ticket costs 8 lei). For travel on buses, trams and trolleybuses (which run around 5am–11.30pm; night buses run thereafter), you will need to purchase an Activ Card, which costs 3.70 lei and can be bought from kiosks at major stops. The cards can be charged with credit that is debited every time you swipe them over the orange terminals (1.30 lei for a single journey); a day pass costs 10 lei.

By taxi Fares are cheap, at about 1.70 lei/km; the most reputable companies are Cristixi (☎ 021 9461), Cobalcescu (☎ 021 9451) or Meridian (☎ 021 9444) – make sure the meter is running.

ACCOMMODATION

Bucharest is jammed with great hostels, most of which offer private rooms as well as dorm beds, and there's also a reasonable choice of affordable hotels, mostly around the Gara de Nord.

EATING

Bucharest's thriving restaurant scene has a wide selection of ethnic cuisines to choose from, as well as traditional Romanian food. Look out for restaurants offering daily set menus; these two- or three-course meals are typically available weekdays between noon and 5pm and cost around 20–25 lei.

Alt-Shift Str Constantin Mille 4 ☎ altshift.ro; map p.904. Cool, industrial-chic restaurant offering delicious fresh pasta made on the premises (red pesto tagliatelle with prosciutto, 25 lei); the restaurant's long hours make it a perfect spot for post-drinking munchies. Sun–Thurs noon–2am, Fri & Sat noon–6am.

Romanian dishes (15–50 lei), and beer is still brewed on the premises. Daily 8am–midnight.

Gradina Verona Str Pictor Arthur Verona 13–15; map p.904. Located to the rear of the Cărturești bookshop, this laidback café is one of the city's best and is a great place to relax with a coffee or glass of wine and a good read. Daily 9am–midnight.

Grand Café Van Gogh Str Smârdan 9 ☎vangogh.ro; map p.904. Effortlessly cool Old Town café with a smart orange-tinted interior, smooth wooden tables and big bay windows, not to mention a fabulous terrace. Excellent drinks menu as well as breakfasts (10 lei), toasted sandwiches (9 lei) and platters (28 lei). Daily 8.30am–midnight.

Metuka Bul. Lascar Catargiu 7 ☎metuka.ro; map p.902. Warm, colourful restaurant offering simple, freshly prepared dishes like chicken with lemon and sour cream (25 lei); helpful, cheery staff to boot. Mon–Sat 11am–9am.

Vatra Str Brezoiu 23 ☎vatra.ro; map p.904. Very central, very affordable, with simple but tasty Romanian dishes such as ciorba (soup; 10 lei) and mici (spicy grilled sausages; 12 lei). Daily noon–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Busy all year round, Bucharest's historic quarter is awash with bars, pubs and clubs, while in summer, the clubs and restaurants around Herăstrău lake are also extremely popular. For more detailed information on the city's nightlife check out the free local listings guide Sapte Seri (☎sapteseri.ro) or Bucharest in Your Pocket (☎inyourpocket.com/bucharest).

Bordellos Str Șelari 9–11 ☎bordello.ros; map p.904. One of the more appealing Old Town hangouts, this vibrant pub has good draught beers, great tapas and big screens for all your sporting kicks. Daily noon–3am.

★ Control Club Str Constantin Mille 4 ☎control-club.ro; map p.904. Marketed as “the club for people who don't like clubs”, this pub transforms into a frenetic venue where anything goes, with live music and local DJs playing out on the fabulous vine-covered terrace. Daily noon–6am.

Diane Str Diancei 4 ☎diane4.translucid.ro; map p.902. Vaguely hipster joint serving some of the best craft beers and wines in the city, but which is also known for its evenings of music, theatre and comedy; terrific weekend brunches too. Daily 10am–2am.

Green Hours 22 Jazz Cafe Calea Victoriei 120 ☎greenhours.ro; map p.904. Cramped cellar-bar with frequent live music and arty theatre shows that attract a lively alternative crowd. In summer, the action moves outdoors to the leafy courtyard. Daily 9am–1am.

Kulturhaus Str Sf. Vineri 4 ☎kulturhaus.ro; map p.904. Slightly left-field but massively popular club, with tunes to suit many tastes including folk rock, new wave, punk and indie; there's usually a live band once a week. Thurs–Sat 11pm–6am.

Mojo Str Gabroveni 14 ☎mojomusic.ro; map p.904. Cracking Old Town venue offering three floors of fun: the basement “Brit Room” for gigs (by both the resident house band and visiting groups); a ground-floor bar; and a top-floor acoustic room for karaoke, comedy and the like. Daily 1pm–5am.

Studio Martin B-dul Iancu de Hunedoara 61, near Piața Victoriei ☎studiomartin.ro; map p.902. For serious clubbers, this place attracts ravers with its international guest DJs (playing techno and house) and gay-friendly atmosphere. Fri & Sat 11pm–5am.

Tribute Calea Victoriei 118 ☎tribute.ro; map p.904. Arguably the city's most dynamic live music venue, there's a stellar programme of guest acts, as well as performances by the resident house band. Thurs–Sat 10am–5am.

SHOPPING

Cărturești bookshop Str Pictor Arthur Verona 13; map p.904. Superb for English-language books (including Romanian history and literature) and all kinds of music; great café out back too. Daily 10am–10pm.

Cărturești Carusel Str Lipscani 55; map p.904. Stunningly renovated, this is first and foremost a bookshop, but also offers up souvenirs, a gallery and café. Daily 10am–midnight.

Museum of the Romanian Peasant and Village Museum; map p.902. These museum shops are by far the best place in the city to find authentic peasant handiwork, including ceramics, textiles and clothing. Tues–Sun 10am–6pm.

Piața Dorobanți and Piața Matache; map p.902. The best of the city's daily food markets, the latter great for stocking up on goodies ahead of a long train journey from the nearby Gara de Nord. Both 6am–2pm.

Târgul Vitan flea market Calea Vitan; Dristor I metro; map p.902. The city's largest flea market is chaotic yet fascinating. Sun 8am–4pm.

Unirea department store Piața Unirii 1; map p.904. Built during the communist era, this enormous central shopping centre is a good place to find familiar labels. Daily 10am–10pm.

Transylvania

From Bucharest, trains carve their way north through the spectacular Carpathian mountain range into the heart of Transylvania. Thanks to centuries of migration and colonization, the region's population is a mix of Romanians, Magyars, Germans, Roma and others. The 1920 Trianon Treaty placed the region within the Romanian state, but the character of many towns still reflects those past patterns of settlement, even if only through architecture. With their defensive towers and fortified churches, the most striking of them are the former seats of Saxon power. Indeed, Sighișoara (the most picturesque of the lot) could be the Saxons' cenotaph: their houses and churches remain, yet the living culture has evaporated, as it threatens to do in Brașov and Sibiu.

The Carpathians, meanwhile, offer Europe's cheapest skiing in winter and wonderful hiking during the summer, along with caves, alpine meadows, dense forests sheltering bears, and lowland valleys with quaint villages.

BRAȘOV

With an eye for trade and invasion routes, the medieval Saxons sited their largest settlements near Transylvania's mountain passes. BRAȘOV, which they called Kronstadt, grew prosperous as a result, and Saxon dominance lasted until the Communist government brought thousands of Moldavian villagers to work in the new factories. As a result, there are two parts to Brașov: the Gothic and Baroque centre beneath Mount Tâmpa, which looks great, and the surrounding sprawl of flats, which doesn't. The central square, surrounded by restored merchants' houses, is now the heart of a buzzing city with a raft of exciting bars and restaurants.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Buses from the station will leave you near the central square, Piața Sfatului. Leading northeast from the square, the pedestrianized Strada Republicii is the hub of Brașov's social and commercial life.

Piața Sfatului

Piața Sfatului is overshadowed by the Gothic pinnacles of the city's most famous landmark, the Black Church (Tues–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun noon–7pm; 6 lei), which stab upwards like a series of daggers. An endearingly monstrous hall-church that took almost a century to complete (1383–1477), it is so-called for its soot-blackened walls, the result of being torched by the Austrian army in 1689. Inside, by contrast, the church is startlingly white, with oriental carpets

THE FORTIFIED CHURCHES OF TRANSYLVANIA

Transylvania's Saxon legacy is clearly apparent in the fortified churches erected throughout the region's villages following the migration of the Saxons to Romania, invited by Hungary's King Géza II in 1150. The Transylvania Card (50 lei/€11; ☎ transilvania-card.ro) gives access to fifty Saxon churches across southern Transylvania, which can be obtained from the main churches in Brașov, Sighișoara and Sibiu or from the Foundation for Fortified Churches in Sibiu (Str Gen. Magheru 4; ☎ 0269 221010, ☎ fortified-churches.org). The Mioritics Association (Piața Muzeului 6, Sighișoara; April–Oct Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; ☎ 0788 115511, ✉ sighisoara@mioritics.ro) is also dedicated to preserving the fortified churches and developing tourism around them. A few (on UNESCO's World Heritage List) attract a lot of tourists, but there are many less well-known ones. Most are accessible with their original gate-key, which is usually kept by one of the elder villagers for safekeeping. Simply ask in the village for the key-holder, who should be able to open up the church and show you around. It is normal to pay them a small amount (about 5 lei) for their trouble.

The fifteenth-century council house (Casa Sfatului) in the centre of Piața Sfatului now houses the History Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 10 lei), which has a small exhibition dedicated to the Saxon guilds that dominated Brașov in medieval times.

On the south side of the square, the new Museum of Urban Civilization, Piața Sfatului 15 (Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–6pm; Oct–April 9am–5pm; 7 lei; mcubrasov.ro), occupies a merchant's house that's typical of the Transylvanian Renaissance style, with beautifully restored sixteenth- and eighteenth-century murals. Exhibits focusing on the city's trading past include re-creations of shops with painted chests, gingerbread moulds, guns and swords, a home interior and costumes, embroidery and millinery (including rabbit-fur felt).

A length of fortress wall runs along the foot of Mount Tāmpa, behind which a cable car (Tues–Sun 9.30am–5.30pm; 10 lei one-way/16 lei return) whisks tourists up to the summit. However, the trails up offer a challenging walk (1hr) and some fantastic views.

Of the original seven bastions (towers maintained by the city's trade guilds), the best preserved is that of the weavers, on Strada Coşbuc. This complex of wooden galleries and bolt holes now contains the Museum of the Bârsa Land Fortifications (Tues–Sun 10am–5.30pm; 7 lei). Inside are models and weaponry recalling the bad old days when the region was repeatedly attacked by Tatars, Turks, and by Vlad the Impaler, who left hundreds of captives on sharp stakes to terrorize the townsfolk. The Saxons' widely publicized stories of Vlad's cruelty unwittingly contributed to Transylvania's dark image and eventually caught Bram Stoker's attention as he conceived Dracula.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Braşov's train station is northeast of the old town, 2km from the centre – take bus #4 into town or spend around 8 lei on a taxi.

Destinations Bucharest (hourly; 2hr 45min); Sibiu (6 daily; 2hr 30min); Sighişoara (12 daily; 2hr 15min); Timişoara (1 daily; 10hr).

BRAN

Cosy little BRAN, 28km southwest of Braşov, is situated at the foot of the stunning Bucegi Mountains. Despite what you may hear, its castle (daily 9am–6pm, Mon from noon; 35 lei; bran-castle.com) has only tenuous associations with Dracula, aka Vlad the Impaler, who may have attacked it in 1460. Hyperbole is forgivable, though, as Bran really does look like a vampire count's residence. The castle was built in 1377 by the Saxons of Braşov to safeguard what used to be the main route into Wallachia, and it rises in tiers of towers and ramparts from among the woods, against a glorious mountain background. A warren of stairs, nooks and chambers around a small courtyard, the interior is filled with elaborately carved four-poster beds, throne-like chairs and portraits of grim-faced boyars.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Hotels and hostels throughout the country arrange trips to Bran Castle, while Braşov-based Active Travel (see p.909) runs day-trips on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

By bus Buses from Braşov arrive in the centre of town, in view of the castle.

ACCOMMODATION

The Guesthouse Str General Traian Mosoiu 365B ☎0745 179 475, guesthouse.ro. A comfortable place run by an affable British expat, set in a large garden, with kitchen facilities and immaculate en-suite doubles. Doubles €35

Pension Carina Str Principala 484 ☎0268 238 303, pensiunea-carina.ro. Sporting some bright colour schemes, this pleasant guesthouse is smart and modern, with a lovely garden. Doubles 80 lei

RÂŞNOV AND ZĂRNEŞTI

A more low-key but no less satisfying destination than Bran is nearby RÂŞNOV, where the hilltop fortress (daily 8am–8pm; 6 lei) and the views are stunning. North of Bran is ZĂRNEŞTI, a charming small town that is the perfect jumping-off point for trips into the Făgăraş Mountains.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

There's a regular bus service between Braşov and Moeci de Jos (southwest of Bran) via Râşnov and Bran. Buses and trains run from Braşov to Zărneşti via Râşnov.

ACCOMMODATION

Pensiunea Mosorel 1 Str Dr Senchea 162, Zărneşti ☎0744 368 432, pensiuneamosorel.ro. Charming family-run guesthouse with large en-suite rooms, delicious home-cooked food, and a pleasant garden with space for tents. Doubles (half-board) 230 lei, camping/person 12 lei

Pensiunea Mosorel 2 Just south of Zărneşti ☎0745 024 471, pensiuneamosorel.ro. For a near-medieval mountain escape, spend a night here in the picturesque hamlet of Magură, on the flanks of the Piatra Craiului Mountains. Phone ahead and the owners will pick you up from the bus in Zărneşti. Doubles (half-board) 230 lei

SIGHIŞOARA

The citadel of SIGHIŞOARA, perched on a hill overlooking the Târnave Mare valley, presents a forbidding silhouette of looming battlements and needle spires; it seems fitting that this was the birthplace of Vlad Ţepeş, the man known to posterity as Dracula. Look out for the Medieval Arts and the Inter-ethnic Cultural festivals held annually in July and August, when Sighişoara may be overrun by thousands of beer-swillers.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The route from the train station to the centre passes the Romanian Orthodox

WOLF AND BEAR TRACKING IN THE CARPATHIANS

Romania has the largest wolf and brown bear populations in Europe. Transylvanian Wolf (☎0744 319 708, transylvanianwolf.ro) offers guided walks (around 300 lei for up to 5 people, 65 lei for each extra person) tracking wolves, bears, red deer and lynx under the eagle eye of Dan Marin, an award-winning tracker who works closely with conservation organizations and the new Piatra Craiului National Park.

In winter there's the chance to see some spectacular snow-covered landscapes, and take part in sleigh rides and cross-country skiing. Treat yourself and stay in the Marin's spectacular family guesthouse (Str I. Metianu 108, Zărneşti; €30 per person), where all meals (breakfast, dinner and packed lunch) are home-cooked and included in the price. Birdwatching and botany tours are also available.

Cathedral, its gleaming white, multi-faceted facade a striking contrast to the dark interior. Across the Târnave Mare river, the citadel dominates the town from a hill whose slopes support a jumble of ancient houses. Steps lead up from the lower town's main square, Piața Hermann Oberth, to the main gateway, above which rises the mighty clock tower. This was built in the fourteenth century when Sighișoara became a free town controlled by craft guilds – each of which had to finance the construction of a bastion and defend it in wartime.

Sighișoara grew rich on the proceeds of trade with Moldavia and Wallachia, as attested by the regalia and strongboxes in the clock tower's museum (May 15–Sept 15 Tues–Fri 9am–6.30pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5.30pm; Sept 16–May 14 Tues–Fri 9am–3.30pm, Sat & Sun 10am–3.30pm; 10 lei; @muzeusighisoara.ro). The ticket also gives access to the seventeenth-century torture chamber and the Museum of Armaments next door, with its small and poorly presented “Dracula Exhibition”.

In 1431 or thereabouts, the child later known as Dracula was born at Strada Muzeului 6 near the clock tower. At the time, his father – Vlad Dracul – was commander of the mountain passes into Wallachia, but the younger Vlad's privileged childhood ended eight years later, when he and his brother Radu were sent to Anatolia as hostages to the Turks. There Vlad observed the Turks' use of terror, which he would later turn against them, earning the nickname of “The Impaler”. Nowadays, Vlad's birthplace is a mediocre tourist restaurant.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

Destinations Brașov (9 daily; 2hr); Bucharest (9 daily; 5hr 30min).

Tourist office Opposite the clock tower at Piața Muzeului 6 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; @0788 115 511, @infosighisoara.ro).

★TREAT YOURSELF

Casa cu Cerb Str Școlii 1 @0265 774 625, @casacucerb.ro. This extremely classy hotel occupies a seventeenth-century mansion with an abundance of atmospheric period features. It's a good choice for romantics, with bathtubs big enough for two, while the most expensive rooms have four-poster beds. The restaurant is among the town's best. Doubles €42

ACCOMMODATION

Burg Hostel Str Bastionului 4–6 @0265 778 489, @burghostel.ro. Central, atmospheric hostel in a seventeenth-century building with clean dorms and doubles. There's a bar in the cellar, internet access and free wi-fi. Breakfast isn't included, but there is a good-value restaurant in the courtyard. Dorms 45 lei, doubles 100 lei

Pensiunea Cristina și Pavel Str Cojocarilor 1 @0744 119 211, @pensiunea4aur.ro. The private rooms offered by the Faur family in the citadel are some of the town's best. Guests have use of a kitchen, and bicycle rental is available. Doubles 120 lei

Pensiunea Gia Str Libertății 41 @0722 490 003, @hotelgia.ro. A simple hotel that has doubles and triples, and a shared kitchen; no breakfast. Conveniently close to the train station. Doubles 99 lei

Villa Franka Camping Str Dealu Garii @0265 771 046, @sighisoara-tourism.com. Boasting wonderful views from its hilltop position high above the train station, this idyllic tree-shaded campsite (open April to mid-Nov) also has clean wooden bungalows and a good restaurant. Camping/person €3, double bungalows €16

EATING AND DRINKING

Casa cu Cerb Str Școlii 1. In the hotel of the same name, this is one of the best restaurants in the citadel, with good breakfasts, light meals and more expensive dinners. There's also a lovely, sunny outdoor seating area. Mains 20–45 lei. Daily 10am–11pm.

Culture Pub In the basement of the Burg Hostel (see above), with some live rock/pop music, mainly weekend evenings. Daily till 3am.

International Café Piața Cetății 8. A cosy café serving delicious and filling sandwiches and cakes (10 lei), and just about the only quiche (12 lei) in Transylvania. Mon–Sat 8am–6pm; June–Aug till 7pm.

Jo Pub Piața Hermann Oberth 7. Probably the best of the fairly mass-market terasas on the lower town's main square, serving good pizza as well as local dishes such as bean soup in a half-loaf of bread. Daily 11am–midnight.

Quattro Amici Str Octavian Goga 12. In the lower town, this enjoyable pizzeria offers fabulous oven-baked pizzas and fresh salads, and there's outdoor seating facing a field. Mains 10–25 lei. Daily 9am–midnight.

SIBIU

The narrow streets and gabled houses of SIBIU's older quarters are the stuff of fairytales. Like Braşov, Sibiu was founded by Germans invited by Hungary's King Géza II to colonize strategic regions of Transylvania in 1143. Its inhabitants dominated trade in Transylvania and Wallachia, but their citadels were no protection against the tide of history which eroded their influence after the eighteenth century. The Saxon community is now mostly gone from Romania, but Sibiu still has stronger and more lucrative links with Germany than any other Transylvanian town, and its stint as European Capital of Culture in 2007 meant its buildings were handsomely refurbished. The city also stages some cracking festivals, not least the International Theatre Festival in late May, with open-air stages across all the main squares.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

To reach the old town cross the square from the train station and follow Str Gen. Magheru to Piaţa Mare, one of three conjoined squares that form the centre.

Piaţa Mare

On the western side of Piaţa Mare stands the handsome eighteenth-century Brukenthal Palace, housing the eponymous museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; closed Tues mid-Oct to mid-March and 1st Tues of month; European Art 20 lei, Romanian Art 12 lei; brukenthalmuseum.ro), one of the finest in Romania with an evocative collection of works by Transylvanian and Western painters – look out for Jan van Eyck's Man in Blue Turban. The city's History Museum (same hours; 20 lei) is nearby in the impressive Old City Hall. On the northern side of Piaţa Mare, the huge Catholic church stands next to the Council Tower (daily 10am–6pm), which offers fine views to the Carpathians.

The cathedral

Just beyond the Council Tower, on Piaţa Huet, the Evangelical Cathedral (May–Oct Mon–Sat 9am–8pm, Sun 11.30am–8pm; Nov–April Mon–Sat 9am–5pm; Sun 11.30am–5pm; 5 lei, tower 5 lei) is a massive Gothic hall-church raised during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

Museum of Traditional Folk Civilization

Set aside most of a day to explore Sibiu's wonderful open-air Museum of Traditional Folk Civilization (Muzeul Astra; daily 10am–6pm; 17 lei; muzeulastra.ro) at Strada Pădurea Dumbrava 16, south of the centre; take bus #13 to the end of the line. Set against a mountain backdrop, the museum offers a fantastic insight into rural life, with authentically furnished wooden houses, churches and mills; there's also a traditional inn serving local food and drink.

Dorms 50 lei, doubles 130 lei

EATING AND DRINKING

Crama Sibiu Vechi Str Ilarian 3 ☎sibiuvechi.ro. Traditional Transylvanian restaurant in the cellar of a fifteenth-century building. This is the best place for something typically Romanian such as tochitură (meat stew), ghiveci (vegetable stew) or fasole batută (mashed beans), served by staff in national costume. There's also live folk music and cheap wine on tap. Mains 15–40 lei. Daily noon–midnight.

Go In Piața Mica 9 ☎go-in-sibiu.ro. Popular central restaurant serving great pizzas (10–26 lei) and pasta. Cocktails are good too. Daily 9.30am–midnight.

Imperium Club Str Bălcescu 24. A good old-school music pub with regular live sessions of quality acoustic and rock music. Good beer too. Daily 5pm–2am.

La Turn Piața Mare 1 ☎laturnsibiu.ro. Atmospheric spot next to the Council Tower with an impressive range of seafood and Italian dishes. Mains 20–35 lei. Daily 10am–2am.

Pasaj Str Turnului 3a. Sprightly pizzeria with a cool brick interior, also offering a varied selection of salads and pasta, as well as chicken, beef and vegetarian options (and wi-fi). Friendly service but it can be slow. Mains 20–30 lei. Mon–Fri 11am–11pm, Sat & Sun noon–11pm.

The Banat

Once a much larger territory that's now divided between Romania and neighbouring Hungary and Serbia, the featureless plains of the Banat were ruled from Timișoara until the Turks conquered it in 1552; they governed until 1716, when they were ousted by the Habsburgs. The region's current frontiers were drawn up during the Versailles conference of 1918–20. Today, Romanian Banat is still home to a diverse population that for centuries has included Slovaks, Bulgarians, Ukrainians and Germans living alongside Serbians, Romanians and Hungarians. Besides the picturesque villages scattered throughout the region, the Banat's main attraction is its capital, Timișoara, with its thriving cultural scene and old town centre packed with historic buildings.

TIMIȘOARA

The engaging city of TIMIȘOARA, 250km west of Sibiu near the Serbian border and the rail junction at Arad, is Romania's most West-leaning city, its good location and multilingual inhabitants attracting much foreign investment. The city's fame abroad rests on its crucial role in the overthrow of the Ceaușescu regime. A Calvinist minister, László Tökes, stood up for the rights of the Hungarian community and, when the police came to evict him on December 16, 1989, his parishioners barred their way. The bloody riots that ensued inspired the people of Bucharest to follow, meaning that Timișoara sees itself as the guardian of the revolution.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Approaching from the train station, you'll enter the centre at the attractive pedestrianized Piața Victoriei, with fountains and flowerbeds strewn along its length. North of here, trams trundle past the Baroque Town Hall on the central Piața Libertății, while two blocks further north is the vast Piața Unirii.

Piața Victoriei

The focal point of Piața Victoriei is the huge Romanian Orthodox Cathedral, completed in 1946 with a blend of neo-Byzantine and Moldavian architectural elements – this is where most of the protesters were gunned down in 1989. At the opposite end, the unattractive Opera House stands near the castle, which now houses the Museum of the Banat (currently closed for long-term renovation), with a broad collection of archeological and historical artefacts.

Piața Unirii

Piața Unirii is dominated by the monumental Roman Catholic and Serbian Orthodox cathedrals. Built between 1736 and 1773, the former (to the east) is a fine example of Viennese Baroque; the latter is roughly contemporaneous and almost as impressive.

27 The Museum of the Revolution

The superb Museum of the Revolution at Str Oituz 2B (Mon–Fri 8am–4pm, Sat 9am–1pm; 10 lei donation; memorialulrevolutiei.ro) soberly documents the remarkable events of December 1989, courtesy of photos, newspaper cuttings and film footage, including the extraordinary moment when the Ceaușescus were informed of their impending execution.

Banat Village Museum

Situated 5km northeast of the centre and accessible by bus (#46), the wonderful Banat Village Museum (May–Sept Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun noon–8pm; Oct–April Tues–Fri 9am–4pm, Sat & Sun 10am–5pm; 5 lei; muzeulsatuluibanatean.ro) is an outdoor affair featuring a fascinating ensemble of nineteenth-century cottages collected from local villages and reconstructed within the museum's wooded grounds. Architectural styles include German, Slovak, Hungarian, Ukrainian and Romanian.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Timișoara Nord train station is a 15min walk west of the centre along B-dul Republicii.

Destinations Brașov (1 daily; 9hr 30min); Bucharest (4 daily; 9–12hr); Sibiu (1 daily; 6hr 40min).

By bus The main bus station (Autogara Autotim) is just southwest of the train station.

Destinations Brașov (3 daily; 9hr); Bucharest (2 daily; 11hr 30min); Sibiu (4 daily; 6hr 30min).

Tourist information The tourist office (April–Sept Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 9am–5pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎ 0256 437 973, timisoara-info.ro), on the ground floor of the opera building at Str Alba Julia 2, has maps and copies of the free quarterly English-language guide Timișoara What Where When as well as the Romanian-language weekly listings guide Șapte Serii (sapteseri.ro).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping International Calea Dorobanților 63, 4km west of town ☎ 0256 217 086, campinginternational.ro. Open all year, this well-kept campsite also has huts sleeping one to four people. Take trolleybus #11 from the train station or centre. Camping/person 30 lei, double huts 90 lei

Freeborn Hostel Str Patriarh Miron Cristea 3 (street also known as Asanesti), Apartment 1 ☎ 0743 438 534, freebornhostel.com. Very central hostel with two spacious dorm rooms and a double, each with their own bathroom. There's also a shaded courtyard with barbecue and table tennis. Dorms €10, doubles €30

Hostel Costel Str Petru Sfetca 1 (street also known as Vidra) ☎ 0356 262487, hostel-costel.ro. Lovely hostel with huge dorm rooms in a stylishly refurbished old house, just a short walk northeast from the centre. Dorms €11, doubles €30

EATING

Baroque Piața Unirii 14. This place lives up to its name, with wrought-iron tables and chairs outside and a decadent array of teas, coffees, milkshakes and hot chocolate (both alcoholic and non-alcoholic). Breakfasts for around 15 lei, hot drinks from 5 lei. Daily 8am–1am.

Cora Pizzeria Str Eugeniu de Savoya 13 ☎ pizzeriacora.ro. First-rate pizzeria in the heart of the city (18–25 lei). Daily 10am–1am.

Harold's Aleea Studenților 17 ☎ harolds.ro. Understated and classy restaurant in a studenty area, with a wide selection of Romanian, Chinese and Mexican dishes, including vegetarian options. Most mains 16–36 lei. Daily 11.30am–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Club 30 Piața Victoriei 7. In the Cinema Timiș, this small basement club plays classic oldies and often puts on live jazz and blues. Daily 6pm–3am.

The Note Pub B-dul Mihai Eminescu 2. A lively pub with a pleasant deck at the rear that does pretty average food (burger and chips, or menu of the day for 20 lei) and hosts live bands and cabaret. Mon–Wed & Sun 8am–midnight, Thurs–Sat 8am–5am.

Piranha Club Str Alecsandri 5. A popular drinking den with a range of cocktails and truly eye-catching surroundings, complete with fish tanks, live lizards and snakes. Open around the clock, it's also a pleasant place for morning coffee.

Introduction

European Russia stretches from the borders of Belarus and Ukraine to the Ural mountains, over 1000km east of Moscow; even without the rest of the vast Russian Federation, it constitutes by far the largest country in Europe. Formerly a powerful tsarist empire and a Communist superpower, Russia continues to be a source of fascination for travellers. While access is still made relatively difficult by lingering Soviet-style bureaucracy – visas are obligatory and application forms lengthy – independent travel is increasing every year, and visitors are doubly rewarded by the cultural riches of the country and the warmth of the Russian people.

Moscow, Russia's bustling capital, combines the frenetic energy of an Eastern city with the cosmopolitan feel of a Western one. With its dense human traffic and show-stopping architecture – from the Kremlin's tsarist palaces and onion domes of St Basil's Cathedral, through the monumental relics of the Communist years to today's massive building projects – the metropolis can feel rather overwhelming. By contrast, with its beautiful canals and graceful buildings, St Petersburg, Russia's second city, is nicknamed "the Venice of the north". Founded as a seaport by the eighteenth-century tsar Peter the Great, who wanted the Russian fleet to be the strongest in the world, the city was intended to emulate the best of Western European elegance. Today, its people are more relaxed and friendly than the capital's, and its position in the delta of the River Neva is unparalleled, giving it endless watery vistas. Uneven – and often ostentatious – wealth creation in both cities has made them twin figureheads for Russia's recent high-speed renaissance.

The Russian financial crisis of 2014 has strongly affected the country's economy and financial markets, with the rouble losing half its value within weeks of the onset of the crisis. The plus for travellers is that Russia is, at the time of writing, more affordable than ever. Check the exchange rate (see p.921) before your trip to see if the situation has changed.

CHRONOLOGY

- 862 AD A Scandinavian warrior, Rurik, founds the state of Rus' (Русь).
- 989 Grand Duke Vladimir I adopts Orthodox Christianity.
- 1552 Ivan the Terrible conquers the Tatars and builds the famous domed St Basil's Cathedral in Red Square, Moscow.
- 1613 Michael Romanov is elected as Tsar of Russia, ushering in 300 years of Romanov rule.
- 1725 Peter the Great builds the new capital of St Petersburg after defeating Sweden in the Great Northern War.
- 1751 First recorded reference to "vodka" is made in a decree made by Empress Elizabeth.
- 1812 Napoleon invades Russia but is defeated.
- 1869 Tolstoy writes War and Peace.
- 1892 Tchaikovsky composes the famous ballet, The Nutcracker.
- 1905 Revolution leads to the masses gaining both a constitution and a parliament.
- 1914 Russia enters World War I on behalf of the Allies.
- 1917 The October Revolution witnesses the Communist Bolsheviks, led by Lenin, overthrowing the monarchy and government.
- 1924 Joseph Stalin takes control of the Soviet Union.
- 1941 The Nazis invade Russian territory; after intense fighting and victory at Stalingrad, the Red Army repel the Germans from Russia.
- 1961 Yuri Gagarin becomes the first human being to travel into space, aboard the Vostok.
- 1962 The Cuban Missile Crisis heightens tensions with the US during the Cold War.
- 1991 The Soviet Union collapses; many former Soviet countries declare independence. Boris Yeltsin is elected president.
- 1999 Yeltsin resigns and is replaced by Vladimir Putin.
- 2007 Russian relations with the US deteriorate over their plans to install anti-missile launchers around Russia's borders.

2008 Russia goes to war with Georgia over Georgia's offensive against Southern Ossetia.

2009 President Medvedev announces Russia's rearmament plan, which includes nuclear force.

2011 Russia wins bid to host the football World Cup in 2018.

2012 Putin is sworn in for his second stint as president in May; protests ensue. In August Russia joins the WTO.

2014 Russia takes over Crimea; the US and Europe impose sanctions. In December the Russian rouble begins to drop dramatically, soon losing half its value.

2015 Russia carries out air strikes in Syria.

2016 Russian forces withdraw from Syria. A number of Russian athletes are banned from international competitions for state-sponsored doping.

ARRIVAL AND VISAS

International flights serve Moscow's Sheremetyevo and Domodedovo airports and St Petersburg's Pulkovo Airport. All airports are connected with their respective cities by regular and efficient public transport. Besides being the main hub for all domestic trains, including the trans-Siberian ones, Moscow is served by trains from Riga, Tallinn, Warsaw, Berlin and Budapest, while European train routes into St Petersburg include arrivals from Helsinki, Riga and Vilnius. Train stations in both Moscow and St Petersburg are well connected to the metro; all Moscow's vokzal (train stations) link to a stop on the (brown) circle line. The most convenient way to come to St Petersburg for travellers arriving from the Baltic States may be by bus, as they are more frequent than trains. Ferries into St Petersburg from Helsinki arrive at the Vasilyevskiy Island ferry terminal.

All tourists travelling to Russia require a tourist visa, which entitles visitors to a 30-day stay in the country. To obtain a visa, travellers need to have been "invited" by a hotel or hostel (note that hostels charge a fee for invitation letters). If booking accommodation in advance, your hotel or hostel can provide this document for you. Should you wish to find accommodation upon arrival, you can obtain a letter of invitation through a visa agency (see box below) for a fee, which states that you will be staying at a randomly selected hotel – there is no obligation to actually do so once in Russia. Once you

EMBASSY AND VISA CONTACTS

- 🌐 visitrussia.org.uk The Russian National Tourist Office provides an efficient visa service.

arrive in the country, your hotel/hostel will register your visa (some hostels charge for this). Note that it's important to register within seven working days of your arrival. At the airport you will also be given an immigration card which you must keep and present on departure. Foreigners are expected to carry their passport, immigration card and registration at all times as the police sometimes carry out random checks. However, many travellers prefer to carry photocopies instead.

GETTING AROUND

The train and bus network is extensive and largely efficient, with up to twenty trains a day in each direction connecting the two main cities. Express trains such as Sapsan, Aurora and Er-200 make the journey in under five hours in the early evening, but cheapest and most atmospheric are the overnight services, a quintessentially Russian experience, which take around eight and a half hours. Trains are generally safe, reliable and cheap (one-way from approximately R950 seated only, R1500 in a sleeping compartment). Buy tickets in advance online (orzd.ru), from Leningradskiy station in Moscow or Moskovskiy station in St Petersburg. Regular buses connect the two cities, but the long ten- to twelve-hour journey (around R1400) rarely makes it worthwhile. City transport in Moscow and St Petersburg centres on the punctual metro; underground transport includes buses, trams, trolleybuses and minibuses (marshrutki). Official taxis can be very expensive, whereas unofficial ones are not necessarily safe – it's best to use a taxi app such as Uber. Bike rental in St Petersburg offers a pleasant way to see the city's quieter outer corners, but cycle in Moscow at your peril. As you make your way around the cities, know that the word "ulitsa" (street) is often abbreviated as "ul.", "pereulok" (lane) becomes "per.", "ploshchad" (square) becomes "pl.", and "naberezhnaya" (embankment) becomes "nab."

ACCOMMODATION

Hostels tend to be safer, cleaner and more pleasant than cheap hotels, many of which have "economy" rooms unaltered since Soviet times. The standard rate is around R800–900 for a dorm bed for a night; aim to reserve three to four weeks in advance in the summer either over the phone or online.

FOOD AND DRINK

Moscow and St Petersburg are bursting at the seams with cafés and restaurants covering everything from budget blowouts to elitni (elite) extravagance. Japanese and Italian are the favoured cuisines, so pasta and sushi abound, but traditional Russian food is still at the heart of many locals' everyday diets. National dishes worth tasting include borshch (beetroot soup), shchi (cabbage soup) and pirogi (small pies stuffed with potato, cabbage or a kind of cottage cheese known as tvorog). Try these at one of the stolovaya (canteen-style) restaurants, such as Dachniki in St Petersburg (see p.936). Cheap blini, available from the ubiquitous and much-loved Teremok fast-food chain, subdivide into blinchiki, pancake wraps stuffed with meat or berries, and flat pancakes, served with honey, condensed milk, smetana (sour cream) or krasnaya ikra (red caviar). In summer, Russians go mad for morozhenoe (ice cream).

DRINK

Vodka (vódka) is, of course, the national drink, knocked back in one gulp and chased with a bite on black bread or salted cucumber. Beer (pivo) is essential in summer; try Baltika (rated in strength from 3 to 9), Stariy Melnik or Nevskoe. Be sure to sample the excellent semi-sweet Georgian wines too (Khvanchkara was Stalin's favourite). For cheap eating and drinking, stock up at a produkti (small grocery shop), or at rynki (markets), scattered across both cities, though concentrated in the suburbs. These sell the full range of Russian dairy delights such as kefir (sour milk), plus salami, sausages and cheap fresh fruit and vegetables. Traditionally, breakfast is eaten between 7am and 9am and lunch between 1pm and 2pm; evening meals tend to be taken around 8pm.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Although the Western practice of eating out is now widespread, Russians love to entertain at home; if you're invited over, always bring a small present: men traditionally offer flowers while women bring chocolates. Tippling is today the norm at most cafés and restaurants, with five to ten percent given as standard. In churches, women should cover their head and shoulders, and men in shorts may be refused entry; you'll also notice that locals avoid turning their back to the iconostasis that screens the altar. Russians are rather superstitious: you'll see people rubbing the noses of the dog statues at the Metro Ploshchad Revolyutsii in Moscow for good luck. Old-fashioned chivalry is alive and well, with men opening doors for women and offering to help with heavy lifting. You'll notice, too, that young people give up their seats to the elderly on public transport: follow their example before being told to.

Russia has a negative attitude towards homosexuality and, in 2013, passed a law banning any so-called "propaganda" supportive of "non-traditional" sexual orientations.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Spectator sports centre on football, with Moscow's biggest teams being Dinamo (Leningradskiy prospekt 36 ☎495 642 7172, fcdynamo.ru; ☎Dinamo) and Spartak (Otkrytiye Arena, Volokolamskoye shosse 69 ☎495 111 1922, spartak.com; ☎Spartak), while Petersburgers support Zenit (Petrovskiy stadium, Petrovskiy Island ☎812 244 8888, fc-zenit.ru; ☎Sportivnaya).

Skating is as much part of Russian culture as drinking vodka or eating blinis. Moscow has plenty of likely spots in winter, including the frozen-over paths at the vast Gorky Park (Krymskiy Val ul. 9 ☎park-gorkogo.com; ☎Park Kultury) or the smaller, more intimate Hermitage Garden (ul. Karetniy Ryad 3 ☎mosgorsad.ru; ☎Pushkinskaya). Skates can be rented at both Gorky Park and the Hermitage Garden.

Summer or winter, swim in the open-air lidos at Chayka (Turchaninov per. 3/1 ☎chayka-sport.ru; ☎Park Kultury), or Luzhniki, currently undergoing refurbishment work and due to reopen in early 2018 (Luzhnetskaya nab. 24; ☎Sportivnaya).

Cycling enthusiasts can see St Petersburg with a bike tour (Skatprokat Rent a Bike, Goncharnaya ul. 7 ☎skatprokat.ru; ☎Pl. Vosstaniya). Alternatively, take a guided walk (Peter's Walking Tours, peterswalk.com; R1500 for 4–5hr).

COMMUNICATIONS

Most post offices are open Monday to Saturday 8am to 7pm, and blue postboxes are affixed to walls across both cities. However, local mail is slow and not particularly reliable, so use DHL for urgent letters. Most hostels offer internet access and wi-fi for free, while virtually all cafés and restaurants also have wi-fi. For international calls get a pre-paid international phonecard such as the Zebra Telecom card or Evroset card, usable from any phone. Ask at a telecoms kiosk for a telefonnaya karta. Non-Russian mobiles work on roaming via local providers, but you'll pay a fortune. However, the fact that there is wi-fi virtually everywhere, including on the Moscow metro, means you'll be able to access the net and your phone apps via your smartphone. You could also consider getting a local SIM card (free, you only pay what you top up; bring your passport with you to buy one). Note that when calling a local number from a Russian mobile or landline you need to dial 8 before the number. However, if dialling from an international mobile the 8 is not necessary. Dial the country code +7 followed directly by the number.

train stations during rush hour. Don't leave valuables in your hotel room. If you are dark-skinned, exercise extra caution, especially at night, as racist attacks are not unknown. Your embassy will be able to advise you on what to do if you get robbed. The police (полиция) wear blue-grey uniforms; always make sure you have photocopies of your passport, visa, immigration card and registration on you, as they do stop people at random and often look for an excuse to fine you.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Fire ☎01; Police ☎02; Ambulance ☎03.
Round-the-clock assistance ☎112. The first three are dialled from landlines, while ☎112 is an international emergency number from mobiles.

When traversing busy roads, look for an underground crossing (perekhod/переход) as many drivers do not honour zebra crossings. High-street pharmacies (aptéka) offer many familiar medicines over the counter. Foreigners tend to rely on expensive private clinics for treatment, so travel insurance is essential. St Petersburg water may still contain the giardia parasite, which can cause severe diarrhoea – metranidazol is the cure and can be bought over the counter. The tap water of both cities contains high levels of heavy metals, so it's best to drink the bottled stuff.

INFORMATION

St Petersburg is well prepared for visitors, with numerous tourist offices dotted around town. The main Tourist Information Office (Sadovaya ul. 14; ☎Nevsky prospekt) has plenty of maps and information in English. At the time of research, Moscow did not have an official Tourist Information Office. For up-to-the-minute restaurant and bar listings see the excellent In Your Pocket guide (☎inyourpocket.com/russia) which you can pick up at some hotels, as well as at restaurants catering to expats. Hostel and hotel receptions carry leaflets and

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

"Foreigner prices" at museums and galleries are often steeper than for Russian citizens, though most museums offer tickets for foreign students which cost half or two-thirds of the full price. An ISIC card is your best bet, though other student cards often work too. Ask for adeen studyencheskiy bilyet (one student ticket) in your most authentic accent.

maps, and you can get the latest bar, restaurant and entertainment listings and reviews from English-language papers. The Moscow Times and the more ponderously pro-Kremlin Moscow News are well established. Find maps in English at bookshops like Dom Knigi (large branch in Moscow at ul. Novy Arbat 8; ☎Arbatskaya).

A useful website with detailed practical advice is ☎waytorussia.net.

MONEY AND BANKS

Russia's currency is the rouble, divided into 100 kopeks. There are coins of 1, 5, 10, 20 and 50 kopeks and 1, 2, 5 and 10 roubles, and notes of 50, 100, 500, 1000 and 5000 roubles. Everything is paid for in roubles, although some hostels make a habit of citing prices in either euros or dollars. At the time of writing £1=R98, €1=R79 and US$1=R69. Only change money in an official bank or currency exchange. Most exchange offices are open Monday to Saturday 10am to 8pm or later, and ATMs are plentiful. In general, prices in both cities range from "New Russian" levels down to what the average local salary will cover, making many shops, bars and cafés affordable for the budget-conscious traveller.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops are open Monday to Saturday 10am to 8pm or later; Sunday hours are slightly shorter. Museums tend to open 9am to 5pm, with last ticket sales an hour before closing time, and they are invariably shut one day a week, with a day each month put aside for cleaning. Churches are accessible from 8am until the end of evening service. Clubs stay open until late – many until 6am or later – or don't close at all, morphing into early-morning cafés.

Russian public holidays fall on the following dates: January 1 (New Year's Day) and 7 (Christmas), February 23 (Defender of the Fatherland Day), March 8 (Women's Day), May 1 (Labour Day), May 9 (Victory Day), June 12 (Russia Day) and November 4 (Day of Popular Unity).

Moscow

Russia's capital, MOSCOW (Москва), is a modern, energetic city, but its chaotic spirit is never far beneath the surface: people bribe their way into nightclubs or out of scrapes with the law, supercars tussle for space with barely roadworthy wrecks and, come nightfall, the party mindset is truly no-holds-barred.

A humble wooden town in the twelfth century, contemporary Moscow is Russia's Manhattan, with brash and opinionated locals, a "whatever, whenever" approach to retail and a startling contrast between its glitzy, cosmopolitan heart, catering to a well-heeled elite, and pockets of extreme poverty. For visitors, the city is, above all, an assault on the senses – spend 24 hours navigating its golden-domed churches, people-crushed subway, designer shops and cliquey nightspots, and you'll need another 24 to recover.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Moscow's centre is compact enough to explore on foot, with the general layout a series of concentric circles and radial lines emanating from Red Square and the Kremlin. You can map the city's principal sights as strata of its history: the old Muscovy that Russians are eager to show; the now retro-chic Soviet-era sites such as VDNKh and Lenin's Mausoleum; and the exclusive restaurants and shopping malls that mark out the "New Russia".

Every visitor to Moscow is irresistibly drawn to Red Square, the historic and spiritual heart of the city. The name (Krasnaya ploshchad) derives from krasniy, the old Russian word for beautiful. Before entering the square you'll see a golden circle on the ground, which marks Moscow's Kilometre Zero; a stone's throw away is the State Historical Museum, a large red building that dominates the entrance to the square. The Lenin Mausoleum squats beneath the ramparts of the Kremlin and, facing it, sprawls GUM: the State Department Store in Soviet times, it is now devoted to costly fashion outlets. At the southern end stands the incomparable St Basil's Cathedral. In front is the fenced-off Lobnoe Mesto (Place of Executions) where Ivan the Terrible and Peter the Great presided over public beheadings and hangings during their respective reigns.

The Lenin Mausoleum and Kremlin wall

In post-Communist Russia, the Lenin Mausoleum, which houses Vladimir Ilyich Ulianov's embalmed corpse (Tues–Thurs, Sat & Sun 10am–1pm; free; ☎lenin.ru), can be seen as either an awkward reminder of the old days or a cherished relic. Descend past stony-faced guards into the dimly lit chasm where the leader's body lies. Stopping or giggling will earn you stern rebukes. Behind the Mausoleum, the Kremlin wall – 19m high and 6.5m thick – contains a mass grave of Bolsheviks who perished during the battle for Moscow in 1917. The ashes of an array of luminaries, including writer Maxim Gorky and the first man in space, Yuri Gagarin, are here too. Beyond lie the graves of a select group of Soviet leaders, each with his own bust; Stalin still gets the most flowers.

St Basil's Cathedral

With its multicoloured onion domes silhouetted against the skyline where Red Square slopes down towards the Moskva River, St Basil's Cathedral (early Nov to April daily 11am–5pm; May & Sept to early Nov daily 11am–6pm; June–Aug 10am–7pm; closed first Wed of the month; R350, student R100; ☎saintbasil.ru) is perhaps the most instantly recognizable symbol of Russia. The exterior is far more impressive than the interior, however, which consists of a stone warren of small chapels and souvenir stalls. Built in 1561 to celebrate Ivan the Terrible's capture of the Tatar stronghold of Kazan in 1552, its name commemorates St Basil the Blessed, who foretold the fire that swept through Moscow in 1547.

The Kremlin

Brooding and glittering in the heart of the capital, the Kremlin (Aleksandrovsky Sad; Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–5pm; R500; ☎kreml.ru; ☎Borovitskaya) is both the heart of historical Moscow and home to its present-day parliament, the Duma. Its founding is attributed to Prince Yuriy Dolgorukiy, who built a wooden fort here in about 1147. Look out for the Tsar Cannon, cast in 1586: one of the largest cannons ever made, and intended to defend the Saviour Gate, it has never been fired. Close by looms the earthbound, broken Tsar Bell, the largest bell in the world, cast in 1655. Cathedral Square is the historic heart of the Kremlin, dominated by the magnificent, white Ivan the Great Bell Tower. Of the

KREMLIN ETIQUETTE

You may only purchase tickets for set entry times to the Armoury and the Diamond Fund. You will still have to queue for both attractions separately and watch tour groups and people with connections being ushered in before you. It's all part of the experience.

square's four key churches, the most important is the Cathedral of the Assumption, with a spacious, light and echoing interior, walls and pillars smothered with icons and frescoes, and temporary exhibitions housed in its belfry. The Cathedral of the Archangel houses the tombs of Russia's rulers from Grand Duke Ivan I to Tsar Ivan V, while the golden-domed Cathedral of the Annunciation hides some of Russia's finest icons, including works by Theophanes the Greek and Andrey Rublev.

The Armoury Chamber

The unmissable Armoury Chamber (ticketed entry at 10am, noon, 2.30pm and 4.30pm; R700), inside the Kremlin, boasts a staggering array of treasures, among them the tsars' coronation robes, jewellery and armour. A separate part of the Armoury Chamber houses the Diamond Fund (ticketed entry Mon–Wed & Fri at 20min intervals 10am–1pm and 2–5pm; R500) – a priceless collection of jewels, including the 190-karat Orlov diamond – which belonged to Catherine the Great – and the world's largest sapphire.

The State Central Museum of Contemporary History

The State Central Museum of Contemporary History at Tverskaya ul. 21 (Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 11am–7pm, Thurs noon–9pm; R250; ☎sovrhistory.ru; ☎Tverskaya) brings the Communist past alive with striking displays of Soviet propaganda posters, photographs and state gifts, although there's a frustrating lack of English translation.

The Pushkin Museum of Fine Arts

Founded in 1898 in honour of the famous Russian poet, the Pushkin Museum of Fine Arts at Volkhonka ul. 12 (Tues–Sun 11am–8pm, Thurs & Fri until 9pm; R550, student R300, separate fee for Impressionist wing; ☎arts-museum.ru; ☎Kropotkinskaya) holds a hefty collection of European paintings, from Italian High Renaissance works to Rembrandt, and an outstanding display of Impressionist works.

Cathedral of Christ the Saviour

Built as a symbol of gratitude to divinity for having aided the Russians' defeat of Napoleon in 1812, the Cathedral of Christ the Saviour (daily 10am–6pm; ☎xxc.ru; ☎Kropotkinskaya), opposite the Pushkin Museum of Fine Arts at Volkhonka ul. 15, was demolished in 1931 in favour of a monument to socialism. The project was soon abandoned; years later, under Khrushchev's rule, the site was turned into the world's largest public swimming pool. In 1994 the Cathedral was rebuilt and is now a symbol of Moscow's (and Russia's) post-Communist religious revival.

House-Museums

Admirers of Bulgakov, Chekhov, Gorky, Tolstoy and Stanislavsky will find their former homes preserved as museums. Anton Chekhov lived at Sadovaya-Kudrinskaya ul. 6, in what is now the Chekhov House-Museum (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm, Thurs until 8pm; closed last day of the month; R150; ☎Barrikadnaya), containing humble personal effects, while the Gorky House-Museum (Wed–Sun 11am–5.30pm, closed last Thurs of the month; free; ☎Arbatskaya) at Malaya Nikitskaya ul. 6/2 is worth seeing if only for its raspberry-pink Art Nouveau decor. Leo Tolstoy admirers should head to the wonderfully preserved Tolstoy Memorial Estate on ul. Lva Tolstogo 21 (Wed, Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Tues & Thurs

★TREAT YOURSELF

Get the city grit out of your skin at Russia's oldest public bathhouse, the exquisitely elaborate Sandunovskiy baths (Neglinnaya ul. 14 bldg 3–7 ☎sanduny.ru; ☎Kuznetskiy Most), founded in 1808. Join Russian businessmen and socialites in the banya, a wooden hut heated with a furnace, where you are invited to sweat out impurities, get beaten energetically with birch twigs, and finally plunge into ice-cold water. Men's (2hr sessions from R1600) and women's baths (3hr sessions from R1800) are separate, with the women's section more like a modern spa. Daily 8am–10pm.

noon–8pm, closed last Fri of the month; R200; ⑩ Park Kultury) where the Tolstoy family lived after moving to Moscow from their country estate in 1881, and where the novelist wrote War and Peace. The Bulgakov Museum, at Bolshaya Sadovaya ul. 10 (Tues–Sun noon–7pm, Thurs 2–9pm; R150; ⑩ bulgakovmuseum.ru; ⑩ Mayakovskaya), is the flat where the novelist lived from 1921 to 1924, and contains personal effects, photographs and copies of his manuscripts. Theatians should not miss the Stanislavsky House-Museum (Wed & Fri noon–7pm, Thurs noon–9pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; R250; ⑩ Tverskaya) at Leontyevskiy per. 6, where the renowned theatre director and founder of the Moscow Arts Theatre, Constantin Stanislavsky, once lived with his wife and children. Stanislavsky transformed his house into a makeshift theatre, with regular performances taking place in the main hall, while the adjoining dining area served as a make-up studio and held furniture for rehearsals.

Patriarch's Ponds

One of Moscow's most exclusive neighbourhoods, Patriarch's Ponds (⑩ Tverskaya) is a pleasant spot for a summer stroll or an ice-skate on its frozen waters in the depths of winter – note that there's just one pond, despite the name. The area is also known for being the location of the opening scene of Mikhail Bulgakov's magical realist novel The Master and Margarita.

Novodevichiy Convent

A cluster of domes shining above a fortified rampart belongs to the lovely Novodevichiy Convent (daily 9am–5pm; R300, student R100; ⑩ Sportivnaya), founded by Ivan the Terrible in 1524. At its heart stands the white Cathedral of the Virgin of Smolensk. In its cemetery lie numerous famous writers, musicians and artists, including Gogol, Chekhov, Stanislavsky, Bulgakov and Shostakovich.

The State Tretyakov Gallery

Founded in 1892 by the financier Pavel Tretyakov, the State Tretyakov Gallery at Lavrushinskii per. 10 (Tues, Wed & Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs, Fri & Sat 10am–9pm; R400, combined ticket with Tretyakov Gallery on Krymskiy Val R700; ⑩ tretyakovgallery.ru; ⑩ Tretyakovskaya) displays an outstanding collection of pre-Revolutionary Russian art. Icons are magnificently displayed, and the exhibition continues through to the late nineteenth century, with the politically charged canvases of the iconic realist Ilya Repin and the Impressionist portraits of Valentin Serov, including The Girl with Peaches, one of the gallery's masterpieces.

The Tretyakov Gallery on Krymskiy Val

Opposite the entrance to Gorky Park at Krymskiy Val 10, the Tretyakov Gallery on Krymskiy Val (Tues, Wed & Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs, Fri & Sat 10am–9pm; R400, combined ticket with State Tretyakov Gallery R700; ⑩ tretyakovgallery.ru; ⑩ Park Kultury; Oktyabrskaya) takes a breakneck gallop through twentieth-century Russian art, from the avant-garde of the 1910s and 20s to contemporary artists. Full and illuminating commentary in English is a bonus.

Gorky Park

Gorky Park on ul. Krymskiy Val (⑩ Park Kultury; ⑩ park-gorkogo.com) occupies an area of over 700 acres along the river. In the winter the frozen-over paths become one of the city's largest ice rinks, while in the warmer months you can rent bikes, rollerblades and paddle boats, and take yoga and tango classes. Within the park is the Garage Museum of Contemporary Art (⑩ garagemca.org), which hosts contemporary art projects and design fairs, and there are several cafés and restaurants too.

VDNH

To see Soviet triumphalism at its most prolific, visit the Exhibition of Economic Achievements, or VDNH, pronounced “Vee-Dee-En-Kha” (⑩ vdnh.ru; ⑩ VDNKh), with its statue upon statue of ordinary workers in heroic poses. Adding to the scene is the permanent exhibition centre, host to everything from fairs and festivals to concerts and congresses, housed in the grandiose Stalinist architecture of the All-Union Agricultural Exhibition of 1939. There's also the People's Friendship Fountain, flanked by Soviet maidens, each symbolizing a Soviet republic. In the 1960s, space exploration became a central theme at VDNH, and a pavilion was created for spacecraft, with a 38m replica of the rocket Vostok, in which Yuri Gagarin made the world's first manned flight.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Flights from Western Europe arrive either at Sheremetyevo, 30km north of the centre, or Domodedovo, 45km to the south. Aerexpress trains run between Shremetyevo and Belorusskiy station, connected to ⑩ Belorusskaya, on the green and brown lines (every 30min 5am–12.30am; 35min; R470; ⑩ aerexpress.ru). Aerexpress trains to and from Domodedovo serve Paveletsky station (every 30min 6am–midnight; 46min; R470; ⑩ aerexpress.ru) which is connected to ⑩ Paveletskaya; express shuttle buses (every 15min 6am–midnight; 40min; R100) and express taxis (every 15min 6am–midnight; every 40min midnight–6am; 30min; R120) run between Domodedovo and ⑩ Domodedovskaya 25km southeast of the centre.

By train All mainline stations are conveniently located by a metro station. Trains from Minsk and Warsaw arrive at Belorusskiy station (Belorusskiy vokzal, Tverskaya Zastava pl. 7; ⑩ Belorusskaya) while Rizhsky station (Rizhsky vokzal, Rizhskaya pl. 1; ⑩ Rizhskaya) serves Latvian destinations such as Riga. Leningradsky station (Leningradsky vokzal, Komsomolskaya pl. 3; ⑩ Komsomolskaya) is the departure point for northern destinations including frequent trains to St Petersburg; Kievsky station (Kievsky vokzal, pl. Kievskogo Vokzala 1; ⑩ Kievskaya) serves Kiev, Odessa, Budapest and Bucharest. Yaroslavsky station (Yaroslavsky vokzal, Komsomolskaya pl. 5; ⑩ Komsomolskaya) is the starting point for trans-Siberian adventures.

Destinations Helsinki (1 daily; 14hr 30min); Riga (1 daily; 16hr 20min); St Petersburg (standard service: 6–16 daily; 7–9hr; Sapsan express: up to 16 daily; 4hr); Tallinn (1 daily; 15hr); Vilnius (1–2 daily; 14hr 15min); Warsaw (1–3 daily; 18–19hr).

By bus Ecolines buses from Germany and the Baltic States terminate at VDNKh bus station on pl. Charles de Gaulle opposite Hotel Kosmos at ul. Kosmonavtov 2A (⑩ VDNKh). Moscow's main bus station with intercity departures is at Schelkovskoye shosse 75, ⑩ Shcholkovskaya (④ 499 748 8029, ⑩ mosoblvokzaly.ru), 16km northeast of the city

INFORMATION

Tourist office At the time of research Moscow did not have a tourist office. Your best bet is to ask for information at your hostel or get hold of the handy Moscow In Your Pocket guide, which can be downloaded from ⑩ inyourpocket.com/moscow.

GETTING AROUND

By bus Buses cost R50 per journey; stops are marked with yellow signs.

By metro With its Soviet mosaics, murals and statuary, Moscow's metro (5.30am–1am) is world-famous and is by far the best way to get around, given the city's congested roads. Stations are marked with a large "M" and you can plan your journey on ⑩ metroway.ru. A one-way fare costs R50; you can also buy a card of two (R100) or twenty (R650) journeys (ask at the kassa for dva/dvatsat pőezdok). There are also one-day (R210) and three-day tickets (R400). The metro has free wi-fi.

By minibus Marshrutki are cheap (around R35 a journey). They wait to fill up with passengers, then take the route advertised on the side. You can ask to get out at any point. Pay the driver on board.

By tram and trolleybus Moscow's terrible traffic means trolleybuses and trams are often at a standstill, although they can at times be useful to tackle a major road such as the Garden Ring. Stops have blue-and-white signs. Most routes operate from 5am to 1am; fares cost R50 on board; the same tickets are used for buses.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Moscow's famous nightlife is marred by the practice of "face control", excluding the not-so-beautiful people from elitni clubs. The venues listed here are largely accessible.

Kamchatka Kuznetskiy Most 7 ☎ 495 624 8825, novikovgroup.ru/restaurants/kamchatka; ☎ Kuzneyskiy Most. Lively drinking hole that recalls a Soviet beer house of the 70s and 80s with a self-service system on the ground floor offering cheap local beer (R120) and fried sausages to snack on. Downstairs food is served in a large canteen-style hall, which comes alive in the evenings when DJs spin Russian and Soviet retro classics. # St Petersburg

ST PETERSBURG (Санкт-Петербург), Petrograd, Leningrad and St Petersburg again – the city's succession of names mirrors Russia's turbulent history. Founded in 1703 by Peter the Great as a "window in the West", self-assured, future-focused St Petersburg still retains more of a Western European feel than Moscow more than three hundred years on. A sophisticated capital of the tsarist Empire, the cradle of the Communist Revolution of 1917, and a symbol of Russian stoicism due to the city's heroic endurance of a three-year Nazi siege during World War II, present-day St Petersburg has eased into modernity without sacrificing any of its old-world magnificence and charm, with shopping malls and nightclubs sitting alongside opulent palaces. The pace of life here is relaxed, and the people are more open and laidback than their Muscovite counterparts. The best time to visit is during the midsummer White Nights (mid-June to mid-July), when darkness never falls, and the partying can reach fever pitch. Roughly from May to October (navigation season depends on the weather) bridges across the River Neva are raised from around 1.30am to 5am (each bridge has its own schedule, which changes yearly). It's a beautiful sight, best experienced from a boat.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

St Petersburg's centre lies on the south bank of the Neva, with the curving River Fontanka marking its southern boundary. The area within the Fontanka is riven by a series of avenues fanning out from the golden spire of the Admiralty on the Neva's south bank. Many of the city's top sights are located on and around Nevsky prospekt, the backbone and heart of the city for the last three centuries, stretching from the Alexander Nevsky Monastery to Palace Square. Across the Neva is Vasilevskiy Island, home to the Kuntskamera, while over the Birzhevoy Bridge lies the Peter and Paul Fortress. To the east of the centre, beyond the River Fontanka, lies the Smolnyy Institute, where the Bolsheviks fomented revolution in 1917.

The Winter Palace and Hermitage

Sited on the banks of the River Neva, the 200m-long Baroque Winter Palace is the city's largest and most opulent, and was the official residence of the tsars, their court and 1500 servants until the revolution of 1917. Today the building houses one of the world's greatest museums, the Hermitage (Tues–Sun 10.30am–6pm, Wed & Fri 10.30am–9pm; R600, free to students, free admission first Thurs of every month; ☎ hermitagemuseum.org; Ⓜ Admiralteyskaya), launched as Russia's first public art museum in 1852. It occupies five palaces along with the General Staff Building located on Palace Square, which houses an impressive collection of Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings. The elaborately decorated staterooms of the Winter Palace are works of art in their own right, with ceiling frescoes, sumptuous chandeliers and elaborate gild work. The collection embraces over three million treasures and artworks, from ancient Scythian gold and giant malachite urns to Cubist pieces.

Kazan Cathedral

Curving Kazan Cathedral (daily 9am–6pm; Ⓜ Nevsky prospekt), built between 1801 and 1811, was modelled on St Peter's in Vatican City and is unique in die-straight St Petersburg. The cathedral was built to house a venerated icon, Our Lady of Kazan, reputed to have appeared miraculously overnight in Kazan in 1579 and later transferred to St Petersburg, where it resided until its disappearance in 1904. In Soviet times the cathedral housed the Museum of Atheism, dedicated to proving that “religion is the opium of the people”. Today it teems once more with worshippers.

The Church of the Saviour on the Spilled Blood

The multicoloured, onion-domed Church of the Saviour on Spilled Blood at 26 Kanala Griboedova embankment (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10.30am–6pm, last entry 5.30pm; R250, student R150; Ⓜ cathedral.ru; Ⓜ Nevsky prospekt) was built in 1882 on the very spot where Tsar Alexander II was assassinated by student radicals a year earlier. With a stunning mosaic-covered interior, the church is one of St Petersburg's most striking landmarks, quite unlike the dominant Neoclassical architecture.

The Russian Museum

The Mikhailovsky Palace, worth a visit for its beautifully decorated rooms alone, houses the main part of the Russian Museum (4 Inzhenernaya ul.; Mon 10am–8pm, Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs 1–9pm; R450, student R200; Ⓜ ruseum.ru; Ⓜ Gostiny dvor). Its collection of Russian art is the world's finest, ranging from fourteenth-century icons to the particularly impressive avant-garde collection from the early twentieth century in the Benois Wing.

The Summer Garden and around

Most popular of all St Petersburg's public gardens is the Summer Garden (Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–8pm; Ⓜ ruseum.ru; Ⓜ Gostiny dvor) on Kutuzov Embankment. It was commissioned by Peter the Great in 1704 and rebuilt by Catherine the Great in the informal English style that survives today. Also charming are the Mikhailovsky Gardens behind the Russian Museum (May–Sept daily 10am–10pm; Oct–March 10am–8pm; closed April; Ⓜ ruseum.ru), and Marsovo Pole (the Field of Mars) on the other side of the River Moyka where a flame burns for the fallen of the Revolution and civil war (1917–21).

The Admiralty and Decembrists' Square

The Admiralty, perched at the northwestern end of Nevsky prospect (Ⓜ Admiralteyskaya), was founded in 1704 as a fortified shipyard. It extends 407m along the waterfront from Palace Square to Decembrists' Square, named after a group of reformist officers who, in December 1825, marched three thousand soldiers into the square in a doomed attempt to proclaim a constitutional monarchy. Today, Decembrists' Square is dominated by the Bronze Horseman, Falconet's 1778 statue of Peter the Great and the city's unofficial symbol.

St Isaac's Cathedral

Looming above Decembrists' Square, St Isaac's Cathedral (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10.30am–6pm; colonnade until 10.30pm May–Oct; R250, student R150, colonnade R150; Ⓜ cathedral.ru; Ⓜ Admiralteyskaya) is one of the glories of St Petersburg's skyline, its gilded dome the third largest in Europe. The opulent interior is equally impressive, decorated with fourteen kinds of marble. Climb the 262 steps to the outside colonnade to appreciate the cathedral's height (101.5m) and for an expansive view of the city. From June 1 to August 20 the colonnade is open until 4.30am.

The Peter and Paul Fortress

Across the Neva from the Winter Palace stands the Peter and Paul Fortress, built to secure Russia's hold on the Neva delta. The Fortress (daily 6am–8pm; May–Sept until 11pm; free; spbmuseum.ru; Gorkovskaya) shelters a cathedral as well as rotating exhibitions in the Engineers' and Commandant's House. Completed in 1733, the Dutch-style Peter and Paul Cathedral (Mon & Thurs–Sun 10am–6pm, Tues 10am–5pm; May–Sept until 7pm; R600, student R350) remained the tallest structure in the city until the 1960s. Sited around the nave are the tombs of Romanov monarchs from Peter the Great to Nicholas II, excluding Peter II and Ivan VI. The Nevskaya panorama walk (daily 10am–7.30pm; May–Sept until 9pm; separate ticket required R300), along the rooftops of the fortifications, gives an excellent view of the Winter Palace.

Cruiser Aurora

Anchored a short walk along the Neva from the Peter and Paul Fortress is the Cruiser Aurora (under renovation at the time of research; aurora.org.ru; M Gorkovskaya), the famous battle ship that fired the opening shot of the revolution of 1917.

Kunstkamera

The Kunstkamera at Universitetskaya nab. 3, Vasilevsky Island (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm, closed last Tues of the month; R250; kunstkamera.ru; M Vasileostrovskaya) is Russia's oldest public museum, founded by Peter the Great in 1714 in order to promote scientific research and educate the general public in the sphere of medical research. One of the richest ethnographical museums in the world, the unique collection includes a selection of rather morbid items, from malformed fetuses to infants' hearts, carefully preserved in vinegar or vodka.

State Museum of Political History of Russia

The State Museum of Political History of Russia at ul. Kuibysheva 2/4 (Mon, Tues & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Wed 10am–8pm, closed last Mon of the month; R200; polithistory.ru; M Gorkovskaya) focuses on the revolutions and wars that shaped Russia's political landscape. The exhibition, Man and Power in Russia, sheds light on crucial points of Russian history, while in the Soviet Epoch exhibition, there are human-size mannequins, photographs, paintings and personal belongings of Communist leaders and common people, NKVD officers and GULAG prisoners. Visitors can see Lenin's original working room, which today houses some reconstructed items, as well as the historical balcony where he made his famous speech in 1917.

House-Museums

St Petersburg was home to some of the greatest writers of Russian literature, including Pushkin, Dostoevsky and Nabokov. Two days before the duel that would kill him, Alexander Pushkin wrote his final poem and letter at what is now the Pushkin House-Museum, at nab. reki Moyki 12 (Mon & Wed–Sun 10.30am–6pm, closed last Fri of the month; R200; museumpushkin.ru; M Nevskiy Prospekt), where you can see the pair of duelling pistols and the waistcoat he wore on that fateful day. Dostoevsky enthusiasts should head to the Dostoevsky Memorial Museum at Kuznechny per. 5/2 (Tues & Thurs–Sun 11am–6pm, Wed 1–8pm; R200, student R100; www.md.spb.ru; M Vladimirskaia), where the novelist resided briefly in 1846 and then again from 1878 until his death three years later. Here he initially worked on his first story The Double, and later on his last novel The Brothers Karamazov. The former home of the prose master behind Lolita is the Vladimir Nabokov House-Museum at Bolshaya Morskaya 47 (Tues–Fri 11am–6pm, Sat & Sun noon–5pm; free entry; nabokov.museums.spbu.ru; M Admiralteyskaya), where the novelist lived until 1917. You can watch a video interview with Nabokov as well as peruse curious memorabilia, including part of the butterfly collection that inspired many of his novels.

Smolny Cathedral and Institute

A peerless ice-blue Rastrelli Baroque creation, Smolny Cathedral at 3/1 Rastrelli Square (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10.30am–6pm; R150, student R90; M Chernyshevskaya) is worth climbing for the pretty views from the top of one of the bell towers. The neighbouring Smolny Institute (pl. Proletarskoy Diktatory 3) is the headquarters of St Petersburg's Governor, but was originally built between 1806 and 1808 to house the Institute for Young Noblewomen; Lenin orchestrated the October Revolution of 1917 from here. A statue of the man himself still stands in front of the building, and as you enter the Institute's grounds look out for the now familiar Communist slogan: "Workers of the World, Unite!" (Пролетарии всех стран, соединяйтесь!).

Alexander Nevsky Monastery

At the eastern end of Nevsky prospekt lies the Alexander Nevsky Monastery (daily 5.30am–11pm; free, lavra.spb.ru; M Ploshchad Aleksandra Nevskogo), founded in 1713 by Peter the Great and one of only two monasteries in Russia with the rank of lavra, the highest in Orthodox monasticism. Four cemeteries are located in the monastery grounds; the most famous are the Necropolis for Masters of the Arts, where Dostoevsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Tchaikovsky and Glinka lie, and, directly opposite, the Lazarus Cemetery, the oldest in the city with elaborately decorated tombs. Tickets are required for entry to both (daily 10am–6pm; R150; combined ticket R250). Long trousers and shirts should be worn when entering the monastery and cathedral; women should also use a headscarf.

Rumyantsev Mansion

Along the Neva embankment to the west of the Admiralty, the focal point of the Rumyantsev Mansion at Angliyskaya nab. 44 (Mon & Thurs–Sun 11am–6pm, Tues 11am–5pm; R200, student R100; spbmuseum.ru; M Sadovaya) is the exhibition on Leningrad during the Great Patriotic War, which details the horrors of life in a desperate city, besieged by the Nazis between 1941 and 1944. The most harrowing exhibit is the diary of 11-year-old Tanya Savicheva, who continued going to school as, one by one, her entire family died of starvation.

Yusupov Palace

Purchased by the aristocratic Yusupov family in 1830, the elaborately decorated Yusupov Palace at nab. reki Moyki 94 (daily 11am–5pm; R700, including audioguide; ④ yusupov-palace.ru; ④ Nevsky prospekt) is a unique architectural ensemble of styles from the eighteenth to twentieth centuries, and is one of the few aristocratic mansions in the city where it's possible to gain an insight into the sumptuous lives of the Yusupov family. The palace was the scene of the murder of Grigori Rasputin, a Siberian peasant who was the spiritual mentor and family friend of the Romanovs at the beginning of the twentieth century. The assassination took place in the living quarters of young Prince Felix Yusupov, which today house a historical documentary exhibition that recounts the events of that brutal December evening.

Fabergé Museum

Located in the sumptuous eighteenth-century Shuvalov Palace, the Fabergé Museum at nab. reki Fontanki 21 (daily 9.30am–9pm; R450; tours in Russian every 20min, in English daily at 4.10pm; ④ fabergemuseum.ru; ④ Gostiny Dvor) houses an impressive collection of Russian jewellery art, including the world's most complete collection of Fabergé masterpieces. On display are nine imperial Easter eggs that were made to the order of Alexander III and Nicholas II, including the very first imperial egg, the Hen Egg, given on Easter Day 1885, and the last imperial egg made during the years of World War I. The collection also includes Russian porcelain, accessories, clocks, icons and Russian and European paintings of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane International flights arrive at Pulkovo Airport (④ 812 337 3822, ④ pulkovairport.ru). Express city bus #39Ex (every 25–30min; 20min; R30) and city bus #39

(every 12–20min; 35min; R30) leave from the bus stop in front of the Arrivals Hall and travel to ④ Moskovskaya, from where it's a 15–20min metro ride to the centre. Minivan K39 travels the same route (every 5min; 15–20min; R40). A taxi to the centre is about R1000.

By train Services from Finland use Finland station (Finlyandskiy vokzal) at pl. Lenina 6 (④ Plushchad Lenina) and Ladozhskiy station (④ Ladozhskaya). Trains from the Baltic States and Eastern Europe terminate at Vitebsk station (Vitebskiy vokzal) on Zagorodny Prospekt (④ Pushkinskaya). Trains from Moscow draw into Moscow station (Moskovskiy vokzal) on pl. Vosstaniya (④ Plushchad Vosstaniya).

Destinations Helsinki (standard service: 1 daily; 6hr 55min; Sapsan express: 4 daily; 3hr 30min); Moscow (standard service: 6–16 daily; 7–9hr; Sapsan express: up to 16 daily; 4hr); Riga (1 daily; 16hr); Vilnius (1 daily; 17hr 10min).

By bus Most buses arrive at the central bus station, nab. Obvodnogo kanala 36, ④ Obvodnyy Kanal. Lux Express services from Riga and Tallinn arrive at Mitrofan'yevskoe shosse 2-1 outside Baltic station (Baltiyskiy vokzal; ④ Baltiyskaya). The Ecolines (④ ecolines.ru) buses stop outside Vitebsk station (Vitebskiy vokzal; ④ Pushkinskaya) at the corner of Vedenskiy kanal and Zagorodny prospekt. Ecolines ticket office is a short walk away at Pod'yezdnoy per. 3. A number of shuttle bus companies have services to Helsinki (6–8hr), including Scandinavia (call ④ 901 314 56 74 to book, ④ scandinavia.spb.ru), whose shuttle buses depart from the corner of Ligovsky Prospekt and Nevsky prospekt by Hotel Oktyabrskaya (④ Plushchad Vosstaniya).

Destinations Helsinki (3 daily; 7hr 30min); Moscow (21 daily; 10–12hr); Riga (9 daily; 11hr); Tallinn (6–9 daily; 7hr).

By ferry St Peter Line (④ stpeterline.com) operates ferries to Helsinki (12–13hr), with some ferries travelling on to Stockholm and Tallinn. They dock at the Morskoy vokzal, Morskoy Slavy 1 (④ Vasileostrovskaya), at the western end of Vasilevskiy Island (metro or minibus from the centre).

INFORMATION

The main tourist office centre at Sadovaya ul. 14 (Mon–Sat 10am–7pm; ④ 812 310 2231, ④ visit-petersburg.ru; ④ Nevsky prospekt) has plenty of material in English. There are a number of tourist points around town, including at Isaakiyevskaya Pl 4/1 (Saint Isaac's Square) and at the Peter and Paul Fortress.

GETTING AROUND

By metro The St Petersburg metro, the deepest in the world, runs from 5.30am to midnight. Small numbers of journeys (R35 a journey) are sold using tokens (zhetoni), which you feed into ticket machines. For ten or more rides to be used over a fixed number of days, buy a plastic card.

By bus and trolleybus There are often the best way to navigate a major road like Nevsky prospekt, while overground transport is more useful in the compact city centre than the metro, with its lengthy escalators. Buy tickets from the driver (R30, or use the plastic metro card which is also valid for trams, trolleybuses and buses). Trolleybus #7 goes from Moskovskiy vokzal train station right to the upper end of Nevsky prospekt.

By boat One of the best ways to see the city is by boat (May–Sept) – either a private motorboat from any bridge on Nevsky prospekt (about R3000/hr/boat), or a large tour boat from behind the Hermitage (about R700/person). AngloTourismo (☎921 989 4722, angloutourismo.com) offer 1hr 30min boat tours in English (R1000, students R850) from the pier at nab. Reki Fontanki 27 (☎Gostiny dvor).

On foot AngloTourismo (☎921 989 4722, angloutourismo.com) offer free 3hr walking tours in English daily at 10.30am that leave by the pier at nab. Reki Fontanki 27.

In the evenings a DJ livens up the scene. The menu includes steaks (R690), large salads (R390) and burgers (R330). Daily noon–2am.

Dachniki Nevsky prospekt 20; ☎Admiralteyskaya. Laid out in true Russian dacha style with log cabin-style walls, chintzy curtains and Soviet films running back to back on the TV screen. The traditional food is excellent, from borsch (R240) to stroganoff (R390). Daily noon–1am, Fri & Sat until 3am.

Fartuk Ul. Rubinshteina 15/17; ☎Dostoyevskaya. This welcoming place with bare brick walls and low lighting buzzes at most times of the day. Small wooden tables are tightly packed together, and the handful of books and board games add to the cosy atmosphere. The menu includes pasta dishes (R480) as well as more substantial mains such as beef stroganoff (R560). Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–midnight, Fri & Sat 10am–3am.

MarketPlace Nevsky pr. 24 ☎market-place.me; ☎Nevsky prospekt. This excellent self-service chain offers affordable tasty food cooked in front of your very eyes. Watch the chefs as they skewer meats and prepare a variety of pastas to order, then take it upstairs to the cosy dining area overlooking Nevsky prospekt. As it's open till early morning, you can even refuel here after a heavy night out. Daily 8am–5.30am.

★Taste to eat Nab. Reki Fontanki 82 ☎tastetoat.ru; ☎Zvenigorodskaya. This modish restaurant serves delicious new Russian cuisine in a very pleasant setting. Warm interiors feature comfortable leather seating and dim lighting, and dishes are beautifully presented. The menu includes exquisite chicken Kiev (R450) and cod with vegetables (R440). Daily 1–11pm, Fri & Sat until midnight.

Teplota Bol. Morskaya 45 ☎v-teple.ru; ☎Admiralteyskaya. This popular place serves up international cuisine in a warren of cosy partitioned rooms, some with sofas, that will have you lingering longer than you intended. Mains R500. Book ahead. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–midnight, Fri 9am–1am, Sat 11am–1am, Sun 1pm–midnight.

Ukrop Marata 23 ☎cafe-ukrop.ru; ☎Vladimirskaia. Bright and airy veggie café with leafy flowerpots and knick-knacks dotted around. The menu features all manner of vegan and veggie delights, including mushroom soup (R220), beetroot risotto (R320) and buckwheat noodles with vegetables and shiitake (R270). Daily 9am–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Aurora Pirogovskaya nab. 5/2 ☎812 907 1917, ☎aurora-hall.ru; ☎Plushchad Lenina. Large concert hall that can accommodate up to 1500 visitors, hosting concerts, festivals and gigs. Check the calendar of events on the website.

Griboedov Voronexhskaya ul. 2A ☎griboedovclub.ru; ☎Ligovskiy Prospekt. A labyrinth of underground rooms hosting cultural events and gigs that attracts a friendly laidback crowd. Upstairs, Griboedov Hill café hosts concerts as well as exhibitions, DJ sessions and lectures. There's tasty grub here too, so make sure you get there early to nab a table. Mon–Fri noon–6am, Sat & Sun 3pm–6am.

The Hat ul. Belinskogo 9 ☎hatgroup.ru; ☎Mayakovskaya. Set out like an old New York City bar, this popular drinking hole attracts barflies looking for some live jazz and a few whiskies (there are over 70 types). Jam sessions daily 11pm. Daily 7pm–3am.

Khroniki Nekrasova 26 ☎Chernyshevskaya. Small student hangout that gets particularly packed at the weekends, with drinks scribbled on a blackboard. The simple interior has gilded Soviet chandeliers and white-washed walls. Neat potent alcohol is the order of the day here, although there are plenty of cocktails (R350) and beers (R200), too. Daily 6pm–2am, Fri & Sat until 5am.

Mosaique Konyushennaya pl. 2; ☎mosaique-space.com; ☎Nevsky prospekt. A cool techno club that is hugely popular among electronic music connoisseurs, with bunker-like architecture and colourful avant-garde light installations that give the place a unique atmosphere. Fri & Sat 11pm–8am.

Politory Komnaty ul. Mayakovskogo 34; ☎Cherny shevskaya. Experienced barmen shake up creatively presented cocktails at this small and intimate bar. Drinks are served on slates, trays or wooden boards, often accompanied by nibbles such as olives and pickles. Daily 6pm–3am.

Produkty Nab. reki Fontanki 17; ☎Nevsky prospekt. The retro decor of this little old-school bar includes a jukebox and countless odds and ends brought over from Berlin. It's a great spot to sip a cocktail (R250) as you enjoy some new-wave favourites spun by the DJ. Daily 2pm–2am, Fri & Sat until 6am.

Stirka Kazanskaya ul. 26 ☎40gradusov.ru; ☎Sennaya. This small grungy haunt attracts an alternative crowd. When live bands aren't playing you can lounge about on the worn sofas and enjoy the pretty decent sound system. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–11pm, Fri & Sat 10am–1am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Theatres tend to close for the summer until mid-Sept. For listings and events pick up the quarterly freebie Where St Petersburg, In Your Pocket or the Friday St Petersburg Times.

DAY-TRIPS FROM ST PETERSBURG

The imperial palaces of Peterhof and Tsarskoe Selo, half an hour to an hour outside the city, are both splendid day-trips. Although entering the palaces is increasingly expensive, you can slip away from the crowds into the surrounding parks. As you leave St Petersburg on the bus, look out for the awe-inspiring war monument to Leningrad's World War II sacrifice, and Lenin "hailing a taxi" near Finland station.

Peterhof

Most visitors with time for just one day-trip opt for Peterhof (Grand Palace Tues–Fri & Sun 10.30am–7pm, Sat 10.30am–9pm, closed last Tues of month; R600, student R300; park daily 9am–8pm, fountains from 11am; R700, student R250), 29km west of St Petersburg, known as the "Russian Versailles" and famed for its marvellous fountains and impressive cascades.

Though originally built between 1709 and 1724 for Peter the Great, each of the subsequent rulers made their mark here. Travel by hydrofoil between May and September (every 15min to 1hr, depending on weather conditions; first hydrofoil at 10am; R750 each way or R1300 return; 30–40min) from outside the Winter Palace or take minibus #224, #300 or #424 from ㊦ Avtovo, or #103 or #420 from ㊦ Leninsky prospekt.

Tsarskoe Selo and Pavlovsk Palace

The small town of Tsarskoe Selo (also known as Pushkin, after the "Russian Shakespeare" who was educated at the neighbouring Lyceum school), 30km south of St Petersburg, centres on the Catherine Palace (palace: May & Sept Mon & Wed–Sun noon–7pm; June–Aug Mon & Wed–Sun noon–8pm; Oct–April Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–April closed last Mon of the month; R580, students R290; grounds: May–July daily 7am–11pm; Aug daily 7am–10pm; rest of the year daily 7am–9pm; R120, student R60; ㊦ tsar.ru). The ostentatious blue-and-white Baroque structure built by Catherine the Great is surrounded by a richly landscaped park. Scottish architect Charles Cameron's elegant Neoclassical gallery stretches high above it. To get to Pushkin, take minibus #342 or #545 from ㊦ Moskovskaya or bus #186 from ㊦ Kupchino; alternatively, take a train to Tsarskoe Selo from Vitebsky or Kapuchino stations, then bus #371 or #382.

From Tsarskoe Selo buses #286 and #370 take you 5km further south to the more intimate Pavlovsk Palace (May–Sept Palace daily 10am–6pm, closed first Mon of the month, Park daily 6am–midnight; Oct–April Palace Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm, closed first Mon of the month, Park daily 6am–9pm; Oct–April free admission to the park on weekdays, palace R500, student R250; park R150, student R80; ㊦ pavlovskmuseum.ru), its magnificent Neoclassical interior set amid luxurious 1500-acre grounds.

Introduction

Serbia is a buzzy and boisterous country, compact enough for visitors to sample both Belgrade's urban hedonism and the gentler pace of the smaller towns or national parks within a few days – and it's one of Europe's most affordable destinations to boot. Grittier than its blue-eyed neighbour Croatia, it is nevertheless an integral part of any backpacker's Balkan tour: at the heart of the region, it gives easy access to the cluster of cultures and histories crammed into this small corner of Europe.

Serbia's young, European-minded population brings a bubbling energy to its bars, cafés and clubs, producing an adrenaline-charged nightlife unmatched anywhere else in the Balkans. The general determination to have a good time confounds the expectations of many a traveller, arriving with memories of the 1990s, when Serbia's name was not often off war reporters' lips. Today, it's just as likely to attract headlines for the annual EXIT festival in Novi Sad, or the exploits of tennis superstar, Novak Djoković.

Serbia's capital, Belgrade, is a sociable, hectic city that energizes and exhausts by turns. Northwest of the city on the iron-flat Vojvodina Plain sits lovely Novi Sad, window to the Fruška Gora hills, while further north – a stone's throw from the border with Hungary – enchanting Subotica is sprinkled with early twentieth-century Secessionist architecture. Deep in the mountainous tract of land to the south of Belgrade are three key struts of Serbia's religio-cultural heritage – Žiça, Studenica and Sopoćani monasteries. East of here, Niš is a pleasant small city to pause in en route to or from Bulgaria or Macedonia.

CHRONOLOGY

168 BC The Romans defeat the Illyrian tribe and establish their rule of the area of present-day Serbia.

630 AD Serbs settle in the region.

1166 Stefan Nemanja, leader of the Serbs, declares independence from Byzantine rule.

1219 The Serbian Orthodox Church is established.

1389 The Ottomans defeat the Serbs in the Battle of Kosovo, ushering in four centuries of direct rule.

1804 National hero Karađorđe ("Black George") begins the First Serbian Uprising against the Ottomans.

1913 The Ottomans lose their remaining authority in Serbia during the Balkan wars.

1918 Following World War I the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes is formed.

1929 The Kingdom is renamed Yugoslavia.

1945 Following World War II, Serbia is absorbed into Socialist Yugoslavia.

1989 Slobodan Milošević, a Serbian communist, becomes President of Serbia.

1992 The wars of the disintegration of Yugoslavia begin. Fighting ends three years later.

1993 The International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia is set up in The Hague to try those accused of war crimes.

1998 Serbia launches a violent campaign against the ethnic Albanian community in Kosovo, costing thousands of lives.

1999 NATO's "Operation Merciful Angel" – a ten-week war from the air to end Milošević's ethnic cleansing campaign – drives Yugoslav National Army forces out of Kosovo.

2000 Mass protests lead to the resignation of Milošević.

2003 Serbian prime minister, Zoran Đinđić, is assassinated in Belgrade.

2006 Milošević dies in prison, awaiting trial at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia on charges of genocide.

2006 Montenegro peacefully gains independence from Serbia.

2008 Kosovo declares independence from Serbia after nine years under UN administration. Serbia does not recognize Kosovo as an independent state.

2011 Ratko Mladić arrested and transferred to the War Crimes Tribunal in The Hague.

2014 EU accession talks begin.

2016 Radovan Karadžić found guilty of genocide and war crimes at the War Crimes Tribunal in The Hague.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Flight operators from the UK include Wizz Air (@wizzair.com) and Air Serbia (@airserbia.com). Cuts to services mean that Serbia's rail connections with neighbouring countries are now fairly limited: from Belgrade there are currently three daily services to Budapest in Hungary, two to Skopje in Macedonia, two to Zagreb in Croatia (both of which continue to Ljubljana in Slovenia), two to Sofia in Bulgaria (via Niš), and two to Podgorica (and Bar on the coast) in Montenegro – this last trip is one of Europe's most scenic. There are currently no services to Romania or Bosnia. No visas are needed for nationals of the US, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the UK, the Republic of Ireland, or any other EU country staying in Serbia for up to ninety days.

GETTING AROUND

Serbia's bus network (@bas.rs) is on the whole efficient and reliable – much more so than its trains. Most internal services run regularly throughout the day, and there are excellent links to neighbouring countries. Timetables (often in Cyrillic) can be confusing, so it's well worth asking your hostel to check bus times for you. When buying your ticket, targeting younger staff may improve your chances of communicating in English. Keep hold of the coin (žeton) handed back with your ticket – you'll use it to pass through to the platform – and note that you should hang onto your outbound ticket if taking a return journey. Putting luggage in the hold costs around 40din.

Serbia's decrepit rail network (@zeleznicesrbije.com) is best avoided, and in any case, likely to be of limited use; that said, fares are around half the price of the buses. Where possible, try and avoid the putnički (slow) services.

ACCOMMODATION

Hostels are widespread throughout Serbia (a dorm bed costs €10–15 a night), with dozens in Belgrade alone. In addition you'll find freshly decorated, affordable hotels in the major cities (doubles from around €40). Prices for hostels tend to be quoted in euros, while in hotels you'll generally be quoted prices in dinars. Rooms in people's homes (sobe) are less commonly offered than in Croatia or Bosnia-Herzegovina, but apartmani (furnished individual rooms or suites) are available, with doubles starting at around €40.

FOOD AND DRINK

In common with other Balkan countries, Serbian cuisine is overwhelmingly dominated by meat, and many dishes manifest Turkish or Austro-Hungarian influences. Breakfast (doručak) typically

SERBIA ONLINE

🌐 belgradian.com Comprehensive English-language site covering everything from local transport information to the fast-changing nightlife scene.

🌐 b92.net Venerable broadcasting station and the driving force behind anti-Milošević demonstrations during the 1990s; it remains the country's most newsworthy site.

comprises a coffee, roll and cheese or salami, while also popular is burek, a greasy, flaky pastry filled with cheese (sa sirom) or meat (sa mesom). Burek is also served as a street snack, as is the ubiquitous čevapčići (rissoles of spiced minced meat served with onion) and pljeskavica (oversized hamburger). You will find these on just about every restaurant (restoran) menu, alongside the typical starter, čorba (a thick meat or fish soup), and main dishes such as pasulj (a thick bean soup flavoured with bits of bacon or sausage), the Hungarian-influenced, paprika-red gulaš, particularly popular in Vojvodina, and kolenica (leg of suckling pig). But the crowning triumph of the national cuisine is the gut-busting karadorde šnicla, a rolled veal steak stuffed with cheese and coated in breadcrumbs – named after the national hero, Karadorde Petrović. A popular accompaniment to all these dishes is pogača, a large bread cake. Typical desserts include strudla (strudel) and baklava.

With the reliance on meat, it's a tough call for vegetarians, though there are some tasty local dishes such as srpska salata (tomato, cucumber and raw onion), šopska salata (as srpska, but topped with grated kashkaval white cheese) and burek.

DRINK

You will not want for coffee (kafa) in Serbia, but sadly the traditional Turkish kind (thick, black, with grounds in) is now mainly just consumed in homes. Balkan beer (pivo) brands like Lav, Jelen and Montenegro Nikšičko are very palatable – the first two are lager-like beers, the last one is available in both light and dark varieties. Craft beers are starting to make their mark; look out for Kabinet, which you'll find mostly in the capital. On the whole, wine tends to be disproportionately pricey on restaurant menus, but Montenegrin Vranac and Macedonian Tikveš are more affordable. Everyone should sample sljivovica – plum rakija – but pace yourself to avoid waking up with a shocked head and raw throat.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Even though tourists are quite a rarity in some parts, part of the charm of travel in Serbia is a sense of “live and let live” – you are unlikely to be quizzed intrusively or pestered to buy wares. Serbian culture as a whole is far from conservative – a fact you'll quickly grasp from the fashion choices youngsters make. You should cover arms and legs in Orthodox churches, however. Although smoking is not permitted in most indoor public spaces, it is one of the few European countries where it is still allowed in cafés, restaurants and bars, which can make dining out quite an unpleasant experience, if you are not a smoker that is. Tipping in restaurants is not essential, but in the nicer places you should leave ten percent.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Serbia's countryside is beautiful, varied and never more than a short bus ride away. In the summer, hike or walk in the Fruška Gora National Park

SERBIAN

Serbia uses the Cyrillic alphabet as well as the Latin one. Many street signs (see box, p.946) and bus and train timetables are in Cyrillic only, so it's worth being able to decode at least the first few letters of a word. Serbian, like Bosnian, is very closely related to Croatian (see p.158), and all three languages will be understood in all three countries.

(☎npfruskagora.co.rs); in winter hit the ski slopes with Balkan daredevils at Kopaonik National Park (☎eng.infokop.net). The locals love their football, and a derby between Belgrade's Red Star (☎crvenazvezdafk.com) and FK Partizan (☎partizan.rs) is invariably fiery, and frequently violent (outside the ground). For something more sedate, head to Novi Sad's FK Vojvodina (☎fkvojvodina.com). Basketball, too, is a major spectator sport, with Red Star (☎kkcrvenazvezda.rs) and Partizan (☎kkpartizan.rs) the dominant forces.

COMMUNICATIONS

Wi-fi is available in most cafés and bars, while you may find it available in some public spaces in the cities. Most hostels and hotels offer it as standard. Internet cafés are now rare, but where you do find one, expect to pay around 100din per hour. Public phones use Halo cards, sold with 300din and 600din credit at post offices, kiosks and tobacconists. Most post offices (pošta) are open Monday to Friday 8am to 7pm. Stamps (markice) can also be bought at newsstands.

EMERGENCIES

The crime rate, even in Belgrade, is low by European standards, though the usual precautions apply; be particularly wary of pickpockets on the city buses.

Pharmacies (apoteka) tend to follow shop hours of around Monday to Friday 8am to 8pm and Saturday 8am to 3pm.

INFORMATION

All the towns covered in this chapter have a tourist information office (turističke informacije), stocking good-quality materials in English. Another good source of information is In Your Pocket (☎inyourpocket.com), which currently publishes online guides to Belgrade, Novi Sad and Niš.

MONEY AND BANKS

The currency is the dinar (usually abbreviated to din), comprising coins of 1, 2, 5, 10 and 20din (and also 50 para coins – 100 para equals 1din), and notes of 10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 1000 and 5000din. At the time of writing, exchange rates were €1 = 120din, £1 = 150din and US$1 = 100din. Exchange offices (menjačnica) are everywhere, while ATMs are widely available in towns. Credit/debit cards are accepted in most hotels, restaurants and shops. Note that accommodation prices are normally quoted in euros, but you pay in dinars.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops open Monday to Friday 8am to 7/8pm (sometimes with a break for lunch), plus Saturday 8am to 2pm, and sometimes later in Belgrade. Most museums are open Tuesday to Sunday 9/10am to 5/6pm. Shops and banks close on public holidays: January 1, 2 and 7, February 15, and May 1 and 2. The Orthodox Church celebrates Easter between one and five weeks later than the other churches.

Belgrade

BELGRADE (Београд; Beograd) is a vigorous, high-energy city, especially in spring and summer, when all ages throng the streets at all hours. With a seemingly endless supply of bars and clubs, the city's pulsing nightlife is one of the unexpected high points on any European itinerary.

The city sits at a strategic point on the junction of the Danube and Sava rivers, something that has proved a source of weakness as well as strength over the ages: Belgrade has been captured as many as sixty times by Celts, Romans, Huns, Avars and more. The onslaught continued right through the twentieth century, when the city suffered heavy shelling during World War II and in 1999 withstood 78 days of NATO airstrikes.

Visually, the mingling and merging of architectural styles can be off-putting, particularly when a row of beautiful older frontages is interrupted by a postwar interloper. Yet this mishmash also makes the city what it is: alongside all the Yugoslav experimentation, the grand nineteenth-century buildings and Art Nouveau facades bear eloquent witness to the days of Ottoman and Austro-Hungarian rule.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The city's most attention-grabbing attraction is the Kalemegdan Fortress, while just outside the park's boundary is the Old City, whose dense lattice of streets conceals Belgrade's most interesting sights. South of here is Belgrade's central square, Trg Republike, and the old bohemian quarter of Skadarlija, centred on charming, cobbled Skadarska, though it's little more than the venue for several tourist-trap restaurants. Beyond here lie several more sights worth seeing, including the Church of St Sava, one of the world's largest Orthodox churches, and the very worthwhile Nikola Tesla Museum. For a spot of rest and recuperation, head west across the Sava to the verdant suburb of Zemun, in New Belgrade, or further south towards the island of Ada Ciganlija, Belgrade's own miniature beach resort.

Kalemegdan Fortress

Splendidly sited on an exposed nub of land overlooking the confluence of the Sava and Danube rivers, Kalemegdan Park is dominated by the fortress (☎beogradskatvrdrjava.co.rs) of the same name. The whole complex is a paean to Serbian heroism, topped with the proud Victory Monument of 1912. Originally built by the Celts in the third century BC, before expansion by the Romans, the fortress has survived successive invasions; most of what remains is the result of a short-lived Austrian occupation in the early eighteenth century. The best of the attractions is the Military Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; 150din), where a

BELGRADE

29 history thick with conflict is divertingly presented; among the most prestigious exhibits are Tito's field dress and other personal effects, though its most prized acquisition is part of a US stealth bomber downed during the 1999 conflict.

The Orthodox Cathedral and museum

Leaving the park and crossing Pariska, you'll find yourself in the oldest part of the city. On Kneza Sime Markovića is the city's main Cathedral Church, a modest, rather stark Neoclassical edifice built in 1840 and featuring a fine Baroque tower; it's also the resting place for several members of the mighty Obrenović dynasty, as well as Serbia's greatest literary hero, Vuk Karadžić. Directly opposite the church stands the Museum of the Serbian Orthodox Church (Mon–Fri 8am–4pm, Sat 9am–noon, Sun 11am–1pm; 100din), where a small collection of bejewelled Bibles and other gorgeously decorated paraphernalia is housed in the headquarters of the Patriarchate.

Konak of Princess Ljubica

At Kneza Sime Markovića 8, the Konak of Princess Ljubica (Tues, Wed & Fri 10am–5pm, Thurs noon–8pm, Sat 11am–5pm, Sun 10am–2pm; 100din; @mgb.org.rs) was built on the orders of Prince Miloš Obrenović in 1831 to accommodate his family. Eventually the abode of a nineteenth-century noblewoman, it underlines the Balkans' position as a cultural crossroads: a Napoléon III-themed room sits alongside a Turkish-style room with a Koran stand. It seems nineteenth-century Belgraders loved socializing too: there's a big semicircular sofa for chatting guests in nearly every room.

The Ethnographical Museum and Gallery of Frescoes

A short walk northeast of the Konak lie two intriguing museums. At Studentski trg 13, the Ethnographical Museum (Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 9am–2pm; 150din; @etnografskimuzej.rs) is a lively people's history of crafts and clothes in the Balkans. Beyond here, at Cara Uroša 20, the Gallery of Frescoes (Tues, Wed & Fri 10am–5pm, Thurs & Sat noon–8pm, Sun 10am–2pm; 200din) houses replicas of 1200 of the country's most fêted medieval frescoes – a must if you don't have the opportunity to visit the originals at the monasteries of southern Serbia and Kosovo. The style is fresh and colourful – lots of puce and blue.

Trg Republike and around

The main street leading south from Kalemegdan is Kneza Mihailova, a pedestrianized korzo (promenade) with narrow, pretty fronts concealing an array of fancy shops. It becomes more commercialized and hulkish at its southern end as it approaches Trg Republike (Republic Square), the city's main square. An irregularly shaped space, it's dominated by the imperious National Museum (having been closed for years, hopes are high for its reopening, finally, in 2017), in front of which is a grand statue of Prince Mihailo on horseback – this is the traditional meeting place for Belgraders.

East of Trg Republike is Skadarlija, the former bohemian district; south of the square, the wide swathe of Terazije slices through the commercial and business hub of the city.

Parliament Building and Church of St Marko

A left turn partway down Terazije brings you to the Parliament Building (Skupština), which has seen its fair share of drama. In October 2000, after Milošević tried to claw back the presidential election he'd lost, hundreds of demonstrators forced their way into the parliament building and threw fake ballot papers out of the windows as the building blazed inside. It remains the scene for political protests, such as those that followed Kosovo's declaration of independence in 2008.

More aesthetically pleasing is the Church of St Marko just up the road, a grandiose, five-domed neo-Byzantine structure modelled on the revered monastery of Gračanica in Kosovo. It holds the tomb of the Serbian Emperor, Tsar Dušan, protected by muscled stone guards.

Church of St Sava

A twenty-minute walk south of Trg Republike is the magnificent gilded dome of the Church of St Sava, on Svetosavski trg in the Vračar district. Built on the spot where the Turks supposedly burnt the bones of the founder of the Serbian Orthodox Church in 1594, it is a perfect example of the way religious and national identities fuse here. Standing some 70m high, it also stakes a fair claim to be one of the largest Orthodox churches in the world, with a cavernous interior that has been under stop-start construction for over a hundred years. There is literally nothing, decorative or otherwise, inside, but it is worth a peek for its gob-smacking size.

Nikola Tesla Museum

A short walk north of the Church of St Sava, at Krunska 51, is the engaging Nikola Tesla Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 150din; tesla-museum.org), which celebrates the pioneering work of the eponymous nineteenth-century inventor and engineer. Tesla (1856–1943) is credited with inventing the AC current, while other notable achievements include the development of wireless communications and remote control technologies. Alongside papers, tools and personal effects, the museum contains the urn with his ashes. Demonstrations of his experiments are held on the hour.

The Museum of Yugoslav History

Well worth the trip is the Museum of Yugoslav History (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 400din; mij.rs; bus #40 or #41 from Kneza Miloša), located around 1.5km south of the centre on Botičeva 6. The museum comprises three components, the centrepiece of which is the House of Flowers, designed in 1975 as Tito's winter garden and now housing the former president's tomb, as well as that of his wife, Jovanka, who died in 2013. The rooms either side hold a selection of Tito's personal effects, most notably a silver writing set presented to him by John F. Kennedy in 1961, and hundreds of batons used in the annual "relay of youth" which took place on May 25 each year to celebrate Tito's birthday. The adjoining Old Museum holds a wealth of exhibits pertaining to the former Yugoslavia's convoluted history, but inevitably the focus is on Tito himself, notably a bewildering array of gifts presented to him by foreign dignitaries. The May 25 Museum, meanwhile, has temporary exhibitions, which are invariably concerned with the former Yugoslavia.

Ada Ciganlija and Ada Bridge

In the summer months Belgraders flock to Ada Ciganlija (literally, "gypsy island"), a stretch of wooded park along the bank of the Sava just south of the centre. The island's sandy beaches have earned it the local nickname "Belgrade's seaside", and city-dwellers enjoy its giant water slides, waterskiing and naturist area; there's even bungee-jumping. Skirting the easternmost tip of the island is the gleaming Ada Bridge, a seven-span superstructure over 950m long, and rising to a height of some 200m, which makes it the largest single pylon suspension bridge in the world – the views of it from the island are stunning. To get to Ada Ciganlija, take bus #53 or #56 from Zeleni Venac.

Zemun

If you're after peace and quiet, head across the Sava River to New Belgrade and the west bank suburb of Zemun, a jumble of low-slung houses and narrow winding streets centred around the hilly waterside district of Gardoš, which holds the Baroque Nikolajevska Church, the city's oldest Orthodox church. To get here, take bus #15 from Zeleni Venac, or bus #83 from outside the train station, and alight on Glavna, the main street.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Belgrade's Nikola Tesla airport (☎ 11 209 4000, beg.aero) is 18km northwest of the city in Surčin, and connected to the centre by bus #72 (5.15am–midnight, Mon–Fri every 30min, Sat & Sun hourly; 150din), which departs from in front of the departures hall (one level above arrivals) and terminates at the Zeleni Venac market. If you wish to travel to the centre by taxi, avoid the sharks in the arrivals hall and instead head to the Taxi Info sign, where you can order a taxi for 1800din (€18).

By train The main train station (železnička stanica) is on Savski trg, a 15min walk southwest of the centre.

Destinations Budapest (3 daily; 8hr); Ljubljana (2 daily; 10hr); Niš (6 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr 30min); Novi Sad (every 1–2hr; 1hr 30min–1hr 50min); Skopje (2 daily; 9hr 30min); Subotica (5 daily; 3hr 50min); Zagreb (2 daily; 7hr 30min).

By bus The main bus station (autobuska stanica) is adjacent to the train station on Železnička. Note that bus arrivals stop by the park across the road from the station itself.

Destinations Kraljevo (every 1hr–1hr 30min; 2hr); Niš (every 1hr–1hr 30min; 3hr); Novi Pazar (every 1hr–1hr 30min; 3hr); Novi Sad (every 30–45min; 1hr 20min); Sarajevo (7 daily; 7–8hr); Subotica (every 45min–1hr; 3hr 30min); Zagreb (6 daily; 5–6hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main information centre is at Knez Mihailova 5 (daily 9am–7pm; ☎ 11 263 5622, tob.rs/en), with other branches at the train station (Mon–Sat 7am–1.30pm) and at the airport arrivals hall (daily 9am–9.30pm). Free city walking tours are offered daily at 11am & 4pm, departing from Trg Republike.

GETTING AROUND

By bus, trolleybus and tram There's an extensive network of buses, trolleybuses and trams throughout the city; the cheapest way to travel is to buy a BusPlus pass (40din), which you load with credit (72din per journey); these can be bought from a kiosk or newsstand; alternatively, pay once you get on (150din), though you will need the exact change – either way, make sure you validate the ticket in the machine on board. It's actually easier to purchase either a one-day (290din), three-day (740din) or five-day ticket (1100din); these prices include the BusPlus pass. Night buses depart from Trg Republike, operating between midnight and 4am (150din payable on the bus; daily tickets are not valid for night buses).

By taxi Give short shrift to the baying mob at the bus station and under no circumstances take a taxi from outside the train station; instead, grab one from the street or at any small rank; better still, call one of the following reliable firms: Beogradski Taxi (☎ 11 9801), Pink Taxi (☎ 11 9803) and Beotaxi (☎ 11 970). It is 200din from the outset, after which it's around 65din/km.

ACCOMMODATION

Belgrade is awash with hostels, though many are of dubious quality – unless listed here, avoid those opposite the stations. The vast majority of hostels are located in apartment blocks, and usually on the top floor too, so be prepared to climb a lot of steps. None of the below offers breakfast, but they do have facilities to make your own, and you are likely to be offered a shot of rakija upon arrival.

ArkaBarka Bulevar Nikole Tesle bb ☎ 64 925 3507, arkabarka.net. This floating hostel is a cool concept exactly executed, with snug cabin-like rooms, on-board entertainment (playlists on the laptop), and drinks on deck (the small balcony edging the raft). To reach it, head towards the river through Ušće Park. Dorms €15, doubles €40

City Break Hostel Beogradska 41 ☎ 62 636442, citybreakhostel.rs. Quiet, low-key hostel near Tašmajdan Park, with a welcoming atmosphere and a range of dorms, including one double. Trams #2, #3 or #7. Dorms €10, doubles €24

★ Hedonist Hostel Simina 7 ☎ 11 328 4798, hedonisthostelbelgrade.com. Occupying an old town house, this fantastic hostel is a superb antidote to the ubiquitous apartment-style places that proliferate – bare brick walls and low, wooden-beam ceilings lend it considerable charm. There's also a games room with PlayStation, and the owners lay on regular barbecues in the pretty garden, which is where they also show films and sporting events on a big screen. Bike rental too (€5). Dorms €14, doubles €50

★ Hostel Bongo Terazije 36 ☎ 11 268 5515, hostelbongo.com. Impeccably clean, chirpily run hostel on the ground floor of an apartment block offering five- and six-bed dorms plus a couple of doubles, all bursting with colour. Excellent kitchen-cum-lounge featuring a superb breakfast bar. Dorms €11, doubles €34

Manga Resavska 7 ☎ 11 324 3877, mangahostel.com. Opened by enthusiastic couchsurfers, Manga occupies a small chalet, with a range of colourfully decorated dorms, plus one single room and an apartment. There's also a cosy exposed-brick cellar, which doubles up as a kitchen/lounge. Dorms €11, doubles €36

Pop Art Hostel Karađorđeva 69 ☎ 11 218 5908, poparthostel.com. As funky as its name suggests, this colourful place offers four superbly conceived rooms (sleeping two, four, six and eight), themed on artists

Warhol and Basquiat, The Doors' frontman Jim Morrison, and cartoonist Stan Drake. Dorms €12, doubles €30
Yolo Hostel Uzun Mirkova 6 ☎ 64 200 8817,  yoloostel.rs. In a super location, the classy Yolo offers three brightly coloured, parquet-floored rooms (two four-bed dorms and one six-bed dorm) all with shared shower facilities. Dorms €11, doubles €35

EATING

Belgrade's restaurant scene has improved markedly in recent years and you'll now find an increasing number of ethnic restaurants alongside those serving traditional Serbian food, all at easy-on-the-pocket prices. If you fancy a spot of open-air (though entirely unexceptional) dining, complete with live music and a bit of tourist tack, then head to one of the traditional tavernas lining Skadarska.

CAFÉS

Koffein Uskočka 8. Decent coffee used to be hard to come by in Belgrade, but no longer, thanks in part to this buzzy, artisan coffeehouse, which roasts its own beans on site; every type of caffeine fix you could wish for. Daily 8am–11pm.

Mali Princ Palmotičeva 27. In the shadow of a giant linden tree, this refined little coffeehouse makes for a relaxing stop, with a range of coffees and some delectable cakes and chocolates. Mon–Sat 8am–11pm, Sun 10am–11pm.

Mamma's Biscuit House Strahinjića Bana 72a. By day this cool, curiously named café satisfies those seeking great coffee and cake; by night it services a more boisterous drinking crowd. Daily 8am–midnight.

Supermarket Uzun Mirkova 8. If Belgrade hasn't already sharpened your sense of the surreal, check out this "concept store", a café-cum-fashion shop with a futuristic aesthetic. Sip a freshly squeezed juice, lick an ice cream or down a craft beer. Mon–Sat 10am–10pm, Sun noon–8pm.

RESTAURANTS

Balzac Strahinjića Bana 13. A good spot for alfresco dining, this sparky little place hits a wide range of price points, from chicken risotto (560din) to salmon fillet (1100din). It also offers a cracking-value two-course menu of the day (noon–5pm) for 600din. Mon–Sat 10am–midnight.

Pomodoro Hilendarska 32. This fairly simple-looking place knocks up some of the city's best pizzas (700din) from its wood-burning stove, in addition to some terrific pasta dishes and cooked breakfasts (330din). Mon–Sat 9am–midnight, Sun noon–midnight.

Proleće Vuka Karadžića 11. There's no fuss or fanfare at this very ordinary-looking restaurant, just a steady flow of locals tucking into honest Serbian grub such as sarma (cabbage leaves stuffed with ground pork and rice) with sauerkraut (510din), white beans with roast pork (530din) and šopska salata (350din; cheese, tomato and cucumber salad). Daily 9am–11pm.

★ Radost Pariska 3. In this city of meat-eaters, it's both surprising and refreshing to find this top-notch veggie restaurant; paprika tofu and pickles, and shiitake quesadilla (740din) are typical dishes, and super-friendly staff to boot. Tues–Sat 2–11pm, Sun 1–9pm.

Sava Mala Savski trg 7. This restaurant's location, opposite the stations, couldn't be any less distinguished, but don't let that put you off. Perfect for a pre- or post-journey fill-up, the menu offers the standard Serbian grills (600din) plus dishes like prebanac (Serbian beans) and the mighty karadörde snidla (stuffed veal steak). Daily 7am–11pm.

Smokvica Kralja Petra 73. Named after the fig tree that shades its slightly wonky stone-and-brick terrace, the "little fig" is a terrific place to tuck into a scrumptious smokvica burger (550din) or tandoori roll (460din); also available are some fabulous cooked breakfasts (320din). Daily 9am–midnight.

Tri Šesira Skadarska 29. Skadarlija's oldest restaurant, The Three Hats is a great place to be introduced to the robust charms of Serbian dining – the mixed grill (900din) includes no fewer than six types of meat. It's all rather hammed up for the tourists, but great fun if you can bear that. Daily 11am–midnight.

Znak Pitanja, or "?" Kralja Petra 6. Run through with atmosphere and history, and furnished with low wooden tables and stools, the city's oldest inn is the best place to get your chops round a gut-busting pljeskavica with kajmak (500din). Daily 8am–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Not for nothing is Belgrade regarded as one of Europe's foremost party towns. There are a staggering number of places to drink and dance, though the scene moves frequently and it's hard to keep up. The current cool spots are Savamala, an area just west of the stations near the waterfront, and beyond here the Beton Hala Complex. Better still is Cetinjska ulica, specifically a cluster of alternative bars that have set up within several abandoned buildings of the old Belgrade Brewery. In summer, it's all aboard the splavovi – floating bars and clubs – to dance the night away. Most are concentrated on the banks of the Danube behind the Hotel Jugoslavija – a conspicuous block on the main road towards Zemun – and along the Sava around the Brankov Bridge; two of the most popular are Freestyler and Blaywatch. Most clubs don't get going until at least 11pm and usually stay open until around 4am.

BARS

Miners Pub Riga od Fere 16. As the name suggests, this subterranean, brick-vaulted den resembles a mining pit, and jolly good fun it is too; best of all, though, they have the finest selection of craft beers – many on tap – in the city. Daily 2pm–midnight.

Pastis Strahinjića Bana 52b. This French-style bistro bar is one of the street's more down-to-earth venues, with a constant stream of drinkers packed cheek-by-jowl inside, or, in warmer weather, huddled round wooden barrels outside. Daily 8am–12.30am, Fri & Sat til 1.30am.

Rakia Bar Dobračina 5. How could you come to Belgrade and not sample a glass or two of the country's finest? This place has in excess of one hundred varieties – your only problem will be deciding which ones to try, and how many. Daily 9am–midnight.

Zaokret Cetinjska 15. One of several alternative-minded bars to have recently moved in to the old brewery premises, the groovy, retro-designed Zaokret offers craft beers, DJ evenings and live music, and a cracking vibe. Daily 9am–1am, Fri & Sat til 4am.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC

★ Bašta Mala Stepence 1A @jazzbasta.com. Just one of the many venues down by the popular Beton Hala Complex near Brankov Bridge, Bašta (meaning "The Garden") is a stupendously ace jazz café-cum-club, with live music (jazz, blues, soul, bossa nova) most nights of the week. One not to miss. Mon–Thurs 5pm–1am, Fri–Sat noon–2am.

Bitef Art Café Skver Mire Trailović 1 @bitefartcafe.rs. Ever-popular café offering a regular and energetic programme of live funk, soul and jazz – as well as an eclectic mix of cultural events – in a converted Evangelical church.

Elektropionir Cetinjska 15. One of the new gang of bars and clubs occupying the grounds of the old Belgrade Brewery, this rocking place has a regular programme of concerts (mainly dance and rock), but is also a good place to chill during the day.

Idiot Dalmatinska 13, 1km southeast of Džordža Vašingtona, off Ruzveltova. Students and artists swarm into this small basement club by the Botanic Gardens. The terrace, too, is a great spot in warmer weather.

KC Grad Braće Krsmanović 4 @gradbeograd.eu. Occupying a former harbourside warehouse, KC is one of the most diverse establishments down in the Savamala district, staging an innovative programme of events, including concerts (jazz every Wednesday), film, poetry and debates, among other things. Mon–Sat 7am–2am.

Mikser House Karadorđeva 18 @house.mikser.rs. This fabulous place in Savamala is a real hub of design and creativity, variously staging concerts, theatre, cabaret, dance and mini-festivals. Mon–Thurs & Sun noon–8pm, Fri–Sat noon–2am.

Plastic Mint Takovska 34. Although not quite the mega-popular venue of yore, this split-level two-in-one club (consisting of Plastic and Mint) still pumps out some of the best house music in Belgrade; often visited by international DJs and pop stars. Thurs–Sat.

Tube Simina 21. This super-cool underground warren is the city's top dog for all strands of electronica, attracting some of Europe's leading DJs; the defining feature of its superbly conceived interior is a narrow, 25m-long dance-floor. Thurs–Sat.

ENTERTAINMENT

Tickets for concerts and events are on sale at the Bilet Servis ticket agency, inside the Kulturni Centar at Trg Republike 5 (Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 10am–8pm).

Kolarac Concert Hall Studentski trg 5 @kolarac.rs. Hosts many of the concerts of the Beogradska Filharmonija. Tickets 200–500din; box office Mon–Fri 10am–8.30pm, Sat 10am–2pm.

National Theatre Francuska 3 @narodnopoistorie.co.rs. Tickets to opera, ballet and plays are a bargain, ranging from 200–1200din. Box office 11am–3pm & 5pm till performance.

SHOPPING

Kalenić Pijaka Maksima Gorkog bb. Belgrade's biggest open-air food market, a 20min walk southeast of Trg Republike in the Vračar district (just east of the Church of St Sava). You can stock up on edible souvenirs or essentials for hostel cooking: smallholders sell fresh fruit and veg, breads, honey and national delicacies like kajmak (clotted cream) and ajvar (pepper and aubergine purée). Daily 6am–7pm.

Ušće Shopping Centre Bulevar Mihajla Pupina 4. Across the river in New Belgrade, the city's premier shopping complex harbours some 150 shops, as well as a host of entertainment facilities. Daily 10am–10pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates Australia, Vladimira Popovića 38–40 @ 11 330 3400; Canada, Kneza Miloša 75 @ 11 306 3000; Ireland, Kosačićev venac 2/1 @ 11 218 3581; UK, Resavska 46 @ 11 306 0900; US, Kneza Aleksandra Karadjordjevića 92 @ 11 706 4000.

Northern Serbia

North of Belgrade, stretching up towards the Hungarian border and spanning the southern part of the fertile Pannonian Plain, is Vojvodina, one of Serbia's most ethnically eclectic regions, with a large Hungarian minority. The region's capital, Novi Sad, is a charming spot that's a feasible day-trip from the capital or a handy springboard north to Subotica and Hungary. It's also an ideal base for forays into Fruška Gora, the gently undulating hills to the south peppered with medieval Orthodox monasteries.

NOVI SAD AND AROUND

Situated on the main road and rail routes towards Budapest some 75km northwest of Belgrade, NOVI SAD (Нови Сад) has long charmed visitors with its comely buildings – remnants of Austro-Hungarian rule. Today it's an emphatically young town – especially in the summer, when thousands of international revellers swarm to Petrovaradin Fortress for the four-day EXIT festival.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The hub of the city is Trg Slobode (Freedom Square), a spacious plaza bounded on either side by the neo-Gothic Catholic Church of the Virgin Mary and the neo-Renaissance town hall. Running east from here is bustling Zmaj Jovina, which, together with the adjoining bar-filled alleyway Laze Telečkog and wide, pedestrianized Dunavska, forms the town's central nexus of streets for eating, drinking and socializing. At the bottom end of Dunavska, occupying no. 35, the enlightening Museum of Vojvodina (Tues–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; 150din; @muzejvojvodine.org.rs) explores the region's many nationalities, including its significant Hungarian, Romanian and Slovak minorities; the prize exhibit, however, is a gold-plated Roman parade helmet. Sun-lovers should head for the Štrand (May–Sept; 100din), a sandy beach on the Danube's north bank, opposite the fortress, which has bars, cafés and a “school's out” vibe.

The south bank and Petrovaradin Fortress

Novi Sad developed in tandem with the huge Petrovaradin Fortress (open access) on the Danube's south bank. The fortress rises picturesquely from rolls of green hillside, its delicate lemon-yellow buildings set inside sturdy fortifications. It took its present shape in the eighteenth century when the Austrians tried to create an invincible barrier against the Turks. Unfortunately its defences quickly became outdated, and the authorities decided to imprison independent-minded troublemakers here instead – including Karađorđe and, a century later, a young Tito. The fortress museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 150din) relays the history of

MONASTERIES AROUND NOVI SAD

Shadowing the city to the south are the low rolling hills of the Fruška Gora, once an island in the now evaporated Pannonian Sea. These days, its orchards and vineyards comprise a national park carved up by a web of simple hiking trails. The hills – known among devotees as the Holy Mountain – also house sixteen monasteries (there were once 35). About 15km south of Novi Sad, just off the main road before the village of Irig, is Novo Hopovo, where a Byzantine church is housed within a picturesque monastery. Not far off are two more sixteenth-century monastic churches: elegant white Krušedol, and Vrdnik-Ravanica, which has Tsar Lazar's collarbone on display.

Accessing the monasteries is nigh on impossible without a car; expect to pay around €30–35 for a day's rental with a firm such as Europcar (Bulevar Jaše Tomića 1; ☎21 443 188, @europcar.rs). Alternatively, contact the tourist office in Sremski Karlovci (see p.952), who can, with some warning, organize group sightseeing tours of the main monasteries (around 1200din) or arrange for a driver (around 2000din for 3hr).

29 both the fortress and the town, though is more interesting for its wealth of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century applied art. As you approach from town, look out for the plaque on the right of the bridge commemorating Oleg Nasov, who was killed during the NATO bombing – Novi Sad was one of the cities hardest hit in the spring of 1999, losing all its bridges.

Beyond the fortress, climb the steps to the right of the church; you'll arrive just under the clock tower. From this vantage point, the functional twentieth-century architecture of Novi Sad itself looks less alluring than the fortress does from the opposite bank, but the views of the surrounding countryside are magnificent.

Sremski Karlovci

On the eastern fringes of the Fruška Gora National Park, the enchanting small town of Sremski Karlovci (Сремски Карловци) makes for a great little trip out of Novi Sad. Its main square, Branka Radičevića, with the Orthodox and Catholic churches side by side and the Four Lions fountain, is highly picturesque, but Sremski Karlovci's status as a national treasure comes courtesy of its speciality wine, Bermet, made exclusively here since 1770. Drunk with desserts or as an aperitif, Bermet was popular in the Austro-Hungarian court and served on board the Titanic's maiden voyage. The tourist information office on the main square can point you to the delightful wine cellar owned by the Živanović family (Mitropolita Stratimirovića 86b; daily 10am–7pm; muzejzivanovic.com), where you can buy your own supplies – swing open the side-gate to enter their orchard; there's also a quaint beekeeping museum. Alternatively, relax with a glass or two on the outdoor decking of the hotel of the same name on the main square.

Sremski Karlovci is a ten-minute taxi ride from Novi Sad (around 500din); catch a cab from the rank on Ilije Ognjanovića.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Novi Sad's train station is just under 1km north of the centre on Bulevar Jaše Tomića. To reach the centre, take

THE EXIT FESTIVAL

For four days at the beginning of July the grounds of Petrovaradin Fortress are overrun by EXIT Festival revellers (exitfest.org). Now established as one of the premier music events in Europe, EXIT attracts some of the very biggest names in pop, techno and hip-hop. Buy tickets and camping passes via the website. You can rent rooms in Novi Sad for the duration: check exittrip.org, which helps with booking accommodation and transport.

bus #4 (70din) from in front of it; walking takes about 30min – head straight down Bulevar Oslobođenja and turn left into Jevrejska at the market. A taxi into the centre should cost no more than 200din.

Destinations Belgrade (every 2hr; 2hr); Budapest (2 daily; 6hr); Subotica (10 daily; 2hr).

By bus The bus station is adjacent to the train station.

Destinations Belgrade (every 30–45min; 1hr 20min); Sarajevo (2 daily; 8hr); Subotica (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Mihaila Pupina 9 (daily 8am–6pm) and Jevrejska 10 (daily 9am–5pm; 21 421 811, novisad.travel). There's free wi-fi in Trg Slobode.

ACCOMMODATION

All of Novi Sad's accommodation gets booked up well in advance of the EXIT Festival, and just about all of them double their prices for this period.

Hostel 021 Pavla Papa 6 21 573 073. Located on a small side street across from the National Theatre, the clean and welcoming 021 has four- to six-bed dorms, a triple and a double with TV, plus a spacious communal area and a small kitchen. Breakfast not included. Dorms €10, double €30.

Hostel Downtown Njegoševa 2 21 524 818, hostelnovisad.com. A quiet, unassuming hostel just a few paces along from the main square, with a range of dorm sizes (some with bathrooms), kitchen and laundry facility. Breakfast not included. Dorms €12, doubles €40.

Hostel & Caffè Bar Rookies Jevrejska 13 21 662 1889, hostelrookies.com. Super-friendly, super-clean hostel in the heart of the city with three- and five-bed dorms as well as doubles. The downstairs café/bar offers a terrific range of food and beverages. Dorms €10, doubles €26.

Sova Hostel Ilije Ognjanovića 26 21 527 556, hostelsova.com. Located just off the main square, the "owl" is an appealing apartment hostel offering hip four- to ten-bed rooms, a cosy communal space, and kitchen. Breakfast not included. Dorms €10, doubles €30

★ Varad Inn Hostel Štrosmajerova 16 ☎ 21 431 400, varadinn.com. Brilliantly located at the foot of the fortress, this early eighteenth-century building has been converted into a sparkling hostel featuring beautifully designed en-suite rooms, all with a/c. Wonderful café and garden too. Breakfast not included. Dorms €10, doubles €30

EATING AND DRINKING

Astal Saren Mite Ružica 4. The aroma of grilled meat will have you sniffing out this homely little Serbian diner, located up a tiny side street off Laze Telečkog; big, calorific plates of grilled sausages, čevapi (a type of kebab) and pljeskavica, served with roast or fried potatoes and pickled salad (450din). Daily 9am–11pm.

Café Nublu Zarka Zrenjanina 12. Welcoming, gay-friendly café/bar located at the back of the city's best bookshop; the bare-bricked interior is replete with dimly lit lanterns, quirky clocks and lots of mismatched furniture, while the colourfully graffitied garden terrace completes the look. Daily 9am–11pm.

Foody Modena 1–3. Committed cost-cutters will warm to this bright, functional canteen, with soups, sandwiches, pljeskavica (150din) and much more. Sit down or takeaway. Mon–Sat 7.30am–11pm, Sun 9.30am–11pm.

Kuća Mala Laze Telečkog 4. A refreshing antidote to the string of brasher venues along this street, the “little house”, with its cosy decor and checked tablecloths, is great for a hot sandwich (250din), pizza (650din) or a cracking cooked breakfast. Daily 9am–11pm, Fri & Sat till 1am.

Moritz Eis Laze Telečkog 2. This modern, snappy-looking gelateria serves the best ice cream in the city, bar none; chestnut, pear, and banana and cinnamon are just three of the simple but sensational varieties on offer. Daily 11am–11pm.

Pivnica Gusan Zmaj Jovina 4. Narrow brick-vaulted cellar restaurant doling out juicy mixed grills and kebabs (690din); alternatively, just stop by for a beer at the long wooden bar or outside on the buzzy terrace. It's through a passageway by the Diesel shop sign. Daily 8am–midnight.

★TREAT YOURSELF

Zak Šafarikova 6 ☎ 021 447 545. Novi Sad's finest restaurant, with exquisitely thought-out dishes such as deer fillet with red cabbage and juniper sauce (1200din), and chocolate leaves with white mousse and morello cherries. Fine wines and impeccable service round things off beautifully. Mon–Fri 8am–11pm, Sat 10am–1am, Sun 11am–11pm.

SUBOTICA

Some 175km north of Belgrade, Vojvodina's second city, SUBOTICA (Суботица; Hungarian: Szabadka), is a wonderful counterpoint to the capital, its Secessionist buildings, green spaces, wide pavements and burghers riding around on old-fashioned bicycles all contributing to its unspoilt, wholesome air. Just a stone's throw from Hungary, Subotica feels tangibly more like its northern neighbour. Historically, the ties are close: Subotica reached its apotheosis in the years of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, when it was granted the status of a Royal Free Town.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The heart of the town is grassy Trg Republike, fronted by a hulking city hall built in 1912; its gingerbread-like windows and colourfully patterned roof are almost too gaudy to look at in full sunlight. In front stands a brilliant blue fountain. Adjoining Trg Republike is Trg Slobode, behind which runs the Korzo, a busy pedestrianized street featuring the fairytale Piraeus Bank building, with its door and windows straight out of a medieval castle, created by architects Dezsó Jakab and Marcell Komor at the start of the twentieth century.

Further out, northwest of the city centre is another Jakab/Komor collaboration: the dignified but now deserted 1902 synagogue, where a moving plaque remembers the “4000 Jewish citizens with whom we lived and built Subotica”.

Likovni Susret Contemporary Art Gallery

Occupying the wildly colourful 1904 mansion of architect Ferenc Raichle on Rajhlov Park Square is the Likovni Susret Contemporary Art Gallery (Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat 9am–1pm; 100din), exhibiting work by local artists. The real draw, however, is the attention-seeking interior decor, from the cutesy hearts at the entranceway to the bulbous alcoves upstairs.

29

Cathedral of St Theresa

A five-minute walk west of the centre, on Harambašićeva, the Catholic Cathedral of St Theresa is a curiously moving place; in the surrounding square, the scattered statues are a poignant mix of classical piety (the two hands clasped in prayer) and postwar brutality (the enormous monument to the “victims of fascism” who died during World War II).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station dominates one side of Rajhlov Park, a 5min walk from the centre.

Destinations Belgrade (6 daily; 3hr 30min–5hr); Budapest (2 daily; 2hr 30min); Novi Sad (10 daily; 2hr).

By bus The bus station is on Senčanski Put, a 15min walk from the centre on the road to Novi Sad.

Destinations Belgrade (hourly; 3hr 30min); Novi Sad (hourly; 1hr 30min); Szeged, Hungary (every 2hr; 1hr 30min).

INFORMATION

ACCOMMODATION

Hotel Patria Đure Đakovića bb ☎ 24 554 500, 🌐 hotelpatria.rs. Between the bus station and the centre, this budget four-star hotel proves you get more bang for your buck outside Belgrade. Breakfast included. Doubles €60

Incognito Huga Badalića 3, left off Maksima Gorkog ☎ 62 666 674, 🌐 hostel-subotica.com. This large hostel is a 5min walk from the central square, with basic but clean rooms, all with TV and wi-fi. Breakfast not included. Dorms €10, doubles €24

EATING AND DRINKING

Boss Matije Korvina 7–8. Just behind the Likovni Susret mansion, this atrium pizzeria and bar is where people come to be seen; the adjoining statue-strewn courtyard is a fabulous place to sup a beer. Pizza 500din, pasta 580din. Daily 7am–midnight.

Stara Picerija Matije Korvina 5. Opposite Boss, on a cute cobbled alleyway, this place excels at pizza (450din), hot sandwiches and much more besides; attractive interior and cheerful feel-good classics on the stereo. Mon–Thurs & Sun 9am–midnight, Fri & Sat till 1am.

Southern Serbia

South of Belgrade, the softly rolling hillsides studded with low red-roofed houses are the setting for three of the country's most precious medieval monasteries: Žiça, Studenica and Sopoćani. Elsewhere, the south's main city, Niš, conveniently straddles major road and rail routes to Bulgaria and Macedonia, and is an attractive small town with some fascinating sights.

ŽIČA, STUDENICA AND SOPOĆANI

In the hilly stretch south from the town of Kraljevo – itself some 170km south of Belgrade – to Novi Pazar lie some of Serbia's most impressive monasteries. Just 4km southeast of Kraljevo, Žiça was a thirteenth-century creation of St Sava – Serbia's patron saint and the first archbishop of the independent Serbian Church – with a vivid red exterior that evokes the red Serbs use to paint eggs at Easter.

The first and greatest of the Serbian monasteries, however, is Studenica, set against the wild, roaming slopes some 12km (and accessible by bus) from the village of Ušće. It was established in 1190 by Stefan Nemanja, founder of the Nemanjić dynasty, whose marble tomb lies in the Church of the Virgin Mary. Studenica's superb frescoes were the work of an innovative but still anonymous Greek painter who created trompe-l'oeil images to resemble mosaics.

VISITING THE MONASTERIES

While Žiça is easily accessible by bus from Kraljevo (every 30–45min; 50din), you'll need a car if you want to see more than one monastery in a day. In Niš try Inter Rent-A-Car (P.C. Ambasador Lok 23; ☎ 18 528 852, 🌐 rentacarnis.rs); prices start at around €35 per day. If you have more time, you could try public buses: on the Kraljevo–Novi Pazar route, you can get off at Ušće, from where there are 2–3 daily buses to Studenica. Monasteries are generally open from 8am to 6pm, and are free to enter.

Around 16km from Novi Pazar is the Sopoćani monastery, a thirteenth-century construction that once stretched across a whole complex, but of which only the Holy Trinity Church remains. The Assumption of Virgin Mary is the most famous of its unusually large Byzantine frescoes; the bright colours and expressive faces are said to prefigure the Italian Renaissance.

NIŠ

The pleasant university town of NIŠ (Ниш), 235km southeast of Belgrade, is a useful stopover point between Belgrade and Sofia or Skopje. Its inhabitants have a definite small-town pride, as well they might: this is the birthplace of Constantine, the Roman emperor responsible for the conversion of the whole empire to Christianity. Its collection of intriguing – if macabre – sights is a gritty reminder of the darker sides to Serbia's history, but the focus in the cafés and bars crammed with students is all on having a good time.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The city's centrepiece is its main square, Trg Kralja Milana, which sits across the Njåva River from Niš Fortress.

The fortress

A Roman fortress once stood here – a circle of Roman tombstones remains inside – but the current fortifications date from the beginning of the eighteenth century. Enter from the main Istanbul Gate facing the bridge; inside, the town authorities have put real effort into making this a place residents can enjoy, with the beautiful mosque of Bali Bey converted into an exhibition space, and the row of cafés in the shadow of the fortress's inner wall a cool spot to unwind. Each August the whole fortress is given over to the Nisville jazz festival (@nisville.com).

The first of the city's rather grim sights is to your right as you leave the fortress:

look out for the miniature blue-domed memorial chapel perched on the lawn, which commemorates the local people killed in the NATO bombings.

Ćele Kula

East of the centre on Braće Taskovića, Ćele Kula (The Skull Tower; Tues–Sun 9am–8pm; 150din; take any bus towards Niška Banja) makes for gruesome sightseeing. It dates from 1809, when Stevan Sindelić, commander of a nationalist uprising, found his men surrounded by the Turkish army on nearby Čegar Hill and took drastic action against his adversaries, firing into his gunpowder supplies and blowing up most of the Turks and all the Serbs around him. Following the battle, to deter future rebellion the ruling Pasha ordered that the heads of the Serbian soldiers killed in the battle be stuffed and mounted on the tower; 952 went into creating this macabre totem pole, though today only 58 remain.

Crveni Krst

The derelict Crveni Krst (Red Cross; Tues–Sun 9am–6pm; 150din) World War II concentration camp, a ten-minute walk down busy Bulevar 12 Februar from the bus station, is powerfully evocative: the hand-painted German signs for the washroom, messroom and kitchen make it all seem very recent. The barbed-wire fences and watchtowers, so familiar from camps in Poland and Germany, are a reminder that the displacement and genocide of millions was a truly pan-European operation.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is 2km west of town on Dimitrija Tucovića. Buses #1, #5 and #6 all run to the centre.

Destinations Belgrade (6 daily; 4hr 30min–6hr); Skopje (2 daily; 4hr 45min); Sofia (2 daily; 5hr).

By bus The bus station is a 5min walk from town, west of the fortress on Bulevar Februar 12.

Destinations Belgrade (every 30–45min; 3hr); Kraljevo (6 daily; 3hr); Skopje (6 daily; 4–5hr); Sofia (2 daily; 2hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Voždova Karadžića 7 (Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎ 18 521 321, @ visitnis.com), and inside the fortress (Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 9am–4.30pm, Sun 10am–3pm; ☎ 18 250 222).

ACCOMMODATION

Aurora Hostel Petra Vucinic 18 ☎ 18 214 462, aurorahostel.rs. Occupying what was once the Turkish consulate, this tidy little hostel has three- and eight-bed dorms, all with a/c and their own bathrooms. A well-equipped kitchen and neat terrace round things off nicely. Breakfast not included. Dorms €10

Downtown Hostel Kej Kola Srpskih Sestara 3/2 ☎ 18 526 756, office@downtownhostel.rs. Occupying a renovated apartment just metres from the riverfront, this place is enthusiastically run and features an eight-bed dorm and several doubles (all with a/c), plus kitchen and lounge. Dorms €12, doubles €30

EATING AND DRINKING

Cobbled Kazandžijsko Sokače (Tinker's Alley), just south of Trg Kralja Milana, is the town's social hub, thronging with café-bars.

Crazy Horse Davidova 8. An Irish pub, but it's pretty much the liveliest place in town right now; good beer and chat, sport on the telly, and loads of great live music. Daily 8am–2am, Fri & Sat till 4am.

Hamam Tvrdava bb. Named after the Turkish baths it's housed in (just inside the fortress entrance), this is the place to try some grilled lamb or oven-baked fish (400–500din); frequent evenings of live music enliven proceedings. Daily 10am–midnight.

Mamma Nade Tomić 10. Quirkily designed pizzeria with a terrific wood-fired oven; serious carnivores should have a stab at the house pizza, which comes topped with five types of meat (500din). Mon–Sat 10am–midnight, Sun noon–11pm.

Sindelić Nikole Pašića 36. Named after the kamikaze general behind the Tower of Skulls episode, Sindelić excels at simple, hearty Serbian food; try the gourmet pljeskavica, stuffed with pork and spices (500din). Located near the Kalča shopping mall. Daily 8am–1am.

Introduction

Hungarians and Turks came to Slovakia for its natural resources, and so does today's tourist. A broad band of sprawling mountains means lots of good skiing and snowboarding, while Karst areas are for caving, and the rambling hilly midlands are a hiker's paradise.

One of Europe's most low-key capitals, Bratislava is a warren of cobbled streets, low arches and tiny squares. It's small enough to explore in a day, but big enough to hold your interest for a long weekend. In Central Slovakia, you'll find lovely Banská Štiavnica, a UNESCO-protected medieval mining town in a lunar landscape of dead volcanoes. East and north are the High Tatras, as decent a mountain range as any in Central and Eastern Europe. They've long been the site of enthusiastic skiing, hiking and sonnet-writing. Heading east towards Ukraine is the wild, rocky Spiš region, home to the mammoth medieval Spiš Castle and the twelfth-century walled town of Levoča. Continuing south, almost to the Hungarian border, you'll find Slovakia's second city, lively Košice.

Sharing borders with Poland, the Czech Republic, Austria, Hungary and Ukraine, Slovakia is landlocked, with high mountains in the north, low mountains in the centre, hills to the west, and the Danube basin to the south. The population is fairly diverse, with over half a million ethnic Hungarians, hundreds of thousands of Roma (Gypsies), and several thousand Rusyns in the east.

CHRONOLOGY

- 450 BC Celts inhabit present-day Slovakia.
- 623 AD Samo becomes King of the Slavs after defeating the Avars near Bratislava.
- 828 First Christian church consecrated in Slovakia.
- 863 First Slavic alphabet written in Greater Moravia by saints Cyril and Methodius.
- 895 The Magyars (Hungarians) gradually begin to conquer and occupy the territory.
- 1241 Mongol invasion of Slovakia results in heavy losses.

1526 Hungary loses Buda to the Turks; the Habsburgs move their capital to Bratislava.

1800s Growth in Slovak nationalism.

1895 Czechs and Slovaks form a strategy of mutual cooperation against dual monarchy Austria-Hungary.

1918 The independent republic of Czechoslovakia is established on the defeat of Austria-Hungary in World War I.

1939 Germany takes Sudetenland in Czechoslovakia, before occupying the rest of the country.

1945 Slovak National Uprising against German occupation is successful, but thousands of Slovakian Jews have already been sent to the camps.

1948 The Communist Party comes to power in Czechoslovakia.

1989 The Velvet Revolution heralds the end of Communism in Czechoslovakia.

1993 Czechoslovakia splits peacefully into two states.

2004 Slovakia joins NATO and the EU.

2009 The euro replaces the Slovak crown as the national currency.

2016 In national elections the ultra-right-wing ĽSNS enters parliament for the first time.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Slovakia's main international airport is M.R. Štefánika, often referred to as Bratislava Airport (☎02 3303 3353, ✉bts.aero), 9km northeast of central Bratislava. There are also international airports in Košice, operating flights to and from Prague, Vienna, London and Dublin, and in Poprad, operating mainly business flights to and from various European cities. Another option is to fly into Vienna; the two capitals are only 60km apart, flights to Vienna are sometimes cheaper, and Slovaklines (hourly; 1hr) and MeinFernbus/FlixBus (hourly; 1hr) both run shuttle-bus connections for €5–15 one-way. For a more romantic arrival, there's the Vienna–Bratislava hydrofoil (see p.965).

Slovakia has good rail connections with Austria, Hungary, Poland and the Czech Republic. Most international trains terminate at Bratislava, but trains from Budapest, Kraków and Prague also run to Košice, and there's a direct service between Prague and Poprad.

Eurolines buses connect European cities to Bratislava (eurolines.sk), while Student Agency's (studentagency.cz) domestic and international coaches are cheap and comfortable.

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

Train journeys are slow but scenic. Slovak Railways (Železnice Slovenskej Republiky or ŽSR; ☎ 18188, slovakrail.sk) runs fast rýchlik trains that stop at major towns; osobný (local) trains stop everywhere. You can buy tickets (lístok) for domestic journeys at the station (stanica) before or on the day of departure. Supplements are payable on all EuroCity (EC) trains, and occasionally for InterCity (IC) and Express (Ex) trains of Slovak Railway trains. ŽSR runs reasonably priced sleepers and couchettes. Book in advance no later than six hours before departure.

InterRail passes are valid; Eurail passes require supplements.

BY BUS

Buses (autobus) cover a far more extensive network. The former state bus company is Slovenská Autobusová Doprava or SAD though there are now myriad other companies operating services such as Slovaklines (slovaklines.sk). Buy your ticket from the driver or book in advance from the station if you're travelling at the weekend or early in the morning on one of the main routes. Bus (and train) timetables are available online at cp.atlas.sk.

BY BICYCLE

Although much of Slovakia is mountainous and not ideal for cyclists, the countryside around Bratislava has well-maintained bike paths that stretch into Austria and Hungary. More demanding rides can take you into the Little Carpathians. Most trains allow bikes.

ACCOMMODATION

New B&Bs are opening all the time, and hostel provision has been increasing for years. There's no network of hostels in Slovakia, though a few are affiliated to HI (@hihostels.com). Bratislava has plenty of good private hostels, and in the High Tatras you can find chalet-style boarding houses (chata) in the mountains, with basic dorm beds from around €10 per bed. There are plenty of campsites in Slovakia, which usually rent out basic wooden huts (chata), fun if you share with friends.

In summer the cheapest accommodation is sometimes university halls; ask at the local tourist office for details. Private rooms are also cheap, and can be organized through the local tourist office as well. If you're a student, get hold of an ISIC (International Student Identity Card), as you'll need it to get student rates. Check websites for online booking discounts. Smaller places are often understaffed so pre-book and give an estimated arrival time, or you might find yourself locked out.

FOOD AND DRINK

Slovak cuisine is an edifice resting on three mighty columns: the potato, the pig and the cabbage. Because of their many neighbours, you'll find strong hints of Polish, Ukrainian and especially Hungarian fare, too. Main courses are usually a combination of meat with potatoes (zemiaky), or dumplings. Slovak dumplings (halušky) are small and smooth, like gnocchi. Meat is usually breaded and fried, or cooked in a sauce. The main meal of the day is lunch, which starts with soup (polievka) – perhaps garlic (cesnaková) or sauerkraut (kapustnica). You can often find game meats, like boar, rabbit and venison, on menus, as well as pork, beef, chicken, duck and goose.

A classic mid-morning snack is párok, a hot frankfurter. A Slovak delicacy is jaternica, made from pig's blood and rice. Bryndza, sheep's cheese made in the region since the Middle Ages, is light, salty and delicious. Bryndzové halušky, the national dish, is dumplings served with bryndza and bacon. Another favourite is pirohy; unleavened boiled dumplings stuffed with cheese, a little like ravioli. Hungarian goulash is popular, and so is langoše – deep-fried dough topped with crushed garlic, cheese, ketchup or sour cream.

Some popular desserts are strudel (apple or curd cheese), palacinky (crêpes filled with chocolate, fruit or jam, and usually cream) and lievance, which look like Scotch or American pancakes, and are served with hot fruit. An unusual Slovak speciality is sweet noodles (rezance), with poppy seeds and butter or curd cheese and sugar.

Outside the major cities, restaurant closing time is usually 9 or 10pm, while pubs often have cheap lunchtime deals from 11.30am to 1.30pm.

DRINK

The Romans brought wine to Slovakia. Vineyards in the southeast produce good whites, the most distinctive being Tokaj, a sweet dessert wine. For a few weeks in September you can get fresh burčák, a fruity, bubbly semi-fermented white with which Slovaks and Czechs toast the harvest. Slivovica, made with plums, and borovička, made with juniper berries, are popular spirits, but Slovaks will gladly make alcohol from any fruit. The national soft drinks are Kofola, an aniseedy Coca-Cola substitute, and Vinea, made with red or white grapes. The best-known bottled beer is Zlatý Bažant (Golden Pheasant). You'll find a pub (krčma) in every town, as well as a wine bar (vináreň), which will usually have later closing hours and often doubles as a nightclub. The legal drinking age is 18 and you may be asked for ID in shops, pubs or clubs. Coffee is traditionally served strong and black, though coffeehouses now serve cappuccino, latte and the like. Teahouses (čajovňa) are popular, especially with young people, and stock dozens of types of tea.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Learning a few Slovak words helps break down Slovak reserve, even just “hello”, “goodbye” and “thank you”

(see box, p.962). If you've been travelling eastwards, your Czech will do fine, as all Slovaks understand Czech.

When tipping, Slovaks usually round up to the nearest euro or two. When you are introduced to strangers, shake hands, and don't use first names when addressing older people. Casual greetings like ahoj are only for close friends. Wish fellow diners a good meal (dobrú chuť) before starting, and make a toast (na zdravie) before drinking. If you are invited to a Slovak home you must take off your shoes at the door, even when told not to (they're just being polite), and if you're invited to eat, bring wine or chocolates.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Slovaks love football and ice hockey, which you can see live on screens in bars across the Republic. You can go to ice hockey games in stadiums from September to April (@hcslovan.sk, in Bratislava); tickets cost between €13 and €50 and can be bought from the arena on match days. There's plenty of hiking, skiing, snowboarding and rafting in the High Tatras (@tatty.sk) and caving in the Slovak Karst in east Slovakia (@ssj.sk). Walking is a popular national pastime, particularly in the plentiful woodlands on Saturday afternoons.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most post offices (pošta) open Monday to Friday 8am to 5pm. You can buy stamps (známky) from tobacconists (trafika) and street kiosks, and it's also worth asking in anywhere that sells postcards. Cheap local calls can be made from any phone, but for international calls it's best to buy a phonecard (telefónna karta) from a tobacconist or post office.

EMERGENCIES

Violent crime is fairly rare and pickpocketing or petty theft is the biggest danger. You should carry a photocopy of your passport with you, as ID is (in theory at least) required by law. Small ailments can be dealt with by the pharmacist (lekárneň); for bigger problems go to the nearest hospital (nemocnica).

INFORMATION

Most towns have some kind of tourist office (informačné centrum), usually with English-speaking staff. In summer they're generally open Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm, Saturday and Sunday 9am to 2pm; in winter they tend to close an hour earlier and all day Sunday. Maps are available from tourist offices, bookshops and some hotels. The Slovak for town plan is plán mesta.

MONEY AND BANKS

The euro became Slovakia's currency in 2009. Credit and debit cards are accepted in upmarket hotels and restaurants and some shops, and there are plenty of ATMs in larger towns. Exchange offices (zmenáreň) can be found in big hotels, travel agencies and department stores, but it's usually better value to change your money in a bank.

STUDENT DISCOUNTS

To get a student discount (which is often as much as fifty percent) you'll need an ISIC, as most places won't accept your university ID card.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Opening hours for local shops are in the region of 9am to 6pm on weekdays and 9am to noon Saturdays, with supermarkets staying open later and sometimes on Sundays. Smaller rural shops close for an hour at lunchtime. Opening hours for sights and attractions are usually Tuesday to Sunday 9am to 5pm, though low season hours are often restricted to weekends and holidays. Most castles are closed in winter. When visiting a sight, ask for English (anglicky) text. Admission rarely costs more than €4. Public holidays include January 1, January 6, Good Friday, Easter Monday, May 1, May 8, July 5, August 29, September 1, September 15, November 1, November 17, December 24, 25 and 26.

Bratislava

Straddling the Danube in the southwest corner of Slovakia, BRATISLAVA is one of Europe's quieter capitals, its meandering streets and tiny but grand buildings attracting far fewer tourists than Vienna or Prague. In fact, with its slightly small-town atmosphere, on a hot afternoon a flock of sheep wouldn't look out of place grazing on Františkánske Square. The Old Town showcases the skill of Slovak town planners, who crammed a city's worth of palaces, shops, cafés, pubs, restaurants, museums and churches into a few blocks.

The area has been settled since the Neolithic era (about 500 BC), making it centuries older than Prague or Budapest. It has always been an international city – Romans, Hungarians, Germans, Austrians, Turks, Czechs, Jews and Roma have all left their mark. The locals are less visitor-weary and cynical than the natives of most capitals, characterized by a friendly reserve.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Old Town (Staré Mesto) lies on the north bank of the Danube, 1km south of the train station, east of the stout castle and southwest of the shops and housing blocks of New Town (Nové Mesto). A pedestrian zone stretches between Hodžovo námestie in the north down to the river in the south. South of the city is Hungary and west is Austria. Bratislava is the only capital city that borders two independent countries.

Old Town

You can enter the Old Town via the only surviving medieval gateway, Michalská brána a veža (St Michael's Gate and Tower; Tues–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; €4.30), which contains a military museum and a tower with a view. Michalská and Ventúrska, two halves of one street, are lined with stately Baroque palaces, the university library and dozens of places to eat. At number 10 is Mozart House, where the six-year-old Mozart performed for the Pálffy clan, while the former Hungarian parliament stands at Michalská 1.

A little northeast are the adjoining squares of the Old Town – Hlavné námestie and Františkánske námestie. Hlavné, dotted with street cafés, hosts the Christmas and Easter markets, and a few stalls most weeks. On Františkánske, you'll find the Rococo Mirbach Palace (Františkánske nám. 11; Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; €3.50, students €2), home of the City Gallery's Baroque collection.

Primate's Palace

Neoclassical Primate's Palace (Primaciálne nám 1; Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; €3.50) contains the Hall of Mirrors, where Napoleon and Austrian Emperor Franz I signed the Peace of Pressburg (as Bratislava was then called) in 1805. In 1903 city authorities restored the palace, and discovered six seventeenth-century English tapestries concealed behind the plaster, which are now the palace's other main attraction.

Cathedral of St Martin

On the edge of the Old Town is the fine Gothic Cathedral of St Martin. This was the coronation church for the kings and queens of Hungary between 1563 and 1830, and houses the remains of the seventh-century saint Joan the Merciful.

ACTIVE BRATISLAVA

Cycling and rollerblading along the Danube, towards Austria (upstream) or Hungary (downstream), are popular activities: for information on bike rental see p.966. The Small Carpathian mountains surrounding Bratislava are beautiful and make for a good day's cycling or walking; see [Bratislava sightseeing.com](http:// Bratislava sightseeing.com) for suggested routes and guided tours.

Action Park offers a number of activities including zorbing, kiting, bungee trampoline and a shooting gallery (zorbing €6, archery €9/1hr; www.actionpark.sk).

Nový most

A whimsical moment in Slovak communist functionalism, Nový most (New Bridge) was formerly called Most SNP, and is now nicknamed the UFO bridge, due to the tower rising from one end that resembles a flying saucer speared by a twig. You can ascend the tower by elevator and dine at the restaurant, which looks like the Starship Enterprise (daily 10am–11pm), or gaze at Bratislava from the viewing deck – locals say it's the best view of the city, because it's one of the few places you can't see the Nový most.

The castle and museums

Bratislava's castle (hrad; Tues–Sun: April–Oct 10am–6pm; Nov–March 9am–5pm; bratislavskyhrad.eu) sits on a strategic hill between the Alps and Carpathians, first fortified in 3500 BC. On a clear day you can see Slovakia, Austria and Hungary. The current castle, a boxy four-towered rectangle, is a 1950s reconstruction of Emperor Sigismund's fifteenth-century fortification, which burnt down in 1811: it now houses the Slovak Historical Museum (Historické múzeum Tues–Sun 9am–6pm; €7; snm.sk). Winding down the castle hill is what's left of the former Jewish quarter (Židovská), which contains the Museum of Clocks on Židovská 1 (Tues–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; €2.30, students €1.50; muzeum.bratislava.sk).

Slovak National Gallery

There are two entrances to the Slovak National Gallery (Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm; Thurs noon–8pm; free; sng.sk): the entrance on the embankment leads to the main building, a converted barracks housing the principal collection, while the entrance on Štúrovo námestie leads to the Esterházy Palace wing, used for temporary exhibitions, mostly contemporary art.

The Blue Church

A short walk east from the Old Town is the Church of St Elizabeth (Kostol svätej Alžbety) or Blue Church, Bezručova 2 (Modrý kostolík, modrykostol.fara.sk), which rises out of the suburbs like an Art Nouveau wedding cake. Built in the early twentieth century, the church is in the Hungarian Secessionist style, playfully combined with oriental, Romanesque and classical features. It's consecrated to a medieval princess and saint, a native of Bratislava, who risked her rank by giving alms to the poor; she stars in some mosaics inside.

The Artificial Beach

Every year from mid-June to August, hundreds of tonnes of sand are dropped on the banks of the Danube to give locals a taste of the beach. Tyršovo nábrežie, on the south bank facing the Old Town, is friendly, hot and crowded. Entry, hammocks, deckchairs, parasols and sports equipment are free, and there are cocktail bars, live music, table football, volleyball and snack bars.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane From Bratislava Airport (02 3303 3353, bts.aero), take bus #61 to the main train station, and from there walk or catch the tram into the centre. You can also take a taxi (see p.966).

By train Main station, Bratislava-Hlavná stanica, is within walking distance – 1km north – of the centre, or you can take bus #93. Some trains, particularly those heading for west Slovakia, pass through Bratislava Nové Mesto station, 4km northeast of the centre, which is linked to town by tram #6.

DAY-TRIP TO AUSTRIA

From Bratislava it takes 1hr 30min to get to Vienna by hydrofoil. Add that to higher prices in Austria and there's an argument for making Vienna a day-trip rather than an overnight affair. You can catch the hydrofoil from Rázusovo Nábrežie Embankment (up to 3 daily; €20–35 one-way, depending on the day and time; reservations required; twincityliner.com). For a less scenic but cheaper trip you can get a Slovaklines bus from the main bus station (1hr 20min; from €5; slovaklines.sk). Trains also make the run with two services an hour leaving from either the main station or Petržalka station.

Destinations Brno (9 daily; 1hr 25min); Košice (approx hourly; 6hr); Poprad (9 daily; 4hr 40min–5hr); Prague (to Praha-Hlavní nádraží; 7 daily; 4–5hr); Vienna (2 hourly; 1hr).

By bus The main bus station is Bratislava autobusová stanica, on Mlynské nivy, just over 1km east of the centre. Trolleybus #210 connects it to the main train station, while #206 goes to the centre.

Destinations Banská Štiavnica (2 direct buses daily, or change in Žarnovica; 3hr 20min); Brno (at least hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr 30min); Poprad (3 direct daily; 5–6hr); Prague (Florenc station; at least hourly; 4hr 15min–4hr 45min); Vienna (at least hourly; 1hr 20min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Klobučnícka 2 (Daily: April–Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–March 9am–6pm; ☎ 02 216 186, ☹ bratislava.sk); it can book centrally located private rooms. There's also a branch at the airport with varying hours, usually opening 8.30–9.30am and closing 6.30–7.30pm, sometimes later depending on flights.

Discount card The Bratislava City Card is available from both the centre and airport tourist offices: it lasts for up to three days, costs up to €16, and gets you discounts to city attractions, a one-hour walking tour, and free transport, including night buses.

GETTING AROUND

Walking is the only way to see the pedestrianized Old Town, but it's less than five minutes end to end so you're unlikely to get tired.

By tram, bus and trolleybus Buses are slower than trams and trolleybuses. Public transport runs from 4.30am until approximately 11pm. Night buses run roughly every hour; let the driver know where you're going, as the stops are by request only.

Tickets Buy your ticket before you board and validate it in one of the orange machines inside. Inspectors target routes going to the airport and bus and train terminals; fines are €50. Buy one-way tickets from machines at the tram terminus and newsagents: €0.70/15min; €0.90/up to 30min. A day-pass costs €4.50 and a three-day pass €8; you can buy these from shops at both the main bus and train stations (☹ imhd.sk). In theory you also need a half-fare ticket for bulky luggage, though few bother with this.

By bike Although there are currently no designated bike paths in Bratislava, ☹ bratislava.info/trips/bike has plenty of information on cycling in the country. Bikes can be rented from Bratislava Sightseeing (☎ 0944 103 432, ☹ bratislavasightseeing.com; €6/hr, €15/day), who also run bike tours leaving from the UFO restaurant car park, at Viedenská cesta.

By taxi Taxis are equipped with a meter, but even so it's normal to bargain the price before your journey. It's best to order in advance rather than hailing one on the street; try Radio Taxi (☎ 02 16303) or Personal Express (☎ 0903 588 070, ☹ personalexpress.sk), which takes bookings by email.

ACCOMMODATION

Art Hostel Taurus Zámocká 24–26 ☎ 02 2072 2401, ☹ hostel-taurus.com. Gleaming white, central hostel with only eight rooms. There's a dining area, sofas dotted around and a stage and musical instruments in case you want to jam. All rooms have a private bathroom and locker. Breakfast included. Dorms €16, doubles €50

Downtown Backpacker's Hostel Panenská 31 ☎ 0905 259 714, ☹ backpackers.sk. Arty, colourful HI-affiliated hostel on the edge of the Old Town with 24hr reception, a restaurant-bar, common room with a tuneless old piano, books and games. There's also a kitchen and laundry room. Dorms €18, doubles €53

★ Hostel Blues Špitálska 2 ☎ 0905 204 020, ☹ hostelblues.sk. Great concrete slab of a building which unexpectedly contains a warm, inviting hostel. The space given over to socializing (bar/reception with live weekly concerts, living room and a big kitchen) makes for a friendly atmosphere, and the staff are helpful and well informed. Rooms and dorms (female or mixed) are clean and towels are provided. Dorms €17.50, doubles €62.50

Hostel Folks Obchodná 2 ☎ 0903 725 252. Right in the thick of the downtown action, this crisply maintained if slightly bland hostel offers IKEA-furnished dorms and private rooms as well as a kitchen. Dorms €15, doubles €42

Hostel Possonium Šancová 20 ☎ 02 2072 0007, ☹ possonium.sk. Great little hostel a 3min walk from the station, which means a 5min tram ride to the Old Town. There's a popular horror-themed bar (inspired by the film Hostel) and a garden where guests chat and barbecue in the summer. Some of the dorms are pretty small, but all have intriguing wall decor. Dorms €19, doubles €55

Portus Paulínyho 10 ☎ 0911 978 026, ☹ portus.sk. Well-located pension close to the river. Large dull rooms, but gleaming bathrooms and friendly staff. Doubles €60

Zlaté piesky Intercamp ☎ 02 4425 7373, ☹ intercamp.sk. Lakeside campsite 8km northeast of the city centre. Lifeguard services and a beach, as well as two restaurants on site and chalets (sleeping three) to rent. Take tram #4 from town to the end stop, Zlaté Piesky. May to mid-Oct. Camping/person €3.50, chalets €31

EATING

CAFÉS

Caffe L'Aura Rudnayovo nám 4. Packed with creaking chairs, antique pitchers and cracked oil paintings, this unruly café-bar is a good place to wait out a rainstorm. In better weather sit on the terrace overlooking the cathedral. Sun–Thurs 10am–midnight, Fri 10am–1am, Sat noon–1am, Sun 11am–10pm.

Greentree Caffè Ventúrska 20. Part of a likeable Italian-owned local chain. There are five dotted around town, but this is possibly the best of the lot, housed in an atmospheric vaulted cellar. Mon–Thurs 8am–8.30pm, Fri 8am–9pm, Sat 9am–9pm.

Štúr Café Štúrova 8 ☎ sturcafe.sk. Elegant but laidback café modelled on the glamorous coffeehouses of interwar Austria-Hungary. Freshly baked cakes, hearty sandwiches, and famous spiced home-made lemonade. There's a second branch on Panská. Mon–Fri 8am–midnight, Sat & Sun 9am–midnight.

RESTAURANTS

★ Bratislava Flag Ship Restaurant Nám SNP 8 ☎ bratislavskarestauracia.sk. Cavernous, echoing restaurant with decor that's half Charles Dickens half Las Vegas. The food is very decent and inexpensive, the atmosphere is warm and there's a terrace on the square. Mains €4.50–16. Mon–Sat 10am–midnight, Sun noon–midnight.

Bratislavský meštiansky pivovar Drevená 8 ☎ mestianskypivovar.sk. Old-style pub that brews its own beer and serves meaty Slovak staples. It can be hard to get a table on a Friday night but you could always try the other branch at Dunajská 21. Mains €6–19. Mon–Thurs & Sat 11am–midnight, Fri 11am–1am, Sun 11am–11pm.

Góvinda Obchodná 30 ☎ govinda.sk. Good, inexpensive Indian vegetarian buffet on a busy shopping street: a plate of tasty veggie Indian food costs roughly €3.50. Mon–Fri 10.30am–5.30pm.

Pizza Mizza Tobručká 5 ☎ pizzamizza.sk. Reckoned to be the smartest pizza joint in Bratislava (though that's not saying much), Pizza Mizza is a decent place for a cheap, filling meal (pizza €3.50–14). They have branches dotted all over town, and also do home delivery via the website. Mon–Fri 10am–11pm, Sat & Sun 11am–11pm.

Prašná Bašta Zamočnická 11 ☎ prasnabasta.sk. Tucked in a quiet courtyard off Michalská gate, Prašná Bašta is an elegant, low-key restaurant loved by locals. The delicious food combines Slovak and international flavours, there's a handsome vaulted interior, summer terrace and live jazz and classical music. Mains €7–19. Daily 11am–11pm.

Sladovňa: House of Beer Ventúrska 5. Decent local cuisine and good beer, outdoor seating (street or courtyard) in summer, and an atmospheric beer cellar in winter. Mains €7–16. Mon–Wed 11am–1am, Thurs–Sat 11am–2am, Sun 11am–11pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Al Faro Eurovea Shopping Mall, Pribinova 8/A ☎ alfarosk. Strange to say, one of the nicest places for a cold drink on a hot evening is the mall: Eurovea, a 15min walk from Old Town, has a row of bars, cafés and restaurants along the riverbank, while Al Faro has a summer terrace on a pier over the river furnished with sofas and parasols. Daily 11am–midnight.

Dopler Prievozská 18. Bratislava's biggest and most raucous nightclub is a taxi ride from the centre, popular with students and high schoolers. Mon–Sat 9pm–5am.

Dubliner Sedlárska 6 ☎ irish-pub.sk. Busy Irish pub providing sports games and live music at the weekends. Located on a street of bars, so if this one doesn't work you have plenty of nearby options. Daily 9am–3am.

Harley Saloon Rebarborová 1/a ☎ harley.sk. Big place, heaving at weekends, with a retro 1980s and 1990s playlist. It's on the edge of town so you'll need to take a trolley bus or taxi. Mon–Thurs 10am–midnight, Fri 10am–6am, Sat 11am–6am, Sun 11am–midnight.

Norton Club Panská 29. British motorcycle-theme bar, though you are unlikely to meet any bikers as it's on a pedestrian street. Sun–Thurs 1pm–midnight, Fri–Sat 1pm–2am.

FESTIVALS

Bratislava hosts a raft of excellent festivals, especially for music-lovers. Here are a few of the best:

Cultural Summer ☎ bkis.sk. Performance festival from June to September which floods Bratislava with theatre, opera, visual arts and dance.

Coronation Celebration ☎ bratislava-info.sk. Once a year history-lovers don their copdices and stockings to celebrate the coronation of a certain ruler: check website for current date and king.

Jazz Days ☎ www.bjd.sk. Brief but exuberant jazz festival which has been held every year since 1975. Typically held in October.

Bratislava Music Festival ☎ bhsfestival.sk. Classical music heavyweight organized by the Slovak Philharmonic every autumn, holding about 25 chamber and symphonic concerts each year.

Nu Spirit Club Pasáž Luxor, Štúrova 3 📞 nuspirit.sk. Nudisco, drum'n'bass, funk, hip-hop, house and disco, DJ nights, stand-up comedy, live concerts and jam sessions. The owners also run a good bar on Medená St (same name). Mon–Fri 10am–3am, Sat 5pm–3am, Sun 5pm–1am.

ENTERTAINMENT

The tourist office stocks Kam do mesta, a monthly listings magazine (free; 📞 kamdomesta.sk), while the weekly English-language Slovak Spectator, available from kiosks and hotels, has news and listings. There are open-air classical music concerts in summer in courtyards and squares across the city, such as outside the Jesuit church by Michalská. Ask at the tourist office for details, or check 📞 bkis.sk.

Slovak National Theatre 📞 snd.sk. You can watch theatre performances at the impressive modern New Slovak National Theatre (Pribinova 17) and the Historic Slovak National Theatre (Hviezdoslavovo nám). Tickets can be bought at either building one hour before the show (€8–30). Some of the less well-known performances in the studio cost as little as €3.

Reduta Palace On the corner of nám Štúra and Medená. This is home to the Slovak Philharmonic Orchestra (📞 filharmonia.sk).

Lumière Cinema Špitálska 4 📞 www.aic.sk /kinolumiere. Arthouse joint in the city centre showing old and new Slovak, European and world films.

Cinema City In the Eurovea Shopping Mall, Pribinova 8 📞 cinemacity.sk. Cinema showing new releases.

SHOPPING

Michalská and Ventúrska streets in the Old Town are good for souvenir shopping – good bets are ceramics and wooden items.

AuPark Einsteinova 18 📞 aupark.sk. Large 240-shop mall with a Cinema City and food court. Mon–Fri 10am–9pm, Sat & Sun 9am–9pm.

Eurovea Shopping Mall Pribinova 8 📞 eurovea.com. A 15min walk from the Old Town, Eurovea contains mainstream, big-name chain shops, plus riverside bars and restaurants (see p.967) and a multiplex cinema (see p.968). Daily 10am–9pm.

Oxford Books Laurinská 9 📞 02 5262 2029, 📞 oxfordbookshop.sk. Good browsing and a wide selection of English-language books. Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat 10am–5pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates UK, Panská 16 📞 02 5998 2020; US, Hviezdoslavovo nám 5 📞 2 5443 0861.

Hospital Poliklinika Ružinov, Ružinovská 10 (trams #8, #9, #14 and #50; 📞 02 4827 9111, 📞 ruzinovskapoliklinika.sk).

Internet There's free wi-fi access in certain parts of town, including Primaciálne nám, Hlavné nám and Františkánske nám. Most cafés and bars also offer free wi-fi.

Left luggage Main train station (daily 6.30am–11pm).

Pharmacies Lekáreň Pod Manderlom, nám SNP 20 (📞 02 5443 2952). Lekáreň Pokrok, Račianske Mýto 1 (24hr; 📞 02 4445 5291, 📞 lekarenpokrok.sk).

Police Foreign police and passport services, Hrobáková 44 (📞 0961 036 855).

Post office Slovenská pošta, nám SNP 35 (Mon–Fri 7am–8pm, Sat 7am–6pm, Sun 9am–2pm).

Central Slovakia

If you're partial to an undulating hill or a winding mossy way, Central Slovakia is your kind of place. Quiet and agrarian, it's the heart of Slovakia; the cradle of Romantic Nationalism in the nineteenth century and the seat of the Slovak National Uprising in 1944. The way of life is slow, as are the trains, but what it lacks in zip it repays in beauty.

BANSKÁ ŠTIAVNICA

Lying in a great caldera created by the collapse of a long-since extinct volcano, BANSKÁ ŠTIAVNICA is Slovakia's oldest mining town. In the third century the Huns discovered precious metal here, and by the Middle Ages it was the largest source of gold and silver in the Hungarian Empire. During the Ottoman Wars the town sprouted fortifications, watchtowers and a castle to repel marauding Turks. As the metal reserves dwindled the inhabitants migrated, leaving the town with a slightly frozen-in-time feel.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Main square Námestie sv Trojice is dominated by the Holy Trinity column, a red marble monolith marking the end of the plague in 1711. Southeast is Radničné Námestie, the Gothic Church of St Catherine and the Town Hall (Radnica), the latter with a clock that marks hours with its big hand and minutes with its little hand – according to an unusually credible local legend it was the work of a drunk clockmaker. Continuing southeast, you'll come to the minimalist New Castle (Nový Zámok) and Church of Our Lady of the Snows.

The Old Castle

To the west of the main square is the Old Castle (Starý zámok; May–Sept daily 9am–5pm; Oct–April Wed–Sat 8am–4pm; €4), not a castle at all but a fortified Romanesque church used as a storage facility for municipal wealth. It's part of the Slovak Mining Museum, and exhibits Baroque sculptures, archeological remains and medieval blacksmithery. You can also discover what life was like in a medieval jail.

Klopačka

Up A. Sládkoviča street is the Clapping Tower (Klopačka), home to a giant clapping contraption built for waking up miners. Today it claps for the amusement or irritation of tourists, and contains a teahouse (see p.970).

Museums

Štiavnica is a museum-rich town. First up is the Jozef Kollár Gallery on Námestie sv Trojice, which exhibits everything from medieval madonnas to twentieth-century watercolours. A few doors down is the Mineral Museum, which houses exhibits on the technical development of mining, while New Castle, at Novozámocká 22, contains a little museum about the Ottoman Wars in Slovakia. All of these museums are run by the Slovak Mining Museum (☎ muzeumb.sk) and have the same opening hours and prices (May–Sept Tues–Sat 9am–5pm; Oct–April Mon–Fri 8am–4pm; €2).

At the Open Air Mining Museum, J.K. Hella 12 (April–June & Sept–Oct Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; July & Aug Mon noon–5pm, Tues–Sun 9am–6pm; tours hourly; €5), 1.5km from town, you can take a trip down the old mines, while 3km from town, the Museum of St Anton, 72 Svätý Anton (Tues–Sat 9am–3pm; sometimes opens earlier and closes later in high season; ☎ msa.sk; €5–8, depending on how much of the museum you wish to see) is the kind of tapestry-heavy, trophy-stuffed manse that helps to while away a rainy morning.

Around Banská Štiavnica

The hills around Štiavnica are perfect for strolling, berry-picking and idling. Centuries of mining with gunpowder left the hills scarred with pits, which in time became lakes. On a hot day you can hike, swim, picnic, and be back by teatime. The most interesting walk is up to Calvary (Kalvária, 1km northeast of Old Town), a cluster of red and white Baroque chapels and churches perched on an inactive volcano, each one representing a stage in Christ's journey to the Cross. Hiking maps are available at the tourist office and hotels.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is a 2km walk through the suburbs from the old town. There's no direct train-only service to Bratislava.

By bus The bus stop is 100m closer to town than the train station, and is next to the big Billa supermarket at Križovatka, a steep climb up to the centre.

Destinations Bratislava (hourly indirect connections, change in Žarnovica or Žiar nad Hronom; 3hr 20min–3hr 50min); Nitra (approx hourly indirect services with a change in Žarnovica or Žiar nad Hronom; 2hr 15min–2hr 40min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Nám sv Trojice 3 (daily: May–June & Sept 9am–5pm; Oct–April 8am–4pm; July & Aug 9am–6pm; ☎ 046 949 653, ☎ banskastiavnica.sk, ☎ banskastiavnica.org).

SPA TREATMENT

Do you have backache after lugging that backpack across Europe? Then hop on a bus at Križovatka and whizz over to Sklené Teplice Spa, Ul. A. Pécha 2 (☎ kupele-skleneteplice.sk), where you can jump into w springs and take cold showers alternately – an ordeal that leaves you exhausted to the point of relaxation. The spring is 42°C, with high levels of magnesium and calcium, and the spa claims it heals visitors with muscle and muscular-skeletal conditions. There's also a pool, saunas and massage.

GETTING AROUND

Public transport You can walk from one side of the Old Town to the other in 10min. Cheap shuttle buses run through town; you can stop them anywhere by waving, and the fare is €0.50. Taxis are useful if you want to get out into the country but operators rarely speak English, so ask your hotel or hostel to order and agree the fee for you. Firms include Jo-Ma taxi (☎09 1018 0380) and F-Taxi (☎09 10 525 999).

ACCOMMODATION

Archanjel Radničné nám 10b ☎0915 365 371, archanjel.com. Smart rooms in an old townhouse above a local bar, with a shared kitchenette. The rooms are far from perfect but quite good value for an en-suite room. Doubles €35

Hostel Skautský dom A. Pécha 2 ☎0905 382 885, hostel.stiavnica.sk. Štiavnica's cheapest; a rambling, echoey hostel and tiny campsite below the castle. Camping/person €7, dorms €8, doubles €24

Penzion Kachelman Kammerhofská 18 ☎045 692 2319, kachelman.sk. Large and pristine hotel located halfway between the bus station and the town centre. There's a restaurant, pizzeria, sauna and jacuzzi on site. Doubles €45

★Penzion Nostalgia Višňovského 3 ☎0905 360 307, penzion-nostalgia.sk. One of Slovakia's finest B&Bs, Nostalgia is a seventeenth-century townhouse with a wood-burning stove, oak beams and crisp linen sheets. It's right in the centre of town, with views of the Old Town synagogue. Breakfast €4.50. Doubles €40, apartments €60

EATING AND DRINKING

Art Café Akademická 2. Bustling café, bar, exhibition space and sometime-cinema. It stocks a good range of local wines. Follow the staircase behind their terrace for views of the town. Sun–Thurs 10am–11pm, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Čajovňa Klopačka A. Sládkoviča 7 ☎klopacka.com. Teahouse of the red cushion, smoky incense variety popular with Slovak students. There are 150 types of tea and water pipes. Mon–Thurs 11am–11pm, Fri & Sat 10am–midnight, Sun 10am–11pm.

★TREAT YOURSELF

4 Sochy Kammerhofská 16, ☎4sochy.sk. If you fancy a splurge, this café-restaurant, stylishly furnished with antiques, serves a higher class of cuisine than rural Slovakia normally offers. Mains €10–23. Tues–Thurs 11.30am–8pm, Fri & Sat noon–9pm, Sun noon–8pm.

★Kaviareň Divná pani Andreja Kmeťa 8 ☎divnapani.sk. Decorated like a flamboyant Roman library, this oddly named café-bar (the name translates as “strange woman”) offers beer on tap, liquors, coffee and cakes, columns, statues and old books. The closing times are often later than advertised on busy nights. Mon–Thurs 7.15am–10pm, Fri 7.15am–midnight, Sat 8.30am–midnight, Sun 9am–10pm.

Pivovar ERB Novozámoká 2 ☎pivovarerb.sk. Shiny tourist-orientated microbrewery and restaurant with specialities including smoked pork knuckles and sausages in vinegar brine. Mains €8–22. Sun–Thurs 11am–10pm, Fri & Sat 11am–midnight.

★Terasa u Blažkov Jazero Počúvadlo ☎terasaublaskov.sk. If you're in town on a balmy Friday or Saturday evening, take a long hike to Terasa u Blažkov (7km from Štiavnica). It's a traditional rustic night out with a whole pig roasted on a spit, fresh bread, salad and a folk band. Dinner is €5–8 and the taxi home around €7 extra. It starts at 5pm, and if you arrive early you can swim in the adjoining lake. June–Sept daily 10am–11pm.

Tulsi Radničné nám 13 ☎tulsi.sk. The risottos, sushi and salads at this tea house and restaurant provide a break from halušky and a sporting chance for vegetarians. Mains €4–9: daily menu €4. Mon–Wed 11am–9pm, Thurs & Fri 11am–10pm, Sat noon–10pm, Sun noon–9pm.

THE TATRAS

Defining the border with Poland, the HIGH TATRAS (Vysoké Tatry) are Slovakia's pride and joy and a popular lure for tourists too. The highest peak, pyramid-shaped Gerlach, is the tallest mountain in northern and eastern Central Europe at 2655m high. The beauty and splendour of the mountains made them a magnet for Romantic and Nationalistic types in the eighteenth century, and in 1844 a student in Bratislava composed a song beginning with the words “There is lightning over the Tatras” – today the national anthem. The peaks and their foothills are awash with rare flora and fauna, and if you're lucky you might glimpse a lynx, wild boar, brown bear or Tatra chamois (goat-antelope).

Poprad is an excellent transport hub, directly linked with Bratislava, Prague, Budapest and Kraków; however, there's not much happening to keep you there. From Poprad you can catch a train or bus to the Smokovec resorts (divided into two adjoining halves, Nový (new) and Starý (old), bustling ski resort Tatranská Lomnica, or spindly Ždiar, one endless street of painted wooden cabins. Wherever you stay you'll want to move between the villages; if you're using public transport you'll have to plan ahead a little because the trains and buses are erratically timed.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The main-line train station for the Tatras is Poprad-Tatry in Poprad. From there tiny red electrical trains (TEŽ; hourly; 25min to Starý Smokovec; €1.50) trundle across the mountains, linking Poprad with Smokovec and Tatranská Lomnica.

Destinations (from Poprad) Bratislava (9 daily; 4hr 40min–5hr); Košice (hourly; 1hr 15min–1hr 50min).

By bus Buses also move between the cities listed above, but the train is usually quicker and more convenient. Ždiar isn't on the train line so you'll have to get the bus, which leaves Poprad roughly hourly and takes an hour.

Destinations (from Poprad) Bratislava (4 daily; 6hr); Levoča (hourly; 30min–1hr); Prešov (6 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr).

By plane There is a small airport on the western outskirts of Poprad, Poprad-Tatry (✉ www.airport-poprad.sk), which runs infrequent flights to and from a number of European destinations, including Luton in the UK.

INFORMATION

Tourist office In Poprad: at the western end of námestie sv Egidia in the Dom Kultúry building (Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–noon; June–Aug Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat 9am–1pm, Sun 2–5pm; ☎ 052 436 1192, ✉ poprad.sk). In Starý Smokovec: in the Mountain Rescue Service building (daily 8am–8pm; ☎ 052 442 3440, ✉ tatry.sk). In Tatranská Lomnica: on the main street opposite Penzión Encián (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm; ☎ 052 446 8119, ✉ tatry.sk).

ACTIVITIES

AquaCity Športová 1, Poprad ✉ aquacity.sk. AquaCity has outdoor thermal pools (30–38°C) and a 50m pool, tobogganing, a beauty centre, massage, slides, restaurants, bars and a club. Perfect for a break after a few days' skiing. €15–24 for a 3hr package. Mon 11am–10pm, Tues–Sun 8am–10pm.

Belianska Cave The north slope of Kobyly Hill, near to Tatranská Kotlina (☎ 052 446 7375, ✉ www.ssj.sk). A 70min tour of Belianska Cave, which was discovered by gold prospectors in the 1700s, leads you past subterranean waterfalls, stalagmites and the Music Hall – so-called because of the melodious sound of water drops on the still pool. It's below freezing even in summer, so dress warmly. The nearest bus stop is Tatranská Kotlina. Tour hourly 9am–4pm; times fluctuate, so check beforehand; €8, students €7.

Climbing Inexperienced mountaineers should go with a certified guide, available at the Association of Mountain Guides (Spolok horských vodcov). Their services are expensive, starting at €175/hike (Vila Alicia, Starý Smokovec; ☎ 0905 428 170, ✉ tatraguide.sk).

Bikes, scooters and tubing Tatry Motion rental, Starý Smokovec (☎ 0911 410 945, ✉ vt.sk) and Tatranská Lomnica (☎ 0903 112 200, ✉ info@vt.sk). Scooter €7.50/ride, bike €12/day, tubing (at Hrebienok) €4–5 rides. There's also a bike park (✉ vt.sk) at Hrebienok (accessible by funicular from Starý Smokovec) with easy and difficult routes; bikes €35/day (9am–6pm dependent on weather).

Rafting at Červený Kláštor Pieniny sport centrum, Červený Kláštor 37, Pieniny National Park (☎ 0907 477 412, ✉ rafting-pieniny.sk). It's a little over two hours by bus to the Dunajec River in Pieniny National Park, on the Slovak–Polish border, but worth the trip. You can rent a kayak, canoe or mountain bike or take a rafting trip with a guide. May–Sept only; equipment rental 9am–6pm. Bus Poprad–Červený Kláštor, with a change in Spišská St.Ves (7 daily; 1hr 50min).

Skiing and snowboarding The season is Dec–March. Tatranská Lomnica is an ideal place to ski and snowboard, with heated chairlifts and cable cars, long runs, routes for all abilities, good black runs plus off piste. Bachledova Dolina is a great, affordable option – a day-pass is €25.30, ski rental is €12, and the restaurants on the slopes are cheap too. There's a 2km run, beginners' slopes in the

MOUNTAIN SAFETY

On average, twenty people a year die in the High Tatras – these are serious mountains not to be underestimated. Keep safe by hiking with two or more people and making sure someone knows where you are going. Wear layers, a waterproof and windproof coat, and hiking boots. Always take plenty of water and some food. Buy a whistle – the emergency signal is 6 blasts. Weather conditions change fast, so check the prognosis before you leave; the Mountain Rescue Service in Starý Smokovec will give you a forecast. If you get in trouble, call Mountain Rescue (☎ 18300) right away. Don't think of them as an easy fall-back, though; they charge a large fee for call-outs.

ON YER HIKE

If you're not a hiker, there are plenty of shorter routes to leave the heel unblistered. Ask for maps or recommendations at any of the tourist offices.

Štrbské pleso–Popradské pleso A scenic stroll between two lakes that takes less than two hours. On the way you'll pass the Symbolic Cemetery, a memorial garden to those who died in the Tatras.

Biela voda–Chata pri Zelenom plese Takes a little under three hours, and it ends on a high, with beautiful mountain panoramas around the chalet.

Kriváň peak When you've got your mountain legs, hike up this high, hook-nosed peak (2495m – a hike for summer only), beloved of Slovak Romantic poets. It's one of the highest mountains in the Tatras and the walk takes a full day. You can start from Štrbské pleso and follow the red trail towards Podbanské. Peruse our safety tips (see box, p.971) before starting out.

villages (Strednica and Strachan), and blue, red and black routes at Bachledova. Štrbské Pleso hosts national and international skiing events and it's a beautiful place, but it's pricey and the skiing is pretty similar to Lomnica: see <http://skibachledova.sk/en/skiing>.

Tatrabob Tatranská Lomnica 29 ☎0944 503 069, <http://tatrabob.sk>. Pint-sized mountainside roller coaster plus archery. €3/ride.

ACCOMMODATION

In high season (ski season and high summer) prices often double. All prices listed are for high season. The tourist offices in any of the resorts can help you arrange accommodation.

★ Ginger Monkey Hostel Ždiar 294 ☎052 449 8084, <http://gingermonkey.eu>. Many the eye of a hardened backpacker mists over at the mention of Ginger Monkey, a wooden-cabin hostel on the edge of Ždiar. There are chickens in the garden, books in the kitchen, mountains outside the window and a yellow dog for company. From Poprad, the bus stop is the fourth in Ždiar – keep an eye out for the sign that says “Petrol Station 500m” and alight at the next stop. Egg breakfast included. Dorms €14, doubles €34.

Hotel Café Razy Námestie sv. Egídia 58, Poprad ☎052 776 4101, <http://hotelcaferazy.sk>. New hotel on Poprad's main square offering large and comfortable two-floor rooms. Friendly staff and a decent breakfast (€5). Located above a restaurant so may be a bit noisy. Doubles €44.

Penzion Aqualand Štefánikova 893, Poprad ☎0903 412 482. This penzion, a 10min walk from the bus and train stations, is neat and friendly. Plus, guests get a discount at the nearby waterpark. Doubles €40.

Penzion Mon Ami Nový Smokovec 31 ☎0911 786 518, <http://monami.sk>. Clean, comfortable B&B in a delightful, traditional wood-framed guesthouse on the high street in Smokovec, with views over the mountains. All rooms are en-suite doubles. €54.

Penzion Slalom Tatranská Lomnica 94 ☎052 446 7216, <http://slalom.sk>. Friendly little B&B close to both bus and train stations. Nearly all rooms have a balcony. Breakfast is an extra €7. Doubles €41.

Penzion Ždiar Ždiar 460 ☎052 449 8138, <http://penzionzdiar.sk>. Large, friendly wooden guesthouse with equestrian equipment and painted plates on the walls. Rooms for 1–5 people; en-suite rooms cost €14 per person. Dorms €9.

MOUNTAIN CABINS

For an authentic mountain experience, hike to one of the wooden huts (chata) in the hills. Sleeping is often in dorms, and most huts offer dinner and breakfast.

Bílíkova Chata ☎052 442 2439, <http://bilikovachata.sk>. Hotel-like hut, with wood-panelled dorms, single and double rooms for a cosy lie down after a long hike. Breakfast €5. Dorms €29, doubles €58.

Zbojnica ☎0903 638 000, <http://zbojnickachata.sk>. All oak beams and open fires, with one dorm sleeping 16. Breakfast is €6 extra. Dorm €26.

EATING AND DRINKING

Cukráreň Tatra Starý Smokovec 66. Follow the warm scent of vanilla to this delightful cukráreň (café-bakery), which serves great cakes, ice cream, chocolate and real coffee. Daily 9am–8pm.

Hotel Atrium Bowling Bar Nový Smokovec 42. An amusing evening out in a village low on nightlife. Mon–Thurs 1–11pm, Fri & Sat 9am–1am, Sun 9am–11pm.

Humno Tatranská Lomnica 14640. Swish alpine chalet that's a bar, café, pub, and on Fridays and Saturdays a nightclub (the best in the mountains). There's an open fire, leather sofas, a snow plough coming out the wall (the DJ booth) and a cadillac that once belonged to Madonna. Sun–Thurs 11am–midnight, Fri & Sat 11am–4am.

Rustika Ždiar 334. Wood shack that on the inside looks more like a junk shop than a pizzeria. Specializes in inexpensive pizzas and salads plus there's beer on tap. Pizza €5, monster pizza (50cm) €12. Daily 3–10pm.

Sabato Sobotské nám 6, Poprad 📞 sabato.sk. Medieval-style restaurants combine large slabs of meat and ludicrously dressed waiters, and this is a good example of the genre. Mains €8–21. Daily noon–11pm.

Tatratom Ždiar 288. Traditional pub serving excellent, old-timey meals. The garlic soup is hot and piquant, and the fruit dumplings are a dream. Mains €4–9. Daily 9am–7pm.

U Friga Nový Smokovec 44 📞 pizzeriaufriga.com. Pizza, pasta, salads and halušky in comfy environs. Mains €4.50–6.50. Mon–Sat 5–10pm.

Vila Park Tatranská Lomnica. With a sunny summer terrace overlooking the village green, 3min from the train station, this restaurant serves up decent modern Slovak food. Mains from €6. Daily noon–10pm.

East Slovakia

Slovakia's folksy east (východoslovenský kraj) could be said to have one foot firmly in the past. Protected from the west by the Tatras, traditional dialects and customs thrive, and the land is bleaker and grander than the west. The area stretches northeast up the Poprad Valley to the Polish border, while east along the River Hornád towards Prešov is the Spiš region, for centuries a semi-autonomous province in the Hungarian kingdom.

LEVOČA

What inspired the great Hungarian writer Kálmán Mikszáth to make LEVOČA the star of his 1910 revenge saga The Black Town is a mystery. The medieval town is as neat and respectable as a privet hedge, and if there are any passions seething they're well buried. The town's main attraction is the wonderful religious art at the Church of St James, but it's also a good base for visiting Spiš castle (see box below), and a gateway to beautiful Slovak Paradise National Park.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Levoča is a grid-plan town. The main streets run from Námestie Majstra Pavla (the main square) to the city walls, becoming darker and a touch shabbier as they go. Churches, hotels and museums congregate in the main square, with the cheaper pensions, hostels and pubs scattered near the town walls. From the north side of Námestie Majstra Pavla you can see the graceful white church at Mariánska hora (Mary's Mountain), a Catholic pilgrimage site.

Church of St James

The splendid Church of St James (Chrám sv Jakuba; Tues–Sat 8.30am–4pm) soars above the north side of the main square. It houses a magnificent 5.5m-high wooden altarpiece containing the Last Supper, and a baby-faced Madonna, both the work of sixteenth-century master-carver Pavol of Levoča. The church can only be visited with a guide, and tours (€2) are conducted on the hour. The ticket office is opposite the main entrance. A small and uninspiring museum (daily 9am–5pm; €3.50), dedicated to Master Pavol, stands opposite the church and exhibits replicas of the art in the church.

Town Hall and Lutheran Church

Between St James and the squat, Neoclassical Lutheran church (Evanjelický kostol) is a wrought-iron contraption called the Cage of Shame (klietka hanby), built in a flourish of sixteenth-century misogyny: women caught on the streets after dark were imprisoned here overnight in their

SPIŠ CASTLE

An endless mass of ramshackle bone-white walls, roads and broken towers, Spiš Castle (Spišský hrad; daily: April & Oct 9am–4pm; Nov 10am–3pm; May–Sept 9am–6pm, last entry 5pm; €6, students €4; 📞 spisskyhrad.com) is a monumental twelfth-century fortress built over a much older castle. It's a bleak, dreamlike place, so isolated that the only sounds are birds and crickets. Inside are exhibits giving a clear picture of medieval life (short and dirty), audioguides and a tower to climb. You can catch a bus from Levoča to Spišské Podhradie (2 hourly; 30min) and then it's about an hour's walk to the castle.

petticoats, heads shorn, as an example to other females. Inside the third building on the square, the old Town Hall, you'll find the Spiš Museum (daily 9am–5pm; €3.50; spisskemuzeum.com), which exhibits paintings and icons.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is 1km southeast of Levoča old town. If you're coming from the east, alight one stop earlier at the Košice gate.

Destinations Poprad (hourly; 30min–1hr); Košice (2 direct daily; 2hr, or change in Prešov).

By train Levoča is not on the train line, but you can get a taxi or catch a bus to Spišská Nová Ves (2 hourly; 20min), and from there catch the direct train to Bratislava (8 daily; 4–5hr), which also stops at Poprad.

Tourist office Nám Majstra Pavla 58 (daily 9am–noon & 12.30–5pm; ☎ 053 451 3763, ik.levoeca.eu).

ACCOMMODATION

Autocamp Levoča Levočská Dolina ☎ 053 451 2705, autocamplevoča.sk. Campsite with wooden bungalows and a pension 5km northwest of town: there's bike rental, a café, sauna and whirlpool. Camping/person €3.50 plus per pitch €1.80, bungalows/person €7.50, doubles €38

Barbakan Košická 15 ☎ 053 451 4310, barbakan.sk. The kind of solid, old-fashioned hotel that smells of floor wax and pink soap. Breakfast €5, €46

Oáza Nová 65 ☎ 053 451 4511, oaza.weblib.sk. Well-scrubbed, no-frills accommodation in a family-run boarding house a few minutes' walk from the main square. You can get a private room or share, but it's popular with contract workers. Dorms €10

EATING

Arkáda Nám Majstra Pavla 26 arkada.sk. Vaulted, dramatically uplit stone cellar tavern stashed beneath one of the bigger hotels. Draught beer, local wine and Slovak staples. Mains €5–14. Daily 7am–10pm.

Kupecká bašta Kukučínová 2 kupeckabasta.sk. Housed in a defensive tower in the old town walls, this has a tastefully renovated interior, a roaring fire in winter, and some nice folksy and antique touches. The food is a mixed bag of Slovak staples and imaginative European dishes. Mains €6–12.50. Mon–Thurs 9am–10pm, Fri & Sat 9am–11pm; May–Oct also Sun 9am–10pm.

Peko Spiš Košická ulica. The town's best bakery selling bread and pastries – perfect for self-caterers seeking breakfast. Mon–Fri 6am–6pm, Sat 6am–noon.

Planéta Nám Majstra Pavla 38a planetalevoča.sk. Every sleepy provincial town needs a Planéta; a café at 4pm, a restaurant at 7pm and a bar at 10pm. The menu is simple (pizza, salads, pasta) but fresh. Lunch menu €4.50, dinner menu €5. Mon–Fri 8am–11pm, Sat & Sun 9am–10pm.

Restaurácia Slovenka Nám Majstra Pavla 62 restauraciaslovenka.sk. Quite traditional restaurant serving cheap and filling Slovak fare on oddly shaped wooden platters. The service here is good. Mains €4.50–11. Daily 10am–10pm.

Restaurácia U Leva Nám Majstra Pavla 24 uleva.sk. The nicest mid-range restaurant in Levoča, combining Mediterranean (carpaccio, insalata caprese) and Slavic dishes (duck breast with cherry sauce, chicken liver with wild mushrooms), and doing both well. Mains €4.20–11.90. Daily 10am–10pm.

KOŠICE

KOŠICE was once a vital commercial crossroads for the Hungarian Empire, and today its pleasing centre forms a kilometre-long promenade, lined with historical buildings, churches, cafés and restaurants. Warm days see residents emerging in packs to enjoy the sun and listen to the musical fountain located in the park next to the State Theatre. A lively university town, Košice was European Capital of Culture in 2013, and makes for a pleasant stop-off for a couple of days.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Košice's action is pretty much centred on its main street, Hlavná, which is lined with parks interspersed with some historical sites. Wandering the side streets provides some interesting sightseeing; this is also where you'll find various places to stay.

St Elizabeth's Cathedral

The symbol of the city's patron, St Elizabeth's Cathedral (Dóm svätej Alžbety; Mon 1–5pm, Tues–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–1pm; cathedral only €1.50, cathedral, tower and St Michael's Chapel €5) is Slovakia's largest place of worship. It houses an intriguing rare Gothic double spiral staircase, and a sundial dating from 1477. The cast-iron altar, reportedly the only one in Europe, is said to have been crafted from weapons used in World War I. For a view of the town and out to the hills, climb the 60m-high northern tower.

WARHOL'S ROOTS

Pop artist Andy Warhol has Slovak roots; his parents emigrated to the US in the early 1900s. Born Andrej Varhola Jr, the artist has been commemorated in the town of Medzilaborce (120km north of Košice) with the Andy Warhol Museum of Modern Art, which displays his works of art and artefacts from his childhood and life. There are a couple of direct buses a day from Košice, but to reach the town by train you have to change in Humenné. Otherwise, arrange a tour at Košice's tourist office, which includes a visit to Warhol's parents' village.

St Michael's Chapel

The small, charming St Michael's Chapel (Kaplanka Sv. Michala; Mon–Fri 9.15am–6pm, Sat 9.15am–noon; €1.50) sits next to St Elizabeth's and was originally surrounded by the city's cemetery, which has now been turned into an attractive park.

Lower Gate

Reconstruction of Hlavná street in the mid-1990s uncovered the original gateway to the city and parts of the original fortifications. Lower Gate (Dolná brána; mid-May to mid-Sept Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €0.90) has been turned into an underground museum of sorts in which you can see these ancient constructions.

Vojtech Löffler Museum

Famed local sculptor Vojtech Löffler donated a significant body of work to the city, leading Košice to open the Vojtech Löffler Museum, Alžbetina 20 (Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 1–5pm; €2 lofflermuzeum.sk), dedicated to him and his work. In addition to his sculptures and painted portraits of local personalities, the museum also hosts temporary exhibitions by contemporary artists.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane Košice's airport (www.airportkosice.sk) is 6km south of the city and offers regular flights to Bratislava, Prague and Vienna.

By train The train station is a 10min walk from the city centre; head through the park and down Mlynská. There's a left luggage desk in the train station.

Destinations Bratislava (approx hourly; 6hr); Budapest (1 daily; 3hr 30min); Poprad (hourly; 1hr 15min–1hr 50min); Prague (1 night train, 10hr; 2 daily, 7hr 30min–8hr 30min).

By bus The bus station is next to the train station. Check eurobus.sk for international connections.

Destinations Budapest (1 daily; 3hr 30min); Levoča (2 direct daily; 2hr, or change in Prešov); Prešov (hourly; 35–55min).

Tourist office Hlavná 59, in the Old Town Hall (Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎055 625 8888, visitkosice.eu).

ACCOMMODATION

Košice Hostel Jesenského 20 ☎0907 933 462, kosicehostel.sk. In a handy location near the train station, this bare-bones place offers very basic but spotlessly clean dorm rooms, doubles and triples with cheap, colourful furniture and minuscule TVs. ## EATING AND DRINKING

Aida Hlavná 44. Confectionery overload in this most famous of Košice's sweet shops, where you can bag a slice of fresh cake for under a euro. Summer sees a massive queue for the ice cream. Daily 8am–9pm.

FESTIVALS AND EVENTS

Some of the city's festival highlights include Košice City Day (the first week in May), followed by the City Festival at the end of the month, both offering a variety of medieval entertainment including crafts, historic parades, battling knights and other such merriment. There's a birthday party for Andy Warhol at the beginning of August (see box above) and the Košice Wine Festival in mid-September. Europe's oldest marathon, the Košice Peace Marathon, is run on the first Sunday in October.

Bageteria Hlavná 102. Chain sandwich shop selling fresh and affordable sandwiches (from around €20, with fillings ranging from ham and cheese to Indian and Balkan. Mon–Thurs 7am–9pm, Fri 7am–11pm, Sat & Sun 9am–11pm.

Diesel Pub Hlavná 92 📞 irishpubkosice.com. The ubiquitous Irish pub; Košice's is large, with a great back garden, and offers regular disco nights. Decent food with Guinness, Kilkenny and Cashel's Cider on draught. Mon–Wed 11am–midnight, Thurs & Fri 11am–2.30am, Sat 4pm–2.30am, Sun 4–11pm.

Med Malina Hlavná 81 📞 www.medmalina.sk. For a taste of Central European slow food, eaten in a room reminiscent of Granny's, head to Med Malina on the main square. Try the traditional Polish soup, žurek, or splurge on roast duck with potato pancakes. Mains €4–14. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm, Sun 11am–10pm.

Pivovar Golem Dominikánske námestie 15 📞 pivovargolem.sk. The only place in Košice still brewing beer – and it's light to say the least. However, they make up for it with generous portions of heavy Slovak pub food served up in two large rooms, one with more of a dining feel, the other all pub with views to the brewing vats. Mains €4.60–7.50. Daily 10am–10pm.

Introduction

Stable, prosperous and welcoming, Slovenia is a charming and comfortable place to travel, with architecturally grand, cultured cities, and lush pine-forested countryside, perfect for hiking and biking in summer and skiing in winter. The country managed to avoid much of the strife that plagued other nations during the messy disintegration of the Yugoslav Republic, and has integrated quickly with Western Europe, joining the eurozone at the start of 2007. Administered by German-speaking Habsburg overlords until 1918, Slovenes absorbed the culture of their rulers while managing to retain a strong sense of ethnic identity through their Slavic language.

Slovenia's sophisticated capital, Ljubljana, is a delight, pleasantly compact and cluttered with fabulous Baroque and Habsburg buildings. A short ride away, the Julian Alps provide stunning mountain scenery, most accessible at the majestic twin lakes of Bled and Bohinj, while the Soča Valley, skirting the country's western border, is even more memorable. Further south are spectacular caves, notably at Postojna and Škocjan, while the short stretch of Slovenian coast is punctuated by two starkly different towns: historic Piran and party-oriented Portorož. In the eastern wine-making regions, Ptuj is Slovenia's oldest and best-preserved town, while the country's second city, Maribor, is a worthwhile stopover point on the way to Austria.

CHRONOLOGY

181 BC The Romans conquer the area of present-day Slovenia.

550 AD Slavs begin to inhabit the area.

600s The first Slovenian state, the Duchy of Carantania, is established.

745 The Frankish Empire takes over Carantania, and converts the Slavs to Christianity.

1267 Coastal Istria officially becomes the territory of the Venetian Republic. It remains under Venetian rule until 1797.

1335 The Habsburgs take control of Slovenian regions through marriage.

1550 The first book is published in the Slovenian language.

1867 Slovenia is brought under the direct control of Austria.

Late 1800s Growth of Slovenian nationalism.

1918 Following the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire after World War I, Slovenia is incorporated into the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.

1929 The Kingdom is renamed Yugoslavia.

1945 After being occupied by the Germans during World War II, a liberation force led by Slovenian General Tito incorporates Slovenia into the Republic of Socialist Yugoslavia.

1950s The industrialization of Slovenia leads to rapid economic development.

1980 General Tito dies; disintegration of Yugoslavia begins.

1990 Slovenians vote for independence in a referendum.

1991 Slovenia declares its independence from Socialist Yugoslavia, leading to a ten-day war with the Yugoslav army. The Slovenians win.

2003 The oldest wooden wheel in the world, thought to be 5000 years old, is discovered in Slovenia.

2004 Slovenia joins NATO as well as the EU.

2007 Slovenia is the first former Communist state to adopt the European single currency.

2012 Maribor is the European Capital of Culture.

2016 Ljubljana is the European Green Capital.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Flight operators from the UK include easyJet (✉easyjet.com), flying from London Stansted; Wizz Air (✉wizzair.com), flying from Luton; and the Slovenian national carrier, Adria (✉adria.si), flying from London Gatwick. By train, there are services from Ljubljana to Belgrade, Budapest, Vienna and Zagreb, though there are currently no direct services to Italy. By bus, you can travel from Ljubljana to Belgrade, Budapest, Sarajevo and Zagreb. Access to the Slovene coast is also straightforward: buses arrive daily from Trieste (Italy) and Pula (Croatia), and between May and September you can travel by catamaran between Venice and Piran.

GETTING AROUND

Slovene Railways (Slovenske železnice; slo-zeleznice.si) is smooth and efficient. Trains (*vlak*i) are divided into slow (LP), and Intercity (IC) express trains, as well as the fast Inter City Slovenia trains (ICS) between Ljubljana and Maribor, some of which continue to Koper in the summer. Seat reservations (rezervacije; €3.60) are obligatory for all services marked on a timetable with a boxed R (effectively, all ICS trains and some international services). Most timetables have English notes; “departures” is odhodi, “arrivals” is prihodi. Eurail and InterRail passes are valid.

The bus network consists of an array of local companies offering a comprehensive and reliable service, with buses reaching a far wider range of destinations than trains, though services are significantly reduced on Sundays. Towns such as Ljubljana, Maribor and Koper have big bus stations, where you can buy your tickets in advance – elsewhere, simply pay the driver or conductor. You’ll be charged extra for cumbersome items of baggage.

Slovenia is a superb destination for cycling, with quiet roads, fabulous

CAR RENTAL

Slovenia’s quiet roads and inspiring scenery make the country a driver’s dream. If you can stretch your budget to a few days of car rental, you will afford yourself unlimited access to rural and mountainous regions such as the Soča Valley, which can prove challenging to reach using public transport. There are branches of most major car rental companies at Ljubljana airport; typical costs are €35 per day, €120 per week.

scenery and a well-established network of adventurous Alpine trails for mountain bikers. The lakes, the Soča Valley and the eastern wine roads are all pleasant places to explore on two wheels, and many hotels and hostels rent bikes for free or a small charge. The website mtb.si is a useful resource for mountain bikers.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation is universally clean and good quality. Slovenia has a decent spread of hostels, many of which are highly original in their conception. In addition, you'll find basic student dorms (dijaški dom) that significantly boost capacity during the summer. Hostels are not especially cheap; expect to pay about €18–22 per person per night in high season; student dorms are around €10.

Campsites are numerous and generally have very good facilities, often including sporting equipment, restaurants and shops; two people travelling with a tent can expect to pay €20–30, and the majority of campsites are open from April or May to September. Camping rough without permission is punishable by a fine.

In the capital, double rooms at a two-star hotel start around €60. Family-run pensions and tourist farms in rural areas, especially the mountains, offer many of the same facilities as hotels but usually at a lower price. Private rooms (zasebne sobe) are available throughout Slovenia, with bookings often made by the local tourist office or travel agents like Kompas. Rooms are pretty good value at about €35–50 for a double, although stays of three nights or less are usually subject to a surcharge in peak season. Self-catering apartments (apartmaji) are also plentiful in the mountains and on the coast.

FOOD AND DRINK

Slovene cuisine draws on Austrian, Italian and Balkan influences. There's a native tradition, too, based on age-old peasant recipes, which you may encounter at tourist farms across the country, but traditional Slovene dishes are becoming harder to find on restaurant menus increasingly dominated by Italian pizzas and pasta. For breakfast and snacks, okrepčevalnice (snack bars) and street kiosks dole out burek, a flaky pastry filled with cheese (sirov burek) or meat (burek z mesom). Sausages come in various forms, most commonly kranjska klobasa (big spicy sausages). Menus in a restaurant (restavracija) or inn (gostilna) will usually include roast meats (pečenka) and schnitzels (zrezek). Goulash (golaž) is also common. Two traditional dishes are žlikrofi, ravioli filled with potato, onion and bacon; and žganci, once the staple diet of rural Slovenes, a buckwheat or maize porridge often served with sauerkraut. Few local dishes are suitable for vegetarians, though international restaurants usually offer a choice of dishes without meat. On the coast you'll find plenty of fresh fish (riba), mussels (žkoljke) and squid (kalamari). Typical desserts include strudel filled with apple or rhubarb; štruklji, dumplings with fruit filling; and prekmurska gibanica, a delicious local cheesecake.

DRINK

Daytime drinking takes place in small café-bars, or in a kavarna, where a range of cakes, pastries and ice cream is usually on offer. Coffee (kava) is generally served with milk (kava z mlekom), or strong and black, as is tea (čaj), unless specified otherwise. Slovene beer (pivo) is refreshingly crisp and is dominated by two brands: Laško, from the town of the same name, and Union, from Ljubljana, though, more excitingly, there is an increasing number of craft breweries on the scene; two to look out for are Humanfish and Pelicon. Most breweries also produce temno pivo ("dark beer"), a Guinness-like stout. Although still somewhat under the radar, Slovenian wine (vino) is superb; črno is red, belo is white. Even if you can't make it to any of the country's beautiful wine-growing regions, you'll find them in several of Ljubljana's excellent wine bars, while any restaurant worth its salt will have a decent selection. Favourite aperitifs include slivovka (plum brandy), the fiery sadjevec, a brandy made from various fruits, and the gin-like brinovec.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Slovenes are welcoming people who speak a very high level of English and are only too willing to help tourists. The predominant religion is Catholicism, and respectful attire (no sleeveless tops or above-the-knee skirts) should be worn inside churches and around religious sites. Although tipping is not obligatory, it is polite to round the bill up to a convenient figure in restaurants and when taking a taxi. Smoking is banned in all indoor public spaces, including cafés, bars and restaurants.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

There are few more active nations in Europe than Slovenia – the national sport is skiing, with several prestigious competitions held throughout the country each year. The most popular spectator sports are basketball, handball and football.

The country's dramatic and varied landscape – particularly in the Julian Alps (see p.993) – provides superb opportunities for a host of outdoor pursuits, most obviously hiking, climbing and cycling in summer, and skiing in winter. Moreover, the country's mountains, forests, lakes and rivers provide ample opportunity for adventure-seekers, with rafting, canyoning and paragliding among the most popular activities. Local tourist offices have comprehensive relevant information.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police ☎ 113; Ambulance & Fire ☎ 112.

COMMUNICATIONS

Wi-fi is widely available, offered free in most hostels and hotels and in many public spaces; most tourist information offices will have a PC for use. Most post offices (pošta) are open Monday to Friday 8am to 6/7pm and Saturday 8am to noon. Stamps (znamke) can also be bought at newsstands.

Public phones use cards (telekartice; €4.25 or €14.85), available from post offices, kiosks and tobacconists. Make long-distance and international calls at a post office, where you're assigned to a cabin. Better still, buy a SIM card from one of the main Slovenian mobile operators, which are Telekom Slovenije, Si.mobil and Telemach; these typically cost around €6, and include some starting credit.

EMERGENCIES

The police (policija) are generally easy-going and likely to speak a decent level of English. Pharmacies (lekarna) are typically open Monday to Friday from 7am to 7/8pm, Saturday 7am to 1pm, and a rota system covers night-time opening; details are in the window of each pharmacy.

INFORMATION

Just about every town and resort has a well-stocked and helpful tourist information office, which can usually arrange accommodation too. Most offices stock an excellent range of maps,

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Even if you already have the European Youth Card (see p.44), consider purchasing the affiliated SŽ-EURO<26 (€18; from most train stations) to get an additional 30 percent off train fares within Slovenia, and 25 percent off international rail travel.

including a variety of hiking and cycling maps. Look out, too, for the superb (and free) In Your Pocket guides, which are also available online (inyourpocket.com/slovenia).

MONEY AND BANKS

Slovenia's currency is the euro (€). Banks (banka) generally open Monday to Friday 9am to noon and 1 to 5pm, Saturday 8.30am to 11am/noon. You can also change money in tourist offices, post offices, travel agencies and exchange bureaux (menjalnica). Credit cards are accepted in most hotels, restaurants and shops, while ATMs are widespread.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Most shops open Monday to Friday 8am to 7pm and Saturday 8am to 1pm, with a few also open on Sunday mornings. Museum times vary, but many close on Mondays. All shops and banks are closed on the following public holidays: January 1 and 2, February 8, Easter Monday, April 27, May 1 and 2, June 25, August 15, October 31, November 1, December 25 and 26.

Ljubljana

Prosperous and elegant, the Slovene capital LJUBLJANA gracefully fans out from its castle-topped hill, the old centre marooned in the shapeless modernity that stretches out across the plain. The city's museums, galleries and architecture are only part of the picture; above all, Ljubljana is a place to meet people and enjoy the nightlife.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

An eminently walkable city, most of Ljubljana's sights are located in or around the gorgeous Old Town, spread directly below the castle on the right bank of the River Ljubljanica, and the nineteenth-century quarter situated to the west, where the principal museums and galleries are. Beyond here, Tivoli Park is the city's engaging green heart.

The Old Town

The hub around which everything in the Old Town revolves is Prešernov trg, so named after Slovenia's national poet, France Preseren (1800–49), whose statue graces the centre of this bustling square. Close by, the seventeenth-century Baroque Church of the Annunciation (daily 10am–6pm) blushes a sandy red; it's worth a look inside for Francesco Robba's marble high altar, richly adorned with spiral columns and plastic figurines. Robba, an Italian architect and sculptor, was brought in to remodel the city in its eighteenth-century heyday. His best piece, a beautifully sculpted fountain that symbolizes the meeting of the rivers Sava, Krka and Ljubljanica, lies across the river, in front of the town hall on Mestni trg – this, though, is a copy; the original sits in the National Gallery (see p.984). To get there, cross the elegant Tromostovje (Triple Bridge), the city's most iconic sight and one of many innovative creations by celebrated Ljubljana-born architect Jože Plečnik (1872–1957); the city is run through with his classically inspired designs, most of which were incorporated between the two world wars.

St Nicholas' Cathedral and the market

A little east of Mestni trg, on Ciril-Metodov trg, St Nicholas' Cathedral (daily 6am–noon & 3–6pm) is the most sumptuous and overblown of Ljubljana's Baroque statements. Completed in 1706 and decorated with fabulous frescoes painted by Quaglio, this is the best preserved of the city's ecclesiastical buildings. Along the riverside, you can't miss Plečnik's bustling colonnaded market (closed Sun), while just beyond is the striking Art Nouveau Dragon Bridge, each corner plinth guarded by a copper dragon – the city's symbol.

The castle

Opposite the market, Študentovska ulica winds up the thickly wooded hillside to the castle (daily: June–Sept 9am–11pm; April, May & Oct 9am–9pm; Nov–March 10am–8pm), which is also reachable via the funicular railway (€4 return). Originally constructed in the twelfth century, its present appearance dates from the sixteenth century, following an earthquake in 1511. The castle grounds comprise four principal attractions (daily: June–Sept 9am–9pm; April, May & Oct 9am–8pm; Nov–March 10am–6pm; €7.50, €10 including funicular): the Virtual Castle, an enlightening twelve-minute projection chronicling the city's development; the exhibition of Slovenian History, with particularly fascinating coverage of the Ten-Day War; the wonderfully engaging Museum of Puppetry, which documents one of Slovenia's most-cherished art forms; and lastly, the clock tower, which affords superlative views of the Old Town below and the magnificent Kamniške Alps to the north.

Metelkova

The alternative face of Ljubljana, Metelkova, situated a five-minute walk east of both the bus and train stations, is one of the city's most colourful quarters. The former barracks complex of the Yugoslav People's Army, its graffitied streets now accommodate a cosmopolitan array of independent societies, underground clubs, bars and galleries (see p.987), alongside a couple of more mainstream cultural attractions. Foremost among these is the marvellous Ethnographic Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €4.50; www.etno-muzej.si), housing a voluminous collection of anthropological artefacts from all over the world; close by at Maistrova 3, the Museum of Contemporary Art (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €5; mg-lj.si) exhibits modern art from the 1960s onwards.

Kongresni trg and around

Framed by some architectural gems, such as the early eighteenth-century Ursuline Church, the butter-milk-coloured Slovene Philharmonic Hall and the neo-Renaissance University building – not to mention a stack of cafés and bars – the grassy expanse of Kongresni trg is one of the city's most atmospheric spots. Heading south from Kongresni trg, you can't miss the chequered pink, green and grey brickwork of the National and University Library, arguably Plečnik's greatest work. Just behind here, the fine City Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €4; www.mgml.si) is devoted to the lives and times of the city's inhabitants (ljubljančani), though do keep an eye out for the usually excellent temporary exhibitions held here. Virtually next door is the seventeenth-century monastery complex of Križanke, originally the seat of a thirteenth-century order of Teutonic Knights, now an atmospheric concert venue. In the centre of Trg Francoske revolucije, opposite, the Illyrian Monument was erected in 1929 in belated recognition of Napoleon's short-lived attempt to create a fiefdom of the same name centred on Ljubljana.

Museums west of Slovenska

The town's leafy cultural quarter boasts several impressive museums and galleries. The best of these is the National Gallery at Prešernova 24 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm, Thurs until 8pm; €7; ng-slo.si), which is rich in local medieval Gothic work, although most visitors gravitate towards the halls devoted to the Slovene Impressionists, and in particular the outstanding paintings by Ivan Grohar and Rihard Jakopič. Diagonally across from here the Museum of Modern Art at Tomšičeva 14 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €5; mg-lj.si) effectively takes over from where the National Gallery stops, showcasing more experimental work from the mid-twentieth century onwards. Lastly, the National Museum (daily 10am–6pm, Thurs till 8pm; €4; nms.si), at Prešernova 20, has an outstanding collection of archaeological finds from all over the Slovene territory, though the most intriguing are those retrieved from the Ljubljanica River; the building also houses the Natural History Museum (same hours and ticket), whose star exhibit is the only complete mammoth skeleton found in Europe.

Tivoli Park

Beyond the galleries lies elegant Tivoli Park, an expanse of lawns and tree-lined walkways leading to dense woodland. It's a lovely retreat from the busy city centre. A Baroque villa at the edge of the park contains the National Museum of Contemporary History (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; €3.50; www.muzej-nz.si), with interactive displays and carefully presented artefacts creating an evocative journey through Slovenia's conflict-riddled twentieth-century history, including some fascinating objects from the Ten-Day War in 1991, including the tail of a Yugoslav National Army Gazelle helicopter shot down on nearby Rožnik Hill.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Ljubljana's Jože Pučnik airport (lj-airport.si) is in Brnik, 25km north of the city, and connected by bus (Mon–Fri hourly, Sat & Sun every 2hr; 50min; €4.10), or the quicker shuttle bus (€9). Taxis should cost around €35–40.

By train The train station (železniška postaja) is on Trg Osvobodilne fronte, a 10min walk north of the centre.

Destinations Divača (hourly; 1hr 30min); Koper (3 daily; 2hr 30min); Maribor (hourly; 1hr 45min–2hr 30min); Postojna (hourly; 1hr); Ptuj (2 daily; 2hr 30min).

By bus The station (avtobusna postaja) is beside the train station.

Destinations Bled (hourly; 1hr 20min); Bohinj (hourly; 2hr); Bovec (4 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr 15min); Divača (7 daily; 1hr 30min); Kobarid (3 daily; 3–5hr); Koper (10 daily; 2hr); Maribor (4 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr); Piran (6 daily; 2hr 45min); Portorož (5 daily; 2hr 30min); Postojna (hourly; 1hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information The Slovenian Tourist Information Centre (STIC) is at Krekov trg 10 (June–Sept daily 8am–9pm; Oct–May Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm; ☎ 01 306 4576), with the main Ljubljana Tourist Information Office (TIO) next to the Triple Bridge on Stritarjeva ulica (daily: June–Sept 8am–9pm; Oct–May 8am–7pm; ☎ 01 306 1215, visitljubljana.com); there's another branch in the arrivals hall at the airport (daily 10am–10pm). You can pick up Ljubljana in Your Pocket at all of these.

Tourist card The Ljubljana Tourist Card, Urbana (€25/one day; €30/two days; €35/three days), is available from all the tourist offices and covers travel on Ljubljana's buses, free bike rental, one guided tour and entrance to most museums and galleries; there's a ten percent discount if you buy online.

Walking tours The Ljubljana Tourist Information Office organizes a range of pleasant 2hr walking tours (April–Sept; €10) of the Old Town, as well as special interest tours. CurioCity (curiocity.si) offer more offbeat walking tours (from €25), including Express Your Selfie and Lazy Sundays.

Boat tours Barka Ljubljana (barka-ljubljana.si) offer 45min river cruises, which depart from Novi trg on the hour (11am–9pm; €8).

GETTING AROUND

City transport Ljubljana's buses are cheap and frequent; there are no cash fares on buses, so you must buy an Urbana public transport card (€2), available at tourist information offices, news kiosks and post offices, and top it up with credit for your journeys, which cost €1.20.

Bikes Bikes can be rented from various central docking stations including the Central Market and Tivoli Park through Ljubljana's "Bicike" scheme (register at bicikelj.si; free up to 1hr, €1/2hr, €2/3hr). The Slovenian Tourist Information Centre also rent bikes (€2/2hr, €8/day).

ACCOMMODATION

Ljubljana has a terrific stock of hostels, in addition to student dorms (dijaški dom), which generally become available in late June/early July. Decently priced budget hotels are few and far between.

HOSTELS

AdHoc Hostel Cankarjevo Nabrežje 27 ☎ 051 268 288, adhoc-hostel.com. Super location in the heart of the Old Town for this sprawling, yet surprisingly quiet, hostel, with graffiti'd walls and large communal spaces. No breakfast, but there are kitchens for use. Dorms €20, doubles €54

Celica Youth Hostel Metelkova 8 ☎ 01 230 9700, hostelcelica.com. Brilliantly original hostel in a former military prison at the centre of artistic Metelkova, with bright dorms and two/three-bed "cells," each designed by a different architect or artist. Breakfast included. Expect concerts, exhibitions and parties here too. Dorms €22, doubles €60

Dijaški Dom Tabor Vidovdanska 7, entrance at Kotnikova 4 ☎ 01 234 8840, hostel.ddt.si. Busy, central student hostel, with decent, very cheap beds on offer in July and August only. Breakfast included. Dorms €11, doubles €38

Hostel Tivoli Lepodvorska 2 ☎ 059 160 974, hosteltivoli.com. Sweet little place a short walk from the stations, with just two dorms, each with three-high bunks, and a double; all with shared shower facilities. Breakfast included. Dorms €21, double €60

★ Hostel Tresor Copova ulica 38 ☎ 01 200 9060, hostel-tresor.si. This former bank building has been utilized to great effect: the spacious dorms are wonderfully bright and the old vaults now function as the breakfast room and games/chill-out area. Superb atrium too. Breakfast €3. Dorms €12, doubles €36

Villa Veselova Veselova 14 ☎ 059 926 721, vilaveselovahostel.com. Charming hostel in a historic villa bordering peaceful Tivoli Park, with large, colour-themed dorms and one en-suite private room. Breakfast included. Dorms €22, double €60

CAMPING

Ljubljana Resort Dunajska 270 ☎ 01 589 0130, ljubljanaresort.si. Superbly equipped site 4km north of the centre in Ježica; also has chalets sleeping four, a water park, restaurant, bar and shop. Bus #6 or #8 from Slovenska cesta. Per person €13.70

EATING

The streets of Ljubljana's Old Town are packed with restaurants to suit all budgets, and during the warmer months it's lovely to dine al fresco on the banks of the Ljubljana. For snacks, head to the many kiosks and stands near the stations selling burek, pljeskavica and the local gorenjska sausages. There's a lively food market on Vodnikov trg (closed Sun) where you can pick up tasty seasonal produce, while the nearby Market Colonnade is packed with little food shops selling breads, cheeses, sandwiches and the like. Every Friday on neighbouring Pogačarjev trg, the open-air kitchen is great for street food at bargain prices.

CAFÉS

Cacao Petkovškovo Nabrežje 3. This stylish riverside café-bar serves the city's best ice cream; take your pick from delicious flavours like pistachio, melon and forest strawberry (€1.50 per scoop), or just kick back with a refreshing fruit juice or coffee. Daily 8am–midnight.

Le Petit Café Trg Francoske revolucije 4. This cosy, long-standing Parisian-style café, in a lovely spot by Križanke, is perfect for a big mug of bela kava (white coffee) during the day or a glass of wine later on. Daily 7.30am–1am.

Paninoteka Jurčičev trg 3. Cracking riverside setting by the Shoemaker's Bridge for this cool sandwich bar serving a range of piping-hot panini, ciabattas and wraps. Takeaway too. Daily 9am–11pm.

★ Ziferblat Vegova 8. The concept is quite simple: the longer you stay, the more you pay (€0.50/min, €3/hr); and for that, all your drinks (sadly, none of the alcoholic variety) are free, as is use of the considerable space/facilities, including a hammock. Daily 9am–10pm.

RESTAURANTS

Ajdovo Zrno Trubarjeva 7. Excellent veggie canteen in a pleasant courtyard, with a self-service salad bar, soups, sandwiches and tortillas (€3–4), plus daily specials like cannelloni and risotto. Mon–Fri 8am–5pm.

Cantina Mexicana Knaflijev prehod. On a lively alleyway between Slovenska cesta and Wolfova ulica, this brash, colourfully painted restaurant serves decent Mexican fajitas and tortillas (€8–12), as well as cocktails. Mon, Tues & Sun 10am–1am, Wed & Thurs until 2am, Fri & Sat until 3am.

Druga Violina Stari trg 21. Occupying an enviable Old Town spot, this delightful restaurant – part of a project to help people with disabilities assimilate into mainstream society – specializes in simple Slovenian classics like jota and struklji (€5). Daily 8am–midnight.

Foculus Gregorčičeva 3. Strong contender for the city's best pizzeria, this wonderfully decorated place offers an enormous menu of pizzas (including dessert pizzas) and salads, from around €6. Daily 11am–midnight.

Klobasarna Ciril-Metodov trg 15. There's one item on the menu: sausage. But what a sausage it is; the mighty kranjska klobasa comes sliced and is served with a roll and huge dollops of mustard and horseradish (€5.90). Mon–Sat 10am–11pm, Sun 10am–3pm.

Marley & Me Stari trg 9. An enticing possibility in this busy little Old Town street, with well-prepared Mediterranean classics such as tagliatelle with shrimp (€11). Daily 11am–11pm.

Pop's Place Cankarjevo Nabrežje 3. You'll do well to grab a table in this tiny restaurant, but it's well worth the wait for the juiciest burgers and ribs this side of the Atlantic, possibly (€8–10); there's a terrific selection of craft beers to boot. Daily noon–1am.

★ Sarajevo '84 Nazorjeva ulica 12. Decked out with sporting paraphernalia in homage to Sarajevo's staging of the winter Olympics, this fun Bosnian restaurant serves, among other things, the classic Balkan grilled meats, čevapčiči and pljeskavica (€7). Mon–Wed 11am–midnight, Thurs & Fri 11am–1am, Sat noon–2am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Despite its diminutive size, Ljubljana has an impressively varied and energetic choice of bars and clubs, and a leisurely stroll along the banks of the Ljubljanica will yield a locale every 20m or so. Similarly, you'll find plenty of places along Mestni trg and Stari trg, and around Kongresni trg. The city has always maintained a strong independent spirit, manifest in numerous progressive venues offering a wide programme of alternative events. Ljubljana In Your Pocket is your best bet for the most up-to-date listings.

BARs

★ Dvorni Bar Dvorni trg 2. If you don't get to Slovenia's beautiful wine-growing regions, fear not; this classy bar has offerings from all over the country, be it the straw-coloured Rebula from Goriška Brda or the ruby-red Teran from the Karst (€3–4/glass). Mon–Sat 8am–1am, Sun 9am–1am.

Klub Daktari Krekov trg 7. The decor really makes this convivial place special, with restored antique furniture, corner piano and shelves packed with books. Live music, cabaret and jam sessions. Mon–Sat 8am–1am, Sun 9am–midnight.

Maček Krojaška 5. This lively, bohemian café-bar is arguably the most popular of the riverside watering holes, its large terrace perfect for people-watching with a glass of wine. Mon–Sat 9am–12.30am, Sun 9am–11pm.

Tozd Galusovo Nabrežje 27. Located down by the quieter, southern stretch of the river, this is a great spot to cool off with a beer at sundown; the hip brick and enamel interior is plastered with all manner of random objects. Daily 8.30am–midnight.

Union Pivnica Celovška 22. Prepare for a rollicking good time at this cavernous, industrial-styled bar inside the brewery of the same name, selling a delicious range of draught and bottled beers alongside juicy beer sausages to soak it all up. Mon–Sat 11am–1am.

Žmauc Rimska 21. The graffiti-daubed exterior of this happy, hippy dive gives some indication of what to expect; the small buzzy terrace is packed throughout the day. Mon–Fri 7.30am–1am, Sat 10am–1am, Sun 6pm–1am.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC

Jazz Club Gajo Beethovnova 8 📞 jazzclubgajo.com. Suitably atmospheric venue for the genre, with quality live offerings and jam sessions every Mon at 9pm.

Klub K4 Kersnikova 📞 klubk4.org. Legendary stalwart of Ljubljana's alternative scene with a terrific rota of music: mainly electronic, but also rock, jazz and folk, plus regular gay and lesbian nights.

LJUBLJANA FESTIVALS

There's a wonderful roster of annual festivals in the capital.

Druga Godba 📍 drugagodba.si. Brilliant three-day annual world music festival at the end of May featuring concerts at atmospheric venues throughout the city.

International Summer Festival

📍 ljubjanafestival.si. Long-running programme of internationally renowned orchestral artists, with concerts at various venues between July and mid-Sept.

Ljubljana Jazz Festival 📍 ljubljanajazz.si.

Ljubljana's four-day jazz festival at the beginning of July is up there with the best in Europe; better still, most concerts take place at the wonderful Križanke open-air theatre.

KUD Prešeren Karunova 14 📍 www.kud.si. Superb gig venue and cultural centre in Trnovo that also hosts regular literary events, workshops and art exhibitions. Also stages the excellent Trnfest festival in Aug.

Orto Bar Grablovičeva 1 📍 orto-bar.com. Energetic club east of the train station; also one of the city's principal rock venues, with typically one or two gigs a week.

Pritličje Mestni trg 5 📍 pritlicje.si. Vibrant cultural centre (and comic store) that also functions as a café/bar and live music venue; expect all kinds of fun happenings on a daily basis.

ENTERTAINMENT AND EVENTS

Ljubljana has a busy calendar of dance, music and theatre at its purpose-built venues.

Cankarjev Dom Prešernova 10 📍 01 241 7100, 📞 cd-cc.si. The city's cultural headquarters, hosting major orchestral and theatrical events, art exhibitions, and folk and jazz concerts.

National Opera and Ballet Theatre Župančičeva 1 📍 01 241 1740, 📞 opera.si. An impressive nineteenth-century Neoclassical theatre staging ballet and opera.

SHOPPING

Citypark Šmartinska 152 📍 citypark.si. Slovenia's largest shopping centre, out on the northeastern fringes of the capital, with more than a hundred stores. Buses #2, #7, #12 and #27. Mon–Fri 9am–9pm, Sat 8am–9pm. Sun 9am–3pm.

Flea market Wonderful antiques market along the right bank of the Ljubljanica where, among other things, you can pick up Tito-era memorabilia. Sun 8am–2pm.

Iglu Sport Petkovškova 31 📍 iglusport.si. Stocks camping and outdoor gear; useful for trips to the lakes or mountains. Mon–Fri 9am–2pm & 3–7pm, Sat 9am–1pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies and consulates Australia, Železna cesta 14 📍 01 234 8675; Canada, Linhartova cesta 49A 📍 01 252 4444; Ireland, Palaca Kapitelj, Poljanski nasip 6 📍 01 300 8970; UK, Trg Republike 3 📍 01 200 3910; US, Prešernova 31 📍 01 200 5500.

Post office Slovenska cesta 32 (Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat 8am–noon).

Southwest Slovenia

Not to be missed while you're in Ljubljana is a visit to either the Postojna or Škočjan caves – both spectacular, and both easily manageable either as a day-trip from the capital or en route south to the coast. A trip easily combined with Postojna is to Predjama Castle, a sombre fortress craftily embedded into the karst landscape. On the small stretch of Adriatic coastline are a number of charismatic towns, heavily influenced by a legacy of Venetian rule. Of these, Piran is by far the most rewarding, its fishing-village charm and gorgeous architecture contrasting starkly with the brash modernity of neighbouring Portorož.

POSTOJNA

Hourly trains run the 65km route from Ljubljana to POSTOJNA, though the walk to the caves is much shorter from the bus stop. Once in the town, signs direct you to the caves (daily: Jan–March, Nov & Dec 10am–3pm; April & Oct 10am–4pm; May, June & Sept 9am–5pm; July & Aug 9am–6pm; tours every 1–2hr; 90min; €24, combined ticket with Predjama Castle €31.90; postojnska-jama.eu); inside, a train whizzes you through spectacular preliminary systems for 3.5km before the guided 1.5km walking tour starts. The vast and fantastic jungles of rock formations are breathtaking and there's also an opportunity to catch a rare glimpse of the cave-dwelling "human fish", a blind amphibian that can live for up to 100 years, before the climactic finale of the 40m-high "concert hall". Bring a jacket and appropriate footwear; the air inside the caves is decidedly chilly. To avoid the considerable crowds, visit first thing in the morning or late afternoon.

Once done there, pop along to the brilliantly designed EXPO Postojna Cave Karst exhibition (same times as caves; €8.90), which guides visitors through the history of the caves and the local karst region, covering its geology, archeology and biology, including in-depth coverage of the many fascinating cave-dwelling animals that lurk within.

PREDJAMA CASTLE

Nine kilometres northwest of the caves, but not served by public transport, is the precariously sited Predjama Castle (daily: Jan–March, Nov & Dec 10am–4pm; April & Oct 10am–5pm; May, June & Sept 9am–6pm; July & Aug 9am–7pm; €11.90; combined ticket with the caves €31.90). Built into and around an elevated cave entrance in the midst of the dramatic karst landscape, this sixteenth-century fortress is a striking sight and affords excellent views of the surrounding countryside. Its damp, sparsely filled interior is less rewarding, though it is fun exploring the many passageways, galleries and alcoves, and you can see weaponry and artefacts dating back to its heyday as the castle of the legendary knight Erazem Lueger. For those with a ticket for both the castle and caves, there is a free shuttle bus operating in July and August; otherwise, the easiest way to get here is to rent bikes from the Hotel Sport at Kolodvorska 1 in Postojna (€15/day).

ŠKOCJAN CAVES

Much less visited, but even more dramatic than Postojna, the Škocjan Caves are a stunning system of echoing chambers, secret passages and collapsed valleys carved out by the Reka River, which begins its journey some 50km south near the Croatian border. Daily tours (June–Sept hourly, 10am–5pm; Oct–May 2–3 daily, 10am–3pm; €16; park-skocjanske-jame.si) take you through several stalactite-infested chambers and halls, before you reach the breathtaking Murmuring Cave, reputedly the world's largest subterranean canyon; here you get to cross the remarkable, vertiginous 45m-high Cerkvenik Bridge, under which the Reka flows. To get here, follow the 3km footpath from Divača train station (see map at the station).

PORTOROŽ

Easily reached by bus from the train terminus in Koper, PORTOROŽ ("Port of Roses") sprawls at the beginning of a long, tapering peninsula that projects like a lizard's tail north into the Adriatic. Popular since the end of the nineteenth century for its mild climate and the health-inducing properties of its salty mud baths, today the resort's big draw is high-rise hotels, glitzy casinos and buzzing nightlife. The main "beach" is just a continuation of the concrete promenade, and though there's nothing by way of culture here, the town's vibrant bars and clubs are unrivalled on this stretch of the coast.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The small, principal bus terminal is on the main coastal strip, Obala, though buses stop all along here.

Destinations Ljubljana (5 daily; 2hr 30min).

Tourist office Just down from the bus terminal at Obala 16 (daily: July & Aug 9am–10pm; Sept–June 9am–5pm; ☎ 05 674 2220, portoroz.si).

ACCOMMODATION

Private rooms (double €30–50) can be booked through Maona, at Obala 14b (☎ 05 674 0363, 🌐 maona.si), or Turist Biro at Obala 57 (☎ 05 674 1055, 🌐 turistbiro-ag.si).

Hostel Panorama Šentjane 25 ☎ 031 678 767, 🌐 hostelportoroz.si. Large hostel with a range of dorms and apartments located high up in the hills halfway between Portorož and Piran, with fine views of the Istrian coast. There's no public transport up to here, so expect a stiff 30min walk. Breakfast included. Dorms €23, doubles €48

EATING AND DRINKING

Take your pick from any number of beachside bars and clubs, many of which stay open until dawn.

Alaya Obala 22. Sprawling, tropically themed, open-air beach bar just south of the main beach and watersports centre, which also stages live music and regular party nights. Mon–Sat 9am–3am.

Cacao Obala 14. Near the tourist office, this laidback bar sports a cool, loungey interior and deck terrace facing the beach; but best of all, it serves the finest ice cream anywhere along the coast. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8am–10pm, Fri & Sat 8am–midnight.

PIRAN

PIRAN, at the tip of the peninsula, 4km from Portorož, couldn't be more different. Its web of arched alleys, tightly packed ranks of houses and little Italianate squares is delightful. The centre, 200m around the harbour from the bus station, is Tartinijev trg, a striking, marble-surfaced square fringed by Venetian palaces and an imposing Austrian town hall. The square is named after Giuseppe Tartini, an eighteenth-century Italian violinist and composer who was born in a cream villa up a small flight of stairs on the square's east side; now a commemorative house (June–Aug daily 9am–noon & 6–9pm; Sept–May Tues–Sun 11am–noon & 5–6pm; €2), it features scores, diaries and letters as well as his death mask. From the square's eastern edge, follow Rozmanova ulica all the way up to the commanding Baroque Church of St George, crowning a spectacular spot on the far side of Piran's peninsula. Climb the monumental belfry (€1) for superlative views of the Adriatic.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses pull up on Cankarjevo nabrežje, a 5min seafront walk from the main square, Tartinijev trg.

Destinations Ljubljana (7 daily; 2hr 45min); Portorož/Koper (every 15–20min; 10/45min); Trieste (Mon–Sat 1 daily; 1hr 30min).

Tourist information Tartinijev trg 2 (daily: July & Aug 9am–10pm; Sept–June 9am–5pm; ☎ 05 673 4440, 🌐 portoroz.si).

ACCOMMODATION

Private rooms (double €30–50) can be booked through Maona, at Cankarjevo nabrežje 7 (☎ 05 674 0363, 🌐 maona.si), between the bus station and the square.

Fiesa Camping Fiesa 57b ☎ 05 674 6230. Decent site 1km east of Piran (follow the path from the Church of St George). Open May–Sept. Per person €11.50

Hostel Piran Vodopivčeva 9 ☎ 031 627 647, 🌐 hostelpiran.com. Smart little hostel with a range of doubles, triples and quads, either with shared or private bathrooms. Kitchen for use too. Dorms €25, doubles €50

Val Hostel Gregorčičeva 38a ☎ 05 673 2555, 🌐 hostel-val.com. Friendly and well run, with a comfortable guesthouse feel; one-, two- and three-bedded rooms, laundry facilities and a good restaurant. Breakfast included. Doubles €60

EATING AND DRINKING

Čakola Partizanska ulica 2. Charming corner café much frequented by locals enjoying a morning coffee and croissant or, a little later in the day, a glass or two of the excellent local wine. Daily 8am–midnight.

Da Noi Prešernovo nabrežje 4. Popular, cellar-like bar, with a cool, breezy seafront terrace too. Mon–Thurs & Sun 8am–1am, Fri & Sat till 3am.

Pirat Zupančičeva 24. A pleasant antidote to the town's touristy restaurants, with no-frills seafood served in copper bowls and a good-value daily tourist menu for €10. Daily 10am–11pm.

Pri Mari Dantejeva ulica 17. Just beyond the bus station, this warm, trattoria-style place offers some terrific dishes like spicy squid pasta, and fillet of tuna on a bed of rocket salad (€12). Tues–Sat 2–4pm & 6–10pm, Sun 2–6pm.

Northwest Slovenia

Within easy reach of Ljubljana are the stunning mountain lakes of Bled and Bohinj. The magnificent Soča Valley, on the western side of the Julian Alps, is much less touristed, while the small towns of Kobarid and Bovec are excellent bases for hiking and adventure sports.

BLLED

Perhaps the most visited place outside of the capital, the lake resort of BLLED has all the right ingredients for a memorable visit – a placid mirror lake with a romantic island, a medieval cliff-top castle and a backdrop of snowcapped mountains. In summer, the lake is the setting for a whole host of watersports – including major rowing contests – and in winter the surface becomes a giant fairytale skating rink.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The best way to appreciate the lake is to walk around it: a leisurely stroll should take no more than two hours. Otherwise, a constant relay of stretched gondolas leaves from below the Park Hotel, by the Pension Mlino and by Vila Prešeren, ferrying tourists back and forth to Bled's picturesque island (€14 return). With an early start, and by renting your own rowing boat (€10–15/hr) from the Castle Boat House or Pension Pletna, you can beat them to it. Crowning the island, the Baroque Church of Sv Marika Božja (€6) is the last in a line of churches on a spot that's long held religious significance: under the present building lie remains of a pre-Roman temple.

From the north shore a couple of paths wind steeply uphill to Bled Castle (daily: April to mid-June & mid-Sept to Oct 8am–8pm; mid-June to mid-Sept 8am–9pm; Nov–March 8am–6pm; €10), originally an eleventh-century fortification whose present appearance dates from the seventeenth; its museum contains a well-presented collection of local artefacts relating to the settlement of Bled, including many fascinating items retrieved from the lake, while the lovely courtyard has magnificent views across the lake and towards the Alps. In the shade of the castle rock lies a clean, well-equipped bathing area with changing rooms (June to late Sept).

★TREAT YOURSELF

On selected dates between May and October, an old-fashioned steam train plies the line between Jesenice and Nova Gorica, passing through Bled Jezero and Bohinjska Bistrica, providing a wonderful scenic option as it chugs steadily through the mountains. Tickets cost €41 return and must be booked in advance (wabc-tourism.si).

Vintgar Gorge

The main attraction in the outlying hills is the Vintgar Gorge (late April–Oct daily 8am–7pm; €4), 4km north of town, an impressive defile accessed via a series of wooden walkways and bridges suspended from the rock face. To get here, take the daily tourist bus (June–Sept 10am; July & Aug additional bus at 9am; return at 12.30pm; €2.30) to the village of Zasip, climb to the hilltop chapel of Sv Katarina and pick up a path through the forest to the gorge entrance.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Trains from Ljubljana stop at Bled-Lesce, 4km southeast of Bled, from where there are regular buses (€1.50) to the lake. Trains on the Jesenice–Nova Gorica branch call at Bled Jezero, a 5min walk from the northwest corner of Bled.

Destinations Ljubljana (every 1–2hr; 40min–1hr); Bohinjska Bistrica (7 daily; 20min); Most na Soči for the Soča Valley (7 daily; 55min).

By bus The station is a 5min walk northeast of the lake on Grajska cesta.

Destinations Ljubljana (hourly; 1hr 15min); Ribčev Laz for Lake Bohinj (hourly; 40min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Cesta svobode 10, opposite the Park Hotel (mid-April to June, Sept & Oct Mon–Sat 8am–7pm, Sun 10am–4pm; July & Aug Mon–Sat 8am–9pm, Sun 9am–5pm; Nov to mid-April Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat & Sun 9am–4pm; ☎ 04 574 1122, wwww.bled.si). Bikes can be rented from here (and elsewhere in town), costing €6/3hr, €10/day.

Triglav National Park Information Centre Ljubljanska cesta 27 (daily: mid-April to mid-Oct 8am–6pm; rest of year 8am–4pm; ☎ 04 578 0205, tnp.si); superb visitor centre where you can get all the information you need on visiting the national park; there's also an exhibition on the park's flora, fauna and architecture, a café and souvenir shop.

ACCOMMODATION

Private rooms are available through Kompas in the shopping centre at Ljubljanska 4 (☎ 04 572 7501, kompas-bled.si).

★ Camping Bled Kidričeva 10 ☎ 04 575 2000, sava-hotels-resorts.com. Beautifully located amid the pines at the western end of the lake, this family-friendly campsite has first-rate facilities. For glampers, there are superb wooden huts with double beds and hot tubs; the breakfast basket (€9) is fab. Easter–Oct. Camping/person €13.80, huts €61

Pension Bled Grajska 17 ☎ 04 574 5250, bled.si. This high-quality hostel's comfortable dorms and doubles feature traditional furniture and each has its own bathroom. No kitchen but a good restaurant. Breakfast €5. Dorms €22, doubles €56

Travellers Haven Rikljičeva cesta 1 ☎ 05 904 4226, travellers-haven.si. Close to Pension Bled, with tastefully furnished dorms, a kitchen and common area, and free bike rental and laundry facilities. Breakfast not included but there's a supermarket opposite. Dorms €19, doubles €48

EATING AND DRINKING

The best places for eating are in the hillside area between Bled's bus station and castle, though many of the lake's waterfront pensions offer decent food too. The ugly concrete shopping centre on Ljubljanska is home to some strangely popular bars.

Chilli Cesta svobode 9. Popular bar and restaurant with a pleasant terrace and an appropriately spicy menu of Mexican and Mediterranean dishes from around €8. Daily 11am–1am.

Gostilna Pri Planincu Grajska 8. Opposite the bus station, this historic pub and restaurant has been serving up hearty Slovene home cooking since 1903; the mixed grill (€12.50) is worth chomping into after a hard day's hike. Daily 9am–midnight.

Šmon Grajska 3. "The Bear" café has been going even longer (since 1880) and is the best place to try the ubiquitous Bled Kremna Rezina (cream cake; €2.50) alongside a steaming mug of bela kava (white coffee). Daily 7.30am–9pm.

LAKE BOHINJ

From Bled hourly buses make the 25km trip through the verdant, mist-laden Sava Bohinjka Valley to Lake Bohinj. In appearance and character Lake Bohinj is utterly different from Bled: the lake crooks a narrow finger under the wild mountains, evergreen woods slope gently down to the water, and in the relative absence of visitors, a lazy stillness hangs over all.

Ribčev Laz

RIBČEV LAZ (referred to as Jezero on bus timetables), at the eastern end of the lake, is where most facilities are based. Walking trails lead round both sides of the lake (the 12km circumference can be walked in around four hours), or north on to the eastern shoulders of the Triglav range. One route leads north from the enchanting village of Stara Fužina into the Voje valley, passing through the dramatic Mostnica Gorge (€2.50), a local beauty spot.

Ukanc, Mount Vogel and the Valley of the Seven Lakes

About 5km from Ribčev Laz at the western end of the lake is the hamlet of UKANC (sometimes referred to as Zlatorog), where a cable car (daily 7am–7pm, every 30min; closed Nov; €14 return) whizzes you vertiginously up to the summit of Mount Vogel (1535m) in no time – if the Alps look dramatic from the lakeside, from Vogel's summit they're breathtaking; at the top, you can grab a bite to eat at the excellent, and cheap, restaurant. Ukanc is also the starting point for a one-hour walk north to the photogenic Savica Waterfalls (daily weather permitting 8am–8pm; €3). From here, the serious hiking can commence, either as a day-trip to the Valley of the Seven Lakes – an area strewn with eerie boulders and hardy firs – or as an expedition to scale Mount Triglav itself.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Trains on the Jesenice–Nova Gorica line call at Bohinjska Bistrica, some 6km from the lake back in the direction of Bled. From here two morning shuttle buses run back towards Bled.

Destinations From Bohinjska Bistrica: Bled Jezero (7 daily; 20min); Most na Soči for the Soča Valley (6–8 daily; 40min).

By bus Buses stop outside the Hotel Jezero in Ribčev Laz, terminating in Ukanc on the lake's southwestern corner.

Destinations Bled (hourly; 40min); Bohinjska Bistrica (hourly; 15min); Ljubljana (hourly; 1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Ribčev Laz 48, just up from the main bus stop next to the Mercator supermarket (July & Aug Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 8am–6pm; Sept–June Mon–Sat 8am–6pm, Sun 9am–3pm; ☎04 574 6010, bohinj-info.com). There's free public wi-fi in the immediate vicinity of Ribčev Laz.

ACCOMMODATION

The tourist office offers a plentiful choice of private rooms and apartments around Ribčev Laz and in the idyllic villages of Stara Fužina and Studor, 1km and 3km north respectively.

Hostel Pod Voglom Ribčev Laz ☎04 572 3461, hostel-podvoglom.com. Rather old-fashioned, but very social, hostel occupying a prime lakeshore spot some 2km along the road to Ukanc; the mix of differently sized rooms come with both private and shared bathroom facilities. Breakfast included. Dorms €18, doubles €44

★Rustic House 13 Srednja Vas ☎03 146 6707, studor13.si. Exceptional hostel in a tastefully renovated historic house 3km from the lake, with immaculate singles, doubles, triples and quads, and a well-equipped self-catering kitchen. Free pick-up from Bohinj. Breakfast included. Dorms €27, doubles €60

Zlatorog Ukanc 2 ☎04 572 3482. Extremely basic but splendidly located campsite on the lake's western tip; conveniently located for trips up the mountains. May–Sept. Per person €9

EATING AND DRINKING

Gostišče Erlah Ukanc 67. Good-value fish dishes such as fresh trout (€7), direct from their own farm, and grilled salmon feature on the menu at this friendly inn at the western end of the lake. Daily noon–9pm.

Pizzerija Ema Srednja Vas 73. The fabulous mountain views from the terrace and Ema's extensive menu of affordable, tasty pizzas and pasta dishes more than justify the 4km hike from the lake to the pretty village of Srednja Vas. Daily 9.30am–11pm.

THE SOČA VALLEY

On the other, less touristy, side of the mountains from Bohinj, the brilliantly turquoise River Soča streaks through the western spur of the Julian Alps, running parallel with the Italian border. During World War I, the Soča marked the front line between the Italian and Austro-Hungarian armies; now memorial chapels and abandoned fortifications nestle incongruously amid awesome Alpine scenery. The valley is a major centre for activity-based tourism, with the river providing first-class rafting and kayaking conditions throughout the spring and summer, and the mountain slopes perfect for skiing and snowboarding in winter.

The main tourist centres are Kobarid and Bovec, both small towns boasting a range of fabulous walking possibilities. The GZS 1:50,000 Zgornje Posočje map covers trails in the region.

Kobarid

It was at the little Alpine town of KOBARID that German and Austrian troops finally broke through Italian lines in 1917, almost knocking Italy out of World War I in the process. The 29 months of fighting in the region are relayed in the excellent Kobarid Museum, Gregorčičeva 10 (daily: April–Sept 9am–6pm; Oct–March 10am–5pm; €6), via a twenty-minute multimedia presentation and a series of sobering photographs, maps and mementoes. It's also the starting point for the superb Kobarid Historical Trail (3–5hr), a steep 5km loop where remote woodland paths are punctuated by forgotten wartime landmarks. From the town's main square you climb up to a striking three-tiered Italian War Memorial, opened by Benito Mussolini in 1938, before hiking further into the hills to see surviving military fortifications. At the trail's farthest point from town bubbles the Kozjak waterfall (40min walk), less impressive for its height than for the cavern-like space that it has carved out of the surrounding rock. Maps of the trail are available from the museum and tourist office.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses stop on the small main square, Trg Svobode. Destinations Bovec (3–5 daily; 20min); Ljubljana (2 daily; 3hr 30min).

Tourist office Trg Svobode 16 (July & Aug daily 9am–8pm; April–June & Sept Mon–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–1pm & 4–7pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–4pm, Sat 10am–2pm; ☎05 380 0490, lto-sotocje.si). Adjoining the museum, the excellent Walk of Peace centre provides a wealth of information on the valley's World War I sights and organizes guided walks.

ACCOMMODATION

Camp Koren Drežniške Ravne 33 ☎05 389 1311, kamp-koren.si. 500m out of town near the end of the historical walk trail, this superbly well-equipped site also has six log cabins sleeping up to six. Camping/person €13, chalets €65

ADVENTURE SPORTS

In Kobarid the main adventure sports company is X-Point, at Trg Svobode 6 (☎05 388 5308, xpoint.si); they organize rafting (€40), kayaking (€45) and canyoning (€50), among other activities guaranteed to raise your heart rate. Popular outfits in Bovec include Soča Rafting (☎05 389 6200, socrafting.si), opposite the tourist office at Trg Golobarskih žrtev 14, and Avantura (☎41 718 317, avantura.org), further down the same street, who specialize in tandem paragliding (€145). They all offer similar prices for activities.

Hostel X-Point Trg Svobode 6 ☎05 388 5308, xpoint.si. Clean, modern hostel run by the adventure sports company; two- and three-bed rooms, shared bathrooms and self-catering kitchen. Dorms €16, doubles €40

EATING AND DRINKING

Pri Vitku Pri Malnih 41. Small, welcoming place in a residential street a 10min walk south of town (follow signs), offering pizza, pasta and grilled meat dishes (€6). Daily noon–midnight.

Topli Val Trg Svobode 1. If you can afford to spend just a little more, then head to this classy restaurant inside the Hotel Hvala; on offer is a marvellous fish and seafood menu featuring the likes of trout, crayfish and mussels (€15). Daily noon–10pm.

BOVEC

Twenty five kilometres up the valley from Kobarid, the village of BOVEC straggles between imperious mountain ridges. Thanks to its status as a winter ski resort, it has a greater range of accommodation options and sporting agencies than Kobarid, so enjoys a more vibrant atmosphere. The quickest route into the mountains from here is provided by the gondola that departs on the hour 1km south of the village (June–Sept 8am–4pm; €13 return), which ascends to the pasture-cloaked Mount Kanin over to the west.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Buses terminate outside the Letni Vrt restaurant on the main square, Trg Golobarskih žrtev.

Destinations Kobarid (3–5 daily; 20min).

Tourist office Trg Golobarskih žrtev 8 (daily 9am–6pm; ☎05 384 1919, bovec.si).

ACCOMMODATION

Adrenaline Check Eco Place Podklopca 4 ☎041 383 662, adrenaline-check.com. Some 12km from Bovec, Europe's first sustainable outdoor hostel offers riverside camping (with tents for rent too) and fully equipped lean-tos. Free pick-ups. Camping/person €13, rented tents €18, lean-to €25

Hostel Soča Rocks Mala Vas 120 ☎041 317 777, hostelsocarocks.com. Rocks by name, rocks by nature, this cracking hostel – featuring colourful six-bed dorms and doubles, along with lots of activities on offer – certainly lives up to its name. Dorms €15, doubles €40

Eastern Slovenia

The lush landscapes to the east of Ljubljana – where many of the country's most reputable vineyards are concentrated – are generally less explored by travellers. However, as host to Slovenia's second city, Maribor, and oldest settlement, Ptuj, which lie on the main routes to Austria and Hungary respectively, the region can reward the passing visitor with its rich historical heritage, traditional culture and fine wine.

MARIBOR

Located 122km northeast of Ljubljana, MARIBOR is perched snugly on the Drava River between hillside vineyards and the Pohorje mountain range. Though it has been beset by war and occupation, the old town's beautiful architecture preserves myriad historical and cultural influences, and the nightlife is second only to Ljubljana.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Maribor's main attractions are condensed in a pedestrianized centre, beginning on Trg Svobode. Here Maribor Castle houses the regional museum (Tues–Sat 10am–6pm; €3), which presents particularly fine ethnological and cultural history sections. Across the square is the labyrinth of underground catacombs that make up the Vinag Wine Cellar, where you can stop by to sample some of the region's acclaimed vintages (tours Mon–Thurs 11am & 2pm, Fri–Sun 11am, 2pm & 4pm; €5 for three wines). On the western fringe of the pedestrianized zone sits the photogenic Slomškov trg, a serene, leafy opening surrounded by a few landmarks, including the university building and the elegant Slovene National Theatre.

Opposite the university, and mimicking its distinct yellow colour, is the sixteenth-century Gothic Cathedral Church (daily 10am–6pm), with a bell tower (€2) that offers fantastic views to the edges of the city and beyond. South of Slomškov is Maribor's most charming square, Glavni trg, which epitomizes the hotchpotch architectural styles of the city. Its centrepiece is the Baroque Plague Memorial, erected after the deadly disease wiped out a third of the town's population in the seventeenth century.

Lent

Between Glavni and the Drava River, the streets become narrow and uneven, as you enter the oldest part of town, Lent, which hosts myriad open-air events during the Lent festival in late June each year, comprising two entertaining weeks of street theatre, dance performances and jazz, rock and classical concerts. It is here that the world's oldest productive vine, a protected national monument, grows majestically outside the Old Vine House (daily: May–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct–April 10am–6pm; free). Inside, a small exhibition complements the range of top-quality, reasonably priced local vintages, some of which you can taste (€4 for three samples).

Pohorje

Just a short bus ride (#6 to vzpenjača; €1.10) or cycle southwest from the centre is the sprawling Pohorje mountain range. Take the hourly cable car (daily 8am–8pm; €6 return) up the slope, where – depending on the season – you can hike, mountain bike, horseride and ski, or simply sit and admire the glorious views of Maribor and the countryside surrounding it. The website mariborskopohorje.si has detailed information on activities in the area.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Partizanska cesta 50. Turn left out of the exit and the road curves directly into the town centre. Left luggage lockers €2–3/24hr.

Destinations Ljubljana (every 1–2hr; 1hr 50min–2hr 30min); Graz, Austria (2 daily; 1hr); Ptuj (8 daily; 45min–1hr); Vienna, Austria (2 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus Mlinska ulica 1 (just off Partizanska cesta).

Destinations Ljubljana (4 daily; 3hr); Ptuj (every 30–45min; 40min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Partizanska cesta 6a, next to the Franciscan church (April–Oct Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm; Nov–March Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 10am–5pm; ☎ 02 234 6611, maribor-pohorje.si). They rent out bikes (€5/3hr, €10/day) and provide helpful cycling maps to explore the vineyards. There is free wi-fi in public spaces throughout the city.

ACCOMMODATION

The tourist office can book private accommodation (from €20/person).

Hostel Pekarna Ob železnici 16 ☎ 059 180 880, mhc-hostelpekarna.si. Part of Maribor's foremost alternative cultural centre, this spunky hostel in Tabor (on the south side of the Drava) offers four-bed dorms as well as studio rooms and apartments. Breakfast included and free bike rental. Dorms €21, doubles €54.

Tavas Hostel Vetrinska ulica 5 ☎ 040 894 492. Small, very basic, but very clean hostel smack-bang in the centre of the city, with a ten-bed dorm and one apartment (sleeping two or three), shared bathroom facilities and kitchen for use. Dorms €17.

EATING AND DRINKING

★ Bistro Arty Slovenska ulica 20. Easy to spot by virtue of the row of colourful potted plants lining the windowsill, this delightful, veggie-oriented café serves the likes of dandelion soup and garlic pie €5. Mon–Fri 7am–6pm, Sat 7am–3pm.

Gril Ranca Dravska 10. Down in the riverside Lent district, this is fast food Serbian style, with čevapčiči and pljeskavica grilled meats (€6) comprising pretty much the entire menu. Cheap, filling and very tasty. Mon–Sat 11am–11pm.

KGB Vojašniški trg 5 ☎ klub-kgb.si. The most popular joint in Maribor, this lively underground cellar bar attracts all ages, with an eclectic programme of regular live music. Mon–Sat 7pm–2am.

Satchmo Jazz Klub Strossmayerjeva ulica 6 ☎ satchmo.si. Hosts high-calibre jazz and rock sessions, but also ideal for a mellow drinking session. Tues–Thurs 7pm–3am, Fri & Sat 7pm–5am.

Takos Mesarski prehod 3. Tucked away on a cobbled alley, this cheap-and-cheerful Mexican also serves cocktails, becoming a club at weekends. Mon, Wed & Thurs 11am–10pm, Tues, Fri & Sat 11am–3am.

PTUJ

PTUJ is arguably Slovenia's most attractive town, rising up from the Drava valley in a flutter of red roofs, and topped by a charming castle. The streets themselves are the main attraction, with scaled-down mansions standing shoulder to shoulder on scaled-down boulevards, and medieval fantasies crumbling next to Baroque extravagances.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Ptuj's main street is Prešernova ulica, an atmospheric thoroughfare which snakes along the base of the castle-topped hill. At its eastern end is Slovenski Trg, home to a fine-looking sixteenth-century bell tower (though now just a souvenir shop) and the Church of St George, dating from the twelfth century, with an interior distinguished by some spectacular frescoes. At either end of Prešernova, cobbled paths wind up to the castle – featuring an agglomeration of architectural styles from the fourteenth to the eighteenth centuries – which now houses the carefully presented collections of the Ptuj Regional Museum (daily: May to mid-Oct 9am–6pm; mid-Oct to April 9am–5pm; €5). There's much to take in, including Baroque tapestries, a Turqueries collection (paintings with Turkish motifs), and a marvellous assemblage of musical instruments, but the real highlight is the colourful display of kurenti masks, which appear each February as part of the Kurent carnival, one of the country's most celebrated events.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is on Osojnikova cesta, a 5min walk northeast of town.

Destinations Ljubljana (2 daily; 2hr 25min); Maribor (8 daily; 1hr).

By bus The station is 200m from the train station.

Destinations Maribor (every 45min–1hr; 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Slovenski trg 5 (daily: May–Sept 9am–8pm; Oct–April 9am–6pm; ☎ 02 779 6011, 🌐 ptuj.info). The Centre for Free Time Activities, just across from the bus station in the modern buildings at Osojnikova 9 (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm; ☎ 02 780 5540, 🌐 cid.si), is also super helpful.

ACCOMMODATION

Hostel Sonce Zagrebška cesta 10 ☎ 031 361 982, 🌐 hostel-sonce.com. Very neat and very bright family-run hostel a 5min walk from the centre, across the river; all rooms (from singles up to five-bed dorms) are en suite and come with TV and a/c. Breakfast €3. Dorms €25

★ Musikafe Vrazov trg 1 ☎ 02 787 8860, 🌐 muzikafe.si. Seven beautifully conceived rooms brimming with colour and creativity in this warm and welcoming B&B. Breakfast included. Doubles €52

Terme Ptuj Pot v Toplice ☎ 02 749 4100, 🌐 sava-hotels-resorts.com. Across the river, 2km west of town, this pleasant resort-style campsite also has enormous wine barrels that have been ingeniously converted into pod-like accommodation; guests can also use the on-site Thermal Park pools and saunas. Camping/person €14.30, wine-barrel glamping €66

EATING AND DRINKING

Gostilna PP Novi trg 2. Cheap and very cheerful canteen-style joint knocking up fast and filling daily specials, though it's best known for its local chicken dishes (€4–5). Mon–Fri 7am–6pm, Sat 7am–4pm.

★ Musikafe Vrazov trg 1. Wonderful hangout that combines an inviting stone terrace with a richly painted, retro furnished interior where you can chill out to an eclectic playlist. Superb live music in both the garden (summer) and cellar (winter). Daily 8am–11pm, Fri & Sat till midnight.

Ribič Dravska ulica 9. The exceptional seafood at this riverside restaurant with a lovely terrace overlooking the Drava justifies the slightly higher price tag, which is typically around €12–15 a dish. Tues–Thurs & Sun 10am–10pm, Fri & Sat 10am–11pm.

Introduction

Spain has so much more to offer than the clichés of bullfights, crowded beaches, paella and flamenco. You don't have to travel for very long to discover ancient castles, world-class museums, idyllic whitewashed villages, isolated coves and beaches, and a wealth of art and architecture. The separate kingdoms that made up the original Spanish nation are still very evident today, encompassing a medley of languages, cultures and traditions.

Of the regions, vibrant Catalunya in the northeast is fiercely independent of spirit; the fishing region of Galicia in the northwest a seafood lover's dream; the Basque country a remarkable contrast between post-industrial depression and world-class architecture and food; and Castilla y León and the south still, somehow, quintessentially "Spanish". There are definite highlights: the three great cities of Barcelona, Madrid and Seville; the Moorish monuments of Andalucía in the south and the Christian ones of Castilla y León in the west; beach life on the island of Ibiza, the Costa del Sol or on the more deserted Costa de la Luz near Cádiz; some of the best trekking in Europe in the Pyrenees, and winter sports in Andorra.

Spain can be visited all year round, though Madrid, Extremadura and parts of Andalucía get unbearably hot in summer. Depending on what you're after, you can party at local festivals, engage in all manner of outdoor pursuits, sample the regional specialities, take in the varied architecture that traces Spain's multicultural heritage and enjoy some of Europe's best nightlife. The country recently suffered crippling financial woes, and although the economy is picking up, youth unemployment remains high. However, this has done little to dampen the nation's spirits: town centres remain buzzing with life, and Spain's enthusiasm for sport remains as strong as ever.

CHRONOLOGY

1000 BC Phoenicians colonize the Iberian Peninsula, establishing the cities of Cádiz and Málaga.

400s BC Carthaginians exert power over large parts of present-day Spain.

200s BC The Romans capture "Hispania" during the Punic Wars and rule it for over 500 years.

711 AD The Islamic Moors conquer Spain, and Moorish culture flourishes.

1085 With the capture of Toledo, Spanish Christians begin to diminish the influence of the Moors in Spain.

1480 The Spanish Inquisition persecutes non-Christians, leading to mass conversions and expulsion of Jews.

1492 Christopher Columbus discovers lands in the Americas for the Spanish Crown.

1605 The world's first "novel", Don Quixote by Cervantes, is published.

1714 The British capture Gibraltar.

1800s Spanish colonies in the Americas gain their independence.

1931 Surrealist artist Salvador Dalí completes arguably his most famous painting, The Persistence of Memory.

1936 The Spanish Civil War breaks out as Nationalist forces led by General Franco defeat Republican forces.

1939 Spain remains neutral at the outbreak of World War II.

1975 Franco dies and is replaced by King Juan Carlos.

1977 First free elections are held in almost four decades.

2004 Bombs detonated on busy Madrid trains leave 191 people dead. An Islamic group takes responsibility.

2007 The government's struggle with Basque separatists, ETA, continues as the group end their ceasefire.

2008 Spain's construction boom brought to an end by international financial meltdown, and unemployment soars from 6 percent to 20 percent.

2010 Spain wins the FIFA World Cup.

2013 Spain's unemployment rate climbs to record high, with 55 percent of under-30s out of work.

2014 King Juan Carlos abdicates in favour of his son, Felipe VI.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

The quickest – and cheapest – way to get to Spain is on one of the budget-airline flights (Vueling, easyJet, Ryanair and Norwegian Air). All major airlines serve Barcelona and Madrid. Other major airports include Alicante, Málaga, Valencia, Seville and Mallorca. Trains from France serve San Sebastián (from Biarritz), Barcelona (from Toulouse and Perpignan) and Girona (from Perpignan), while trains from Portugal run from Lisbon to Madrid via Cáceres and from Porto to Santiago de Compostela. Regular ferries from Morocco serve the ports of Algeciras, Gibraltar and Tarifa.

GETTING AROUND

Spain's public transport is budget traveller-friendly. While the high-speed trains are often more comfortable than buses for longer journeys, they are significantly more expensive.

BY TRAIN

RENFE (www.renfe.es) operates three types of train: cercanías (local commuter trains); media distancia (intercity trains); and larga distancia (long-distance) trains, which include the high-speed AVE (routes connect Madrid with Alicante, Barcelona, Córdoba, Málaga and Seville) and Euromed (Valencia–Barcelona) trains, and the somewhat slower Talgo (Valencia–Alicante and Murcia) and Alvia (Madrid–Bilbao). To avoid queuing, buy tickets online from the RENFE website and print the ticket out at the station. Return fares (ida y vuelta) often get a ten to twenty percent discount, as do advance online bookings. InterRail and Eurail passes are valid on all RENFE trains and also on Euromed; supplements are charged on the fastest trains. Book well in advance, especially at weekends and holidays. The InterRail Spain Pass is only worth it if you're planning on a lot of train travel within a short space of time.

BY BUS

Alsia (www.alsa.es) is the biggest bus company, covering most of the country. There are regular services between major cities, and many smaller villages are accessible only by bus. In some cases it is faster to take the bus than a regional train. Frequency is reduced on Sundays

ON YOUR BIKE

Though few large Spanish cities have cycle lanes, Spain is becoming more bicycle friendly, with public bicycle systems introduced in cities such as Barcelona, Madrid, Seville, Valencia, Mérida and Zaragoza; dozens of pick-up/drop-off points are scattered around the streets.

and holidays. For long-distance buses, you can buy your ticket in advance online, which is often cheaper.

BY BOAT

Regular ferries and hydrofoils connect mainland Spain to the Balearic Islands and Tangier, Ceuta and Melilla. Acciona Trasmediterránea (@trasmediterranea.es) is the main national ferry company; you can book seats or sleeping berths for its fast, modern passenger ferries. The Balearic Islands are served by Baleària (@balearia.com) and Iscomar (@www.iscomar.com) ferries.

ACCOMMODATION

Book accommodation well in advance if planning on staying during a festival. Prices in popular areas drop considerably in low season.

HOTELS AND HOSTELS

There are several types of budget accommodation available. Pensiones (P) are simple guesthouses without breakfast, most rooms sharing a bathroom. Slightly more expensive are hostales (H) – budget hotels – offering single and double rooms, mostly en suite. Madrid, Barcelona and other big cities have a large network of centrally located independent hostels with a full range of facilities, such as guest kitchens and tour booking. Beds are generally €20–35. HI-affiliated youth hostels (albergues juveniles; @reaj.com) can be inconveniently located and are sometimes block-reserved by school groups. At €17–27 per person (more without an HI card), they offer basic accommodation in dorms, usually including breakfast. These options generally offer free wi-fi.

CASAS RURALES, CAMPING AND REFUGIOS

Nationwide, agroturismo (@agroturismo rural.com) and casa rural programmes offer cheap accommodation in rural areas. A room in a private house costs around €40 for a double, and €25 for a single. Tourist offices have full lists. There are hundreds of campsites throughout Spain, charging around €6 per person plus the same for a tent; see @vaya camping.net. In popular mountain areas, particularly on the Camino de Santiago pilgrim trail, you'll find refugios (mountain shelters) offering dorm-style accommodation on a first-come, first-served basis (€10–15 per night). Some have a cooking area and/or serve hot meals; bring your own bedding and cooking equipment.

FOOD AND DRINK

Bars and cafés are best for breakfast, which can consist of churros con chocolate (tubular deep-fried doughnuts dipped in thick drinking chocolate), tostadas (toast), or tortilla (omelette). Coffee and pastries are on offer at the many excellent pastelerías and confiterías, while bocadillos (sandwiches) are available everywhere. Tabernas, tascas, bodegas, cervecerías and bars all serve tapas or pintxos: tiny sandwiches, mini portions of meat, tortilla or fried potatoes with alioli for €1.50–4.50 a plate; the most elaborate tapas are found in the Basque country. Their big brothers, raciones (€8–16), make a meal in themselves. Most restaurants offer a weekday lunchtime two- or three-course meal, menú del día (€10–13), or platos combinados (€7–10), a single dish such as meat with fries and a side of salad, drink included. Fish and seafood are excellent, particularly regional specialties such as Galician fish stew (zarzuela), grilled octopus and gambas a la plancha (grilled prawns). Spain's most famous dish is the rice-based paella, which can be made with seafood, meat and vegetables. There's also fideuá (similar to paella but made with vermicelli instead of rice), especially popular in Valencia and Alicante. Andalucía's staples include gazpacho and salmorejo – cold summer soups – with Granada and Almería adding North African food to the mix. Inland Spain is famous for its carnes asados (roasted meats), hearty stews and delicious cured meats – particularly jamón ibérico de bellota – a highly prized dry-cured ham. Big cities cater best to vegetarians, while gourmets should make a beeline for the Basque country and Catalunya – the two regions responsible for some of the most adventurous cuisine in the world. San Sebastián in particular is known for its proliferation of bars serving imaginative tapas.

DRINK

Wine (vino) – tinto (red), blanco (white) or rosado (rosé) – is generally good quality. The best reds are Rioja and Ribera, while Catalunya and Galicia produce the best whites (Penedès or Peralada and Albariño respectively); Catalunya is also home to cava – a sparkling white wine that’s champagne in everything but name. Vino de Jerez, Andalusian sherry, is served chilled and available in fino/manzanilla (dry), amontillado (medium) or olorosoldulce (sweet) varieties. Cerveza, lager-type beer, includes Mahou, San Miguel, Cruzcampo, Alhambra and Estrella. In bars, you usually order a caña (small glass) of beer with your tapas. Tinto de verano (red wine spritzer) is a popular summer drink. Sangría, a red wine-and-fruit punch, and sidra, a dry cider most typical in Asturias and the Basque Country, are well worth sampling. Coffee is invariably espresso, unless you specify cortado (with a drop of milk), con leche (a more generous amount) or americano (weaker black coffee). Tea is drunk black, though you can order it con la leche aparte, and most eating establishments offer infusiones (herbal teas).

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Lunch is usually eaten between 2 and 4pm and dinner from 8.30pm. In the largest Spanish cities, a lot of shops, tourist offices and restaurants stay open all day, whereas smaller towns and especially villages are dead between 2 and 5pm. Tipping is not the norm; ten percent in restaurants is considered generous. When paying by credit/debit card in shops, you may need photo ID.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

The beaches on the south coast are the best for swimming, while the north coast (and Spain’s southernmost tip) are ideal for watersports such as windsurfing and surfing: Playa de Zurriola in San Sebastián is a popular choice, as is Santander’s Sardinero beach. Tarifa, at the southernmost tip of Spain, is a year-round paradise for kitesurfers and windsurfers. The Mediterranean waters of Costa Brava and Costa del Sol, as well as the Balearic Islands, offer numerous good scuba-diving and snorkelling spots. Whitewater junkies can head to Catalunya’s Noguera Pallaresa River or Cantabria’s Carasa River for kayaking and rafting. There are great paragliding destinations along the Mediterranean coast and in Aragón. The Aragonese Pyrenees, Picos de Europa and the Sierra Nevada, in Andalucía, are excellent in winter for skiing and equally good for hiking in summer. The Camino de Santiago (see box, p.1079) makes a superb long-distance hike or bike ride. Spain has numerous scenic and challenging cycling options throughout the country, including bici todo terreno (off-road tracks for mountain bikes).

SPECTATOR SPORTS

A match at Real Madrid’s Estadio Santiago Bernabéu is a must for any football fan (📞 913 984 300, 🌐 realmadrid.es), as is a game at the Camp Nou, FC Barcelona’s 100,000-seater stadium (📞 902 189 900, 🌐 fcbarcelona.com). For something quite different, try the electrifying spectacle of bull running (or encierros), the most famous of which take place every July in Pamplona during the Fiesta de San Fermín (see box, p.1071). While bullfighting remains a subject of great passion in Madrid and Andalucía (particularly in Seville, Málaga and Ronda), its popularity is waning with the younger generation, and it has been outlawed in Catalunya since 2012.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post offices (correos) are open Monday to Friday 8.30am to 8.30pm (with a siesta break in smaller towns), Saturday 9am to 1pm. In larger cities, there are also lots of discount call centres (locutorios). Alternatively, buying a prepaid SIM card is inexpensive. The international access code is ☎ 00, the Spain country code is ☎ 34 and local area codes are incorporated into the phone numbers. Free wi-fi is common, so internet cafés are now rare.

32 EMERGENCIES

Violent crime is rare, but watch out for pickpockets and scam artists. Be particularly vigilant around market areas, on public transport and during fiestas. Report robberies to the Policía Nacional; you can report your loss by phone (☎ 902 102112) or online under Denuncias at policia.es. For minor health complaints, go to a pharmacy (farmacia). In more serious cases, head to Urgencias at the nearest hospital, or get the address of an English-speaking doctor from the farmacia or tourist office.

INFORMATION

The Spanish National Tourist Office (Oficina de Turismo) has a branch in

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

Most museums and attractions offer a student or under-26 discount, which can give a significant reduction or even free entry. To make the most of these, buy an ISIC (International Student) or IYTC (International Youth) card. For more information see isiccard.com. Many museums also have free entry on Sundays.

virtually every major town, giving away city maps and brochures. There are also provincial or regional Turismos, which stock information on the entire province.

MONEY AND BANKS

Spain's currency is the euro (€). Banks have branches in all but the smallest towns, open Monday to Friday 8.30am to 2pm; some are also open Saturday 9am to 1pm. In tourist areas, you'll also find casas de cambio, with more convenient hours, but worse exchange rates. ATMs (cajeros automáticos) are widespread, and all major credit cards are accepted in most shops, restaurants and hotels.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shops open Monday to Saturday 9am to 8pm; in Madrid and Barcelona some open for a shorter time on Sunday. Smaller towns and cities take a siesta between 2 and 5pm. Tapas bars are typically open from lunchtime until late, while restaurants are typically open 1–4pm and 8–11pm or 1–11pm, with many closed on Sunday evenings and on Mondays. In nightclubs, things only really get going after midnight. Shops and banks are closed on the following national public holidays (plus local ones): January 1 and 6, Maundy Thursday and Good Friday, May 1, August 15, October 12, November 1, December 6, 8, 24 and 25.

FESTIVALS

Each town and city celebrates its own annual fiesta in honour of its patron saint. Don't miss: the decadent Carnaval in Cádiz (Feb/March); Valencia's Las

Madrid

When Philip II moved the seat of government to MADRID in 1561 his aim was to create a symbol of Spanish unification and centralization. Given its lack of natural advantages, such as a sea port, and extreme temperatures in winter and summer, it was only the determination of successive rulers to promote a strong central capital that ensured its success.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Today, Madrid's streets are a beguiling mix of old and new, with narrow, atmospheric alleys and wide, open boulevards. It is also home to some of Spain's best art, from the Museo del Prado's world-renowned classical collection, to the impressive modern works at the Reina Sofía. Galleries and sights aside, much of Madrid's charm comes from immersing yourself in the daily life of the city and tapping into its frenetic energy: hanging out in the traditional cafés and chocolaterías or the summer terrazas, packing the lanes of the Sunday Rastro flea market, or playing very hard and very late in a thousand bars, clubs and discos.

Puerta del Sol and the Plaza de Cibeles

Central Puerta del Sol is officially the centre of the nation: a stone slab in the pavement outside the main building on the south side marks Kilómetro Zero, from where six of Spain's Rutas Nacionales (National Routes) begin. The city's emblem, a statue of a bear pawing a madroño bush, lies on the northeast side. To the west, c/Arenal heads directly towards the Teatro Real and Palacio Real, but there's more of interest along c/Mayor, one of Madrid's oldest thoroughfares, which runs southwest through the heart of the medieval city. Down c/Alcalá to the east, the Cibeles fountain is the unofficial bathing spot for Real Madrid fans, who congregate here to celebrate their team's victories.

Plaza Mayor

Plaza Mayor is one of the most important architectural and historical landmarks in Madrid and the centrepiece of Madrileño life for centuries. In this beautiful seventeenth-century square, autos-da-fé (trials of faith) and executions were held by the Inquisition, kings were crowned, demonstrations, festivals and bullfights staged. These events were watched by up to 50,000 spectators and by royalty from the frescoed Real Casa de la Panadería (Royal Bakery). Today, the plaza is a pleasant but expensive place to have a drink. In summer, it's an outdoor theatre and music stage; in autumn, a book fair, and a Christmas market in mid-December.

Palacio Real

Palacio Real, or Royal Palace, on C de Bailén (daily 10am–8pm; €11; patrimonionacional.es; 📺 Ópera), built after the earlier Muslim Alcázar burned down in 1734, was the principal royal residence until Alfonso XIII went into exile in 1931, but is now used only on state occasions. The building, which claims more rooms than any other European palace, features a library with one of the biggest collections of books, manuscripts, maps and musical scores in the world; an armoury with an unrivalled and often bizarre collection of weapons dating back to the fifteenth century, including armour for war horses and children; and an original pharmacy – a curious mixture of alchemist's den and early laboratory. Take your time to contemplate the extraordinary opulence of the place: acres of Flemish and Spanish tapestries, endless Rococo decoration, jewelled clocks and pompous portraits of the monarchs.

The Gran Vía

Central Plaza de España, home to the statues of Cervantes, Don Quixote and Sancho Panza, joins Gran Vía, once the capital's major thoroughfare, which effectively divides the old city to the south from the newer parts. Permanently crowded with shoppers and sightseers, the street is appropriately named, with quirky Art Nouveau and Art Deco facades fronting its banks, offices and apartments, and huge posters on the theatres. At the beginning of the street, by the magnificent cylindrical Edificio Metropolis, it joins with c/Alcalá on the approach to Plaza de Cibeles. Just across the junction is the majestic old Círculo de Bellas Artes (museum Tues–Sun 10am–3pm; €4, free Wed; circulo.bellasartes.com; 📺 Sevilla), a cultural centre for up-and-coming artists which also boasts a roof terrace bar with the best views of Madrid (Azotea; Mon–Thurs 9am–11pm, Fri 9am–2am, Sat & Sun 11am–2am; €4).

MADRID FOR FREE

You can see most of Madrid's top sights for free, as long as you time your visits carefully. Get there before the free opening times, or you'll have to contend with crowds. Free entry is as follows:

Museo Nacional Centro de Arte

Reina Sofía (Mon, Wed–Sat 7–9pm, Sun 1.30–7pm; always free to university students); Museo del Prado (Mon–Sat 6–8pm, Sun & hols 5–8pm; always free to under-25 EU students); Museo Thyssen-Bornemisza (Mon noon–4pm); Palacio Real (Mon–Thurs last 2hr of opening for EU citizens). Many other sights also offer reduced rates for students or people under 26. You can also take a free city tour (donations welcome; newmadrid-tours.com), which departs several times daily from the Plaza Mayor.

Museo del Prado

Madrid's Museo del Prado, on Paseo del Prado (Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–7pm; €14/27.20 combined ticket with Museo Thyssen-Bornemisza and Centro de Arte Reina Sofía; museodelprado.es; Atocha), has been one of Europe's key art galleries ever since it opened in 1819. It holds a collection of over 8600 paintings, including the world's finest collections of Goya, Velázquez, Rubens and Bosch. The central downstairs gallery houses the early Spanish collection, and a dazzling array of portraits and religious paintings by El Greco, among them his mystic and hallucinatory Crucifixion and Adoration of the Shepherds. Beyond this are the Prado's Italian treasures: superb Titian portraits of Charles V and Philip II, as well as works by Tintoretto, Bassano, Caravaggio and Veronese. Upstairs are Goya's unmissable Pinturas negras (Black Paintings), so called due to their dark hues and the distorted appearance of their subjects, hinting at the artist's unsettled state of mind. The outstanding presence among Spanish painters is Velázquez – among the collection are intimate portraits of the family of Felipe IV, most famously his masterpiece Las Meninas.

Museo Thyssen-Bornemisza

The Museo Thyssen-Bornemisza (Mon noon–4pm, Tues–Sun 10am–7pm; €12; museothyssen.org; [Banco de España](http://Banco de España)) occupies the grand Palacio de Villahermosa, diagonally opposite the Prado. Acquired by the state in 1993, this was perhaps the world's greatest private art collection, belonging to the late Baron Thyssen-Bornemisza. There are important works from every major period and movement: from Duccio and Holbein, through El Greco and Caravaggio, to Schiele and Rothko; from a strong showing of nineteenth-century Americans to some very early and very late Van Goghs; and side-by-side hangings of parallel Cubist studies by Picasso, Braque and Mondrian.

Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofía

As well as the collection of twentieth-century art, the Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofía, at c/Santa Isabel 52 (Mon & Wed–Sat 10am–9pm, Sun 10am–7pm; €8; museoreinasofia.es; Atocha), features a cinema, excellent art and design bookshops, a print, music and photographic library and edgy temporary exhibitions. However, it is Picasso's Guernica – his signature Cubism piece – that most visitors come to see, and rightly so. Superbly displayed along with its preliminary studies, this icon of twentieth-century Spanish art and politics – a response to the Fascist bombing of the Basque town of Guernica in the Spanish Civil War – carries a shock that defies all familiarity. Other halls are devoted to Dalí and Surrealism, early twentieth-century Spanish artists

STAYING COOL

With Madrid often unbearably hot in summer, sometimes there's only one thing for it – taking refuge in one of the city's open-air swimming pools. Usually open from June to August, the largest of them is in Casa de Campo (daily 11am–8.30pm; €6; Lago). Search for “piscinas aire libre” at madrid.es for others, or ask at the tourist office.

including Miró and post-World War II figurative art, mapping the beginning of abstraction through to Pop and avant-garde.

The Rastro

The Rastro flea market (Sun 8am–3pm) is as much a part of Madrid's weekend ritual as a Mass or a paseo. The stalls sprawl south from ⑩ La Latina to the Ronda de Toledo, selling everything from flamenco records to imitation designer gear to old photos of Madrid. Expect a great atmosphere, but you'll have to search hard for bargains among the junk. Keep a tight grip on your possessions. Afterwards, while away the afternoon in the bars and terrazas around Puerta de Moros.

Parque del Buen Retiro and Parque del Oeste

The most central and most popular of Madrid's parks is the Parque del Buen Retiro (daily: May–Sept 6am–midnight; until 11pm rest of the year; ⑩ Retiro or Ibiza) behind the Prado, a stunning mix of formal gardens and wilder spaces. You can row a boat, picnic, check out a travelling art exhibition at the beautiful Palacio de Velázquez and the nearby Palacio de Cristal and, above all, promenade like half of Madrid. You can also visit the “Hill of the Absents” – a mound constructed in memory of those who died in the Madrid bombing of 2004. Although charming by day, Retiro is best avoided at night. The Parque del Oeste on the city's western edge (⑩ Ventura Rodríguez) boasts a genuine Egyptian temple – Templo de Debod, donated to Spain by Egyptian president Nasser in 1968 as a gesture of thanks to Spanish archeologists who saved it from the rising waters of Lake Nasser.

Estadio de Santiago Bernabéu

Even non-football fans may enjoy a tour of Real Madrid's Bernabéu stadium (non-match days Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10.30am–6.30pm; match days closes 5hr before kickoff; €19; ⑩ realmadrid.com; ⑩ Santiago Bernabéu) in northern Madrid. With multimedia exhibitions charting the club's rich history, and visits to the trophy room, players' dugout and away team's dressing room, there's enough here to keep you entertained for a few hours. A café and restaurant overlooking the pitch serve reasonably priced meals. In summer, there's also an outdoor nightclub in the stadium, La Terraza del Bernabéu (€10 entry including a drink; drinks €12 thereafter).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Barajas airport (⑩ www.aena.es), 15km northeast of the centre, is served by all major airlines from Europe, North and Latin America. To reach the city, metro line #8 runs to ⑩ Nuevos Ministerios (daily 6am–2am; 12min; €4.50). The fast, reliable 24hr Exprés Aeropuerto bus leaves terminals 1, 2 and 4 (every 15–35min; €5), stopping at c/O'Donnell, Plaza de Cibeles and Atocha (the last stop only between 6am and 11.30pm). AeroCITY minibuses (24hr; ⑩ 917 477 570, ⑩ aerocity.com) drop passengers off door-to-door from €8–25.

By train In the north of the city, Estación de Chamartín is used by trains for the north and west of Spain. The more central Estación de Atocha serves the south and east of Spain.

Destinations from Chamartín Bilbao (4 daily; 5hr–6hr 30min); El Escorial (hourly; 55min); León (12 daily; 2hr 15min–4hr 30min); Salamanca (12 daily; 1hr 35min–3hr 5min); Santander (7 daily; 4hr 10min–7hr); Segovia (1–2 hourly; 30min–2hr 5min).

Destinations from Atocha Barcelona (25 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr 10min); Cáceres (4 daily; 3hr 40min–4hr 10min); Cádiz (10 daily; 3hr 55min–5hr 30min); Córdoba (1–2 hourly; 1hr 40min–2hr); Granada (2 daily; 4hr); Lisbon (1 daily; 10hr 30min); Málaga (12 daily; 2hr 20min–2hr 50min); Mérida (3 daily; 4hr 40min–5hr 10min); Pamplona (7 daily; 3hr–4hr 10min); Paris (5 daily; 10hr–12hr 30min, change in Barcelona); San Sebastián (6 daily; 5hr 20min–7hr 30min); Santiago de Compostela (3 daily; 5hr–5hr 30min); Seville (22 daily; 2hr 30min); Toledo (13 daily; 30min); Valencia (15 daily; 1hr 40min–3hr 40min).

By bus Terminals are scattered throughout the city, but the two main stations are the Estación del Sur (⑩ Méndez Alvaro) on c/Méndez Alvaro, south of Estación de Atocha, for destinations south, east and west of Madrid, and the Intercambiador de Avenida de América (⑩ Avenida de América) for destinations in the north.

Destinations Alicante (5–8 daily; 5hr–6hr 30min); Almería (2 daily; 10hr 30min); Barcelona (20 daily; 7hr 30min–8hr); Bilbao (13 daily; 4hr 10min–4hr 45min); Cáceres (7 daily; 4hr–4hr 30min); Cádiz (13 daily; 12hr 45min–16hr 30min); El Escorial (hourly; 1hr); Granada (14 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr); León (10 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr 15min); Málaga (4–8 daily; 6hr); Mérida (3 daily; 4hr 15min–5hr); Pamplona (8 daily; 5hr–6hr 30min); Salamanca (22 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr); San Sebastián (9 daily; 6hr); Santander (8 daily; 5hr 45min); Santiago de Compostela (5 daily; 8–9hr); Segovia (10 daily; 1hr 30min); Seville (8 daily; 6hr); Toledo (every 30min 6.30am–10pm; 1hr–1hr 30min); Valencia (13 daily; 3hr 15min–4hr 15min).

INFORMATION

Tourist information Centro de Turismo de Madrid is at Plaza Mayor 27 (daily 9.30am–9.30pm; ☎ 914 544 410, www.esmadrid.com; ☎ Sol). Branches at Plaza de Colón (☎ Colón) and Terminal 4 at the airport (both daily 9.30am–8.30pm). Events listings are detailed in free English-language monthly In Madrid (☎ inmadrid.com) and Spanish Guía del Ocio (☎ guiadelocio.com).

GETTING AROUND

By bus Buses (☎ emtmadrid.es) operate from 6.30am to midnight; there are also 26 night buses known as búhos (owls) which run from Plaza de Cibeles (midnight–6am; every 15min). Single fare €1.50.

By metro The metro (☎ www.metromadrid.es) runs 6am–2am. Fares are €1.50–2 within central zone A, or €12.20 for a ten-journey ticket that is also valid on buses.

By taxi Taxi ranks are located throughout the city centre. Fares start from €2.40 7am–9pm during the week; higher fares in the evening and at weekends. Charges per km are €1.05–1.20; supplementary charges apply for journeys to and from train and bus stations. There's a €30 flat fare to and from the airport.

ACCOMMODATION

The best budget accommodation is in the area surrounding Plaza Santa Ana. Other good areas include Gran Vía and along c/Fuencarral towards Chueca and Malasaña.

HOSTELS

Cat's Hostel c/Cañizares 6 ☎ 913 692 807, catshostel.com; ☎ Antón Martín. Party hostel located in a converted eighteenth-century palace with beautiful central patio. Rooms are a bit cramped but there's a lively cellar bar, nightly tapas bar crawls, and free wi-fi. Dorms €30, doubles €80

The Hat Madrid c/Imperial 9 ☎ 917 728 572. The Hat has a sustainable focus, small, stylish dorms and a top location, but the real draw is its rooftop bar with spectacular city views. Dorms €20, doubles €60

EATING

Madrid has an incredible variety of restaurants, and it's easy to dine out on a tight budget. Most tapas bars are known for a particular speciality – Madrileños will have a drink and a tapa in one bar before moving on to another. Most places serve food 1–4pm and 8–11.30pm, unless otherwise stated.

CAFÉS AND TAPAS BARS

One of the best areas to enjoy tapas is La Latina, with myriad bars clustered along its little streets.

Chocolatería Valor Postigo de San Martín; ☎ Callao. One of the best spots in town for chocolate con churros, with an incredible array of dipping chocolate for the doughnuts.

La Cebra en el Tejado c/Santa Ana 29; ☎ La Latina. Relaxed café-bar serving cheap drinks (€1 beer or vermouth) and decent tapas. Try the €6 mezze plate for a bargain feed.

Mercado de San Miguel Plaza de San Miguel; ☎ Sol. Transformed into a gleaming modern venue with numerous food counters and perpetually busy tables, one of Madrid's oldest markets is now a top spot for tapas (from €1), drinks and people-watching.

Mesón del Champiñón c/Cava de San Miguel 1; ☎ Sol. Tuck into a plate of the house speciality (mushrooms with or without chorizo) washed down with a glass of wine. Mushrooms €6.

★ Taberna de La Concha c/de la Cava Baja 7; ☎ La Latina. Friendly tapas bar with downstairs seating and an array of tapas (some gluten-free). Try the baked red peppers with cheese and béchamel (€6). Kitchen 1pm–midnight.

RESTAURANTS

Casa Mingo Paseo de la Florida 34; ☎ Príncipe Pío. Asturian cider house with a cheap, no-nonsense menu. If the roast chicken doesn't grab you, go for the chorizo a la sidra (€8).

Celso y Manolo c/Libertad 1; ☎ Chueca. Stylish but surprisingly good-value restaurant offering a huge range of traditional raciones with a creative twist. Try the cod and green pepper omelette (€8).

Federal Café Pl. de las Comendadoras 9; ☎ Noviciado. If meaty tapas and fried foods are all too much, try this Australian-inspired oasis for tasty brunch options such as scrambled eggs with avocado and halloumi. Great quality coffee. Mon–Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 9am–5.30pm.

La Antigua Huevería c/San Vicente Ferrer 28; ☎ Tribunal. “The old egg shop” is a cosy little restaurant/bar serving great pizzas (from €10) and, appropriately, huevos rotos – eggs lightly scrambled over potato, onion and sometimes ham or sausage.

La Musa c/Manuela Malasaña 18 ☎ grupolamusa.com; ☎ Bilbao. Always heaving with a young clientele, and serving a deliciously different menu – try the fried green tomatoes with goat's cheese (€6.50). There's another branch on Pl. de la Paja.

La Paella de la Reina c/de la Reina 39; ☎ Gran Vía. This is where Madrileños head to sate their rice cravings. Like any good arrocería, this place only cooks paella for two people or more, so take a friend. The arroz negro (€18/person) is delicious.

★ La Pescadería c/Ballesta 32 ☎ lamuccacompany.com; ☎ Tribunal. Trendy restaurant with a buzzing atmosphere, strong service and great quality tapas and mains – all at a reasonable price. Try the cod fritters (€7.50).

Vega c/Luna 9; ☎ Callao. Vegan bar and restaurant, more hipster than hippy. The €12 menú del día features quinoa salads, stuffed aubergines and more. In the evening, take your pick of Vega's raciones washed down with craft beer.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Clubs open from midnight until well beyond dawn; the best areas are hipster Malasaña, gay-friendly Chueca and multicultural Lavapiés/Antón Martín.

BARS

Amor de Madre c/San Joaquín 14; ☎ Tribunal. A skateboarder's paradise in terms of decor, “mother's love” is a laidback, friendly bar right in the heart of Malasaña.

Café Manuela c/San Vicente Ferrer 29; ☎ Tribunal. Splashes of marble and gilt trims give this place a certain old-fashioned grandeur, but the vibe's relaxed. Enjoy a milkshake or cocktail over a board game.

El Imperfecto Pl. de Matute 2; ☎ Sol. Far from being imperfect, this is an excellent cocktail bar with an intriguingly decorated interior. There's occasional live music.

El Viajero Pl. de la Cebada 11; ☎ La Latina. Ideal spot for a beer on a warm night, when you can gaze out at the city's comings and goings from the open-air rooftop terrace.

Kikekeller c/Corredera Baja de San Pablo 17; ☎ Callao No, it's not a design shop, but a trendy bar where the furniture's for sale and the waiters wear leather skirts. Perfect people-watching territory.

★ La Venencia c/Echegaray 7; ☎ Sevilla or Sol. Old-school sherry bar where nothing seems to have changed for years (except perhaps the quantity of dust on the bottles behind the bar). Sherry from €1.70 a glass.

CLUBS

Joy Eslava c/Arenal 11; ☎ Sol. Former theatre converted into a glamorous nightclub, popular with an international crowd. Thursday is student night. Entry from €15 including drink.

Kapital c/Atocha 125; ☎ Atocha. Popular megaclub with seven levels and a roof terrace featuring different dancefloors – everything from hip-hop to salsa to r'n'b. All this fun doesn't come cheap – and you need to dress up – but the €20 admission includes a drink. Fri & Sat midnight–6am.

La Cartuja c/de la Cruz 10 ☎ Sol. Fun, unpretentious place popular with a young crowd, playing mostly chart music. Entry €8 with drink. Wed–Sat 10pm–6am.

Mi madre era una groupie c/Santa Polonia 5; ☎ Antón Martín. One for the less-than-hardcore clubbers, this little place has a friendly atmosphere and a playlist that features Britpop and classic hits. Free entry. Thurs–Sat until 3.30am.

Tupperware Corredera Alta de San Pablo 26; ☎ Tribunal. This little club is fun through-and-through, from its über-kitsch decor to its eclectic playlist – soul, indie and Sixties and Seventies classics, enjoyed by a 30-something crowd. Free entry. Daily 9pm–3am.

ROOFTOP BARS

During summer, Madrid's nightlife takes to the sky: rooftop bars are the places to see and be seen. The Azotea del Círculo de Bellas Artes (c/Alcalá 42) may charge a €4 entrance fee, but it boasts the best views of Madrid and drinks are reasonably priced compared to other roof terraces. The bars at Gymage (c/de la Luna 2) and Palacio de Cibeles (Plaza de Cibeles) are also worth checking out.

ENTERTAINMENT

Big rock concerts are usually held at Palacio Vistalegre, Utebo 1 (📍Oporto). Flamenco is at its best in the summer, especially during the Suma Flamenca, a fortnight of special concerts in June (📍esmadrid.com/agenda/sumaflamenca).

LIVE MUSIC

Café Central Pl. del Ángel 10 📍cafecentralmadrid.com; 📍Sol. Attracting big international musicians, this is one of the best places in the world to hear live jazz. Open from noon for drinks, with music nightly from 9–11pm; arrive early to secure weekend tickets (€12–17).

Café Popular c/de las Huertas 11 📍Sol. Well-established venue with nightly jazz performances. Free admission.

El Barco c/del Barco 34 📍barcobar.com; 📍Tribunal. Popular bar/club in Malasaña with a varied programme of gigs, from flamenco to rock. Nightly from 10pm.

La Fontana de Oro c/Victoria 3 📍Sol. Popular with a young crowd, this bar offers regular free concerts, specializing in rock.

Moby Dick Avda de Brasil 5 📍mobydickclub.com; 📍Santiago Bernabéu. Popular nautical-themed venue attracting live rock bands, both local and international.

FLAMENCO

Cardamomo c/Echegaray 15 📍cardamomo.es; 📍Sevilla. Atmospheric bar with nightly tablaos (performances). Pricey (from €25 including drink), but the shows are some of the city's most recommended. Three shows daily from 6pm.

Casa Patas c/Cañizares 10 📍casapatas.com; 📍Antón Martín. Classic flamenco club with bar and restaurant, and incredible shows. Best nights Thurs & Fri from 8.30pm; can get rather crowded. Entrance €38 including drink. Check website for performance times.

Taberna La Flamenca 3.0 Ronda de Segovia 28; 📍Puerta de Toledo. This popular bar offers a budget flamenco alternative, with occasional shows in an intimate atmosphere. Check their Facebook page for details.

CINEMA

Cine Doré c/Santa Isabel 3; 📍Antón Martín. Offers a bargain (€2.50) programme of classic films, a pleasant bar and, in summer, an outdoor cine-terrazza; home to the national film library.

Cines Princesa c/de la Princesa 3; 📍Plaza de España. Films shown in their original language – from English-language Hollywood blockbusters to international art films.

La Enana Marrón Travesía de San Mateo 8 📍laenanamarron.org; 📍Alonso Martínez. Artsy and independent Spanish-language films and alternative theatre.

BULLFIGHTING

Plaza de Toros Monumental de las Ventas c/de Alcalá 237; 📍Ventas. Hosts regular bullfights during summer, especially during the May/June San Isidro festivities; ticket prices start from around €3 for standing sol (sun) tickets, with sombra (shade) tickets from €5. Tickets for all but the biggest events are available at the box office (📞913 562 200, 📍las-ventas.com). To find out about the history of bullfighting with none of the gore, visit the museum (Mon–Fri 9.30am–2.30pm; free).

SHOPPING

The main shopping streets are Gran Vía (where you'll find chain stores) and c/Fuencarral (for Spanish and international brands and designers, plus some independent shops). If you're looking for quirky clothing or jewellery, try the boutiques and vintage stores of Chueca and Malasaña. The area from Plaza Mayor to Puerta de Toledo is filled with shops selling everything from religious icons to embroidered shawls – great for browsing and picking up the odd authentic souvenir, but often quite expensive.

Alpargatería Casa HERNANZA c/de Toledo 18; 📍Opera. This purveyor of traditional rope-soled sandals and shoes has been in business since 1840.

Casa de Diego Puerta del Sol 12; 📍Sol. The place to go for handcrafted abanicos (fans). Prices for more basic models start at under €10.

Casa del Libro Gran Vía 29; 📍Gran Vía. A huge bookshop with a large selection in English.

El Templo de Susu c/del Espíritu Santo 1; 📍Tribunal. One of Malasaña's best-stocked vintage emporiums.

Petra's International Bookshop c/de Compañones 13; 📍Ópera. Lets you swap your old books for other secondhand ones.

Day-trips from Madrid

Surrounding the capital are some of Spain's most fascinating towns and cities, all an easy day-trip from Madrid.

EL ESCORIAL

Fifty kilometres northwest of Madrid, nestled in the foothills of the Sierra de Guadarrama, are SAN LORENZO DEL ESCORIAL and the monastery of El Escorial (Tues–Sun: April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct–March 10am–6pm; €10, free Wed pm for EU citizens). The city grew around this enormous, severe-looking building, which resembles a fortress rather than a palace. Start at the monastery's west gateway, which leads into the Patio de los Reyes and the impressive Basilica. Move on to the Salas Capitulares, outside and around to the left, to see works by El Greco, Velázquez and Ribera. Nearby, the staircase next to the Sacristía leads down to the Panteón de los Reyes, the final resting place of virtually all Spanish monarchs since Charles V, where they lie in gilded tombs. You'll pass the Prudería, where corpses are left to rot for twenty years, and the eerie Panteón de los Infantes, with its tiny marble coffins. The spartan Habsburg apartments inside the Palace itself, inhabited by Philip II, house the chair that supported his gouty leg and the deathbed from which he looked down into the church.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train From both of Madrid's train stations, C8 cercanías run to El Escorial (hourly; 1hr; €3.40). Take a connecting local bus up to the town centre (€1.20); otherwise it's a 20min walk uphill.

By bus Bus #661 runs between Mondcloa and the bus station in El Escorial (Mon–Fri every 15min Sat & Sun hourly; 50min; €3.60). From here, it's a 10min walk to the monastery.

Tourist office c/Grimaldi 2 (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 3.30–6pm, Sun 10am–2pm; 📞 918 905 313, 🌐 sanlorenzoturismo.org).

SEGOVIA

Located 87km northwest of Madrid, SEGOVIA has a remarkable number of architectural achievements for a small city. Known to locals as the “stone ship”, from a bird's-eye view the city resembles a boat, with its three most celebrated attractions at the stern, bow and mast: the Alcázar, Aqueduct and cathedral, respectively.

The Aqueduct

The Aqueduct, a magnificent structure that looms over the Plaza del Azoguejo, stretches over 800m and towers 30m high. As if these dimensions weren't impressive enough, the entire structure stands up without a drop of mortar. No one knows exactly when it was built, but it was probably around the end of the first century AD under the Emperor Trajan.

The cathedral

Dominating the Plaza Mayor in the heart of the old city, the impressive cathedral (daily 9.30am–6.30pm; €3) takes the Gothic style to its extreme, with pinnacles and flying buttresses tacked on at every conceivable point.

The Alcázar

Beside the cathedral, c/Daoiz leads on to a small park in front of the Alcázar (daily 10am–7pm; €5.50, free for EU citizens Tues 2–6pm; tower access €2 extra). This extraordinary castle with narrow towers and turrets, rebuilt in 1862 after the original was destroyed by fire, is said to have inspired Walt Disney's design for Sleeping Beauty's castle. Inside, you can admire the splendid Sala de Reyes, the three-dimensional frieze depicting all the monarchs of Asturias, Castilla and León, the peculiar “pine cones” decorating the ceiling in the Sala de Las Piñas, and the unsurpassed view of the city and the snow-tipped mountains behind it from the summit of the Torre de Juan II. It's worth investing in an audioguide (€3), as information inside is scarce.

Vera Cruz

The most impressive of Segovia's churches is Vera Cruz (Tues 4–7pm, Wed–Sun 10.30am–1.30pm & 4–7pm; €2), a remarkable twelve-sided building in the valley facing the Alcázar, erected by the Knights Templar in the early thirteenth century.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The fast AVE train (up to 17 daily; 28min; from €12) from Madrid Chamartín stops at Segovia-Guiomar station, 6km from town: take bus #11 to the Aqueduct (every 15min; €1).

By bus Frequent buses (every 45min; 1hr 30min; €8) run from Madrid's Moncloa bus station (Ⓜ Moncloa). The entrance to the old city is a 10min walk up Avda de Fernández Ladreda.

Tourist office Plaza del Azoguejo 1 (daily 10am–7pm, Sat until 8pm; ☎ 921 466 720, Ⓜ turismodesegovia.com); guided city tours available (€13.80/person).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Hostal Juan Bravo c/de Juan Bravo 12 ☎ 921 463 413, Ⓜ hostaljuanbravo.blogspot.com.es. Superbly located, friendly hostal, its spotless rooms brightened up with cheerful art prints. Request one of the back rooms for the awesome views of the Sierra de Guadarrama. Doubles €45, with shared bathroom €35.

La Judería c/Judería Vieja 5. Great for vegetarians, this restaurant offers fresh Indian cuisine, with a few Spanish dishes thrown in for good measure. The €9 lunch deal will fill you up for an afternoon's sightseeing. Daily 1–3.30pm & 8–11pm.

Maribel c/Padre Claret 16. A local favourite which specializes in Segovia's delicacy of cochinillo asado (suckling pig), although the roast lamb is also excellent. Prices are moderate too – around the €12 mark for generous portions. Mon lunch only, closed Tues, otherwise 1–4pm & 8–11pm.

TOLEDO

Capital of medieval Spain until 1560, UNESCO World Heritage Site TOLEDO is the spiritual heart of Catholic Spain and a city redolent of past glories. Famous for having been home to the “three cultures” over the years, Toledo retains a captivating selection of Christian, Jewish and Muslim monuments. Set against a bleak landscape, Toledo's haphazard maze of cobbled streets rests on a rocky mound isolated on three sides by a looping gorge of the Río Tajo. The imposing military fortress of the Alcázar dominates the view. To see the city at its finest, lose yourself in the backstreets or stay the night; by 6pm, the tour buses have all gone home.

The Cathedral

The Catedral is at the heart of the city (Mon–Sat 10am–6.30pm, Sun 2–6.30pm; €8 including audioguide). This Gothic construction took almost three centuries to complete (1227–1493) and is bursting with treasures. The sacristy and museums are home to the most opulent paintings, most notably by Zurbarán, Velázquez and El Greco. Behind the Capilla Mayor's huge altarpiece is the Baroque Transparente, with marble cherubs and clouds, especially magnificent when the sun reaches through the strategically placed opening in the roof above.

The Judería

On c/Samuel Levi in the Judería, the old Jewish Quarter, the beautifully restored Sinagoga del Tránsito, built along Moorish lines by Samuel Levi in 1366 and housing the Sephardic Museum (March–Oct Tues–Sat 9.30am–7.30pm; Nov–Feb Tues–Sat 9.30am–6pm; all year Sun 10am–3pm; €3, free Sat from 2pm), maps Jewish culture and tradition in Spain, exhibits including ceremonial artefacts and costumes. A short walk away at c/Reyes Católicos 17 is the

THE TOLEDO MONUMENTAL

The Toledo Monumental tourist bracelet (€9) allows you access to the Sinagoga Santa María la Blanca, Mezquita Cristo de la Luz, San Juan de los Reyes Monastery, Iglesia del Salvador, Iglesia de las Jesuitas, Real Colegio de las Doncellas Nobles and El Greco's painting, The Burial of the Count of Orgaz.

beautiful San Juan de los Reyes Monastery (daily: March–Oct 10am–6.45pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5.45pm; €2.50), whose quiet cloister is intricately carved.

Mezquita Cristo de la Luz

The tiny Mezquita Cristo de la Luz mosque, Cuesta de Carmelitas Descalzos 10 (daily: March–Oct 10am–2pm & 3.30–6.45pm; Nov–Feb 10am–2pm & 3.30–5.45pm; €2.50), built in 999 AD, is one of the oldest Moorish monuments surviving in Spain. Its original arches are still intact (as well as some Moorish graffiti).

El Greco in Toledo

The artist spent much of his life here, so Toledo retains many of El Greco's works today. The Museo de Santa Cruz (Mon–Sat 10am–6.30pm, Sun 10am–2pm; free) houses an excellent collection of his works, but to see his masterpiece, The Burial of the Count of Orgaz, you need to visit the fourteenth-century Iglesia de Santo Tomé, west of the cathedral (daily March–Oct 10am–6.45pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5.45pm; €2.50).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Avant trains run regularly from Estación de Atocha in Madrid (hourly; 30min; €12.90), with the last return train at 9.50pm. Book tickets in advance at weekends. From Toledo's train station east of town, it's an uphill 20min walk to the central Plaza Zocódober (bus #5 or #61; €1.50).

By bus The bus station is on Avda de Castilla la Mancha in the modern part of the city, a 10min walk north of Plaza Zocódober via c/Armas. Buses depart from Madrid's Plaza Elíptica (every 30min, 6am–10pm; 1hr–1hr 30min; €5.42), with the last bus back to the capital at 10.30pm.

Tourist office Pl. del Consistorio 1 (daily 10am–6pm; ☎ 925 254 030, 🌐 toledo-turismo.com). Has free wi-fi. There's also a branch at the train station (daily 9.30am–3pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostal Centro c/Nueva 13 ☎ 925 257 091, 🌐 hostalcentrotoledo.com. In the heart of Toledo's old town, this well-kept hostal is a bargain. Air-conditioning and private bathrooms make it a great choice. Doubles €40

EATING

El Zoco Pl. Barrio Rey 7. Just off Plaza de Zocódober, El Zoco offers better value than the restaurants on its neighbouring square and serves the local speciality, perdiz (partridge). Menú del día from €10. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

Mercado de San Agustín c/Cuesta del Águila 1 & 3. Wander this gourmet market and pick up a tapa or two at its stalls, washed down with a glass of wine. There's also a terrace, perfect if it's sunny.

CUENCA

Sitting between the Río Huécar and the Río Júcar gorges, CUENCA is enchanting. With its winding, narrow streets, the compact Old Town clusters on a hill, the land falling away on both sides and affording expansive views of the valleys below.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Cuenca's pièce de résistance is its sixteenth-century casas colgadas (hanging houses) that cling precariously to the cliff above Río Huécar, best viewed from the pedestrian Puente de San Pablo bridge that spans the gorge below. The best views of the gorge itself are from the mirador at the top of the main street. The sites below are all close to each other in the Old Town.

Museo de Arte Abstracto Español

One of the hanging houses contains the superb Museo de Arte Abstracto Español (Tues–Fri 11am–2pm & 4–6pm, Sat 11am–2pm & 4–8pm, Sun 11am–2.30pm; free; 🌐 march.es), which is worth visiting even if abstract art is not your thing. The collection includes the delicate Jardín Seco by Fernando Zóbel and Manuel Rivera's sinister wire-mesh-and-paint Metamorfosis.

Museo Provincial de Cuenca

On c/del Obispo Valero 6, the absorbing Museo Provincial de Cuenca (Tues–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–7pm, Sun 11am–2pm; €1.20, free Sat & Sun) has well-displayed archaeological exhibits spanning the town's history from the Bronze Age to the eighteenth century. Highlights include an extensive Roman collection and a large hoard of gold coins, uncovered in 2010.

The Cathedral

The mostly Gothic Catedral (daily: June–Sept 10am–1pm & 4–7pm; Oct–May 10am–1pm & 4–6pm; €3.80 including audioguide), built on the base of a former mosque, dominates the main square and features some splendid stained-glass windows.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Slow trains for Madrid use the station on central c/Mariano Catalina, a block from the bus station. High-speed trains arrive at the AVE station 3km outside of Cuenca; the #12 bus connects it to the town's bus station (every 30min, less frequent in winter; €1.20), from where you can catch bus #1 to the Old Town.

Destinations Madrid (6 daily; 1hr 10min–3hr 30min); Valencia (6 daily; 1hr 15min–4hr).

By bus The bus station is on c/Fermín Caballero, a 10min walk from Cuenca's Old Town.

Destinations Madrid (8 daily; 2hr 10min–2hr 30min); Toledo (1 daily; 2hr–3hr 20min).

Tourist office c/Alfonso VIII 2 (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 5–7pm, Sun 9am–2.30pm; shorter hours in winter; ☎ 969 176 100, ☉ turismo.cuenca.es). Pick up the free booklet Paseos por Cuenca, which details walks starting from the Old Town.

ACCOMMODATION, EATING AND DRINKING

Bar Clásicos c/Severo Catalina 5. Little bar serving good-value lunch menus (€10). Arrive early to grab a table on the terrace overlooking the Río Júcar. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

La Bodeguita de Basilio c/Fray Luis de León 3. One of the town's best watering holes, this place is ideal for those on a budget – each drink (around €3) comes with a sizeable free tapa. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

Posada de San Julián c/de las Torres 1 ☎ 969 211 704, ☉ posadasanjulian.es. At the foot of the hill leading up into the Old Town, this comfortable place has simple rooms with their own toilets (but shared showers), wi-fi access and a popular restaurant on the ground floor. Doubles €42

Extremadura

The harsh environment of Extremadura, west of Madrid, is known as the “cradle of the conquistadors”. Remote before and forgotten since, the area enjoyed a brief golden age when the conquerors of the Americas returned with their gold to live in a flourish of splendour. Cáceres preserves an entire town built with conquistador wealth, the streets crowded with the ornate mansions of returning empire-builders. An even more ancient past is tangible in the wonders of Mérida, the most completely preserved Roman city in Spain. The province attracts fewer tourists in June and July, as temperatures get unbearably hot.

CÁCERES

Old CÁCERES was built largely on the plunders of the New World and is home to the University of Extremadura. The Ciudad Monumental – a maze of tiny, winding streets, lined with immaculate historical buildings – is enclosed by medieval stone walls, with storks nesting on every rooftop. Beautiful Cáceres may appear staid, but there's a lively restaurant and bar scene, with locals getting the party started after lunch every Saturday.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Almost every building in the Plaza Mayor is magnificent, featuring ancient walls pierced by the low Arco de la Estrella, the Torre del Horno, one of the best-preserved Moorish mud-brick structures in Spain, and the Torre del Bujaco – whose foundations date back to Roman times and which you can climb for a great view of the city (daily 10am–2pm & 5.30–8.30pm; €2.50). Enter the UNESCO World Heritage-listed Ciudad Monumental via the old city gate, the Arco de la Estrella. For a great view of the walled city, climb the tower at the Concatedral de Santa María (Mon–Sat 10.30am–1.30pm & 5.30–7.30pm; €2). North of here, you'll find the judería (former Jewish quarter) – narrow lanes of whitewashed houses with window boxes of bright flowers. Another sight worth seeking out is the Museo de Cáceres (Tues–Sat 9am–3.30pm & 5–8.30pm, Sun 10.15am–3.30pm; €1.20, EU citizens free), on the Plaza de las Veletas, which has jewellery, statuary, national costume and fine arts sections and whose highlight is the aljibe (cistern) of the original Moorish Alcázar, with rooms of wonderful horseshoe arches.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is 3km out of town. Bus #L1 runs every 15min to central Plaza de San Juan, near the Plaza Mayor.

Destinations Madrid (4 daily; 3hr 40min–4hr 10min); Mérida (5 daily; 1hr).

By bus The station faces the train station across the Carretera Sevilla.

Destinations Madrid (7 daily; 3hr 40min–5hr); Salamanca (4 daily; 3hr 30min); Seville (8 daily; 4hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office c/Tiendas 3 (daily 10am–2pm & 5.30–8.30pm; ☎ 927 111 222, 🌐 turismo.ayto-caceres.es).

ACCOMMODATION

Albergue Las Veletas c/Margallo 36 ☎ 927 211 210, 🌐 alberguelasveletas.es. Bright, spacious dorms and rooms with modern furnishings and a/c. Friendly staff make it popular with groups of young Spaniards. Breakfast for €3.50. Dorms €21, doubles €50

Hostal Goya Plaza Mayor 11 ☎ 927 247 482. Simple, old-fashioned en-suite rooms with a/c. In a prime location: you pay €10 extra for a view of Plaza Mayor. Doubles €48

EATING AND DRINKING

If you're in Cáceres over the weekend, be sure to check out the lively day-to-night scene around Calle Pizarro.

Bouquet Pl. de Publio Hurtado 1. A stone's throw from the Plaza Mayor, Bouquet offers top tapas and salads in the more informal tapería, or full meals in the restaurant. Try the tuna and strawberry salad.

★ La Cacharrería c/Orellana 1. Make sure to arrive early at this justifiably popular tapas bar, where the modern decor and tapas contrast with its Ciudad Monumental location. Good selection of local wines. Pork cheeks with coriander €4.50. Daily 1.30–4pm & 8.30pm–midnight.

Mastropiero c/Fuente Nueva 4. Two venues in one: the upstairs gastrobar serves tapas and main meals with an international influence (around €6 per dish), while the downstairs bar is a staple on the Cáceres nightlife scene. The garden terrace is a popular spot on summer nights. Daily 7pm–2.30am.

Restaurante Tapería Ibérico Pl. San Juan 12. Extremadura's local cuisine is meat-heavy, and there's no better place for a feast than this traditional restaurant serving local specialties. Try the excellent hams and cheeses. Menú del día €12.50. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

MÉRIDA

MÉRIDA, 70km south of Cáceres, contains one of Europe's most remarkable concentrations of Roman monuments, including two impressive aqueducts and a theatre which still stages performances.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The beautiful Teatro Romano and Anfiteatro were gifts to the city from Marcus Agrippa in around 15 BC. The stage is in a particularly good state of repair, and in July and August it's the scene for a season of classical plays (🎫 festivaldemerida.es; tickets from €12). In its day, up to fifteen thousand people would gather in the adjacent amphitheatre to watch gladiatorial combats and wild animal fights. By the theatre's entrance is the superb Museo Nacional de Arte Romano (April–Sept Tues–Sat 9.30am–8pm, Sun 10am–3pm; Oct–March Tues–Sat 9.30am–6.30pm, Sun 10am–3pm; €3, free Sat pm, Sun and for EU students), with an impressive collection including portrait statues of Augustus, Tiberius and Drusus, plus some glorious mosaics, coins and other Roman artefacts. Further south, behind the Plaza de Toros, is the Casa de Mitreo – the remains of a Roman villa with an impressive mosaic. To the east of town you'll find the outline of the Circo Romano, which accommodated up to 30,000 people during chariot races. Also worth seeing is the magnificent Puente Romano, the pedestrian Roman bridge across the Río Guadiana on the city's west side – sixty arches long, and defended by an enormous Moorish Alcazaba fortress, built in 835 AD.

An Entrada Conjunta gives access to all six archaeological sites (check at tourist office for latest timetables, which are changeable; combined ticket €15).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is a 10min walk along c/Mártir Santa Eulalia from the town centre.

Destinations Cáceres (4 daily; 1hr); Madrid (4 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr 30min).

By bus Mérida's bus station is on Avda de la Libertad, a 15min walk across the Lusitania bridge or a short bus ride (bus #4 or #6) to the city centre.

Destinations Madrid (3 daily; 4hr 15min–5hr); Salamanca (5 daily; 4hr 10min–5hr); Seville (5 daily; 2hr 15min–2hr 45min).

Pizzeria Galileo c/John Lennon 28. Choose from over thirty pizzas and calzones, with prices as low as €4. Make sure to visit the basement for an exclusive glimpse of the Roman ruins. Tues–Sun 1–4pm & 8pm–midnight.

Castilla y León

The foundations of modern Spain were laid in the kingdom of Castilla y León, west and north of Madrid. A land of frontier fortresses – the castillos from which it takes its name – it became the most powerful and centralizing force of the Reconquest. The monarchs of this triumphant and expansionist age were enthusiastic patrons of the arts, endowing their cities with superlative monuments above which, quite literally, tower the great Gothic cathedrals of Salamanca and León.

SALAMANCA

SALAMANCA is home to arguably the oldest and what was once the most prestigious university in Europe. It's a compact city, home to many golden sandstone monuments and an attractive arcaded Plaza Mayor. As if that weren't enough, Salamanca's student population ensures an active nightlife during term time.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

For a postcard-worthy view of Salamanca, cross the city's oldest surviving monument, the much-restored, 400m-long Puente Romano (Roman Bridge) at the southern end of the Old Town. Then start your exploration proper at the grand Plaza Mayor, its centre enclosed by a four-storey Baroque building decorated with iron balconies and medallion portraits, the restrained elegance of the designs heightened by the changing position of the sun. Be sure to wander Salamanca's streets by night, when the glorious architecture is subtly lit by street lights; the pedestrianized Calle de la Compañía has the best views.

Casa de las Conchas and the Universidad

The celebrated fifteenth-century Casa de las Conchas at c/Compañía 2 (Mon–Fri 9am–9pm, Sat 9am–2pm & 4–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm & 4–7pm; free), or House of Shells, is so called because its facades are decorated with rows of carved scallop shells, symbol of the pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela. It now houses a library. From here, c/Libreros leads to the Patio de las Escuelas Menores and the Renaissance entrance to the Universidad (April–Oct 15 Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, until 8pm rest of year, Sun 10am–2pm; €10). The ultimate achievement of Plateresque art, a Spanish style characterized by ornate decoration, this reflects the tremendous reputation of Salamanca in the early sixteenth century, when it was Europe's greatest university with the most important astronomy department in the world, consulted by Columbus before he set off on his sea voyage. Spotting the legendary “rana de suerte” (lucky frog) on its intricately sculpted facade allegedly brings you a year of good luck (spoiler: look closely at the skulls on the right column). The university's highlight is its incredible library, with its carved wooden ceiling and a collection of around 2800 manuscripts, a contrast to the rather plain lecture theatres also open to visitors.

The cathedrals

Sumptuous and intricate, the late Gothic Catedral Nueva (daily: April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct–March 10am–6pm; €4.75) was begun in 1512, and acted as a buttress for the Catedral Vieja, which was in danger of collapsing. Entry to the

Catedral Vieja (same hours and ticket) is inside the Catedral Nueva. Tiny by comparison and a stylistic hotch-potch of Romanesque and Gothic, its most striking feature is the fifteenth-century Renaissance altarpiece, its 54 tablets depicting the life of Christ. As you look at the Catedral Nueva from the Plaza de Anaya, try to spot the ice-cream cone and the astronaut, carved into the Puerta de Ramos during the last restoration. Inside the cathedral, you will find yourself dwarfed by its monolithic proportions. Entry to the cathedral complex also includes the leronimus exhibition (same hours), a visit to which affords views of both the old and new cathedrals and excellent views over Old Salamanca, plus history and art exhibitions hidden in a maze of little rooms.

The convents

The Convento de San Esteban (daily 10am–2pm & 4–8pm; €3.50) is a short walk down c/Tostado from the Plaza de Anaya. Its Gothic-Renaissance cloisters may be magnificent, but they're rivalled by those at the Convento de las Dueñas (Mon–Sat 10.30am–12.45pm & 4.30–5.30pm; €2). Built on an irregular pentagonal plan, its upper-storey capitals are wildly carved with writhing demons and human skulls.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The main Salamanca station is 15min walk northeast of the centre. Bus #11 runs to the historical centre. The Salamanca–Alamedilla stop is more central; a 10min walk to Plaza Mayor down Gran Vía.

Destinations Barcelona (1 daily; 8hr 30min); Bilbao (3 daily; 4hr 55min–6hr 18min); Madrid (10 daily; 1hr 35min–3hr 45min); San Sebastián (3 daily; 5hr 20min–6hr 20min).

By bus The station is a 10min walk northwest from the centre on Avda de Filiberto Villalobos. Bus #4 runs along the Old Town perimeter.

Destinations Cáceres (8 daily; 3hr–3hr 30min); León via Zamora (1–2 daily; 3hr 15min); Madrid (15 daily; 2hr 30min); Mérida (6 daily; 4hr 30min); Santiago de Compostela (1 daily; 7hr); Seville (6 daily; 7hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Central, chic boutique hostel with brightly decorated en-suite rooms and dorms, a trendy common lounge with egg-like seats and outdoor chill-out terrace. The friendly staff are happy to mix you a cocktail at the bustling on-site bar. Dorms €24, doubles €55

EATING AND DRINKING

For cheap tapas and drinks, try student-friendly street c/Van Dyck.

Delicatessen c/Mélendez 25. Chic, modern tapas bar and restaurant serving salads, pasta, meat and fish dishes. Arrive early to bag a table in the pretty winter garden. Daily 10am–2am.

El Laurel c/San Pablo 49. Smart, well-priced vegetarian restaurant with a wide variety of dishes served in huge portions, including pumpkin and courgette risotto (€8.75). Tues–Sat 1.30–5pm & 9pm–12.30am, lunch only on Sun.

Hispania 20 Pl. del Corillo 20. Skip the more formal restaurant and try some tapas in the bar. To keep the menu interesting, the chef takes inspiration from all the different regions of Spain. €3 per tap. Daily 9am–11.30pm.

★ Mandala Café c/de Serranos 9–11. With an emphasis on fresh ingredients, this bright spot gets busy due to its superb three-course menú (€10.50 mid-week, €12.50 Friday night and weekends), which includes dishes like arroz negro, and a number of vegetarian choices – try the stuffed aubergine. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

LEÓN

The old town of LEÓN is steeped in history: in 914 AD, as the Reconquest edged its way south from Asturias, the city became the Christian capital, and along with its territories it grew so rapidly that by 1035 the county of Castile had matured into a fully fledged kingdom. For the next two centuries, Castilla y León jointly spearheaded the war against the Moors, but by the thirteenth century Castilla's power had eclipsed that of even her mother territory.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Historic sights aside – most notably the monumental Catedral – León has an attractive and enjoyable centre. Its Barrio Húmedo is where to head for a lively spot of tapas bar-hopping.

The Catedral

León's enormous Gothic Catedral (May–Sept Mon–Fri 9.30am–1.30pm & 4–8pm, Sat 9.30am–noon & 2–6pm, Sun 9.30–11am & 2–8pm; Oct–April Mon–Sat 9.30am–1.30pm & 4–7pm, Sun 9.30am–2pm; €6, including audioguide) dominates the Old Town. Dating back to the city's final years of greatness, it is perhaps the most beautiful of Spanish Gothic cathedrals. The kaleidoscopic stained-glass windows, covering an amazing 1800 square metres, are one of the most magical and harmonious spectacles in Spain, best appreciated from the inside. The audioguide provides an informative tour.

Real Basílica de San Isidoro

The city's other great attraction is the Real Basílica de San Isidoro (daily 7.30am–11pm; free), a few minutes' walk west from the Catedral. It was commissioned by Ferdinand I, who united the two kingdoms in 1037, as a shrine for the bones of San Isidoro, and royal mausoleum. Its Panteón Real (July–Sept Mon–Thurs 10am–2pm & 4–7pm, Fri & Sat until 8pm, Sun 10am–3pm; Oct–April Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; €5), a pair of twelfth-century, crypt-like chambers, features some of the most imaginative and impressive paintings of Romanesque art, as well as a mummified finger of San Isidoro. It once contained the bones of eleven kings and twelve queens, but now lies empty, the French troops having destroyed the graves during the Napoleonic wars.

Convento de San Marcos

The opulent Convento de San Marcos, on the Plaza de San Marcos west of the city's old pedestrianized quarter, was built in 1168 for the Knights of Santiago, one of several chivalric orders founded in the twelfth century to lead the Reconquest.

It served as a resting point for weary pilgrims on their way to Santiago de Compostela, and is now part of a sumptuous Parador hotel, though non-guests can peek inside at the beautiful cloisters. The church's sacristy houses the small Museo de León (July–Sept Tues–Sat 10am–2pm & 5–8pm; Oct–June Tues–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; €0.60), containing some beautiful statuary and portraits of the Knights of Santiago.

Museo de Arte Contemporáneo (MUSAC)

A short walk north of the Convento de San Marcos is the award-winning Museo de Arte Contemporáneo (Tues–Fri 11am–2pm & 5–8pm, Sat & Sun 11am–3pm & 5–9pm; €3, free Sun pm; musac.es), its exterior covered with 37 shades of glass, known for its excellent, thought-provoking temporary exhibitions by contemporary artists, which include Spanish and international photography, sculpture and video installations.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is at the end of Avda de Palencia across the bridge from the city centre. The casco antiguo (old city) is a 10min walk along Avda de Ordoño II.

Destinations Barcelona (3 daily; 8hr–8hr 40min); Bilbao (1 daily; 4hr 50min); Madrid (15 daily; 2hr 10min–5hr); San Sebastián (1 daily; 5hr); Santiago de Compostela (1 daily; 5hr 40min).

By bus The bus station is near the train station on Paseo Ingeniero Saenz de Miera.

Destinations Cáceres (3 daily; 6hr 15min); Madrid (10 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Santander (7 daily; 5hr–5hr 40min); Seville (3 daily; 10hr 30min); Zaragoza (3 daily, 6hr 15min–9hr 15min).

EATING AND DRINKING

Free tapas is the name of the game in the Barrio Húmedo around Plaza San Martín.

Bar Altar c/Platerías 2. Lively, friendly tapas bar a few metres from the Plaza Mayor with a range of free tapas plus cheap montaditos (small sandwiches). Daily 11–11.30pm.

El Llar Plaza San Martín 9. Stalwart Leonese bar with dark wood interior and terracotta walls. The patatas alioli (potatoes with garlic mayonnaise) – free with every drink – are brilliant. Daily 1–4pm & 7.30pm–1am.

El Rincón del Gaucho c/Azabachería 1. Barrio Húmedo classic, specializing in sopa de ajo (garlic soup), although the other tapas are great too (free with a drink, or €2.50–3 a dish). Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

Parilla Louzao c/Juan Madrazo 4. Smart but moderately priced restaurant serving local meat dishes in large portions. Try the pork chops (€25 to share). Daily 1–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

Andalucía

The southern region of Andalucía, the sun-kissed, passionate home of flamenco and bullfighting, is all tradition and fierce pride. Evidence of the Moors' sophistication remains visible to this day in Córdoba, Seville, and, particularly, in Granada's Alhambra. Extending to either side of Málaga is the Costa del Sol, Europe's most developed resort area, but you can find unspoiled beaches even there, and along the Costa de la Luz, on the way to Cádiz, one of Spain's oldest cities. Andalucía is also where Europe stops and Africa begins: from Tarifa, a kite-surfer's paradise on Europe's most southerly tip, that great continent appears almost close enough to touch.

SEVILLE (SEVILLA)

SEVILLE (Sevilla) is the great city of the Spanish south, one of the earliest Moorish conquests (in 712 AD) and, as part of the Caliphate of Córdoba, the second city of al-Andalus. Under the Almohad dynasty, Seville became the capital of the last real Moorish empire in Spain from 1170 until 1212 before being conquered by Fernando III in 1248. Its monopoly on trade with the New World meant the city grew in wealth and influence; centuries on, it remains one of the most prosperous and beautiful of Spain's cities. Illustrious history aside, it is Seville's vitality that remains the great attraction, expressed on a grand scale at the city's two great festivals: Semana Santa, the week before Easter, and the Feria de Abril, a week at the end of April. While thoroughly modern, the soul of the city lies in its latticework of narrow streets, patios and plazas, where minarets jostle for space among cupolas and orange trees, and in its atmospheric flamenco bars.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Seville's three architectural gems – the Alcázar, Catedral and La Giralda – occupy the southern corner of the maze-like Barrio Santa Cruz.

La Giralda and the Catedral

Topped with four copper spheres, the 90m-tall La Giralda (Puerta de San Cristóbal; Mon 11am–3.30pm, Tues–Sat 11am–5pm, Sun 2.30–6pm; €9; catedraldesevilla.es), erected by the Almohads between 1184 and 1198, still dominates the skyline today, and you can ascend the former minaret for a view of the city. The Giralda was so venerated by the Moors that they wanted to destroy it before the Christian conquest of the city. Instead, in 1402 it became the bell tower of the Catedral, the world's largest Gothic church, and the world's largest cathedral by volume. Its centre is dominated by a vast Gothic retablo composed of 45 carved scenes from the life of Christ, making up the largest altarpiece in the world. The cathedral is also the final resting place of Christopher Columbus. On your way

SEMANA SANTA SURVIVAL

Semana Santa (Holy Week) is the most exciting time to be in Seville, with its eerie processions of hooded faithful from different hermandades (brotherhoods). To navigate your way around during this frenetic time, here are some tips:

- Do your sightseeing in the mornings, since most processions take place in the afternoons and evenings.
- Find out the day's procession routes and make sure you know how to get back to your accommodation.
- Stock up on water and snacks, as many central shops will be closed.
- To get past a procession, shuffle along the side, NOT down the middle.
- Don't sit on the wooden chairs along the procession routes; people will have paid between €70 and €800 for each seat.
- Splurge on a balcony space for an unobstructed view – locals rent theirs out; expect to pay around €60.

32

out, linger inside the Patio de los Naranjas – the courtyard studded with 66 orange trees where ablutions would have been performed before entering the mosque.

The Alcázar

Across Plaza del Triunfo from the cathedral lies the Alcázar (daily: April–Sept 9.30am–7pm; Oct–March 9.30am–5pm; €9.50; alcazarsevilla.org), a site that rulers of Seville have occupied from Roman times. Often rebuilt and added to, under the Almohad dynasty, the complex was turned into an enormous citadel, forming the heart of the town's fortifications. Parts of the walls survive, but the palace was rebuilt in the Christian period by Pedro the Cruel (1350–69). His works, some of the best surviving examples of Mudéjar architecture, form the nucleus of the Alcázar today. The perfectly proportioned patios, beautiful tile work, gilded ceilings, tranquil gardens and calligraphy carved into the walls – reminiscent of Granada's Palacios Nazaríes – encourage hours of wandering.

Torre del Oro

By the river, west of the Cathedral, stands the twelve-sided Torre del Oro (Paseo de Cristóbal Colón s/n; Mon–Fri 9.30am–6.45pm, Sat & Sun 10.30am–6.45pm; €3), built in 1220 as part of the Alcázar fortifications and named after the gold brought back from the Americas was stored here. There are excellent views from the top, and the nautical museum inside features models of ships from the Spanish Armada, early diving equipment and seafarers' maps.

Plaza de Toros de la Maestranza

Even if you're not planning on attending a corrida (see box, p.1028), it's worth taking a tour of Seville's venerable bullring (Paseo de Cristóbal Colón 12; tours every 20min, daily: Nov–March 9.30am–7pm; April–Oct 9.30am–9pm, until 3pm on bullfight days; €7, free Mon 3–7pm; realmaestranza.com) – one of the oldest and most beautiful in Spain. The tour explains the role of the bullfighting team, while the museum features costumes of famous bullfighters and corrida-related artworks by Goya, a bullfighting aficionado.

Museo de Bellas Artes

There's superb art at the Museo de Bellas Artes on Plaza del Museo (mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Sun 9am–3.30pm; mid-Sept to mid-June Tues–Sat 9am–8.30pm, Sun 9am–3.30pm; €1.50, free with EU passport), housed in a beautiful former convent. Highlights include paintings by Murillo, as well as Zurbarán's Carthusian Monks at Supper and El Greco's portrait of his son.

Metropol Parasol

Designed by German architect Jürgen Mayer H, the 2011 Metropol Parasol dominates Plaza de la Encarnación. Apparently the world's largest wooden construction, the 30m-high building resembles a cluster of giant mushrooms – hence its nickname "Las Setas". The main attraction is the walkway that winds along the top and allows for panoramic views of the city (lift to level 2; Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–10.30pm, Fri & Sat 10am–11pm; mirador and walkway €3). In the basement, a museum displays a collection of Roman ruins, which were discovered during construction (Tues–Sat 10am–7.30pm, Sun 10am–1.30pm; €2.10).

Triana

Across the river lies Triana, a barrio that was once home to Seville's gypsy community. At its northern edge is La Cartuja (Avda Américo Vespucio 2; Tues–Sat 11am–9pm, Sun 10am–3.30pm; €1.80 includes entry to CAAC, free Tues–Fri 7–9pm & Sat; www.caac.es), a fourteenth-century former Carthusian monastery, where Columbus allegedly planned his early voyages – home to the Centro Andaluz de Arte Contemporáneo, which hosts edgy painting, sculpture and photography exhibitions.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Los Amarillos (losamarillos.es) shuttle bus runs every 20–30min from Seville's domestic and international Aeropuerto San Pablo to Plaza de Armas and stops at the Estación de Santa Justa en route (4.30am–midnight; 30min; €4 one-way). Taxis cost around €22–25.

By train Estación Santa Justa is northeast of the centre, on Avda Kansas City; bus #C1 (€1.40) connects it to the centre and to the San Sebastián bus station.

Destinations Almería (4 daily; 6hr); Barcelona (8 daily; 5hr–11hr 30min); Cádiz (15 daily; 1hr 30min); Córdoba (every 30min 6.50am–9.35pm; 40min–1hr 20min); Granada (4 daily; 3hr); Madrid (17 daily; 2hr 30min–6hr 40min); Málaga (15 daily; 2hr–2hr 30min); Valencia (4 daily; 4hr–7hr 30min).

By bus The main bus station is at Plaza de Armas, but buses for destinations within Andalucía (plus Barcelona, Alicante and Valencia) leave from the more central terminal at Plaza de San Sebastián. Buses #C4 and #C21 connect the two.

Destinations Almería (3 daily; 5hr 30min–9hr); Cáceres (7 daily; 3hr–4hr 10min); Cádiz (10 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr); Córdoba (7 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr 15min); Granada (9 daily; 3hr–4hr 30min); Madrid (8 daily; 6hr 10min–6hr 30min); Málaga (6 daily; 2hr 30min–4hr); Mérida (10–13 daily; 3hr); Ronda (5 daily; 2hr 30min); Tarifa (4 daily; 2hr 55min–3hr 15min).

Clean dorms inside the attractively tiled building have a/c – a godsend in summer. Dorms €15, twin €38

EATING

There are numerous choices in the Barrio Santa Cruz, around Plaza Nueva and Triana. Seville is one of the great bastions of the tapa – the city claims to be its birthplace – so you'll be spoilt for choice here.

Catalina Paseo Catalina de Ribera 4 954 412 412. Vegetarians are welcome at this restaurant with an outdoor terrace; the sumptuous aubergines with grilled goat's cheese is one of the house specials. Mains €9–14. Daily 9am–1am.

★ Eslava c/Eslava 3 espacioselava.com. Prepare to wait – this award-winning tapas bar gets busy. The inventive dishes, such as brie pastry cigars with cuttlefish and algae, are surprisingly good value (from €2.90). Tues–Sat 12.30pm–12.30am, Sun 12.30–4.30pm.

★ Heladería la Fiorentina c/Zaragoza 16 954 221 550. For over twenty years, Joaquín Lira's innovative ice creams have been capturing the flavours of Seville. Try the crema de flor de azahar, which evokes the smell of orange blossoms in springtime, or the dulce de palmera, which is inspired by a traditional Semana Santa sweet. March–Dec daily 1pm–1am.

Il Vesuvio c/Sierpes 54. At this authentic Italian restaurant, choose from a short menu of home-made pasta and fish or steak mains, then finish off with a better-than-average tiramisu. Mains from €9. Daily 1–4.30pm & 7.30–11pm.

Mercado Lonja del Barranco c/Arjona s/n ☎ mercadolonjadelbarranco.com. Housed in a renovated glass and wrought-iron, nineteenth-century building is Seville's foodie must-visit destination. Choose from twenty stalls (prices start around €2.99) ranging from cheese specialists and gourmet croquettes to pulled-pork burgers and wine bars. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–midnight, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Vinería San Telmo Paseo Catalina de Ribera 4 ☎ 954 410 600. This tapas bar with alfresco terrace has a wonderful signature dish – the rascacielo or “skyscraper” of smoked salmon, grilled aubergine, goat's cheese and tomatoes. Tapas from €3.50. Daily 4.30–8pm.

DRINKING, NIGHTLIFE AND ENTERTAINMENT

The Plaza Alfalfa area, north of the Catedral, is particularly lively at night. Also popular with tourists and Seville's gay population is c/Betis in Triana.

BARS

Bar Garlochí c/Boteros 26. Weird and wonderful bar that's popular with Sevillanos. There's a mock-Semana Santa theme and a sacrilegious house special – the Sangre de Cristo cocktail. Daily 9pm–late.

Fun Club Alameda de Hércules 86. A music club where live bands play a mix of funk, jazz and Latino. Entry €5–7 on live music nights. Thurs–Sat 11.30pm–7am.

Pura Vida Terraza Hotel Fontecruz Sevilla Seises, c/Segovias ☎ 667 71 74 44. Kick back with a cocktail (€9) at this sun-trap rooftop bar. There's a chilled, beachy vibe and up-close views of the cathedral and Giralda. April–Sept daily 3–10pm, Oct–March Tues & Thurs–Sun 3–10pm.

FLAMENCO

Flamenco is staged across the city. A good place to head is c/Rodrigo de Triana, home to a handful of flamenco academies.

BULLFIGHTING

The season starts on Easter Sunday, reaches a peak around Feria de Abril, and continues until the end of September; most corridos are held on Sunday evenings. Love it or hate it, Seville's bullring is probably the best in Spain, with only bullfighters who have “made it”, such as El Cid and El Juli, fighting on its sands. Tickets from the Plaza de Toros de la Maestranza, Paseo de Colón 12 ☎ 902 5223 506, start at €7–38 for a sol (sun-exposed) seat, and can cost up to €68 for sombra (shade).

Casa Anselma c/Pagés de Corro 49. Thick with cigarette smoke and packed with local flamenco aficionados, all waiting for a spontaneous performance to break out. There's no sign, so look for the yellow building whose facade is decorated with a mosaic; it's on the corner of c/Antillano Campos in Triana. Mon–Sat midnight–late.

La Carbonería c/Levías 18. Tapas bar in an old coal merchant's building, with free flamenco performances at 11pm and midnight most nights.

La Casa del Flamenco c/Ximénez de Enciso 28 ☎ 954 500 595, ☎ lacasadelflamencosevilla.com. Fantastic daily performances at this intimate cultural centre (eighty or more spaces) at 7/8.30pm. Book tickets in advance (€18).

DIRECTORY

Hospital Hospital Universitario Virgen Macarena, Avda Dr Fedriani 3 ☎ 950 080 000, has English-speaking doctors. For emergencies, call ☎ 061.

Left luggage There are lockers at the train and bus stations.

Post office Avda de la Constitución 32.

CÁDIZ

CÁDIZ is among the oldest settlements in Spain, founded in around 1100 BC by the Phoenicians, and has long been one of the country's principal ports. In the eighteenth century it enjoyed a virtual monopoly on the Spanish–American gold and silver trade. It's also the spiritual home of flamenco, and has a tremendous atmosphere – slightly seedy, somewhat in decline, but still full of mystique. Cádiz's big party is its annual Carnaval, complete with costumed revelry, normally held in February and early March.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Built on a peninsular island, with grand open squares, winding alleys and high, turreted houses, Cádiz is fascinating to wander around.

Torre Tavira

For 360-degree views of the city, climb the Torre Tavira at Marqués del Real Tesoro 10 (daily: May–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct–April 10am–6pm; €6; ☎ torretavira.com), the tallest of the city's 126 lookout towers – a legacy of the pirate age. The price includes tours showcasing the camera obscura – a device that uses mirrors to zoom in on any part of the city and project an image onto a surface inside the tower.

Catedral Nueva and Torre de Poniente

The huge, white, sea-facing Catedral Nueva (Pl. de la Catedral s/n; Jan–March, Nov & Dec Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 11am–7pm; April–June, Sept & Oct Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 11am–8pm; July & Aug Mon–Sat 10am–9pm, Sun 11am–9pm; €5, free Sun 11am–1.30pm; catedraldecadiz.com) is a blend of High Baroque and Neoclassical styles as a result of it taking 116 years to build, decorated entirely in stone. Climb the adjacent Torre de Reloj (same hours and ticket) for splendid views of the city.

Museo de Cádiz

The well-lit interior at the Museo de Cádiz on Plaza de Mina (Jan to mid-June & mid-Sept to Dec Tues–Sat 9am–8.30pm, Sun 9am–3.30pm; mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Sun 9am–3.30pm; €1.50, free for EU citizens) showcases the Phoenician marble sarcophagi, Roman statuary and other archeological treasures. Upstairs are masterpieces by Zurbarán and Murillo – including the last altarpiece he painted before a fatal fall from the scaffolding.

Coastal walk and beaches

A 4.5km coastal walk runs along the outside of the Old Town, taking in two beautiful parks – the Alameda Apodaca, running along the Bay of Cádiz, and the large, sculpted Parque Genovés, home to numerous exotic plants. Cádiz also has two main beaches: the often-crowded little crescent Playa de la Caleta at its western end, complete with Castillo San Sebastian (daily 9.30am–5pm; free), and Playa de la Victoria's wide stretch of white sand (take bus #2 south along Avda del Puerto).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The station is at the southeastern end of the Old Town, a 5min walk from Plaza de San Juan de Dios.

Destinations Córdoba (13–20 daily; 2hr 25min–3hr 30min); Madrid (9–15 daily; 4hr 20min–5hr 10min); Seville (11–15 daily; 1hr 30min–1hr 50min).

By bus The bus station is opposite the train station.

Destinations Almería (1 daily at 3pm; 7hr 45min); Córdoba (4 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Granada (4 daily; 5hr 15–5hr 45min); Málaga (4 daily; 3hr 45min–4hr 45min); Ronda (2 daily; 3hr 20min); Seville (9 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr); Tarifa (6 daily; 1hr 30min–1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Paseo de Canalejas (June–Sept Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm; Oct–May Mon–Fri 8.30am–6.30pm, Sat & Sun 9am–5pm; ☎ 956 241 001, cadiz.es).

ACCOMMODATION

Cádiz Inn Backpackers c/Botica 2 ☎ 956 262 309, cadizbackpackers.es. A super-central hostel, with helpful staff and a sunny roof terrace. Dorms €20, doubles €50

Casa Caracol c/Suárez de Salazar 4 ☎ 956 261 166, casacaracolcadiz.com. This backpacker favourite has laidback staff, dorms and doubles (most en suite), and a plethora of activities on offer, from rooftop parties to day-trips. Dorms €21, doubles €45

Pensión España c/Marqués de Cádiz 9 ☎ 956 285 500, pensionespana.com. This friendly, central guesthouse offers clean singles, doubles and triples, most with shared bathrooms. Doubles €40

EATING

Cádiz is the birthplace of takeaway fried fish so make sure to try one of the freidurías (fried-fish shops). For drinks and seafood, head to c/Virgen de la Palma in the Barrio de la Viña, just east of Playa de la Caleta, or to Plaza de Las Flores.

El Aljibe c/Placia 25 ☎ 956 266 656. Trendy, stone-walled, wooden-beamed bar serving some of Cádiz's most inventive tapas, from spinach and shrimp lasagne, to baby squid in ink. Tapas €2.20–4. Daily 9.30am–1am.

Freiduría Las Flores Pl. de Las Flores. A Cádiz institution, this freiduría serves up large, cheap portions of fish. Try the excellent tortilla de camarones (shrimp patty). Tapas €1.20–2.40. Daily 9am–4pm & 7pm–midnight.

★ La Candela c/Feduchy 3 ☎ 956 221 822. Small, popular place that's been decorated with quirky touches. Tapas dishes range from classics to more unusual offerings like pork bao topped with a fried egg. There are also sharing plates and mains (from €8). Daily 1.30–4pm & 8.30–11.30pm.

TARIFA

If there's one thing that defines tiny TARIFA, it is the powerful prevailing wind, which has made the southernmost point in mainland Europe one of the world's most popular kitesurfing and windsurfing destinations. The place charms with its laidback atmosphere and maze of narrow streets, plus Africa lies on the horizon, and is easily accessible, via the ferries that run to Tangier in Morocco (see box below).

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

There are two principal things to keep you occupied: enjoying the waves and the wind and searching for whales.

Kitesurfing and windsurfing

The 10km white, sandy beaches, Playa de los Lances and Ensenada de Valdevaqueros, are the places for watersports. You can book a course or rent equipment from a number of outfitters in town, such as Bull Sails & Kites (c/Braille 22; ☎956 68 04 59, bullschool.com), which run kiteboarding, surfing and stand-up paddle-boarding courses (group courses start at €20/person/hr), and rent out equipment.

Whale-watching

The Strait of Gibraltar is an excellent place for spotting killer whales, pilot whales, sperm whales and dolphins. Several operators run daily two-hour whale-watching boat trips, including Firmm, c/Pedro Cortés 4 (April–Oct; €30; tours include a 30min talk on marine mammals; ☎956 627 008, firmm.org), who are dedicated to the research and conservation of the local population of marine mammals, and Whalewatch Tarifa at Avda de la Constitución 6 (from €33; ☎956 627 013, whalewatchtarifa.net), a non-profit conservation association.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Comes (☎956 684 038, tgcomes.es) buses arrive at the station at Batalla del Salado s/n (near the petrol station). The centre is a 10min walk south.

Destinations Algeciras (8–12 daily; 30min); Cádiz (5 daily; 1hr 45min); Málaga (3 daily; 2hr 45min); Seville (4 daily; 3hr).

By boat FRS at Avda Andalucía 16 (☎956 681 830, frs.es) runs fast ferries and tours to Morocco (see box below).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Paseo de la Alameda s/n (Mon–Fri 10am–1.30pm & 4–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–1.30pm; ☎956 680 993, aytotarifa.com).

ACCOMMODATION

From July to mid-Sept, book accommodation well in advance.

Camping Paloma 11km northwest of town ☎956 684 203, campingpaloma.com. Situated 500m from Playa de Valdevaqueros, this shady campsite has a full range of facilities, including on-site restaurant, supermarket and swimming pool. There are also forty bungalows (sleeping two to six people; minimum two nights). Powered pitches cost extra. Check website for discounts during low season. Camping/person €6.48 plus per tent €4.86, bungalow for two €54

MOROCCO-BOUND

The main reason to visit the gritty, busy post of Algeciras is to take a ferry to Tangier in Morocco, or the Spanish enclave of Ceuta. FRS ferries (frs.es) are the fastest and most frequent (depending on the weather): buy tickets directly from their office at the port. However, Tarifa (see above) is a more salubrious departure point for Tangier, with FRS selling straightforward ferry tickets (one-/two-day trip €60/89; ☎956 681 830), as well as guided one-day tours and customized two- or three-day trips to Tangier, Tetouan, Asilah or Chefchaouen. Bring your passport.

FERRIES TO MOROCCO

From Algeciras Ceuta (5–6 daily; 1hr; €32 one-way, €64 return); Tangier (7 daily; 1hr 45min; €30 one-way, €40.80 return).

From Tarifa Tangier (4–8 daily; 35min; €37 one-way, €66 return).

ONWARD TRAVEL FROM ALGECIRAS

If arriving in Algeciras, you can travel on to other Spanish cities from the bus station on c/San Bernardo and the adjacent train station.

By train Córdoba (4 daily; 3hr 10min–4hr 30min); Granada (3 daily; 4hr 15min–4hr 40min); Madrid (3 daily; 5hr 30min); Ronda (5 daily; 1hr 25min–1hr 50min).

By bus Granada (4 daily; 3hr 30min–5hr 45min); La Línea de la Concepción (every 30min; 45min); Málaga (18 daily; 1hr 45min–4hr 40min); Tarifa (6 daily; 30min).

GIBRALTAR

Backed by the enormous Rock, visible from many kilometres away, and long coveted for its strategic position at the entrance to the Mediterranean, the British territory of Gibraltar, at the southern tip of Spain, has been the source of tension between the two countries for nearly three hundred years since it was ceded to Britain under the Treaty of Utrecht.

Now a somewhat clichéd slice of Britain, Gibraltar comes complete with red postboxes, Marks & Spencer, chippies and, of course, the pound.

Relations between the UK and Spain can be strained over Gibraltar, with Spain enforcing tough, time-consuming border checks. Buses run from several Spanish destinations to La Línea. To get to Gibraltar, walk across the border and follow Winston Churchill Ave into town (10min).

Hostal Africa c/María Antonia Toledo 12 ☎956 680 220, www.hostalafrika.com. Popular with kitesurfers, this central guesthouse has attractive marble-floored rooms and a partially covered roof terrace for lounging. Cheaper rooms share bathrooms. Doubles €50

Melting Pot Hostel c/Turriano Gracil 5 ☎956 682 906, www.meltingpotohostels.com. Backpacker and kitesurfer haven with fully equipped kitchen and a cosy lounge/bar. En-suite dorms are somewhat cramped, but the ambience is great. Dorms €26, doubles €60

EATING

★ Café 10 c/Ntra. Sra. de la Luz 10 ☎671 23 79 41. Petite and beachy, Café 10 is stylishly decked out with stone floors and whitewashed wood panelling. A popular breakfast haunt, the all-day menu features toasties (€4.50), crêpes (€6), fresh juices and home-made cakes. Daily 9–2am.

Chilimosa c/Peso 6. Compact vegetarian restaurant/takeaway serving up healthy food with an eastern twist. The changing menu includes a range of main dishes (€3–8) and the plato degustación (€9.80) which features falafel, hummus and salad. Don't miss the cheesecake. Daily 12.30–3.30pm & 7–11pm.

Lola c/Guzmán el Bueno 5. In the evenings, tables spill out of this friendly tapas bar onto the street. The highlights on the menu include the garlic prawns and el revuelto de abuela (fancy scrambled eggs). Tapas from €1.50; raciones €4–17. Daily 1–4pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

★ No. 6 Cocina Sencilla C/Colón 6 ☎671 23 79 41. The owner of Café 10's latest venture boasts a cool interior that blends exposed brick, a stone archway and pendant lights. Try the sweet potato patatas bravas with wasabi aioli

(€3.50); if your budget can stretch to it, the ración of impossibly tender pan-seared octopus with soy mayonnaise for €13 is worth every penny. Mon & Wed–Fri 7.30pm–12.30am, Sat & Sun 1–4pm & 7.30pm–12.30am.

RONDA

Built on an isolated ridge of the sierra, and ringed by mountains, the spectacular pueblo blanco of RONDA, a large cluster of attractive whitewashed houses, was made famous in Hemingway's For Whom The Bell Tolls. The town is split in two by a gaping river gorge with a sheer drop, spanned by an incredible eighteenth-century arched bridge from which hundreds of people were thrown to their deaths during the Spanish Civil War.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Most sights of interest lie in the tiny old quarter on the eastern side of the gorge.

Plaza de Toros y Museo Taurino

In the modern El Mercadillo quarter, the Plaza de Toros, Spain's oldest bullring, is where three generations of the Romero family shaped the rules of bullfighting during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries (daily: March & Oct 10am–7pm; April–Sept 10am–8pm; Nov–Feb 10am–6pm; €7). The on-site Museo Taurino showcases corrida memorabilia, including numerous trajes de luz – the colourful costumes of the matadores.

Old Quarter sights

The principal gate of the town, through which the Christian conquerors passed, stands beside the Alcázar, destroyed by the French in 1809. Sights in the Old Quarter include the well-preserved thirteenth- and fourteenth-century Baños Árabes (c/San Miguel s/n; Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–3pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri closes 6pm; €3, free Tues from 3pm), with their distinctive horseshoe arches, reachable via a flight of steps and a path along a section of the old city wall. The Palacio de Mondragón (Mon–Fri 10am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–3pm; €3, Tues free from 3pm for EU citizens), located on its namesake plaza, was probably once the palace of the Moorish kings and is now home to exhibitions on the history of the area. On nearby Plaza Duquesa de Parcent stands the Iglesia de Santa María la Mayor (daily: April–Sept 10am–8pm; Oct & March 10am–7pm; Nov–Feb 10am–6pm; €4.50), built on the site of Ronda's main mosque. The whimsical Museo Lara at c/de Armiñán 29 (daily: June–Oct 11am–8pm; Nov–May 11am–7pm; €4; museolara.org) houses an ever-expanding private collection of antique objects, ranging from eighteenth- and nineteenth-century weaponry to early cameras and horse carriages. A macabre exhibit on witchcraft and the Inquisition is (fittingly) located in the cellar.

Local walks

The Old Quarter's Jardines de Forestier ascend the gorge in a series of stepped terraces, offering superb views of the river and the remarkable stairway of the Casa del Rey Moro, an early eighteenth-century mansion on the north side of the gorge. For a classic shot of the Puente Nuevo that spans the gorge, head to the Jardines de Cuenca. There are also some fantastic day hikes around Ronda, ranging from 2.5km to 9.1km, outlined in a booklet available at the tourist office (€5).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is at Avda de la Victoria 31, off Avda Andalucía, a 15min walk from the Old Quarter.

Destinations Algeciras (5 daily; 1hr 30min–1hr 50min); Córdoba (4 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr); Granada (3 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr); Madrid (3 daily; 4hr); Málaga (3 daily; 2hr–2hr 20min).

By bus The bus station is near Plaza Redondo.

Destinations Cádiz (2 daily; 3hr 15min–3hr 30min); Málaga (7 daily; 3hr 30min); Seville (6 daily; 1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Opposite the entrance to the bullring at Pl. de Toros (April–Sept Mon–Fri 10am–7pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri 10am–6pm; all year Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 10am–2.30pm; ☎ 952 187 119, turismoderonda.es).

ACCOMMODATION

Prices rise in April and May, when you should book in advance.

Hotel Morales c/Sevilla 51 ☎ 952 871 538, hotelmorales.es. Friendly, central cheapie with warm staff and spotless en-suite rooms. Doubles €35

Hotel San Francisco c/María Cabrera 18 ☎ 952 873 299, hotelsanfrancisco-ronda.com. Elegant budget option, with Moorish archways in the dining room and cosy rooms equipped with a/c. Check website for discounts. Doubles €44

EATING AND DRINKING

Bodega San Francisco c/Ruedo Alameda 32, just outside the Carlos V gate ☎ 952 878 162, bodegasanfrancisco.com. Old-school tapas bar, with hams hanging from the ceiling, serving fantastic tortilla de camarones (prawn omelette), mini-pinchos (grilled meat on sticks) and other favourites. Tapas from €1. Mon–Wed & Fri–Sun 11am–midnight.

La Vita E Bella c/Nueva 5. Cheerful Italian-run joint with a big selection of pizzas (from €6.50), delicious home-made pasta dishes and a range of fish and meat mains. April–Oct daily noon–4pm & 7.30pm–midnight; Nov–March Mon noon–4pm, Wed–Sun noon–4pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

★ Tragatapas c/Nueva 4 ☎ 952 877 209. Ronda's most imaginative tapas, such as pork cheeks au gratin on ciabatta and fried pig's ear with a spicy sauce. Also serves sharing plates (from €8) and fusion mains such as curried duck. Tapas from €1.85; mains €10.50–22. Tues–Sat 1–4pm & 8–11pm, Sun 1–4pm.

MÁLAGA

MÁLAGA is the second city of the south after Seville, one of the oldest in Spain, and also the gateway to the rest of the Costa del Sol, the richest resort area in the Mediterranean.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The charming historic centre may be unchanged – as are the clusters of high-rises that surround it – but much of Málaga has undergone a transformation. The once-drab port has been revamped into the sleek Muelle Uno, and the city that was home to Picasso is rapidly fulfilling its mission to become a Spanish cultural hub (see box opposite).

The Picasso museums

Málaga's most famous native son, born here in 1881, is honoured in the immensely popular Museo Picasso Málaga, c/San Agustín 8 (daily: March–June, Sept & Oct 10am–7pm; July & Aug 10am–8pm; Nov–Feb 10am–6pm; €8, free last 2hr on Sun;

MÁLAGA'S CHANGING ART SCENE

The millions of euros that have been pumped into Málaga's art scene are unveiling themselves in an impressive array of sights. Stealing the show is the pop-up Pompidou (El Cuba, Muelle Uno; mid-June to mid-Sept Mon & Wed–Sun 11am–10pm; mid-Sept to mid-June Mon & Wed–Sun 9.30am–8pm; permanent exhibition €7, temporary €4, combined €9; ☎centrepompidou-malaga.eu), in a striking building topped with a multi-coloured glass cube. On loan for five years, the collection houses works from big names such as Frida Kahlo and Pablo Picasso. Another foreign foray, the State Russia Museum Collection is calling an old tobacco factory home for ten years (Edificio de Tabaclera, Avda Sor Teresa Prat 15; mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Sun 11am–10pm, mid-Sept to mid-June Tues–Sun 9.30–8pm; permanent exhibition €6, temporary €4, combined €8; ☎coleccionmuseoruso.es). Meanwhile, the up-and-coming SOHO district is becoming an open-air street-art canvas – grab a free street art map from Maus (☎mausmalaga.com), or join a tour by CAC (3 daily on Mon; free).

☎museopicassomalaga.org), which displays an intimate collection spanning Picasso's career; temporary exhibitions feature his contemporaries. Serious fans shouldn't miss the Casa Natal de Picasso, Plaza de la Merced 15 (April–Oct daily 9.30am–8pm; Nov–March Mon & Wed–Sun 9.30am–8pm; €3; ☎www.fundacionpicasso.es), where the artist was born, with choice works of his displayed upstairs.

Catedral

Founded in 1528, Málaga's Catedral on Calle Molina Lario (Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–5pm; €5) towers above the Old Town. It features a melange of architectural styles, having taken 260 years to complete: its interior is Renaissance and Baroque while the northern entrance is Gothic. Since it features one tower when the original plans included two, it is affectionately known as La Manquita (one-armed woman).

Alcazaba and Castillo de Gibralfaro

Just east of the Old Town rises Mount Gibralfaro where the Moorish citadels of the 1057 Alcazaba and Castillo de Gibralfaro (both daily: April–Oct 9am–8pm; Nov–March 9am–6pm; lift shut on Mon; each €2.20, free Sun from 2pm, joint ticket €3.55), built in the eighth century by Abd ar-Rahman I and rebuilt in the fourteenth and fifteenth, tower above the ruins of a Roman theatre. The viewpoint on the way to the castle offers spectacular city views.

Centro de Arte Contemporáneo (CAC)

Housed inside a converted 1930s wholesale market on Calle Alemana, this cutting-edge contemporary art museum (Tues–Sun: mid-June to Sept 10am–2pm & 5–9pm; Oct to mid-June 10am–8pm; free; ☎cacmalaga.org) features exhibits of twentieth- and twenty-first-century installations, painting and sculpture by international artists.

Beaches

Sunbathers favour the white-sand Playa de la Malagueta, ten minutes' walk from the Old Town. The old fishing villages of El Palo and Pedregalejo, 4km east of the centre, boast grey-sand beaches and a promenade lined with some of the best fish and seafood restaurants in the province; catch bus #11 along Paseo del Parque.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

There's luggage storage at the bus and train stations.

By plane Málaga's Pablo Picasso Airport (☎952 048 484, ☎aena.es) is linked to the train station by electric train (every 20min 5.20am–11.30pm; €1.80); continue another stop to Málaga Centro: Alameda for the city centre. The airport bus (#A) goes to the city centre, via the main bus station (every 20–30min; 6.25am–11.30pm; €3).

By train The station is a 20min walk southwest of the centre at Explanada de la Estación, s/n. Buses #1, #3, #5, #10 and #16 run to the city centre.

Dorms €19, doubles €90

EATING AND DRINKING

Málaga specialties – fritura malagueña (battered and fried fish and squid) and espeto (sardines grilled on bamboo spears) are served at seaside restaurants along the El Palo and Pedregalejo beaches.

El Rincón del Cervencero C/Casas de Campos 5b ☎ 952 226 426. In artsy SOHO, this beer shop and bar is helping drive Málaga's craft beer movement. There are 250 beers on offer, tasting sessions and homebrew workshops. The owners also make their own brews for Semana Santa and the Feria. Mon–Wed 7pm–midnight, Thurs–Sat noon–4pm & 7pm–12.30am.

★ El Tapeo de Cervantes c/Cárcer 8 ☎ eltapeodecervantes.com. In this atmospheric bar you'll be sitting cheek by jowl with other diners, hungrily awaiting tapas such as Ibérico pork with pumpkin and pineapple relish and lamb stew with couscous. Get there early, as the place gets packed. Tapas from €2.50. Tues–Sat 1–3.30pm & 7.30–11.30pm, Sun 7.30–11.30pm.

★ Mamuchis Casa de Campos 27 ☎ 951 994 517. Eating here is like being welcomed into someone's home; owners Marcel and Leïticia have decorated the place with mementos from their travels and the menu of healthy sharing plates (from €5) mirrors this, featuring dim sum and Greek-style courgette burgers. Tues 2–8pm, Wed–Sat 2–11pm, Sun 2–4pm.

Recyclo Bike Café Marqués de Villafiel 4 ☎ recyclobike.com. With bikes hanging from the ceiling, this laidback joint serves toasties and burgers (from €5), and has plenty of vegetarian options. Combine breakfast with renting wheels from their bike shop next door (Mon–Fri 10–2pm & 5–8.30pm, Sat 10–2pm) before cycling off to Málaga's quieter beaches. Daily 9am–midnight.

CÓRDOBA

CÓRDOBA was once the largest city of Roman Spain, then for three centuries the heart of the great medieval caliphate of the Moors, before becoming the second-largest headquarters of the Inquisition. It's an engaging, compact and atmospheric city that is easily explored on foot.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Córdoba's main attraction is La Mezquita – the grandest and most beautiful mosque ever constructed by the Moors in Spain. This stands right in the centre of the city, surrounded by the labyrinth of old Jewish and Moorish quarters.

La Mezquita

Córdoba's domination of Moorish Spain began thirty years after the conquest, in 756 AD, when the city was placed under Abd ar-Rahman I, who established control over all but the north of Spain. He began the building of the Great Mosque – in Spanish, La Mezquita (March–Oct Mon–Sat 10am–7pm; Nov–Feb Mon–Sat 10am–6pm; all year Sun 8.30–11.30am & 3–6pm; €8, free Mon–Sat 8.30–9.30am) – which is approached through the Patio de los Naranjos, a classic Islamic court preserving both its orange trees and fountains for ritual purification before prayer. Inside, nearly a thousand twin-layered red and white archways combine to mesmerizing effect, the harmony culminating only at the foot of the beautiful mihrab (prayer niche), decorated with gold mosaic cubes – a gift from Nicephorus II Phocas, the Christian emperor of Byzantium. In the centre of one of the world's most beautiful mosques, you'll find the incongruous presence of a Renaissance cathedral, built in 1523, though it's the mihrab that commands most of the attention.

La Judería and around

North of La Mezquita lies La Judería, Córdoba's old Jewish quarter, a network of narrow, atmospheric lanes and small plazas. At c/Judíos 20 is a tiny fourteenth-century synagogue with fine stucco work (Jan to mid-June & mid-Sept to Dec Tues–Sat 9am–8.30pm, Sun 9am–3.30pm; mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Sun 9am–3.30pm; €0.30, free for EU citizens), one of only three in Spain that survived the Jewish expulsion of 1492. Nearby, on the corner of c/Judíos and c/Averroes, the beautiful fourteenth-century Casa de Sefarad (Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat & Sun 11am–7pm, closed one week in Nov & two weeks in Jan; €4; @casadesefarad.es) explores the Sephardic-Judaic tradition. Its collections include weavings with gold thread and ceremonial objects; upstairs, exhibits are devoted to the contribution of Sephardic Jews to Islamic Córdoba and their persecution by the Inquisition. Some evenings there are live shows, from flamenco to theatre, in the candle-lit courtyard.

Alcázar de los Reyes Cristianos

Near La Mezquita is the thirteenth-century Castle of the Christian Monarchs (Pl. Campo Santo de los Mártires s/n; Tues–Fri 8.30am–8.45pm, Sat 8.30am–4.30pm, Sun 8.30am–2.30pm; €4.50, free Tues–Fri 8.30–9.30am), originally home to Alfonso X and then the headquarters of the Inquisition between 1490 and 1821. Highlights include the beautiful sculpted gardens, a third-century Roman sarcophagus and the view from one of the Alcázar's towers.

Museo Julio Romero de Torres

Located on the tiny Plaza del Potro, the ever-popular Museo Julio Romero de Torres (mid-June to mid-Sept Tues–Sat 8.30am–2.30pm, Sun 9.30am–2.30pm; mid-Sept to mid-June Tues–Fri 8.30am–7.30pm, Sat 9.30am–4.30pm, Sun 9.30am–2.30pm; €4.50; ☎museojulioromero.cordoba.es) features the work of the namesake local painter, whose signature works depicted curvy Córdoba women.

Puente Romano and Torre de la Calahorra

Across the pedestrianized Puente Romano (Roman Bridge) stands the fourteenth-century Torre de la Calahorra (daily: May–Sept 10am–2pm & 4.30–8.30pm; Oct–April 10am–6pm; €4.50; ☎torrecalahorra.com), housing an entertaining museum that brings the history of Islamic Córdoba to life. There's a great view of a La Mezquita from the top of the tower.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station is along the Glorieta de las Tres Culturas, 1km northwest of the old town.

Destinations Barcelona (13 daily; 4hr 30min–10hr 10min); Cádiz (14–22 daily; 2hr 20min–4hr); Granada (6 daily; 2hr–2hr 40min); Madrid (25–30 daily; 1hr 45min–5hr 30min); Málaga (15 daily; 1hr); Seville (35 daily; 45min–2hr 20min).

By bus The bus station is behind the train station. Bus #3 (€1.50) runs down c/San Fernández, just east of the Judería.

Destinations Granada (8 daily; 2hr 40min–4hr); Madrid (7 daily; 4hr 45min); Málaga (4 daily; 2hr 25min–3hr); Seville (7 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr).

INFORMATION

ACCOMMODATION

The intensely hot summers drive tourists away from Córdoba; come in April and May for a more pleasant stay but expect a spike in accommodation prices.

★Bed and Be c/Cruz Conde 22 ☎661 420 733, ☎bedandbe.com. Stylish yet welcoming place, with light rooms, high ceilings, whitewashed shutters and quirky touches. There's a sunny terrace, bikes to rent, and friendly owner, José, is passionate about making sure guests see the best of the city – and with the clued-up staff and social events you're guaranteed that. Dorms €15, doubles €38

Funky Cordoba c/Lucano 12 ☎957 473 234, ☎funkycordoba.com. Central hostel with helpful staff, a roof terrace and guest kitchen. However, the place could be cleaner and breakfast is not included. Dorms €11.50, doubles €38

Hostal Lineros 38 c/Lineros 36–38 ☎957 482 517, ☎hostallineros38.com. Moorish-style guesthouse that's more hotel than hostel, with luxurious four-poster beds and hammam-style bathrooms. Doubles €48

EATING

Córdoba's cuisine is some of the best in Andalucía, and it's fast becoming one of the most exciting foodie destinations in the region. Don't miss dishes such as salmorejo (a thicker, more savoury gazpacho) and ajoblanco (cold garlic and almond soup).

★Casa Mazal c/Tomas Conde 3. A tiny passageway leads into the flower-adorned, cobbled courtyard of Córdoba's only Sephardic restaurant. Their vegetarian dishes (try the aubergine pâté with home-made bread) are the best in town and their couscous is perfection. Mains €8–18. Daily noon–4pm & 8–11.30pm.

Casa Pepe de la Judería c/Romero 1 ☎957 200 744. Prop up the bar at this Córdoba institution, and don't miss their salmorejo and berenjenas con miel (aubergines with honey). Tapas from €3; mains from €9. Mon–Fri 1–4pm & 7.30–11.30pm, Sat & Sun 1–4.30pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

★La Bícicleta c/Cardenal Gonzalez 1. Behind a windowsill laden with fresh fruit hides a warren of rooms with exposed brickwork and pendant lights. Try the home-made cake of the day (€4.25) and freshly squeezed juices (€2.95). If you turn up on a bike they'll give you a discount on your food and drink. Mon–Fri 10am–1am, Sat & Sun noon–1am.

Mercado Victoria Paseo de la Victoria ☎mercadovictoria.com. Billed as Andalucía's first gourmet market, thirty stalls fill this restored nineteenth-century pavilion. There's everything from jamón ibérico and Spanish cheeses, to international dishes and a handful of bars. Mon–Wed & Sun 10am–midnight, Thurs 10am–1am, Fri & Sat 10am–2am.

Patio de la Marquesa c/Manriquez 4. This traditional house in the Judería has been transformed into one of Córdoba's newest culinary ventures. Within the interconnected patios is a gastro-market offering Andalusian classics, international cuisine and a terrace-bar. Mon–Fri noon–4.30pm & 7.30–11pm, Sat & Sun noon–12.30pm, bar open till 3am.

Taberna San Miguel El Pisto Pl. San Miguel 1 ☎casaelpisto.com. Over a hundred years old, this place serves excellent Montilla wine, accompanied by regional tapas, such as salmorejo. Tapas from €2.40, mains from €8.50. Mon–Sat noon–4pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

GRANADA

If you see only one town in Spain, it should be GRANADA, with its wonderful backdrop of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and Spain's most visited monument, the Alhambra. Granada was established as an independent kingdom in 1238 by Ibn Ahmar, a prince of the Arab Nasrid tribe. The Moors of Granada maintained their autonomy for two and a half centuries, but by 1490 only the city itself remained in Muslim hands. On January 2, 1492, Granada fell to the army of Ferdinand and Isabella following a seven-month siege, and the Christian Reconquest of Spain was complete, followed by the expulsion of Jews from Spain and the persecution of its Muslim population. Today Granada is a vibrant city, combining modern infrastructure with astounding Moorish architecture.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The main attraction is the Alhambra, the stunning Moorish palace complex perched on a hill overlooking the city. However, Granada's centre has some fine architecture of its own, including the cathedral and the Capilla Real. On an adjacent hill to the Alhambra lies the Albaicín – a maze of cobbled medieval streets and houses with Moorish touches. In fact, Granada retains much of its North African legacy, from teterías offering shisha and mint tea, to its hammams and Arabic doorways.

The Alhambra: the Alcazaba and the Palacios Nazaríes

The standard approach to the Alhambra is along the Cuesta de Gómerez that climbs uphill from Plaza Nueva, either on foot or by taking the #C3 bus from Plaza Isabel la Católica (every 7–8min; 7am–11pm; €1.20). The earliest, most ruined part of the fortress is the Alcazaba, furthest from the main entrance. It was this building's distinctive hue that gave the complex its name – “al-Hambra” means “red” in Arabic. At the summit is the Torre de la Vela; from the tower and ramparts there's a fine view of the whitewashed houses on the hillside opposite.

ALHAMBRA PRACTICALITIES

Tickets for the Alhambra (daily: mid-March to mid-Oct 8.30am–8pm; mid-Oct to mid-March 8.30am–6pm; €14; alhambra.degranada.org) are limited, so buy well in advance online (€1.40 booking fee; alhambra-tickets.es), and collect them from the Alhambra ticket office; bring ID and the credit card used to purchase the ticket. If online tickets are sold out, get to the ticket office no later than 5.30am on the day. You can also buy advance tickets from the Servicaixa machines in the Alhambra grounds (daily: March–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–Feb 8am–5pm). Your ticket will include a thirty-minute assigned slot for the star attraction of Palacios Nazaríes. Nocturnal visits to the Palacios Nazaríes (mid-March to mid-Oct Tues–Sat 10–11.30pm; mid-Oct to mid-March Fri & Sat 8–9.30pm; €8) also need to be booked in advance; if you plan to visit the Alhambra on two consecutive days, a joint night/day ticket costs €14.

The buildings in the Palacios Nazaríes – undoubtedly the Alhambra's gem – show a brilliant use of light and space with ornamental stucco decoration, in rhythmic repetitions of supreme beauty. Elegant Arabic inscriptions from the Koran cover the palace walls. Look closely, and you'll see the remains of ancient paint behind the calligraphy. The sultans used the Palacio del Mexuar, the first series of rooms, for business and judicial purposes. In the Serrallo, beyond, they received distinguished guests: here is the royal throne room, known as the Hall of the Ambassadors, the largest room in the palace. The last section, the Harem, formed their private living quarters. These are the palace's most beautiful rooms, and include the Patio de los Leones with its elegant, fluted columns and the restored lions around the fountain, which have become the archetypal images of Granada. Come back to the Palacios Nazaríes at night to see the serene reflection in the pool of the Patio de los Arrayanes and the buildings subtly lit up.

THE GRANADA CARD

The Granada Card (3-day €33.50; 5-day, €37.50) provides entry to the city's major sites, which works out cheaper than paying for each sight separately. It also lets you jump lengthy queues and includes a handful of free bus trips.

Purchase it in advance at www.granadatur.com and collect it from the tourist information office. The card includes the Alhambra, but you must still book a time slot in advance for the Palacios Nazaríes – this can be done when buying your Granada Card online.

The Alhambra: the Palacio de Carlos V and the Generalife

Next to the Palacios Nazaríes is the Palacio de Carlos V, an ostentatious piece of Renaissance architecture, with a circular courtyard where bullfights once took place, which was built by its namesake Charles V, the grandson of Ferdinand and Isabella. A wing of the Palacios Nazaríes was demolished to make way for it. The palace's lower floor is home to the Museo de la Alhambra (mid-Oct to mid-March Wed–Sat 8.30am–6pm; mid-March to mid-Oct Wed–Sat 8.30am–8pm; all year Tues & Sun 8.30am–2.30pm; night visits May–Sept Fri 9–11.30pm; free), which displays a collection of Islamic artefacts, such as a fourteenth-century chessboard, handwritten Korans and fine tile work, while upstairs, the Museo de Bellas Artes (Tues–Sat: Jan–March & mid-Oct to Dec 9am–6pm; mid-March to mid-June & mid-Sept to mid-Oct 9am–7.30pm; mid-June to mid-Sept 9am–3.30pm; all year Sun 9am–3.30pm; €1.50, free for EU citizens) features a small collection of Hispano-Moorish paintings and sculpture. From here, a short walk takes you to the Generalife, the cypress-shaded gardens and summer palace of the sultans.

The Albaicín

Opposite the Alhambra, framed by the Gran Vía on the west and the Carrera del Darro to the south, is the old Arab quarter of the Albaicín, a higgledy-piggledy collection of houses and mansions with courtyard gardens seemingly piled on top of one another along steep, narrow streets. Getting lost in this labyrinth is a pleasure, but mind your valuables particularly during the siesta hours when opportunistic mugging can occur. From here, you can wind your way up to the Mirador de San Nicolás for the quintessential view of the Alhambra backed by the Sierra Nevada – it's stunning (and crowded) at sunset. Bus #31 runs to the mirador from Plaza Nueva (every 10min, 7am–11pm; €1.20).

The Capilla Real and the Catedral

The Capilla Real (April–Oct Mon–Sat 10.15am–1.30pm & 4–7.30pm, Sun 11am–1.30pm & 2.30–6.30pm; Nov–March Mon–Sat 10.15am–1.30pm & 3.30–6.30pm, Sun 11am–1.30pm & 2.30–5.30pm; €4) along Calle Oficios was built in the first decades of Christian rule as a mausoleum for Ferdinand and Isabella. Although their tombs are simple, in the sacristy you'll find Isabella's sceptre and crown, as well as Ferdinand's sword. Adjoining the Capilla Real, the stark Gothic-Baroque bulk of the Catedral (Mon–Sat 10am–6.30pm, Sun 2.30–6.30pm; €5), built on the site of the former mosque, has an attractive Renaissance interior.

★TREAT YOURSELF

Immerse yourself (literally) in Andalucía's Moorish culture by visiting one of the Hamams de Al-Andalus (book in advance; hammamandalus.com). Granada boasts the oldest Arabic bath in Spain (c/Santa Ana 16; ☎958 229 978), but there are others in Córdoba (c/Corregidor Luis de la Cerdá 51; ☎957 484 746) and Málaga (Pl. de los Mártires 5; ☎952 215 018). Inside, you alternate in semi-darkness between hot and cold pools and then you can relax over some sweet tea. For the bath only prices are: Granada €28; Córdoba €24; Málaga €30; with a massage it is: Granada €40; Córdoba €36; Málaga €43.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport lies 17km west of the centre; Autocares J González buses run to Gran Vía de Colón (7 daily; 40min; €3; autocaresjosegonzalez.com). Taxis cost €25–30.

By train The station is 1.5km west of the centre on Avda de Andaluces, off Avda de Constitución, connected to the centre by the LAC and SN1 bus lines.

Destinations Almería (4 daily; 2hr 30min); Barcelona (2 daily; 7hr 40min); Córdoba (7 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr); Madrid (5 daily; 4hr–4hr 15min); Ronda (3 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr); Seville (4 daily; 3hr 10min–3hr 20min); Valencia (1 daily on Fri, Sat & Sun; 5hr 40min–6hr).

By bus The station is in the northwest of the city on Carretera de Jaén; bus SN1 runs to Gran Vía de Colón (every 7min; 15min).

Destinations Almería (7 daily; 2hr 15min–4hr 25min); Cádiz (4 daily; 5hr–5hr 30min); Córdoba (8 daily; 2hr 45min–4hr 10min); Madrid (20 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr); Málaga (17 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr); Seville (7 daily; 3hr–4hr 30min).

Oasis Placeta Correo Viejo 3 ☎ 958 215 848, oasisgranada.com. Firm backpacker favourite, this sociable hostel has spotless en-suite dorms arranged around a central courtyard. There's a roof terrace and young staff lay on tapas bar crawls. Dorms €18

White Nest Hostel c/Santísimo 4 ☎ 958 994 714, nesthostelsgranada.com. This friendly place distinguishes itself not just by its psychedelic colour scheme, but the helpfulness of its staff, rooftop terrace with great views of the Alhambra and multiple free daily tours on offer. Dorms €13, doubles €45

EATING

Granada is renowned for being one of the few places left in Spain where many bars still offer free tapas with your drink: pick up the Granada de tapas booklet from the tourist office. For a taste of the city's Moorish legacy, sip on sweet mint tea in one of the shisha-hazed teterías on Calderería Nueva and Calderería Vieja.

Abaco Te Alamo del Marqués 5 ☎ abacote.com. Perched high in Albaicín, a steep climb from Plaza San Gregorio, this place serves a selection of teas (from €2.50), juices (from €3) and sweet treats. There's a cushion-strewn sloping attic and a sought-after balcony with a view of the Alhambra towering above a sea of rooftops. April–Sept Mon–Fri 3–10pm, Sat & Sun 3–11pm; Oct–March Mon–Fri 4–10pm, Sat & Sun 4–11pm.

★ Café 4 Gatos Placeta Cruz Verde 6 ☎ 680 460 363. Tiny café with a clutch of tables on the cobbled street where you can catch a peep of the Alhambra. There's a fantastic all-day breakfast – don't miss the toast topped with smoked salmon, cream cheese, tomatoes and capers (€3.50) or the carrot cake. Mon & Tues 8.30am–6pm, Wed–Fri 8.30am–midnight, Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 9am–midnight.

Poë c/Paz ☎ barpoë.com. This intimate British–Angolan tapas bar has been a popular gathering spot for locals and visitors alike for years. One of the few places in a spice-shy country where you can find truly fiery tapas, such as the spicy chicken livers or the piri-piri pork stew. Tapas €1.40. Tues–Sun 8pm–12.30am, bar open later.

Potemkin Placeta Hospicio Viejo 3 ☎ 630 718 569. Compact and bustling tapas bar with tables spilling out onto the quiet square. On Wednesdays and Saturdays they mix it up with popular sushi nights – either opt for single portions (€1.20) or take advantage of their sushi and bottle of wine deal (€20). Daily 8am–1am.

Samarkanda c/Calderería Vieja 3 ☎ 958 210 004. Vegetarians rejoice, for the vegetable couscous (€8) at this Lebanese spot is very good, as is the labneh (yogurt) with flatbread. There are also meaty options such as lamb tagine (€12.75), and a cluster of outdoor tables. Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 1–4pm & 7.30–11.30pm.

DRINKING, NIGHTLIFE AND ENTERTAINMENT

Granada would be a rather sedate city if it weren't for the lively student population that crowds the city's discobars – join the action around the university areas near Gran Capitán and c/San Juan de Dios. The monthly Gula de Granada lists the top entertainment venues and tapas bars.

Bohemia Jazz Café Pl. de los Lobos 11. Quirky bar with live jazz music, crammed full of an array of oddities: a piano that doubles as a table, a hairdresser's chair, an old juke box, typewriters, and shelves lined with messages in bottles. Thurs–Sun 3pm–2am, Fri & Sat 3pm–3am.

Boogadub c/Santa Barbara 3 @boogadub.com. Reggae, funk, house and soul are the order of the day at this popular club; international DJs are regular guests. Tues–Thurs midnight–7am, Fri–Sun 11pm–7am.

Peña de la Platería Placeta de Toqueros 7 @958 210 605. Tucked away in the Albaicín, this serious flamenco club claims to be the oldest in Spain. Performances take place on Thursdays at 10.30pm and cost €10; Saturday nights are members only.

ALMERÍA

Founded by the Phoenicians, and having risen to prominence as the main port of Moorish Córdoba, ALMERÍA is an attractive, prosperous port city sandwiched between the Mediterranean and looming, barren mountains.

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE CORNY

In the 1960s and the 1970s, the rocky desert landscape north of Almería was used as the setting for such Hollywood classics as Lawrence of Arabia and later for the likes of Indiana Jones and The Last Crusade, as well as around 150 “spaghetti westerns”; Clint Eastwood’s career was launched here in A Fistful of Dollars. You can visit the Wild West sets to watch a bank hold-up and shoot-out (shows daily noon & 5pm) at Oasys Mini Hollywood (daily: June & Sept 10am–7.30pm; July & Aug 10am–9pm; Oct–May 10am–6pm; €22.50; @902 533 532, @oasysparquetematico.com), where the ticket also includes entry to the adjoining Reserva Zoológica. Nearby Fort Bravo (daily: April–Sept 9am–8pm, Oct–March 9am–6pm; €19.40; @fortbravo.es) offers similar attractions. Both sites are around 25km north of Almería, off the Tabernas turn-off from the A92. You’ll need your own car to get there, which you can rent from any major car company at Almería airport.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The town is dominated by the Alcazaba, but also take a look at Almería’s cathedral (Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 1.30–7pm; €5), built in 1524, and fortified to withstand the frequent pirate raids from North Africa and Turkey in the sixteenth century. Behind it, on c/Pintor Díaz Molina 9, the Centro Andaluz de la Fotografía (daily 11am–2pm & 5.30–9.30pm; free; @www.centroandaluzdelafotografia.es) houses excellent temporary photography exhibitions by international names.

Alcazaba

The grand, crumbling, tenth-century Alcazaba (Tues–Sat: April to mid-June 9am–8.30pm; mid-June to mid-Sept 9am–3.30pm & 7–10pm; mid-Sept to March 9am–6.30pm; all year Sun 9am–3.30pm; free) was built into the hillside by the Córdoba Caliph Abd-ar Rahman III and subsequently altered by the Christian monarchs. During its heyday, the fortress complex held up to 20,000 people and was said to rival Granada’s Alhambra with the beauty of its palaces and sculpted gardens. Little remains, but it’s worth visiting if only for the fabulous coastal views.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane To reach Almería airport, 10km east of the city, catch the #L22 bus from outside the bus/train station.

By train Trains pull in at the Estación Intermodal on Carretera La Ronda, a 10min walk from the city centre. No luggage storage.

Destinations Barcelona (1 daily; 13hr 30min–14hr 30min); Granada (4 daily; 2hr 30min); Madrid (2 daily; 6hr 30min–7hr 15min); Seville (4 daily; 5hr 30min–5hr 45min); Valencia (1 daily; 8hr 30min–9hr 30min).

By bus Buses use the same Estación Intermodal as trains. Destinations Barcelona (3 daily; 12hr–14hr 30min); Granada (8 daily; 2hr–4hr 45min); Madrid (5 daily; 6hr 30min–7hr); Málaga (7 daily; 2hr 30min–5hr 30min); Seville (3 daily; 5hr 30min–8hr 30min); Valencia (4 daily; 6hr 30–8hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office c/Parque Nicolás Salmerón s/n at Martínez Campos (Mon–Fri 9am–7.30pm, Sat, Sun & holidays 9.30am–3pm; @950 175 220, @andalucia.org).

EL CABO DE GATA

Only 15km east of Almería lies Cabo de Gata, a national park comprising dramatic cliffs, desolate scrubland, fishing villages and some of the most unspoiled beaches in the south. You can explore the park on a bike, enjoy incredible views of the coast from Torre Vigía Vela Blanca (an eighteenth-century watchtower), camp at the seaside villages and enjoy the pristine beauty of Playa de los Genoveses – the cape's prettiest beach. The only village you can reach by bus from Almería is San José (2–3 daily with Autocares Bernardo; www.autocaresbernardo.com), where you'll also find the greatest variety of accommodation and the National Park information office (Avda de San José 27; Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 5.30–8.30pm, Sun 10am–2pm; www.cabodegata-nijar.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Hotel La Perla Pl. del Carmen 7 ☎950 238 877, www.hotellaperla.es. Multistorey budget hotel with compact, spotless en-suite rooms and pleasant staff. Little character, but it's hard to beat the central location. Wi-fi is temperamental. Doubles €50

Hotel Sevilla c/de Granada 25 ☎950 230 009, www.hotelsevillaalmeria.net. Spick-and-span a/c rooms with thimble-sized but modern bathrooms at this centrally located hotel. Breakfast not included. Doubles €43

EATING

★ Casa Puga c/Jovellanos 7. Packed and lively, this place feels the real deal: hams hang from the ceiling, walls feature traditional tiles, and your bill is chalked down in front of you onto the marble bar. Tapas, such as boquerones en vinagre (fresh anchovies in vinegar), cost from €1.50. Mon–Sat noon–4pm & 8pm–midnight.

★ Joseba Añorga Taberna Pl. de la Constitución 4 ☎950 268 623. Basque mini-masterpieces are the order of the day at this donostia. Choose from the likes of cod croquettas or grilled foie gras with apple sauce, and wash them down with a glass of Txacoli. Pintxos from €3; mains €8–20. Tues–Sat 7am–midnight, Sun 8.30am–5pm.

Tetería Almedina c/Aurora Paz 2. This local legend is tucked into a maze of streets just 5min walk from the Alcazaba. A cosy Moorish restaurant that really delivers with its tagines, couscous and anything with aubergine. Try the superb gghifa pancakes, and don't miss the home-made mint lemonade. On Saturday evenings, from 10pm, they stage Spanish dance performances and North African music concerts. Pinchitos from €2, mains €10–20. Tues–Sun 11.30am–11pm.

Valencia and Alicante

Much of the coast around Valencia and further south on the Costa Blanca has been insensitively overdeveloped, suffering from mass package tourism and its associated ills. The main cities, however – vibrant Valencia and relaxed Alicante – are appealing and worth a stop for anyone travelling along the east coast.

VALENCIA

VALENCIA has worked hard to shed its provincial reputation and has emerged as an exciting, cosmopolitan city to rival Madrid and Barcelona. The City of Arts and Sciences complex is the best example of this, but Valencia's exuberance is also evident in its diverse nightlife. The city also takes pride in its museums, easily accessible beach and, of course, its main festival: the world-famous Las Fallas. Also in the region are international music festival Benicassim and the riotous Tomatina, held in Buñol.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

A few blocks north of the train station, the adjoining squares of Plaza de la Reina and Plaza de la Virgen are Valencia's heartbeat, with many of its principal sights nearby. Pedestrianized Plaza de la Virgen is a perfect spot to while away an hour with a drink and a cathedral view. The most interesting area for wandering is the maze-like Barrio del Carmen, with its arty, bohemian atmosphere. Stretching north of the Mercado Central up to the river bed of the Río Turia, it's full of historic buildings being renovated. Valencia's beach, Playa de la Malvarrosa, is easily accessible (bus #1 from Torres Serranos and metro line #5 to Maritim-Serrería).

The town centre

Plaza de la Reina is home to the impressive thirteenth-century Catedral (Oct–April Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm, Sun 2–5.30pm; May–Sept Mon–Sat 10am–6.30pm, Sun

2–6.30pm; €4.50), whose bell tower, the Miguelete (daily 10am–7.30pm; €2), gives stunning city views. Southwest of the cathedral lies the enormous Mercado Central, a modernist iron and glass structure housing over one thousand stalls selling local fruit, vegetables and seafood until 2pm (closed Sun). Opposite is the city's former silk exchange, La Lonja (entrance at c/de la Lonja 2; mid-March to mid-Oct Tues–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10am–3pm; mid-Oct to mid-March Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Mon & Sun 10am–3pm; €2, free Sun), a stunning Gothic building whose main hall features intricately crafted spiral columns and a vaulted ceiling.

The museums

Contemporary art lovers will find IVAM, the modern art museum at c/Guillém de

Castro 118 (Tues–Sun 10am–7pm; €2, free Sun; ivam.es), a treat, with its permanent sculpture collection plus two floors of changing exhibitions of work by Spanish and international artists. If you prefer your art a little older, make time for the Museo de Bellas Artes (c/San Pío 5; Mon 11am–5pm, Tues–Sun 10am–7pm; free), which has a vast display of works by painters including Goya, Velázquez and local boy Joaquín Sorolla. The highlight of the city's museums, however, is the Ciudad de las Artes y las Ciencias (City of Arts and Sciences; see website for times of individual sights; €36.90 for 3-day ticket to all sights; ☎902 100 031, cac.es). Sitting at the end of the Jardines del Turia, a 7km-long landscaped park that was built in the old river bed of the Río Turia, this breathtaking collection of futuristic concrete, steel and glass architecture comprises five buildings, four of which were designed by locally born superstar architect Santiago Calatrava. The complex includes the Hemisfèric, an eyeball-shaped IMAX cinema (€8.80), a vast science museum (€8), a huge aquarium with beluga whales, sharks and turtles (€28.50), and a dramatic pistachio nut-shaped arts centre. The complex itself is free to enter, and well worth a visit to check out the architecture if you can't afford museum entry. Take bus #19 from Plaza del Ayuntamiento, or #35 from Avenida Marqués de Sotelo.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Valencia airport is 8km west of the centre, and is accessible by metro (lines #3 and #5; 25min; 5.30am–11.30pm; €3.90).

By train Trains to and from Alicante and Murcia use the central Estació del Nord on c/Xàtiva (Ⓜ Xàtiva). Trains between Madrid and Barcelona use the Estació Joaquim Sorolla, 500m further south.

Destinations Alicante (10 daily; 1hr 35min–2hr 15min); Barcelona (15 daily; 3hr–5hr 20min); Granada (1 daily; 7hr 40min); Madrid (16 daily; 1hr 40min–3hr 40min).

By bus The station is northwest of the centre, on the far bank of the Río Turia river bed (Ⓜ Turia); bus #8 (or a 30min walk) to Pl. del Ayuntamiento.

Destinations Alicante (20 daily; 2hr 30min–5hr); Barcelona (10 daily; 4hr–5hr 45min); Madrid (13 daily; 4hr); Seville (3 daily; 9hr 45min–11hr 40min).

By ferry Bus #19 connects the Balearic Ferry Terminal with Pl. del Ayuntamiento.

Destinations Ibiza (6 weekly; 6hr 30min); Mahon (1 weekly; 15hr); Palma (6 weekly; 8hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office The office at c/Paz (c/Pau) 48 covers both Valencia city and the surrounding region. (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; ☎ 963 986 422, Ⓜ turisvalencia.es). Hands out the free listings guides Hello Valencia and 24-7 Valencia (Ⓜ 247valencia.com).

Discount cards The Valencia Tourist Card (€15/20/25 for 1/2/3 days, or €10 for 7 days without transport) gives you unlimited travel on buses and metro and discounts in some museums, shops and restaurants. Available at tourist offices or at Ⓜ valenciaturistcard.com.

GETTING AROUND

By bus and metro Most of Valencia's key sights are walkable from the town centre, but the public transport system is efficient and easy to use. Bus and metro journeys in the central zone cost €1.50, while the metro costs €3.90 to the airport. The metro runs 5.30am–midnight.

ACCOMMODATION

Although prices given here are for high season, many hostels put prices up further for Las Fallas.

Center Valencia c/Samaniego 18 ☎ 963 914 915, Ⓜ center-valencia.com; Ⓜ Xàtiva. Clean, basic dorms with good facilities, roof terrace, laundry service and breakfast. Dorms €12

★ Hôme Youth Hostel c/La Lonja 4 ☎ 963 916 229, Ⓜ homehostelsvalencia.com; Ⓜ Xàtiva. One of two Hôme hostels in the city. Well-designed, comfortable accommodation with kitchen and TV room, in a great central location. Dorms €23, doubles €67

Pensión Paris c/Salvá 12 ☎ 963 526 766, Ⓜ pensionparis.com; Ⓜ Colón. Rooms are basic, but prices are low and the location is central. Doubles €34

Red Nest Hostel c/Paz (c/Pau) 36 ☎ 963 427 168, Ⓜ rednesthostel.com; Ⓜ Colón. Bright, fun decor and lots of communal space, with pool table and table football. Dorms €16, doubles €65

EATING

There are plenty of decent options near the Mercado Central and in the Barrio del Carmen, but avoid touristy places too near the plazas de la Reina and de la Virgen. Most restaurants serve food daily 1–4pm and 8–11.30pm; exceptions cited below.

The Good Whale c/Salamanca 46. Trendy tapas spot in the Ensanche district serving up tasty modern treats with international influences, like gyozas and fish and chips with chimichurri mayonnaise. Daily noon–12.30am.

FESTIVALS

The famous Las Fallas (Ⓜ fallasfromvalencia.com) are held annually from March 15 to 19, when hundreds of papier-mâché caricatures are paraded and then burnt in the streets of Valencia amid a riot of fireworks in a tribute to St Joseph, the patron saint of carpenters. Summer heralds a host of festivals in and around Valencia: the Festival Internacional de Benicàssim (Ⓜ fiberfib.com) is a four-day music festival in the beach town of Benicàssim, between Barcelona and Valencia, featuring well-known indie, pop and electronica acts; or indulge in some childhood fantasies at La Tomatina (Ⓜ latomatina.info), essentially an enormous public tomato fight that takes place on the last Wednesday in August, in the tiny town of Buñol, one hour to the west of the city.

La Lluna c/San Ramón 23. Filling vegetarian grub plus organic beers and wines in a homely atmosphere. The bargain €8.20 weekday lunch menu features treats such as a spinach and squash “cake”. Closed Sun.

★ La Pepica Paseo Neptuno 6. A few mouthfuls of La Pepica’s paella will show you why this beachside restaurant is renowned for serving up the best rice dishes in the city. The three-course menu degustación (€28.50, min two people) makes the experience more affordable. Sun 1–4pm only.

La Pitusa c/del Pare d’Orfens 4. La Pitusa draws on the Valencian community’s reputation as the “garden of Spain” to serve up market-fresh produce in a modern setting. The €8.95 weekday lunch menu is a good deal.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

The action in Valencia is quite widely dispersed, but the city centre’s best nightlife is in the Barrio del Carmen (c/Caballeros, c/Quart and c/Alta). Ruzafa is a chilled, hipster-friendly alternative nightlife area. The best gay bars and clubs are around c/Quart. Clubs open around midnight, but don’t get going until 2am.

Café Negrito Pl. Negrito. Set in a lively square, this café-bar is the perfect spot to kick off your night in Valencia.

Calcutta c/del Rellojete Vell 4. Dance the night away to pop, house and r’n’b in this restored palace in the Barrio del Carmen. Fri & Sat until 7am.

Radio City c/Santa Teresa 19 ☎ radiocityvalencia.com. Iconic space with a varied programme of exhibitions, films, dance and music performances. Free entry most nights. Tuesday is flamenco night (€15, book via the website).

DIRECTORY

Banks Main branches of most banks are around Pl. del Ayuntamiento or along c/Xàtiva near the train station.

Hospital Hospital General, Avda Tres Cruces 2; ☎ 961 972 000; ☎ Nou d’Octubre.

Left luggage Lockers available at both train stations (daily 7am–10pm; €2.40–4.50/24hr) and the bus station (24/7; €3–4/24hr). You’ll need the exact change.

Pharmacies C/San Vicente Martir 107 (☎ 963 411 729). 24hr.

Police Gran Vía de Ramón y Cajal 40 (☎ 963 539 539).

Post office Pl. del Ayuntamiento 24.

ALICANTE

ALICANTE is a thoroughly Spanish city, despite its proximity to a strip of package-holiday resorts. With good beaches nearby, lively nightlife and plenty of cheap hotels, it’s worth a short stopover.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Wide esplanades give the town an elegant air, and around the Plaza de Luceros and along the seafront paseo you can relax beneath palm trees at terrace cafés. Try to time your visit to coincide with the Hogueras fiesta of processions, fire and fireworks, which culminates in an orgy of burning on the night of June 23/24. The cliff-top fortress of Castillo de Santa Bárbara (daily: April–Sept 10am–10pm; Oct–March 10am–8pm; €2.70 for the lift, last ascent is at 7.20pm, last descent 7.40pm) is Alicante’s main sight, with pleasant park areas and a tremendous view from the top. Access to the lift is from beach-side Avenida de Jovellanos via a tunnel. Also worth a visit is the Museum of Contemporary Art (Tues–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–2pm; free) on Plaza de Santa María, a light, airy space with a permanent collection of twentieth-century (mostly Spanish) art, including works by Miró and Picasso, plus temporary exhibitions. Playa Postiguert is the city beach, but it gets crowded in summer: try the beaches at Playa San Juan, ten minutes from the town, on the half-hourly #L4 tram.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport is 12km south of town. The #L6 airport bus (every 20min 6am–11.10pm; €3.85) stops near the train station and at Pl. Luceros.

By train The main train station is on Avda Salamanca, a 15min walk from the town centre.

Destinations Barcelona (8 daily; 4hr 45min–5hr 35min); Madrid (12 daily; 2hr 12min–5hr 14min); Valencia (12 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr 11min).

By bus Local and long-distance services arrive at the bus station on c/Portugal, a 15min walk from the town centre.

Destinations Barcelona (8 daily; 7hr 45min–9hr 15min); Granada (5 daily; 5hr–6hr 40min); Madrid (9 daily; 4hr 15min–6hr 15min); Málaga (7 daily; 5hr–6hr 50min); Valencia (22 daily; 2hr 30min–5hr 20min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Avda Rambla Méndez Núñez 23 (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–2pm; ☎ 965 200 000, ☎ alicanteturismo.com). There are other offices inside the train and bus stations, and at the airport.

★TREAT YOURSELF

El Portal c/Bilbao 2 ☎965 143 269, www.elportaltaberna.com. Gourmet tapas and raciones served at the bar or in the chic restaurant. The menu features lots of local produce, including rice dishes and a salad made with Raf tomatoes (€7.50), plus creative options such as baked scallops with cauliflower, almonds and truffles (€8.90). Booking recommended. Daily 1pm–1.30am.

ACCOMMODATION

Outside July and August, finding accommodation should be easy, with most budget options concentrated at the lower end of the Old Town, especially on c/San Fernando, c/Jorge Juan and c/Castaño.

Albergue Juvenil La Florida Avda de Orihuela 59 ☎965 918 250, www.gvajove.es. Fairly institutional HI hostel (card obligatory), with café and laundry facilities. From October to June many spaces are reserved for students, so booking ahead is essential. Dorms (under-25s) €12.50, over-25s €16.70, full-board €21.50/25.50

Camping Costa Blanca c/Convento 143, El Campello ☎965 630 670, www.campingcostablanca.com. In a small town, Campello, 10km to the north of Alicante, and close to the beach. Accessible by L1 or L3 tram, or bus #21. Also has bungalows sleeping 4–6 people. Camping/person €6, plus per tent €6, bungalows €86

★Hostal Les Monges Palace c/San Agustín 4 ☎965 215 046, www.lesmonges.es. Elegant, stylishly decorated rooms, with excellent facilities for the price. Great central location. Doubles €60

Pensión San Nicolás c/San Nicolás 14 ☎965 217 039, www.alicantesanicolas.com. Comfortable rooms (some en suite) with little extras such as kettles and bathrobes, plus a fridge for visitor use. Close to the nightlife, so can be noisy at weekends. Doubles €45

EATING AND DRINKING

Known locally as El Barrio, the concentration of streets stretching north from the main Rambla to the castle contains over a hundred bars and is without a doubt the best place for eating and drinking. Another key area for summer nightlife is c/Castaños. For eating, it can be hard to find budget options now that Alicante's gastronomic scene is booming; avoid touristy places on the Esplanade.

★Alioli c/Miguel Soler 12. Relaxed, friendly wine and tapas bar serving local and national wines by the glass, plus a selection of cold tapas including meats and cheeses. Tapas around €4, wine from €2.20. Mon–Fri noon–4pm & 8pm–midnight, Sat & Sun 8pm–midnight.

Desdén c/Labradores 22, El Barrio. Lively, late-opening bar playing dance, jazz and funk music. Several similar options on the same street. Daily until late.

★El Cisne de Oro c/César Elguezábal 23. Popular tapas bar full of locals sampling delicious Alicante specialities, such as pulpo and pastel de tortilla from €4. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm.

The Balearic islands

The largest Balearic islands – Ibiza, Mallorca and Menorca – each maintain a character that is distinct from the mainland and from each other. Ibiza is synonymous with all-night summer clubbing, though it also boasts some lovely beaches and traditional villages. While Mallorca, the largest of the Balearics, attracts mass tourism with brash resorts crammed along the Bay of Palma, away from these there are soaring pine-forested mountains, traditional villages, lively fishing ports, incredible cycling terrain, beautiful coves and the Balearics' one real city, Palma. The furthest island from the mainland, Menorca, is more tranquil than its sisters, its topography less dramatic. Along with an abundance of unspoilt coves lapped by waters turquoise enough to rival the Caribbean, Menorca is also famous for the prehistoric monuments that dot the island. Prices on all the Balearic islands are considerably above the mainland, and from mid-June to mid-September budget rooms are in short supply, so book in advance.

GETTING TO THE ISLANDS

Ferries from mainland Spain and inter-island connections are relatively expensive considering the distances involved, and budget flights from the Spanish mainland with Ryanair and Vueling mean it can be cheaper, as well as quicker, to fly; in summer there are plenty of international flights to all three islands. The three main ferry companies are Trasmediterranea (📧 trasmediterranea.es), Balearia (📧 balearia.com) and Iscomar (📧 www.iscomar.com); they operate from Barcelona, Valencia and Dénia (just south of Valencia) on the mainland and have connections to and between Ibiza, Palma, Port d'Alcúdia, Maó and Ciutadella on the islands. Ferry timetables and prices vary hugely, and some services, particularly the fast boats, only run in summer. For the latest fares and schedules, see 📧 directferries.co.uk, a useful one-stop shop (in English) for all routes and services.

IBIZA

IBIZA (Eivissa in Catalan) is an island of excess, internationally heralded as one of the world's top clubbing destinations. Each summer the world's best DJs play at its venues, attracting scores of holidaymakers looking to party 24/7. Yet it also has a quieter side, particularly in the north, with beautiful beaches and a bohemian vibe, a legacy from the 1960s when the island was a hippy hang-out. Out of season, the sun keeps shining but the crowds depart, leaving behind a relaxing island oasis.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

IBIZA TOWN is arguably the most attractive place on the island. Set around a dazzling natural harbour, it's one of the Mediterranean's most cosmopolitan small capitals. The mighty city walls enclose the ancient quarter of Dalt Vila, with its labyrinthine alleyways, attractive Gothic cathedral, and the excellent Museu d'Art Contemporani (Ronda de Narcís Puget; Tues–Fri 10am–2pm & 6–9pm, Sat & Sun 10am–2pm; free). Below Dalt Vila, the port area is a maze of streets lined with bustling bars and expensive boutiques, with a small, lively produce market just opposite the fortress entrance. The island's second town, SANT ANTONI

(accessible by bus #3 from Ibiza Town; every 30min 7.30am–midnight, when the Discobus takes over), is handy for club access but rather charmless. To make the most of this compact island and to explore its isolated coves and traditional villages, it's well worth renting a car.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport is 7km southwest of Ibiza Town. Regular bus #10 (daily 6.15am–12.20am; €3.50) connects it to the port area via the city centre.

By boat The terminal on Passeig des Moll serves ferries to and from the mainland and Mallorca; boats from Formentera use the dock on Avda Santa Eulària.

By bus Ibiza is well connected by bus. For timetables see 📧 ibizabus.com.

INFORMATION

Tourist office The main office is on Plaça de la Catedral (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 6–9pm, Sun 10am–2pm; 📞 971 399 232, 📧 eivissa.es), but there's a smaller branch with longer opening hours at Passeig Vara de Rey 1 (Mon–Sat 9am–8pm, Sun 9am–2pm). Both provide information on the entire island, including cycle routes.

ACCOMMODATION

★ Apartamentos Llobet c/Alejandro Llobet 6-8 📞 971 304 124, 📧 apartamentosllobet.com. This recently refurbished apart-hotel on the beachfront at Figueretas (10min walk from Ibiza Town) boasts friendly staff, big breakfast buffets, apartments with spacious terraces and a swimming pool. Prices drop significantly out of season. Four-bed apartment €190

DETOUR TO FORMENTERA

Just 20km south of Ibiza Town, the fourth-largest Balearic island, Formentera, lures day-trippers from Ibiza with its stunning beaches and clear turquoise waters (Ses Illetes, Llevant and Migjorn are top choices), and alternating landscapes of rugged cliffs and fields. Formentera is small enough to be explored end to end by bike in a day: numerous kiosks at the harbour rent bicycles from €8 per day. Proliferous mid-range restaurants focus on seafood and rice dishes (most open May–Oct). Companies including Balearia–Trasmapa (📧 balearia.com) run at least ten times daily during peak season; the cheapest option is Aquabus (📧 aquabusferryboats.com; one-way from €9.50).

BEST OF THE BEACHES

Of Ibiza's many beaches, particular gems include the following: Cala Llenya, 2km northeast of Santa Eulària, with calm azure waters against a backdrop of pine trees; tiny, sheltered Cala Mastella, covered in bark-like Poseidonia seagrass; Cala Boix with its deep, turquoise water and a steep descent; golden-sand Platges de Comte on the western tip of the island; and the long white crescent behind a pine grove that is Platja de Ses Salines, south of the airport, past the salt marsh, accessible by bus #11 (hourly 9.30am–7.30pm).

Camping Cala Nova Platja Cala Nova ☎ 971 331 774, www.campingcalanova.com. Located 20km north of Ibiza Town – but only 50m from the Cala Nova beach. Good watersports base; bungalows available. Buses run from nearby Santa Eulària to Ibiza Town every 20min. Per tent €8.90, plus per person €8.90

Hostal Giramundo c/Ramón Muntaner ☎ 971 307 640, www.hostalgiramundoibiza.com. Brightly coloured backpacker joint with themed rooms, tiny bathrooms and an in-house bar-café, just a block from Figueretas beach and a 10min walk from the centre of Ibiza City. Dorms €35, doubles €70

Hostal La Bartola c/Catalunya 4. Comfortable, well-decorated hostel in a central location. No kitchen. Dorms €45, doubles €60

Hostal Las Nieves c/Juan de Austria 18 ☎ 971 190 319, www.hostalibiza.com. Clean and friendly hostal several blocks away from the Old Town. Doubles without bathroom €80, with bathroom €100

Hostal Rosalía c/Rosalía 5, Sant Antoni ☎ 971 340 709, www.hostalrosalia.com. Refurbished budget hotel with a small pool, popular with clubbers who like to stay a short walk away from Es Paradis. Prices drop steeply outside Aug. Doubles €95

EATING AND DRINKING

Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

★ Can Terra Avda d'Ignasi Wallis 14. If you're on a budget, fill up on the flavoursome pintxos topping the bar. If you're looking for a full meal at a reasonable price, take a seat on the garden terrace. It's a popular spot, so go early. Tapas from €2.50.

Comidas Bar San Juan c/Guillem de Montgri 8. Long-standing family-run restaurant-bar, with good-quality fish dishes. Arrive early to avoid queuing and expect to share tables. Mains from €8. Closed Sun.

Guillemis Gastro Bar c/Enmig 15. Great choice close to the harbour, with innovative tapas and raciones. Top-notch cooking for a decent price – sharing dishes from €6. Daily 11am–3am.

Madagascar Café Pl. del Parque 4. Set on a buzzing square, Madagascar dishes up wallet-friendly sandwiches, salads and pizzas (from €6.50), plus a long list of drinks.

Tapas Restaurant & Lounge Bar Cami des Reguero 4, Sant Antoni. Yes, it attracts a large tourist contingent, but their patatas bravas and prawns with chorizo stand out, and the Sunday roasts tempt homesick Brits. Tapas from €4.50, mains from €12.

CLUBS

Ibiza's world-famous temples to hedonism draw hundreds of thousands of revellers during the party season (June–Sept), with entertainment provided by world-class DJs. The action tends to take place 1–6am, with each megaclub specializing in a different theme, be it foam parties, fancy dress or even striptease. Entry fees can be anything from €35 upwards, not including drinks (from €10 each); look out for touts selling discounted tickets around the port bars each night, and club promoters handing out free invites on the beaches. Ibiza also has one of the best gay scenes in Europe, with a lot of the action centred in the port and another cluster of bars on c/de la Virgen; many mainstream clubs hold a weekly gay night. The Discobus (check www.discobus.es for timetables; €3 one-way) links these clubs with the centre of town. Alternatively, head to Platja d'en Bossa to party day and night at the famous beach bar Bora Bora (free entry; www.boraboraibiza.net). If you're looking for some more chilled daytime action, try low-key beach clubs such as Jockey Club at Ses Salines.

Amnesia Ibiza Town–Sant Antoni road, km6 ☎ amnesia.es. Busy mega-club which plays host to top DJs including Calvin Harris. There's a choice of two rooms, so there's no chance of getting bored. Check out Cream on Thursday if you like your superstar House DJs. June–late Sept.

Anfora c/San Carlos 7, Dalt Vila ☎ discoanfora.com. Ibiza's only dedicated gay club. Late May–Oct.

Es Paradis c/Salvador Espriu 2, Sant Antoni ☎ esparadis.com. Arguably Ibiza's most beautiful superclub, with its glass pyramid, roofless dancefloor, and pounding sound system. Extremely popular for its water parties (Tues & Fri), when the dancefloor is flooded, and Glow, its Sunday night Neon Paint Party. Late May–late Sept.

★TREAT YOURSELF

Cotton Lounge Club c/Ramón Muntaner 28 ☎ 971 300 702. Figueretas outpost of the famous Cotton Beach Club, serving Mediterranean and Asian cuisine in an oasis of cool. Choose from one of the two dining spaces, or chill with a long drink on the terrace. Food served daily until midnight.

Pacha Avda 8 d'Agost ☎pacha.com. Think: mirror balls, large dancefloor with a capacity of over three thousand; a variety of music, including Spanish pop, soul and funk, but predominantly techno and house; DJs such as David Guetta; and a chillout terrace. Open year-round.

Privilege Ibiza Town–Sant Antoni road, km7 ☎privilegeibiza.com. The biggest club in the world has a capacity of 10,000 and superstar DJs doing their thing from a cabin suspended above the pool. Check out sunrise at the Vista Club. Late May–early Oct.

Ushuaia Platja d'en Bossa 10 ☎ushuaibeachhotel.com. A Platja d'en Bossa hotel swimming pool sounds a cheap choice for an open-air club venue, but Ushuaia is pure glam. With lavish surroundings and spectacular special effects, famous DJs such as Avicii and Axwell Ingrosso are almost the supporting acts.

MALLORCA

MALLORCA has a split identity. There are sections of its coast where the concrete curtain of high-rise hotels is continuous, but these areas are easy to avoid. Elsewhere the island is as appealing as it gets in the Mediterranean, particularly in the northwest where several stunning coves and pretty villages are framed by the dramatic backdrop of the rugged Tramuntana mountains. The northwest and northeast coasts also hold great appeal for serious cyclists, with steep switchback bends extending down to the Sa Calobra cove and running all the way to Cap de Formentor, Mallorca's northernmost tip.

Palma

Much to the surprise of many visitors, PALMA is an attractive, historic and cosmopolitan city filled with atmospheric narrow streets, stylish boutiques and lively bars and restaurants. The main

★TREAT YOURSELF

Wind down from a busy day's sightseeing on the terrace bar at Es Baluard. From this excellent vantage point, you can watch the sun set over Palma's harbour, gin & tonic in hand, as a DJ spins chill-out tunes. Drinks from €4. Daily until midnight.

focal point is the vast Gothic cathedral (Mon–Fri 10am–6.15pm, Sat 10am–2.15pm; €7) at c/del Palau Reial 9, which was built in recognition of the Christian Reconquest of Mallorca, and later worked on by Gaudí. Make sure to pick up the free audio/video guide for the lowdown on the stunning interior. Next door is the imposing Palau de l'Almudaina (Tues–Sun 10am–8pm; €7), an Islamic fort turned royal residence; you can visit the spartan chambers and royal apartments. More interesting is the private art collection at casa-palacio Palau March (Mon–Fri 10am–6.30pm, Sat 10am–2.15pm; €4.50), which includes sculptures by Rodin and Barbara Hepworth. Above the harbour, the old city bastion is now a contemporary art gallery Es Baluard, Porta de Santa Catalina 10 (Tues–Sun 10am–8pm; €6, €4 temporary exhibitions, free Tues; ☎esbaluard.org), housing a permanent collection of twentieth-century art (including a substantial Miró section) and excellent temporary exhibitions.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane Palma airport, 8km east of the city, is served by bus #1 (every 15min; €3) with various stops in the city and port area.

By boat The large ferry port is 3.5km west of the city centre, connected to Palma by bus #1.

Tourist office Pl. de la Reina 2 (Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat 9am–2pm; ☎971 173 990, ☎infomallorca.net).

Car rental Palma airport has plenty of options, or try Europcar along the seafront in Palma (Avda Ingeniero Gabriel Roca 19 ☎902 105 055).

Bike rental From €6 per day from Lock and Go at Plaça de Espanya bus and train station.

ACCOMMODATION

Pura Vida Hostel c/San Sebastián 2 1 ☎635 027 871. Backpacker hostel a stone's throw from Palau March. Shared bathrooms and kitchen access. Dorms €35, doubles €75

EATING AND DRINKING

The best places to search for a bite to eat are the largely pedestrianized La Lonja area and the newly hip Santa Catalina neighbourhood a short walk west of the centre. Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

Bar El Día c/Apuntadores 18. Simple tapas bar, overflowing with locals, that specializes in large portions of patatas alioli, garlicky gambas al ajillo, pimientos padrón and more. Tapas from €4. Closed Mon.

Celler Pagès Off c/Apuntadores at c/Felip Bauza 2. Small, unpretentious restaurant serving traditional Mallorcan food – try the stuffed marrows with home-made mayonnaise. Good-value lunch menu at €14. Closed Sun.

La Golondrina c/Sant Magi 60. Popular vegan bar and restaurant in Santa Catalina. The menu has international influences and includes soups, snacks, sharing dishes and full meals (around €16 per head for a full meal, sharing dishes average €10). Often features live music in the evening.

La Rosa Vermutería c/de la Rosa 5. Slick space serving up traditional tapas with a modern slant, washed down with drink-of-the-moment vermouth. Fill up on the cod and green pepper omelette (€9). Mon 7.30pm–midnight, Tues–Sun noon–4pm & 7.30pm–midnight.

Sóller and around

Set beneath the dramatic Tramuntana mountains, where the air is scented by orange and lemon groves, the beautiful

CYCLING MALLORCA

The rugged terrain, pine forests and winding roads along Mallorca's northwestern coast make for some challenging cycling, and lycra-clad enthusiasts tackle it in droves. Don't miss the scenic ride to Cap de Formentor – the lighthouse at the island's northernmost tip. When you climb to the first viewpoint, past the Port de Pollença, a minor road winds its way uphill to your right. If you reach the top, there are fantastic views of the island from the perilous watchtower. Heading south along the Ma-10, it's well worth stopping in Pollença for the Calvari – a 365-stone-step climb to the hilltop chapel. Further southwest, the most picturesque of Mallorca's turquoise-water coves, Sa Calobra, is reached by a series of steep hairpin bends. Bikes are available at rental outlets in Palma and in Alcúdia on the north coast; they can be transported in the luggage section of buses.

PALMA–SÓLLER TRAIN RIDE

The train ride from Palma to Sóller (4–7 daily; €16 one-way, €30 return including tram; trendsoller.com) makes a great day-trip out of the city. The narrow-gauge railway was built in 1912 to carry fruit to Palma. Today, the wooden carriages rattle along the outskirts of the capital before a cross-country climb up mountain passes and through tunnels, passing almond and lemon groves, tiny towns and craggy peaks topping a thousand metres. In Sóller, you can then hop on the antique 1913 tram that rumbles down to Port de Sóller (1–2 hourly; €6 one-way), where you'll find a pretty bay with a sandy beach and restaurants at the water's edge.

town of SÓLLER is dominated by the Baroque Església de San Bartolomé, whose modernist facade was designed by Gaudí disciple Joan Rubió. Don't miss the superb local ice cream at the Sa Fabrica de Gelats (gelatsoller.com) on the Plaça de Mercat: try a scoop flavoured with local oranges. The best way to get here is by train (see box above). From Sóller it's only 2km to the picturesque village of Biniaraix, and another 2km to Fornalutx. The winding Ma-10 hugs the coast, heading southwest, passing through the mountain village of Deià, the former home of Robert Graves, before arriving in Valdemossa, famous for its monastery where Chopin and George Sand stayed in 1838–39.

Eastern Mallorca

While many beaches along Mallorca's east coast have been ruined by mass tourism, the beaches north of Cala Ratjada are still relatively unspoiled, with white sand and clear waters. Inland you'll find the quiet town of Artà, dominated by a fourteenth-century hilltop fortress, from which you get a fantastic view of the surrounding countryside, while south along the coast, near the town of Porto Cristo, are the island's most spectacular caves – Coves del Drac (cuevasdeldrach.com for tour times; €15), known for their vast size, strange rock formations and subterranean lake.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Frequent buses from Palma run to Artà and Cala Ratjada, but to get to the caves and some of the more isolated beaches you need your own transport.

MENORCA

In 1993 MENORCA was declared a biosphere reserve, and as such the island has largely avoided the rampant development seen elsewhere in the Balearics. Instead, idyllic coves, tranquil bays and rolling countryside, dotted with prehistoric sights, take their place. It's possible to get to some of the beaches with local transport from the main towns of Maó or Ciutadella, but you'll need your own wheels if you want to discover the more isolated beauty spots. Cycling is a great option as the roads are flat and quiet.

Maó

As most visitors stay in resorts along the coast, the Menorcan capital of MAÓ is relatively free from tourists and so retains a low-key feel, its lovely old streets lined with Georgian houses remaining from Menorca's period of British rule. Maó has the second-largest natural harbour in the world: take a boat trip from Moll de Llevant for great vistas. In town, explore the Mercat des Claustre del Carme

MENORCA'S PREHISTORIC SITES

Unlike its neighbours, Menorca is dotted with stone constructions dating as far back as 2000 BC. There are three types of edifices: taulas, unique to Menorca, are horseshoe-shaped constructions with T-shaped pillars at the centre; talayots are stone mounds that served as ancient watchtowers; navetas are constructions that resemble upturned boats and possibly served as tombs or places of gathering. The most impressive include Naveta des Tudons (Mon & Tues 9am–2pm, Wed–Sun 9am–7.30pm; €2), a large, intact stone burial chamber near the 40km mark along the Ciutadella–Maó road, and Torre d'en Galmés (Tues–Sun 10am–2pm; €3), where you can check out the three hilltop talayots and underground chambers. Outside set hours and peak season the sites can be visited free of charge.

(Mon–Sat 7.30am–8.30pm, Sun 8.30am–2pm), a church cloister elegantly converted into a market. Local buses provide access to nearby attractions, such as the lunar landscape of the Cap de Favaritx, the whitewashed seaside town of Fornells – home of Menorca's signature dish, caldereta de langosta, slow-cooked lobster stew – or the beach resorts in the southeast, such as Cala en Porter.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Menorca's international airport is 5km southwest of Maó. Bus #10 (€2.65) every 30min from 6am to midnight to Maó's central bus station.

By bus TMSA runs hourly buses to Ciutadella via various towns including Alaior (1hr; €4.50), plus five express buses taking a direct route (Mon–Fri; 45min; €5.10). Five daily Autos Fornells buses run to Fornells (30min).

By boat Ferries from Palma and Barcelona arrive at Maó harbour, a short walk from the town centre.

Hostal La Isla c/Santa Caterina 4 ☎ 971 366 492, 🌐 hostal-laisla.com. Centrally located, friendly guesthouse with simple, comfortable rooms. Doubles €63

EATING AND DRINKING

The best places for eating and drinking are down by the port, where the bars and restaurants are open mainly in July and August, and around Plaça Bastió, an appealing square with lots of tapas options.

★ Bar à Vins Pl. de la Conquesta 5. Trendy wine bar and restaurant with hip decor designed by a Menorcan tattoo artist. Offers high-quality seasonal cooking encompassing meat, fish and vegetable dishes, with lunch menus from €8. Closed Sun.

Sa Bodega Pl. de la Constitució. Cosy spot to sample Menorcan cheese and other cold cuts washed down with local wine or vermouth.

Ses Forquilles Rovellada de Dalt 20. Gourmet dishes such as suckling pig, tuna tataki and chorizo lollipops served in a low-key setting. Creative tapas also available in the upstairs bar. Tapas from €3, mains from €12. Closed Sun.

Ciutadella and around

Well-preserved CIUTADELLA has a lovely old quarter and harbour, and is Menorca's prettiest town. Wandering around the narrow, cobbled streets and quiet plazas, lined with colourful houses and seventeenth-century churches, is a real pleasure. Nearby are some of the most beautiful and secluded virgin beaches in the Mediterranean, such as Cala Turqueta (10km) and Macarella (13km) – both have soft white sand and turquoise waters and are about a twenty-minute drive from Ciutadella (also easily reachable by bike) through countryside and pine forest. There are no facilities at Turqueta, so bring a picnic. A short walk from Macarella over the white stone gorge takes you to the even prettier bay of Macarelleta.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus TMSA buses serve Maó (hourly; 45min–1hr; tmsa.es) and arrive and depart from Plaça de la Pau, a few minutes' walk from the centre of town. Buses to the beaches are operated by Torres and leave from Plaça des Pins.

By boat Ferries from Alcúdia in Mallorca arrive at the ferry port about 4km south of the centre, which is best reached by taxi.

Bike and motorbike rental Velos Joan, c/Vila Juaneda 23 (☎ 971 381 576, velosjoan.com).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Pl. Catedral 5 (Mon–Sat 9am–3pm & 5–9pm; ☎ 971 484 155, menorca.es).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostal Ciutadella c/Sant Eloi 10 ☎ 971 383 462, hostalciutadella.com. In a quiet area of the Old Town, this simply furnished hostal features typical Menorcan window-shutters. Rooms are simple and immaculately clean, staff are friendly and breakfast is served in the downstairs restaurant. Doubles €70

Hostal Oasis c/Sant Isidre 33 ☎ 630 018 008, hostaloasismenorca.es. Comfortable, spacious rooms in an Old Town house with pretty garden, where breakfast is served in summer. Doubles €66

EATING AND DRINKING

The lively produce market (Plaça Llibertat; Mon–Sat mornings) is a good place to pick up provisions or enjoy a coffee. For nightlife, hit the port, where bars and clubs (in high season) stay open until 6am.

El Imperi Pl. d'es Born 5. A Ciutadella classic with a smart old-school interior and black-aproned waiters. The prices don't match the setting: delicious sobrasada and honey sandwiches cost from €1.60 and the wine's a steal at €2 a glass.

★ La Cayena c/Alaoir 40. Internationally inspired restaurant with a boho-chic interior. The wide-ranging menu features Thai, Indonesian and Mexican meals plus home-made desserts. Pad Thai €12.50. Dinner only, closed Sun.

Restaurante Vegetariano Fang I Aram c/Gabriel Martí I Bella 11. A short walk from the centre, this airy café-restaurant serves daily three- or four-course lunch menus of meat-free home cooking. Lunch menu from €10.90. Mon–Sat 10am–noon & 1–3.30pm, plus Sat 8–11.30pm.

Catalunya

With its own language, culture and, to a degree, government, Catalunya (Catalonia in English) has a unique identity.

Barcelona, the capital, is very much the main event – one of the most vibrant and exciting cities in Europe. Inland, the monastery of Montserrat, Catalunya's premier sight, is perched on one of the most unusual rock formations in Spain and makes for a great day-trip from Barcelona. To the north, the rugged Costa Brava is shaking off its unfortunate touristy image and boasts the best beaches in the region, along with some appropriately wacky and wonderful homages to Surrealist artist Salvador Dalí. Just south of Barcelona, the beach town of Sitges draws visitors with its beaches and a raucous Gay Pride event in June.

BARCELONA

Cool and hip as they come, BARCELONA is Catalunya's cosmopolitan and self-confident modern capital. A thriving port, and the most prosperous commercial centre in the Iberian peninsula, its sophistication and cultural dynamism are way ahead of the rest of Spain – the city seems far more in tune with Milan and Paris than with Madrid or Lisbon. Barcelona also evolved a quirky and very individual identity of its own, most perfectly expressed in the eccentric Art Nouveau architecture of Antoni Gaudí and his contemporaries, but also evident in the huge diversity of the city's cultural events.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Though it boasts outstanding Gothic and Art Nouveau buildings, and some great museums – most notably those dedicated to Picasso, Miró and Catalan art – Barcelona's main appeal lies in getting lost in the narrow side streets of the Barri Gòtic (Gothic Quarter), rising, eating and drinking late, hitting the beach or lazing in the parks, and generally soaking up the atmosphere. As in any large city, beware of pickpockets.

La Rambla

One of the most popular avenues in Europe, La Rambla teems with sightseers, tourist bars, postcard stalls and human statues. As it bisects the city, La Rambla remains a useful point of reference, so it's worth strolling down to orient yourself before getting lost in the more interesting maze of side streets in the Barri Gòtic to the east or El Raval to the west. If you are walking down La Rambla towards the sea, just off to your right is the highly photogenic La Boqueria, the city's main food market (Mon–Sat 8am–8.30pm; ☎boqueria.info), a splendid gallery of sights and smells that's frequented by locals and tourists alike. By the namesake metro station stands the Liceu, Barcelona's celebrated opera house (guided tours Mon–Fri at 9.30am & 10.30am; €16; several "express visits" daily, check website for times; €6; ☎934 859 914, 🌐liceu.barcelona.cat). Further south, just off La Rambla and into the Barri Gòtic, is the elegant nineteenth-century Plaça Reial, crowded with hundreds of alfresco diners and drinkers. Across La Rambla and just into El Raval, Palau Güell (daily: April–Oct 10am–8pm; Nov–March 10am–5.30pm; €12; 🌐palauguell.cat) at c/Nou de la Rambla 3–5 is a must for any Gaudí fan: the interiors showcase some of his best work and are simply breathtaking. At the harbour end of La Rambla, Columbus stands perilously perched atop a tall, grandiose column, the Mirador de Colom (daily 8.30am–8.30pm; €4). Take the lift to his head for a bird's-eye view of the city.

El Raval

The once-notorious red-light district of El Raval lies on the west side of La Rambla. With its two universities and numerous bars, clubs and arts centres, Raval is now one of the most diverse areas of the city. For a taste of the area's regeneration, walk up the Rambla de Raval – a boulevard with pavement cafés and bars – on your way to the Museu d'Art Contemporani de Barcelona or MACBA (Mon & Wed–Fri 11am–7.30pm, Sat 10am–9pm, Sun 10am–3pm; €10, valid for one month; macba.cat), an arresting white-walled and glass edifice, which houses a permanent collection of Spanish and Catalan art from the 1950s onwards, as well as thought-provoking temporary exhibitions by international and national artists. Next door is the Centre de Cultura Contemporània de Barcelona or CCCB (Tues–Sun 11am–8pm; €6 one exhibition, €8 two exhibitions; cccbb.org). Firmly at the cutting edge of contemporary culture, this creative space hosts film cycles, exhibitions, installations and more, including Sónar (see box, p.1062).

Barri Gòtic

The Barri Gòtic dates principally from the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, when Catalunya reached the height of its commercial prosperity. The quarter is centred on Plaça de Sant Jaume, just behind which lies Barcelona's cathedral, La Seu (daily 8am–12.45pm & 5.15–8pm; €6 1–5.30pm, free other times; catedralbcn.org), one of Spain's great Gothic buildings. Barcelona's finest Roman remains were uncovered nearby, beneath the beautiful Plaça del Rei, and now form part of the wonderful Museu d'Història de Barcelona (Tues–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10am–8pm; €7, free Sun from 3pm, all day first Sun of the month; museuhistoria.bcn.cat), which takes you into the nitty-gritty of the city's development, all the way from its Roman fish sauce-making factory to the present day. You'll also be able to see the interiors of the Plaça del Rei's finest buildings – including the famous Saló del Tinell, on whose steps Ferdinand and Isabella stood to receive Columbus on his triumphant return from his famous voyage of 1492. Along c/de Marlet, in the centre of El Call, Barcelona's medieval Jewish quarter, you'll come across the tiny Sinagoga

Major (Mon–Fri 10.30am–6.30pm, Sat & Sun 10.30am–2.30pm; €2.50), one of the oldest synagogues in Europe and all that remains of Spain's largest Jewish community.

La Ribera and Parc de la Ciutadella

Heading east from Barri Gòtic, you cross Vía Laietana into La Ribera and reach the Carrer de Montcada, crowded with beautifully restored old buildings. One of these houses the Museu Picasso (Tues–Sun 10am–7pm, Thurs till 9.30pm; €11, free Sun from 3pm, all day first Sun of the month; bcn.cat/museupicasso), one of the world's most important collections of Picasso's work. Continue down the street and at its end you'll find yourself opposite the stunning basilica of Santa Maria del Mar (daily 9am–1.30pm & 4.30–8.30pm; free, but €6 Mon–Sat 1–5pm & Sun 2–5pm), built on what was the seashore in the fourteenth century. The elongated square leading from the church to the old Mercat del Born is the Passeig del Born, heart of the trendy El Born neighbourhood, a pleasant area for wandering. A few minutes' walk from here is the green and peaceful Parc de la Ciutadella, whose attractions include the meeting place of the Catalan parliament, a lake and Gaudí's monumental fountain.

Port Vell, Barceloneta and Port Olímpic

The attractive Port Vell area, centred on the Maremagnum complex, features an upmarket shopping mall, an aquarium with an 80m-long shark tunnel, and a multitude of expensive restaurants. The other side of the port, past the marina, the Barceloneta district, in contrast, is one of the few remaining barris harbouring genuine local Catalan life. Here, you'll find popular and not terribly clean beaches, the city's most famous seafood restaurants and the excellent Museu d'Història de Catalunya (Tues–Sat 10am–7pm, Wed till 8pm, Sun 10am–2.30pm; €4.50; mhcat.net), a stampede through 2000 years of Catalan history, including the Muslim occupation of Barcelona and the Civil War. A cable car, the Teleférico de Barcelona (daily:

March to early June & mid-Sept to late Oct 10.30am–7pm, early June to mid-Sept 10.30am–8pm; late Oct to Feb 11am–5.30pm; €11 one-way, €16 return) makes its high, perilous-seeming journey from the tip of Barceloneta to Montjuïc hill (see p.1059). Walk 1km north along the beach promenade and you'll find Port Olímpic with its myriad bars and restaurants. At night, the tables are stacked up, dancefloors emerge and the area hosts one of the city's liveliest (and brashest) bar and club scenes.

Sagrada Família

Barcelona offers – above all through the work of Antoni Gaudí (1852–1926) – some of the most fantastic and exciting modern architecture anywhere in the world. Without doubt his most famous creation is the incomplete Basilica de Sagrada Família (daily: April–Sept 9am–8pm; Oct–March 9am–6pm; €15 basic, including towers €29; www.sagradafamilia.cat), in the northeastern sector of the Eixample district.

Construction is ongoing, with the projected completion date being the hundredth anniversary of Gaudí's death, and it's fascinating to watch Gaudí's last-known plans being slowly realized. The size alone is startling, with eight spires rising to over 100m. If you choose the "top views" ticket, be sure to take the lift, or climb up one of the towers, and you can enjoy a dizzy view down over the whole complex and clamber still further round the walls and into the towers.

L'Eixample

Barcelona's Eixample (the street-grid zone) abounds with wonderful modernista (Art Nouveau) buildings. The top two are Gaudí's Pedrerà at Passeig de Gràcia 92 (daily: 9am–8.30pm & 9–11pm; €20.50 including audioguide; www.lapedreracom), its quirky roof terrace providing a spectacular view of the city's skyline, and, nearby, his Casa Batlló at Passeig de Gràcia 43 (daily 9am–8pm; €20.35/16.30; www.casabatllo.cat), a wonderfully surreal residential building; check out the front window in the form of a dragon's mouth. Inside, you'll find no straight lines – just curves, twists and undulations. Casa Batlló shares a block with two other great Art Nouveau buildings, the Casa Amatller at no. 41 and the Casa Lleo Morera at no. 35.

Barcelona's other Art Nouveau masterpiece is the 1908 Palau de la Música Catalana concert hall in c/Sant Pere Més Alt (daily 10am–3.30pm; July & August until 6pm; tours every 30min; €18, with limited places, so buy in advance online; www.palaumusica.org), where the multicoloured columns of the facade are just a taster of the wonders within, in particular the amazing stained-glass roof.

Gràcia and Park Güell

The residential neighbourhood of Gràcia, north of the centre, has a bohemian, village-like feel, and is a good place for an authentic night out. Popular with arty student types, the bars are best stumbled upon by chance – try your luck around the Plaça de la Virreina.

In the eastern part of Gràcia, Park Güell (daily: winter 8.30am–6pm; summer 8am–9.30pm; €8; www.parkguell.cat) is Gaudí's most ambitious project after the Sagrada Família. This almost hallucinatory experience consists of a hillside park featuring, among other creations, giant decorative lizards and a vast Hall of Columns, containing a small museum (daily 10am–6pm) with some of the furniture Gaudí designed. To get here, take the metro to Vallcarca or Lesseps (15min walk from either) or bus #24 from Plaça de Catalunya to the eastern side gate.

Montjuïc

The green hill of Montjuïc, with its winding paths and botanical gardens, provides a refuge from the bustle of the city, while at the same time featuring a couple of great museums and a superbly sited castle. You can approach it from Plaça d'Espanya and walk from there up the imposing Avenida de la Reina María

DAY-TRIP: MONTSERRAT

The bulbous mountains of Montserrat, 60km northwest of Barcelona, make for an interesting day-trip out of the city. As well as some short hikes (1–3hr) through the national park's unusual rock formations, the main attraction is the Benedictine monastery, with its well-preserved sixteenth-century basilica housing a twelfth-century image of La Moroneta, patron saint of Catalunya. To get here, take the R5 train from Plaça Espanya (every hour at 36min past; 1hr 5min) to Montserrat Aeri (for the cable car), or to Monistrol de Montserrat (for the rack railway to the town).

Cristina, past the Font Màgica, a large fountain that comes alive with lights to the tune of "Barcelona" by Freddie Mercury and Montserrat Caballé in the evenings. To start with the castle, take the Funicular de Montjuïc (daily: Mon–Fri from 7.30am, Sat & Sun from 9am; summer till 10pm; winter till 8pm; every 10min; fare included in metro tickets), from Paral.lel metro station to the start of the Telefèric de Montjuïc (daily: March–May & Oct 10am–7pm; June–Sept 10am–9pm; Nov–Feb 10am–6pm; €8 one-way, €12 return), which in turn leads to the Castell de Montjuïc (daily: April–Sept 9am–8pm; Oct–March 9am–6pm; €5, free Sun from 3pm), an eighteenth-century fortress that offers magnificent city views and often hosts concerts in summer.

MNAC, the Poble Espanyol and the Fundació Joan Miró

The Palau Nacional, set at the back of Montjuïc, is the grand peach-coloured home to one of Spain's great art museums, the Museu Nacional d'Art de Catalunya or MNAC (May–Sept Tues–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–3pm; Oct–April Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 10am–3pm; €12, free Sat from 3pm & first Sun of month; www.mnac.es). Its enormous bounty includes a Romanesque collection that is the best of its kind in the world and a substantial number of Gothic, Baroque and Renaissance works, as well as a large modern art section and changing temporary exhibits. Nearby is the Fundació Joan Miró (Tues, Wed & Fri: Nov–March 10am–7pm; April–Oct 10am–8pm; all year Thurs 10am–9.30pm, Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–2.30pm; €12; www.bcn.fjmiro.es), devoted to the largest collection of works by one of the greatest Catalan artists, with Miró's drawings, bold abstract paintings, sculpture and textile creations on display in an appealing, light-filled building. Downhill and to the west of MNAC is the Poble Espanyol or "Spanish Village" (Mon 9am–8pm, Tues–Thurs & Sun 9am–midnight, Fri 9am–3am, Sat 9am–4am; €12; www.poble-espanyol.com), consisting of replicas of famous or characteristic buildings from all over Spain, and with a lively bar scene at night.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The main Aeroport del Prat is 12km southwest of the city centre and is linked by train (daily 5.45am–11.30pm, every 30min; €3.50) to Barcelona Sants, and Pg. de Gràcia in the city centre, both served by L3 to Liceu or Pl. de Catalunya. The Aerobús (6am–1am, every 5–10min from Terminal 1, every 10–20min from Terminal 2; €5.90; www.aerobusbcn.es) runs to Pl. d'Espanya and Pl. de Catalunya. Some Ryanair flights land at Girona airport (see p.1065).

By train Barcelona Sants (www.rf.es) is the city's main train station, for national and some international arrivals – many national buses also stop here.

Destinations Girona (1–2 hourly; 38min–1hr 30min); Madrid (1–2 hourly; 2hr 30min–7hr); Tarragona (2–4 hourly; 31min–54min); Valencia (15 daily; 3–5hr); Zaragoza (1–2 hourly; 1hr 30min–4hr 45min).

By bus The main bus terminal for international and long-distance services is the Estació del Nord (www.barcelonanord.com; www.arc.cat).

Destinations Alicante (9 daily; 7hr 30min–9hr 45min); Madrid (17 daily; 7hr 20min–7hr 50min); Valencia (9 daily; 4hr–5hr 30min); Zaragoza (15 daily; 3hr 30min).

By ferry Balearic ferries dock at the Estació Marítima (www.drassanes.com). Acciona Trasmediterranea (www.trasmediterranea.es) and Balearia (www.balearia.com) are the main ferry companies with regular services from Barcelona to Palma de Mallorca, Maó on Menorca and Ibiza Town. Grandi Navi Veloci ferries (www.gnv.it) run three or more luxury ferries to Genoa, Italy (19hr), and Tangier, while Grimaldi Ferries (www.grimaldi-lines.com) run to Civitavecchia not far from Rome, Livorno in Tuscany and Porto Torres in Sardinia.

INFORMATION

Tourist office Pl. de Catalunya 17 (daily 8.30am–8.30pm; 932 853 834, www.barcelonaturisme.com; www.catalunya.com).

GETTING AROUND

By metro and bus The easiest way of getting around is by metro (Mon–Thurs & Sun 5am–midnight, Fri till 2am, Sat all night). Numerous bus routes (roughly 6am–10.30pm; www.tmb.cat) pass through Plaça de Catalunya; every bus stop displays route maps. Yellow night buses run between 11pm and 3/5am every 30–45min; all pass through Plaça de Catalunya. Pick up a free transport map at TMB customer service centres at Barcelona Sants, and at Universitat, Diagonal, La Sagrada and Sagrada Família metro stations.

Tickets Ticket prices for bus and metro are as follows: zone 1 single (covers all major sights) €2.15; a ten-ride targeta "T-10" €9.95 which is valid for the train to El Prat airport; 1/2/3/5-day Hola BCN! Pass €14/20.50/26.50/32.

Discount cards The Barcelona Card, available from any tourist office (3/4/5 days €45/55/60, 10 percent discount online), covers all city transport including to/from airport, plus between 15 and 50 percent discounts at many museums and some tours, shops and restaurants. Worthwhile only if you're planning on huge amounts of sightseeing in a short period. The Articket (€30, available at the tourist office and participating museums; articketbcn.org) covers entry to six of the city's main art galleries: it's worth getting if you plan on visiting at least four of them. Student ticket prices in museums and galleries are often only available to those who are both a student and under 25.

Bicycles Many hostels rent out bikes, or try Rent-a-Bike, c/Perill 29 (€11/day; ☎ 672 367 145, rentabikebarcelona.com).

Taxis The black-and-yellow taxis charge a minimum of €2.05, plus €0.93/km Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, €1.18 at other times: a cross-town journey costs around €8–12.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation in Barcelona is among the most expensive in Spain, and you're strongly advised to book ahead, particularly at busy times such as Sónar (see box, p. 1062) and September's Festes de la Mercè, when the city celebrates its patron saint with a riot of castellers (human castles), correfocs (fire runs) and other revelry. Most of the cheapest accommodation is in the side streets off and around La Rambla and in El Raval.

Lovely small guesthouse in Barri Gòtic, its individually decorated rooms arranged around a peaceful central courtyard. Good breakfast is included and the owner is very helpful. Doubles €85

EATING

Barcelona is a fairly expensive place to eat out. The best bet for a cheap meal is a weekday lunchtime menú del día that many places offer, with three courses with wine and bread for as little as €12. There are many excellent tapas bars in the Old Town; avoid the overpriced ones on La Rambla. Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

7 Portes Passeig d'Isabel II 14; ☎ Barceloneta; map p.1058. Expect white linen, smart-looking career waiters and expertly cooked large portions of paella, arroz negro (rice in sepia ink) and fideuà. One of the few arroceries where you can order a paella for one. Mains around €15.

★ Bar del Pla c/Montcada 2; ☎ Jaume I; map p.1058. Top tapas bar close to the Picasso Museum. Petite and perennially packed, it serves tasty takes on classics such as patatas bravas and more inventive daily specials made with market-fresh produce. Mon–Thurs noon–11pm, Fri & Sat noon–midnight.

Bar Pinotxo La Boqueria; ☎ Liceu; map p.1058. Perpetually busy with locals, this tapas bar at the back of La Boqueria dishes up such delights as caramel pork belly or seared squid. Tapas from €4. Sept–July Mon–Sat 6am–5pm.

BioCenter c/Pintor Fortuny 25 ☎ restaurantbiocenter.es; ☎ Catalunya; map p.1058. One of the best-value vegetarian lunchtime menus in town – €10.45 weekdays, €12.45 weekends. If you're eating à la carte, try the lentil burger or "bravissimo" potato selection with a choice of sauces.

Bormuth Pl. Comercial 1; ☎ Jaume I; map p.1058. Trendy tapas bar in El Born that serves modern versions of Spanish classics. Start your night right with a vermouth, the trendiest drink in Barcelona and Bormuth's speciality. Mon–Wed & Sun 12.30pm–1.30am, Fri & Sat 12.30pm–2.30am.

Can Tosca c/del Torrent de l'Olla 77; ☎ Fontana; map pp.1054–1055. Unassuming neighbourhood bar that serves a mean breakfast (try the butifarra sausage sandwich), home-style lunches – and unexpectedly morphs into a popular spot for a gin & tonic on weekend nights. Mon–Thurs 8am–8pm, Fri & Sat 8am–3am.

★ Caravelle c/Pintor Fortuny 31; ☎ Catalunya; map p.1058. Airy café restaurant close to La Rambla serving top brunch options such as baked eggs with chorizo and corn fritters with avocado. Also serves lunch and dinner. Good for vegetarians. Brunch or main dishes average €8. Mon 9.30am–5.30pm, Tues–Fri 9.30am–1am, Sat 10am–1am, Sun 10am–5.30pm.

Euskal Etxea Placeta de Montcada 1 ☎ euskaletxeataberna.com; ☎ Jaume I; map p.1058. Basque taberna specializing in a great range of mouthwatering pintxos (tapas) from €2 each.

★ La Boqueria La Rambla; ☎ Liceu; map p.1058. Barcelona's most famous produce market, heaving with locals and tourists. Shop here for fruit, veg, chorizo, jamón, cheese, bread, cake and fresh fruit juices, and head for the tapas stalls at the back for lunch or snacks. Mon–Sat 8am–8.30pm.

La Cava c/Corsega 339; ☎ Diagonal; map pp.1054–1055. At the Gràcia end of expensive l'Eixample, this hip bar-restaurant serves a range of vermouths (and cocktails incorporating the popular tippale), plus a changing menu of tempting tapas and raciones. Mon–Fri 7pm–midnight, Sat 4pm–midnight.

Lateral c/Consell de Cent 329; ☎ Passeig de Gràcia; map pp.1054–1055. Sleek, minimalist decor and a menu bursting with fresh, modern tapas choices. Try the salmon and avocado tartare or the vegetable tempura. Service is quick and efficient, and you can eat well for around €12.

MUSIC FESTIVALS

If electronica is your thing, make sure you're in town for Sónar (☎ sonar.es), an internationally respected multimedia art and progressive music festival, held every June in Barcelona. Day tickets bought online cost €54, night tickets €72, while a pass for the entire festival will set you back €195.

If you're more into indie and rock, check out Primavera Sound (☎ primavera sound.com), a three-day festival held at the end of May/beginning of June. Day tickets €80, three-day tickets from €125.

Puda Can Manel Pg. Joan de Borbó 60 ☎ canmanel.es; ☎ Barceloneta; map p.1058. Bodega with large wooden barrels, specializing in grilled meats and Catalan favourites such as calçots (grilled spring onions). Good-value €14 menú del día, best washed down with a jug of their cava sangria. Closed Mon & Sun eve.

Sesamo c/Sant Antoni Abat 52; ☎ Sant Antoni; map p.1058. Cheerful, friendly vegetarian restaurant in El Raval. Three-course lunches are a steal at €10 and there are fresh juices and pastries if you prefer a snack. Closed Wed & Sun eve.

Tlaxcal c/Comerc 27 ☎ tlaxcal.com; ☎ Jaume I; map p.1058. Hugely popular Mexican joint with thirteen types of tacos and fantastic home-made salsas. Weekday lunchtimes are a bargain, with fresh guacamole, a portion of tacos and dessert for €10.50. Closed Mon.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Barcelona's nightlife is some of Europe's best, though it's not cheap. High-end bars and clubs are concentrated mainly in the Eixample, especially around c/Ganduxer, Avda Diagonal and Via Augusta. Laidback and alternative places can be found in the streets of El Raval and El Born, while the waterfront Port Olímpic area is a more mainstream summer-night playground, where the big, brash clubs are. Music bars close at 3am, the clubs at 4 or 5am, though later at weekends. For listings, pick up a copy of Butaxaca, a free weekly guide available in most bars and clubs (☎ butxaca.com), or buy the weekly Guia del Ocio from any newsstand (☎ guiadelociobcn.com). The thriving gay scene (☎ gaybarcelona.net) is centred around the so-called Gaixample, a few square blocks northwest of the main university.

BARS

Boadas c/Tallers 1, El Raval; ☎ Catalunya; map p.1058. Old-school cocktail bar just off La Rambla once frequented by Hemingway. Mixologists create their signature daiquiris and pour over thirty types of gin. Mon–Thurs noon–2am, Fri & Sat noon–3am.

La Fira c/Provença 171; ☎ Provença; map pp.1054–1055. Barcelona at its quirkiest: fairground rides and circus paraphernalia adorn this long-standing theme bar. Tues–Sat from 11pm till late.

London Bar c/Nou de la Rambla 34–36; ☎ Liceu; map p.1058. Here you can prop up the bar that Picasso and Miró once graced, or check out the live acts on the small stage at the back.

Vaso de Oro c/Balboa 6; ☎ Barceloneta; map p.1058. A tiny but lively bar, packed with locals and serving a good selection of artisan beer.

Xampanyeria Can Paixano c/Reina Cristina 7; ☎ Barceloneta; map p.1058. The place to sip champagne while snacking on tiny sandwiches. Very popular (read: very, very crowded). Mon–Sat 9am–10.30pm, Sun to 1pm.

CLUBS

Jamboree Pl. Reial 17; ☎ masimas.com/jamboree; ☎ Liceu; map p.1058. Caveous basement club with an international crowd dancing to hip-hop, funk and r'n'b (cover charge around €15). The top DJs take to the decks at 12.30am, but there are live jazz performances at 8 and 10pm. Daily until 5.30am.

Luz de Gas c/Muntaner 246; ☎ Diagonal. Stylish club with a glamorous retro feel. Popular with a young crowd, and often hosts top Catalan and international DJs.

Moog c/Arc del Teatre 3 ☎ masimas.com/moog; ☎ Drassanes; map p.1058. If you're into your electronica, Moog is the place to go for regular appearances from big-name UK and Euro DJs. Despite the large, industrial setting, the atmosphere is relaxed and both gay- and straight-friendly. Cover charge €15. Daily midnight–5am.

Sala Apolo c/Nou de la Rambla 113 ☎ sala-apolo.com; ☎ Paral.lel; map p.1058. Live gigs from international acts and burgeoning stars from the worlds of alternative electronica, rock and techno. "Nasty Mondays" are very popular. Daily 10pm–5am.

SHOPPING

The big names of the fashion industry occupy the Passeig de Gràcia and the waterside shopping centre Maremagnum. The crooked passages of La Ribera and El Born are home to dozens of little boutiques, while in El Raval, trendy vintage shops lie along the Carrer de la Riera Baixa. There are also a number of excellent speciality food retailers in the city, and chocolate shops are scattered throughout the Ciutat Vella.

Casa Gispert c/Sombrerers 23 ☎ casagispert.com; ☎ Barceloneta or Jaume I; map p.1058. Freshly roasted nuts, dried fruits, speciality chocolates and turrons (marzipan and nougat bars), with sweet teeth catered to since 1851.

La Botifarrería de Santa Maria c/Santa Maria 4; ☎ Barceloneta or Jaume I; map p.1058. Sells fabulous speciality hams, cheeses and their famous botifarras (Catalan sausages).

L'Arca de L'Àvia c/Banys Nous 20; ☎ Liceu; map p.1058. An incredible collection of vintage clothing – so much so that these guys have supplied the set of Titanic and other films.

Ras c/Doctor del Dou 10; ☎ Universitat; map p.1058. Beautiful bookshop and gallery selling books on art and architecture, as well as photography.

THE COSTA BRAVA

Stretching for 145km from the French border to the town of Blanes, the Costa Brava (Rugged Coast) boasts wooded coves, high cliffs, popular beaches and deep blue water. The more rugged northern part, dominated by the spectacular Cap de Creus headland and park, and the whitewashed fishing town of Cadaqués, is the most attractive yet least crowded, with a natural appeal all its own. Inland is Girona, the beautiful medieval capital of the region, and Figueres, Dalí's birthplace and home to his outrageous museum. Buses in the region are almost all operated by SARFA (☎ 902 302 025, ☎ sarfa.com), with an office in every town. To visit the smaller and more picturesque coves, a car or bike is useful, or walk the fabulous Camí de Ronda necklace of footpaths running along the coastline.

Figueres

The northernmost parts of the Costa Brava are reached via FIGUERES, a provincial Catalan town with a lively rambla. The town's major highlight is one of Spain's most visited museums, the surrealist creation that is the Teatre-Museu Dalí (March–May & Oct Tues–Sun 9.30am–6pm; June daily 9.30am–6pm; July–Sept daily 9am–8pm; Nov–Feb Tues–Sun 10.30am–6pm; €14; ☎ salvador-dali.org). Born in Figueres, Dalí died here in the tower and the museum showcases some of his most eccentric work. The extraordinary pink facade, topped with enormous eggs and suits of armour balancing baguettes on their heads, sets the tone for the exhibitions inside, which include collages, sculptures and mechanical contraptions requiring audience participation, and the ticket price includes entry to the Dalí Jewels exhibition – 39 precious creations based on the artist's designs. Between late July and late August, the whole experience gets even more surreal during cava-fuelled night visits (daily 10pm–1am; €15).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train AVE trains from Barcelona, Girona and Madrid arrive at Figueres Vilafant just outside the centre; take the shuttle bus. Local trains use the central station; from here (about 600m), simply follow the “Museu Dalí” signs to reach the centre.

Destinations Barcelona (hourly; 55min); Girona (hourly; 30–40min); Madrid (12 daily; 3hr 40min–4hr 44min).

By bus The bus station is around 200m away from the main train station, towards the city centre. SARFA buses run to Cadaqués (4–8 daily; 1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Pl. de l'Escorxador 2 (July–Sept Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; Oct–June Mon–Fri 10am–2pm; ☎ 972 503 155, 🌐 visitfigueres.cat).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

It's easy to go to Figueres as a day-trip from either Barcelona or coastal destinations, but it might be worth staying overnight to beat the bussed-in crowds. The restaurants around Museu Dalí tend to be sub-par and overpriced.

Creperie Bretonne c/Cap de Creus 6. The decor draws on the absurdist theme, and the wide range of sweet and savoury stuffed crêpes and salads (set lunch menu from €9) is equally enticing. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm.

Hostal Sanmar c/Rec Arnau 31 ☎ 972 509 813, 🌐 hostalsanmar.com. Budget choice 400m from the Museu Dalí. Worn furnishings, but clean and perfectly acceptable for an overnight stay. Doubles €60

Cadaqués

The picture-postcard fishing village of CADAQUÉS, an hour by SARFA bus (4–8 daily; 1hr) from Figueres, with whitewashed houses, tiny beaches and narrow cobbled streets straddling a hill topped by an imposing church, was Salvador Dalí's home from 1930 to 1982, and attracted an arty crowd during its heyday. The tiny fishing village of Portlligat, 1.25km walk from Cadaqués, features the Casa-Museu Dalí (by advance booking only; daily mid-Feb to mid-June, Nov & Dec 10.30am–6pm; mid-June to Oct 9.30am–9pm; closed Tues mid-Feb to mid-March & Nov; €11; ☎ 972 251 015, 🌐 salvador-dali.org), a labyrinthine ramble of a house decorated according to the whims of Dalí and his beloved wife. Bizarre ornaments catch your eye in every room and a visit to the artist's intimate quarters offers an enthralling (and surprising) glimpse into his private life.

INFORMATION

Tourist office c/del Cotxe 1 (summer Mon–Sat 9am–9pm, Sun 10am–1pm & 5–8pm; winter Mon–Thurs 9am–1pm & 3–6pm, Fri & Sat Mon–Thurs 9am–1pm & 3–7pm; ☎ 972 258 315).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Cadaqués Ctra Port-Lligat 17 ☎ 972 258 126, 🌐 campingcadaques.com. Campsite in an attractive location with a large pool; very basic facilities. Open mid-March to Sept. Per person €8.70, plus per family tent €11.50

Hostal Vehí Carrer de l'Església 5 ☎ 972 258 470, 🌐 hostalvehi.com. Friendly budget option near the church, with wonderfully clean a/c rooms with en-suite bathrooms. Doubles €65

EATING AND DRINKING

For a drink or a meal, the seafront is the liveliest. Look out for suquet – the town's signature fish and potato stew.

Pilar c/de la Miranda 4. Some of Cadaqués's best paella and other rice dishes, as well as grilled fish and seafood. Mains €16–20. Daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm, closed Sun eve.

Girona

GIRONA, 37km south of Figueres and 100km from Barcelona, is one of Spain's loveliest unsung cities – especially in May during the nine-day Temps de Flors flower festival. Alleyways wind through the compact old town, the Barri Vell, to the atmospheric streets of El Call – the beautifully preserved medieval Jewish quarter – at its core. The star attraction here is the Museu d'Història dels Jueus de Girona (July & Aug Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, Sun 10am–2pm; Sept–June Tues–Sat 10am–6pm, Sun & Mon 10am–2pm; €4) at Carrer de la Força 8, an excellent museum that tells the story of Catalunya's second most important Jewish community, from daily rituals to contributions to medieval medicine and relentless persecution by the Inquisition. Girona was fought over every century since the Romans first set foot here, and is dominated by its towering cathedral (daily: April–Oct 10am–6.30pm; Nov–March 10am–5.30pm; €7 including audioguide) nearby. The town's eclectic past is tangible in its medieval walls, which you can walk on for a great view of the city from above.

Girona is also popular with hikers and cyclists who use the city as a base for the many great routes in the area, details of which are available at the tourist office.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport (✈️ barcelona-girona-airport.com), 11km out of town, served by Ryanair flights from the UK, is connected to Girona's bus/train station by regular Sagalés (✈️ sagales.com) buses (30min).

By train The station is off the Barcelona Crta, a 10min walk southwest from the centre.

Destinations Barcelona (2–4 hourly; 40min–1hr 20min); Figueres (hourly; 30–40min); Madrid (10 daily; 4hr–10hr 20min).

By bus The station is next to the train station.

Destinations Barcelona (3–5 daily; 1hr 20min); Cadaqués (2–3 daily; 1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office c/Juan Maragall 2 (Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat 8am–2pm & 4–8pm, Sun 9am–2pm; ☎️ 872 975 975, 🌐 girona.cat).

ACCOMMODATION

Girona can easily be visited as a day-trip from Barcelona but staying overnight allows you to soak in the atmosphere after crowds of day-trippers leave.

Pensió Margarit c/Ultònia 1 ☎️ 972 201 066, 🌐 hotelmargarit.com. Between the train station and the Old Town, this budget hotel offers comfortable rooms, though light sleepers beware: walls are thin and the sound really carries. Doubles €57

Room in Girona c/Santa Clara 9, third floor ☎️ 972 426 480, 🌐 roomingirona.com. In a perfect location close to the river, this backpacker hostel is fairly basic, but offers free wi-fi, a laundry service and bike rental. Dorms €20, twins (shared bathroom) €45, private bathroom €55

EATING AND DRINKING

For evening drinking it's best to head into the Barri Vell or the area around Pl. Independència, where you'll find most of the bars and clubs.

Drap's c/de la Cort Reial 2 Traditional restaurant in an arcaded riverside square, serving Catalan classics such as esquixada (salt cod salad). The €14 lunch menu will fill you up for an afternoon's sightseeing. Daily 12.45–4pm & 8–11pm.

El Vermutet Can Gombau c/Bonaventura, Carreras i Peralta 7. Lively bar specializing in popular Catalan aperitif vermouth. Go before dinner to soak up the atmosphere. Wed–Sat noon–3pm & 6.30–11pm, Sun noon–3pm.

Rocambolesc c/de Santa Clara 50. You may not be able to afford (or secure a table at) the world's top restaurant El Celler de Can Roca, but you can sample one of the Roca brothers' imaginative ice creams here. Flavours change, but include seasonal options like caramelized apple and lavender from €3.50. Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–11pm, Fri & Sat 11am–midnight.

Andorra

A tiny country nestled in the Pyrenees, Andorra is one of the oldest nations in Europe. Set up by Charlemagne in the eighth century as a buffer between France and the Islamic Moors, it became an independent, democratic principality in 1993. It's the only country in the world with Catalan as its official language, although Spanish and French are also widely spoken, as is basic English.

Duty-free shopping, winter sports and summer hiking are the main attractions of this picturesque alpine nation: the capital, Andorra la Vella, offers the widest range of accommodation and cuisine, while next-door Escaldes-Engordany lays claim to the biggest thermal spa in Europe. To the northwest is the popular ski resort of Pal-Arinsal, while the hills around Ordino boast challenging trails and splendid valley views. East of Ordino, a road weaves through appealing mountainscapes to Canillo, home to a captivating Romanesque chapel, and near the French border are sleepy Soldeu and the busy ski slopes of Grandvalira.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

Andorra doesn't have an airport, but regular buses link the tiny nation to the nearest international ones three to four hours' drive away in Barcelona (225km) and Toulouse (180km). Alsina Graells (☎902 335 533, 🌐movelia.es) has eight daily services from Barcelona (€28; 3hr 15min–4hr 20min), as does Nadal Autocars (from €29.50; Andorra ☎805 151, 🌐autocarsnadal.com), while Novatel (☎803 789, 🌐andorrabybus.com) does airport transfers from both Barcelona (7 daily; €33) and Toulouse (3 daily; €36). Also also offers a coach service (8 daily) from Barcelona Nord to Andorra's central bus station, via Lleida.

Alternatively, you can travel by train from Zaragoza or Barcelona Sants to Lleida and then take a Montmantell minibus (5 daily; €23; ☎973 982 949 or Andorra ☎807 444, 🌐www.montmantell.com) from in front of the train station to Andorra la Vella.

The international phone code for Andorra is ☎376 and the currency is the euro.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Passports are generally required to cross the Andorran border. You'll be asked to show your passport when buying a bus ticket.

GETTING AROUND

Its small size makes Andorra easy to get around – most places can be visited as day-trips from Andorra la Vella, with efficient public bus links to most towns and villages.

ACCOMMODATION

Good budget hotels are scarce in the capital. Prices peak in high season – July to August (when reservations are a must) and December to March – expect to pay at least €50 for a double room in most places. There are many well-equipped campsites throughout Andorra, and in summer you can stay for free in one of the 26 state-run refugis – simple mountain cabins; information is available at tourist offices. Camping in the wild is illegal except around refugis.

ANDORRA LA VELLA

The name of the national capital ANDORRA LA VELLA is a bit of a misnomer: "Old Andorra" is for the most part a spread-out collection of ski lodges, touristy restaurants, bars and ageing storefronts that cater to duty-free shoppers and skiers. However, with a backdrop of towering mountains, its setting has an undeniable appeal.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The capital is bisected by the Avinguda del Príncep Benlloch, which further east becomes the shop-filled Avinguda de Meritxell and then, on towards neighbouring Escaldes-Engordany, Avinguda de Carlemany. Towards the western end of town, Barri Antic is the capital's old quarter, with pleasant cobbled streets and quiet plaças; at its centre is the Casa de la Vall, one of the oldest – and smallest – parliaments in Europe.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Most international buses (see p.1066) use the Central d'Autobusos, just southeast of the small Parc Central, 5min south of the city centre. Buses to Lleida, run by Montmantell (🌐montmantell.com), leave from Caldea Spa but can also make stops in the centre on request.

★TREAT YOURSELF

The Caldea Spa (opening hours vary, check website; €35 for 3hr, €30 for 2hr evening session; ☎800 999, 🌐caldea.com; bus #L3 from Avda Meritxell), 1km east of Casa de la Vall, in Escaldes-Engordany, is the largest health centre on the continent, pumping in water from the nearby thermal springs. Rich in sodium, silica and sulphur, the water here is reputed to have healing effects for skin and respiratory ailments.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police ☎110; Ambulance and Fire ☎118;
Medical ☎116; Mountain Rescue ☎112.

Post offices Spanish PO at c/Juan Maragall 10 (Mon–Fri 8.30am–2.30pm, Sat 9.30am–1pm); French PO at c/Pere d'Urg 1 (Mon–Fri 8.30am–1.30pm, Sat 9am–noon).

LA MASSANA

A twenty-minute bus ride away through a verdant valley from Andorra la Vella (bus #L5 or #L6 from Avda Princep Benlloch, every 15min 7am–9pm, €1.80), LA MASSANA is a good base for hiking or skiing. Get information at the helpful tourist office (Avda Sant Antoni 1, Pl. les Fontetes; Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 3–7pm, Sun same hours when the ski station is open; ☎835 693, @lamassana.ad), and pick up the Trails of Andorra booklet which covers all the walks in detail (€5).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Alberg Borda Jovell Avda Del Jovell, Sispony ☎836 520. Turn up the mountain at La Massana's Museu Casa Rull and you'll arrive at this chalet hostel. Good Spanish and a willingness to mingle helps. Dorms €25

★ Mon Bohemi Cami Ral, Complex Tabola ☎837 076. Cultural café and book exchange in an old parking lot. The home-made pizzas are delicious (slice for €2.10), as are the burgers (€6). Wed–Mon 2pm–2am.

PAL AND ARINSAL

At the western end of La Massana commune lies PAL (bus #M2 from La Massana; 4 daily), one of the best-preserved villages in Andorra, hugging the slopes that veer up to Pal-Arinsal, part of the popular Vallnord ski complex (@vallnord.com). Pal is also a great base for summertime activities – ask at the tourist office in La Massana for details. Head back down to La Massana to take the road up to ARINSAL, 2km northwest (bus #L5 from Avda Princep Benlloch in Andorra la Vella via La Massana, every 30min), which is much bigger than Pal – it is also a great base for summer treks and known for its lively nightlife.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Fugazzeta Ctra de Arinsal. Laidback café where boarders chill with a beer (Estrella €1.50) and a slice (pizzas €7–9). Marinated beef empanadas offer themselves up on the bar for €1.90. Daily 7.30am–11.45pm.

Surf Next to the cable-car station, Arinsal. An Argentine steakhouse (parilla meats from €11.50) until 11.30pm, when it becomes a raucous bar for the après-skiers. Mon–Wed & Sun 12.30–11.30pm, Thurs–Sat 12.30pm–5am.

Xixerella Park Ctra de Pal – Erts ☎718 613, @xixerellapark.com. A scenic campsite on the road between La Massana and Pal with a swimming pool and riverside pitch and putt. Per person €6.60, per tent €6.60

The Pyrenees

The area around the Spanish Pyrenees is little visited; most tourists who come here travel straight through, but in so doing they miss out on some of the most wonderful scenery in Spain, and some of the country's most attractive trekking, with several beautiful national parks as a focus for exploration. To the south lies Aragón, and most especially its capital, Zaragoza, with its fine architecture and stately pace of life. One place that attracts tourists is Pamplona, the capital of Navarra and famous for its bull-running fiesta, but a great place to visit at any time of the year.

ZARAGOZA

ZARAGOZA is the capital of Aragón, and easily its largest and liveliest city, with over half the province's one million inhabitants and the majority of its industry. There are some excellent bars and restaurants tucked in among its remarkable monuments, and it's also a handy transport centre, with good connections into the Pyrenees and east towards Barcelona.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Many places of interest are clustered around the Plaza del Pilar, near the Río Ebro. Other beautiful medieval monuments are a short walk away. Try and be in town for the October Fiestas del Pilar, a lively festival in honour of the town's patron saint.

Aljafería

The city's only surviving legacy from Moorish times, the Aljafería (April–Oct daily 10am–2pm & 4.30–8pm;

Nov–March Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 4.30–6.30pm, Sun 10am–2pm, sometimes closed Thurs & Fri am for parliamentary meetings, check with tourist office; €3, free on Sun; cortesaragon.es), was built in the eleventh century by the independent dynasty of Beni Kasim. After Zaragoza was reconquered in 1118, the palace was Christianized and used by the reconquista kings of Aragón. From the original design, the foremost relic is a tiny and beautiful mosque adjacent to the second courtyard, the intricately decorated Patio de Santa Isabel. From here, the Grand Staircase (added in 1492) leads to a succession of rooms remarkable chiefly for their carved ceilings.

Basilica de Nuestra Señora del Pilar

The most imposing of the city's churches, majestically fronting the Río Ebro, is the Basilica de Nuestra Señora del Pilar (daily: summer 6.45am–8.30pm; winter 6.45am–8.30pm). It takes its name from the column that the Virgin is said to have brought from Jerusalem during her lifetime to found the first Marian chapel in Christendom. Topped by a diminutive image of the Virgin, the pillar forms the centrepiece of the Holy Chapel and is the focal point for pilgrims, who line up to kiss an exposed section encased in a silver sheath. Visitors can climb the tower (daily 10am–2pm & 4–6pm; €3) for excellent city views.

San Salvador

In terms of beauty, the interior of the Basilica de Nuestra Señora del Pilar can't compare with the nearby Gothic-Mudéjar cathedral, San Salvador, or La Seo (Mon–Fri 10am–2pm & 4–6.30pm, Sat 10am–12.30pm & 4–6.30pm; €4), at the far end of the pigeon-thronged Plaza del Pilar.

Roman remains

The city has brought to light its Roman past through several underground excavations: there's the Forum and River Port (close to La Seo), as well as the Roman Baths and the amphitheatre on c/San Jorge (all Tues–Sat 10am–1.30pm

& 5–8.30pm, Sun 10am–2pm; €4, free first Sun of the month, combined ticket €7). Following the semicircle of c/Coso and c/Cesar Augusto, the Roman walls are steadily being excavated; the best place to view them is at c/Echegaray at the junction with c/Coso, where remains of towers and ramparts can be seen.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Zaragoza's modern Delicias station serves all train and bus destinations. It's on Avda Navarra, about a 30min walk from the centre and connected by bus #51 to Paseo de Pamplona, at the southern end of Avda de la Independencia (every 11–12min, 8am–midnight). Some regional trains also call at the more central Goya station.

By train Barcelona (at least 1 hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr 50min); Bilbao (2 daily; 4hr 30min); Madrid (17 daily; 1hr 20min–4hr 10min); Pamplona (2 daily; 1hr 45min–2hr 15min).

By bus Barcelona (13 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr 15min); Madrid (18 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Pamplona (10 daily; 1hr 50min–3hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Pl. del Pilar (daily 10am–8pm; ☎ 976 201 200, zaragozaturismo.es); also at Torreón de la Zuda (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 4.30–8pm, Sun 10am–2pm), and in Delicias train station and airport (daily 10am–8pm).

Discount card The Zaragoza Card (24hr €20/48hr €23; zaragozacard.com) includes entrance to the majority of the city's museums and monuments and offers discount on transport, restaurants and hotels.

ACCOMMODATION

Albergue Zaragoza Hostel c/de los Predicadores 70 ☎ 976 282 043, behostels.com/zaragoza. Five-hundred-year-old building with a rock bar in its cellar. Not the best facilities but a perfect location for discovering the city. Dorms €16

Hostal Navarra c/de San Vicente de Paúl 30 ☎ 976 291 684, hostalnavarra.net. Just 200m from Plaza España, this hostel has an unbeatable location. Comfy sofas in the lounge area – perfect for enjoying the view. Doubles €30

Hotel Sauce c/Espoz y Mina 33 ☎ 976 205 050, hotelsauce.com. Worth a stay for the name alone, Hotel Sauce has a prime location around the corner from Pl. del Pilar, comfortable, en-suite rooms and friendly staff. The on-site café serves great home-made cakes. Doubles €49

Pensión Iglesias c/Verónica 14-2º ☎ 976 293 161, pensioniglesias.com. In a great location with some rooms overlooking the Roman amphitheatre. Doubles have basins and a shower but separate toilets. Doubles €32

EATING AND DRINKING

El Tubo, the name given to the streets around c/Estebanes and c/Libertad, is the best place for bar-hopping and tapas, while the bars around the church of Santa María de Magdalena have a more bohemian, alternative vibe. Zaragoza's main fresh-food market, Mercado Central, is on c/Caesar Agosto (Mon–Sat 9am–2pm & 5–8pm). Most places open 1–4pm and 8–11.30pm.

Bar La Viña c/del Arzobispo Apaolaza. Aromas of herbs and spices emanate from this popular tavern. A few cervezas in, friends share kebabs (€2.50) and battered aubergine fries (€2).

★ Birosta c/de la Universidad 3, Barrio de la Magdalena. Healthy, vegetarian pinxtos, with daily specials that include mushroom pâté with caramelized onions and home-made falafel with a citrus sauce (€1.20). The shop indoors sells alternative veggie and vegan products.

Café Botánico Santiago 5. Garden store meets café at this hip arcade venue. Choose from a drool-inducing selection of cakes, made and replenished in store throughout the day. Try the coconut and mascarpone or house favourite, chocolate and orange (€2 per slice).

Café at Museo Teatro c/San Jorge 12. To see half the museum without paying an entrance fee, opt for the coffee and tortilla combo (€2.50, before 1pm) and enjoy it on the terrace, in the grounds of the old amphitheatre.

Taberna Doña Casta c/Estebanes 6. This popular bar elevates the humble croqueta to an art form, with delicious specialities (€2.40 each) including arroz negro. Ever-popular jamón is paired with walnut for a tasty twist.

PARQUE NACIONAL DE ORDESA

For summertime walking, there's no better destination than the Parque Nacional de Ordesa (ordesa.net), focused on a vast, trough-like valley flanked by imposingly striated limestone palisades. From Zaragoza's Inter-cambiador de Actur you'll need to take a bus to Sabiñánigo (up to 10 daily; 2hr) and from there catch a bus to Torla (1–2 daily; 55min), the best base for the park. Note that bus services between Torla and Sabiñánigo are very limited, so plan your journey well – see alosa.es for details. At Torla, a regular shuttle bus (every 30min from 6am) takes you to and from the park, but trekkers should opt instead for the lovely trail (1hr 30min) on the far side of the river, well marked as the GR15.2. Further treks can be as gentle or as strenuous as you like, the most popular outing being an all-day trip to the Circo de Soaso waterfalls. For detailed information on the park, contact either Torla's tourist office (July–Sept Thurs–Tues 9.30am–1.30pm & 5–9pm; ☎ 974 486 378) or the park's Centro de Visitantes, which is also in Torla (daily 9am–2pm & 4.15–7pm; ☎ 974 486 472).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Reserve well in advance for accommodation in July and August; the three most scenic campsites, San Antón (☎ 974 486 063), Camping Ordesa (☎ 974 117 721) and Camping La Gorga (☎ 974 502 357), strung out between 1km and 3km north, often fill up. Make sure to bring a sleeping bag along to the refugios.

Refugio l'Atalaya c/A Ruata ☎ 974 486 022. Torla's real refuge. A cosy restaurant downstairs offers a fireplace, head-tilting art and some of the nicest tapas in town (€7–9). Open all year. Dorms €15

PAMPLONA

PAMPLONA (Iruña in Basque) has been the capital of the old kingdom of Navarra since the ninth century, and long before that was a powerful fortress town defending the northern approaches to Spain. Even now it has something of the appearance of a garrison city, with its hefty walls and elaborate pentagonal citadel. The fast-flowing River Arga runs through it, providing many appealing bankside picnic spots.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Though most visitors flood the city during the Fiestas de San Fermín (see box opposite), the compact and lively streets of the Old Town have plenty to look at. Highlights include the elaborately restored Gothic cathedral with its magnificent cloister, the Museo Diocesano (summer Mon–Sat 10.30am–6pm; winter Mon–Sat 10.30am–4pm; €5; catedraldepamplona.com), and the colossal city walls and citadel. Don't miss the excellent Museo de Navarra (Tues–Sat 9.30am–2pm & 5–7pm, Sun 11am–2pm; €2, free Sat pm & Sun; www.cfnavarra.es/cultura/museo); besides the wealth of archeological treasures, from Paleolithic tools to vast Roman mosaics and an intricately carved eleventh-century chest from Islamic Spain, there's a superb art collection – from medieval and Renaissance ecclesiastical works to Navarrese art from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The city also has a wealth of parks, including the beautiful, if surreal, Parque La Taconera, home to herds of deer, peacocks and other unusual bird species.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train 800m from the old part of town; bus #9 runs every 15min to the end of Paseo de Sarasate, a short walk from the central Pl. del Castillo – there is a RENFE ticket office at c/Estella 8.

Destinations Barcelona (7 daily; 3hr 15min–4hr 15min); Madrid (7 daily; 3hr 15min–3hr 30min); San Sebastián (4 daily; 1hr 40min); Zaragoza (6 daily; 2hr).

By bus c/Yanguas Miranda in front of the citadel.

Destinations San Sebastián (11–15 daily; 1–2hr); Zaragoza (9–12 daily; 1hr 50min–3hr); Barcelona (2–3 daily; 6hr); Madrid (10–11 daily; 5hr–5hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Avda Roncesvalles 4 (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 3–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; ☎ 848 420 420, ✉ turismo.navarra.es), opposite the monument to the running of the bulls.

ACCOMMODATION

Rooms are in short supply during summer, and at fiesta time you've virtually no chance of a place without booking months in advance. Most places quadruple their prices during San Fermín, so you're better off staying nearby (San Sebastián is a viable option) and travelling to Pamplona to enjoy the night-long festivities and early morning running of the bulls. Many end up sleeping rough; remember that there is safety in numbers – head for one of the many parks such as Vuelta del Castillo or Media Luna and bring a sleeping bag. Prices below are high season, outside of fiesta time.

★ Hostel Hemingway c/Amaya 26-1° ☎ 948 983 884, ✉ hostelhemingway.com. The only proper hostel in town, with cool decor, large guest kitchen and staff who go out of their way to help. Dorms €17

Hotel Horno de Aralar c/San Nicolás 12 ☎ 948 221 116, ✉ asador-aralar.com. Sea-blue rooms with basic amenities. Close to Plaza Castillo. Popular asado (barbecue) restaurant below. Doubles €40

Pensión Arriazu c/Comedias 14 ☎ 948 210 202, ✉ hostalarriazu.com. Fourteen prim, pastel-shaded rooms at this former theatre in a location that couldn't get more central. Doubles €64

EATING AND DRINKING

The Mercado de Santo Domingo is the town's main produce market (Mon–Sat 8am–2pm). The highest concentration of restaurants and bars is along c/San Nicolás and c/Estafeta in the Casco Antiguo.

La Granja c/de Estafeta 71. One of the few restaurants in the city to stay open through siesta time. Their menu of the day, with highlights such as skirt steak and seafood paella, is an absolute bargain for €10.90. Thurs & Sat open till 3am.

SAN FERMÍN: THE RUNNING OF THE BULLS

From midday on July 6 until midnight on July 14, Pamplona embraces the riotous nonstop celebration of the Fiestas de San Fermín. The focus is the encierro, or the running of the bulls – which has evolved from a way of herding cattle to the market to a nail-bitingly exciting spectacle. The mozos (runners) are a mix of daring locals and outsiders, mostly male (women were originally forbidden from participating, but some still do) and fuelled by alcohol and bravado. The course – from the Plaza Santo Domingo to the bullring – is 825m long. At 8am two rockets are fired to signify the release of the six bulls from their corral and the participants start running. Once you're in, you're in till the end; if you lose your nerve halfway through the run and try to scramble up the wall alongside the course, you'll be pushed back in. Particularly dangerous parts are where c/Mercaderes meets c/Estafeta and the slope down from c/Estafeta to the bullring. Every year there are gorings, particularly when a bull becomes separated from the rest of the herd. The spectacle is over in minutes; to watch the encierro it's essential to arrive early and to stake out a spot along the route. If you can't afford a spot on a balcony, buy a ticket for the bullring to watch the end of the proceedings, when bullocks with padded horns are let loose on the crowd inside the bullring. The bulls that participate in the encierro are then killed in the afternoon bullfights. If you watch the actual running, you won't be able to get into the bullring, so go on two separate mornings to see both. At midnight on July 14, there's a mournful candlelit procession, the Pobre De Mi, to wind up the festivities. See ✉ sanfermin.com for more details. There's also a PETA-organized anti-bullfighting event, the Running of the Nudes (✉ runningofthenudes.com), held two days before the first bull run; participants mostly wear a red scarf and plastic horns, but little else.

La Servicial Vinícola Navarro Villoslada 11. Locals sipping regional wine among maps of Navarra: this is the real Pamplona. A generous menú del día for €10 or a variety of bocadillos – tortilla, flank steak, cheese (€4) – are on offer.

Sarasate c/San Nicolás 19. A great vegetarian restaurant that serves the likes of ratatouille and spinach and feta strudel. Daily set menu €11. Daily 1–5pm, Fri & Sat also 8.30pm–1am.

The north coast

Spain's north coast veers wildly from the typical conception of the country, with a rocky, indented coastline full of cove beaches and fjord-like rías. It's an immensely beautiful region – mountainous, green and thickly forested, with frequent rains often shrouding the countryside in a fine mist. In the east, butting against France, is the País Vasco (Euskadi, or Basque Country), with a strongly independent character. Note that the Basque language, Euskera, bears no relation to Spanish, or any other known language (we've given the alternative Basque names where popularly used) – it's perhaps the most obvious sign of Spain's strongest separatist movement. San Sebastián is the big seaside attraction, with superb beaches and some of the most imaginative food in Spain. There are any number of lesser-known, equally attractive coastal villages from the border with France all the way to Bilbao – home to the iconic Guggenheim – and beyond. To the west lies pastoral Cantabria, centred on the port of Santander, with more good beaches and superb trekking in the mountains of the Picos de Europa. In the far west, green and lush Galicia is Spain's main fishing region; unsurprisingly, its population goes crazy for all manner of seafood. This province also treasures its independence, and Gallego, which has much in common with Portuguese, is still spoken by around 85 percent of the population. For travellers, the obvious highlights are the world-class city of Santiago de Compostela, the greatest goal for pilgrims in medieval Europe, and the strenuous, 800km Camino de Santiago, one of Europe's finest hikes.

SAN SEBASTIÁN

The undisputed queen of Basque resorts, SAN SEBASTIÁN (Donostia), European Capital of Culture in 2016, frequently entices even the most time-strapped travellers to stay longer. With excellent beaches and a gastronomic scene whose Michelin-star count is rivalled only by Paris, it's unsurprising that San Sebastián is so infectious. The town's kilometre zero rule means that markets and restaurants pledge to serve local ingredients, where possible, so food is always at its freshest and money filters back into the community. San Sebastián has always been a fashionable place to escape the heat of the southern summers. Its festivals include an International Jazz Festival (late July; @heinekenjazzaldia.com) that attracts top performers to play in different locations around town, the Semana Grande (Big Week) in mid-August, featuring music, races and an international fireworks contest, and the San Sebastián Film Festival in mid-September.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

San Sebastián is beautifully situated around the deep, still bay of La Concha. The Parte Vieja (old quarter) sits on the eastern promontory, while newer development has spread inland along the banks of the River Urumea and around the edge of the bay to the foot of Monte Igeldo.

Parte Vieja

The Parte Vieja's cramped and noisy streets are where crowds congregate in the evenings to wander among the small bars or sample the shellfish from the traders down by the fishing harbour. Here, too, are the town's chief sights: the gaudy Baroque facade of the church of Santa María and the more elegant and restrained, sixteenth-century San Vicente. The centre of the Old Town is the Plaza de la Constitución, known locally as "La Consti"; the numbers on the balconies of the buildings around the square date back to the days when it was used as a bullring. Behind La Consti, winding footpaths crisscross up to the top of Monte Urgull.

From the mammoth figure of Christ on its summit, there are great views out to sea and back across the bay to town.

Monte Igeldo

For wonderful views of the curving bay, the city and the mountains beyond, head to the top of Monte Igeldo: take bus #16 or walk around the coastline to its base, from where a funicular (spring & June Mon–Fri 11am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–9pm; July & Aug Mon–Fri 10am–9pm, Sat & Sun 10am–10pm; rest of the year Tues, Thurs & Fri 11am–6pm, Sat & Sun 11am–7pm; €1.75 single, €3.15 return; www.monteiguelo.es) will carry you to the summit.

City beaches

La Concha beach is the most central and most celebrated, a wide crescent of yellow sand stretching round the inlet from the town. Out in La Concha bay is a small island, Isla de Santa Clara, which makes a good spot for picnics; glass-bottom boats (servicio visión submarina) leave from the Paseo Mollaberria (June–Sept 10am–8pm; every 60–90min; €6; www.motorasdelaisla.com).

Ondarreta, considered the best beach in San Sebastián for swimming, lies beyond the rocky outcrop that supports the Palacio Miramar, west of La Concha. Far less crowded, and popular with surfers, Playa de Zurriola and the adjacent Playa de Gros have breakwaters to shield them from dangerous currents, with the latter particularly good for beginners; Pukas (Avda Zurriola 24; Mon–Fri 10am–2pm & 4–8pm, Sat 8.30am–2pm & 4–8pm, Sun 8.30am–2pm; ☎943 320 068, pukasurf.com) offers surf lessons, wetsuit and board rental. Weekend surf courses cost €64; board rental is €11 for an hour or €26 for a day.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The RENFE train station (Estación del Norte) is across the Río Urumea on Paseo de Francia, a 10–15min walk to the historical centre. The EuskoTren from Bilbao's Atxuri station in the Ibaiondo district will take you to San Sebastián's Amara in central Easo Plaza (every 30min; 2hr 30min; €6.30).

Destinations Barcelona (2 daily; 6hr); Madrid (6 daily; 5hr 30min–7hr 40min); Pamplona (2 daily; 1hr 40min); Salamanca (7 daily; 6hr 15min–8hr); Zaragoza (2 daily; 3hr 40min).

By bus National buses arrive at Paseo Federico García, close to the train station.

Destinations Bilbao (13–25 daily; 1hr 20min); Madrid (12 daily; 5hr–6hr 45min); Pamplona (10–15 daily; 1–2hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Alameda del Boulevard 8 (Mon–Thurs 9.30am–1.30pm & 3.30–7pm, Fri & Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; ☎943 481 166, sansebastianturismo.com). Runs good local walking tours (tickets from €10; book at sansebastianreservas.com).

ACCOMMODATION

During busy July and August prices are inflated. High season extends to September when the film festival takes place.

TABAKALERA

Renovation work began on San Sebastián's old tobacco factory in 2011, with an exquisite redesign by Jon and Naiara Montero. Tabakalera (Plaza de las Cigarreras 1; Mon–Thurs 8am–10pm, Fri 8am–11pm, Sat 10am–11pm, Sun 10am–10pm; tabakalera.eu) is now a centre for contemporary culture, with an art-house cinema and space for temporary exhibitions, which hosts the city's annual film festival in September. Take the lift to the top floor; the city view is incredible.

hospedaje offers sparkling mid-sized rooms with polished wooden floors, tiny balconies, soundproof windows, and powerful, spacious showers in the shared bathrooms. Minimum stay two nights in high season. Doubles €60

Surfing Etxea Zabaleta 32 ☎943 265 832, surfingetxea.com. Community comes first at this surf house – a perfect place to chill after hitting the waves. Dorms are well equipped with comfy bedding and personal reading lamps. Surfboards and wetsuits available for rent. Dorms €37

EATING AND DRINKING

Food in the Basque country is considered some of the best in Spain and it's easy to see why in San Sebastián. The Parte Vieja is crammed with bars serving gourmet pintxos (bite-sized tapas), washed down with Basque country cider or Txacoli (young white wine). Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

Atari Gastroteka c/Mayor 18. An array of imaginative pintxos, both cold (try the jamón, goat's cheese and onion marmalade, €3) and hot (the revuelto de bacalao, €2.50, is superb). Also table service for an à la carte menu with raciones from €8 each and a curious helado queso (cheese ice cream) for €3.50. Daily till 2/3am.

Belgrado Avda de Navarra 2. Café-cum-deli-cum-shop, Belgrado is the pinnacle of San Sebastián's cool. It can't get much better than biting into their Fritilla Burger (€6), while looking over Playa de Gros's swell.

★ Borda Berri c/Fermín Cabetón 12. Traditional Basque pintxos made fresh to order. Eat elbow-to-elbow with locals enjoying the rich food and wine. The best of the menu is the melt-in-your-mouth calf's cheek (€3.20) cooked in red wine, and the risotto con queso de Idiazabal (local cheese risotto) for €2.70.

Giroki Enbeltran Kalea 4. Nautical-feeling place with friendly barmen. For a tender milanesa, try the Carolina Sandwich (€4.90) with Giroki's house sauce. Huge platos combinados from €7.50. Fri & Sat till 1am; closed Wed eve.

Juantxo Enbeltran Kalea 6. Come to this old-town tavern for a hearty brunch. Flavoursome tortillas (plain for €3.15, with chorizo for €3.70) come by themselves or in bocadillos.

NIGHTLIFE

Dabadaba Mundaitz Kalea 8 dabadabass.com. Converted warehouse with live indie/rock bands, followed by DJs spinning vinyl on the weekends. Check website for listings. Mon–Thurs 9am–1pm & 5–11pm, Fri 9am–1pm & 5pm–4am, Sat 5pm–4am, Sun 5–11pm.

Gu De Alderdi Eder Parkea 1 gusansebastian.com. Twenty-four-hour bar/club with entry deals before 11pm. Architecturally impressive, with panoramic views over La Concha. Splash out on the Willy Wonka cocktail (€10), made with white chocolate liqueur. Closed Sun.

BILBAO

Although traditionally a gritty industrial city, BILBAO (Bilbo) has been given a makeover in the last couple of decades and is now a must for any lover of art or architecture. A state-of-the-art metro, designed by Norman Foster, links the city's widely spread attractions: the monumental titanium-and-glass Museo Guggenheim by Frank Gehry – along with Jeff Koons' puppy sculpture in flowers – is the city's highlight, while the airport and one of the many dramatic river bridges are Calatrava-designed, and the compact Casco Viejo (Old Town) is a beguiling maze of medieval streets. The city's vibrant, friendly atmosphere, elegant green spaces and some of the best pintxo bars in Euskadi combine to make Bilbao an appealing destination. From the first Saturday after August 15, the whole city goes totally wild during the annual bullfighting extravaganza, La Semana Grande, with scores of open-air bars, live music and impromptu dancing.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Casco Viejo, the old quarter on the east bank of the river, is focused on the beautiful Teatro Arriaga, the elegantly arched Plaza Nueva and the fourteenth-century Gothic Catedral de Santiago (Mon–Fri entry at 11am, 1pm & 7.30pm; Sat & Sun after mass at 1pm).

Museo Guggenheim

A good route leads from the Casco Viejo down the river past the Campo Volantín footbridge and the Puente Zubizuri to the sensual, gleaming titanium curves of the Museo Guggenheim (daily July & Aug 10am–8pm; Sept–June Tues–Sun 10am–8pm; €13, €16 joint pass with the Museo de Bellas; guggenheim-bilbao.es), described as “the greatest building of our time” by architect Philip Johnson. Replacing an industrial wasteland, the Guggenheim, with its promontories, soaring columns, and wonderful use of light inside its vast atrium, is at least as interesting as the treasures it houses. The permanent collection, which includes works by Kandinsky, Klee, Mondrian, Picasso, Chagall and Warhol, to name a few, is housed in traditional galleries, while the superb temporary exhibitions and individual artists' collections are displayed in the huge sculpted spaces nearer the river. There are free guided tours in English every day at 12.30pm (arrive 30min before).

Museo de Bellas Artes

A five-minute walk from the Guggenheim, on the edge of the Parque de Doña Casilda de Huriza, is the Museo de Bellas Artes (Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–8pm; €7, free on Wed & also for under-25s Sun 2–8pm; museobilbao.com), which focuses on three main specialisms: classical art, such as works by Goya, Murillo, Zurbarán and El Greco; more recent art by the likes of Gauguin; and Basque art, such as sculpture by Quintín de Torre. There are also some fine temporary exhibitions.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane From the airport (902 404 704, aena.es), 12km north of town, the Bizkaibus #A3247 runs to Pl. Moyúa in the centre (daily 5.20am–10pm; every 20min; 30min; €1.80).

By train The FEVE and RENFE train stations are located at Abando, just over the river from the Casco Viejo.

Destinations Madrid (6 daily; 4hr 45min); Pamplona (Mon–Sat 9 daily, Sun every 3–4hr; 2hr 30min); Santander (FEVE; 3 daily; 3hr).

By bus Buses arrive at Termibús in San Mamés, connected to the train station by cercanías trains to the Casco Viejo by metro.

Destinations Barcelona (4 daily; 8hr–8hr 25min); Madrid (15 daily; 4–5hr); San Sebastián (13–26 daily; 1hr 10min–2hr); Santander (29 daily; 1hr 15min–1hr 45min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Pl. Circular 1 (daily 9am–9pm; 944 795 760, bilbao.net), with another useful branch in the Guggenheim (daily 10am–7pm), and at the airport.

GETTING AROUND

Standard metro rates are €1.45 for a single journey in the central zone, €4.50 for a day-pass; single tickets on the cercanías trains cost €1.60, while EuskoTren tram-line tickets are €1.50 for a single, €4.50 for a day-pass (validate your ticket in the platform's machine before boarding). If you're going to be using the metro a lot, it's worth purchasing a Barik card (€3), saving you an average of €0.80 per journey. Buses (€1.25 single) run alongside trams, connecting every part of the city.

ACCOMMODATION

In summer and at weekends, booking ahead is advisable.

★ Bilbao Akelarre Hostel c/Morgan 4-6° 944 057 713, bilbaoakelarrehotel.com. See a different side to the city in this character-packed hostel, which is run by three friends. The black, white and red walls are covered with illustrations and quirky observations, and the bunks are comfy. Closest metro is Duesto. Dorms €17.50

Hotel Bilbi c/Miribima 8 94 415 2811 www.hotelbilbi.com. Well-organized hotel close to Merkuata La Ribera. All rooms have a/c; ones on the top floor boast impressive views over the city. Doubles €57

Ganbara Hostel c/Prim 13 944 053 930, ganbarahostel.com. A couple of minutes' walk from the Casco Viejo, this is a favourite with backpackers and pilgrims alike. Dark bedrooms are alleviated by an open, friendly communal area. Could do with more bathrooms. Dorms €19

Pil Pil Hostel Av Sabino Arana 14 944 345 544, pilpilhostel.com. Bright decor, spacious twelve-person dorms with lockers and a backyard patio for socializing. Close to the bus station. Dorms €19, doubles €56

EATING AND DRINKING

The highest concentration of pintxo bars is around Plaza Nueva in Casco Viejo. Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

Charly Pl. Nueva 8 barcharly.com. Amid the stiff competition of Plaza Nueva, you could miss little Charly, tucked in its corner. Though you pay for the setting, the pintxos (€1.95 each) are fresh and delicious, with regional speciality balacaa (cod) being the standout.

Kubrick Villarías Kalea 2. Bilbao's personality comes to the fore in this riverside café. Intriguing posters and display pieces invite you into Stanley Kubrick's mad world. Fresh tapas from €4–7 and the café latte is perfection (€2). Closed Mon.

Melia Y Fez Hurribide Kalea. Low-key tavern where moronus de cordero (skewered pork, €2.40) sizzle on the grill in front of you. Fancy something else? Four different types of tortilla are displayed on the bar.

Muga Muga Taberna c/Maria Muñoz 8. This colourful bar offers a menu dedicated to all things veggie. Try the imaginative tofu shitake burger or the falafel teriyaki with chilli sauce (€7), accompanied by a selection of craft ales. Casco Viejo metro is just opposite.

★ Ria Oja Txakur Kalea 4. Bright, informal place, serving up the best in Basque cuisine. Choose your plato típico from a dozen pans stretched across the bar. Be brave and try the squid served in a sauce of its own ink (€9). Closed Mon.

DIRECTORY

Hospital Santa Marina, Ctra Santa Marina 41
 ☎ 944 006 900.

Post office Vda De Espalza (Mon–Fri 8.30am–8.30pm, Sat 9.30am–1pm).

SANTANDER

Long a favourite summer resort of Madrileños, the port of SANTANDER has an elegant feel, meaning hotels and restaurants tend to be at the upper end of the price scale. Though severely damaged by a fire in 1941 that left the town with few historical buildings of interest, the setting is such that time can easily be whiled away wandering the promenade – stretching 3km along the spectacular Bahía de Santander – and scoping out some of the city's excellent beaches.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

While the city's main draw is its wealth of white-sand beaches, there are also a couple of entertaining museums. All attractions are easily reachable either on foot or by catching city buses along the coastal road.

Museo de Arte Moderno y Contemporáneo

The three floors at the excellent Museo de Arte Moderno y Contemporáneo (c/de Rubio 6; Tues–Sat 10am–1.30pm & 5.30–9pm, Sun 11am–1.30pm; free) feature twentieth-century paintings, sculpture, photography and installations, with an emphasis on artists from Santander and wider Cantabria.

Museo Marítimo del Cantábrico

Located along the waterfront c/de San Martín de Bajamar, the well-presented Museo Marítimo del Cantábrico (Tues–Sun: May–Sept 10am–7.30pm; Oct–April Sun 10am–6pm; €8) thoroughly immerses you in Cantabria's long relationship with the sea. On the ground floor, enormous whale skeletons overlook the entrance to a shark-infested aquarium. The other two floors focus on Cantabria's nautical history, with models of boats and nets and displays on life at sea.

The beaches

Heading east of the town centre along the Bahía de Santander you reach the beaches in the following order: Playa de Los Peligros, Playa de Magdalena, Playa de Bikinis, Playa del Camello, Playa de la Concha and Playa El Sardinero. The first three beaches are sheltered by cliffs, with calm waters, while the 1.25km stretch of white sand that is Playa El Sardinero faces the ocean, its waves attracting surfers in autumn and winter. Playa de Bikinis nestles along the south side of the Península de Magdalena, a wooded headland featuring the Palacio Real de Magdalena, the summer residence of the royal family until 1930. Playa El Sardinero is divided in two by the Jardines de Piquío, an attractive palm-studded park with benches overlooking the beach from above. From the north end of the beach, a beautiful cliff-side trail skirts the headland, leading to El faro de Cabo Mayor lighthouse. Buses #1, #4, #7 and #15 run to the beaches along the waterfront from the centre; #4 also leaves from the bus station (€1.30). If you find these too crowded, make for surf-haven Playa del Somo (buses take just over 30min from the bus terminal) or Playa del Puntal, just before Somo; jump on a lancha taxi-ferry (May–Sept every 30min; boats run until 8pm, €4 return; ☎ losreginas.com) from Los Reginas, on the waterfront by the Palacete del Embarcadero.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The airport is 5km from town, served by Vueling and Iberia flights to main Spanish cities and Ryanair flights from major European destinations. Buses run to Santander bus station (daily: every 30min, 6.30am–10.30pm).

By train The RENFE and regional FEVE train stations are centrally located near the waterfront at Plaza de las Estaciones.

Destinations Madrid (3 daily; 4hr 30min); Bilbao (3 daily; 3hr); Oviedo (2 daily; 5hr).

By bus The station is over the road from the train stations. Destinations Bilbao (22–26 daily; 1hr 30min); Oviedo (7–10 daily; 2hr 15min–3hr 15min); Madrid (7 daily; 5–6hr); Santiago de Compostela (2 daily; 7hr 15min–9hr 45min).

INFORMATION

ACCOMMODATION

Some places shut down outside the peak summer season of mid-June to mid-September.

Hostal San Fernando c/San Fernando 16 ☎ 942 371 984, 🌐 hostalsanfernando.es. Rooms, though clad in dark wood and lace, are decent value for money. Centrally located, 10min walk from the bus and train stations. Doubles €50

Hostel Santander Paseo Pereda 15 ☎ 942 223 986. Three-tiered bunks in light, spacious rooms, and a common room that is more than comfortable. The balcony overlooks the city's busy promenade. Dorms €24

Pensión Plaza c/Cádiz 13 ☎ 942 212 967, 🌐 pension-plaza.com. Impersonal hotel close to the bus station and sea front. Large, comfortable beds and 24hr reception. Triple rooms available. Doubles €60

Surf to Live Hostel c/Cayuso 33, Somo ☎ 639 232 230, 🌐 surfolive.com. The first of its kind along the coast, this well-kept guesthouse appeals to surfers in search of respite and inspiration. It's just a walk away from gorgeous Playa Somo so wetsuits and boards are – naturally, dude – available for rent. Dorms €15

EATING AND DRINKING

The richest pickings are found along c/Daoiz y Velarde and c/Hernán Cortés. Opening hours are daily 1–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

Bodega Fuente De c/de la Peña Herbosa 5. Unpretentious tavern, which serves some of the best regional dishes. Stews to share change daily; their cocido montañés (Cantabrian fava bean stew, €8) is the most flavoursome. Closed Sun.

Cervecería 100 Montaditos Calderón de la Barca 19. This busy, cheap beer house is a perfect place to line your stomach for a long night. Mini sandwiches are on the menu – fillings from tortilla to goat's cheese with pesto. Everything is €1 on Wednesday and Sunday. Fri & Sat until 1am.

La Casa del Indiano c/Hernán Cortés 4. A 360-degree bar in buzzing Mercado Este where locals sip sangria and pick from a choice of pintxos (€4 each, 3 for 2) or share hearty raciones (the patatas indianas, €3.20, are worth a try). All tapas are €1 on Thursday afternoons. Closed Sun eve.

La Rana Verde Daiz y Velarde 30. Descend a few steps and you're in the world of "the green frog". Illuminated cabinets display hundreds of frog-themed ornaments; the menu is simpler. The owner's wife will flip you an honest burger for €3 (€3.50 with cheese). Variety comes in the form of a patatas platter.

Restaurante Ollerós c/Enseñanza 6. Situated just beyond the cathedral, Ollerós serves the best croquettes in town. Order them de casareras and receive a lightly battered variety (9 for €8). Complimentary pintxo while you wait.

PARQUE NACIONAL PICOS DE EUROPA

The Picos de Europa (🌐 picosdeeuroa.com) offers some of the finest hiking, canoeing and mountain activities in Spain. The densely forested national park boasts two glacial lakes, a series of peaks over 2400m high, wildlife including otters and bears, and a jaw-dropping funicular. Choose which of the three sides you enter the park from carefully as there are no through-roads between León's Caín and Cantabria's Fuenté De (via Potes), and between Fuenté De and Covadonga in Asturias. The mountain weather is notoriously capricious, so bring warm and waterproof gear whatever the time of year.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus From Oviedo, ALSA buses run to Cangas de Onís, a major gateway to the park (12 daily; 1hr 30min); there are at least five buses daily from Cangas de Onís to Covadonga, a village on the park's northwestern edge. From Santander's main bus terminal to the park's southeastern hub Potes (2 daily; 2hr–2hr 30min).

By car From Santander, about 80km to the east, the park is reached by passing through San Vicente de la Barquera, Unquera and Cares; alternative access is from Oviedo in the south.

Tourist office Cangas de Onís has a tourist office (Nov–June Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–7pm, Sun 10am–2pm; July–Sept 9am–8pm; closed Oct; ☎ 985 848 614, 🌐 cangasdeonis.com/turismo). Potes' tourist office is on Pl. de la Independencia (daily: June–Sept 10am–2pm & 4–8pm; Sept–June 10am–2pm & 4–6pm; ☎ 942 738 126).

ACCOMMODATION

Albergue Cangas de Onís ☎669 350 843, alberguecangasdeonis.com. A converted village school, this is the only conventional hostel in the national park, 2km north of Covadonga. Join a mountain activity group or rent some gear – canoes, kayaks, harnesses – and go it alone. Fully equipped kitchen. Dorms €20

Albergue El Portalón ☎942 736 048, albergueelportalon.com. Old stone building in the quaint village of La Vega, which sits along the River Quivies (accessible from Potes by bus). Dormitories are set around a romantic courtyard. Dorms €22

★ Camping La Isla Carretera Potes Fuente De ☎942 730 896, campinglaislapicosdeeuropa.com. Campsite and bungalows in a riverside setting, 1km walk along the road to Potes from Fuenté De. Large outdoor swimming pool and bar (in summer). Camping/person €5, plus per tent €4, double bungalows €55

OVIEDO

The capital of the ancient principality of Asturias under King Alfonso II, thriving OVIEDO is best known for its sidrerías (cider bars), whose waiters artfully sling the smoky-tasting local brew (more like scrumpy than commercial cider) from above head height into glasses held at waist level to give it some fizz. The sidrerías are concentrated in the attractive Old Town, a warren of beautiful squares and narrow streets.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Though a sizeable place, Oviedo is easy to navigate on foot as most attractions are found in and around the compact old quarter. Look out for the profusion of street sculptures strewn across the city, which include a statue of Woody Allen (who expressed a fondness for Oviedo) on c/Milicias Nacionales and an enormous bottom on c/Pelayo.

Catedral de San Salvador and the Cámara Santa

Oviedo has a couple of unusual ninth-century churches, dating from a time when Asturias was an independent kingdom, and the only part of Spain under Christian rule. One of these churches, the Cámara Santa, now forms part of the city's otherwise Gothic Cathedral (Mon–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–8pm; entry to Cámara Santa €5, €7 including Diocesan Museum and cloister). The treasures here include a jewel-studded gold cross donated by Alfonso II, and the Santo Sudario, a bloodstained cloth said to have been wrapped round Christ's head (displayed just three times a year).

Iglesia de San Julián de los Prados

The ninth-century Iglesia de San Julián de los Prados (Mon–Sat 10am–noon; €2, free first Mon of the month) is a treasure of the pre-Romanesque era. With colourful frescoes, and a “secret chamber” in the walls, it's worth the ten-minute walk northeast to c/Segal, next to the Oviedo–Gijón highway.

Museo de Bellas Artes

The Museo de Bellas Artes at c/Santa Ana 1 (Tues–Fri 10.30am–2pm & 4.30–8.30pm, Sat 11.30am–2pm & 5–8pm, Sun 11.30am–2.30pm; free; museobbbaa.com) is a labyrinth of discovery. Within a complex design, linking four different buildings, works by some of Spain's most important painters since the fourteenth century are shown. The Palacio de Velarde section presents El Greco's portraits of the twelve Apostles, a couple of Goyas and the Romantic era at large. Picasso's Mosquetero con Espada y Amorcillo and Dalí's impressive Metamorfosis de Ángeles en Mariposas are displayed in the museum's modern wing. Be sure to acquire a map from reception.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train RENFE and FEVE trains both leave from the train station on Avda de Santander, a 10min walk northwest of the old quarter.

Destinations León (4 daily; 2–3hr); Madrid (5 daily; 4hr 15min–6hr 30min); Santander (FEVE; 2 daily; 5hr); Zaragoza (5 daily; 8hr).

By bus Avda de Pepe Cosmen, 200m north of the train stations.

Destinations Bilbao (9–10 daily; 3hr 35min–4hr 50min); Madrid (18–21 daily; 5hr 15min–6hr); Santander (8–12 daily; 2hr 15min–3hr 50min); Santiago de Compostela (8–10 daily; 4hr 45min–7hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Municipal: Pl. de la Constitución 4 (daily 9.30am–7pm; ☎ 985 086 060, ✉ turismo.ayto-oviedo.es), with booths at c/Marquéz de Santa Cruz 1 (daily: summer 9am–8pm; rest of the year 10.30am–6pm). Regional: Pl. de la Constitución 4 (daily 9.30am–7pm; ✉ asturias.es).

ACCOMMODATION

Hostal Fidalgo c/Jovellanos 5 ☎ 985 213 287, ✉ hostalfidalgo.es. Little English is spoken here, but the owners will make you feel comfortable. Rooms are spacious and all come with a private bathroom. Ask for a room with a view of the plaza. Doubles €35

Hotel Rural La Balconada Lugar Faro de Arriba 33 ☎ 985 793 792, ✉ hotellalbalconada.com. Antique-laden rooms and a delightful rural setting. Complimentary breakfast is served in the conservatory, which overlooks the entire city and out to the Picos de Europa. Doubles €45

Santa Clara Hotel c/de Santa Clara 1 ☎ 985 087 070, ✉ hotel-santaclara.es. Large, clean rooms with wi-fi. Good location – same side of the Campo de San Francisco as Woody Allen's statue. Breakfast on offer in the bar downstairs. Doubles €40

EATING AND DRINKING

There are several shops dotted around the Old Town where you can buy Asturian specialties like cider, cheese and meats. Camilo de Blas (c/de Jovellanos 7; Mon–Sat 9am–9pm; ✉ camilodeblas.com) has been selling the traditional carboynones (€2.80) – almond pastries – since 1914. Loli Arrieta (c/Suárez de la Riva 2; Mon–Sat 9.30am–3pm & 3.15–8pm, Sun 9.30am–2.30pm; ✉ www.loliarrieta.com) is the best bet for local wines and cured meats.

Cerveceria La Sureña Pl. Tres Colores. Well-priced raciones (croquettes for €6, glass of beer for €1) in Oviedo's prettiest plaza. Patio tables catch the sun in the afternoon. Daily 1.30–4pm & 8–11pm.

La Mal Quierda c/Indalecia Pieta 6. Unfussy sidrería off the main drag. Large plates to share from €8. Bottle of house sidra (€2.50) poured for you traditionally, but over buckets in the corner. Daily 11am–1.30am.

Tierra Astur c/de Gascona 1. Asturia's favourite home-food chain, Tierra Astur's seriously extensive menu has a plate to suit all. If you can forgive the impersonal service, their fabada (traditional Asturian stew, €10) is worth a try. Mon–Fri 8.30am–1.30am, Sat 8.30am–2.30am, Sun 10am–1am.

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA, built in warm golden granite, is one of the most beautiful of all Spanish cities and deservedly declared a national monument. The pilgrimage to Santiago (see box below) captured the imagination of medieval Christian Europe on an unprecedented scale, peaking at half a million pilgrims each year during the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The route continues to be well trodden by the faithful, as well as hikers and cyclists who enjoy the challenge, ensuring that the medieval streets of Galicia's regional capital are filled with a lively buzz.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

With many pedestrianized areas, picturesque plazas and a wealth of beautiful architecture, Santiago is ideal to discover on foot. Most sights are clustered near each other in the compact historic Old Town. The large Parque de Alameda separates the old centre from

THE CAMINO DE SANTIAGO

The most famous Christian pilgrimage in the world, the Camino de Santiago – or Way of St James – traces a route through France and Spain to Santiago de Compostela (Saint James of the Field of Stars), the supposed burial place of St James the Apostle and the third-holiest site in Christendom after Jerusalem and Rome. There are 39 routes across the Iberian Peninsula, but the majority of pilgrims take the so-called Camino Francés into Galicia. Pilgrims identify themselves by attaching a large scallop shell to their backpack, and many carry a credencial, or "pilgrim passport", available from tourist offices and refugios, that permits overnight stay in some mountain refuges. Accommodation along the way consists mostly of pilgrim albergues, where you can sleep in a basic dorm for around €10. Along the way, pilgrims collect stamps in order to receive a Compostela (certificate of completion) from the Church authorities. To be eligible, you must walk at least 100km or cycle 200km of the 800km-long route. Aside from those motivated by faith, people are drawn by the physical challenge and the stunning countryside; while half the pilgrims come from Spain, the rest make up a very international crowd. For more details, see ✉ xacobeo.es.

the modern new town, which boasts many bars and cafés.

Catedral de Santiago

All roads lead to the cathedral (daily 7am–8.30pm, visits allowed outside Mass), on Praza do Obradoiro. The fantastic granite pyramid adorned with statues of the saint was built in the mid-eighteenth century by an obscure Santiago-born architect, Fernando Casas y Novoa. Just inside this facade is the building's original west front: the stupendous Pórtico de Gloria. So many millions have pressed their fingers into the roots of its sacred Tree of Jesse that five deep holes have been worn into the solid marble. Behind, the High Altar symbolizes the spiritual climax of the pilgrimage. Visitors climb steps behind the altar to the Most Sacred Image of Santiago, kiss his bejewelled cape, place their hands on the silver scallop shell on the back of his throne and receive a Latin certificate called a Compostela – a procedure that's seven centuries old. The elaborate pulley system in front of the altar is for moving the immense incense burner – El Botafumeiro – which, operated by eight priests, is swung in a vast ceiling-to-ceiling arc across the transept. This takes place only during certain festival services (check with the tourist office). Visiting the cathedral museum (daily: April–Oct 9am–8pm; Nov–March 10am–8pm; €6) is worthwhile, as is a tour of the cathedral roof (€12), which offers stupendous views of the Old Town.

The convents and monasteries

The enormous Benedictine San Martín Pinario monastery stands close to the cathedral, the vast altarpiece in its church depicting its patron riding alongside St James. Nearby is the Convento de San Francisco, reputedly founded by the saint himself during his pilgrimage to Santiago. In the north of the city are Baroque Convento de Santa Clara, with a unique curving facade, and, a little southwards, Convento de Santo Domingo de Bonaval. This last is perhaps the most interesting of the buildings, featuring a magnificent seventeenth-century triple stairway.

The museums

Museo do Pobo Galego at Rúa San Domingos de Bonaval is a fascinating glimpse into Galician culture (Tues–Sat 10am–2pm & 4–7.30pm, Sun 11am–2pm; €3, Sun free; museodopobo.gal), from the region's fishing history to traditional crafts. Just next door is the Centro Galego de Arte Contemporánea (Tues–Sun 11am–8pm; free; cgac.xunta.gal), which hosts temporary exhibitions by international artists.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Lavacolla airport, 11km northeast of town (981 547 500, aena.es), is linked to the bus and train stations by Freire buses (every 30min; €3 one-way, €5 return).

By train The train station is a 15min walk south of the Old Town along Rúa do Horreo.

Destinations Bilbao (2 daily; 10–16hr); León (2 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr 20min); Madrid (6 daily; 5hr–5hr 45min).

By bus The bus station is on Praza de Camillo Díaz Balaño, a 20min walk northeast of the centre; bus #5 (€1) runs every 16–30min to Pr. Galicia at the old city's southern edge.

Destinations Bilbao (3 daily; 9hr 45min–11hr 30min); Lisbon (1 daily; 9hr 45min); Madrid (8–9 daily; 8hr–9hr 45min); Oviedo (4 daily; 4hr 30min–6hr 45min); Porto (1–2 daily; 4hr 15min); Santander (5 daily; 8–10hr).

INFORMATION AND GETTING AROUND

Tourist office The helpful Turismo de Santiago office is at Rúa do Vilar 63 (Easter & June–Sept daily 9am–9pm; rest of year Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9am–2pm & 4–7pm; 981 555 129, santiagoturismo.com). The Turismo de Galicia office is at Rúa do Vilar 32 (Mon–Fri 8am–8pm, Sat 11am–2pm & 5–7pm, Sun 11am–2pm; 981 584 081, turgalicia.es) and has info on the Camino de Santiago and the rest of the province.

Local buses All local destinations are €1 one-way.

ACCOMMODATION

★ A Casa de Dora Rúa Granxa do Castiñeiriño 42 981 082 072, www.acasadedora.com. Quiet and clean hostel, 25min walk (or a short bus ride) out of town. Friendly owner Manuel will help you (in English or Spanish). Dorms are spotless; huge, automatic blinds mean they're bright in the day and extremely easy to sleep in at night. Dorms £20

Azabache Hostel Rúa da Acibechería 15 981 071 254, azabache-santiago.com. Large and airy hostel. Doesn't offer much in the way of character, but it's cheap, well located and has a fully fitted kitchen. Dorms €16

Casa Felisa Rúa da Porta da Pena 5 981 582 602, casafelisa.es. Pension with compact, bright rooms (some with monastery views), squeaky-clean shared bathrooms and an attractive outdoor restaurant. A friendly retriever will be at the door to welcome you. Doubles €40

Roots & Boots Hostel Rúa do Cruceiro do Gaio 7 981 699 631 594, rootsandboots.es. Large hostel adjacent to the Parque Alameda, with attractive garden and view of the cathedral. Can get noisy at night, so bring earplugs if you're an early riser. Dorms €15

EATING

There are plenty of restaurants in the historic centre, particularly Rúa do Franco and Rúa da Raíña. Saunter just off the main streets, however, and you'll find the cheaper tapas bars. Galicia is famous for its seafood – the province's signature dishes are polvo da feira (boiled, spicy octopus) and the famous tarta de Santiago (almond cake). You can purchase fresh produce at the Mercado de Abastos along Pl. de Abastos (Mon–Sat 7am–6pm). Opening hours are daily noon–4pm & 8–11pm unless otherwise stated.

Bar Coruña Rúa de Raíña 17. The seafood aroma hits you as soon as you enter this friendly watering hole. Mussels in the salsa de la casa (€5.50) are a must. Menu of the day for €8. Closed Sun.

Bar La Tita Rúa Nova 46. This popular bar-restaurant offers a free slice of tortilla with every drink. Huge tapas (€6) and salads (€3.50–6), so come hungry. Mon–Sat 8am–midnight.

Bar Orense Rúa de Raiña 25. Make sure to order the speciality sandwich (€2) – a bocadillo with Galician cheese and anchovies – at this locals' spot. Wine served in traditional bowls (€1) straight from the barrel. Closed Sun.

Café Tokio Bar Avda Figueroa 6 & 7. Strong coffee (€1–2), complimentary churros, and the best view of Parque Alameda. Come early to get a seat out on the terrace.

★ O Gato Negro Rúa de Raiña s/n. What this bare-boned tavern lacks in atmosphere, it makes up for in flavour. Copy the locals and order the velvety pulpo, served on a platter in a garlic sauce; a half portion (€7) is enough for one. Closed Sun eve & Mon.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Borriquita de Belem Rúa de San Paio de Antealtares 22. Busy, compact bar with live rock music and jam sessions every Wed, Thurs & Sat. Closed Sun.

Modus Vivendi 1 Praza de Feixóo. Sip a generous whisky (€5) and admire the trinkets in display cabinets at the oldest bar in the city, while a jazz/funk soundtrack plays. Daily till 4.30am.

Pub Momo Virxe de Cerca 23. Around since the 1980s, this indoor/outdoor bar has bags of character, and is known for its retro music, beers (€2) and cocktails (from €3). Daily till 4/4.30am.

DIRECTORY

Pharmacy Rúa de Vilar 54 (Mon–Fri 9.30am–2pm & 4.30–8.30pm, Sat 9.30am–2pm).

Post office Rúa do Franco 4 (Mon–Fri 8.30am–8.30pm, Sat 9.30am–1pm).

Introduction

Sweden combines stylish, sophisticated cities with a vast wilderness of dense forests and crystal-clear mountain lakes. Quality of life is high, almost everyone speaks fluent English, and even a short visit here leaves you with the impression that the Swedes have somehow got things “right”. While the country is not entirely populated by blonde, blue-eyed sauna-loving eco-warriors, you’ll find plenty to reinforce the stereotype.

As with the rest of Scandinavia, Sweden can prove a challenge for the budget traveller. However, it’s still considerably cheaper than Norway. If you stick to hostels, eat out only at lunch and resist the temptation to buy a round of drinks, you can still manage to explore beyond a flying visit.

First on the list for almost any traveller is Stockholm. One of Europe’s most beautiful capital cities, it’s a bundle of islands hosting a picture-postcard old town, fine museums (some free) and the country’s most active nightlife. Although Stockholm laps up most of the international attention, Sweden’s other main cities – Gothenburg and Malmö – are both eminently likeable, and well worth exploring for a couple of days each. The university towns of Lund and Uppsala make excellent day-trips from Malmö and Stockholm respectively.

In summer, Sweden’s interior beckons with the opening of the 1300km Inlandsbanan rail line running along the spine of the country past pine forests and shimmering lakes as far as the Arctic Circle. Summer is also the time to join the rush to Gotland, Sweden’s Baltic island escape. If you’re in Sweden between December and mid-April, you shouldn’t miss the chance to splurge on a night at the Icehotel near Kiruna, in the country’s far north.

CHRONOLOGY

98 AD Tacitus refers to a Scandinavian tribe known as the “Suiones”.

800s The Swedish Vikings become a powerful force in Europe over the following few centuries.

1255 City of Stockholm founded.

1397 The Kalmar Union unites Sweden with Denmark and Norway through a marriage arrangement.

1520 Hundreds of nobles are killed by Danish forces during the “Stockholm Bloodbath”. A counter-attack is led by Swede Gustav Vasa.

1523 Gustav is crowned King Gustav I and leads the Protestant Reformation of Sweden.

1536 Sweden leaves the Kalmar Union, asserting independence.

1628 The Vasa battleship sinks outside Stockholm – a national embarrassment now turned into a money-spinning tourist attraction.

1721 Sweden is defeated by a coalition led by Russia in the Great Northern War, ending the success of the Swedish Empire.

1814 Sweden invades and conquers Norway.

1901 First Nobel Prize ceremony held, as part of the will of Swedish inventor Alfred Nobel.

1905 Sweden peacefully concedes Norwegian independence.

1914 Sweden remains neutral during World War I.

1939 Sweden declares neutrality during World War II.

1943 The first IKEA store is opened by founder Ingvar Kamprad.

1974 ABBA top the charts after winning the Eurovision Song Contest with “Waterloo”.

1986 Prime Minister Olof Palme is assassinated in Stockholm; the crime is still unresolved.

1995 Sweden joins the EU after a closely fought referendum.

2003 Swedish voters reject the adoption of the euro.

2006 After twelve years of rule, the Social Democrats lose an election to the centre-right Alliance for Sweden.

2010 A four-day celebration ends with Crown Princess Victoria marrying a “commoner” at Stockholm Cathedral.

2014 The far-right Sweden Democrats party (Sverigedemokraterna) wins 49 seats in the general election.

2016 Sweden is granted a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Most travellers arrive and depart from one of Stockholm's three international airports. The largest and most convenient, Arlanda, is served by the big international carriers like Finnair and SAS, plus a few budget airlines like easyJet and Norwegian. Ryanair uses Skavsta and Västerås airports, both around 100km from Stockholm; the budget airline also flies in and out of Gothenburg, a three- to four-hour train ride from Stockholm.

International trains and buses from Norway and Denmark stop at Stockholm, Malmö and Gothenburg. In the north, Kiruna is usually the first stop in Sweden for visitors arriving from northern Norway.

International ferry routes include: Stockholm–Tallinn (Estonia), Helsinki and Turku (Finland); Helsingborg–Helsingør (Denmark); Gothenburg–Kiel (Germany) and Frederikshavn (Denmark).

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

The most comfortable way to explore Sweden is by train. The extensive state-run rail network, SJ (@sj.se), runs as far north as Abisko, 250km inside the Arctic Circle. There are also other companies in charge of regional routes, most of which are visible on the SJ website. The scenic Inlandsbanan line (@inlandsbanan.se), which travels through central and northern Sweden, is privately run and only operates from late June to August (see box, p.1108).

33 InterRail and Eurail passes are valid on all trains, but you must book a place in advance (from 35–375kr) for overnight services and the 200km/hr X2000 trains, which run between the south's major cities. Heavily discounted tickets (for example Stockholm–Malmö for 195kr) are available if you book ninety days in advance, and cheap last-minute tickets go on sale exactly 24 hours before trains depart (see the SJ website for full details). Reduced rates are also available for passengers aged 25 and under.

BY BUS

Buses are considerably cheaper than trains and, although a little slower, are worth considering if you don't have an InterRail/Eurail pass. Buses also tend to be more reliable during snowy weather. The main national companies are Swebus (@swebus.se) and Nettbuss.se (@nettbus.se), which both offer good rates when booked ahead.

BY PLANE

The main operators of internal flights are SAS (@sas.se), Norwegian (@norwegian.no) and BRA (@flygbra.se). Gotlandsflyg (@gotlandsflyg.se) also connects Stockholm and Gothenburg with the island of Gotland. Be wary, though: domestic flights often cost more than a trip from Sweden to a different part of Europe. Even if you book ahead with SAS, for example, a one-way flight from Stockholm to Kiruna will set you back around 1000kr.

BY BOAT

Ferries can help you make the most of Sweden's long coastline and the mass of disparate islands that speckle the cold blue water. Information on accessing the islands of Stockholm's archipelago and Gotland is given later in the chapter (see p.1097 & p.1107).

ACCOMMODATION

Sweden has an excellent network of well-maintained hostels (vandrarhem) mostly operated by STF (@svenskaturistforeningen.se). They are found all over the country, often in incongruous surroundings, such as former prisons or ships. Double rooms are usually available as well as dorms, and virtually all hostels have self-catering kitchens and serve a buffet breakfast. Prices are relatively low (generally 200–350kr for a hostel bed), but you may have to pay extra for sheets and breakfast (usually 70–100kr extra each), so it can be worth bringing your own sheets and seeking out cheaper breakfasts elsewhere. Free wi-fi is almost always included. Non-STF members have to pay an additional charge of around 50kr per night. There are also many non-STF hostels, run by SVIF (@svif.se) or private companies.

Hotels and B&Bs can be good value, especially in Stockholm and the bigger towns during the summer when they slash their rates; breakfast is almost always included in the price. The tourist-office websites of the major cities often advertise weekend package deals including hotel accommodation and a discount card giving free city transport and entry to sights.

Practically every village has at least one campsite, generally of a high standard. Pitching a tent costs 180–320kr, and for that price up to four people can usually stay the night. This varies, however, reflected in the differing camping price formats throughout the chapter. Most sites are open from June to September, some year-round. Many sites also have cabins, usually with kitchen equipment but not sheets, for around 600–800kr for a two-bedded affair. For a list of campsites, and how to get the Camping Key Europe (150kr), which you need to pitch a tent in some campsites, see @camping.se. Swedish law permits free, wild camping for one night at a time, but there are strict rules about what you can and cannot do. For helpful pointers in English, visit the Naturvårdsverket website (@swedishepa.se).

FOOD AND DRINK

Thanks in part to IKEA, Swedish meatballs (köttbullar) are familiar across the world. However, there is rather more to the national cuisine than this. Seafood is particularly good, with marinated salmon (gravlax) and herring (strömming), the latter pickled, smoked and even fermented, being served everywhere; you'll often find them offered as part of a classic smörgåsbord buffet with potato salad, rye bread, cheeses and fruit. Other specialities include reindeer and elk (both surprisingly tasty), crayfish (especially on the west coast) and sweet cloudbberries (delicious with ice cream).

Breakfast (frukost) is invariably a help-yourself buffet of juice, cereals, bread, boiled eggs, jams, salami and coffee or tea. For snacks, a gatukök (simple takeaway) or korvkiosk (hot-dog stand) will serve hot dogs, burgers, chips and the like for around 50kr. Coffee shops are predominantly where Swedes come to fika (chat over coffee and cake), but usually they also serve a good range of smörgåsar – open sandwiches piled high with toppings (40–80kr) – and freshly made salads.

Lunch (lunch; usually served around noon) is, from a budget traveller's perspective, the best time to eat out, with most places offering a set meal (dagens rätt) of a main dish with bread, salad and coffee at 80–130kr. Otherwise meals in restaurants, especially at dinner (middag), can be expensive: around 250–400kr for two courses, plus drinks. Much cheaper are kebab shops, pizzerias and simple Thai restaurants.

DRINK

Sweden remains one of the most expensive places in Europe to drink alcohol. In a simple bar or pub you'll pay around 40kr for a 40cl glass of one of the main national brands, Spendrups or Falcon. Order a Guinness or an imported lager, and the price will rise to around 70–80kr. In clubs, it's normal for a cocktail (or even just a shot with a mixer) to cost upwards of 120kr.

No surprise, then, that many Swedes load up on shop-bought alcohol before hitting the town. The only places licensed to sell drinks with an alcohol content above 3.5 percent are the government-run Systembolaget shops, where alcohol costs around a third of what you'll pay in a bar

(you need to be at least 20 years old to buy alcohol at Systembolaget, as opposed to 18 in bars). There are at least one or two branches in even the smallest towns, but opening hours are deliberately restrictive, with most shops closing in the early evening. All outlets are closed on Sundays.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Swedes are a mix of apparent contradictions: fiercely patriotic yet globally minded, confident yet self-deprecating, orderly yet creative. Throughout the country you'll find the small ritual of fika – a verb that means something like “to have a coffee and a bun and a chat with a friend or two” – is a common pastime, along with singalongs and complaining about winter. Traditional festivities like Midsummer's Day and Easter inspire enormous enthusiasm, and on holidays young and old alike head for the countryside to celebrate. The vast majority of Swedes speak some English and most speak it with disarming fluency, so Anglophone travellers will have no problem striking up conversations.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

Football is Sweden's national sport, with a club or two in most of the main cities. Naturally enough, winter sports are where the Swedes excel on the world stage, and skiing, snowboarding and ice hockey are all very popular. The best ski resorts are in Åre, Kittelfjäll, Riksgränsen and Ramundberget. In summer, everyone flocks to Sweden's exquisite, unpolluted lakes and to Stockholm's archipelago for swimming, kayaking and sailing. Sweden is a fantastic place for hiking, with some of Europe's most unspoilt wildernesses to explore. The most trekked path is the 500km Kungsleden (King's Trail; see p.1112).

COMMUNICATIONS

The Swedish postal service scrapped normal post offices in 2001. Instead, you can send and receive mail and buy stamps at supermarkets, newsagents and tobacconists (look for the blue postal sign). Free wi-fi is widely available in cafés, bars and restaurants across the country, and you can usually get a decent mobile internet connection, even in the remotest parts of the north. Mobile phone coverage is excellent across most of the country and calls and data are affordable. Pay-as-you-go SIM cards are available at newsagents and supermarkets across the country.

EMERGENCIES

The police are generally courteous and fluent in English. Medical treatment is free for anyone with a European Health Insurance Card (EHIC), although a small administration fee may be charged (around 300kr for a consultation with a doctor). Pharmacies operate normal shop opening hours with a rota system for late opening. Stockholm has a 24-hour pharmacy (see p.1097).

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

The main cities all have tourist cards or passes, which offer either free or discounted entry to museums, free or discounted use of local transport (often including ferries), and sometimes other goodies, such as discounts in cafés and restaurants. An ISIC card can halve the price of museums, and give discounts on accommodation, shops, restaurants and transport (for example, up to 22 percent off Swebus journeys, and up to 30 percent off train journeys with SJ). Many of the state-run museums are free; others offer substantial student discounts.

INFORMATION

Almost all towns have a tourist office, giving out good-quality maps and timetables; they are also usually able to book accommodation and rent out bikes. Information on regional tourist offices can be found at visitsweden.com. If you want a detailed map to use when you go hiking, try kartbutiken.se (Swedish only), which stocks a wide range.

MONEY AND BANKS

Sweden's currency is the krona (abbreviated to kr; plural: kronor). There are coins of 1kr, 2kr, 5kr and 10kr, and notes of 20kr, 50kr, 100kr, 200kr, 500kr and 1000kr. At the time of writing €1 was worth 9.4kr, US$1 was 8.48kr, and £1 was 11.42kr. Banks are generally open Monday to Friday 9.30am to 3pm, but most have later opening hours (until around 6pm) at least one day per week.

CASHLESS SWEDEN

Sweden is well on its way to becoming one of the world's first cashless societies. By 2012, just three per cent of all of the country's transactions involved notes and coins. Despite the locals' preference for paying with plastic, most bars, shops, restaurants and supermarkets do (for the time being at least) still accept cash. On many buses and trams, however, that option no longer exists – so make sure you buy your ticket from the station in advance.

Outside these hours you can change money at airports and ferry terminals, as well as at Forex offices, which usually offer good rates (minimum 50kr commission). ATMs are plentiful.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Generally, shops open Monday to Friday 9am to 6pm, and on Saturday from 9am to 1/4pm. Most larger stores stay open until 8/10pm, and the majority are also open until 8/10pm on Sundays. Banks, offices and shops close on public holidays (Jan 1, Jan 6, Good Fri, Easter Sun & Mon, May 1, Ascension, Whit Sun & Mon, June 20 & 21, Nov 1, Dec 24–26 & 31). They may also close early the preceding day.

Stockholm

With the air of a grand European capital yet on a small, Scandinavian scale, STOCKHOLM is a vibrant and instantly likeable city. Built across fourteen islands, water and green space dominate the landscape, but there are still plenty of distinctly urban attractions to fill your days, from elegant museums and royal palaces to achingly cool bars and clubs.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Taking a boat tour is the classic way to see Stockholm. After checking into your accommodation, head straight to Strömkajen, the harbour fronting the Grand Hotel, where operators sell tickets for sightseeing trips (see p.1094). Once you have a fix on the city's layout you can cover most ground on foot or take the T-bana metro for cross-city trips.

The key sights are Gamla Stan (the Old Town), Vasa Museum, Moderna Museet (modern art museum), the Fotografiska photography museum and Södermalm's SoFo neighbourhood. Aside from these it's best, in summer at least, to stroll around the parks and gardens (especially Djurgården) or take a trip to the Stockholm Archipelago. In winter, the city's ice rinks and cosy coffee houses come into their own.

the lamp-lit streets become more intimate.

Stortorget, the main square, is surrounded by beautiful terracotta and saffron-coloured eighteenth-century buildings – look out for no. 7 where you'll see a cannonball lodged into the wall, supposedly fired during the Stockholm Bloodbath of 1520. Art shops, restaurants and bars line the surrounding narrow streets. The informative Nobelmuseet at Stortorget 2 (June–Aug daily 9am–8pm; Sept–May Tues 11am–8pm, Wed–Sun 11am–5pm; 100kr; nobelmuseum.se) showcases the work of Nobel Prize winners since 1901.

Gamla Stan: Kungliga Slottet

The monumental Kungliga Slottet (Royal Palace; [Gamla Stan](http://Gamla Stan)) is a beautiful Renaissance successor to Stockholm's original castle. The Swedish Royals don't actually live here, having relocated to the Drottningholm Palace 10km west of the city, but no one seems to have told the royal guards who put on a display of pomp, pageantry and shouting at the daily changing of the guard (Mon–Sat 12.15pm, Sun 1.15pm). Inside are the royal apartments (mid-May to mid-Sept daily 10am–5pm; mid-Sept to early May Tues–Sun noon–4pm; 150kr), a dazzling collection of regal furniture, tapestries and Rococo decoration, while the Treasury (same times as apartments; included in apartments ticket) displays ranks of regalia, including jewel-studded crowns and a sword belonging to the sixteenth-century Swedish king Gustav Vasa.

Gamla Stan: Storkyrkan

Close to the royal palace, Stockholm's cathedral, Storkyrkan (daily 9am–4pm; 40kr, guided tours cost 40kr and should be booked ahead), was consecrated in 1306 and is where the monarchs of Sweden are married and crowned. Inside, look for the animated fifteenth-century sculpture of St George and the Dragon, which incorporated elk horns into the design, and the royal pews, which look more like golden thrones.

Gamla Stan: Riddarholmen

Just west of Gamla Stan, Riddarholmen or “Knights’ Island” is home to Stockholm's only preserved medieval monastery, the thirteenth-century Riddarholmskyrkan (mid-May to mid-Sept daily 10am–5pm, mid-Sept–Nov Sat & Sun 10am–4pm; 50kr). Until 1950 it was used as the burial place for Swedish monarchs but today its role is purely aesthetic, with its pointy latticework spire visible from much of the city.

STOCKHOLM BY KAYAK

Seeing Stockholm by boat is one thing, but getting right down to water level on a kayak gives you a terrific sense of freedom – you can stop off just about anywhere – plus a unique view of the city. The best place to rent kayaks is Långholmen Kajak at Alstaviksvägen 3 on the island of Långholmen (daily: mid-May–June & late Aug 11am–9pm, July to mid-Aug 10am–9pm; early Sept 11am–6pm; 200kr/2hr; langholmenkajak.se).

The Royal Swedish Academy of Fine Arts

Between now and 2018, when the Nationalmuseum finally reopens after years of renovations, The Royal Swedish Academy of Fine Arts, at Fredsgatan 12 (konstakademien.se; Centralen), will house some of Sweden's most valuable artistic treasures. Taking up three of the academy's galleries, temporary exhibitions (Tues–Fri 11am–5pm, Sat & Sun noon–4pm; free) will show selected parts of the Nationalmuseum's collection, which includes Rembrandts, Renoirs and pieces by Swedish artists such as Carl Larsson.

Moderna Museet

Stockholm's answer to London's Tate Modern or New York's Guggenheim, Moderna Museet, on Skeppsholmen (Tues–Sun 10am–8pm, Wed–Sun 10am–6pm; free), certainly keeps up with its rivals in terms of grand modernist architecture, though the art collection plays second fiddle in some respects. Connoisseurs will appreciate the large selection of Cubist painting as well as lesser-known works by Picasso and Dalí, plus a peppering of American pop art. There's also a restaurant with great views over the city.

Norrmalm and Östermalm

Modern Stockholm lies immediately north of Gamla Stan. It's split into two distinct sections: the central Norrmalm and the classier residential streets of Östermalm to the east. Norrmalm was redeveloped in the 1970s and is dominated by high-rises and the huge public-square-cum-roundabout, Sergels Torg. Taking up most of the east side of the square is the Kulturhuset (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm; Sat & Sun 11am–5pm; free; kulturhusetstadsteatern.se), which puts on plays and dance productions.

Östermalm, east of Norrmalm, is the address of choice for wealthy Stockholmers. It also hosts the city's most exclusive nightlife – particularly on and around Stureplan, where you'll find legions of designer-clad revellers queuing round the block for ultra-expensive nightclubs. The main attractions during the day are the Östermalms Saluhall food market (see p.1096) and Historiska Museet (June–Aug daily 11am–6pm; Sept Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 11am–6pm, Wed 11am–8pm; Oct–May Tues–Fri noon–6pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; free; @historiska.se; @Karlapan). Highlights here include a Stone Age household and a mass of Viking weapons, boats and, most interestingly, gold – over 52kg of the stuff.

Södermalm and Långholmen

Stockholm's hippest island is Södermalm, just south of a Gulab Stan. Head south from the traffic hub of Slussen along Götgatan, past Medborgarplatsen, to arrive at the central district of SoFo (South of Folkungagatan), which bristles with cool bars, clubs and boutiques. To the west of central Södermalm, Hornstull is SoFo's quieter cousin, with a cluster of bars and restaurants along Hornsgatan and around Bergsundstrand. It's a short walk north from here to the peaceful island of Långholmen, whose leafy woodlands and small sandy beach are perfect for summertime picnics.

Fotografiska

Behind the brick facade of a former customs building that hugs Södermalm's north coast is Fotografiska (Sun–Wed 9am–11pm, Thurs–Sat 9am–1am; 120kr; @fotografiska.eu), Stockholm's contemporary photography centre. Here, 2,500 square metres of exhibition space is given over to inspirational pictures by local and international snappers. On Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, when the museum is open late, there's usually live music in the upstairs bistro.

Djurgården and its museums

A former royal hunting ground, Djurgården is the nearest large expanse of park to the city centre and home to several interesting museums. You could walk to the park from Central Station, but it's quite a hike: it's quicker to take a bus, tram or ferry instead. Bus #67 makes the journey from Karlapan, while tram #7 runs from Sergels Torg, via Nybroplan. Ferries leave year-round from Slussen, dropping off at the Allmänna Gränd jetty.

On the west shore of Djurgården, Vasa Museet (daily: June–Aug 8.30am–6pm; Sept–May 10am–5pm, Wed open till 8pm; 130kr; @vasamuseet.se) is one of the country's top tourist attractions, displaying a famous Swedish design disaster: the top-heavy Vasa warship, which sank in Stockholm harbour just twenty minutes into its maiden voyage in 1628. Preserved in mud, the ship was raised in 1961 and painstakingly restored. It really is an incredible sight close up and the museum does an excellent job of evoking the atmosphere of the time. The palatial Nordiska Museet (daily 10am–5pm, Oct–May Wed open till 8pm; 100kr, Oct–May free on Wed evenings; @nordiskamuseet.se), nearby, showcases Swedish cultural history in an accessible fashion, with a particularly interesting section on the Sami – the indigenous people of Sweden's northern reaches.

Further south on the western shore of Djurgården, at Djurgårdsvägen 68, is Stockholm's blockbuster attraction, ABBA: The Museum (May–Aug daily 10am–8pm; Sept–April Mon, Tues & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Weds & Thurs 10am–8pm; 195kr, payment by card only; @abbathemuseum.com), which uses interactive exhibits to tell the story of Sweden's most successful band.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The main airport is Arlanda, 37km north of the city. A high-speed rail line connects it with Central Station (every 5–10min; 20min; 280kr one-way, 540kr return; half-price with ISIC card, free with InterRail/Eurail; under 25s also get a discount; @arlandaexpress.com). Alternatively, buses (45min; 99kr one-way, 198kr return; @flygbussarna.se) run frequently into the city, arriving at Cityterminalen. Skavsta and Västerås airports, each around 100km from the capital, are also well connected by bus (1hr 20min; 139kr one-way, 238kr return; discount for under 25s; @flygbussarna.se).

By train Trains arrive and depart from Central Station, a busy terminal on Vasagatan in Norrmalm. All branches of the Tunnelbana, Stockholm's metro, meet at @Centralen, the station directly below Central Station.

Destinations Copenhagen (up to 5 daily; 5hr); Gothenburg (at least hourly; 3hr by X2000, 5hr by Intercity); Jönköping (1 daily; 3hr 15min); Kiruna (1 nightly; 18hr); Lund (at least hourly; 4hr 15min); Malmö (at least hourly; 4hr 30min); Nynäshamn (every 30min; 1hr); Oslo (1 daily; 6hr); Östersund (3–4 daily; 5–9hr); Umeå (up to 4 daily; 7–9hr); Uppsala (several hourly; 40min).

33

By bus Cityterminalen, adjacent to Central Station, handles almost all bus services, both domestic and international.

Destinations Gothenburg (up to 15 daily; 6–7hr); Jönköping (up to 16 daily; 4–5hr); Lund (2 daily; 8hr); Malmö (2 daily; 8hr 10min); Nynäshamn (4 daily; 1hr); Oslo (3 daily; 8hr); Östersund (2 weekly; 7hr 30min); Umeå (4 daily; 9hr); Uppsala (up to 13 daily; 1hr 20min).

By ferry Viking Line (vikingline.se) ferries serving Helsinki and Åland arrive and depart from Stadsgårdskajen in Södermalm, towards the south of the city. The terminal is a 30min walk from Central Station, or 15min from Slussen. The main terminals for Tallink Silja Line (tallinksilja.com) ferries – Frihamnen and Värtahamnen – are in the northeastern reaches of the city, both around a 15min walk from Gärdet station. Polferries (polferries.se) from Gdansk and Gotland ferries (destinationgotland.se) from Visby dock at Nynäshamn, 58km south of the city centre.

Destinations from Värtahamnen Helsinki (Helsingfors; 1 daily; 17hr); Tallinn (1 daily; 15hr).

Destinations from Frihamnen Riga (1 daily; 17hr).

Destinations from Nynäshamn Gdansk (at least 6 monthly; 19hr); Visby (up to 5 daily; 3hr 15min).

GETTING AROUND

Tickets Buses, trams and trains (both T-bana/underground and local) are operated by Storstockholms Lokaltrafik (SL; sl.se). In zone A, it costs 36kr (20kr for under-20s) for up to 75min of travel on trams, T-bana services and buses – buy tickets from the automatic machines. If you're going to travel around the city a lot, it's worth buying the SL Access card (20kr from SL ticket offices) and loading it with a 24/72hr pass (115kr/230kr).

By metro The clean, efficient Tunnelbana (T-bana; Mon–Thurs & Sun 5am–roughly 1am, Fri & Sat 24hr) has three lines (red, green and blue), and is worth considering once you've tired of walking.

By bus There are four main “blue bus” lines that run across the city centre, numbered #1 to #4; numerous other lines serve suburban destinations. Buy tickets before you board.

By tram Trams run between Sergels Torg in Norrmalm and Waldermarsudde, on the southern tip of Djurgården.

By ferry Frequent ferries link Slussen with Djurgården, travelling via Skeppsholmen. Individual tickets cost 36kr.

By taxi Taxis are expensive (the meter starts at 45kr) and are only really a good option if you are in a group. Due to the risk of overcharging, it's best to stick with one of the main companies; try Taxi Stockholm (08 15 0000, taxistockholm.se).

By bike The Stockholm City Bikes scheme (April–Oct only; citybikes.se) offers a quick, affordable way to rent cycles from around 100 locations across the city. Buy the city bike card at any tourist office or an inner-city hostel/hotel (165kr/3 days) and then swipe it at the bike stand to unlock a cycle (max hire time 3hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information The helpful main tourist office is at Sergels Torg 5 in Norrmalm, right next to Kulturhuset (see p.1092) (May to mid-Sept Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 9am–4pm, Sun 10am–4pm; mid-Sept to April Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–4pm, Sun 10am–4pm; 08 508 28 508, visitsweden.com). There's also an office inside Terminal 5 at Arlanda Airport.

Boat tours Strömma (stromma.se) runs a hop-on, hop-off boat tour (late April to early Sept; 180kr/24hr) stopping at the Vasa Museum, Skeppsholmen (Moderna Museet) and Gamla Stan. Buy tickets online or at the main office at Nybroplan. Winter sightseeing tours also available.

ACCOMMODATION

HOSTELS

★ Af Chapman Flaggmansvägen 8, Skeppsholmen 08 463 22 66, stfchapman.com. A Stockholm landmark, Af Chapman is a tall sailing ship converted into probably the world's most elegant hostel. If you can't get a bed on board (from 375kr) there are cheaper rooms on dry land in the hostel building, which houses the reception and a breakfast room plus a decent café. Dorms 395kr, doubles 850kr.

Castanea Kindstugatan 1, Gamla Stan 08 22 35 51, castaneaehotel.com. The Old Town location of this quiet, second-floor hostel (just a few min from the Royal Palace) takes some beating. Inside are clean, bright dorms. Dorms 280kr, doubles 750kr.

★ City Backpackers Upplandsgatan 2a, Norrmalm 08 20 69 20, citybackpackers.org. Gärdet Sandhammsgatan 59a, Östermalm 08 463 22 99, stfturist.se/gardet; Gärdet and 10min walk, or blue bus #1 from Cityterminalen to Östhammarsgatan and 50m walk. There are 53 dorm rooms at this hotel/hostel on the edge of a quiet park, northeast of the centre. It's a pleasant 2km walk from here to Djurgården and the Vasa Museum. Doubles 895kr.

Långholmen Långholmsmuren 20, Långholmen 08 720 85 00, langholmen.com; Hornstull, turn left and follow the signs. Located within an old prison on leafy Långholmen island. Spend the night in a converted cell: there are single-sex dorms with shared facilities, plus en-suite doubles and pricier hotel rooms. Dorms 285kr, doubles 640kr.

Skanstulls Hostel Ringvägen 135, Södermalm ☎ 08 643 02 04, skanstulls.se. Bright modern hostel within easy walking distance of SoFo's bars and restaurants. The decor is funky and fresh, and there's a good mix of dorms and private rooms. Dorms 235kr doubles 590kr

Stockholm Hostel Alströmergatan 15, Kungsholmen ☎ 07 156 55 25, stockholmhostel.se; a few mins' walk from ☐ Fridhemsplan. It's not in the best location and you have to book an entire room, but this bright, clean hostel is still a sociable option, with a huge, spotless kitchen and bathrooms in every room. Doubles 720kr

HOTELS AND PENSIONS

Hotel Micro Tegnérslunden 8, Norrmalm ☎ 08 545 455 69, hotelmicro.se. Bargain prices for central Stockholm. The rooms are windowless but pleasant enough and there are clean men's and women's bathrooms along each corridor. Online discounts. Doubles 595kr

Old Town Lodge Baggensgatan 25, Gamla Stan ☎ 08 20 44 55, oldtownlodge.se. This cosy little place in the heart of the Old Town dates back to the 1600s. As a result its 19 rooms are a little small, but they feel modern inside and are most certainly comfortable. Note, though, that the cheapest rooms are windowless. Doubles 557kr

Tre Små Rum Högbergsgatan 81, Södermalm ☎ 08 641 23 71, tresmarum.se; ☐ Mariatorget. The name means "three small rooms" but there are now seven at this good-value hotel in the heart of Södermalm. A delicious buffet breakfast is served in the lovely kitchen area and there are bikes to rent for 85kr/day. Doubles 795kr

CAMPSITES

Ängby Camping Blackebergsvägen 25 ☎ 08 37 04 20, angbycamping.se; ☐ Ängbyplan, then a 5–10min walk. Basic campsite 10km west of the city on Lake Mälaren, close to the beach. Open all year, but phone ahead to book Sept to April. Per tent 150kr

Bredäng Stora Sällskapets Väg ☎ 08 97 70 71, bredangcamping.se; ☐ Bredäng, then a 10min walk.

★TREAT YOURSELF

Jumbo Stay Jumbovägen 4, Arlanda Airport ☎ 08 593 60 400, jumbostay.com. Flying visit? Consider treating yourself to a night at a working hotel and hostel built into the shell of an old Boeing 747. Up front in the flight deck, with two adjustable beds and a flat-screen TV, the Cockpit Suite (1850kr per person) is the reserve of first-class travellers. Thankfully there's cheaper accommodation further back in the fuselage, where cattle class used to be. Dorms 450kr, doubles 1200kr Decent spot with hostel and restaurant on site, 10km southwest of the centre by Lake Mälaren. Open all year though only the campsite's cabins are open between mid-Oct and mid-April. Camping/tent 135kr, dorms 240kr, doubles 600kr

EATING

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Barabao Hornsgatan 66; ☐ Mariatorget. Decorated with hanging plants, this small, Asian-inspired restaurant serves beautifully soft steamed buns loaded with everything from pork belly to slow-cooked beef with green apple chutney (around 100kr). Mon–Thurs 11.30am–2pm & 5–9pm, Fri 11.30am–2pm & 5–11pm, Sat 1–4pm & 6–11pm, Sun 5–9pm.

Café Schweizerkonditoriet Västerlånggatan 9, Gamla Stan; ☐ Gamla Stan. The most homely and welcoming café in a very touristy (and expensive) part of the Old Town. Coffee is served in great big cereal bowls, and you can get tasty pies with salad for less than 100kr. Daily 7am–7pm, occasionally longer at weekends.

Hermitage Stora Nygatan 11, Gamla Stan; ☐ Gamla Stan. Cheery, Old Town canteen serving vegetarian food from around the world. On weekdays the lunch buffet (11am–3pm) costs 120kr. Mon–Fri 11am–8pm, Sat & Sun noon–8pm.

Noodle Mama Kungsholmsgatan 22; ☐ Rådhuset. Steaming bowls of soba noodles with fragrant meat and vegetables (from 89kr) are served at this kawaii Japanese kitchen in Kungsholmen. Mon–Fri 11am–8pm, Sat & Sun noon–7pm.

Nystekt Strömning Södermalmstorg, just outside the T-bana stop; ☐ Slussen. This tiny but well-known takeaway cart serves fried herring with mash or Swedish crispbread (knäckebröd) for less than 80kr. It's always busy, and rumour has it that the food works wonders for a hangover. Daily 10am–9pm.

Vurma Bergsunds strand 31; ☐ Hornstull. Kitsch and cosy café just back from the waterfront in Hornstull. The Vurma brand has become something of a Stockholm institution, with three branches now open across the city. Good option for breakfast (from 50kr). Daily 9am–7pm.

RESTAURANTS

Creperie Fyra Knop Svartensgatan 4, Södermalm; ☐ Medborgarplatsen/Slussen. Good-value crêpes (from 50kr) are served in this dark, evocative restaurant, which is fashionably tatty and often packed. Daily 5–11pm.

★ Grill Drottninggatan 89, Norrmalm; ☐ Rådmanngatan. It's the lavish boudoir-style decor (with velvety sofas and mannequins standing in the windows) that first lures passing shoppers into Grill. But the daily lunch buffet (120kr), with tasty dishes like seafood paella on offer, also happens to be great value. Mon–Thurs Fri 11am–1.30pm

33

& 5pm–1am, Fri 11am–2pm & 5pm–1am, Sat 4pm–1am, Sun 3pm–midnight.

Koh Phangan Skånegatan 57, Södermalm ☎ 08 642 50 40; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. Very popular Thai restaurant-bar with an interior resembling a tropical forest. The food (mains around 150kr) struggles to match the decor, but it's competently put together. Booking recommended. Mon–Fri 11am–midnight, Sat & Sun noon–1am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

BARS AND PUBS

East Stureplan 13, Östermalmstorg; ☎ Östermalmstorg. Lively Japanese bar-restaurant with a heated outdoor area. Always packed at weekends, when DJs play late into the night. Mon–Sat 11.30am–3am, Sun 5pm–3am.

Garlic & Shots Folkungagatan 84; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. Garlic is offered with just about everything at this American-style bar – including the draught beer. For something a little sweeter, check out the excellent list of long and short drinks. Daily 5pm–1am.

★ Kelly's Folkungagatan 49, Södermalm; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. Big, brash and student-friendly rock bar right near Medborgarplatsen, serving what must be some of the city's cheapest beer. If you don't have a coat to hang up (20kr) it's free to get in, too. Min age 23. Daily 4pm–3am.

Pet Sounds Bar Skånegatan 80, Södermalm; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. One of the most popular places in SoFo for a drink, run by the eponymous record store a few doors down; the basement bar hosts live music and DJs on Fri and Sat. Tues 5pm–midnight, Wed–Sat 4pm–1am, Sun 4pm–midnight.

Vampire Lounge Östgötagatan 41, Södermalm; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. Subterranean cocktail bar – comfy red sofas, bare stone walls and hip clientele. Kick-start your evening with a Vampire Martini cocktail, or go for a cheap beer. Min age 20/21. Wed–Fri 5pm–1am, Sat 7pm–1am.

CLUBS AND LIVE MUSIC

Debaser Hornstulls Strand 9 ☎ debaser.se; ☎ Hornstull. Big-name DJs and live bands top the bill at this venue near the waterfront in Hornstull – expect anything from house to hip-hop. There's also an American-style bar and a Mexican restaurant. Minimum age 20 on Fri and Sat. See website for event times.

Stampen Stora Nygatan 5, Gamla Stan ☎ stampen.se; ☎ Gamla Stan. Two floors of jazz, swing and blues, right in the heart of the Old Town. Live music almost every night. Tues–Fri 5pm–1am, Sat 2pm–1am.

Sturecompagniet Sturegatan 4 ☎ sturecompagniet.se; ☎ Östermalmstorg. This Stockholm staple boasts a terrific light-show with house and techno sounds blaring long into the night. Dress to impress and start queuing early. Over-23s only. Thurs–Sat 10pm–5am.

GAY STOCKHOLM

Mälarpaviljongen Norr Mälarstrand 64, ☎ malarpaviljongen.se; ☎ Rådhuset. Open-air bar-restaurant down by the water with great views of Gamla Stan. It attracts a mixed gay/straight crowd and puts on events during the annual Stockholm Pride. April–Sept daily 11am–1am.

Target Mälartorget 13 ☎ torgetbaren.com; ☎ Gamla Stan. This elegant place is Stockholm's main gay bar, good for a drink at any time, and always busy. The modern Swedish food here is justifiably popular, so always reserve ahead if you want to eat. Daily 5pm–1am.

SHOPPING

FASHION AND LIFESTYLE

Åhléns City Klarabergsgatan 50, near the T-bana stop; ☎ Centralen. Sweden's biggest department store is the place to stock up on Björn Borg undies and skinny Acne jeans. Mon–Fri 10am–9pm, Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 11am–7pm.

H&M Hamngatan 37 ☎ Hötorget. The main Stockholm branch of one of Sweden's biggest retail success stories; wall-to-wall with cut-price fashion. Mon–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 11am–6pm.

IKEA Modulvägen 1, Skärholmen (7km southwest of Stockholm). If you're dying to see the world's largest IKEA then hop on one of the free shuttle buses leaving from Vasagatan 18 (Mon–Fri approx hourly 10am–7pm). Daily 10am–8pm.

Judits Hornsgatan 75 ☎ judits.se; ☎ Zinkensdamm. Fantastic secondhand clothes emporium selling shoes and accessories at affordable prices. Mon–Fri 11am–6pm, Sat 11am–4pm.

Nudie Jeans Skånegatan 75 ☎ nudiejeans.com; ☎ Medborgarplatsen. Organic khakis and jeans draw style-conscious Stockholmers to this concept store on Skånegatan. Mon–Fri 11am–6.30pm, Sat 11am–5pm, Sun noon–4pm.

FOOD AND MARKETS

Hemköp Directly below Åhléns City, Mäster Samuels gatan 57. Super-central supermarket with an excellent deli counter and an in-house bakery. Mon–Fri 7am–11pm.

Hötorgshallen Hötorget ☎ hotorgshallen.se; ☎ Hötorget. A truly international market, selling everything from oolong tea and Gruyère cheese to fresh Finnish bread. There's a branch of Systembolaget here, too (closes at 3pm on Sat). Mon–Thurs 10am–6pm, Fri 10am–7pm, Sat 10am–4pm.

Östermalms Saluhall Östermalmstorg; ☎ Östermalmstorg. Neo-Gothic food hall, built in 1888, with wine bars and restaurants surrounding the stalls. It's closed for refurbishment until 2018, so a temporary food hall is open next door. Mon–Fri 9.30am–7pm, Sat 9.30am–6pm.

DIRECTORY

Embassies Australia, Klarabergsviadukten 63, 8th floor
 ☎ 08 613 29 00; Canada, Klarabergsgatan 23, 6th floor
 ☎ 08 453 30 00; Ireland, Hovslagargatan 5 ☎ 08 54 50 40
 40; UK, Skarpögatan 6–8 ☎ 08 671 30 00; US, Dag
 Hammarskjöldsväg 31 ☎ 08 783 53 00.

Hospital St Görans Sjukhus, St Göransplan 1 ☎ 08 587
 010 00, stgoran.se/english (24hr).

Left luggage Lockers in Central Station and Cityterminalen (70/90kr per 24hr, depending on size).

Pharmacy Apoteket C.W. Scheele, Klarabergsgatan 64
 ☎ 07 714 504 50 (24hr).

Post office You can send packages from the information desks in branches of Hemköp and Ica, with a branch of the latter on Kungsholmstorg, just north of Strömkajen (daily 8am–11pm).

Around Stockholm

One of the key excursions from Stockholm is to the royal palace of Drottningholm, on the shores of Lake Mälaren, west of the capital. In summer the pine-clad islands of Stockholm's archipelago make an enticing escape from the city, while history buffs should head to the elegant town of Uppsala, a short train ride away.

DROTTNINGHOLM PALACE

Just 10km west of Stockholm, Drottningholm Palace (April & Oct Fri–Sun 11am–3.30pm; May–Sept daily 10am–4.30pm; Nov–March Sat & Sun noon–3.30pm; 120kr; kungahuset.se) is a Versailles-like monument to excess dating from the mid-seventeenth century. The Swedish royal family made it their permanent residence in 1981, and, while you're unlikely to spot any of them, you are free to wander through sections of the palace on guided tours and visit the manicured gardens.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By boat The most fun way to get here is on one of the majestic old steam ships which leave from the quay near Stadshusbron five times a day (mid-April to Oct; 205kr return; stromma.se).

By metro and bus You can also reach it on the less regal combination of T-bana to Brommaplan followed by the #177 bus.

THE STOCKHOLM ARCHIPELAGO

For 80km east of the capital stretches the Stockholm archipelago (Stockholms Skärgård), made up of 30,000 islands, most of which are little more than lumps of rock rising up from the sea. In summer, the area bristles with tourists, day-trippers, sailing boats and locals making use of their summer homes.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By boat Boats to some of the islands leave from Strömkajen in Stockholm and are run by Waxholmsbolaget (☎ 08 614 64 50, waxholmsbolaget.se; from 60kr one-way).

Vaxholm and Kyrkogårdsön

Just an hour's scenic boat ride from Stockholm and also connected by road, Vaxholm is the most easily accessible of the archipelago islands, which means it can be swamped with visitors in summer. However, it's still a charming spot, only 3.2km long and with an elegant harbour on its eastern edge, where you'll find restaurants, cafés and shops.

An hour's ferry ride north of Vaxholm is the cute little island of Kyrkogårdsön, which locals rave about. Siaröfortet is the name of the island's small naval fort, built during World War I. The fort has been turned into a museum but the real attraction is the island's indented coastline – perfect for kayaking and swimming.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By ferry Blidösbolaget ferries do day-trips from Strömkajen to Kyrkogårdsön (May to mid-Aug; 180kr return; blidosundsbolaget.se; get off at Siaröfortet).

Tourist information Vaxholm's tourist office is on Rådhusorget, a short walk north of the harbour (hours vary but it's always manned daily between 11am–2pm; ☎ 08 541 314 80).

ACCOMMODATION

Bogesunds Slottsvandrarhem South across the bridge at Per Brahes Väg 1, Vaxholm ☎ 08 541 750 60, bogesundsslottsvandrarhem.se; bus #681 from Söderhamnsplan (near the harbour) until you reach

Bogesunds Gärd. Though accommodation is expensive on the island itself, this peaceful hostel is a good choice. Doubles 510kr

STF youth hostel By the beach, Kyrkogårdsön ☎ 08 243 090, ☎ svenskatouristforeningen.se. If you want to stay on Kyrkogårdsön, this is a lovely hostel with a wood-fired sauna. Open mid-May to mid-Oct only. Dorms 250kr, doubles 500kr

UPPSALA

Forty minutes' train ride north of Stockholm, the pretty university town of UPPSALA makes an excellent day-trip.

Just north of the restaurant- and bar-lined River Fyris, which bisects the town, you'll find the vast Gothic Domkyrkan (daily 8am–6pm), Scandinavia's largest cathedral. Poke around and you'll see the tombs of Reformation rebel monarch Gustav Vasa and his son Johan III, as well as local hero Carl Linnaeus, the famous botanist.

Also worth seeking out are the remarkable royal burial mounds at Gamla (Old) Uppsala. Thought to have been created by the Svea tribe some 1500 years ago, they were once the site of gruesome human sacrifices – with unfortunate victims strung up from a tree. The place where this took place is marked by the Gamla Uppsala Kyrka, St Eriks torg 7 (daily 9am–6pm), a church built when the Swedish kings first took baptism in the new faith. The worthwhile Gamla Uppsala Museum, Disavägen (April, May & Sept daily 10am–4pm; June–Aug daily 11am–5pm; Oct–March Mon, Wed, Sat & Sun noon–4pm; 80kr), fills you in on all the background.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Trains pull in at Uppsala Centralstation, a couple of blocks northeast of the river.

Destinations Stockholm (at least 3 per hour; 40min); Leksand/Mora (2–3 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr 10min); Östersund (around 4 daily; 4hr 20min–6hr 30min).

By bus Swebus and Nettbuss services to Stockholm are frequent, departing from Stationsgatan.

Destinations Stockholm (at least hourly; 1hr).

Tourist information Signs show the way to the cathedral and tourist office at Kungsgatan 59 (Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm; ☎ 018 727 48 00, ☎ destination uppsala.se).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Max Stora Torget 6–8 (the main square). Part of a nationwide chain, this fast-food joint has a few veggie options on the menu, and also give details of each burger's carbon footprint. Most meals 60–80kr. Mon, Tues & Sun 10am–midnight, Wed & Thurs 10am–3am, Fri & Sat 10am–5am, Sun 10am–midnight.

Uppsala City Hostel St Persgatan 16, northwest of the station off Kungsgatan ☎ 018 10 00 08, ☎ uppsalacity hostel.se. Conveniently located hostel with good-value dorms and rooms in satisfyingly simple Swedish style. Dorms 220kr, doubles 560kr

Southern Sweden

Southern Sweden is dominated by endless expanses of farmland, and its coastline is famous for its superb beaches. Local dialects are strong and cause much mirth among metropolitan Stockholmers. Yet to portray the area as a rural backwater would do it a disservice. Here you'll find the gritty port city of Gothenburg, which buzzes with student life. South of here, Malmö is Sweden's culturally diverse gateway to the rest of Europe, while Lund, a medieval cathedral and university town, is an essential day-trip. Lying 90km off the southern coast in the Baltic Sea is the attractive and historically important island of Gotland, whose beaches and bars are awash with visitors over the summer.

GOTHENBURG

Sweden's second city, GOTHENBURG (Göteborg, pronounced Yuh-teh-borr) is Scandinavia's largest seaport and home to some of Sweden's biggest brands, including Volvo and Ericsson. Beyond the industrial gloom of its shipyards you'll find an attractive, unpretentious city with broad avenues, leafy parks and several outstanding museums and galleries. With students making up an eighth of the population it's also a fun, youthful city with plenty of quirky bars, nightclubs and coffee shops – not to mention some of Sweden's best restaurants.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Exploring Gothenburg by tram is one of the great pleasures of the city, but almost all its sights can be covered on foot. Most visitors head straight towards the main shopping street, Avenyn, which leads uphill towards the Konstmuseum, though from here it's only a short stroll to Liseberg, Scandinavia's biggest theme park, and the Universeum science centre. If you have time, dedicate a lazy afternoon to Slottsskogen, the city's most attractive swathe of green space, or head out to explore the rocky islands of the Southern Archipelago.

Maritiman and the Opera House

A short walk north from the station, at Maritiman (April Sat & Sun 11am–4pm; May & Sept daily 11am–5pm; June–Aug daily 10am–6pm; 120kr; @maritiman.se) you can clamber aboard a destroyer and descend into a submarine moored at the quayside. It's worth coming here just to look at the dockyards beyond, which frame the ship-shaped Gothenburg Opera House (@en.opera.se).

Avenyn and the Röhsska Museet

Running southeast from the central area around the Nordstan shopping centre, Kungssportsavenyn is Gothenburg's showiest thoroughfare. Known simply as Avenyn (the Avenue), this wide strip was once flanked by private houses fronted by gardens and is now lined with some of the city's most popular – and overpriced – restaurants and bars. About halfway down, the excellent Röhsska Museet at Vasagatan 37–39 (Wed noon–8pm; Thurs & Fri noon–5pm, Sat & Sun 11am–5pm; 40kr, free for under 25s; @rohsska.se) traces the history of design from 1850 to the present day, and also hosts regular fashion shows by young designers from Gothenburg University.

Göteborgs Konstmuseum

At the far southern end of Avenyn is Gothenburg's museum of art, the Konstmuseum (Tues & Thurs 11am–6pm, Wed 11am–8pm, Fri–Sun 11am–5pm; 40kr, free for under-25s), housing a unique collection of Nordic masterpieces. Among the highlights are paintings by Edvard Munch, P.S. Krøyer and Carl Larsson, but there are also works by Picasso, Van Gogh and Rembrandt. The square outside the museum, Götaplatsen, is home to a city icon – Carl Milles' 7m-high bronze statue of Poseidon in all his naked glory.

Liseberg Amusement Park

Liseberg, five minutes' walk southeast of Götaplatsen, is a gorgeous inner-city amusement park (late April to early Oct, and then again at Christmas; opening times vary; the Allt-i-ett, or all-in-one, pass costing 440kr gives access to the park and unlimited rides all day; @liseberg.com), with restaurants, bars and adrenaline-pumping rides set among acres of landscaped gardens. It's the biggest theme park in Scandinavia, and Balder, the rickety wooden roller coaster, is one of the best of its kind in the world. Atmosfear, a needle-like tower rising 116m into the sky, is Europe's tallest free-fall ride.

Universeum and the Museum of World Culture

Nearby, Universeum (daily: mid-June to mid-Aug 10am–8pm; mid-Aug to mid-June 10am–6pm; @universeum.se; 180–245kr, depending on the season) is a fun if expensive science discovery centre – it's worth getting a Gothenburg City Card (see opposite) just to visit this place. The main attraction is a huge, climate-controlled tropical forest but there's also a large seawater aquarium with its own shark tunnel, plus a section full of deadly reptiles.

Adjacent to Universeum, the Museum of World Culture (Tues, Thurs & Fri noon–5pm, Wed noon–8pm, Sat & Sun

FIVE MUSEUMS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

Pay the 40kr admission fee at any of the five museums listed here and you'll receive a pass that lets you visit the Röhsska Museet, Konstmuseum, Naturhistoriska Museum and two other city museums (Sjöfartsmuseet Akvariet and Göteborgs Stadsmuseum) as many times as you like over a twelve-month period.

11am–5pm; free, but extra to access certain galleries;  varldskulturmuseerna.se) runs exhibitions on global issues such as HIV/Aids, human trafficking and fair trade as well as more upbeat topics such as Bollywood and hip-hop. There are also regular screenings of English and foreign-language films.

Haga and Linnégatan

The old working-class district of Haga, a few minutes' walk west of Avenyn, is now a picturesque area of cobbled streets lined with cafés, clothing boutiques and antique shops. Tree-lined Linnégatan, further west still, is a prettier and more refined version of Avenyn, with relaxed bars and restaurants leading almost all the way to Slottsskogen.

Slottsskogen Park and Naturhistoriska Museum

Slottsskogen (tram #1, #2 or #6 to Linnéplatsen) is the city's largest park, a lovely expanse of woodland, lakes and wide paths perfect for joggers and cyclists. Several vantage points offer sweeping views over the city, and there's also a small zoo area with penguins and a seal pond. The nearby Naturhistoriska Museum (Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; 40kr, under-25s free;  ngm.se) houses the world's only stuffed blue whale. It was once possible to go inside the huge marine mammal, but since a couple of visitors were caught in a compromising embrace in its mouth, the whale has been kept as a purely visual exhibit.

Southern Archipelago

Saltholmen (the southernmost stop on tram #11) is the jumping-off point for trips to Gothenburg's craggy Southern Archipelago. Ferries run from here to inhabited islands like Vargö, Bränö and Styrö, which make great spots for swimming and sunbathing in the summertime. Tram tickets are valid for ferry journeys, too.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The city's commercial airport, Gothenburg Landvetter, is 25km east of the city; buses (every 20min; 30min; 105kr; 95kr if booked online;  flygbussarna.se) connect to the Nils Ericson terminal next to Central Station.

By train Trains arrive and depart from Central Station on Drottningtorget, just north of the centre; an underground walkway leads into Nordstan, the city's central shopping mall.

Destinations Copenhagen (hourly; 3hr 50min); Helsingborg (hourly; 2hr); Lund (hourly; 3hr); Malmö (hourly; 3hr 10min); Oslo (3 daily; 4hr); Stockholm (at least hourly; 3hr by X2000, 5hr by Intercity).

By bus Buses from all destinations use the Nils Ericson bus terminal, which adjoins Central Station. For onward travel to regional destinations like Copenhagen and Oslo, served by Swebus ( swebus.se) and Nettbuss ( nettbus.se), book ahead online.

Destinations Copenhagen (up to 7 daily; 4hr 30min–5hr); Helsingborg (up to 18 daily; 2hr 40min); Lund (up to 15 daily; 3hr–3hr 30min); Malmö (up to 20 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Oslo (up to 21 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Stockholm (up to 15 daily; 6–7hr).

By boat Stena Line ferries from Frederikshavn in Denmark and Kiel in Germany dock within a 20min walk of the centre. Trams #3, #9 and #11 run from nearby Masthugstorget to the centre.

Destinations Frederikshavn (at least 4 daily; 2hr–3hr 30min); Kiel (1 daily; 14hr 30min).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information Gothenburg has two helpful and well-informed tourist offices: a main office at Kungssportsplatsen 2 (June–Aug daily 9.30am–6/8pm; Sept–May Mon–Sat 9.30am–2/5pm;  031 368 4200,  goteborg.com) and a glass kiosk in the middle of the Nordstan shopping mall (Mon–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm). Both offices sell the Gothenburg City Card (375/525/675kr for 24/48/72hr), giving unlimited bus and tram travel, free or half-price museum and attraction entry, free Paddan boat tour and a fifty percent discount on a day-trip to Frederikshavn in Denmark.

Boat tours Open-topped Paddan boats ( stromma.se) take tourists on 50min tours (April–Oct; 170kr or free at certain times with Gothenburg City Card) along the city's canals. Boats depart from Kungssportsplatsen.

GETTING AROUND

By tram There are 13 colour-coded tram routes operated by Västtrafik – pick up a map from any hotel or tourist office, or use the English-language journey planner at  vasttrafik.se. Tickets (28kr or free with Gothenburg City Card) can usually be bought from the on-board vending machines. A more reliable option is the Västtrafikkort, which can be purchased at any branch of Pressbyrå. You pay a 50kr deposit for the card, and can then top it up with 100, 200 or 500kr at a time. Touch the card against the on-board scanner when you start each journey and you'll pay slightly less than the usual per-journey fee.

33

By bike Cycle paths criss-cross the city. You can rent bikes (200kr/day) from Cykelkungen at Chalmersgatan 19 (cykelkungen.se) or buy a three-day pass for the city's bike rental scheme, Styr & Ställ (25kr, plus a 140kr deposit; goteborgbikes.se). The first 30min of every journey is free.

ACCOMMODATION

Gothenburg can be an affordable place to treat yourself to a proper hotel room, thanks to the Gothenburg Package (from 775kr/person), run by the city's tourist board. This deal gets you a double room in a central hotel, with breakfast and a free Gothenburg City Card worth 375kr – book ahead at goteborg.com.

★ Eklanda B&B Ekladagatan 3 ☎ 031 18 79 94, eklandaobchb.com. High up in an attractive townhouse near Universeum and Liseberg (no sign outside), this privately run B&B has two immaculate doubles that share a bathroom and a relaxed lounge area. Buffet breakfast included. Booking essential. Doubles 695kr

Kärralund Camping Liseberg Olbergsgatan liseberg.se; from Brunnsparken in the city centre, take tram #5 to Welanderatan (direction Torp). Busy campsite 4km from the centre aimed mostly at families visiting the Liseberg amusement park. There is also a youth hostel on site (dorms only, sleeping up to four people, and you must book the whole room). Camping/tent (sleeping 4) 295kr, dorms 995kr

Kvibergs Vandrarhem & Stugby Lilla Regementsvägen 35 ☎ 031 43 50 55, vandrarhem.com; tram #7 or #11 towards Kviberg. A 10min ride from the centre, this peaceful place offers a range of decent accommodation, from dorms (though you have to rent the entire room) to private rooms. There are also self-contained, five-person wooden cabins with kitchens. Doubles 560kr, cabins 1050kr

★ Slottsskogens Vandrarhem Vegagatan 21 ☎ 031 42 65 20, sov.nu; tram #1, #2 or #6 to Olivedalsgatan. This huge hostel is in a great location near Slottsskogen park, 2min walk from Linnégatan. There's a sauna, free wi-fi and a chill-out area, and dorms come with lockers built into the bunks. Dorms 195kr, doubles 500kr

Stigbergsliden Stigbergsliden 10 ☎ 031 24 16 20, hostel-gothenburg.com; tram #3, #9 or #11 from the city centre to Stigbergstorget. Comfortable hostel in a charming, nineteenth-century sailor's mission, close to the Stena Line ferry terminal and the bars of Andra Långgatan. Check-in closed noon–4pm. Dorms 245kr, doubles 600kr

CAFÉS, CHEAP EATS AND SNACKS

Böner & Bagels Linnégatan 48. Cracking little café on one of the city's most attractive streets. Grab a latte, some soup and a bagel (around 70kr), then sit outside and watch the trams roll by. Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat & Sun 9am–6pm.

Café Santo Domingo Andra Långgatan 4a. With stacks of old LPs for sale and Dominican coffee steaming away on the counter, this roomy record store attracts a mixed crowd of music lovers. There's cheap vegetarian soup each weekday lunchtime. Live bands every Fri. Mon–Fri 9.30am–6.30pm, Sat 10am–4pm.

Feskekörka Rosenlundsvägen by the waterfront. Built in 1874, this lively church-like building (its name literally means fish church) is where locals come to stock up on locally caught crayfish or natter over a takeaway shellfish salad from Kerstins Delikatesser (89kr). Tues–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–3pm.

Gourmet Korv Södra Larmgatan 6. Choose from 50 different kinds of hotdog sausage – including one flavoured with cognac and juniper berries – at this tiny yet central kiosk. The sausage of the day, served with potato salad and a drink, costs 79kr. A second branch in Nordstan has longer hours. Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 11am–4pm.

Hagabions Linnégatan 21. Eat vegetarian food or drink a creamy glass of Stigbergets IPA (brewed in Gothenburg) at this film-themed café inside an arthouse cinema showing pictures from around the globe. Daily 5pm–1am.

Strömmingsluckan In the car park near Magasinsgatan 17. Insanely popular takeaway van serving a truly Swedish take on fast food: fried herring with mashed potatoes and lingonberries (65kr). Mon–Fri 11am–3pm, Sat noon–4pm.

RESTAURANTS

Holy Moly Andra Långgatan 31. Tiny, softly lit Mexican place that attracts a young and chatty crowd. There's often live music and the cheap finger food is a nice accompaniment to the cold beer. Mon–Thurs & Sun 4pm–1am, Sat & Sun 4pm–2am.

★ Moon Thai Kitchen Kristinelundsgatan 9. Still the best Thai restaurant in town, with twinkling fairy lights strewn across its interior, and surprisingly authentic curries (from 139kr) grouped according to spiciness and cost. Mon–Thurs 4–11pm, Fri 11am–1am, Sat noon–1am, Sun noon–11pm.

Yammy Kitchen Andra Långgatan 5. For sizzling soups and beef stews, look no further than this Korean-run place, whose huge menu also includes sushi boxes (from 72kr). Veggie and vegan options are available, too. Mon–Thurs 3–10pm, Fri 3–11pm, Sat noon–11pm, Sun 2–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

For cheap beer and good times, Andra Långgatan ("second long street") is a safe bet – it's one of the few places you can buy a beer for under 50kr and there are plenty of cheap-ish restaurants, though things are starting to get gentrified.

Henriksberg Stigbergsliden 7. A fun place to meet Swedish students, with cheap beer (from 46kr) and pub games like pool and shuffleboard helping to keep things consistently lively. Upstairs is a terrace with views over the harbour, and at weekends bands play in the venue downstairs. Sun–Wed 5pm–1am, Thurs–Sat 5pm–2am.

Pustervik Järntorgsgatan 14. Live bands and/or DJs play almost nightly at this former theatre, which draws in a good mix of local talent and international acts. Try to visit on Mon (free entry) when you can take part in the venue's surreal ping-pong competition. Mon–Thurs 11am–2am, Fri 11am–3am, Sat & Sun 5pm–3am.

Rock Baren Kristinelundsgatan 14. Two floors of noisy rock 'n' roll action, just steps from the swanky clubs of Avenyn. Head in between 5–10pm for the daily happy hour, when a draught beer costs just 32kr. Minimum age 20. Sun–Thurs 5pm–2am, Fri & Sat 5pm–3am.

Yaki-da Storgatan 47. Homely sofas, framed portraits and old-fashioned lampshades decorate the themed rooms of this sprawling club, just off Avenyn. The well-mixed Negronis (135kr) are easier on the tongue than they are on the wallet. Minimum age 23; entry around 150kr. Wed, Fri & Sat 8pm–3am.

MALMÖ

Linked to Denmark by the impressive Öresund Bridge, MALMÖ is Sweden's most cosmopolitan city. More than a hundred languages are spoken on its streets and you'll find Turkish and Thai food as popular as meatballs and herring. In fact, Malmö didn't even become Swedish until 1658, having been Denmark's second city for generations. Today it's Sweden's third-largest town, an attractive mix of chocolate-box medieval squares and striking modern architecture, most notably the Turning Torso skyscraper, Scandinavia's tallest building.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Mostly flat and home to an extensive cycle network, Malmö is the perfect place to rent a bike and explore at leisure. Most of the sights are squeezed into the compact medieval centre, although the beaches and modern docklands to the north make a tempting excursion. South of the old centre is the bohemian district of Möllevångstorget, where you'll find many of the best places to eat and drink.

Stortorget

The city's main square, Stortorget is as impressive today as it must have been when it was first laid out in the sixteenth century. It's flanked on one side by the imposing Rådhus (town hall), built in 1546 and covered with statuary and spiky accoutrements. To its rear stands the fine Gothic St Petri Kyrka (daily 10am–6pm), while to the south runs Södergatan, Malmö's main pedestrianized shopping street.

Lilla Torg

A late sixteenth-century spin-off from Stortorget, Lilla Torg is everyone's favourite part of the city. Edged by cafés and restaurants, it's usually pretty crowded at night, with drinkers kept warm under patio heaters and bars handing out free blankets. On the south side of the square, through an archway, is the Form/Design Center (Tues–Sat 11am–5pm, Sun noon–4pm; free; formdesigncenter.com), which showcases cutting-edge Swedish furniture, textiles and lighting. There's also a café stocked with magazines and journals on design trends.

Malmöhus Slott

Handsome Malmöhus Slott is a low, heavily fortified castle defended by a deep moat and two circular keeps. Taking its current form in the mid-sixteenth century, when Danish king Christian III wanted to assert his power over the region, the castle was later used as a prison. Now it houses Malmö Museer (daily 10am–5pm; 40kr; malmo.se/museer), a disparate but fascinating collection of exhibitions on everything from geology to photography – and an aquarium, too. Small lakes and an old windmill dot the three leafy parks that surround the castle grounds.

The Turning Torso and Öresund Bridge

A good twenty-minute walk or five-minute cycle ride north of the station is Malmö's most iconic sight, the 190m-high Turning Torso skyscraper. A towering helix of glass and steel, the structure was completed in 2005 and remains Scandinavia's tallest building. You can't go up in the tower, but the area immediately around it is still worth a wander. On a wall just to the west is an electronic eye (made from LEDs by Swedish artist Annika Svenbro), which seems to change its appearance throughout the day. Heading coastward takes you to a viewpoint of the Öresund Bridge: this 17km engineering marvel links the city with Copenhagen (a journey of just 35min by train) and is the iconic centrepiece of the Scandi noir thriller series The Bridge.

The beach

Ribersborgsstranden, or “Ribban”, as city residents call it, is Malmö’s artificial sandy beach, created in the 1920s. A long access path, busy in summer with rollerbladers and cyclists, leads down to the sections of beach, each indicated by a jetty. Just offshore is Ribersborgs Kallbadhus (May–Aug Mon, Tues, Thurs & Fri 9am–8pm, Wed 9am–9pm, Sat & Sun 9am–6pm; Sept–April Mon, Tues, Thurs & Fri 10am–7pm, Wed 10am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9am–6pm; 65kr; www.ribersborgskallbadhus.se), where locals come to take a naked dip in the icy sea then warm up in one of the five oven-like saunas.

Möllevångstorget

Known as Möllan, this giant cobbled square towards the south of the city was once the heart of working-class Malmö. By day it hosts a busy market selling everything from cassava to Arabic sweets, while by night it becomes the alternative hangout of choice for the city's student population.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Copenhagen/Kastrup Airport is just 20min by train from Malmö's Central Station; trains leave round the clock and cost 111kr. Malmö's own airport, Sturup, is used mostly by Swedish airlines flying to domestic destinations and the odd Wizz Air service to Poland or Hungary. It's 30km southeast of the city; buses run once or twice per hour (40min; one-way journey costs 115kr, or 105kr if booked online; flygbussarna.se).

By train All trains terminate at Central Station, including the local Pågatåg services that run from Helsingborg and Lund (rail passes are valid). Trains bound for Copenhagen, on the other side of the Öresund Bridge, also depart from here.

Destinations Copenhagen (every 20min; airport 20min, city 35min); Gothenburg (hourly; 3hr 10min); Helsingborg (roughly every 20min; 40–50min); Lund (every 10min; 10–15min); Stockholm (hourly; 4hr 30min).

By bus The main bus terminal, served by local buses and long-distance Swebus and Nettbuss services, is just east of Central Station on Centralplan. Occasionally, long-distance buses drop off and pick up at Norra Vallgatan, 200m south of the train station.

Destinations Copenhagen (up to 9 daily; airport 45min, city 1hr); Gothenburg (up to 20 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr); Lund (up to 16 daily; 25min); Helsingborg (up to 18 daily; 50min–1hr 15min); Stockholm (4 weekly; 8hr 25min); Oslo (up to 13 daily; 7hr 30min–8hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The main tourist office is across from the train station at Skeppsbron 2 (Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat & Sun 10am–2pm; ☎040 34 12 00, malmotown.com).

GETTING AROUND

By bus City buses are run by Skånetrafiken (skanetrafiken.se), whose desk inside the glass part of the train station (Mon–Fri 6.30am–8pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–6pm) sells a 24hr pass that allows unlimited travel on inner-city bus routes (65kr).

By bike Bike rental available from Fridhems Cykelaffär, Tessins Väg 13, about two blocks along Tessins Väg west from the castle (150kr for the first day, then 100kr/day thereafter).

ACCOMMODATION

Comfort Hotel Carlskatan 10c ☎040 33 04 40, choice.se. Bright, comfortable rooms just a 2min walk from Central Station. Room rates include free organic breakfast, wi-fi and access to the on-site gym. Book ahead for the best deal. Doubles 699kr

First Camp Malmö Strandgatan 101 ☎040 15 51 65, firstcamp.se; bus #4 from Central Station. Huge beachside campsite with views of the Öresund Bridge. Per person 20kr, plus per tent 200kr

STF Hotel & Hostel Malmö City Rönngatan 1 ☎040 611 62 20; bus #8 from the train station to Davidshall. Simple, clean and very popular STF hostel 1km south of the centre in a great location for nightlife and shops. Dorms 320kr, doubles 925kr

EATING

Bastard Mäster Johansgatan 11. There aren't many animal parts the tattooed chefs at Bastard won't cook. Its adventurous menu includes dishes like blood sausage with apple and pine nuts, and a grilled rabbit for two (375 kr). Tues–Thurs 5pm–midnight, Fri & Sat 5pm–2am.

Falafel Baghdad Annelundsgatan 59. Malmö is famous for its falafel and this simple place near Rosengård, where local hero Zlatan Ibrahimović grew up, is one of the originals. Daily 10am–11pm.

Hai Davidshallstorg 5. Malmö's best sushi and sashimi is served in this buzzing restaurant on elegant Davidshallstorg. There's a new lunch menu (95kr) every weekday. Mon–Thurs 11.30am–10pm, Fri 11.30am–11pm, Sat noon–11pm, Sun 2–9pm.

Lilla Kafferosteriet Baltzarsgatan 24. Caffeine-hungry Swedes flock to this mustard-coloured café, which specializes in coffee made from newly roasted beans. The breakfast buffet (8–11am on weekdays; 95kr) is a great way to kick-start the day. Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–5pm.

Restaurang Jörgen Inside the Frans Suell och Jörgen Kocks Gymnasium (high school) at Kungsgatan 44. Lunch at this restaurant, run by trainee students, includes a hot main, salad and a dessert. At 65kr, it's unbeatable value. Mon–Thurs 11.30am–12.45pm, Fri 11.30am–12.15pm during term time.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

★ Babel Spångatan 38 babelmalmö.se. This old red-brick church spends most of its time shaking to the sounds of local bands, but it also hosts club nights, comedy shows and documentary screenings. Entry usually 80–140kr. Hours vary with each event; see website.

Belle Epoque Södra Skolgatan 43 belle-epoque.se. Eating here is expensive (mains around 200kr) so come later on in the evening, when DJs play to a young crowd of cocktail-sipping party people. Wed–Sat 6pm–1am.

Häng Bar Kristianstadsgatan 7b. With a covered seating area out front and a menu that features cheap nibbles like chicken wings (50kr), this is a decent spot for slurping a beer (from 48kr), listening to music and people-watching. There are occasional comedy shows, too. Daily 4pm–1am.

33

Malmö Brewing Co Bergsgatan 33. Sup pale ales, pilsners and porters at the city's best microbrewery. The pub is open late, and on Friday evenings you can take a tour of the brewery itself. Mon–Thurs 4pm–midnight, Fri 4pm–3am, Sat noon–3pm.

Moriska Paviljongen Norra Parkgatan 2  moriskapaviljongen.se. This quirky Moorish-style pavilion in a park puts on various club nights throughout the year, covering everything from afrobeat to rock. It's best to buy tickets in advance if you can. See website for specific event times.

LUND

Just a short hop inland from Malmö, the pretty university town of LUND makes for a pleasant afternoon wander. It's often voted one of the best places to live in Sweden, and with its quaint cobbled streets, relaxed pace of life and mix of well-heeled residents and students from across the world, it's easy to see why. The high student population may account for the huge number of bikes you'll see across the city.

The main sight in town is the impressive, twin-towered cathedral (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 9.30am–5pm, Sun 9.30am–6pm), one of Scandinavia's finest medieval buildings. Inside is a quirky attraction: a fifteenth-century astronomical clock from which two mechanical knights pop out and clash swords as the clock strikes (Mon–Sat noon & 3pm, Sun 1pm & 3pm). Surrounding the cathedral are several grand nineteenth-century buildings belonging to the university. Also nearby is the entrance to the vast Kulturen open-air museum (May–Aug daily 10am–5pm; 120kr; Sept–April Tues–Sun noon–4pm; 90kr;  kulturen.com), a village in itself – full of perfectly preserved cottages and permanent exhibitions covering everything from Viking weapons to modernist design. Student discounts offered.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is towards the west of town, an easy walk from the centre.

Destinations Gothenburg (hourly; 3hr); Helsingborg (every 10min; 30–40min); Malmö (every 5–10min; 10min); Stockholm (hourly; 4hr 20min).

By bus Frequent buses arrive and depart from the train station.

Destinations Gothenburg (5–6 daily; 3hr 25min); Copenhagen (1–2 daily; 1hr 35min).

Tourist information The tourist office is just off Stortorget at Botulfsgatan 1a (June–Aug Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 11am–3pm, Sun 11am–3pm; Sept–May Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–2pm;  046 35 50 40,  visitlund.se).

GETTING AROUND

By bike To rent a bike, head to Fridhems Cykelaffär at Bredgatan 32, a 10min walk from the train station (150kr for first day, 100kr/day thereafter).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Since Lund's famous train hostel closed down, there's been a serious shortage of affordable rooms (nearby Malmö is a much better bet for budget travellers).

Checkinn Hantverksgatan 6  072 329 08 00,  checkinn.se. If you get stuck in Lund, this hotel-style B&B in a couple of pretty houses (with single and double rooms) is one of the cheaper spots. Doubles discounted by 100kr Fri & Sat. Doubles 995kr

Saluhallen Mårtenstorget 1. This indoor market has all the ingredients you need to put together a cheap picnic. Inside, Gröna Deli sells tasty salads with smoked salmon (69kr). Most shops Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–4pm.

Winstrup Hostel Winstrupsgatan 3  072 329 08 00,  winstruphostel.se. The only proper hostel in Lund is run by the same folks as Checkinn (above). It's clean, modern and comfortable, with bright dorms and a roomy kitchen. Prices are high, though. A breakfast buffet is available in the mornings for 95kr per person. Dorms 595kr

GOTLAND

Sweden's largest island, GOTLAND is packed with historical intrigue, lined with great beaches, and, in summer at least, full of partying students. The star attraction is the beautifully preserved medieval town of Visby, though the rest of the island is also well worth exploring, especially by bike or car.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Once the Baltic's main trading centre, VISBY is a heavily fortified and beautifully preserved medieval town, full of crumbling churches and cute half-timbered houses. The best approach is to simply get lost in its warren of cobbled alleyways, using the thirteenth-century walls circling the town as a reference point. After a while you'll find your way to the main open space, Stora Torget, where bars and restaurants cater to a happy crowd of holidaying Swedes.

Visby's museums

Established in the late nineteenth century, Gotlands Fornsal (daily 10am–6pm; 120kr, under 20s free; gotlandsmuseum.se) has exhibitions about everything from Viking rune stones and gold to the macabre discovery of shallow graves that held the bones of townsfolk executed in the Middle Ages.

Behind the museum is Visby's art gallery or Konstmuseum (daily 10am–6pm; 80kr, or 160kr with entry to Gotlands Fornsal), mostly focused on paintings by islanders and Swedes from further afield.

Visby cathedral and church ruins

Visby's graceful cathedral, St Maria (daily 9am–5pm), is a short walk west of Stora Torget. Its three towers, two octagonal and one square, can be seen for kilometres around. Of the town's ruined churches, the most impressive and photogenic are St Hans on St Hansgatan and St Katarina on the eastern side of Stora Torget.

The rest of the island

Tofta Strand, 20km south of Visby (take bus #10 or rent a car; see below), is one of the island's most picturesque sandy beaches. It's packed out in summertime, especially during week 29 (otherwise known as Stockholm Week; most Swedes can tell you off the top of the head which week of the year we are in) when rich kids from the capital invade the island, sending prices sky-high. To avoid the crowds it's often worth checking out the beaches on the eastern side of the island instead. Buses run across the island but services are infrequent, so renting a car makes things easier. With your own wheels you can also take a trip up to Färö, Gotland's tiny sister island (the ferry is free, with frequent crossings during summer), where you'll find the beach resort of Sudersand, and the mysterious-looking sea stacks known as Langhammars, on the wind-battered north coast. Halfway to the ferry port on Gotland, the caves at Lummelunda, a 14km drive north of Visby (daily: May to mid-July & mid-Aug to Sept 10am–1/5pm, mid-July to mid-Aug 9am–6pm; 140kr), make for an interesting stop. Take bus #1 from Visby if using public transport.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane Several airlines, including BRA (flygbra.se), SAS (sas.se) and Norwegian (norwegian.com), fly to Gotland, with year-round services running from Stockholm and Gothenburg. Book ahead and it's possible to fly Stockholm–Visby one-way for around 400kr, even in high season. The airport is 4km north of Visby. An infrequent bus service runs into the centre of town in summer (June–Aug; 60kr; see flygbussarna.se for times). Otherwise, a taxi costs around 150kr.

By ferry Visby is accessible by ferry from the mainland ports of Nynäshamn, a 1hr train ride south of Stockholm, and Oskarshamn, in Sweden's southeast. Both crossings are run by Destination Gotland (0771 22 33 00, destinationgotland.se), arriving at the harbour, a 10–15min walk west of Visby. One-way tickets start at 258kr for adults and 206kr for under-25s. If you have an InterRail pass you're eligible for a discount, but you'll need to call ahead to get it.

Destinations Nynäshamn (for Stockholm; up to 5 daily; 3hr 15min); Oskarshamn (for southern Sweden; up to 3 daily, 3hr).

Tourist information Donners Plats 1, near the ferry terminal (daily 9am–6pm; 0498 20 17 00, gotland.com).

GETTING AROUND

By bus Visby's main bus terminal is beyond the town wall to the east, on Kung Magnus Väg. Tickets for single trips start at 25kr.

By car Car rental at Mickes Biluthyrning, down by the ferry terminal (0498 26 62 62, mickesbiluthyrning.se; summer 350kr/day, otherwise 300kr/day). Good selection of old VWs and the like at bargain prices.

By bike Bike rental from Gotlands Cykeluthyrning, Skeppsbron 2, near to the tourist office (June–Aug daily 9am–6pm; May & Sept daily limited hours; from 80kr/day; 0498 21 41 33, gotlandscykeluthyrning.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation prices skyrocket in summer, putting all but the cheapest hostels out of the reach of budget travellers. However, some of Gotland's mid-range hotels cut their rates by as much as fifty per cent at colder times of the year, making a winter break more affordable.

33

STF Hostel Lärbro/Grannen Around 1km north of Lärbro, in the north of the island ☎0498 22 50 33, svenskaturistforeningen.se. In a peaceful wooded area 35km from Visby, this no-frills hostel has small rooms, a sauna and a sociable TV area. Doubles 490kr

Visby Fängelset Skeppsbron 1 ☎0498 20 60 50, visbyfangelset.se. Striking youth hostel in a converted prison near the waterfront, with beds in "cells" that sleep between 2 and 6 guests. Book ahead in summer. Dorms 450kr, doubles 750kr

Visby Logi St Hansgatan 31/Hästgatan 14 ☎070 752 20 55, visbylogi.se. Two beautiful historic homes in the heart of Visby converted into double and single rooms (shared bathroom). No breakfast but kitchen facilities available. Doubles 650kr

Visby Strandby 4km northeast of Visby ☎049 821 21 57. Holiday houses and a pleasant campsite just beside Snäckviken beach, about 4km from the town centre. Discount on camping prices for under-25s. Camping/person 195kr, cabins 700kr

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Black Sheep Arms St Hansgatan 51. English-style bar serving up pub grub (fish and chips 169kr) and a wide selection of beers; a favourite with locals and tourists alike. Sun–Thurs noon–midnight, Fri & Sat 5pm–1am.

Gutekällaren Lilla Torggränd 3 ☎gutekallaren.com. With bars inside and out, this club complex is heaving with bronzed, dressed-up twenty-somethings all summer, when it attracts Sweden's top DJ talent. Entry sometimes free before 11pm. June–Aug daily 9pm–3am.

★Munkkällaren Stora Torget 1 ☎munkkallaren.se. Visby nightlife stalwart with live bands and a big party vibe later in the evening, particularly on Thurs and Fri. The restaurant serves up decent grub, and much of the large beer selection is reduced during happy hour (4–6pm Fri). Daily 4pm–3am.

Score Hamnplan 5. This American-style sports bar by the water is best visited on a Friday night, when dishes on the special after-work menu (pizza, ribs and onion rings) cost 99kr. Fri 4pm–late, Sat noon–late.

Surfers Södra Kyrkogatan 1 ☎surfersvisby.se. An unusual concept for medieval Visby: sweet and peppery Szechuan food served tapas style, with each dish costing 85kr (there's a discount for takeaway orders). Good cocktail list too. Daily 5pm–late.

Central Sweden

The rural Sweden of most visitors' imaginations begins in the central areas of the interior: vast tracts of forest,

THE INLANDSBANAN

Among the most enthralling of Europe's train journeys, the Inlandsbanan (Inland Railway) cuts a route through 1300km of Sweden's best-looking scenery. The quaint, toy-like line links central Sweden with Gällivare in the north, a two-day trip if attempted without a break. The full railway (☎0771 53 53 53, inlandsbanan.com) is open from June to the end of August only.

Tickets Fares are calculated per kilometre – for example, Mora to Östersund costs 596kr, Östersund to Gällivare is 1378kr; reserving a seat costs 50kr per journey.

Discounts and rail cards InterRail and Eurail pass holders travel for free apart from the optional seat reservation fee. Students receive a 25 percent discount. The Inlandsbanan Card (1995kr) offers unlimited travel on the line for fourteen days.

peaceful lakes and log cabins. Deep-blue Lake Siljan, at the heart of the province of Dalarna, is a major draw, particularly in midsummer when it's a focus of festivities celebrating the long days and warm weather. From here one of Europe's classic rail journeys, the Inlandsbanan, begins its slow route north to the Arctic Circle via the towns of Orsa and Östersund.

LAKE SILJAN

Lake Siljan (siljan.se) holds a special, misty-eyed place in the Swedish heart. Thousands head here in summer to stay at its iconic red lakeside cabins, paddle lazily in canoes and kayaks and hike deep into the surrounding countryside. If you happen to be here around Midsummer's Eve (midsommarafon), head to the town of Leksand at the south end of the lake, which holds a huge festival with maypole dances and longboat races.

Mora, at the north end of Siljan, has more facilities and is the starting point for the Inlandsbanan rail route (see box above). Right near the STF Mora hostel is the finish line for Vasaloppet – the gruelling 90km-long cross-country ski race held annually on the first Sunday in March. The small Vasaloppet museum here (July & Aug daily 10am–5pm; Sept–June Mon–Wed & Fri 8am–noon & 1pm–4.30pm; Thurs 8am–noon & 1pm–3pm; free; vasaloppet.se) tells the story of the event's ninety-five-year history.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train From Stockholm, direct trains (at least 3 daily; roughly 4hr) make the scenic journey to Mora. There's also a direct service from Gothenburg (1 daily; 6hr 30min).

Tourist information The tourist office (Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–2pm; ☎ 0250 59 20 20) across from Morastrand station at Köpmannagatan 3a gives out information on activities around the lake.

ACCOMMODATION

STF Mora 600m northeast of the tourist office at Fredsgatan 6 ☎ 0250 381 96. Rustic but welcoming hostel in a pleasant location by the Vasaloppet finish line. Sauna on site. Dorms 250kr, doubles 600kr

ORSA

The Inlandsbanan, having begun in Mora, makes its first stop at ORSA, fifteen minutes up the line, where the nearby Orsa Björnpark (daily 10am–3/6pm; 270kr; orsabjornpark.se; bus #342 to Grönklitt) provides the best chance to see the brown bears that roam over swathes of central Sweden. In winter, there's some great skiing, snowshoeing and walking to be done here.

ACCOMMODATION

Grönklitts Vandrarhem ☎ 0250 462 00, orsagrönklitt.se. The Orsa Björnpark's on-site hostel has nice clean two- and four-bedded rooms in a building at the foot of one of the slopes. Twins 310kr

ÖSTERSUND

ÖSTERSUND, halfway point on the Inlandsbanan, is a very provincial but welcoming town on the shores of Lake Storsjön. It's most famous for the Loch Ness-style monster, the Storsjöodjur, said to inhabit the lake. More prosaically the town is also a major inland rail junction: as well as the Inlandsbanan, routes head east to Stockholm and west to Trondheim in Norway.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Apart from monster-spotting (there are eight official "observation points" along the lakeshore), the main thing to do is visit Jamtli (daily 11am–5pm; Sept–May closed Mon; free), a family-friendly, partly open-air museum, fifteen minutes' walk north from the centre along Rådhusgatan. The key exhibits are the ninth-century Överhogdal tapestries, whose simple hand-woven patterns of horses, dogs and other beasts date from the Viking Age.

From near Östersund's harbour you can take the bridge over the lake to Frösön island, site of the original Viking settlement here. In the colder months, when the lake freezes and is turned into an enormous winter park, it's possible to skate or walk from one side to the other.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Daily SAS flights from Stockholm land at Åre Östersund Airport on Frösön, a 15min bus ride from the city centre. Bus journeys are scheduled to match flight times. See nettbus.se for exact times.

By train It's a 5min walk north into the centre from Östersund Centralstation.

Destinations Gällivare, for trains to Kiruna (1 daily; 14hr); Mora (1 daily, summer only; 6hr); Orsa (1 daily, summer only; 5hr 45min); Stockholm (2 daily; 5–6hr); Uppsala (2 daily; 4hr 15min–6hr).

By bus The main bus station is on Gustavs III Torg, off Rådhusgatan.

Destinations Kiruna, via Gällivare (1 daily; 12hr 45min); Mora (1–2 daily; 5hr 15min); Orsa (1–2 daily; 4hr 45min); Stockholm (1 daily; 8hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The tourist office is at Rådhusgatan 44 (Sept–May Mon–Fri 9am–5pm; June–Aug Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat & Sun 10am–3pm; ☎ 063 701 17 00, visitostersund.se).

ACCOMMODATION

Frösö Camping ☎ 077 110 12 00, froso.nordiccamping.se; bus #3 from the centre. This is the most picturesque of Östersund's campsites, with views over Storsjön lake and several easy walking trails in the surrounding area. Open mid-May to mid-Sept. Per tent 245kr

Jamtli Hostel ☎ 063 150 300, jamtli.com. Quaint, appealing hostel in the grounds of the Jamtli open-air museum, with bright, clean dorms. Booking ahead is essential. Dorms 270kr

A FOODIE TOUR OF ÖSTERSUND

Östersund is no culinary capital, but there's plenty of good local food to wrap your taste buds around – from elk and wild mushrooms to tangy Jämtland cheese. One of the best ways to find out what the locals eat is to visit some of the quirky food shops dotted around town. The local tourist office (see p.1109) can provide you with all the info you need for a self-guided food tour. Although some of the restaurants are pricey, there are boutiques selling good-value, locally produced food – much of it organic.

Östersund Ledkryset Biblioteksgatan 25 ☎063 10 33 10, 🌐ostersundledkryset.se. The most modern and sociable of the city's hostels, with immaculate dorms and private rooms housed in an attractive former fire station near the centre. Dorms 220kr, doubles 600kr

EATING AND DRINKING

Captain Cook Hamngatan 9. Australian-themed drinking haunt with decent food to boot. Try the Aussie burger, served with beetroot and a sourdough bun (169kr). Mon–Thurs 4–11pm, Fri 4pm–2am, Sat 1pm–2am.

Wedemarks Konditori Prästgatan 27. Popular bakery with a cosy downstairs lunch bar that serves up such treats as the delicious prawn-topped open sandwiches (85kr). Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11am–4pm.

Northern Sweden

Northern Sweden – Swedish Lapland – is the wildest, strangest part of the country. The region is famous for the Northern Lights and midnight sun as well as the Sámi people – reindeer herders who were once the sole inhabitants here. The Sámi are still visible, especially in the small town of Jokkmokk, which almost straddles the Arctic Circle. A couple of hundred kilometres further north, Kiruna is the access point for the celebrated Icehotel, a once-in-a-lifetime stay if you're feeling flush.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane and train The most atmospheric way to reach the far north of the country is the Inlandsbanan rail line (see box, p.1108), although you can also get here via regular rail services from Stockholm and by air to Kiruna. Flights also run to the east-coast city of Luleå, which has a direct train to Kiruna and Abisko.

THE ARCTIC CIRCLE AND JOKKMOKK

After brief stops at Arvidsjaur and Mosköle, the Inlandsbanan finally crosses the Arctic Circle at a point 7km south of Jokkmokk. Painted white rocks indicate this latitudinal milestone, making it an essential photo stop; killjoys will point out that the real Arctic Circle (66°33') has shifted a further kilometre north owing to changes in the earth's orbit, but no one seems to care.

JOKKMOKK itself is a welcome oasis after hours on a tiny train. The town is a renowned handicraft centre, with a Sámi educational college keeping the language and culture alive, and a lively winter market. The Ájtte Museum (mid-June to mid-Aug daily 9am–6pm; mid-Aug to mid-June Tues–Fri 10am–4pm, Sat 10am–4pm; 80kr) on Kyrkogatan takes a respectful look at Sámi culture. The permanent exhibitions house vivid Sámi costumes and a fascinating section on how the industrial age has affected the region and its people. Jokkmokk's Great Winter Market (first Thurs, Fri & Sat of Feb; 🌐jokkmokksmarknad.se) is the best and busiest time to visit; you'll need to book accommodation a good six months in advance.

INFORMATION

Tourist information The tourist office is at Stortorget 4 (Mon–Fri 8.30am–noon & 1–4pm, with longer hours in summer; ☎0971 222 50, 🌐destinationjokkmokk.se).

ACCOMMODATION

Arctic Camp Jokkmokk ☎0971 12370, 🌐arcticcampjokkmokk.se. If you're washed out from the long journey to get here, try this campsite which also has family-friendly, 2-bed cabins plus heated swimming pools in a lakeside location 3.5km east of Jokkmokk. Camping/tent 185kr, cabins 440kr

Jokkmokk Hostel Åsgatan 20 ☎070 366 46 45, 🌐stfturist.se. A good alternative to camping, this grand 1920s house has modern rooms plus some single-sex dorms. There's a small reading room upstairs, and handy kitchen facilities. Dorms 300kr, doubles 700kr

KIRUNA

With its nearby airport, rail connections to Norway and proximity to the Icehotel (see box below), Kiruna, 145km north of the Arctic Circle, has become the unlikely tourist hub for Swedish Lapland. The city is dominated by its iron ore mine, the world's largest, and became a focus during World War II, when the supply of iron was fought over by the Germans and Allies. Be sure to take plenty of photos of Kiruna as you walk around: the vast mine is continuing to expand, threatening the city's vital infrastructure, and many of today's landmarks have already been scheduled for demolition. Between now and 2035, 2500 homes plus shops, schools and many of Kiruna's best-known buildings – including the huge town hall – will be knocked down and rebuilt 3km to the east.

To see why the city has to move, you can take a tour of the mine (in English at 11am and 3pm daily during summer; book ahead at the tourist office; 345kr; student discounts available), run by mining company LKAB. Descending more than 500m below the surface, you'll learn about the mine's history and the techniques used for extracting iron ore.

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Icehotel 17km west of Kiruna in the small village of Jukkasjärvi @icehotel.com; bus #501 from Kiruna, get off at Jukkasjärvi. If you've made it this far north, a visit to Sweden's world-famous Icehotel is a tempting prospect. Although the hotel operates year-round, the obvious time to come is Dec–April when the fairytale-like ice structure is in place; a visitor pass (325kr) allows you a look inside the rooms. If you can stump up the cash, you could consider spending a night in its igloo-like conditions; temperatures hover around -5°C to -8°C, although you'll be toasty warm, wrapped up tight in an army sleeping bag and lying on reindeer skins. A cheaper alternative is a night in the hotel's regular, heated chalets. Doubles 4060kr, chalets 2060kr

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Kiruna's airport is 10km southwest of the city. An airport bus (110kr) is on hand for the 20-minute journey; otherwise take a shared taxi (350kr/car).

By train Kiruna's original train station is now closed because of the ongoing project to move the city. Train services now call at a temporary station, 1.5km north of the city. Free shuttles meet the trains and take you into the centre.

Destinations Abisko Turiststation (4 daily; 1hr 30min); Luleå (up to 7 daily; 3hr 30min–5hr); Narvik (4 daily; 3hr); Stockholm (1 daily; 18hr).

By bus The bus station is at the top of Skolgatan, just across the road from the old city hall.

Destinations Luleå (1–2 daily; 5hr 10min); Gällivare (2–3 daily; 1hr 30min–1hr 50min); Jukkasjärvi (for the Icehotel; at least 2 daily; 30min–1hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist information Inside Folkets Hus, on the main square at Lars Janssonsgatan 17 (Mon–Fri 8.30am–5pm, Sat 8.30am–11.15am & noon–3pm; ☎0980 188 80, @kirunalapland.se).

Tours If you want to get out into the countryside but don't fancy doing it alone, contact Kiruna Guidetur (☎098 08 11 10, @kirunaguidetur.com), which arranges elk safaris, snowmobile excursions (including a trip from Kiruna to the Icehotel) and dogsled rides.

ACCOMMODATION

Camp Ripan Campingvägen 5 ☎098 063 000, @ripan.se/en. Family-oriented hotel with an on-site restaurant, spa and swimming pool. You can also camp here and – light pollution permitting – may be able to see the Northern Lights. Camping/tent 225kr, doubles 1115kr

Kiruna Vandrarhem Bergmästaregatan 7 ☎098 017 000, @kirunahostel.com. Sociable hostel a 5min walk from the bus station, with TV, sauna and kitchen facilities. Breakfast is available in the attached restaurant. Dorms 265kr, doubles 945kr

Yellow House Hantverkaregatan 25 ☎0980 137 50, @yellowhouse.nu. A cosy independent hostel that spreads across two yellow houses. It's a little dated but it's cosy and warm enough to be welcoming on a winter's day. Advance booking recommended in summer. Dorms 170kr, twins 440kr

EATING AND DRINKING

Bishops Arms Föreningsgatan 6. English-style pub selling burgers (169kr) and overpriced beer. Options are limited in Kiruna, and this place acts as one of the town's few social hubs. Sun & Mon 4–11pm, Tues–Thurs 4pm–midnight, Fri 4pm–1am, Sat noon–1am.

33 Landströms Kök & Bar Föreningsgatan 11. More expensive than the Bishops Arms pub, with most mains 200–270kr, but the menu includes specialties such as reindeer and Arctic char. Mon, Tues & Thurs 6–11pm, Wed 6pm–12.30am, Fri & Sat 6pm–1am.

Thai Kitchen Vänortsgatan 8. A friendly little Thai place near the tourist office, where you can enjoy a yellow curry with king prawns for 80kr. This food is perfect when you're frozen to the bone. Mon–Fri 11am–9pm, Sat noon–8pm.

ABISKO AND THE KUNGSLEDEN TRAIL

Sweden's premier trek, Kungsleden (the King's Trail) winds through 500km of wilderness from Abisko, 98km west of Kiruna, south to Hemavan. Mountain huts are spaced every 10–20km along the route to allow for a day's walk between them. The northern section of the trail between Abisko and Kebnekaise (86km) is the most popular and well worth tackling if you have around a week to spare.

Abisko, just an hour and twenty minutes by train from Kiruna on the Narvik line, is considered one of the world's best places for watching the Northern Lights. For more information on each section of the trail, visit stfturist.se.

ACCOMMODATION

Abisko Turiststation abisko.nu. This incredibly popular hostel/hotel is the starting point for the King's Trail (see above), and the slopes surrounding the outpost are popular with skiers and snowboarders alike. Dorms 425kr, doubles 1690kr

Introduction

All the stereotypes are true – cheese, chocolate, clocks, snowcapped mountains – but Switzerland also displays a winning blend of rural and urban, historic and modern. The major cities are cosmopolitan and vibrant, transport links are excellent, and the scenery takes your breath away. The country is diverse and multilingual, and almost all Swiss speak some English along with at least one of the country's four official languages.

In the French-speaking west, chic Geneva and sophisticated Lausanne, both on the shores of Lake Geneva, are at the heart of Suisse-Romande. Of the German-speaking cities, Zürich has diverse sightseeing and Switzerland's most LGBT-friendly scene, as well as easy access to the tiny principality of Liechtenstein. Basel and the capital, Bern, are quieter, each with an attractive historic core, while genteel Luzern has an appealing setting among lakes and mountains. The picturesque Bernese Oberland is the most visited Alpine area, although the loftiest Alps lie further south, where the Matterhorn towers above Zermatt. South of the Alps, Italian-speaking Ticino seems a world apart, particularly the palm-fringed lakeside towns of Lugano and Locarno.

CHRONOLOGY

800–58 BC A Celtic tribe, the Helvetians, inhabit what is now Switzerland.

58 BC Julius Caesar conquers the Helvetians.

1291 AD Three valleys unite against Habsburg rule, forming the basis of the Swiss Confederation.

1388 The Swiss Confederation defeats the Habsburgs.

1648 The Holy Roman Empire recognizes Swiss independence.

1719 Liechtenstein becomes an independent principality of the Holy Roman Empire.

1803 The Swiss start to produce chocolate.

1803–15 After a series of wars between France and other European powers, Napoleon is defeated and Switzerland's current borders are established.

1864 Red Cross founded in Geneva.

1880–81 Johanna Spyri writes Heidi.

1914 Switzerland remains neutral during World War I.

1920 The League of Nations headquarters are based in Geneva.

1921 Liechtenstein adopts Swiss currency.

1939–45 Swiss neutrality during World War II is tainted by the acceptance of Nazi plunder by Swiss banks.

1971 Swiss women are among the last in Europe to gain the vote.

1993 Liechtenstein elects Europe's youngest leader, Mario Frick, at the tender age of 28.

1998 Swiss banks agree to pay US$1.25 billion in compensation to Holocaust survivors and families.

2013 Swiss tennis number one, Roger Federer, is the most successful male player in the history of the game, having won seventeen Grand Slam titles.

2016 The new Gotthard Base Tunnel opens – the world's longest and deepest traffic tunnel and the first flat, low-level route through the Alps.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Switzerland's main airports are at Geneva (✈gva.ch), Zürich (✈zurich-airport.com) and Basel (✈euroairport.com), and to a lesser extent Bern (✈flughafenbern.ch). Travelling to Switzerland from the continent, it's most likely you'll arrive by train. Services run from Paris to Geneva, Lausanne, Basel, Bern and Zürich. Geneva is also reached by trains from Lyon, southern France and Barcelona. Travelling via Strasbourg, or southwestern Germany, you'll probably arrive at Basel. Zürich is the main hub for trains from Bavaria, Austria, Italy and Eastern Europe. The most scenic way to arrive is by ferry, crossing Lake Maggiore from Italy, Lake Geneva from France or Lake Constance from Germany.

GETTING AROUND

Public transport is comprehensive. Train travel is comfortable, hassle-free and scenic, with many mountain routes attractions in their own right. The national network, run by SBB-CFF-FFS, is seamlessly integrated with many routes, especially Alpine lines, operated by local companies. Buses take over where the rails run out – generally yellow postbuses, departing from train station forecourts. InterRail, Eurail and the Swiss Travel Pass (specified in the text as “IR”, “ER” and “SP” respectively) give free travel on SBB and most minor lines. Bargain Supersaver train tickets are available up to two weeks in advance at rail.ch. The Swiss Pass also gives a fifty percent discount on most lake ferries, mountain railways, cable cars and postbuses (although some Alpine routes require a supplement), as well as free entrance to 490 museums and exhibitions across the country. There are also regional passes such as the Tell Pass in central Switzerland (tell-pass.ch), the Berner Oberland Regional Pass (regionalpass-berneroberland.ch) or the Léman-Alpes Regional Pass (goldenpass.ch), giving some days of free travel and others at half-price. Most lake ferries run from April to October, and may duplicate routes covered more cheaply and quickly by rail.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation, although expensive, is invariably excellent. Tourist offices can often book rooms for free; some have boards detailing local hotels on the street or at railway stations, complete with courtesy phone. When you check in, ask for a guest card, giving free local transport and other discounts. Hostels (Jugendherberge; Auberge de Jeunesse; Albergo/Ostello per la Gioventù) offer great value for money (book ahead June–Sept). Part of the global HI hostels (hihostels.com) group, Swiss Youth Hostels (youthhostels.ch; designated SH in this guide) has 52 properties around the country, with double and family rooms as well as dorms, plus dedicated “wellness” hostels, while Swiss Hostels (swiss-hostels.com) has some lively, centrally located properties. Dorm beds typically cost around Fr.40, with reductions for members of the above groups. Campsites are clean and well equipped, charging Fr.6–13 per person plus Fr.7–13 per tent. Many require an international camping carnet. Camping outside official sites is illegal. Hotels are first-rate, but will stretch your budget; shared-bath doubles start around Fr.90 (average Fr.120), en suites around Fr.140.

FOOD AND DRINK

Eating out in Switzerland can punch a hole in your wallet. Burgers, pizza slices, kebabs and falafel are universal snack standbys, as are Bratwurst sausages. Dairy products find their way into most dishes: cheese fondue – a pot of wine-laced molten cheese into which you dip cubes of bread – is the national dish. Another speciality is raclette – piquant molten cheese scraped over potatoes and pickles. A Swiss-German staple is rösti, grated potatoes topped with cheese, chopped ham or a fried egg. Almost everywhere offers vegetarian alternatives. Cafés and restaurants usually serve meals at set times (noon–2pm & 6–10pm), with only snacks available in between. To get the best value, make lunch your main meal, and opt for the dish of the day (Tagesmenu, Tagestelle, plat/assiette du jour, piatto del giorno) – substantial nosh for around Fr.20 or less. The same meal in the evening, or choosing à la carte anytime, can cost double. Major department stores, and some Coop or Migros supermarkets, have excellent-value self-service restaurants: a small/large plate costs about Fr.9/15, with as much fresh salad or hot food as you can pile onto it. There are supermarkets in most large stations, which open late seven days a week. Cafés are open from breakfast till midnight or 1am and often sell alcohol; bars and pubs tend to open from late afternoon into the evening only. Beers are invariably excellent, at Fr.5–8 for a glass (e/Schtange, une pression, una birra). Even the simplest places have wine, most affordably as Offene Wein, vin ouvert, vino aperto – a handful of house reds and whites chalked up on a board (small glass Fr.5–7).

ADVENTURE SPORTS IN SWITZERLAND

With its mountains, glaciers, deep gorges and fast-flowing rivers, Switzerland is made for adventure sports. In winter it's home to some of the world's best ski and snowboard resorts, while in summer countless outfits offer activities such as kayaking (Fr.80/half-day), river-rafting (Fr.100/half-day), bungee-jumping (from Fr.130), zorbing (Fr.125), zip lining (Fr.40), hang-gliding (Fr.200), paragliding (Fr.170) and skydiving (Fr.410). You can book most of these activities in various locations across the country through Swiss Raft (© swissraft.ch).

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

It's not customary to tip; if you're impressed by the service, round up your bill to the nearest franc.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Spectacular scenery and an excellent transport infrastructure combine to make Switzerland one of Europe's top destinations for skiing, hiking and climbing. For skiers and snowboarders, the choice is overwhelming: Verbier is renowned for its challenging off-piste skiing, while scenic Zermatt is suitable for all abilities. The picturesque resorts of the Jungfrau region – Grindelwald, Mürren and Wengen – are better suited for intermediates. Lift passes cost Fr.60–75 a day, from Fr.330 for six days. Glaciers at Saas Fee and Zermatt enable summer skiing. The Swiss love hiking – with over 60,000km of marked trails, most boasting stunning Alpine vistas, it's easy to see why. The Jungfrau and Matterhorn regions are particularly popular. Hiking trails are clearly signed in yellow; red signs mark the nationwide cycling network. Bikes (and trailers, e-bikes etc) can be rented from main stations (from Fr.27 half-day, Fr.35 day), and in summer the largest cities have free bike schemes (such as Züri rollt and Genèveroule). Ask at tourist offices or consult ©myswitzerland.com for routes and tips.

COMMUNICATIONS

Main post offices open Monday to Friday 7.30am to 6pm, Saturday 8 to 11am. Most public phones take credit cards, some take Swiss Francs and euros. Phonecards (taxicards) are available from post offices and news kiosks and Swisscom shops. EU roaming regulations don't apply in Switzerland, so mobile phone costs are high – buying a prepaid Swisscom SIM card (from Swisscom shops, post offices and kiosks) is good value. Wi-fi (known as WLAN) is widespread, available free at most cafés, hotels and hostels.

EMERGENCIES

EU nationals with a valid European Health Insurance Card (EHIC) can claim state healthcare free or at reduced cost. Alternatively, pay hospital (Spital, hôpital, ospedale) bills up-front then claim the money back from your insurance provider. Every district has at least one 24-hour pharmacy (Apotheke, pharmacie, farmacia), the details of which are provided outside each local pharmacy.

INFORMATION

Tourist offices (Verkehrsverein or Tourismus; Office du Tourisme; Ente Turistico) distribute maps, accommodation and transport information, and are typically located near train stations. Staff usually speak English. Offices in smaller towns often close over lunch.

MONEY AND BANKS

Both Switzerland and Liechtenstein use the Swiss franc (CHF or Fr.), divided into 100 Rappen (Rp), centimes or centesimi (c). There are coins of 5c, 10c, 20c, 50c, Fr.1, Fr.2 and Fr.5, and notes of Fr.10, Fr.20, Fr.50, Fr.100, Fr.200 and Fr.1000. It's easiest to change money in train stations. Banks usually open Monday to Friday 8.30am to 4.30pm; some in cities and resorts also open Saturday 9am to 4pm. Post offices give a similar exchange

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Police 📞 117; Fire 📞 118; Ambulance 📞 144.

STUDENT AND YOUTH DISCOUNTS

With an ISIC card, you can take advantage of student discounts (up to fifty percent) at almost all museums and galleries. Although there is no student discount on cable-car tickets, in winter many resorts offer a youth discount on lift passes.

rate to banks, and ATMs are everywhere. Many shops and services, especially in tourist hubs, accept euros. At the time of writing, €1 was roughly equal to Fr.1.10, US$1 to Fr.0.97 and £1 to Fr.1.30.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shop hours are Monday to Friday 9am to 7pm, Saturday 8.30am to 4pm, sometimes with a lunch break and earlier closing in smaller towns. Many museums and attractions close on Monday. Almost everything is closed on public holidays: January 1, Good Friday and Easter Monday, Ascension Day, Whit Monday, December 25 and 26. In Switzerland, shops and banks close for all or part of the national holiday (Aug 1) and on a range of local holidays. Liechtenstein keeps May 1 as a public holiday, and August 15 as the national holiday.

Lake Geneva

French-speaking Switzerland, or Suisse Romande, occupies the western third of the country, comprising the shores of Lake Geneva (Lac Léman) and the hills and lakes to the north. Geneva, at the southwestern tip of Europe's largest Alpine lake, was once a haven for freethinkers from across Europe; now it's a city of diplomats and big business, but you'll see its more relaxed side by the lakeside on a warm day. Visible from the city is Mont Blanc, Western Europe's highest mountain (4807m). Halfway around the lake, Lausanne is a cultured, energetic town full of young people, with breathtaking views across the water to the French Alps. Further east is the stunning medieval Château de Chillon, which transfixed Byron and the Romantic poets. On a sunny day, the train ride around the northern shore is memorably scenic, though the excellent boat trip (ER & SP free, IR 50 percent; cgn.ch) brings home the full grandeur of the setting.

GENEVA

The struggle of GENEVA (Genève) for independence is inextricably linked with Puritanism. By 1602, when it won independence from Savoy, the city's religious zeal had painted it as the "Protestant Rome". Geneva joined the Swiss Confederation in 1815, with a reputation for being somewhat dull that it still struggles to shake off. Today, there is plenty for budget travellers, with its attractive lake, beautiful Old Town and many galleries.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Rive Gauche, on the south bank, is a grid of waterfront streets comprising the main shopping and business districts, with the Old Town, Switzerland's largest, above them. Further south is Carouge, characterized by picturesque Italianate architecture and artisans' shops. Behind the grand hotels lining the northern waterfront, Rive Droite, is the main station and the cosmopolitan (and in places sleazy) Les Pâquis district, full of cheap ethnic eateries. Further north are the dozens of international bodies headquartered in Geneva, including the UN.

Rive Gauche and the Old Town

The roaring 140m-high plume of Geneva's trademark Jet d'Eau erupts on the Rive Gauche, beyond the ornamental flowerbeds of the Jardin Anglais. South of Rive Gauche is the main thoroughfare of the Old Town, the steep, cobbled Grande Rue. Here, among jewellery shops and galleries, you'll find the seventeenth-century Hôtel de Ville and arcaded armoury. A block away, the predominantly Gothic Cathédrale St-Pierre (June–Sept Mon–Fri 9.30am–6.30pm, Sat 9.30am–5pm, Sun noon–6.30pm; Oct–May Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm, Sun noon–5.30pm) has an eighteenth-century Neoclassical facade, and is where Calvin preached from 1536–64 – climb the cathedral's 157 steps for sweeping city and lake views. Behind the cathedral, in the eighteenth-century Maison Mallet, the Musée Internationale de la Réforme (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; Fr.13; musee-reforme.ch) documents Geneva's contribution to the Reformation. Just beyond is the hub of the Old Town, Place du Bourg-de-Four, a picturesque split-level square ringed by cafés. Alleys wind down from here to a lovely terrace, the Promenade de la Treille, with the world's longest wooden bench (126m). Beneath this, in the university park, the Wall of the Reformation (1909–17) has statues of the leading reformist preachers.

The Musée d'Art et d'Histoire

Just east of the Old Town, the sizeable Musée d'Art et d'Histoire, Rue Charles-Galland 2 (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; permanent collection free, temporary exhibitions Fr.5; mah-geneve.ch), houses impressive collections of archeology, armour and weaponry, and fine arts.

Quartier des Bains

In a former industrial area west of the Old Town on Rue des Bains, the Quartier des Bains (www.quartierdesbains.ch) is home to nine galleries and five cultural institutions dedicated to contemporary art. The highlights of the district include MAMCO (Tues–Fri noon–6pm, Sat & Sun 11am–6pm; Fr.8, students Fr.6; free first Sun of month and first Wed from 6–9pm; mamco.ch), which hosts thought-provoking exhibitions by emerging international artists, and the Centre d'Art Contemporain de Genève (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; Fr.5; centre.ch), which has shown works by the likes of Olaf Breuning, Gilbert & George and KLAT in its time.

Palais des Nations, Musée International de la Croix-Rouge and the Jardin Botaniques

About 1km north of the station stands the imposing UN complex (tram #15 to Nations). One-hour tours of the Palais des Nations (April–Aug Mon–Sat 10.30am, noon, 2.30pm & 4pm; Sept–March Mon–Fri 10.30am, noon, 2.30pm & 4pm; Fr.12; passport required; unog.ch) start in the new wing (entry 14 Av de la Paix) and continue to the original Palais des Nations, built from 1929–38 to house the League of Nations. The highlight is the Council Chamber, with allegorical ceiling murals by José-Maria Sert. Just beyond the UN, the thought-provoking Musée International de la Croix-Rouge (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm, April–Oct until 6pm; Fr.15, students Fr.7; redcrossmuseum.ch; bus #8 to Appia) explains the Red Cross's work and its response to humanitarian crises. Between the lake and the UN, the Conservatoire et Jardin Botaniques (daily April to late Oct 8am–7pm; late Oct to March 9.30am–5pm; free; cjb-geneve.ch) boasts 70 acres of gardens and one of the world's largest collections of preserved plants.

Carouge

Ten minutes south of the centre by tram #12 or #15, Carouge was built by the king of Sardinia in the 1750s as a separate town for Catholics and Jews. Its low Italianate houses and leafy streets now house fashion designers and small galleries, and the area's reputation as an outpost of tolerance and hedonism lives on in its numerous cafés and music bars.

CERN

Twenty minutes northwest of Cornavin station (tram #13), CERN Globe of Science and Innovation (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; free; cern.ch/expoglobe) houses the Universe of Particles exhibition, a surprisingly fascinating exploration of particle physics. Reserve online in advance and bring ID.

Pharmacy Amavita, in the train station (Mon–Sat 7am–11pm, Sun 10am–11pm).

LAUSANNE

LAUSANNE is attractive and vibrant, set on a succession of south-facing terraces above Lake Geneva, with the Old Town at the top, the train station and commercial districts in the middle, and the former fishing village of Ouchy, now prime territory for waterfront café-lounging and strolling, at the bottom. Switzerland's biggest university makes this a lively, fun city. For chilled-out bars, head for the trendy Flon district.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

To reach the central Place St-François from the train station, walk up the steep rue du Petit-Chêne, or take the metro to Flon; from the metro platforms, lifts raise you to the level of the giant Grand Pont, between Place Bel-Air on the left and Place St-François on the right. From here, rue St-François drops down into a valley and up again to the cobbled Place de la Palud, an ancient, fountained square flanked by the Renaissance town hall.

The Cathedral and around

From Place de la Palud the medieval Escaliers du Marché lead up to the Cathedral (daily 9am–7pm, winter closes 5.30pm; ☎ Bessières), a fine Romanesque-Gothic jumble. Opposite is the MUDAC Musée de Design et d'Arts Appliqués Contemporains (July & Aug daily 11am–6pm; Sept–June Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; Fr.10, students Fr.5; ☎ mudac.ch), displaying contemporary glass and temporary exhibitions upstairs. Just across the road from the cathedral, with its main entrance on Place de la Riponne, the

Musée Cantonale des Beaux Arts, in a neo-Renaissance palace (Tues–Thurs 11am–6pm, Fri–Sun 11am–5pm; Fr.10, students Fr.5; mcb.ch), houses collections of fine arts from around the world, as well as smaller museums dedicated to history and zoology.

Lausanne suffered many medieval fires, and is the last city in Europe to keep alive the tradition of the nightwatch: every night, on the hour (10pm–2am), a sonorous-voiced civil servant calls from the cathedral tower “C’est le guet; il a sonné l’heure” (“This is the nightwatch; the hour has struck”).

Collection de l’Art Brut

Ten minutes’ walk west of Palud on Avenue Vinet (or bus #2, #3 or #21 to Beaulieu), the fascinating Collection de l’Art Brut, 11 av des Bergières (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; July & Aug also Mon; Fr.10, students Fr.5, free first Sat of month; artbrut.ch), is devoted to utterly absorbing “outsider art”.

Ouchy, The Olympic Museum and Musée de l’Elysée

Ouchy’s waterfront hosts regular free music events in summer, and people come down here for a spot of café sunbathing or rollerblading. In a fine lakefront park just to the east, The Olympic Museum (Tues–Sun: May to mid-Oct 9am–6pm; mid-Oct to April 10am–6pm; Fr.15, students Fr.10; olympic.org/museum) features high-tech displays on the history of the Games. Above it in the same park, the Musée de l’Elysée (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; Fr.8, students Fr.4, first Sat of month free entry and guided tours; elysee.ch) is an excellent photography museum.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

MONTREUX JAZZ FESTIVAL

The sleepy lakeside town of Montreux livens up during its star-studded Montreux Jazz Festival (📍montreuxjazz.com), held in the first half of July. Since 1966, it's attracted the likes of Miles Davis and Ray Charles, but "jazz" is now something of a misnomer; today's festival features big-name acts from most music genres. Check online for tickets (Fr.60–240 for specific shows, Fr.1,420 for a Festival Pass), or just join the street parties and free entertainment around the lake.

one of Europe's best-preserved medieval castles. Jutting into the lake and framed by craggy mountains, the whimsical castle was inspiration for Byron's poem The Prisoner of Chillon. To get here, take the hourly train to Veytaux-Chillon, the ferry (dating from 1904) from Lausanne or Montreux (4 daily; Fr.32, students Fr.10) or bus #1 east from Montreux station (every 10min).

Chillon is also home to Chaplin's World, Route de Fenil 2 (daily 10am–6pm; Fr.23, students Fr.21; 📍chaplinsworld.com; bus #212 from Vevey), set in a 10-acre lakeside park. The famous film star's former house, it's now a museum dedicated to Chaplin, exhibiting his personal belongings and his studio, where you can watch a documentary about silent film.

The Swiss heartland

The Mittelland – between Lake Geneva and Zürich, flanked by the Jura range to the north and the high Alps to the south – is a region of lakes, gentle hills and some higher peaks. There's a wealth of cultural and historical interest in the cities of Basel, Luzern and the federal capital, Bern. Wherever you are, the mountains are never more than a couple of hours away by train.

BASEL

Sitting astride the Rhine where Switzerland, France and Germany touch,

BASEL (Bâle in French) is neither as picturesque as Bern or Luzern, nor as vibrant as Zürich. Yet it's a wealthy city, with a charming Old Town, excellent museums and galleries and some striking contemporary architecture. It also hosts the three-day Fasnacht carnival in February or March (☎fasnacht.ch), beginning at 4am the Monday after Mardi Gras.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The River Rhine curves through the city, with most attractions found in affluent Grossbasel (Greater Basel) on the south bank, including the historic Old Town (some 1km north of the station), which is centred on Barfüsserplatz. Across the river on the north bank, Kleinbasel (Little Basel) is the city's historical working-class quarter. The rivalry between the two districts is displayed by a replica statue of the Lällekeenig (Tongue King) near Mittlere Brücke: the original was built in 1640 on the Grossbasel bank, sticking his tongue out at Kleinbasel.

Historisches Museum and the Münster

The city's pre-eminence in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries is demonstrated in the Barfüsserkirche, home since 1894 to the Historisches Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; Fr.15; free first Sun of month; ☎hmb.ch); don't miss the sumptuous medieval tapestries hidden behind protective blinds. On a terrace between the river and the Historisches Museum, the Münster (summer Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11.30am–5pm; winter Mon–Sat 11am–4pm, Sun 11.30am–4pm) contains the tomb of Renaissance humanist Erasmus.

Kunstmuseum and Museum für Gegenwartskunst

Just east of the Old Town at St Alban-Graben 16, Basel's Kunstmuseum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; Fr.15; free first Sun of month; ☎kunstmuseumbasel.ch) has a dazzling array of twentieth-century art, plus an outstanding medieval section, including the world's largest collection of paintings by Holbein. The riverside Museum für Gegenwartskunst, St Alban-Rheinweg 60 (Museum of Contemporary Art; Tues–Sun 11am–5pm; Fr.12), displays installations by Frank Stella and Joseph Beuys.

Museum Jean Tinguely

On the north bank of the Rhine at Paul Sacher-Anlage 2, the Museum Jean Tinguely (Tues–Sun 11am–6pm; Fr.18, students Fr.10; ☎tinguely.ch), designed by Ticino architect Mario Botta, is dedicated to one of Switzerland's best-loved artists. Tinguely used scrap metal, plastic and everyday junk to create vast, grotesque and comical Monty Pythonesque machines that judder into life with the touch of a button.

Fondation Beyeler

Northeast of the Rhine, at Baselstrasse 101, the Fondation Beyeler (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10am–6pm, Wed 10am–8pm; Fr.25; ☎fondationbeyeler.ch) displays impressive artworks by the likes of Rodin, Cézanne, Mark Rothko and Paul Klee. Belonging to former art dealers Ernst and Hildy Beyeler, the collection is housed in a striking Renzo Piano building.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train Basel has two train stations serving three countries. The main Basel SBB is in Switzerland, but has a notionally French section entitled Bâle SNCF at its west end which handles trains from Paris and Strasbourg. Trams #8 and #11 shuttle to Barfüsserplatz. Some trains from Germany terminate at the notionally German Badischer Bahnhof (Basel Bad. for short), on the north side of the river, from where tram #6 runs to Barfüsserplatz.

Destinations Frankfurt (10 daily; 2hr 50min); Geneva (3 hourly; 2hr 40min); Interlaken (2 hourly; 2hr); Lausanne (2 hourly; 2hr 15min); Lugano (2 hourly; 3hr 55min); Luzern (4 hourly; 1hr 30min); Paris (6 daily; 3hr); Strasbourg (hourly; 1hr 20min); Zürich (5 hourly; 1hr).

LUZERN (LUCERNE)

An hour south of Basel, beautiful LUZERN offers captivating mountain views, lake cruises and a picturesque medieval quarter.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

To the right of the train station, you're greeted by the striking KKL concert hall; busy Pilatusstrasse is to the left, where, 100m further along, you'll find the Sammlung Rosengart gallery (daily: April–Oct 10am–6pm; Nov–March 11am–5pm; Fr.18, students Fr.10), with its superb collection of twentieth-century art, notably by Picasso and Klee. The alleyways of the Old Town span both riverbanks, linked by two covered wooden bridges. The fourteenth-century Kapellbrücke was rebuilt after a fire in 1993; some of the seventeenth-century paintings fixed to its roof beams have been replaced by facsimiles. Northeast of the Old Town is Löwenplatz, dominated by the Bourbaki Panorama (daily: April–Oct 9am–6pm; Nov–March 10am–5pm; Fr.12; SP free), a 110m by 10m circular mural, depicting the flight of General Bourbaki's 87,000-strong army into Switzerland during the Franco-Prussian War. Just off the square is the Löwendenkmal, a dying lion hewn out of a cliff-face to commemorate seven hundred Swiss mercenaries killed by French revolutionaries in 1792.

Sonnenberg Bunker

Built beneath central Luzern during the Cold War, the seven-storey Sonneberg Bunker could accommodate 20,000 people, complete with a hospital, radio station and prison. Two-hour English-speaking tours of the bunker start from outside the Jesuitenkirche (Jesuit church), at Bahnhofstrasse 11a, at 11am on the last Sunday of the month (advance booking essential; Fr.30; ☎ 079 797 0917, unterirdisch-ueberleben.ch).

Lake Luzern

Switzerland's most beautiful and dramatic by far, Lake Luzern has thickly wooded

★ TREAT YOURSELF

Kraftt Rheingasse 12 ☎ 061 9130, krafttbasel.ch. Slick yet unpretentious design hotel on the banks of the Rhine with a great restaurant (look out for the good-value full board deals) and free use of folding bikes. Doubles Fr.150

Roadhouse Pilatusstr. 1. A lively pub, facing the west side of the station, that hosts jam sessions, live gigs and themed parties most weekends. Mon–Thurs 7am–5am, Fri 7am–5am, Sat 9am–close, Sun 9am–4am.

World Café In the KKL building, Europaplatz 1. This place has changing specials with a global twist from Fr.18, as well as real coffee and a wine bar. Daily 8.30am–9pm.

ENGELBERG

Under fifty minutes from Luzern by train is the picturesque Alpine resort of ENGELBERG, from where a revolving cable car (Fr.89 return; ER, IR & SP fifty percent reduction) serves the snowbound summit of Mount Titlis (3239m), the highest point in Central Switzerland (titlis.ch). Countless outlets here rent out skis, mountain bikes, scooters and DevilBikes.

BERN

Shoehorned onto a steep-sided peninsula in a crook of the River Aare, BERN is one of Switzerland's most captivating cities. Its quiet cobbled lanes, lined with arcaded sandstone buildings, have changed little in five hundred years. It's sometimes hard to remember that this petite town of just 140,000 people is the nation's capital.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The heart of Bern's compact old town is Spitalgasse. Heading east from the Bahnhofplatz, this becomes Marktgasse, Kramgasse and then Gerechtigkeitsgasse, before crossing the river to the Bärengraben (bear pits). The main museums are on Helvetiaplatz, on the south bank of the river, across the Kirchenfeldbrücke.

The Old Town and Münster

Marktgasse, lined with attractive seventeenth- and eighteenth-century buildings and arcaded boutiques, leads you past various landmarks, including the Zytglogge, a medieval city gate converted to a clock tower in the sixteenth century. To the left, on Kornhausplatz, the notorious Kindlifresserbrunnen fountain depicts an ogre devouring a baby. Münstergrasse, one block south, brings you to the fifteenth-century Gothic Münster (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11.30am–5pm), with a magnificently gilded high-relief Last Judgement above the main entrance. Climb its 444-stepped tower (closes 30min earlier; Fr.5), Switzerland's tallest, for terrific views. Nearby Münsterplattform hosts a craft market on the first Saturday of the month from March to November.

The Bärengaben

At the eastern end of the centre, the Nydeggbücke crosses the river to the Bärengaben, Bern's famed bear pits, which held generations of bears from the early sixteenth century to 2009. Sloping down to the river, the spacious new Bear Park (daily 9.30am–5pm; baerenpark-bern.ch) houses rather more content bears. Legend has it that the town's founder, Berchtold V of Zähringen, named Bern after killing one of the beasts during a hunt.

The Kunstmuseum

Bern's Kunstmuseum, near the station at Hodlerstrasse 8 (Tues 10am–9pm, Wed–Sun 10am–5pm; Fr.7; kunst-museumbern.ch), is one of the country's best art galleries, especially strong on twentieth-century art, notably Matisse, Kandinsky, Braque, Picasso and Hodler.

The Bernisches Historisches Museum

South of the river, the Bernisches Historisches Museum, on Helvetiaplatz (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; Fr.13, students Fr.8; bhm.ch), details the city's history. It's also home to the Einstein Museum (Fr.18 for both museums, students Fr.13), which documents the physicist's family life and chequered early career.

Zentrum Paul Klee

East of the centre at Ostring, the Zentrum Paul Klee (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; Fr.20; zpk.org; bus #12) houses the world's largest collection of works by the artist, who spent much of his life in Bern. The triple-arched building was designed by star Italian architect Renzo Piano.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is on Bahnhofplatz, to the west of the Old Town.

Destinations Basel (every 30min; 1hr); Geneva (every 30min; 2hr); Interlaken (every 30min; 1hr); Lausanne (3 hourly; 1hr 15min); Luzern (hourly; 1hr); Milan (4 daily; 3hr 30min); Paris (hourly; 4hr 30min); Zermatt (2 hourly, change at Visp; 2hr 15min); Zürich (every 30min; 1hr).

Tourist information In the train station (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm, Sun 10am–6pm; ☎ 031 328 1212, bern.com).

GETTING AROUND

Bern's Old Town is compact and can easily be covered on foot.

By bus Bus #12 runs from the train station through the Old Town to the Bärengaben and then to the Zentrum Paul Klee.

By bike Bike rental available all year at the Velostation in the train station (daily 8/10am–7pm; first 4hr free, Fr.1/hour thereafter; bernroll.ch); you need photo ID and Fr.20 deposit and must return bikes the same day. Also May–Oct at Hirschengraben and Zeughausgasse.

ACCOMMODATION

Landhaus (SH) Altenbergstr. 4 ☎ 031 331 4166, albertfrida.ch. Excellent hotel in an old house near the Bärengaben. Full of character, with wonky wooden stairs leading to a modern extension and lively downstairs bar (live jazz on Thurs). Dorms have neat 2-bed cubicles. Breakfast included with doubles only. Dorms Fr.38, doubles Fr.120

EATING AND DRINKING

For picnic supplies and takeaways, try the supermarket at the train station, or visit the produce market on Bärenplatz.

Altes Tramdepot Grosse Muristalden 6. Microbrewery with views across the river to the Old Town, serving Swiss dishes such as rösti (Fr.19.50) and Flammkuchen (Fr.18.50). Summer Mon–Fri 11am–12.30am, Sat & Sun 10am–12.30am; winter daily 10am–12.30am.

Anker Kornhausplatz 16. Cheery place for local beer and a selection of twenty different rösti dishes (Fr.19.50). Also serves fondue (Fr.26.50) and Schnitzel (Fr.24.50). Mon–Fri 8am–midnight, Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 9.30am–6pm.

★ Le Lötschberg Zeughausgasse 16. Relaxed, trendy wine bar and deli serving a range of cheese platters, veggie dishes (Fr.17–35) and salads (Fr.11–18). Mon–Thurs 10am–midnight, Fri & Sat 9am–midnight, Sun 11am–11pm.

Tibits Bahnhofplatz & Gurtengasse 3. Excellent vegetarian self-service restaurants, dishing up a great selection of salads and hot dishes. Pay by weight. Mon–Wed 6.30am–11.30pm, Thurs–Sat 6.30am–midnight, Sun 8am–11pm.

NIGHTLIFE

Bern hosts the huge open-air rock concert, Gurtenfestival (gurtenfestival.ch), each July.

Dampfzentrale Marzistr. 47 ☎ dampfzentrale.ch. Lively arts centre offering live music, dance and clubs (Sat), plus food and drink. Mon–Fri 11am–11.30pm, Sat 2pm–12.30am, Sun 10am–11pm; Oct–March closed Sun & Mon.

Reitschule Neubrückstr. 8 ☎ reitschule.ch. This cultural and political arts squat is at the heart of Bern's alternative clubbing scene: it also hosts theatre, films and flea markets. See website for events and times.

DIRECTORY

Post office Post Parc, behind the station; also at Kramgasse 1.

ZÜRICH

Astride a river and turned towards a crystal-clear lake and distant snowy peaks, beautiful ZÜRICH is Switzerland's most vibrant and engaging city. Two of the city's twelve districts demand the most attention: the old town of Niederdorf, complete with cobbled alleyways and medieval buildings clustered on the eastern shores of the River Limmat; and the post-industrial district of Züri-West, a gritty, arty area, packed with quirky shops, restaurants and bars.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Zürich's west bank is the main commercial district, with the prestigious shopping street Bahnhofstrasse running south from the station to the lake. This is where Zürchers stroll and shop in department stores and boutiques, which become increasingly expensive towards the lake.

Across the River Limmat from the station, the narrow lanes of medieval Niederdorf stretch south. Its waterfront is lined with fine Baroque Zunft Häuser (guildhalls), whose arcaded lower storeys, fronting the quayside, now house chic restaurants. One block in is Niederdorfstrasse, whose touristy shops can be avoided by browsing around its cobbled side alleys and courtyards.

Cabaret Voltaire

The birthplace of the Dada art movement, Cabaret Voltaire at Spiegelgasse 1, just south of Hirschenplatz (Tues–Sun 12.30–6.30pm; Fr.5; ☎ cabaretvoltaire.ch), hosts controversial art exhibitions and cabaret performances: it also has a café and bar.

The Grossmünster

Just south of Niederdorfstrasse is Zürich's Grossmünster (Great Minster; daily: March to Oct 10am–6pm; Nov–Feb 10am–5pm), where Huldrych Zwingli, father of Swiss Protestantism, started preaching the Reformation in 1519. Look out for the vivid choir windows (1933) by Augusto Giacometti.

The Kunsthaus

Switzerland's best gallery, the Kunsthaus, Heimplatz 1 (Tues, Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Wed & Thurs 10am–8pm; Fr.15, students Fr.10; ☎ kunsthaus.ch), is uphill from the Grossmünster. It's wide-ranging collection includes Gothic paintings, Venetian and Flemish masters, some stunning international twentieth-century art, plus works by some of Switzerland's greatest Swiss artists such as Fuseli and Klee.

Schweizerisches Landesmuseum

Immediately north of the main train station at Museumstr. 2, the eclectic Schweizerisches Landesmuseum (Federal History Museum; Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–5pm, Thurs 10am–7pm; Fr.10; ☎ nationalmuseum.ch) gives a definitive account of Switzerland's historical and cultural development.

Lindenhof and St Peterskirche

The area between Bahnhofstrasse and the river is Lindenhof, site of a Roman fort that gives fine views over the river. Nearby, at Augustinergasse 9, is the James Joyce Foundation (Mon–Fri 10am–5pm; free) – Joyce wrote Ulysses in Zürich (1915–19), and the foundation can direct you to his various hangouts and grave. Steps away is St Peterskirche (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 11am–5pm), with its vast sixteenth-century clock faces – Europe’s largest. Immediately south rises the slender-spired Gothic Fraumünster, Münsterhof 2 (Mon–Sat 10am–4/6pm, Sun 11.30am–6pm), with its spectacular stained glass by Marc Chagall.

Züri-West

Dominated by the 126m-high Prime Tower, the alternative district of Züri-West (eight minutes by train from the Hauptbahnhof to Zürich Hardbrücke) is home to Frau Gerold’s Garten, Geroldstrasse 23 (shops Mon–Fri 11am–7pm, Sat 11am–6pm; restaurants Mon–Sat 11am–midnight, Sun noon–10pm; www.fraugerold.ch), a community-run food market, beer garden and collection of hip bars and shops amid shipping containers and flowerbeds made from reclaimed railway sleepers. From here, follow Viaduktstrasse west for the hip food and shopping complex Im Viadukt (see p.1132), or head north for Schiffbau (www.schauspielhaus.ch), a former ship-building factory that now houses three theatre stages, a jazz club, swanky restaurant and bar.

Centre Le Corbusier

On the eastern shores of Lake Zürich, the Centre Le Corbusier, Höschgasse 8 (July–Sept Wed–Sun noon–6pm; Fr.12; www.centrecorbusier.ch); tram #2 & #4 from the Hauptbahnhof), is the Swiss architect’s last building, commissioned in 1960 by Heidi Weber. The colourful pavilion contains a collection of Corbusier’s drawings, paintings and books.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Zürich’s airport (Flughafen), 11km northeast of the city centre, is served by frequent trains.

By train Zürich’s giant Hauptbahnhof (HB) is served by trains from all over Europe. Extending three storeys below ground, it includes a shopping mall, supermarket, some decent places to eat and a Wednesday food market.

Destinations Basel (5 hourly; 1hr); Bern (4 hourly; 1hr); Geneva (every 30min; 2hr 45min); Innsbruck (every 2hr; 3hr 30min); Interlaken (every 30min; 1hr 55min); Lausanne (4 hourly; 2hr 10min); Lugano (2 hourly; 2hr 40min); Luzern (3 hourly; 50min); Milan (hourly; 4hr); Munich (6 daily; 4hr 15min); Paris (6 daily; 4hr); Sargans (2 hourly; 1hr); Schaffhausen (2 hourly; 40min); St Moritz (change at Chur; hourly; 3hr 20min); Stuttgart (every 2hr; 3hr); Vienna (4 daily; 7hr 30min).

By bus The bus station is located 50m north of the train station, on Sihlquai, with departures to and from the Balkans/Central Europe.

INFORMATION

Tourist information Tourist office on the train station concourse (May–Oct Mon–Sat 8am–8.30pm, Sun 8.30am–6.30pm; Nov–April Mon–Sat 8.30am–7pm, Sun 9am–6pm; ☎044 215 4000, www.zuerich.com) can book rooms for free, and sells the 24/48-hour ZürichCARD (Fr.24/48), allowing free public transport and free or discounted entry to museums and attractions.

GETTING AROUND

By tram and bus Although most sites can be covered on foot, the tram and bus system (www.zvv.ch) is easy to use, with all tickets valid on trams, buses, “S-Bahn” city trains and some boats. Tickets are available from machines at any stop: either the green button (24hr; Fr.8.60); blue button (1hr; Fr.4.30); or yellow button (short one-way hop; Fr.2.80). You’ll need a multi-zone ticket to get to or from the airport.

By bike Free bikes (Fr.20 deposit and ID required) are available year-round at the Velostation Nord and Sud, on either side of the Hauptbahnhof (daily 8am–9.30pm), and elsewhere in the city (May–Oct Mon–Fri 9am–9.30pm, Sat & Sun 9am–9.30pm).

By boat Zürichsee and Limmat River ferries leave from Bürkliplatz (www.zsg.ch); the shortest trips (up to 90min) are covered by public transport tickets.

ACCOMMODATION

City Backpacker (SH) Niederdorfstr. 5 (Rosenhof) ☎044 251 9015, www.city-backpacker.ch. Good atmosphere and central location as well as a kitchen, laundry and free wi-fi,

WILD SWIMMING

Lake and river swimming is a Zürich obsession. Favourite bathing spots include Seebad Enge for lake swimming with mountain views; the 250m-long beach at Strandbad Mythenquai; and the women-only Frauenbad am Stadthausquai. These beaches all have a summer Bädi-Bar, with food and live music. Unterer Letten combines river swimming, beach volleyball, a lively bar & restaurant and Filmfluss open-air cinema (July).

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Zürich boasts lively music venues and clubs plus a thriving LGBT scene. The hip quarter around Langstrasse, west of the centre, is full of DJ bars, while the best clubs hide in the former industrial quarter of Züri-West. The annual Pride parade (☉ zurichpridefestival.ch) takes place in June, with the techno street dancing Saturday Street Parade (☉ street-parade.com) in mid-Aug. The Züritipp (☉ zueritipp.ch) listings magazine is available at the tourist office.

BARS

Babalu Schmidgasse 6 ☉ babalubar.ch. Trendy little DJ-bar in the Old Town with Brazilian cocktails and house music. Mon–Tues 5pm–midnight, Wed & Thurs 5pm–1am, Fri & Sat 5pm–2am.

Barfussbar Stadthausquai ☉ 12 barfussbar.ch. Set in an original Art Nouveau swimming baths, this venue takes its name (barefoot bar) literally – visitors leave their shoes at the door for barefoot chilling and dancing. Wed, Thurs & Sun 8pm–midnight.

Frau Gerold's Container Bar Geroldstr. 23 ☉ frauergold.ch. Set in a quirky beer garden in Züri-West (see opposite), this lively bar has been constructed from shipping containers. Mon–Sat 11am–midnight, Sun noon–8pm.

Rheinfelder Bierhalle Niederdorfstr. 76. Founded in 1870 and still the best of the beerhalls, filled with locals and serving cheap, filling daily specials, such as the aptly named Jumbo Jumbo Cordon Blue (Fr.28). Daily 9am–midnight.

Wüste In Hotel Otter, Oberdorfstr. 7. Mellow, relaxed cellar bar located near the Grossmünster and attracting a young bohemian crowd. Live music on Thurs–Sat nights. Mon–Thurs 4pm–midnight, Fri & Sat 4pm–2am.

X-tra Limmatstr. 118 ☉ x-tra.ch. Stylish bar-restaurant, with popular upstairs lounges and club hosting DJs and a range of gigs, from folk to electro. Wed 10pm–2.30am, Thurs 9pm–2.30am, Fri & Sat 10pm–4am.

CLUBS

Dynamo Wasserwerkstr. 21 ☉ dynamo.ch. City-run youth centre that hosts music courses, theatre groups and alternative, punkish bands. There's also a restaurant. Gig nights start around 7 or 8pm, though the club doesn't fill up till later.

THE RHINE FALLS

It's a great half-day trip from Zürich north to Europe's largest waterfalls, the Rhine Falls (⑤ rhinefalls.com), 3km west of SCHAFFHAUSEN. They are magnificent, not so much for their height (just 23m) as for their impressive breadth (150m) and sheer drama, with spray rising in a cloud of rainbows above the forested banks and the turreted castle, Schloss Laufen (now an HI hostel), on the south bank. In summer, the best views are from the daredevil boats, which leave from Schloss Laufen (Fr.6–19; ⑤ maendli.ch) and scurry about in the spray.

Take a train to Schaffhausen then bus #1 to Neuhausen Zentrum, or a local train to either Laufen am Rheinfall (below the castle; April–Oct) or Neuhausen; you can also walk (30min) from Schaffhausen to the bridge above the falls.

The Swiss Alps

South of Bern and Luzern, and east of Lake Geneva, lies the grand Alpine heart of Switzerland, a massively impressive region of classic Swiss scenery – high peaks, sheer valleys and turquoise lakes – that makes for great summer hiking and world-class winter sports. The Bernese Oberland, centred on the Jungfrau Region, is the most accessible and tourist area, but beyond this first great wall of peaks is another even more daunting range on the Italian border in which the Matterhorn is the star attraction.

THE JUNGFRAU REGION

The spectacular Jungfrau Region is named after a grand triple-peaked ridge – the Eiger, Mönch and Jungfrau – which crests 4000m. Switzerland's most popular mountain railway, the Jungfrau Railway, dating from 1912, trundles south from Interlaken before coiling up across mountain pastures, and tunnelling through the Eiger to emerge at the Jungfraujoch (3454m), a dramatic col beneath the Jungfrau summit and Europe's highest railway station. It's a scenic journey, but pricey and very slow, journey (2hr 20min from Interlaken, with two changes to progressively smaller trains) – try to pick a clear day, for the spectacular panoramic views from the Sphinx Terrace (3571m) to Germany's Black Forest in one direction, and across gleaming mountains to the Italian Alps in the other. If you can, splash out Fr.14.40 extra to upgrade to First Class, for plush cabins with glass ceilings.

The cable-car ride up the Schilthorn (2970m) offers an equally scenic ride with impressive views, and it's quicker and cheaper. A return trip from Interlaken takes six hours to the Jungfrauoch, or four hours to the Schilthorn (both allowing an hour at the summit).

The most beautiful countryside is the Lauterbrunnen valley, overlooked by the village of Mürren, an excellent base for winter skiing and summer hiking, as is Grindelwald, in the next valley east. The region's transport hub is bustling Interlaken, a handy, if less tranquil, base.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train There are two routes up the Jungfrau from Interlaken, changing trains at either Lauterbrunnen or Grindelwald (most people go up one way and down the other). The routes meet at the spectacularly sited station of Kleine Scheidegg, where you change for the final pull to the Jungfrauoch. The adult return-trip fare from Interlaken to the Jungfrauoch is a budget-crunching Fr.204.40 (IR no discount; ER 25 percent discount; SP free to Grindelwald and Lauterbrunnen, then half-price to Kleine Scheidegg and 25 percent off to the top). Discounted "Good Morning" tickets, valid May–October for travel on the first or second trains of the day (at 6.35am & 7.05am from Interlaken Ost) cost Fr.145 from Interlaken, and Fr.135 from Lauterbrunnen or Grindelwald.

By cable car The Schilthorn cable car, compared to the Jungfrauoch ride, is a bargain. From Stechelberg to the top is Fr.102 return, from Mürren Fr.80 (IR no discount; ER 25 percent discount; SP free to Mürren, then 50 percent). Going up between 7.40am and 9.10am or after 3.40pm knocks the fare down to Fr.82 (Fr.64 from Mürren).

INTERLAKEN

INTERLAKEN is centred on its long main street, Höhweg, which is lined with cafés and hotels, and has a train station at each end, although the best way to arrive is by boat. The town lies on a neck of land between two of Switzerland's loveliest lakes, and it exists primarily to amuse trippers on their way to the mountains. Coming from Luzern, you could get out at Brienz and do the last stretch to Interlaken Ost by boat (ER & SP free, IR 50 percent). Likewise, from the Bern/Zürich direction, you could take a boat from Thun to Interlaken West.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Interlaken West station serves the town centre; from here Bahnhofstr. leads east, becoming the main street, Höhweg, with Interlaken Ost station, the main interchange, at its far end.

Destinations Bern (every 30min; 55min); Grindelwald (every 30min; 45min); Jungfrauoch (change at Grindelwald or Lauterbrunnen, then Kleine Scheidegg;

EXTREME INTERLAKEN

Interlaken is a hub for extreme sports, with paragliders spiralling above and landing right in the town centre: Skywings (☎033 266 8228, ☞skywings.ch) will take you paragliding for Fr.170. Agencies such as Alpin Raft, Hauptstr. 7, Matten (☎033 823 4100, ☞alpinraft.com), can arrange everything from rafting or canyoning (both Fr.119) to ice climbing (Fr.180), and can be booked direct or through hostels.

every 30min; 2hr 30min); Lauterbrunnen (every 30min; 25min); Luzern (hourly; 2hr); Zürich (change at Bern; every 30min; 2hr).

Tourist information Tourist office beneath the town's tallest building at Höhweg 37 (May–Sept Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat 8am–4pm; July & Aug Mon–Fri 8am–7pm, Sat 8am–5pm, Sun 10am–7pm; Oct–April Mon–Fri 8am–noon & 1.30–6pm, Sat 9am–2pm; ☎033 826 5300, ☞interlaken.ch).

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation fills up quickly in the high seasons, so advance booking is advised. Interlaken Adventure (☞interlaken-adventure.com) can book accommodation and excursions.

Backpackers Villa Sonnenhof (SH) Alpenstr. 16 ☎033 822 1643, ☞villa.ch. Excellent hostel with rooms sleeping two to seven, some with south-facing balconies; free swimming pool access included plus discounts at local restaurants. Dorms Fr.47, doubles Fr.74

EATING, DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

In the evenings most backpackers congregate at one of the busier hostel bars: Balmer's Herberge (see above) is the most popular and has cheap beer.

Club Caverne Hauptstr. 36, Matten ☞caverne.ch. Located in the Funny Farm hostel, this place attracts party-goers till the small hours with its pumping house music and maverick staff. Daily 10.30pm–2am.

Migros Rugenparkstrasse 1. Opposite Interlaken West station, a reliable supermarket for cheap, self-service staples. There's also an inexpensive, yet consistently good, restaurant serving excellent rotisserie chicken (Fr12.50). Mon–Thurs 8am–7pm, Fri 8am–9pm, Sat 8am–5pm.

My Little Thai Hauptstrasse 19 ☞mylittletai.ch. Small, authentically Thai restaurant, adorned with photos of the Thai royal family. Owner Eddie makes juicy spring rolls, excellent Pad Thai and rich curries. Takeaway available. Wed–Sun 11am–2pm & 5–10pm.

PizPaz Centralstr. Located just off Bahnhofstrasse, this large and lively place dishes up big portions of affordable Italian favourites: pizza and pasta cost from Fr.15 (20 percent discount for takeaway). Daily 10am–11pm.

LAUTERBRUNNEN

It's hard to overstate the impact of the Lauterbrunnen valley. An immense U-shaped cleft with bluffs on either side rising 1000m sheer, doused by some 72 waterfalls, it is utterly spectacular. The Staubbach falls – Switzerland's highest at nearly 300m – tumble just beyond the village of LAUTERBRUNNEN at the valley entrance.

From Lauterbrunnen, it's a scenic half-hour walk, or an hourly postbus, 3km up the valley to the spectacular Trümmelbach falls (April–June & Sept–Nov 9am–5pm; July & Aug 8.30am–6pm; Fr.11), a series of thunderous waterfalls – fed by the glaciers above – which have carved corkscrew channels inside the valley walls. The bus continues 1.5km to the end of the road at STECHELBERG; the cable-car station for Gimmelwald, Mürren and the Schilthorn is 1km before the hamlet.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Lauterbrunnen station (served by trains from Interlaken Ost) is opposite the cable-car station for Mürren.

Tourist information The tourist office is just south of the station (June–Sept daily 8.30am–noon & 2–6.30pm; Oct–May Tues–Sat 9am–noon & 1.30–5pm; ☎033 856 8568, ☞lauterbrunnen.ch).

ACCOMMODATION

Camping Jungfrau ☎ 033 856 2010, 🏕 camping-jungfrau.ch. Great views and facilities, including a decent restaurant serving Swiss dishes, pizza and pasta, plus a minimarket. Also has family chalets (minimum week-long rental). Camping/person Fr.13, plus per tent Fr.13, chalets Fr.1140

SH Valley Hostel ☎ 033 855 2008, 🏠 valleyhostel.ch. A cosy place with 7 dorms (4–8 bunk beds in each), most with balcony, and just one double, plus kitchen, laundry and drying facilities. Dorms Fr.30, double Fr.43

MÜRREN AND UP TO THE SCHILTHORN

The cable car sets out north of Stechelberg, passing through the hamlet of GIMMELWALD before continuing to the car-free village of MÜRREN. It's worth the journey for the views alone: the valley floor is 800m down, and a panorama of snowy peaks fills the sky. Mürren is also accessible from Lauterbrunnen, by taking a cable car to Grütschalp then a spectacular little cliff-edge train from there (one-way Fr.11/return Fr.22; IR no discount; ER 25 percent discount; SP free). It's easy to do a loop by cable car and train. A cable car continues from Mürren on a scenic (20min) ride to the 2970m peak of the Schilthorn (🏠 schilthorn.ch), where you can admire jaw-dropping panoramas while sipping cocktails in the revolving Piz Gloria restaurant, famed as Blofeld's hideout in the Bond film On Her Majesty's Secret Service. Next to the restaurant, you can venture onto the Skyline Walk, a reinforced glass platform suspended some 3000m above the ground.

HIKING IN THE JUNGFRAU REGION

Hiking some sections of the Jungfrau Region is perfectly feasible in summer, and can save a great deal on train tickets. Excellent transport networks and vista-rich footpaths linking all stations mean that with a hiking map – such as the Wanderkarte Wengen-Mürren-Lauterbrunnental (1:40,000) – you can see and do a great deal in a day.

ACCOMMODATION

Mountain Hostel ☎ 033 855 1704, 🏠 mountainhostel.com. A chalet hostel in Gimmelwald with a scenic terrace where you can enjoy beer, pizza and great views. Closed early April & Nov. Breakfast included. Dorms Fr.45

GRINDELWALD

Valley-floor trains from Interlaken Ost run to the popular resort of GRINDELWALD, nestling under the craggy trio of the Wetterhorn, Mettenberg and Eiger. Numerous trails around Pfinstegg and especially First – both reached by gondolas from Grindelwald – offer excellent hiking.

INFORMATION

Tourist information 200m east of the station (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm, Sat & Sun 9am–6pm; April, May, Oct & Nov closed Sat & Sun; ☎ 033 854 1212, 🌐 grindelwald.ch).

ACCOMMODATION

Dorms Fr.35.70, doubles Fr.124.40

Mountain Hostel (SH) ☎ 033 854 3838, 🏠 mountainhostel.ch. A lively, well-run hostel on the valley floor by Grindelwald-Grund station (served by trains from Grindelwald to Kleine Scheidegg). Some of the contemporary 2-, 4- and 6-bedded rooms have views of the Eiger. Dorms Fr.35, doubles Fr.98

ZERMATT AND THE MATTERHORN

One of Europe's highest peaks, the iconic, shark's-tooth Matterhorn (4478m) is Switzerland's best-known mountain, and one of the last to be climbed – it was finally conquered by Edward Whymper in 1865. Over 500 alpinists are estimated to have died on the Matterhorn since then, including Whymper on his descent, making it one of the world's most notorious mountains. Sticking up from an otherwise uncrowded horizon above ZERMATT, it stands alone, its pointy shape so distinctive that the Swiss chocolate Toblerone was modelled on it.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Zermatt's main street buzzes year-round with climbers, skiers, tour groups, backpackers and fur-clad socialites, while its Old Town boasts ancient timber chalets. It's car-free, with electric buses and taxis ferrying people between the train station at the town's northern end and the cable-car terminus 1km south. You can find out about Zermatt's rich history at the Zermattantlantis Matterhorn Museum on Kirchplatz (daily: July–Sept 11am–6pm; Oct–June 3–6pm; Fr.10; SP free).

Zermatt's many cable cars and trains bring you to trailheads and spectacular views: opposite the station, Gornergrat-Bahn trains (ER 25 percent discount, SP 50 percent; cheaper after 1.40pm) afford spectacular Matterhorn views (sit on the right) as they climb to the Gornergrat, where there's a panorama of 29 peaks over 4000m high, including Switzerland's highest, the Dufourspitze (4634m).

The Furi-Schwarzsee gondola climbs from the southern end of Zermatt to Schwarzsee (2583m), the start of a two-hour zigzag hike to the Hörnli Hut (3260m) on the flank of the Matterhorn. Lifts continue up to the Matterhorn Glacier, where 21km of ski runs and a half-pipe are open all summer (day pass Fr.84; SP 50 percent).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The only access to Zermatt is on the spectacular narrow-gauge MGB train line (ER no discount, IR 50 percent, SP free; mgbahn.ch); change at Visp from main-line trains. The most celebrated way to arrive is on the Glacier Express, a day-long journey from St Moritz by panoramic train (reserve at any train station; ER 25 percent discount, IR Youth Pass 50 percent, SP free; glacierexpress.ch).

Destinations Brig (2 hourly; 1hr 20min); St Moritz (1–4 daily; 6hr 30min–7hr 30min); Visp (2 hourly; 1hr 10min).

Tourist information Tourist office outside the station (mid-June to Sept daily 8.30am–6pm; Oct to mid-June Mon–Sat 8.30am–noon & 1.30–6pm, Sun 9.30am–noon & 4–6pm; zermatt.ch).

Snow and Alpine Centre Bahnhofstr. 58 (☎027 966 2460, alpincenter-zermatt.ch), includes the mountaineering centre (mid-June to Sept daily 9am–noon & 3–7pm), for booking climbing guides, fixed-rope courses and ice-climbing, and the Ski & Snowboard School (Nov–May daily 8am–noon & 3–7pm).

ACCOMMODATION

Hotel Tannenhof Englischer Viertel 3 (☎027 967 3188, rhone-web.ch/tannenhof). A good-value hotel that is particularly popular with climbers. It has cosy doubles, with or without private bathroom, and a generous buffet breakfast included. Doubles Fr.90

Matterhorn Campsite Bahnhofstr. (☎027 967 3921, campingzermatt.ipeak.ch). Not accessible to cars, this basic tents-only grassy campsite is a 2min walk from the station and has a bus stop for access to the cable cars. Open June–Sept. Per person Fr.11

Zermatt Youth Hostel Staldenweg. 5, Winkelmatten (HI) (☎027 967 2320, youthhostel.ch/zermatt). Excellent hostel above town in a sustainably constructed building. Good 3-course dinners (Fr.17.50) are served up and breakfast is included. Dorms Fr.36, doubles Fr.131

EATING AND DRINKING

Brown Cow Bahnhofstr. 41. A popular pub, serving soups, hot dogs and burgers (Fr.10–14.50). It's also home to the Broken Bar disco. Bar daily 9am–2am; food till 11pm, disco daily 11pm–3.30am.

Gee's Bar & Brasserie Bahnhofstr. 70 (☎zermattgees.com). One of Zermatt's most popular venues where you can eat tacos (Fr.9), salads (Fr.19.50) and soups (Fr.11.50), washed down by cocktails: there's also live music most nights. Daily 11am–2am.

The Bubble Kirchstrasse 38 (☎zermattbubble.com). Run by a young local team, Bubble serves excellent burgers (Fr.24) and ribs (Fr.36). Its sister restaurant, North Wall, Steinmattstrasse 71, is good for pizzas (Fr.22) and nachos (Fr.18). Both daily 6–10pm.

Ticino

Italian-speaking Ticino (Tessin in German and French) occupies the balmy, lake-laced southern foothills of the Alps. A little pocket of Italy in Switzerland, its culture, food, architecture and attitude owe more to Milan than Zürich, although Switzerland has controlled the area for more than 500 years. The region's main attractions are the lakeside resorts of Locarno and Lugano, where mountain scenery meets subtropical flora. The best way to enjoy these chic towns is to join the locals promenading with ice creams.

In 2016, the world's deepest and longest train tunnel, the Gotthard Base Tunnel (57km long), opened, enabling train passengers to hurtle through the Gotthard massif at 250km per hour.

LOCARNO

A branch line heads west from Bellinzona (whose three superb castles are on UNESCO's World Heritage list) to LOCARNO, a charming town on Lake Maggiore with piazzas overhung by subtropical shrubbery. Overrun with glamorous visitors from Milan and Zürich on summer weekends and during the Locarno Film Festival (early August; Ⓜ pardolive.ch), the town exudes well-heeled, sun-drenched cool.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The Piazza Grande, where well-groomed locals parade on summer nights, is near the lake, with the Renaissance Old Town rising gently behind. The fifteenth-century church of Madonna del Sasso (daily 7am–6.30pm) is an impressive ochre vision high on a crag. It's a glorious walk up, or take the funicular (Fr.7.20 return) from just west of the station to Orselina, Ticino's greatest photo-op, looking down on the church and lake.

From here a cable car climbs steeply to Cardada amid fragrant pine woods with walking routes; a spectacular chairlift whisks you further up to Cimetta, where the restaurant terrace offers memorable views.

A short bus ride east of Locarno in Valle Verzasca, you can re-enact the opening of the James Bond film Goldeneye by bungee-jumping 220m off the Verzasca Dam (April–Oct daily; Fr.255, students Fr.195; Ⓜ 091 780 7800, Ⓜ trekking.ch).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train Station 150m northeast of Piazza Grande.

Destinations Basel (hourly; 4hr); Bellinzona/Giubiasco (for Lugano; 3 hourly; 20min); Domodossola (for Brig and southwestern Switzerland; 7–11 daily; 1hr 58min); Luzern (hourly; 3hr); Zürich (hourly; 3hr). Journey times may reduce once trains run regularly via the Gotthard Base Tunnel.

By boat The landing stage is between the train station and Piazza Grande; boats (late March to mid-Sept; Ⓜ navigazione.laghi.it) sail to nearby Swiss and Italian resorts.

Destinations Ascona (hourly; 20–30min); Stresa (for Milan; 2 daily; 2hr 20min–3hr 30min).

Tourist information In the Casino opposite the landing stage (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm; March–Oct also Sat 10am–6pm, Sun 10am–1.30pm & 2.30–5pm; Ⓜ 0848 091 091, Ⓜ ascona-locarno.com).

EATING AND DRINKING

Appunto Piazza Grande 2. Great snack bar on Piazza Grande serving sandwiches, pizza slices and salads (Fr.6–9). Service can be slow, which gives more time for people-watching. Mon–Sat 8am–6.30pm.

Bar Lungolago Via Bramantino 1. Lively bar and restaurant on the promenade that is ideal for leisurely lunches and evening drinks. It serves up pizzas (Fr.14.30), pasta (Fr.15) and ice cream. Thurs–Tues 7am–1am.

LUGANO

With its lush promenades and piazzas, chic LUGANO is Ticino's most alluring city. The tree-lined lakefront promenade Lungolago wraps around Lake Lugano, while Piazza della Riforma, packed with cafés, marks the heart of the city. Through the maze of steep lanes northwest of Riforma, Via Cattedrale dog-legs up to the Cattedrale San Lorenzo, with its fine Renaissance facade, interior frescoes and spectacular views. Also from Riforma, the narrow, boutique-lined Via Nassa heads southwest to the medieval church of Santa Maria degli Angioli, home to a wall-sized fresco of the Crucifixion. Further south on Piazza Luini, the Lugano Arte e Cultura (LAC) (Tues, Wed & Sun 10.30am–6pm, Thurs–Sat 10.30am–8pm; Fr.15, students Fr.10; Ⓜ luganolac.ch) includes in its permanent collection works by Ticinese artists as well as big names such as Degas, Pissarro and Renoir. Some 20 minutes further south from the district of Paradiso, a funicular rises 600m to San Salvatore, a rugged sugarloaf pinnacle offering fine views of the lake.

ARRIVAL, INFORMATION AND TOURS

By train Lugano's train station overlooks the town from the west, linked to the centre by a short funicular (SP free) or by steps down to Via Cattedrale.

Destinations Luzern (3 hourly; 2hr 30min); Milan (hourly; 1hr); Zürich (hourly; 2hr 40min).

By bus Postbuses bookable at the train station.

Destinations St Moritz (mid-June to mid-Oct daily; mid-Oct to mid-June 3 weekly; 4hr).

Tourist information On Palazzo Civico, off Riforma (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 9am–6pm, Sun 10am–5pm; ☎ 058 8666609, luganotourism.ch).

Tours Boat tours around the lake (April–Oct; Fr.5.45–26, SP free; lakelugano.ch) depart from directly opposite the tourist office.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Hotel Pestalozzi Piazza Indipendenza ☎ 091 921 4646, pestalozzi-lugano.ch. Some 150m from the lake, with clean, white, recently refurbished rooms, and a great (alcohol-free) restaurant with friendly staff. Doubles Fr.110

La Tinèra Via dei Gorini, behind Piazza della Riforma. Classic locals' restaurant hidden in a basement, serving great pasta and tasty Ticinese chicken stews (Fr.19) and zabaglione to finish. Mon–Sat 11.30am–3pm & 5.30–11pm.

Pasta e Pesto Via Cattedrale 16. Buzzing little place with a small terrace, spitting distance from the cathedral: it serves up mountains of tasty pasta (Fr.9.80–12). Mon & Tues 9.30am–7pm, Wed–Sat 9.30am–9.30pm.

TCS Camping Lugano La Piodella Via alle Foce 4 ☎ 091 994 7788, campingtcs.ch. Attractive lakeside campsite with restaurant in Muzzano, 3km west by FLP train from the platform opposite the main station. Per tent Fr.25

Liechtenstein

Barely larger than Manhattan, Liechtenstein is the world's sixth-smallest country – and one of the richest. Tucked between Switzerland and Austria, amid dramatic mountain ranges whose peaks are topped with turreted castles, Liechtenstein is a constitutional monarchy, ruled by His Serene Highness Prince Hans Adam II. You can see the whole country on a day-trip from Zürich, two hours away by train. Swiss francs are legal tender, but the phone system is separate (country code ☎ 423).

VADUZ

Liechtenstein's capital is the tiny, photogenic VADUZ, crowned with the Prince's sixteenth-century castle. The hub of its modern, rather soulless centre is the main bus stop, between the highway, Äulestrasse, and the more appealing pedestrianized Städtle. On either side of the bus stop are the Kunstmuseum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm, Thurs till 8pm; Fr.15, students Fr.10), displaying temporary art exhibitions from the Prince's private collection, and the Landesmuseum (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm, Wed till 8pm; Fr.10, students Fr.7), with excellent coverage of local history. Stroll northeast to the appealing district of Mitteldorf, where medieval houses overlook the Prince's vineyards.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus From Sargans train station on the Zürich–Chur line, bus #1 shuttles over the Rhine to Vaduz. Buses stop on Vaduz's main street, by the post office. They serve all of Liechtenstein, as well as Sargans in Switzerland, and Feldkirch in Austria, from where trains serve Bregenz, Innsbruck and Vienna.

Destinations Feldkirch (Austria; every 30min; 30min); Sargans (Switzerland; every 30min; 25min).

Tourist information Städtle 39 (May–Oct daily 9am–6pm; Nov–April daily 9am–5pm; ☎ 239 6363, tourismus.li).

ACCOMMODATION

HI Hostel Schaan-Vaduz Under Rüttigass 6 ☎ 232 5022. Quiet rural location, looking out over fields and mountains, 5min from Mühleholz bus stop and 2km north of Vaduz. Open March–Oct. Dorms Fr.34.50, doubles Fr.92

Mittagsspitze campsite ☎ 392 3677, campingtriesen.li. Tranquil rural campsite with swimming pool, some 5km south of Vaduz, near the Säge bus stop. Per person Fr.9, plus per tent Fr.6

EATING AND DRINKING

Burg Brasserie Städtle 15 adler.li. Brasserie serving sandwiches, burgers and a salad buffet from Fr.12.60, with the smarter Cesare Italian restaurant upstairs. Brasserie Mon–Fri 8.30am–midnight, Sat & Sun 9.30am–midnight.

New Castle Äulestrasse 22 new-castle.li. A comfortable restaurant serving hearty local fare, such as fillet steaks (Fr.34), breaded Schnitzels (Fr.28.50) and generous, good-value daily specials from Fr.18.50. Mon–Sat 9am–midnight.

Introduction

Turkey has multiple identities. Poised between East and West, it's a place where mosques coexist with churches, and Roman ruins crumble alongside ancient Hittite sites. The country is politically secular, though the majority of the population is Muslim, and it's an immensely rewarding place to travel, not least because of the people, whose reputation for friendliness and hospitality is richly deserved.

Much of the country's delights are inexpensive pleasures. Whether it's indulging in tasty gözleme (stuffed flatbreads) or dancing in backstreet bars, there are plenty of activities to consume your time but not your budget.

Most visitors begin their trip in Istanbul, a heady mixture of European shopping districts, Byzantine and Ottoman architecture and Anatolian cultural influences. South from here small country towns are interspersed by swathes of olive groves and several ancient sites, notably Ephesus. Beyond the functional city of Izmir, the Aegean coast is dotted with tourist resorts, including hedonistic party towns such as Bodrum and Marmaris. The aptly named Turquoise Coast is home to resorts such as Fethiye and Kaş, famous for their fabulous water- and adventure-sports facilities. Inland is spectacular

Cappadocia, with its well-known rock churches, subterranean cities and landscape studded with cave dwellings. Further north, Ankara, Turkey's capital, is a planned city whose contrived Western feel gives some indication of the priorities of the modern Turkish Republic. Further south, Konya is the birthplace of the Mevlevi (whirling dervish) sufi sect.

CHRONOLOGY

1250 BC According to Homer's Iliad Troy is cleverly taken by the Greeks who sneak into the city in a wooden horse.

334 BC Alexander the Great marches through Anatolia, present-day Turkey.

129 BC Romans conquer Anatolia.

54 AD St Paul brings Christianity to Anatolia.

330 Emperor Constantine founds Constantinople, calling it the new Rome and establishing the Byzantine Empire.

1288 The Islamic Ottoman Empire starts to expand across present-day Turkey.

A DIFFICULT NEIGHBOURHOOD

The unravelling of Turkey's southeastern neighbours, first Iraq (from 2003) then Syria (from 2011), has had inevitable consequences on a nation strategically located between Europe and the Middle East. By early 2016 Turkey was home to up to three million Syrian refugees, an enormous strain on the economy, as well as a bone of contention with Europe, to where many moved on. ISIS (Islamic State), spawned from the chaos of a decaying Iraq and developing strength in the vacuum of war-torn Syria, launched several suicide bomb attacks within Turkey in 2015 and 2016, targeting both Ankara and Istanbul. Following the breakdown of "peace talks" between the Turkish government and the outlawed Kurdish Workers Party (PKK), the situation in Turkey was further complicated by renewed fighting between the state security forces and PKK militants. An extremist offshoot of the PKK launched two suicide bomb attacks in Ankara in 2016. Although fewer than a total of twenty foreigners were killed in the ISIS and PKK-splinter group blasts, the repercussions on Turkey's tourism industry were severe; an attempted coup in summer 2016 further complicated the situation. Despite the troubles, Turkey remains a relatively safe place to visit, but make sure that you check your home country's foreign travel advice before travelling – for the UK this is www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice/turkey.

1526 The Ottomans defeat the Habsburgs, taking large areas of Europe.

1832 Following more than ten years of heavy fighting, the Greeks gain independence from Ottoman Turkey.

1918 The Ottomans, having aligned with Germany in World War I, are defeated by the Allies.

1923 After its War of Independence, Turkey is declared a republic led by President Mustafa Kemal Atatürk.

1928 The Turkish constitution declares Turkey to be a secular state.

1938 Atatürk dies on November 10.

1945 Turkey remains neutral during World War II.

1960 A military coup results in the dismissal of the ruling Democrat Party and the hanging of its leaders.

1980 Once more the army overthrows government. Governance is given back to civilians a couple of years later.

1993 Tansu Çiller becomes Turkey's first female prime minister.

2005 Talks about Turkish accession to the EU are held.

2007 Tens of thousands of secularists protest in Ankara against Islamist Prime Minister Erdoğan's proposed run for president.

2010 Istanbul becomes a European Capital of Culture. Nine Turkish citizens aboard a Gaza-bound relief ship are killed by Israeli commandos.

2011 Ten thousand Syrian refugees travel over the border into Turkey. PM Erdoğan criticizes his former ally Assad.

2013 Protests against plans to develop Istanbul's Gezi Park turn into a summer of demonstrations and discontent across the country. The heavy-handed response by the government and police is condemned at home and abroad.

2015 The Islamist AKP (Justice and Development Party) win a record fourth term in office. Turkey finds itself home to around 2.5m Syrian refugees.

2016 Suicide bomb blasts in Istanbul and Ankara kill over seventy people; in July sections of the army try, and fail, to overthrow Erdoğan in a coup.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Tourist visas are required for individuals from most countries, and cost between US$20 and US$60. You must apply in advance and online for an electronic visa (e-visa) from evisa.gov.tr. Visas issued for most nationalities allow for multiple entry and are valid for 90 days in 180.

The most common point of arrival is Istanbul, with overland travellers arriving at the bus station some distance from the centre. International flights to Istanbul arrive at either Atatürk Airport (@ataturkairport.com) on the European side or Sabiha Gökçen (@sgairport.com), used by many budget carriers, on the Asian side, though a third Istanbul airport, scheduled to open in 2018, may well change this picture. For those heading to Turkey's Turquoise Coast, Antalya and Dalaman international airports are the most convenient for the region's many resorts. If you're travelling to Turkey by sea you're likely to arrive at either Kuşadası or Marmaris where ferries connect Turkey with the Greek islands.

GETTING AROUND

BY TRAIN

The train system, run by TCDD (@tcdd.gov.tr) is undergoing major upgrades, with several new high-speed lines either completed (notably Istanbul–Ankara) or under construction. The downside of these improvements is that many kilometres of track are currently closed for major engineering works. Check the TCDD website or, more reliably, @seat61.com, for the latest news on routes. Reserve in advance for sleeper cabins on overnight services; seat reservations are usually only necessary at weekends or on national holidays. An ISIC card gets a twenty percent discount. InterRail passes are valid; Eurail aren't.

BY BUS

The long-distance bus network is extensive, reliable and affordable. Most destinations are served by several competing firms, which all have ticket booths at the bus station (otogar or terminal) from which they operate, as well as an office in the town centre. Book ahead if you're travelling in high season or on a public holiday. Fares vary only slightly between companies: expect to pay about ₺15 per 100km. Bus companies usually provide a free shuttle bus between the otogar and town centre. For short hops you're most likely to use a dolmuş (shared taxi), a car or minibus that follows a set route, picking up and dropping off along the way. Sometimes the destination will be posted on a sign at the kerbside, and sometimes within the dolmuş itself, though you'll generally have to ask. Fares are very low.

BY FERRY

Vehicle and passenger ferries that cross the Sea of Marmara are run by Istanbul Deniz Otobüsleri (@ido.com.tr). Buy tickets in advance from official outlets.

BY PLANE

Domestic flights are very affordable, especially if you book reasonably well in advance, with flights between Istanbul and Antalya as low as ₺100 one-way, only 25 percent more expensive than the cheapest coach fare. There are many competing airlines, including Turkish Airlines (@turkishairlines.com), Anadolujet (@anadolujet.com.tr), Onur Air (@onurair.com.tr), Pegasus (@flypgs.com), Sunexpress (@sunexpress.com) and Atlasglobal (@atlasgbl.com). The network is comprehensive too, with airports serving the Aegean and Turquoise coast at İzmir, Bodrum, Dalaman and Antalya, while Cappadocia has airports at Kayseri and Nevşehir.

ACCOMMODATION

Finding accommodation is generally no problem, except in high season in Istanbul, at the busier coastal resorts and in the larger towns. Basic ungraded hotels or pansiyons (pensions) offer fairly spartan rooms, with or without bathroom, for €40–70. There's also a well-established network of backpacker hotels that generally cost €10–20 for a dorm bed, €50–70 for a private double room (€10–20 less if there's no bathroom). You'll also find triple and quad rooms offered at attractive rates at most hotels. Many resort-based places close in winter, so it's wise to call ahead. Almost everywhere offers wi-fi and a/c in each room, and, unless otherwise indicated, includes a Turkish buffet breakfast in the price. Campsites are common only on the coast and in national parks and cost around €8–13 per person.

FOOD AND DRINK

At its finest, Turkish food is one of the world's great cuisines, and prices are on the whole affordable. Breakfast (kahvaltı) served at hotels and pansiyons is usually a buffet, offering bread with butter, cheese, cucumber, tomatoes, olives, jam, honey, and tea or coffee. Many workers start the morning with poça, pastries filled with meat, cheese or potato that are sold at bakeries, büfes (stall/café) or at street carts. Others make do with a simple simit (sesame-seed bread ring). Snack vendors hawk lahmacun, small "pizzas" with meat-based toppings, and, in coastal cities, midye dolma (stuffed mussels). A more substantial option is pide, or Turkish pizza – flatbread with various toppings.

Meat dishes in restaurants include several variations on the kebab (kebab). Fish and seafood are good, if usually pricey. Meze – an extensive array of cold appetizers – comes in all shapes and sizes, the most common being dolma (peppers or vine leaves stuffed with rice), patlican salata (aubergine in tomato sauce) and acılı ezme (a mixture of tomato paste, onion, chilli and parsley). Many restaurants are alcohol-free.

For dessert, there's every imaginable concoction at a pastane (sweet shop): best are the honey-soaked baklava, and a variety of milk puddings, most commonly sütlaç. Other sweets include aşure (Noah's pudding), a sort of rosewater jelly laced with pulses, raisins and nuts; and lokum or Turkish delight.

Restaurant opening hours vary widely, but in general they are open all day; some open as early as 7am, others open for lunch at around 11am and close between 11pm and 1am. In smaller cities, such as Bursa and Edirne, many tend to shut by around 9pm. Bars are generally open 11am or noon–2am. Clubs are usually open after 11pm until 5/6am.

DRINK

Tea (çay) is the national drink, with sugar on the side but no milk. Turkish coffee (kahve) is strong, bitter and served in tiny cups. Nescafé pretty much holds a

NARGİLES

Smoking has been banned in public places, including restaurants, shopping centres and public transport, for many years. However, the country remains very much enamoured with tobacco and the prohibition has not been as effective here as in some other countries. A variety of bars exist specializing in nargile (waterpipe) smoking. Nargiles use special flavoured tobacco with varieties ranging from chocolate to strawberry. Government plans to ban outdoor as well as indoor smoking may well affect the future of Turkey's nargile café culture.

monopoly on instant coffee, but fresh filter coffee and even international favourites like flat whites and lattes are popular in trendier cafés. Fruit juices (meyva suyu) can be excellent but are usually sweetened. You'll also come across ayran, watered-down salted yoghurt, which makes a refreshing drink. The main locally brewed brands of beer (bira) are Efes Pilsen and Tuborg. The national aperitif is anis-flavoured rakı – a strong spirit consisting of 45 percent alcohol. It's usually topped up with water and enjoyed with meze. There are plenty of decent Turkish-produced wines, though, like all alcoholic beverages, they are surprisingly expensive because of high taxes.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

Turkey's unspoken codes of conduct can catch the first-time visitor off guard. Away from the main cities you should dress modestly and avoid shorts and revealing attire – this is particularly important the further east you travel. If you are a female traveller, it is essential to take a headscarf or shawl if you plan on visiting a mosque. These are generally open during daylight hours, except for prayer time (around half an hour following the call to prayer). Both sexes should remember to remove their shoes.

In almost every sphere of social interaction, tea drinking plays an important role. You'll notice shop

HAGGLING

Shopping in Turkey requires more than just money. In bazaars, market stalls and independent shops, you should try haggling – the original price quoted can be three times the price of the item's actual value. Avoid displaying too much enthusiasm over your desired item, and if the price quoted sounds expensive, either make to walk away or inform the shopkeeper that you would like to shop around for a better deal – this might result in a better offer.

35 salesmen commonly invite you to peruse their goods over tea.

Although interaction between Turkish men and women is quite formal, single female travellers may experience harassment and should take care, particularly in the evenings. Note also that, while many young Turkish women visit bars and clubs, few of them go out unaccompanied at night, and you should observe this rule away from tourist areas.

SPORTS AND ACTIVITIES

Undoubtedly Turkey's most popular sport is football, with Istanbul's "big three", Galatasaray, Beşiktaş and Fenerbahçe, being the nation's favourite teams. To find out about games and buy tickets, visit biletix.com.

Most tour operators in the established resorts have information about both summer and winter adventure sports. Scuba diving is popular, and Kaş in particular offers some of the best in the Med. Other picturesque spots along the coast have skies full of paragliders, while hikers will find all manner of great trails, not least the Lycian Way from Fethiye to Antalya.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most post offices (PTT) open Monday to Saturday 9am to 5pm, with main branches open till 7/8pm and also on Sunday. Use the yurtdışı (overseas) slot on postboxes. Phone calls can be made from Turk Telecom booths and the PTT. Post offices and kiosks sell phonecards (30, 60 and 100 units) and also have metered phones. Some payphones accept credit cards. Numerous private phone shops (Köntürlü telefon) offer metered calls at dubious, unofficial rates. For longer stays it might be worthwhile purchasing a local SIM card from one of the three major operators – Turkcell, Avea or Vodafone. There are internet cafés in most towns, but almost every hotel and hostel has free wi-fi and often a computer for use by residents. Many bars, cafés, restaurants – and even the long-distance buses – also have free wi-fi.

EMERGENCIES

Street crime is uncommon and theft is rare; however, lone women should pay attention and be very wary of going out alone after dark. Police wear dark blue uniforms with baseball caps, with their division – trafik, narkotik, etc – clearly marked. There's a tourist police centre at Yerebatan Cad 6 (☎0212 527 4503) in Sultanahmet with some English-speaking officers. In rural areas, you'll find the camouflage-clad Jandarma, a division of the regular army. For minor health complaints, head for the nearest pharmacy (eczane). Night-duty pharmacists are known as nöbetçi; the current rota is posted in every pharmacy's front window. For more serious ailments, go to a hospital (kllinik) – either public or the much higher-quality and cleaner private (Özel Hastane).

INFORMATION

Most towns of any size have a tourist office (Turizm Danışma Bürosu), generally open Monday to Friday 8.30am to 12.30pm and 1.30 to 5.30pm. Staff usually speak English, and should be able to help you with accommodation, and you'll generally find a good range of brochures and maps.

MONEY AND BANKS

Currency is the Turkish lira (₺ or TL), divided into 100 kuruş. There are coins of 1, 5, 10, 25, 50 kuruş and ₺1, and notes of ₺1, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 and 200. The symbol ₺, introduced in 2012, is phasing out the old system, where the price was suffixed by the letters TL, as in 10TL, but plenty of places still use the acronym. Exchange rates for foreign currency are always better inside Turkey; at the time of writing they were approximately £1 = ₺4.1, €1 = ₺3.2,

US$1 = ₺2.9. Many pensions and hotels, particularly in the popular destinations, often quote prices in euros, and you can usually pay in either euros or Turkish lira.

Banks open Monday to Friday 8.30am to noon and 1.30pm to 5pm; some, notably Garanti Bankası, are open at lunchtimes and on Saturday. Some of the exchange booths run by banks in coastal resorts, airports and ferry docks charge a small commission. Private exchange offices have competitive rates and no commission. Almost all banks have ATMs. Post offices in sizeable towns also sometimes change cash and cheques.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

Shops are generally open Monday to Saturday 9am to 7/8pm, and possibly Sunday, depending on the owner. There are two religious holidays. Kurban Bayramı (the Feast of the Sacrifice) falls on August 31 to September 4 in 2017, August 24 to 28 in 2018 and August 10 to 14 in 2019. Şeker Bayramı (Sugar Holiday) marks the end of the Muslim fasting month of Ramadan. If either falls midweek, the government may choose to extend the holiday period to as much as nine days. Many shops and restaurants close as their owners return to their home towns for the holiday. Banks and public offices are also closed on the secular holidays: January 1, April 23, May 19, August 30, October 28 and 29.

Istanbul

Arriving in ISTANBUL can result in sensory overload: backstreets teem with traders pushing handcarts, the smell of grilled food from roadside vendors lingers in the air and the call to prayer rings out from tall minarets. Yet this is merely one aspect of modern Istanbul. With the bustling bars, cafés, boutiques and art galleries in Beyoğlu, a distinctly European influence also pervades.

Istanbul is the only city in the world to have played capital to consecutive Christian and Islamic empires, and retains features of both. Named Byzantium after the Greek colonist Byzas, the city was an important trading centre. In the fourth century it was renamed Constantinople when Constantine chose it as the new capital of the Roman Empire. The city later became an independent empire, adopting the Greek language and Christianity as its religion. In 1453 the city was captured by the Ottoman Turk Mehmet the Conqueror. By the nineteenth century, the glory days of the Ottoman empire were over. After the War of Independence (1919–23), the territorial boundaries of modern-day Turkey were set and Istanbul lost its status as the capital to Ankara under the country's leader, Mustafa Kemal Atatürk. The city remains the country's economic and cultural heart, though, with a population of over 15 million.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The city is divided in two by the Bosphorus, a stretch of water that runs between the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmara, dividing Europe from Asia. At right angles to it, the inlet of the Golden Horn cuts the European side in two. Most visitors stay on the European side of the Bosphorus, basing themselves either in the old city, centred on the historic Sultanahmet district, or in the arty, Europeanized district of Beyoğlu, north of the Golden Horn. Sandwiched between the two is Eminönü and the old Levantine area of Galata, now Karaköy, home to one of the city's most famous landmarks, the Galata Tower. Taksim Square is a convenient base, and comes into its own at night as a centre of cultural and culinary activity.

Hagia Sophia

The former Byzantine cathedral of Hagia Sophia or Aya Sofya in Turkish (daily April–Oct 9am–7pm, last entry 6pm; Nov–March 9am–5pm; ₺30; @ayasofya.muzesi.gov.tr), readily visible thanks to its massive domed structure, is perhaps the single most compelling sight in the city. Commissioned in the sixth century by the Emperor Justinian, it was converted to a mosque in 1453, after which the minarets were added; it's been a museum since 1934. For centuries this was the largest enclosed space in the world, and the interior – filled with shafts of light from the high windows around the dome – is still profoundly impressive. There are a few features left over from its time as a mosque – a mihrab (niche indicating the direction of Mecca), a minber (pulpit) and the enormous wooden plaques which bear sacred names of God, the Prophet Mohammed and the first four Caliphs. There are also remains of abstract and figurative mosaics.

Topkapı Palace

Immediately north of Aya Sofya, Topkapı Palace (daily except Tues: April–Oct 9am–7pm, last entry 6pm; Nov–March 9am–5pm; ₺30; topkapisarayi.gov.tr) is Istanbul's second unmissable sight. Built between 1459 and 1465, the palace was the centre of the Ottoman Empire for nearly four centuries. The ticket office is in the first courtyard, followed by the beautifully restored Divan, containing the Imperial Council Hall in the second courtyard. Around the corner is the Harem, well worth the additional ₺15 (tickets sold outside Harem entrance). The only men once allowed in here were eunuchs and the imperial guardsmen, who were only employed at certain hours and even then blinkered. Back in the main body of the palace, in the third courtyard, the throne room was where the sultan awaited the outcome of sessions of the Divan.

The Blue Mosque

With its six minarets, the Blue Mosque or Sultanahmet Camii (Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 9am–1hr before dusk prayer call, Fri 9am–noon prayers; free; remove your shoes before entering) is instantly recognizable; inside, its four “elephant foot” pillars obscure parts of the building and dwarf the dome they support. It's the 20,000-odd blue tiles inside that lend the mosque its name. Outside the precinct wall is the Tomb of Sultan Ahmet (daily 9am–4pm), where the sultan is buried along with his wife and three of his sons.

The Museum of Turkish and Islamic Art

Located in the former palace of İbrahim Paşa, the Museum of Turkish and Islamic Art (daily April–Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–March 9am–5pm; ₺20) houses one of the best-exhibited collections of Islamic artefacts in the world. İbrahim Paşa's magnificent audience hall is devoted to a collection of Turkish carpets, while on the ground floor, in rooms off the central courtyard, is an exhibition of the folk art of the Yörük tribes of Anatolia.

TROUBLED TIMES

Istanbul, and Taksim Square in particular, was the scene of several demonstrations and clashes throughout 2013. A small protest against plans to redevelop Taksim Square's Gezi Park (one of the few areas of green space left in the city) flared into a much larger expression of dissatisfaction with the government that elicited a heavy-handed response and unrest across the country.

Much worse followed when, in January 2016, an Islamic State (ISIS) suicide bomber killed twelve tourists in the historic Sultanahmet district. Another suicide bomb attack resulted in five foreign nationals losing their lives on busy İstiklal Caddesi in March 2016.

The Archeology Museum and around

Just west of Topkapı, Gülhane Parkı, once the palace gardens, houses the Archeology Museum complex (Tues–Sun: April–Oct 9am–6pm; Nov–March 9am–4pm). The three museums are covered by one ticket (₺15). In the Archeology Museum is a superb collection of sarcophagi, sculptures and other remains of past civilizations. The adjacent Çinili Köşk is the oldest secular building in Istanbul, now a Museum of Ceramics housing a select collection of İznik ware and Selçuk tiles. Nearby, the Museum of the Ancient Orient contains a small but dazzling collection of Anatolian, Egyptian and Mesopotamian artefacts.

The Covered Bazaar

Off the main street of Divan Yolu Caddesi lies the district of Beyazıt, centred on the Kapalı Çarşı or Covered Bazaar (Mon–Sat 9am–7pm; Beyazıt T1 tram stop), a huge web of passageways housing more than four thousand shops, each with chatty, persuasive salesmen. Give yourself an hour or so to negotiate its network of alleyways and to soak up the bustling atmosphere. There are carpet shops everywhere catering for all budgets, shops selling leather goods, gold jewellery, slippers, ceramics and mass-produced souvenirs. If you do decide to buy something, don't forget to haggle (see box, p.1144).

Kadiköy

On the Asian (or Anatolian) side of the city, Kadiköy makes a great day-trip or base for a few days. It's a fun residential district and relatively free of tourists; many locals live here and commute to work on the European side. Ferries between the Asian and European sides are cheap and frequent, take twenty minutes and operate from around 6am to 11.30pm.

Karaköy and Beyoğlu

Across the Galata Bridge from Eminönü is Karaköy (formerly Galata) and Beyoğlu. Karaköy was previously the capital's "European" quarter, and has been home to Jewish, Greek and Armenian minorities. Today you'll find boutiques, crafts shops and small art

HIT THE HAMMAM

No trip to Turkey is complete without a trip to a traditional Turkish bath. One of the city's finest historical public baths is Çemberlitaş Hammam at Vezirhan Cad 8, Çemberlitaş. At the entrance you'll be given a peştamal (cotton towel) to wrap yourself in, and a scrubbing mitt; ladies will also be given disposable underwear. Men and women bathe in separate areas. Once you've changed and put any personal items in a locker you'll be led into the sıcaklık, a hot room with a heated marble platform on which you lie down and relax for fifteen minutes or so until you start to sweat. If you've opted for a soap scrub, your attendant will spend fifteen minutes washing, scrubbing and rinsing you, removing grime and dead skin cells. Otherwise you wash yourself. Afterwards, take a dip in the hot tub or relax in the cool lounge afterwards with a cup of tea or fresh fruit juice. Allow at least an hour for the entire process. Basic entry ₺60; entrance plus soap scrub by an attendant ₺95.

galleries, and it's where locals and clued-up overseas visitors meet in international coffee shops, world-class restaurants and lively clubs; this is the place to come for a night out without the tourist hordes you get in Sultanahmet. The Galata Tower (daily 9am–8pm; €6.50 or ₺ equivalent), built in 1348, is the area's most obvious landmark; its viewing galleries, café and ridiculously expensive restaurant offer the best panoramas of the city, with queues to match. Istanbul Modern by the Bosphorus (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; ₺17; istanbulmodern.org) is worth a visit too. With a focus on modern art from contemporary Turkish artists as well as international talent, this is Turkey's answer to the Tate Modern in London.

Up towards İstiklal Caddesi, Beyoğlu's main shopping boulevard, an unassuming doorway leads to the courtyard of the Galata Mevlevihanesi (daily 9.30am–5pm, closed Wed; ₺10), a former monastery and ceremonial hall of the Whirling Dervishes, a sect founded in the thirteenth century. Staged dervish ceremonies take place here (April–Sept most Sun at 5pm; Oct–March twice monthly; tickets around ₺50).

The Pera Museum (Tues–Sat 10am–7pm; Sun noon–6pm; ₺10; peramuseum.org) on Meşrutiyet Cad 65, housed in a beautiful nineteenth-century building, displays changing exhibitions of contemporary art, historical oil paintings of old Istanbul, ceramic tiles and a collection of historical weights and measures. İstiklal Caddesi ends at Taksim Square, a busy tourist and transport hub, home to Gezi Park and scene of numerous demonstrations over the years (see box, p.1147).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Istanbul's Atatürk airport is 24km west of the city. The cheapest option to get to Sultanahmet is to take the M1 metro from the airport to Zeytinburnu, then change onto the T1 tram. For Beyoğlu/Taksim take the M1 metro to Yenikapı, then the M2 metro to Şişhane or Taksim. Either journey requires the purchase of two travel jetons, costing ₺4 each. A taxi will cost around ₺50 to Sultanahmet or ₺60 to Taksim; make sure they use the meter. The Havataş bus (4am–1am every 30min; 40–60min; ₺11) is a reliable option; the bus terminates at Taksim, but get off at Aksaray and take the T1 tram for Sultanahmet.

Istanbul's Sabiha Gökçen airport is 35km southeast of central Istanbul. Shuttle buses (every 30min; 4am–1am; 1hr 30min; ₺14) terminate at Taksim. A taxi from Sabiha Gökçen airport to Sultanahmet will cost around ₺90.

By train Istanbul's historic European-side station, Sirkeci, has been closed to all bar local metro trains. At the time of writing, due to line upgrading in Thrace, train travellers were being bussed into Istanbul from the Turkish-Bulgarian border. When line works are completed (2018), trains from Europe will terminate at a western suburb of Istanbul, where they'll connect with the city's metro system. Haydarpaşa station, the terminal for trains from Asia on the east bank of the Bosphorus, was also closed at the time of writing for the construction of high-speed rail lines and the Marmaray Rail Transport Project, due for completion in 2018. Trains on the high-speed line to Ankara depart from the Asian-side Istanbul suburb of Pendik, but may well depart from Haydarpaşa once all works are completed. Check their site (tcdd.gov.tr) and seat61.com for the latest developments.

Destinations Ankara (5 daily via Eskişehir; 4hr 15min); Konya (2 daily; 4hr 30min); London (5 days); Sofia, Bulgaria (1 daily; 13hr).

By bus From Istanbul's bus station (otogar) at Esenler, 15km northwest, the better bus companies run courtesy minibuses to various points in the city, although if you're heading for Sultanahmet it's often quicker to take the M1 metro (₺43). Some buses also stop at the Harem bus station on the Asian side, from where there are regular dolmuşes to Haydarpaşa station. Taxis to Sultanahmet cost approximately ₺40 from the main otogar. Watch out for drivers who offer their services near to the departure area. These are usually unlicensed and do not operate a meter.

Destinations Ankara (hourly; 6hr); Antalya (4 daily; 12hr); Athens, Greece (2 weekly; 22hr); Bodrum (8 daily; 12hr); Bursa (hourly; 4hr); Çanakkale (hourly; 6hr); Edirne (hourly; 3hr); Göreme (5 daily; 12hr); İzmir (hourly; 10hr); Konya (7 daily; 11hr); Kuşadası (5 daily; 9hr); Marmaris (4 daily; 13hr); Nevşehir (3 daily; 12hr); Sofia, Bulgaria (12hr).

By ferry Sea bus, car and passenger services from Yalova and Bandırma arrive at the Yenikapı terminal, just south of Aksaray.

INFORMATION

Tourist office The most central office is in Sultanahmet, near the Hippodrome on Divan Yolu Cad (daily 9am–5pm; ☎ 0212 518 8754). Staff aren't particularly helpful but will hand out free city guides. Smaller branches are at the airport (24hr) and Sirkeci station.

GETTING AROUND

Istanbul boasts an impressive choice of transport, from ferries and trams to metros and an underground funicular. The city's eleven million commuters mean public transport is often crowded.

Tickets It's worth getting hold of an İstanbulkart, a pre-paid smartcard purchased from kiosks near busy transport hubs. It costs a refundable ₺6 for the card; top it up with as much credit as you're likely to need. The İstanbulkart can be used on buses, the metro, trams and ferries. Journeys work out around 40 percent less than using the alternative, travel jetons, small plastic tokens that cost ₺4 per journey and are available from booths or vending machines near many transport stops.

By bus Istanbul's buses are either run by the municipality, and are marked by an "İETT" logo, or one of several private companies. The main bus stops boast large route maps and lists of services. Most services run from early in the morning (around 6.30am) to late at night (11.30pm).

By tram The European side has two tram lines. The T1 runs from Kabataş through Sultanahmet to outlying suburbs. The other "toy" tram runs along İstiklal Cad from Beyoğlu to Taksim using an antique tram.

By metro The two most useful lines for visitors are the M1 metro, linking Atatürk Airport with Yenikapı, in the old city, and the M2 metro which runs across the Golden Horn from the old city to Beyoğlu and Taksim. The Marmaray metro links the old city with the Asian side of Istanbul.

Dolmuş Dolmuşes have their point of departure and destination displayed somewhere about the windscreen or painted on the bonnet. Several depart the streets around Taksim Square to various points in the city.

By boat Regular ferries run between Eminönü and Karaköy on the European side, and Üsküdar, Kadıköy and Haydarpaşa in Asia; buy your jeton (₺4 one-way) from the dockside kiosks. Ferries depart every 15–20min from around 6am to 9pm; crossings take 20min. Sightseeing Bosphorus cruise boats leave from the Boğaz İskelesi terminal near the Galata Bridge and stop for a long lunch break at Anadolu Kavağı, a distant village up the Bosphorus on the straits' Asian side. The cruise takes approximately 7hr return and costs ₺25. For more information on ferries, see sehirhatlari.com.tr.

ACCOMMODATION

There are numerous small hotels and pansiyons in Sultanahmet, particularly around Yerebatan Cad and the backstreets between the Blue Mosque and the sea. Taksim is a great base, and is handy for nightlife and boutique shopping and bustling cafés. From Eminönü and Aksaray, many buses pass through either Karaköy or Taksim, or both. Kadıköy on the Asian side offers a less touristy option.

SULTANAHMET

Agora Guest House and Hostel Amiral Tafdil Sok 6
 ☎ 0212 458 5547, agoraguesthouse.com; map p.1151. Blurring the lines between hotel and guesthouse, this excellent budget choice is right in the heart of the old city. The tastefully furnished communal breakfast/lounge area has a massive flat-screen TV, a cool terrace and a great atmosphere. There are ten well-appointed doubles, and dorms range from four to ten beds. Dorms €17, doubles €80

Antique Hostel Kutlugün Sok 51 ☎0212 638 1637, antiquehostel.com; map p.1151. The rooms are a little stuffy but good-looking nonetheless. The sea-view terrace is perched atop the city like an eyrie, with an island bar and decent food available (mains ₺12–15). Wi-fi and breakfast included. All rooms have a/c. Dorms €11.50, doubles €39

Cheers Lighthouse Çayıroğlu Sok 18 ☎0212 458 2324, cheershostel.com; map p.1151. This cosy eighteen-bed, five-room hostel spread over three floors offers a wide range of accommodation for visitors who appreciate the communal hostel vibe yet want plenty of privacy, with both suite rooms and dorms. On the ground floor is a great lobby, bar and terrace restaurant with views over the now defunct suburban railway line to the sea. There's free wi-fi, tea and coffee too. Dorms €18

Istanbul Hostel Kutlugün Sok 35 ☎0212 516 9380, istanbulhostel.net; map p.1151. Friendly long-running hostel, with 68 beds plus a terrace and bar. The basement dorm is justifiably popular and they have log fires during the winter. Hostel guests get ten percent discount in the restaurant. Dorms €11, doubles €45

Peninsula Hotel Adliye Sok 6 ☎0212 458 6850, hotelpeninsula.com; map p.1151. Comfortable budget accommodation on a quiet side street, the eleven simply furnished rooms (laminated floors and plain pastel walls) nonetheless boast a/c, central heating and double glazing as well as flat-screen TVs. Rooms and bathrooms are on the small side, but at these prices that's to be expected; there's also a roof terrace with great views. €45

Sultan Hostel Akbıyık Cad 17 ☎0212 516 9260, sultanhostel.com; map p.1151. The bar-restaurant is a social focal point on Istanbul's main hostel street, with music blaring and dorm beds empty until the early hours. Abrupt staff and not somewhere for a good night's sleep, but a lively spot. Fine views from the terrace and top-floor twenty-bed dorm. Dorms €12, doubles €46

BEYOĞLU

Bada Bing Hostel Serçe Sok 6, Karaköy ☎0212 249 4111, badabinghostel.com; map p.1148. In the hip former docklands of Karaköy, this cool place has a/c dorm rooms ranging from four- to ten-bed, with an eight-bed, female-only option. There are stylishly decorated private rooms as well, plus a massive lounge area and roof-top terrace complete with bean-bags and cool beers for sipping. Dorms €12, doubles €50

★ Rapunzel Bereketzade Camii Sok 3 ☎0212 292 5034, rapunzelistanbul.com; map p.1148. Hard to find, but worth the effort. Housed in a more original building than many others, it features nineteenth-century stone walls and all manner of decorative curiosities. Staff are young and full of tips and ideas for making the most of your time in the city. Dorms €20, doubles €70

KADIKÖY

Hush Hostel and Lounge Rasimpaşa Mah, Rıhtım Cad, İskele Sok 46, Kadıköy ☎0216 450 4363, hushhostelistanbul.com. This spacious and clean hostel has a well-equipped kitchen, roof terrace and a large back garden. Buffet breakfast, wi-fi and use of computer included. Dorms €14, doubles €31

EATING

Istanbul offers all the range of food and drink you'd expect from a major world city, and provides a number of top spots to sample Turkish delights. From high-end restaurants with prices to match to super-cheap street carts, there are plenty of ways to fill up. Fresh orange and pomegranate juice are worth picking up from street stalls; corn on the cob, less so. Sultanahmet has some decent restaurants, although the principal concentrations are in Beyoğlu and Taksim. The Balık Pazarı, particularly, behind the Çiçek Pasajı (off İstiklal Cad), is a great area for meze, kebabs and fish. In Kadıköy you'll find plenty of bars (many with live music) and restaurants but relatively few tourists.

CAFÉS

Istanbul has undergone a coffee renaissance in recent years, and while strong, thick, traditional Turkish coffee is still available everywhere, international brews are increasingly sold at new coffee shops.

★ Çiğdem Patisserie Divan Yolu Cad 62; map p.1151. One of many patisseries in the area but among the best, with forty years of experience serving delectable baklava (₺8 per portion). Daily 8am–11pm.

★ Heirloom Café & Market Adile Naşit Sok 6; map p.1148. Hard to find (their only sign looks like a homeless person's piece of cardboard) but worth seeking out. A quiet spot set in the garden of a 115-year-old building offering "pour over" coffee (₺7) made from Italian espresso machines, as well as pastries, panini and salads (₺10–18). Daily 8.30am–8.30pm.

★ Konyalı Pastanesi Ankara Cad, by the tram stop near Sirkeci train station, Eminönü; map p.1148. This place goes back to 1897 and they have their Turkish coffee down to a T. Couple it with the rich sesame çörek. Mon–Sat 7am–8pm.

★ Kronotrop Yeniçarşı Cad 5; map p.1148. There's no room to sit down in this popular spot, but their take-out fat white (₺8) and Americano (₺7) coffees are from freshly roasted single origin beans and are sublime. Mon–Sat 8.30am–8pm, Sun 11am–7pm.

Mandabatmaz Olivia Geçidi off İstiklal Cad; map p.1148. This tiny Turkish coffee joint, opened in 1967, is more of an institution than a café. Pull up a stool in the cramped interior or on the street outside and, for ₺4, enjoy one of the best Turkish coffees in Istanbul – thick, velvety and like chocolate – the result of its custom roasted coffee beans.

Vefa Bozacısı Katip Çelebi Cad 104/1 ☎ 0212 519 4922, vefa.com.tr; map p.1148. Worth a look just to see the interior: old tiled floor, dark-wood shelves, ornate Victorian-style mirrors and bottles of vinegar with label designs unchanged for decades The boza (₺3), a cloudy, viscous drink made by fermenting millet with sugar and water, is delicious. Daily 7am–midnight.

RESTAURANTS

SULTANAHMET

Dönerci Şahin Usta Nuruosmaniye Kılıçlar Sok 7; map p.1148. Proper authentic kebabs (₺12) served from an establishment the size of an en-suite bathroom. Justifiably popular with locals working in the bazaar and sold out and closed up by mid-afternoon. Mon–Sat 10am–3pm.

The Pudding Shop (Lale Restaurant) Divan Yolu Cad 6; map p.1151. Dating back to 1957, this Sultanahmet hotspot became the essential meeting place for hippies making the trek to India in the 1960s. It's still popular, offering canteen-style dining (vegetarian bean dishes for ₺11; köfte at ₺15) and its famous desserts. Daily 7am–11pm.

Tarihi Sultanahmet Köftecisi Divan Yolu Cad; map p.1151. An Istanbul institution popular with celebrities (many of whose mugs beam down from the wall). You'll probably have to queue, especially at lunchtime, but the köfte (₺16) – six meaty fingers of lamb with a flash of pink inside, accompanied by a white bean salad, chillies and chilli sauce – are sufficient recompense. Daily 11am–11pm.

BEYOĞLU AND EMİNÖNÜ

Fürreyya Serdar-ı Ekrem Sok 2B, Galata ☎ 0212 252 4853 vurfureyagalata.com; map p.1148. A little gem of a fish restaurant near the Galata Tower, Fürreyya serves up perfectly cooked seafood with a few modern touches, at very reasonable prices. The fish wrap, prawn casserole and fishcakes with basil sauce all come highly recommended. Mains from ₺12. Daily noon–11pm.

Hamdi Tahmis Cad Kalçın Sok 17 ☎ 0212 528 0390; map p.1148. Third-floor restaurant next to the spice bazaar. Fresh meze and kebabs are all served to a high standard. Highly popular and touristy but the views of the Golden Horn are irresistible. Reservations advised. Mains from ₺24. Daily 11am–midnight.

★ Kenan Usta Ocakbaşı Kurabiye Sok 18; map p.1148. Master grillsmen Kenan has been perfecting his art for

GET YOUR FRESH FISH HERE

Fresh fish and seafood are delicious in Istanbul. At either end of Galata Bridge you can buy freshly grilled fish sandwiches (₺6) from fishermen with mobile carts or fresh off a bobbing boat. At the Karaköy end walk past the fish market, settle down at the plastic chairs and tables and order a whole grilled fish, chips and salad for around ₺15. Times vary, but food is generally served until 10pm daily.

four decades, and a visit to his basement charcoal grill to watch him in action is a must. Locals gather around the huge fire pit as he cooks meat to perfection before sending it out with a red onion and parsley garnish, lightly toasted lavaş (tortilla-style bread) and a variety of fresh meze. Meat mains from ₺20. Daily 10am–2pm.

Leb-i Derya Kumbarcı Yokuşu 57 6, Tünel; map p.1148. This is one of the best bar-restaurants from which to see the city from up high. The food and the cocktails are as good as the view, though prices are not budget. Expect to part with at least ₺70 per head. The street is steep and narrow, leading off from the main drag, İstiklal Cad. Mon–Thurs & Sun 11am–2am, Fri & Sat 11am–3am.

Lokanta Helvetia General Yazgan Sok 8/a; map p.1148. It may be small but the buffet-style lunches and dinners make this one of Beyoğlu's best bargains (it's ₺15 a plate). Mon–Sat 8am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Many backpackers gather in the bars on Akbıyık Cad in Sultanahmet, but Karaköy, Galata and Beyoğlu are much livelier and frequented by arty and alternative locals as well as visitors. In Kadıköy go to Kadife Sok, aka “bar street”, for the liveliest places.

BARs

★ 360 Mısır Apartmanı 32 309, İstiklal Cad, Tünel ☎ 360istanbul.com; map p.1148. Actually a restaurant, bar and club, as its name suggests this pricey place has panoramic views best appreciated at night. At weekends the place rocks till the small hours, but it's really all about the view. Mon–Thurs noon–2am, Fri noon–4pm & 6pm–4am, Sat 6pm–4am, Sun 6pm–2.30am.

Akdeniz Nevizade Sok 25, Beyoğlu; map p.1148. Rambling, multistorey student bar, with rock music and cheap drinks. Some of the artwork is a bit dodgy but it's a great spot to chill out with friends – or on your own – with an Efes or two. Daily until late.

Cozy Pub & Restaurant Divan Yolu Cad 66; map p.1151. A dark wood-panelled bar on a corner perfect for people-watching that's been serving locals and tourists alike since 1846. Order some Turkish or international food (₺18–30) or just a beer (₺12) and observe the human traffic flowing by. Daily 10am–2am.

Gizli Bahçe Nevzade Sok 27, Beyoğlu; map p.1148. Cutting-edge dance music in a dilapidated Ottoman town-house bar. Probably looks like a squat in daylight. This is hipster Istanbul, with languidly cool staff. Daily noon–2am.

Karga Kadife Sok 16, Kadıköy. A hip yet friendly bar spread across several floors and furnished with lots of dark chunky wood tables. DJs and live music. Daily 11am–2am.

Pasific Sofyalı Sok 0212 292 7642; map p.1148. Small, friendly bar with a good selection of rock music and well-priced beer (₺10 for draught). It's a struggle to find a seat on the alleyway tables in summer, though the Kino Garden next door, jointly with Pasific, has a garden out back. Daily 10am–2am.

Sensus Büyükhendek Cad 5, Galata 0212 245 5657, sensuswine.com; map p.1148. Just a stone's throw from the Galata Tower, this basement "wine and cheese boutique" has character and dozens of local Turkish wines (from ₺10 a glass) and tasty cheese platters. Daily 10am–11pm.

CLUBS

★ Babylon Tarihi Bomonti Bira Fabrikası, Birahane Sok 1, Bomonti, Şişli 0212 245 5657; babylon.com.tr; map p.1148. This state-of-the-art venue, housed in a converted historic brewery, attracts the most exciting, alternative Turkish and international acts. Tues–Thurs 9.30pm–2am, Fri & Sat 10pm–3am.

Peyote Sahne Sok 24, Beyoğlu 0212 245 5657; peyote.com.tr; map p.1148. Run by people in bands (generally a good sign), this live music club boasts several floors and a much-needed roof terrace for cooling after. Beers are around ₺10 and entry charges start from ₺14. Daily 10pm–4am.

Pixie Underground Toşbaşı Sok 12; map p.1148. This small venue is musically one of the most cutting-edge clubs in Beyoğlu. Istanbul's only bass music club, the emphasis is on dubstep, drum'n'bass and jungle. Beers are a respectable price, entry often free. Daily 2pm–4am.

ENTERTAINMENT

For listings pick up monthly Time Out Istanbul from newsstands, bookshops, hotels and hostels.

AFM Fitaş İstiklal Cad 24–26. A popular ten-screen cinema near Taksim Square, with a pub upstairs. Open daily; Wed is discount day.

Akbank Culture and Arts Centre (AkbankSanat) İstiklal Cad 8, Beyoğlu. A multipurpose centre boasting café, dance studio, music room, library and theatre. The centre hosts film festivals and the annual Akbank Jazz Festival. Tues–Sun 10.30am–7.30pm.

Garajistanbul Kaymakam Reşit Bey Sok 11, Beyoğlu. A hip performing arts venue in a converted car park, offering cutting-edge films, art projects and workshops. Opening hours vary depending on the programme.

SHOPPING

Istanbul is famous for its bazaars, where you can pick up pretty much anything, from mass-produced trinkets and souvenirs to hand-woven carpets. Shops lining İstiklal Cad are the place to head for clothes (you'll find European and American brands here) and the network of narrow streets in Beyoğlu is home to numerous boutiques, secondhand and vintage shops, as well as owner-maker artist studios where you can buy one-off craft items for affordable prices.

BAZAARS

Arasta Bazaar Mimar Mehmet Ağa Cad 14, Sultanahmet; map p.1151. Good for handmade crafts and carpets. Daily from 10am.

Mısır Çarşısı (Spice Bazaar) Çiçek Pazarı Sok, 5min southwest of Eminönü tram stop; map p.1148. Everything from spices to jewellery, natural apple tea and aphrodisiacs including chewy sweet-like blocks of Viagra. Daily 8am–7.30pm.

SHOPS

Demirören İstiklal Cad, Beyoğlu 0212 245 5657; www.demirorenistikal.com; map p.1148. Opened to great fanfare in 2011 by Real Madrid and Portugal legend Cristiano Ronaldo, this conveniently located mall includes a Virgin Megastore, Mothercare and Gap among many other shops, as well as a cinema. Daily 10am–10pm.

The Sea of Marmara

Despite their proximity to Istanbul, the shores and hinterland of the Sea of Marmara are usually neglected by foreign travellers – but there are good reasons to explore the region: not least Bursa, the first Ottoman capital and home to some superb Islamic buildings. Many visitors also stop off at the extensive World War I battlefields and cemeteries of the Gelibolu peninsula (Gallipoli), using either the port of Eceabat as a base, or, more commonly, Çanakkale. The border town of Edirne, meanwhile, is a charming spot to break a journey into Europe.

BURSA

Draped along the leafy lower slopes of Uludağ, a mountain that towers more than 2000m above, BURSA – first capital of the Ottoman Empire and the burial place of several sultans – is a charming city in which to spend a few days. Gathered here are some of the finest early Ottoman monuments in Turkey, in a tidy and appealing city centre.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Flanked by busy Atatürk Caddesi, compact Koza Parkı, with its fountains, benches and cafés, is the heart of Bursa. On the far side looms the fourteenth-century Ulu Cami, whose interior is dominated by a huge şadırvan pool for ritual ablutions. A little way north is Bursa's covered market, the Bedesten, given over to the sale of jewellery and precious metals, and the Koza Hanı, flanking the park, still entirely occupied by silk and brocade merchants.

Yeşil Cami, Yeşil Türbe and the Art Museum

Across the river to the east, the Yeşil Cami (daily 8am–8.30pm) is easily the most spectacular of Bursa's imperial mosques. The nearby hexagonal Yeşil Türbe (daily 8am–noon & 1–7pm) contains the sarcophagus of Çelebi Mehmet I and assorted offspring. Just north of Yeşil Türbe is the small Museum of Turkish and Islamic Art (daily: April–Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–March 9am–5pm; ₺5), with Çanakkale ceramics, glass items and clothing. The peaceful courtyard is a nice place to chill out.

The Hisar and around

West of the centre, the Hisar (“citadel”) district was Bursa's original nucleus. Narrow lanes wind up past dilapidated Ottoman houses, while walkways clinging to the rock face offer fabulous views. The best-preserved dwellings are a little way west in medieval Muradiye, where the Muradiye Külliyesi mosque and medrese complex was begun in 1424. This is the last imperial foundation in Bursa, although it's most famous for its tombs, set in lovingly tended gardens.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is 5km north on the main road to Istanbul, from where bus #38 (every 15min) runs to Koza Parkı.

Destinations Çanakkale (hourly; 4hr); Istanbul (hourly; 4hr); İznik (hourly; 2hr).

Tourist office Corner of Koza Parkı (Mon–Fri 8am–noon & 1–5pm, Sat 9am–12.30pm & 1.30–6pm; ☎ 0224 220 1848).

ACCOMMODATION

Hotel Çeşmeli Gümüşçeken Cad 6 ☎ 0224 224 1511. A Female-run place with a handy location that makes up for its somewhat quaint aesthetic. Centrally located with an excellent self-service breakfast. Doubles ₺140

Hotel Günes İnebey Cad 75 ☎ 0224 222 1404. Cheap, clean and friendly. Extremely basic but full of character. Prices are cheaper if you can forgo a bath for the night. Breakfast is ₺9 extra. Doubles ₺70

Kitap Evi Kavaklıdere Cad, Burçüstü Sok 21 ☎ 0224 225 4160, @ kitapevi.com.tr. This one-time bookshop has been

THE EVIL EYE

Take a short stroll around any Turkish town and it won't be long until you spot one of the ubiquitous evil eye symbols. This circular blue and white emblem with a dot in the middle is a good luck charm designed to ward off evil spirits. As well as being proudly displayed in homes and businesses, the symbol is also printed on pendants, bracelets and brooches.

turned into a swish boutique hotel. The place to come if you need pampering – one room boasts a private hammam. Doubles €95, suite with private hammam €185

EATING AND DRINKING

Everything closes pretty early in Bursa with the exception of popular baklava cafés. Sakarya Cad is a pretty cobbled street of fish and seafood restaurants that fill with post-work locals after dark. Mains around ₺18.

Çiçek Izgara Belediye Cad 15. An elegant restaurant with a slightly inflated price to match. However, the food is reliable and the main Ottoman-inspired dishes, including köfte and sütlü tel kadayıfı, are worth a try. Mains ₺12–18. Mon–Sat 10am–midnight.

Kebabçı İskender Ünlü Cad 7  iskender.com.tr. A local institution. Queues form early at lunch and the restaurant closes early, but it's a great choice for trying Bursa's speciality, the İskender kebab – lamb with tomato sauce, yoghurt and hot butter poured from a saucepan at the table (₺23). Daily 11am–6.30pm.

Üç Köfte İvaz Paşa Çarşısı 3. Cheap and cheerful köfte specialists just north of the main bazaar offering delicious meatballs with tasty trimmings. Mains ₺10–15. Mon–Sat 11am–3pm.

ÇANAKKALE

ÇANAKKALE is a progressive, modern city celebrated for its setting on the Dardanelles and as a popular base for visiting Gelibolu (Gallipoli) and Troy. There's a big university here, and the 15,000-odd students, together with Aussie and Kiwi backpackers visiting Gallipoli, make for a busy nightlife scene. You'll find no shortage of bars, clubs and budget places to eat, and English-speaking voices drift across the seafront nightly. Almost everything of interest – park, Naval Museum (Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 9am–noon & 1.30–5pm; ₺6.5) and Archeological Museum (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺5) – is within walking distance of the ferry docks, close to the start of the main Demircioğlu Caddesi. Stroll past the Trojan horse on the seafront promenade near the ferry terminal; you might recognize the wooden structure from the 2004 film Troy.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The bus station is on the coastal highway, Atatürk Cad, a 15min walk from the waterfront; if you're arriving from Istanbul, get off at the ferry terminal in the centre of the city rather than at the bus station.

Destinations Istanbul (hourly; 6hr 30min); İzmir (11 daily; 5hr 30min); Selçuk (8 daily; 7hr).

By ferry Ferries run hourly between Çanakkale and Eceabat and take 25min. Tickets can be bought at the ferry terminal for ₺3.50.

Tourist office Beside the ferry docks (daily 8.30am–5.30/7pm depending on season;  0286 217 1187).

ACCOMMODATION

Except for a crowded couple of weeks during the Çanakkale/Troy Festival (mid-Aug), or on ANZAC Day (April 25), when the town is inundated with Antipodeans, you'll have little trouble finding budget accommodation.

Anzac House Hostel Cumhuriyet Meydanı 61  0286 213 2550,  anzachouse.com. A pretty basic hostel offering well-kept rooms over several floors. Bathrooms are shared and there's no lift. Breakfast is ₺6 extra. Dorms ₺30, single ₺45, double ₺80

★ Grand Anzac Hotel Kemal Yeri Sokak  anzachotel.com. One of several Anzac hotels run by the same owners (try the Comfort Anzac, Anzac or Kervansaray – below – if this one is full). A big and buzzy popular spot in the centre of the city, with a large indoor/outdoor breakfast area. Singles €30, doubles €40

Kervansaray Hotel Fetvane Sok No. 13  0286 217 7777,  otelkervansaray.com. The former home of an Ottoman judge: you'll find big plush rooms, a pretty garden and a quality buffet breakfast waiting in the morning. Be sure to get a room in the main, old building, as the annexe at the back of the garden has far less character. Singles €45, doubles €58

Yellow Rose Kemal Paşa Mah  0286 217 3343,  yellowrose.4mg.com. A good-value hostel with a homely feel that lets you economize further by using the kitchen. Breakfast can be taken near the table-tennis tables in the attractive garden. Dorms €15, doubles €35

EATING AND DRINKING

The seafront is jammed with restaurants and some of the best bars are tucked away in the streets just behind. Be sure to seek out the peynir helvası – the city's famous cheese dessert – it's much tastier than it sounds.

Caféka Cumhuriyet Meydanı 28. For a break from traditional Turkish cuisine try trendy Caféka, with salad bowls, pasta dishes and chicken fajitas just some of the Mediterranean-style cuisine on offer. Good lattes and other coffees too. Mains ₺14–30. Daily noon–11pm.

★ Cevahir Fetvane Sok 15/a. Small, family-run corner café serving tasty home-style Turkish food. Buffet-style food served on small, medium and large plates (₺8–10); salad and bread included. Dishes might include aubergine and chicken, sweet grated carrot with yogurt, or bean salad. Daily until early evening.

Sardunya Fetvane Sok 11. One of several ev yemekleri (home-style cooking) places, this local favourite offers filling stews and salads at bargain prices (mains from ₺12). Daily noon–10pm.

Seaside Eski Balıkhan Sok 3. One of the better seafront restaurants, offering fresh fish for around ₺30 per head, live entertainment and a relaxed atmosphere. Daily until around 11pm.

THE GELİBOLU (GALLIPOLI) PENINSULA

Though endowed with splendid scenery and beaches, the slender Gelibolu (Gallipoli) peninsula, which forms the northwest side of the Dardanelles, is known chiefly for its grim military history. In April 1915 it was the site of Winston Churchill's plan to land Allied troops, many of them Australian and New Zealand units, with a view to putting Turkey out of the war. Huge strategic mistakes, as well as a fierce opposition headed by the gifted officer Mustafa Kemal (later known as Atatürk), led to the dismal failure of the operation, incurring massive casualties. This was the first time Australians and New Zealanders had seen action under their own commanders, and the date of the first landings, April 25, is celebrated as ANZAC Day.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The World War I battlefields and Allied cemeteries are by turns moving and numbing in the sheer multiplicity of graves, memorials and obelisks. The first stop on most tours is the Çanakkale Destanı Tanıtım Merkezi (Çanakkale Epic Presentation Centre; daily 8.30am–6pm; ₺10), with several audio-visual and interactive exhibits as well as eleven galleries over four floors packed with fascinating war-time artefacts. Beyond the centre are the Beach, Shrapnel Valley and Shell Green cemeteries, followed by Anzac Cove and Anıburnu, site of the ill-fated ANZAC landing. Most tourists then bear right for Büyük Anafartalar village and Çonkbayır hill, where there's a massive New Zealand memorial and a Turkish memorial detailing Atatürk's words and deeds. Working your way back down towards the orientation centre, you pass The Nek, Walker's Ridge and Quinn's Post, where the trenches of the opposing forces lay within a few metres of each other: the modern road corresponds to no-man's-land.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Buses from Istanbul to Çannakale stop at Eceabat. Destinations Istanbul (hourly; 5hr).

By ferry Ferries run hourly between Çanakkale and Eceabat and take 25min.

ACCOMMODATION

Crowded House Hostel İskele Hüseyin Avni Sok 4, Eceabat ☎0286 814 1565, crowdedhousegallipoli.com. A 30min ferry ride from Çanakkale in Eceabat, this hostel offers 26 rooms all with private bathroom, and an outdoor restaurant and bar serving barbecued meat and fish. It also has its own travel agency (see box below). Doubles €30
TJ's Cumhuriyet Cad 5, Eceabat ☎0286 814 3121, tjshotel.com. Also in Eceabat, this hostel-cum-hotel offers both dorm beds and cheerful double rooms complete with LCD TVs and a/c. Like Crowded House, it has an in-house travel agency (see box below). Dorms €30, doubles €70

EDİRNE

Bordering both Greece and Bulgaria, the small sleepy town of EDİRNE boasts an impressive number of elegant

BATTLEFIELD TOURS

Various companies offer battlefield tours. The reliable Hassle Free Tours (Cumhuriyet Meydan 61, Çanakkale; ☎0286 213 5969, anzachouse.com) put on a seven-hour tour of the major sites, including a boat-trip off the landing beaches and lunch, for €40. Over in Eceabat, TJ's Hostel (☎0286 814 3121, anzacgallipolitours.com) offer a similar tour for slightly less money, as does the Crowded House Hostel's travel agency (see above). Both have very good reputations and have been doing these tours for many, many years. For those short of time there are gruelling day-trips to the battlefields from Istanbul with Hassle Free, who have a branch on Akbiyık Cad 10, Sultanahmet (☎0212 458 5500), for around €99. TJ's and Crowded House also offer similar day tours from Istanbul.

monuments. It springs to life for the week-long oil-wrestling festival of Kırkpınar (end of June) but is a relaxing alternative to Istanbul (some 230km southeast) at any time of year.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

You can see the sights on foot in a day. The best starting point is the Eski Cami (open to visitors during daylight hours aside from prayer times; free) bang in the centre, the oldest mosque in town, begun in 1403.

Just across the way, the Bedesten was Edirne's first covered market and was restored in the 1980s. The beautiful Üç Şerefeli Camii (also open to visitors outside prayer times; free) dates from 1447 and has four idiosyncratic minarets, the tallest of which has three galleries for the muezzin.

A little way east of here is the masterly Selimiye Camii (daily; free), designed by Minar Sinan. Its four slender minarets, among the tallest in the world, also have three balconies; the interior is most impressive, its dome planned to surpass that of Istanbul's Hagia Sophia (Aya Sofya). The main Archeological Museum (Tues–Sun 9am–5pm; ₺5), just northeast of the mosque, contains an assortment of Greco-Roman fragments and some Neolithic finds. A stroll south in the direction of Karaağaç, crossing the iconic Mecidiye bridge over the River Meriç, is also a pleasant way to spend a morning.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By train The train station is 5km southeast of the centre. Dolmuşes run into town from here (₺2). However, owing to the upgrade of the line in Thrace all services from Istanbul were suspended at the time of writing.

By bus The bus station is 8km southeast of the centre. When you arrive, walk through the terminal to the car park on the other side – here you'll find dolmuşes that go to the centre of town (₺2). Get off either near the main shopping area or at the Eski Cami mosque.

Destinations Ankara (10pm & 11am; 10hr); Çanakkale (4 daily; 4hr 30min); Istanbul (every 30min; 3hr); İzmir (4 daily; 10hr); Plovdiv, Bulgaria (3hr).

Tourist office Hürriyet Meydanı 17 (daily 8.30am–5.30pm; ☎ 0284 213 9208).

ACCOMMODATION

Efe Hotel Maarif Cad 13 Kaleiçi ☎ 0284 213 6166, efehotel.com. Stylish boutique hotel with impressive rooms, all manner of quirky knick-knacks strewn about, and an outdoor bar. Breakfast included. Doubles ₺175

Hotel Aksaray Alipaşa Ortakapı Cad ☎ 0284 212 6035. A small pension with a friendly English-speaking welcome, but the rooms are slightly scruffy and it feels a bit like an elderly relative's home. No breakfast. Doubles ₺85

Taşhan Hotel Çavuşbey Mahallesi Ağaçaşpazarı Cad 4 ☎ 0284 225 1413. Housed in a 500-year-old building in the centre of town, this place has been thoughtfully renovated, with cool brick walls and wooden floors a major feature. Breakfast served in a quiet courtyard. Doubles €60

EATING AND DRINKING

Hanedan Karaağaç Mah. İki Köprü Arası Cad 2. A well-situated riverside spot offering meze from ₺6 and a variety of kebabs (₺14–22). Daily until late evening.

Melek Anne Kayseri Mantısı Maarif Cad 18. Friendly, all female home-cooking joint specializing in Turkish-style ravioli (mantı) and other traditional favourites. Nice garden and free wi-fi add to the appeal. Daily 8am–9pm.

Niyazi Usta Alipaşa Ortakapı Cad 9. A renowned ciğerci (liver purveyor) in a town specializing in them, where the fried slices (₺14) are piled high and served with cacık (cucumber and yoghurt, ₺5). Proper fast food, served with lots of onion and salad. Closes at 9.30pm.

Pena Cafe Pub Alipaşa Ortakapı Cad 6. Sash windows usher cool breezes into this café-bar made up of small rooms with wooden floorboards and panelling. A youthful atmosphere in a middle-aged-feeling town. Daily 9am–1pm.

CROSSING TO BULGARIA

Edirne (see above) is a popular base for travellers crossing the border into Bulgaria. Regular buses leave from Edirne to Plovdiv and tickets cost ₺35–50 for the 4hr journey. If visiting Edirne for the day, bring your passport along even if you don't intend to cross the border. Officials at the bus station may ask to see it to make sure you haven't entered Turkey illegally.

The Aegean coast

The Aegean coast is one of Turkey's most enticing destinations, home to some of the best of its antiquities and the most appealing resorts. The city of İzmir serves as a base for day-trips to nearby sights and beaches. Visitors continuing south will be spoilt for sightseeing choices as the territory is rich in Classical, Hellenistic and Roman ruins, notably Ephesus and the remains inland at Hierapolis – sitting atop the famous pools and mineral formations of Pamukkale. The coast itself is better down south, too, and although the larger resorts, including Kuşadası, have been marred by the developers, Bodrum still has a certain charm despite the growing number of hedonistic holidaymakers.

İZMİR

İZMİR – ancient Smyrna – was mostly burned down in the Greco-Turkish war of 1919–22, and was largely built from scratch afterwards. Nowadays it's Turkey's third-largest city, a booming, cosmopolitan and relentlessly modern place that's home to around four million people. Orientation can be confusing in places, but most points of interest lie near each other, and walking is the most enjoyable way of exploring, especially along the waterfront.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

İzmir doesn't have a single centre, although the district of Konak, where you'll find a busy park, the city bus terminal and Konak Pier on the waterfront, is where visitors spend most time. Head north and you'll reach the Kültür Parkı, a large park with regular outdoor entertainment, particularly in the summer. Continue in the same direction and you'll soon reach the district of Alsancak – the hub of evening entertainment with alfresco bars and restaurants and, on the seafront, the Atatürk Museum (Tues–Sun 8.30am–5.30pm) on Atatürk Caddesi. This beautiful nineteenth-century seafront house is where Atatürk stayed when he visited the city in the 1930s. If you fancy a walk, head south along the waterfront for about twenty minutes to the city's free elevator, Asansör, which has wonderful views over the city and Gulf of İzmir.

Archeological Museum and Ethnography Museum

Southwest of the Konak Camii is İzmir's Archeological Museum (Tues–Sun:

April–Oct 8am–9pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺10). The collection consists of finds from all over İzmir province, including some stunning marble statues and sarcophagi. Next door in an old Turkish house is the charming Ethnography Museum (Tues–Sun 8am–5.30pm; free) where you can learn about the local tradition of camel wrestling and see examples of Anatolian crafts such as clog-making, lacemaking and the ubiquitous “evil eye” beads.

Kemeraltı Bazaar

Immediately east of Konak is Kemeraltı, İzmir's bazaar. The main drag, Anafartalar Caddesi, is lined with clothing, jewellery and shoe shops; Fevzipaşa Bulvarı and the alleys just south are strong on leather garments. A pleasant, relaxed alternative to the bazaar is the street market at the northernmost end of Sevgi Yolu, where you can browse jewellery, scarves, leather bracelets and lots of books, including English ones. When you've finished shopping, enjoy a Turkish coffee (₺5) at one of the many street cafés.

Kadifekale

A symbol of İzmir's historic past, the castle ruins of Kadifekale (always open; free), about 3km from Konak, provide great views of İzmir's metropolitan expanse. To get to the castle, take a red-and-white city bus #33 from Konak and get off shortly after you see the national flag flying from the top of the hill. Buses back to Konak are from the bus shelter at the corner of the road approaching the castle.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane İzmir's Adnan Menderes airport is approximately 15km outside of the city. A taxi from the airport to Çankaya is about ₺50. A cheaper alternative is to catch the Havaş shuttle bus (30min; ₺10). The Havaş service to the airport runs hourly 3.30am–11.30pm every day from the northern end of Gaziosmanpaşa Bul.

By train Intercity trains to Denizli pull in at Basmane station, 1km from the seafront at the eastern end of Fevzipaşa Bul. Longer distance trains depart from Alsancak, north of the city centre.

Destinations From Alsancak: Ankara (1 daily; 13hr); Istanbul via ferry from Bandırma (1 daily; 14hr). From Basmane: Denizli (6 daily; 5–6hr); Selçuk (8 daily; 1hr 15min).

By bus The main bus station for onward journeys is 8km east of the centre; on arrival you can jump on one of the bus companies' free shuttles or grab a taxi from around ₺40. Buses to and from Çeşme depart from the Uçkuyular bus station 10km west of the centre.

Destinations Ankara (every 30min; 8hr); Bodrum (hourly; 3hr); Bursa (hourly; 5hr); Çanakkale (10 daily; 5hr); Fethiye (15 daily; 7hr); Istanbul (hourly; 9hr); Konya (1 daily; 8hr); Kuşadası (every 30min; 1hr 30min); Marmaris (hourly; 4hr); Selçuk (every 20min; 1hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office 1344 Sok 2. Housed in a grand building near the seafront just off Atatürk Cad near the junction with Gazi Bul (daily 8.30am–5.30pm; ☎ 0232 483 5117). Helpful English-speaking staff.

GETTING AROUND

By bus To use city buses you need to buy a Kent Kart (₺6), widely available from kiosks and shops across the city. To get to Alsancak from Konak (₺2.25) take the #169, #554 or #8, all from the same bus stop on the opposite side of the road from Atatürk Kültür Merkezi (Atatürk Cultural Centre) on Mithatpaşa Cad.

By metro The handy metro system (6am–midnight; tickets ₺2.25 or use the Kent Kart) links Basmane station (the metro is located at the bottom of the escalators behind the station), Çankaya and Konak. Ticket office 7am–9.30pm.

ACCOMMODATION

Although İzmir is one of Turkey's major cities, its tourism industry is only just developing. Consequently, good-quality budget hotels are hard to come by, especially now that İzmir is a major congregating point for Syrian and other refugees en-route to Europe.

Güzel İzmir Oteli 1368 Sok 8 ☎ 0232 483 5069, www.guzelizmirhotel.com. A bright and airy central spot boasting a fitness centre (just a handful of machines dumped in a basement). Includes breakfast and wi-fi. Doubles ₺120

Hotel Imperial 1296 Sok 54 ☎ 0232 425 2051. A museum piece from the 1970s on a street littered with budget hotels. The rooms are mournful but well looked after, and some have half-decent views. Doubles ₺80

Otel Antik Han Anafartalar Cad 626 ☎ 0232 489 27 50, www.otelantikhan.com. Friendly, with a pretty courtyard where you can enjoy breakfast. Close to the ancient agora. Parking available. Doubles ₺135

Shanthihome 1464 Sok 15 ☎ 0546 235 0805, www.shanthihome.org. İzmir's only hostel is a bright, traveller-friendly place with curtained-off bunks and a fully equipped kitchen. There are even bicycles for rent. Dorms ₺30

EATING

Head to Sok numbers 1482, 1453 and 1452 in Alsancak for a night out. 1482 and 1453 have a certain grunginess about them, while narrow 1452 is a little smarter, though still young. Many of the bars change ownership and concept frequently, so exploring these streets can yield unexpected results.

Café La Cigale Fransız Kültür Merkezi, Cumhuriyet Bul 152 ☎ 0232 421 4780. Tucked away in the pleasant gardens of the French Cultural Institute, this place is worth a splurge, with delicious French and pasta dishes for around ₺20. Daily 8.30am–10.30pm.

Café du Fiesta Sok 1482. A wood-panelled café housed in a 150-year-old Greek mansion, packed out with teenagers, students and musicians knocking back good coffee and burgers (₺8). Daily 9am–11.30pm.

Defne Café 1452 Sok. Cosy little place on a cute side street where Efes is ₺10 and a steak sandwich is just ₺15. Daily lunch & dinner.

★ Varuna Gezin-Café Del Mundo 1482 Sok. A busy bar and restaurant full of students taking advantage of happy hour (until 9pm) and chowing down on international cuisine and downing a wide (for Turkey) array of international beers. Good for cocktails too. Licence plates all over the walls and booming rock music add to the atmosphere. Meal and a drink around ₺35. Daily until late.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Opening hours vary, but most clubs and bars stay open until midnight and beyond.

Berlins Alsancak Sok 1453. Jugs of mojitos and a thumping reggae and r'n'b soundtrack are the order of the day here, though many nights are given over to retro Turkish pop.

Drunken Duck 1482 Sok 15. A small but friendly bar with live music and mildly inebriated locals.

Kybele 1453 Sok 28. Live music club specializing in alt-rock and jazz with a tiny stage and super-speedy bar staff. Entrance price varies depending on who's playing (generally ₺18–35).

ENTERTAINMENT

Atatürk Kültür Merkezi Mithat Paşa Cad 92. Home to the city's own symphony orchestra, with most concerts taking place Fri & Sat eve.

Cinemaximum Atatürk Cad 19. Cinema with recent Hollywood releases. Student discount available.

State Opera and Ballet Milli Kütüphane Cad, Konak ☎ 0232 484 3692. A diverse programme of concerts ranging from classical to jazz and pop.

KUŞADASI

KUŞADASI is one of Turkey's most bloated resorts, yet the old town has its charms. Ferry services link it with the Greek island of Sámos, and the resort is a port of call for Aegean cruise ships, though this business was hit in 2016 by bombings elsewhere in Turkey, which caused several companies to temporarily suspend stops in Turkish ports.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Liman Caddesi runs from the ferry port up to Atatürk Bulvarı, the main harbour esplanade, from which pedestrianized Barbaros Hayrettin Bulvarı ascends the hill. To the left of here, the Kale district, huddled inside the town walls, is the oldest and most appealing part of town, with a mosque and some fine traditional houses. Kuşadası's most famous beach, Kadınlar Denizi, 3km southwest of town, is a popular strand, often overcrowded in summer. The best beach in the area is Pamucak, at the mouth of the Küçük Menderes River, 15km north, an exposed 4km stretch of sand that is comparatively less developed; in season it's served by regular *dolmuş*es from both Kuşadası and Selçuk.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus The combined dolmuş and long-distance bus station is about 2km out, past the end of Kahramanlar Caddesi on the ring road to Söke, while the dolmuş stop is closer to the centre on Adnan Menderes Bulvarı.

FERRIES TO GREECE

Between April and October one ferry daily departs Kuşadası at 9am to the Greek island of Sámos (€35 one-way, €40 day return, €55 open return; 1hr 15min). Between the beginning of July and mid-October an additional ferry departs Kuşadası on Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday at 5pm. Meander on Kibris Cad (right by the ferry port ☎0256 614 3859, 🌐meandertravel.com) runs up to two boats daily in summer. From Sámos, a popular follow-on destination is the party island İos (see p.530). Tickets from Sámos to İos can be bought from ITSA or By Ship travel agents located near the pier.

Tourist office Right by the ferry port (Mon–Fri 8am–5pm; summer also Sat & Sun; ☎0256 614 1103).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING

Avlu Cephan Sok 15/a. Serves a wide range of kebabs, stews, steamed vegetables and meze in an outdoor courtyard (meze from ₺7, kebabs from ₺15). Daily 8am–midnight.

Sezgin Hotel and Guesthouse Aslanlar Cad 68 ☎0256 614 4225, 🌐sezginhotel.com. A great-value spot boasting a lovely garden and swimming pool. Doubles €29

SELÇUK

Once a small farming village, SELÇUK was catapulted into the tourism limelight by its proximity to the ruins of Ephesus, once the wealthy capital of Roman Asia and now a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Pleasant Pamucak beach (see above) is easily accessible by dolmuş or bike (9km).

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The sights and attractions in Selçuk itself can easily be seen in a day. Ayasoluk hill (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺10) to the northwest of the centre is the traditional burial place of St John the Evangelist, who died here around 100 AD; it boasts the remains of a basilica built by Justinian that was one of the largest Byzantine churches in existence. Just behind the tourist office, the Efes Archeological Museum (daily 8.30am–6pm; ₺10) has galleries of finds from Ephesus, while beyond the museum, 600m along the road towards Ephesus, are the scanty remains of the Artemision or sanctuary of Artemis.

Ephesus

Ephesus (Efes in Turkish; daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺30), 3km southwest of Selçuk, is one of the largest and best-preserved ancient cities around the Mediterranean. Situated close to a temple devoted to the goddess Artemis, its location by a fine harbour was the source of its wealth, which resulted in an array of fine buildings.

In the centre of the site is the Arcadian Way, which was once lined with hundreds of shops and illuminated at night. The nearby theatre has been partly restored to allow its use for open-air concerts; climb to the top for views of the surrounding countryside. About halfway along Marble Street is a footprint, a female head and a heart etched into the rock – an alleged signpost for a brothel. Across the intersection looms the elegant Library of Celsus, erected by the consul Gaius Julius Aquila between 110 and 135 AD. Just uphill, a Byzantine fountain looks across the Street of the Curetes to the public latrines, a favourite photo opportunity with visitors.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By train The train station lies a little east of the aqueduct. Destinations Denizli (7 daily; 3hr); Izmir (8 daily; 1hr 15min).

By bus and dolmuş The bus and dolmuş terminal is a few minutes' walk south from the centre of town. Ephesus is a quick taxi ride or 40min walk away.

Destinations by bus Bodrum (3–4 direct daily; 3hr); Marmaris (1 direct daily; 4hr).

Destinations by dolmuş Kuşadası (frequent until 8–9pm; 30min); Pamucak beach (hourly; 30min); Şirince (every 30min until 7pm).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Opposite the bus terminal. Efficient rather than helpful, and no use for hotel or restaurant recommendations (daily 8.30am–noon & 1–5.30pm; winter Sat & Sun only; ☎0232 892 6945).

ACCOMMODATION

ANZ Guesthouse 1064 Sok 12 ☎0232 892 6050, anzepheusguesthouse.com. Popular backpacker choice with bicycles for rent. Free breakfast buffet on roof terrace. Check a few rooms as some are better than others. Dorms €10, doubles €30

★ Barım 1045 Sok 34 ☎0232 892 6923, barimpension.com. In an atmospheric old house complete with a charming garden, this is one of the best value options in town, with traditionally decorated rooms with exposed stone walls. £80

Boomerang Guest House 1047 Sok 10 ☎0232 892 4879, epheusboomerangguesthouse.com. A centrally located and spotlessly clean establishment comprising a number of private rooms and a decent twelve-bed dorm. There's a roof terrace and residents get ten percent discount in the restaurant. Dorms €10, doubles €40

★ Homer's Pansiyon Atatürk Mah Asmalı/1048 Sok 17 ☎0232 892 3995, homerospension.com. This

SURVIVING EPHEBUS

Ephesus is Turkey's most popular tourist site and often swarming with visitors, mostly from the cruise ships which drop off in Kuşadası. Be sure to visit early in the morning to avoid the worst of the crowds and blistering heat (you can easily walk to the site, but most accommodation offers free drop-offs from Selçuk). If you're tempted to hire a guide, do so at the tourist office in Selçuk rather than the sharks touting their services at the site itself (audioguides are available but there are few information boards). Remember to bring a hat and water (there's next to no shade).

super-friendly family-run pension is one of the best places to stay in the area. The bedrooms (some with a balcony, all with a/c) are cosy and are richly decorated with colourful carpets, blankets and knick-knacks. The roof terrace has fabulous views of the town. Free pick-up from the bus or train station and bikes available. Doubles €40

Nişanyan House Şirince village ☎0232 898 3208, nisanyan.com. A peaceful boutique hotel high on the hillside, with a private hammam and spectacular views. Rooms are individually decorated and the traditional Turkish breakfast is made on site by the talented kitchen staff. Doubles £350

EATING AND DRINKING

Café Carpouza Argenta Cad 6. This popular café, set in a huge garden, is run by the municipality so prices for the coffees and beer are reasonable. A meatball sandwich will fill you up for around ₺8. Daily 9am–midnight.

★ Mehmet and Alibaba Kebab House 1047 Sok 4/a ☎0232 892 3872. By far the most popular restaurant in town. While the food is decent enough (ranging from kebabs at ₺15 to generous plates of mixed veg meze for ₺12), the affable owners are a real draw too. Apple tea, orange tea and regular tea are free to diners. It's licensed too. Daily 9am–11.30pm.

Old House 1005 Sok 1/a ☎0232 892 9357. Carefully prepared mains including grills, seafood and Turkish standards for ₺10–25, served up in a shady little garden courtyard. Alcohol served. Daily 8am–midnight.

Selçuk Köftçisi Şahabettin Dede Cad ☎0232 892 6696. Easily overlooked because of its basic, rather bland appearance, but with forty years' experience behind it this place is all about the food. Smoky bread cooked in a wood oven, known as Şirince bread, accompanies mains. Soups ₺5–6, meaty mains around ₺15. Daily 6am–10pm.

PAMUKKALE: THE "COTTON CASTLE"

The rock formations of PAMUKKALE (literally "Cotton Castle"), 190km east of Selçuk, are well worth a detour, a series of white terraces saturated with dissolved calcium bicarbonate, bubbling up from the feet of the Çal Dağı mountains beyond. The spring emerges in what was once the ancient city of Hierapolis, the ruins of which would merit a stop even if they weren't coupled with the natural phenomenon. One ticket gives entry to the travertine terraces and the archaeological zone of Hierapolis behind (daily: April–Oct 8am–9pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺25). Tucked in among the ruins is Pamukkale Thermal Baths, home to the sacred pool of the ancients (daily April–Oct 8am–9pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺32), open for bathing in the 35°C mineral water.

Buses from İzmir, Selçuk, Antalya and Bodrum (and many other places in Turkey) run to Denizli, 20km from Pamukkale. Some bus companies have a free minibus running onto Pamukkale village, but there is also a good dolmuş service. Pamukkale village is a very pleasant place to stay, with plenty of good-value pensions and hotels. There are day-trips to Pamukkale from several coastal resorts, but they are rather gruelling.

BODRUM

In the eyes of its devotees, BODRUM – ancient Halicarnassos – with its whitewashed houses and subtropical gardens, is an attractive Turkish resort, a quality outfit in comparison to its upstart Aegean rivals. It's much favoured by yachting types, well-off urban Turks and party animals. However, in 2015 it became an exit point to Greece (the island of Kos is just 7km offshore) for Syrian refugees. The photograph of a drowned Syrian Kurdish child, 3-year-old Alan Kurdi, which touched millions of hearts around the world, was taken on a Bodrum beach in September 2015.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The town's centrepiece is the Castle of St Peter (Tues–Sun: April–Oct 8.30am–6.30pm; Nov–March 8.30am–4.30pm; ₺25), built by the Knights of St John over a Selçuk fortress between 1437 and 1522. Inside, the various towers house a Museum of Underwater Archeology, which comprises several different display halls. These include the Glass Wreck Hall, complete with a 33m-long Byzantine ship dating to 1025, the Uluburun Wreck Hall containing nautical remains from three ancient wrecks, and the Carian Princess Hall, with a sarcophagus enclosing the skeleton of a noblewoman who died in the fourth century BC.

Immediately north of the castle lies the bazaar, from where you can stroll up to Türkkuşu Caddesi to see what's left of the Mausoleum (Tues–Sun: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺10), the burial place of Mausolus, ruler of Halicarnassos from 376–353 BC and the origin of the word mausoleum.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus The bus station is 500m up Cevat Şakır Cad, which divides the town roughly in two.

Destinations Fethiye (7 daily; 5hr); Istanbul (hourly; 12hr); İzmir (hourly; 3hr, 30min); Kuşadası (3 daily; 3hr); Marmaris (hourly; 3hr 15min); Selçuk (hourly; 3hr).

By ferry Ferries dock at the jetty west of the castle. Bodrum Ferryboat Association (☎0252 316 0882, bodrumferryboat.com) runs ferries to Kos and Datça, while Bodrum Express Lines (☎0252 316 1087, bodrumexpresslines.com) handles hydrofoils to Kos, Rhodes and domestic services to Marmaris.

Destinations Datça (two daily; 90min); Kos (April–Oct 2 daily; 1hr); Rhodes (July & Aug daily; 2hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Barış Square 48, close to the jetty (Mon–Fri 8am–noon, 1–5.30pm; summer daily 8.30am–5.30pm; ☎0252 316 1091). Friendly staff will help you book accommodation and boat trips.

ACCOMMODATION

Bodrum Backpackers Atatürk Cad 37/b ☎0252 313 2762, bodrumbackpackers.net. Lively backpackers' hostel – not the place to go if you want some beauty sleep. During the summer, when all the beds are full, you can sleep on the terrace for ₺30. Breakfast and wi-fi included. Dorms/singles ₺60, doubles ₺120

Hotel Güleç Üçkuyular Cad 22 ☎0252 316 5222, hotelgulec.com. Pretty standard accommodation considering the price, but nice and secluded from the chaos. It's on a quiet street a short walk from the beach and bars. Breakfast included. Singles ₺120, doubles ₺160

Mars Otel Turgut Reis Cad, İmbat Çıkmazi 29 ☎0252 316 6559, marsotel.com. Clean, friendly and decent value, especially outside the peak July to August months when prices are around 40 percent less than those quoted here. Quiet central location. Small swimming pool, and bikes for rent. Breakfast included. Singles ₺120, doubles ₺200

Myndos Pansiyon 1017 Sok 11 ☎0252 313 4422, myndospansiyon.com. Pleasant pension with a conveniently central – but quiet – location. Plain walls, kilim-bedecked floors and petals on the bed on arrival and after each bed make-up make this a reasonably cheap option in overpriced Bodrum. ₺210

EATING AND DRINKING

Bodrum is packed with places hugging the shoreline, and offers numerous opportunities to dine in the dark on the sand. Many places are complacent and pricey, but there are a few gems to be found if you dig a little.

Le Man Kültür Cumhuriyet Cad 161 ☎0252 316 5316, lmk.com.tr. Theme chain based on the popular Turkish satirical comic of the same name, it's a great place for well-priced burgers, pizza and pasta dishes (from ₺12) and beer, and attracts affluent young Turks down from Istanbul, İzmir and Ankara for their holidays. Daily 8am–2am.

Ox Wine and Burger Bar Cumhuriyet Cad 175. A decent burger joint with a spectacular wine list, so a good choice if you're starting to tire of Efes and kebabs. Not too pricey considering the location. Gourmet burger, chips saltier than the Dead Sea and beer around ₺35. Daily noon–midnight.

★ Piknik Atatürk Cad 65 ☎0252 313 7049. One of the best-value places in town, so many of your fellow diners here will be locals. Try the spicy Adana kebab for ₺16. They also do a full range of pide. Open 24hr.

NIGHTLIFE

Hadigari 1025 Sok 2. A Bodrum stalwart that still pulls in 2000-odd punters on summer nights. Find it at the marina near Bodrum Castle and dance till daybreak under the stars. Open until 5am at weekends.

Halikarnas At the far end of the bar strip this renowned nightclub has an entry price to match its reputation (expect to pay around ₺75 to get in and bring a stuffed wallet if you want to drink). However, the place is enormous, the atmosphere electric, and varied themed shows will keep you on your feet until dawn. Daily 10pm–late.

The Mediterranean coast

The first stretch of Turkey's Mediterranean coast, dominated by the Akdağ and Bey mountain ranges and known as the “Turquoise Coast”, is its most popular, famed for its pine-studded shore, minor ruins and beautiful scenery. In the west, Fethiye is a perfect base for visits to Ölüdeniz, Kaya Köyü and Butterfly Valley. The scenery becomes increasingly spectacular as you head towards the site of Olympos, and Kaş, which offers great scuba diving, before reaching the port and major city of Antalya.

FETHİYE

FETHİYE is well situated for access to some of the region's ancient sites, many of which date from the time when this area was the independent kingdom of Lycia. The best beaches, around Ölüdeniz lagoon, are now too crowded for comfort, but Fethiye remains a charming market town and has been able to spread to accommodate increased tourist traffic.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Fethiye itself occupies the site of the Lycian city of Telmessos, little of which remains other than the impressive ancient theatre, and a number of Lycian rock tombs on the hillside. You can also visit the remains of the medieval fortress behind the harbour area of town. In the centre of town the tiny museum (Tues–Sun: June–Sept 8am–7pm; Oct–May 8am–5pm; ₺5) has some fascinating exhibits from local sites and a good ethnographic section. There are numerous boats on the harbour offering island-hopping trips (see p.1166).

Kaya Köyü

One of the most dramatic sights in the area is the ghost village of Kaya Köyü (daily 8am–5pm; ₺5), 7km out of town, served by dolmuşes departing from a stop by the Yeni Cami (New Mosque). The village, once known as Levissi, was abandoned in 1923, when its Anatolian-Greek population was relocated, and all you see now is a hillside covered with more than two thousand ruined cottages and a couple of churches.

Ölüdeniz lagoon

The warm waters of Ölüdeniz lagoon make for pleasant swimming although the crowds can reach saturation level in high season – in which case the nearby beaches of Belceğiz and Kıdrak are better bets. Ölüdeniz is about two hours on foot from Kaya Köyü or a thirty-minute dolmuş ride from Fethiye.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By bus Fethiye's bus station is 2km east of the centre.

Destinations Istanbul (5 daily; 12hr); Kaş (hourly; 4hr); Marmaris (hourly; 3hr).

By dolmuş Dolmuşes leave from near the Yeni Cami (New Mosque), which is beyond the town hall and the PTT on Atatürk Cad.

Destinations Kaya Köyü (30min; hourly); Ölüdeniz (hourly; 30min).

INFORMATION, TOURS AND ACTIVITIES

Tourist office Close to the theatre, near the harbour at Fevzi Çakmak Cad 9/d (summer Mon–Fri 8am–8pm & Sat 10am–5pm; winter Mon–Fri 8am–noon & 1–5pm; ☎0252 612 1527).

Tours Daily boat tours generally cost around ₺50, lasting from 10.30am to 6.30pm. Tickets can be bought through your accommodation.

BUTTERFLY VALLEY

Popularized in the 1980s by hippies, Butterfly Valley (Kelebek Vadisi) is a peaceful spot worth a detour. Boasting a deserted beach, a handful of shady restaurants, a waterfall and not much else, it's reached by boat from Ölüdeniz (3 return trips daily), and usually open from March to October. As the name would suggest, it's home to a colony of butterflies, including the Jersey Tiger, although they can be pretty elusive. You can get a feel for the place in a day, but if you want to linger longer basic accommodation is on offer – in tents (₺34) or bungalows (₺64); prices include a buffet breakfast and dinner. Book via ☎yenikelebeklervadisi.org/en.

Scuba diving Divers Delight (☎diversdelight.com) runs several diving courses as well as try-a-dive day-trips (₺100) and snorkelling for non-divers (₺45).

ACCOMMODATION

Duygu Pension Karagözler Ordu Cad 54 ☎0252 614 3563, ☎www.duygupension.com. Eleven rooms, some with amazing views of the bay, kept in great condition. Swimming pool and free bus station pick-up. Family-run and friendly. Doubles ₺100

★ Ferah Pension (Monica's Place) Karagözler Orta Yol 23 ☎0252 614 2816, ☎ferahpension.com. This pansiyon has lovely sea views from the upstairs rooms. Despite being part of a chain, it's pleasantly personal and well run. Free transfers from the bus station. Excellent food. Dorms ₺40, doubles ₺120

Villa Daffodil Fevzi Çakmak Cad 115, İkinci Karagözler ☎0252 614 9595, ☎villadaffodil.com. Bright yellow, mock-Ottoman structure in one of the quieter shoreline corners, with a pool, on-site restaurant, hammam and landscaped grounds, as well as fair-sized, pine- and white-tile rooms. ₺180

Yıldırım Guesthouse Fevzi Çakmak Cad 53 ☎0252 614 4627, ☎yildirimguesthouse.com. Backpackers' favourite run by the friendly Ömer. Plain but tidy carpeted rooms include three dorm rooms, one male, one female and one mixed. Generous breakfast and you can make free tea or coffee all day. Dorms ₺35, doubles ₺100

EATING AND DRINKING

Car Cemetery Bar Hamam Sok 33. Look out for the car bonnet protruding inconspicuously from the wall along Fethiye's liveliest street. This is a hip spot where shots and tasty cocktails are the order of the day (or night). Tues–Sat 6pm–4am.

The Duck Pond Eski Cami Sok 41. Bag a table next to the pond in welcome shade, sip on a beer (₺10) and nibble on a plate of the best mixed meze in town or treat yourself to a Turkish casserole. Mains from ₺18. Daily till late.

Meğri Lokantası Çarşı Cad. This lokanta, a humbler version of Meğri Restaurant round the corner, has a nice setting by the duck pond and delivers good traditional Turkish grub. Mains ₺18–25. Daily 9.30am–1am.

Mercan Balık Restaurant Hal ve Balık Pazarı, Zabita Bürosu Yanı. One of numerous restaurants surrounding the little fish market, which will cook the fish you buy and give you salad and bread into the bargain. The fish market can get popular with tourists so arrive early. Open daily.

★ Öztekli Meyve Pazarı (fruit market). Buy fresh fish from the adjacent fish market and have it cooked for a mere ₺8, which includes salad, bread or garlic bread and a special sauce. Drinks are only slightly overpriced. Daily noon–midnight.

KAŞ

KAŞ sprang to prominence after about 1850, when it established itself as a Greek fishing and timber port. It is beautifully located, nestled in a small curving bay below rocky cliffs. But what was once a sleepy fishing village is fast becoming an adventure-sports centre for backpackers, with nightlife to match.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

In ancient times Kaş was the site of Antiphellos, and a few remains of the Lycian city are scattered around town. Five hundred metres west of town lies an almost complete Hellenistic theatre, behind which is a unique Doric tomb named Kesme Mezar, again almost completely intact. Kaş is also well situated for the nearby ruins of Kekova and Patara. On Fridays there is a big market behind the bus station.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus and dolmuş All buses and dolmuşes arrive at the small bus station just north of the town at the top of Elmalı Cad.

Destinations Antalya (18 daily; 7hr); Bodrum (3 daily; 6hr); Fethiye (10 daily; 2hr).

Tourist office In the town square at Cumhuriyet Meydanı 5 (May–Oct Mon–Fri 8.30am–7pm, Sat & Sun 10am–7pm; Nov–April Mon–Fri 9am–5pm; ☎0242 836 1238).

ACTIVITIES

Kaş is a handy base for paragliding and mountain biking, and offers some of the best scuba diving in Turkey. Many of the pensions listed can organize these activities, or try one of the numerous operators in town, such as Bougainville (☎0242 836 3737, 🌐bougainville-turkey.com).

ACCOMMODATION

Most pensions are located in the streets close to the bus station, particularly around Recep Bilgin Cad and immediately beyond.

Ateş Pension Yeni Cami Sok 3 ☎0242 836 1393, 🌐atespension.com. Meals can be eaten up on the pleasant rooftop terrace, where a barbecue with up to fifteen meze will set you back ₺35. Check the rooms before agreeing – prices are negotiable on the less appealing ones. You can use the pool at the Hideaway Hotel across the road. Dorms ₺50, doubles ₺150

★ Hideaway Eski Kilise Arkası 7 ☎0242 836 1887, 🌐hotelhideaway.com. Situated at the fringes of the village, so terrace views are spectacular. The roof bar serves alcoholic drinks and proper coffee. A cut above the rest in town and run by an engaging Turkish-Belgian couple. Doubles €55

Hilal Pension Süleyman Yıldırım Cad ☎0242 836 1207, 🌐hilalpension.com. The really attentive owner here can help with all manner of excursions and activities. The rooms are decent and you can often feast on reasonably priced fish from the barbecue in the evening. A convivial spot. Doubles €35

Kaş Otel Hastane Cad 20 ☎0242 836 1271, 🌐myhotelkas.com. Spartan but superbly located, right on the seafront with its own sun loungers and a ladder into the sea. Try to get a balconied room near the water; the ones behind have no views to speak of. ₺120

EATING AND DRINKING

Bahçe Uzun Çarşı ☎0242 836 2370. The broadest range of cold and hot meze in town, served in the garden (bahçe in Turkish). Nearby, their seafood annexe Bahçe Balık serves meze and mains including swordfish fillet (₺30). Daily 10am–midnight.

Bar Celona Uzunçarşı Gürsöy Sok 2/a. This lively place, set on a busy people-watching corner, attracts a good mix of locals, expats and holiday-makers. Owner Haldun is an engaging host, the beers are well priced and the cocktails delicious. Daily until late.

Kaş'ım Öztürk Sok 15. Chicken stew, pide pizzas and good old kebabs are all cooked to delicious perfection. Perpetually popular. Daily 9am–11pm.

★ Şaraphane Hastane Cad, Yeni Cami Sok 3 ☎0242 836 2715. On a quiet side street leading to the Yeni Cami, this mellow wine bar is the perfect place to share a tasty cheeseboard (₺20) and bottle of locally produced Likya Vineyard wine (a bargain ₺30). They also do decent mains from ₺20. Daily 10am–midnight.

Sultan Garden Hükümet Cad. Set in an atmospheric spot up the hill across the harbour and offering excellent meze, this family business has played host to several weddings. Daily until late.

OLYMPUS

The Lycian site of OLYMPUS, 50km before Antalya, is located on a beautiful sandy bay and the banks of a largely dry river. It's an idyllic location with a small village that is now firmly on the backpacker circuit. You can while away several hours rambling among the overgrown ruins (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 9am–5.30pm; ₺5, including access to the beach) before chilling out on the sand. The ruins include some recently excavated tombs, the walls of a Byzantine church and a theatre, though most seats are long gone. On the north side of the river are more striking ruins, including a well-preserved marble temple entrance. Beyond is a Byzantine bathhouse, with mosaic floors, and a Byzantine canal that would have carried water to the heart of the city.

Çıralı and the Chimaera

A 1.5km walk along the pebbly beach from Olympos is the quieter holiday village of ÇIRALI. About an hour's well-marked stroll above the village's citrus groves flickers the dramatic Chimaera (open 24hr; ₺6), a series of eternal flames issuing from cracks in the bare rock, and particularly beautiful at night (take a torch for the walk there and back); many hostels in Olympos organize trips here for a small fee. The Chimaera fires have been burning since antiquity, and inspired the Lycians to worship the god Hephaestos (or Vulcan to the Romans).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By bus Catch any Kaş–Antalya bus to the minibus stop on the main highway, 11km up from the shore; in season a minibus departs every 15min from the main road to Olympos. In winter minibuses run but there are fewer of them so be prepared to take a taxi from the main road to Olympos village. There are also one or two minibuses a day from Antalya to Çıralı in season.

Money Note that there are no banks or ATMs in Olympos or Çıralı, so make sure you have enough cash before arriving. Many of the pensions can accept card payment for accommodation. There's no tourist office but hotels can help with tours and travel plans.

ACCOMMODATION

Most places in Olympos offer a choice of dorm beds or private bungalow; Çıralı is largely pensions.

Barış Pansiyon Just behind the beach near the restaurants, Çıralı ☎0242 825 7080. A choice of spartan, older en-suite rooms, a new wing of part-balconied upper-floor units (₺20 extra) and three wooden chalets, plus ample parking. Doubles ₺110, chalets ₺150

Bayram's Olympos ☎0242 892 1243, @bayrams.com. Accommodation ranges from bungalow shacks to tree-houses. Excellent facilities include laundry service and internet access. Prices include breakfast and dinner. Dorms ₺50, Treehouse doubles ₺100, bungalow ₺150

★Kadir's Olympos ☎0242 892 1250, @kadirstreehouses.com. With 338 dorm and bungalow beds mostly set in treehouses, plus space for campers, a volleyball court, the eclectic Hangar Bar for cocktails and the lively Bull Bar alfresco nightclub (from midnight till very late), it's no surprise this is the backpacker hangout of choice. No TVs in the rooms. Dorms ₺40, treehouses ₺45, bungalows ₺65

Orange ☎0242 892 1317, @olympsorangepension.com. Professionally run and offering better-quality cabins than others. Good wholesome grub too, including a decent vegetarian buffet. Prices can be bargained down a little. Dorms ₺30, bungalows ₺140

Şaban Olympos ☎0242 892 1265, @sabanpansion.com. Tranquil, treehouse-style pension set among pomegranate and lemon trees, with low-slung hammocks in shady spots, excellent home-made Turkish food offered as part of the room rate and a friendly, relaxed atmosphere. English and German spoken. Dorms ₺35, treehouses ₺60, bungalows ₺80

EATING AND DRINKING

Most hotels provide evening meals, but there are plenty of shady restaurants with locals preparing stuffed gözleme.

Cactus Café Olympos village. Chilled-out place playing reggae, set amid a pretty orange grove. Basic fare such as omelettes, salads, sandwiches and pasta dishes (from ₺8). Beer ₺9. Open daily.

Çıralı Gözleme Çıralı village between the Orange Market and Olympos Rent A Car, close to the Orange Motel. The most succulent specimens of gözleme hereabouts. Open daily.

Eski Yeni Olympos village ☎0242 892 1342. This dedicated live music venue draws some surprisingly well-known Turkish bands to its stage, with an emphasis on World Music old and new. Daily noon–2am.

Zakkum Olympos village. Another great spot to fill up on cheap gözleme. Choose from meat, cheese, potato or spinach – or all of the above – for less than ₺10. Open daily.

ACTIVE OLYMPOS

Olympos, with its beautiful scenery, calm warm sea and plenty of sunshine, is perfect for the outdoor life. Kadir's (below) offer a whole host of activities, including scuba diving, trekking on Turkey's first marked long-distance trail, the Lycian Way (@cultureroutesinturkey.com), sea kayaking, rock-climbing and mountain-biking. Prices start from €25. If you're heading to Fethiye, you can opt for the three-night gület boat trip with V-Go (☎0252 612 2113, @boatcruiseturkey.com; from €199/person), which stops en route at archaeological sites, small villages and Butterfly Valley (see box, p.1166).

ANTALYA

ANTALYA is backed by spectacular mountains, has two long swimming beaches either end of the city and, despite the grim appearance of its concrete sprawl, is an agreeable place. The main area of interest for visitors is confined to the relatively small walled old quarter, though the nearby mountain-set ancient city of Termessos is a major draw.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

Antalya is dominated by the Yivli Minare or “Fluted Minaret”, erected in the thirteenth century. Downhill from here is the old harbour, recently restored and site of the evening promenade. North is the bazaar, while south, beyond the Saat Kalesi (clock tower), lies Kaleiçi or the old town, with every house now a carpet shop, café or pension. On the far side, on Atatürk Caddesi, the triple-arched Hadrian's Gate recalls a visit by the emperor in 130 AD; Hesapçı Sokak leads south past the Kesik Minare to the cliff-edge and pretty Karaalioglu Park and its tea gardens.

Antalya Archeological Museum

The one thing you shouldn't miss is the Antalya Archeological Museum (Tues–Sun: April–Oct 9am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺20), one of the top five archeological collections in the country, with some superb statues from the nearby ancient city of Perge and many other artefacts; it's on the western edge of town at the far end of Kenan Evren Bulvarı, easily reachable by a period tram that departs from the clock tower in Kaleiçi.

Termessos

The spectacular remains of Termessos (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺5), a small but superbly situated ancient city that even Alexander the Great failed to capture, is set 1000m above sea level in a beautiful national park 30km northwest of Antalya. A dramatically situated cliff-edge theatre is the centrepiece of this gorgeously overgrown site, but the rock-cut tombs run it a close second.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

By plane The airport is 12km northeast; Havaş buses into town (₺10) depart from the domestic terminal, 5min walk from the international terminal. A taxi into the centre costs around ₺40. There are city buses but they require a travel smart card not available at the airport.

By bus Antalya's main bus station is 7km north of town. From the bus station take bus #93 to Hadrian's Gate (Üçkapılar) then walk into the old town, or take the Antray tram (you may have to purchase an Antray travel card from the terminal to do this).

Destinations Fethiye, by inland route (6 daily; 4hr); İzmir (6 daily; 9hr 30min); Kaş (6 daily; 5hr); Konya (6 daily; 5hr 30min); Olympos (every 30min; 2hr).

Tourist office A 15min walk west from the clock tower on Cumhuriyet Cad (daily 8am–6/7pm; ☎ 0242 241 1747).

GETTING AROUND

By tram A period tram runs along Atatürk Cad, ending its route at the museum. Tickets (₺1.75) can be bought on board.

ACCOMMODATION

Most budget accommodation is in the area sandwiched between Hadrian's Gate and the back of the bazaar.

Atelya Art Hotel Civelek Sok 21 ☎ 0242 2481 6416, atelyahotel.com. One of the old quarter's longest-established hotels fashioned from a superb Ottoman-era house, with several annexes of equal charm and vintage. Doubles ₺50

Özmen Pension Zeytin Çikmazı 5 ☎ 0242 241 6505, ozmenpension.com. Friendly place well located on the western edge of the old walled city. Spotless rooms and a pleasant terrace, all overseen by engaging hosts Deniz and Aziz. Doubles ₺35

Sabah Pansiyon Hesapçı Sok 60/a ☎ 0242 247 5345, sabahpansiyon.com. Backpacker-friendly place with decent rooms and a sleepy courtyard. Price includes breakfast. Dorms ₺25, doubles ₺50

White Garden Kaleiçi Kılıçaslan Hesapçı Geçidi 9 ☎ 0242 241 9115, whitegardenpansion.com. Charming Ottoman restoration with fifteen immaculate rooms with large en suites. The owners also run the nearby Secret Palace Hotel and Hadrians, two equally pretty establishments with shady gardens, charging comparable prices. Doubles ₺140

EATING AND DRINKING

Antalya's restaurants and bars are generally open from the morning until late evening.

★ Castle Bar & Restaurant Hıdırlık Kulesi Sok 48 ☎ 0242 248 6594. Perhaps the best-located of the old quarter's bar-cum-restaurants, right on the cliff-edge in the shadow of a Roman watchtower. Spectacular views across the bay, freezing beers (₺12) and a Turkish-international mix menu (mains from ₺16). Daily 8am–1pm.

Parlak Restaurant Kazım Özalp Cad Zincirlihan 7. It might not look too appealing from the outside but this popular spot is worth a visit. Try the slow-roasted chicken or lovely fresh meze. Mains ₺18–35. Daily 9am–11pm.

Salman Patisserie Fevzi Çakmak Cad. Uluç Apt 7 ☎ 0242 316 7738. Treat yourself to a sumptuous breakfast buffet or baklava and a top-notch cappuccino. Daily 7am–10pm.

Seraser Karanlık Sok 18 ☎ 0242 247 6015. A cut above the budget joints in town, serving well-presented fresh fish and other Turkish delights. Good for a special night out with fish mains from ₺22. Daily 11am–midnight.

★ Sim Restaurant Kaledibi Sok 7. Tucked away from the crowds, but well worth seeking out. A charming husband-and-wife-run place; tables are either upstairs in a small dining room decorated with antiques or outdoors on the quiet street beneath shady vines. Mains from ₺25. Daily 11am–1pm.

Central Turkey

Sandwiched between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean, Central Turkey, or Anatolia, comprises several interesting spots. Ankara grew as a result of immigration from the Anatolian villages to become the metropolis it is now. Southeast of here is the bizarre landscape of Cappadocia, where water and wind have created fantastic forms from the soft tufa rock, including forests of cones, table mountains and canyon-like valleys. Further south still, Konya is best known as the birthplace of the mystical Mevlevi sufi order and makes a convenient place to stop over between Cappadocia and the coast.

ANKARA

Modern ANKARA is really two cities, a double identity that is due to the breakneck pace at which it has developed since being declared capital of the Turkish Republic in 1923. Until then Ankara – known as Angora – had been a small provincial city, famous chiefly for the production of soft goat's wool. This city still exists, in and around the old citadel that was the site of the original settlement. The other Ankara is the modern metropolis that has grown up around a carefully planned attempt to create a seat of government worthy of a modern, Western-looking state. Often overlooked, it merits a detour of a couple of days, especially if you're travelling from Istanbul to Cappadocia.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

The city is bisected north–south by Atatürk Bulvarı, and everything you need is within easy reach of this broad and busy street. At the northern end, Ulus Meydanı, a large square and an important traffic intersection marked by a huge equestrian Atatürk statue, is the best jumping-off point for the old part of the city – a village of narrow cobbled streets and ramshackle wooden houses centring on the Hisar, Ankara's old fortress and citadel. To the south, the modern shopping district of Kızılay sees Turkish students congregate on its streets. At night, the area is awash with entertainment, bars and restaurants, as are the neighbouring districts of Kavaklıdere and Çankaya.

The Museum of Anatolian Civilizations

Located in Ulus, at the end of Kadife Sokak, is the Museum of Anatolian Civilizations (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–6.45pm; Nov–March 8.30am–5.15pm; ₺15), which boasts an incomparable collection of archaeological objects housed in a restored Ottoman bedesten, or covered market. Hittite carving and relief work form the most compelling section of the museum, mostly taken from Carchemish, near the present Syrian border. There are also Neolithic finds from Çatal Höyük, the site of one of Anatolia's oldest settlements and widely regarded as the world's first "city".

Hisar

A steep walk up Hisarpark Cad brings you to the Hisar, a small citadel amid the old city walls. Most of what can be seen today dates from Byzantine times, with substantial Selçuk and Ottoman additions. Inside the confines, follow the steps leading up the hill and look out for the flag flying in the distance as you wend your way through the narrow lanes, and you'll soon reach Ak Kale, a castle ruin that provides a perfect perch for viewing Ankara from above. A walk around the rest of the Hisar will let you amble in and out of the alleys that intersect the ramshackle houses as local kids shout greetings. Continue to head south and you'll find the twelfth-century mosque, Alâeddin Camii, along with a series of touristy souvenir stalls selling handmade carpet bags, jewellery and crockery.

Roman Ankara

What's left of Roman Ankara lies north of Ulus Meydanı. First stop is the Column of Julian on Hükümet Meydanı. Close by are the ruins of the Temple of Augustus and Rome, built in honour of Augustus around 20 BC. Northeast of here are the remains of Ankara's Roman baths (daily: April–Oct 8.30am–7pm; Nov–March 8.30am–5pm; ₺5). Only the foundation stones that supported the heating and service areas remain.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Esenboğa airport is 28km north of town. Havaş buses (₺10) meet incoming Turkish Airlines flights; a taxi will set you back around ₺80.

By train Ankara's pleasant train station, with a new terminal for high-speed trains, is at the corner of Talat Paşa Cad and Cumhuriyet Bul, from where frequent buses run to Kızılay and Ulus. The high-speed line links Ankara with İstanbul and Konya.

Destinations İstanbul (10 daily; 4hr 20min); İzmir (1 daily overnight; 13hr); Konya (7 daily; 1hr 45min).

By bus The bus station is 5km to the southwest. Some companies run minibuses to the centre, otherwise take a dolmuş or the easy and convenient Ankaray rapid transit system (₺3) to Kızılay (10min) and change onto the metro (same ticket) for Ulus (red line towards Batıkent), where most of the budget hotels are located.

Destinations Antalya (12 daily; 7hr); Bodrum (10 daily; 12hr); Bursa (hourly; 6hr); İstanbul (every 30min; 4hr 45min–6hr); İzmir (hourly; 8hr); Konya (hourly; 3hr); Nevşehir (12 daily; 4hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office There's a small but helpful tourist office in the train station offering maps and ideas for day-trips nearby (Mon–Fri 8.30am–5.30pm, closed at weekends; ☎0312 231 5572).

GETTING AROUND

Tickets for city buses and the metro system cost ₺3 per journey – or buy a travel card for ₺5 and save ₺1 per trip.

By bus As well as displaying numbers, buses in Ankara also display the names of their destinations, so it's easy to work out which one to catch. Most buses stop running between midnight and 1am.

By metro/Ankaray The metro runs from Batıkent in the northwest and splits at Kızılay where it becomes the Ankaray (light railway). The Ankaray heads to either Aşti (where the bus station is based) or Dikimevi in the east. In the summer, the metro stops running at midnight and in the winter it terminates at 11pm.

ACCOMMODATION

Most of the cheaper hotels are in the streets east of Atatürk Bul in the Ulus district. Standards are pretty basic across the board.

Çevikoğlu Çankırı Cad, Orta Sok 2 ☎0312 310 4535. Set on a quiet backstreet, this budget choice has better than average decor in the rooms and is extremely well kept – plus there's a decent buffet breakfast to set you up for the day. Doubles ₺80

★Deepsh Hostel Atac Sok 2 ☎0312 213 6338, deepshostelankara.com. This friendly hostel is spotlessly clean, with wood laminate floors and cheery decor. Dorms ₺27, doubles ₺85

Devran Opera Meydanı, Ulus ☎0312 311 0485. Friendly welcome and professional feel. Great views of the city and stadium but could do with a lick of paint and plaster in parts. Bathrooms are clean and rooms have TVs. Breakfast costs an additional ₺8. Doubles ₺80

Gülpınar Hacı Bayram Cad 6 ☎0312 311 5998. A basic hotel aimed at transient workers and the like, this is nonetheless a good option as it's as cheap as anything you'll find in Ankara. Small but clean and tidy rooms, shared bathrooms. No wi-fi. Doubles ₺55

Hotel Yeni (Çihan Palas) Sanayi Cad 5/b, Ulus ☎0312 310 4720, hotelyeni.com. A good couple of notches up from the rest of the town's more affordable hotels. Quiet and respectable and open to haggling on room prices. Doubles ₺280

EATING

Ulus, especially the Hisar, is home to a number of decent lunchtime and evening spots. Pide and kebab places are dotted about the city. For something smarter and more expensive in the evening try the Kavaklıdere district.

Ceritoğlu Konağı Kalekapısı Sok, Hisar ☎0312 324 3622. A quirky café offering gözleme for a mere ₺6, yoghurt-smothered mantı (Turkish ravioli) for ₺12 and breakfasts for ₺15. Daily 8am–7.30pm.

Kınacızade Konağı Kalekapısı Sok 28, Hisar. Guns, waistcoats, records, tankards and hookahs are just some of the random objects hanging from the walls in this intriguing spot. Especially good for its monumental, all-inclusive breakfast spread (₺60 for two). Daily 8am–1am.

Restaurant Uludağ Denizciler Cad 54, Ulus. It doesn't look like much from the outside but it has been going since 1956 and still offers some of the best kebabs and other grills in Ankara. Decent selection of desserts, too. Closes around 9pm.

Tevhid Anafartlar Cad 10 ☎0312 310 4851. This unassuming place is well known for its succulent İskender kebab (₺18), though its other kebabs and grilled meats are just as tasty. Vegetarians or the impecunious can go for the tasty pide (₺8 and up). Daily 7am–10pm.

Zenger Paşa Konağı Doyran Sok 13, Hisar. Just climbing up to the restaurant is a treat. Atmospheric location for a splurge, with hearty fixed menu evening meals starting from ₺70, which includes a couple of alcoholic drinks. Mon–Sat 10am–midnight.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

★ Eski Yeni İnkılap Sok 6, Kızılay. A lively spot on a busy bar street entertaining enthusiastic drinkers with live music inside and a large courtyard outside. Daily until late.

Fiat Tunus Cad 54, Kavaklıdere ☎0312 466 6311. Marking its territory by flames and Balearic tunes, this spot serves top cocktails to a hip, young crowd while a shot bar on the pavement aims to entice more in. A sign reads "Music, drinks, people", which has it about right. Daily 2.30pm–1am.

Ktır Tunalı Hilmi Cad 114 24, Kavaklıdere. A sprawling treat, full of locals packed into wooden booths and perusing beer-stein-shaped menus to a thumping rock and pop soundtrack. Snacks such as hotdogs and kokoreç (spiced stuffed lamb's intestines) are popular – best washed down with a large Efes beer (₺12) or two. Daily 11am–midnight.

Retrox Tunus Cad 53, Kavaklıdere ☎0312 465 0053. A dark and convivial spot, where the lights are low and the conversation kept to a murmur. Brick walls and black-and-white photography add to the ambience. Burgers, pasta dishes and the like keep the patrons' hunger at bay. Daily noon–2am.

ENTERTAINMENT

Anadolu Gösteri Kongre Merkezi Türkocağı Cad Balgat. Large performance hall for theatre or music concerts. See ☎biletix.com for tickets.

If Performance Hall Tunus Cad 14/a, Kavaklıdere ☎0312 418 9506, ☎ifperformance.com. Bands perform nightly – a stalwart of the Ankara music scene.

State Opera Atatürk Bul ☎0312 324 2210, ☎dobgm.gov.tr. Classic operas and occasional piano recitals and classical concerts. Tickets (₺30 and up) from the Dost bookshop in Kızılay or the venue.

DIRECTORY

Embassies Australia, Nenehatun Cad 83, Gaziosmanpaşa ☎0312 459 9500; Canada, Cinnah Cad 58, Çankaya ☎0312 409 2700; New Zealand, İran Cad 13 4, Kavaklıdere ☎0312 467 9054; UK, Şehit Ersan Cad 46/a, Çankaya ☎0312 455 3344; US, Atatürk Bul 110, Kavaklıdere ☎0312 455 5555.

Left luggage The train station has lockers you can use 24 hours.

Post office Merkez Postahane, on Atatürk Bul, Ulus.

CAPPADOCIA

A land created by the complex interaction of natural and human forces over vast spans of time, CAPPADOCIA, around 150km southeast of Ankara, is a superlative visual experience. Its weird formations of soft, dusty rock have been adapted into caves and even underground cities over centuries by many cultures. A short flight from Istanbul, Cappadocia is an essential destination thanks to the wide selection of competitively priced accommodation, restaurants and activities on offer. Many backpackers choose to stay in the touristy spot of Göreme, but alternatives include sleeper Uçhisar or Ürgüp, a small town where many of the old abandoned cave dwellings have been renovated into guesthouses and private homes. Less appealing is the working city of Nevşehir, which acts as a transport hub for the region.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

A relatively easy 1km walk from Göreme village, the Göreme Open-Air Museum (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺20) is the site of more than thirty cave churches, mainly dating from the ninth century to the end of the eleventh century and a treasure-trove of detailed frescoes in dark recesses – many of which have been defaced in distant centuries.

Outdoor pursuits include walking in the valleys, in particular Ihlara Valley; allow two to four hours per walk and don't miss a stop at one of the rustic farmer-run teashops en route. Note that there are no detailed maps of the area and waymark signs tend to be arrows painted on rocks. The best routes are Pigeon Valley between Göreme and Uçhisar, and the Red Valley from Ortahisar to the village of Çavuşin. The open-air museum at Zelve (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺10), meanwhile, was occupied for some 4000 years until as recently as the 1920s, and was the site of a monastery from the ninth to the thirteenth centuries.

Derinkuyu and Kaymaklı

Among the most extraordinary phenomena of the Cappadocia region are the remains of a number of underground settlements, some of them large enough to have accommodated up to 30,000 people. The cities are thought to date back to Hittite times, though the complexes were later enlarged by Christian communities. Most thoroughly excavated is Derinkuyu (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺20), 29km from Nevşehir and accessible by dolmuş. The city is well lit, and the original ventilation system still functions remarkably well, though some of the passages are small and cramped. The excavated area consists of eight floors and includes stables, wine presses and a dining hall or schoolroom with two long, rock-cut tables, plus a cruciform church and dungeon.

Some 10km north of Derinkuyu is Kaymaklı (daily: April–Oct 8am–7pm; Nov–March 8am–5pm; ₺20), where only five of its underground levels have been excavated to date.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane The region is served by two main airports, Kayseri Erkitel Airport about 1hr from Göreme, and Nevşehir, which is much closer and more convenient. Taxis and shuttles run from the latter, but your hotel may arrange transport.

Destinations from Kayseri Istanbul (6 daily; 90min).

Destinations from Nevşehir Istanbul (2 daily; 90min).

By bus Direct services arrive at the Göreme bus station, located in front of Müze Cad, in the centre of town. However, some firms will drop you off in Nevşehir, from where you'll have to continue by local bus or dolmuş. The dolmuş runs between Nevşehir and Ürgüp, calling at Göreme, several times an hour from 7am to 11pm. You shouldn't have to wait long for a ride. When buying your bus ticket, be sure to check the end destination.

Destinations from Nevşehir Ankara (7 daily; 5hr); Konya (6 daily; 3hr).

INFORMATION, TOURS AND ACTIVITIES

Numerous travel agencies offer tours of the region, which take in the best of Cappadocia's panoramic points, underground cities, monasteries and other attractions.

Tourist office By Göreme bus station (daily 5am–8pm); it offers accommodation lists and maps but not much in the way of help.

Middle Earth Travel Göreme ☎0384 271 2559, middleearthtravel.com. From €60/person for hikes in the Ihlara valley; from €190 for two-day climbs up Erciyes Dağı or Hasan Dağı; from €590 for a one-week trek, including accommodation and meals.

Argeus Travel argeus.com.tr. Specialize in cycling and hiking trips (between $435 and $755 for a three-night hiking tour including accommodation, depending on group size), while bicycles, mopeds and jeeps can be rented from a number of spots in Göreme.

Kapadokya Balloons ☎0384 271 2442, kapadokyaballoons.com. The original balloon operator offers standard flights (1hr) beginning at dawn and costing €175/person, including transfers, insurance and champagne breakfast.

GETTING AROUND

By dolmuş Dolmuşes operate regularly between Cappadocia's villages, departing Göreme for example every 15min from 7am to around 10.30pm.

ACCOMMODATION

Cave hotels are the most popular form of accommodation in Cappadocia, but there are alternatives – often with great views – for those not keen on a night underground. Some hostels/hotels can be tricky to find, though most are walkable from bus stations. If you're staying in another village, ask your accommodation, as many will arrange a free transfer from the bus station.

GÖREME

Kookaburra Konak Sok 10 ☎0384 271 2549, kookaburramotel.com. Well-established and well-run hostel that ticks all the right boxes – quiet location, clean rooms, friendly owner (İhsan) and lovely roof terrace. Dorms €10, doubles €40

Köse Pansiyon Ragıp Üner Cad, Göreme ☎0384 271 2294, kosepension.com. Large, homely pension near the bus station with swimming pool, shady outdoor and rooftop areas to relax in. The mattress-strewn dorm is in a large wooden hall on the roof. Free wi-fi. Breakfast and evening meal, served daily, are extra. Dorms ₺20, doubles ₺120

Rock Valley Pension Isali Mah, İceri Dere Sok, Göreme 0384 271 2153. Attractive mix of same- and mixed-sex dorms and private rooms. Big pool with the valley looming up all around. A pleasant, low-key option. Breakfast included. Dorms ₺22, doubles ₺90

UÇHISAR

★ Kale Konak Kale Sok 9, Uçhisar 0384 219 2828, www.kalekonak.com. A wonderfully cosy and labyrinthine hotel at the foot of Uçhisar Castle. All fifteen rooms are spectacular and the affable owner keeps large tour groups away. A private session in the marble hammam (free) is the ultimate indulgence. A top place to blow the budget for a night or two. Doubles €140

ÜRGÜP

★ Esbelli Evi Esbelli Sok 8, Ürgüp 0384 341 3395, www.esbelli.com. Magnificent views and sumptuous boutique rooms in caves with private terraces and secluded courtyard gardens at one of Cappadocia's finest – and oldest – hotels. Laptops with Skype in each room. Well worth stretching your budget for. Includes breakfast. Doubles €135

EATING AND DRINKING

In Göreme, several restaurants and bars are on Müze Cad, behind the bus station. Most places in the region are open every day until quite late in the evening during high season.

GÖREME

Dibek Hakkı Paşa Meydanı, Göreme 0384 271 2209. It won't take long for someone to tell you about this place's testi kebab (₺42) but it takes the restaurant a long time to cook it – you need to order it when you make your reservation. The building is nearly 500 years old. Daily 8am–late.

Fatboys Belediye Cad 0536 936 3652. Emphasizing the clientele's international origins rather than its Central Anatolian location, this is the place to come to relax with a local or imported beer and eat pizza, burgers or hummus. Board games and big-screen sports add to the backpacker vibe. Daily 9am–late.

Top Deck Efendi Sok 15 0384 271 2474. Run by a welcoming Turkish-South African couple, this atmospheric cave-set restaurant offers great meze (from ₺9) and tasty mains from ₺22. There are plenty of vegetarian options, and hearty desserts are dished up with a scoop of ice cream. Reservations essential. Mon–Thurs, Sat & Sun 6–10pm.

ÜRGÜP

★ Ziggy's Yunak Mah, Tefvik Fikret Cad 24, Ürgüp 0384 341 7107. Delicious meze, superb mains (including a spectacular liver dish), an outdoor terrace and charming owners make this an essential, if pricier, stop. Booking essential. Around ₺60 per head including local wine. Daily noon–11pm.

KONYA

Roughly midway between Antalya and Nevşehir, KONYA is an unremarkable city but an essential place of pilgrimage for the Muslim world – the home of Celaleddin Rumi or the Mevlâna (“Our Master”), the mystic who founded the Mevlevi or Whirling Dervish sect, making it a centre of Sufic mystical practice and teaching.

The Mevlâna Museum

The Mevlâna Museum (daily: April–Oct 9am–6.30pm; Nov–March 9am–4.40pm; free) is housed in the first lodge (tekke) of the Mevlevi dervish sect, at the eastern end of Mevlâna Bulvarı, recognizable by its distinctive fluted turquoise dome. Inside are the tombs of the Mevlâna, his father and other notables. The original semahane (ceremonial hall) exhibits some of the musical instruments of the first dervishes, the original illuminated poetical work of the Mevlâna, and a 500-year-old silk carpet from Selçuk Persia (supposedly the finest ever woven). In the adjoining room, a casket containing hairs from the beard of the Prophet Mohammed is displayed alongside illuminated medieval Korans and other sacred texts.

Karatay Tile Museum

Built by Emir Celaleddin Karatay in the thirteenth century, the interior of the Karatay Tile Museum (Alâeddin Bulvarı; daily: April–Oct 9am–6.40pm; Nov–March 9am–4.40pm; ₺5) is as fascinating as the ceramics on show, with a beautifully decorated domed central ceiling and ornamental green tiles.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Konya's airport is 18km from the city. Havaş shuttle buses take 30min to the centre (₺10); a taxi will cost around ₺50. (₺40 by taxi). Head to the Turkish Airlines office at Feritpaşa Cad 10/b in the city for the return journey.

By train The train station is 2km out of the centre at the far end of İstasyon Cad, connected to the centre by regular dolmuş.

Destinations Ankara (7 daily; 1hr 45min); Istanbul (2 daily; 4hr 35min); İzmir (1 daily; 11hr 30min).

By bus The bus station is 10km out of town, from where the otogar dolmuş and tramway connects with the town centre. Follow the tramway signs and purchase a pass at the small ticket booth.

Destinations Ankara (hourly; 3hr); Antalya (8 daily; 5hr); Istanbul (every 40min; 10hr); Nevşehir (10 daily; 3hr 30min).

INFORMATION

Tourist office Azize Mahallesi, Aslanlı Kışla Cad 5. By the Mevlâna Museum and very helpful (daily 8am–5pm; ☎ 0032 353 4021, ext 147).

GETTING AROUND

By tram The city has one main tram line running from Alâeddin in the centre to the outskirts via the Otogar. Buy tickets from booths by the stops.

ACCOMMODATION

Deluxe Otel Ayanbey Sok 22 ☎ 0332 351 1546, konyadeluxeotel.com. All 25 rooms are en suite with a/c, minibar and flat-screen TV at this hotel, with a business-style feel but impressive for the money. Little English but welcoming nonetheless. Doubles ₺90

Hich Hotel Aziziye Mah Celal Sok 6 ☎ 0332 353 4424, hichhotel.com. Located in an impressive historic

WHIRLING Dervish CEREMONY

This meditational ceremony, where worshippers spin around to draw closer to God, is held at the Mevlâna Cultural Centre near the museum. The ceremony is free and takes place every Saturday night. No need for a ticket; just turn up (8pm winter; 9pm summer). You'll find plenty of background reading on mevlana.net.

building opposite the Mevlâna Museum, this small boutique-style hotel offers a different experience to standard Konya hotels. Wrought-iron furniture gives a traditional feel; espresso machines and iPhone docks a touch of modernity. Doubles €80

Rumi Hotel Durakfâkîh Sok 5 ☎ 0332 353 1121, rumihotel.com. A comfortable and very centrally located hotel opposite the Mevlâna Museum, with spectacular views from the rooftop breakfast terrace. Large rooms and decent bathrooms. Doubles ₺150

★ Ulusan Off Alâeddin Cad on side road behind the PTT ☎ 0332 351 5004, ulusanhotel@hotmail.com. A family-run place helmed by an eccentric and amiable host with great English. Stuffed toys and knick-knacks throughout. Shared bathrooms but decent rooms and a home-away-from-home feel. Doubles ₺90

EATING AND DRINKING

Konya has a handful of half-decent restaurants but no reputable bars or pubs to speak of. Locals prefer to hang out around a nargile, and few women venture out at night alone. The area around Alâeddin Parkı is where younger people congregate, although there's not a lot to do there either.

Ali Baba Fırın Kebab Şeref Şirin Sok ☎ 0532 581 560. A Konya speciality is lamb slow-cooked in a wood-fired oven. This is the place to try it, served up with tender, warm pide bread and sliced onions. Prices, based on grams, start from ₺12. Mon–Sat 10am–5pm.

Mevlevi Sofrası Nazimbey Cad 1/a. Smart, spacious terrace with sweeping views of the museum garden. If you're hungry after a museum visit, try the adana kebab (₺14) or a tasty meat and vegetable casserole known as güveç (₺18). Daily 8am–11pm.

Osmanlı Çarşısı İnce Minare Sokak. A classic nargile and coffee place with Ottoman-style rooms spread over several floors. It is behind the İnce Minare Medresesi on an atmospheric street flooded with green lights. Daily until late.

Somatçı Akçeşme Mahallesi Mengüç Cad 36. A converted Ottoman house on a quiet and atmospheric cobbled street serving traditional food to a mostly local clientele. Photos on the wall are testament to the many happy punters since it opened. Mains from ₺20. Daily 8am–10pm.

Introduction

The second-largest country in Europe, Ukraine has not always had clearly defined frontiers and has spent large tracts of its history under foreign rule. However, it has long had a clear sense of national identity, which has been strengthened by the 2014 Euromaidan revolution and the ensuing political tension between Ukraine and Russia. National pride coexists with a mixture of cultural influences: Ukrainians living in Kyiv, Odesa and the east may well speak the Russian language at home and on the streets, while those living in L'viv and the west speak Ukrainian in all social situations – and are enormously proud of the fact.

Despite being a country of large distances and time-consuming travel, Ukraine is not as far away as you might think, and its three key cities are well worth fitting in to a wider European trip. Ukraine's fast-paced capital Kyiv offers a fascinating insight into a country in the throes of transformation, with chic boutiques and slick bars sprouting up along broad, cobbled boulevards. Glittering church domes and steeples show off the city's medieval glories. One of Europe's great maritime cities, Odesa exudes a sense of Tsarist-Empire grandeur, while its bars and beaches provide a vibrant hedonistic edge. In total contrast is the western city of L'viv, a Central European city that looks like an estranged cousin of Vienna or Prague, and has the cultural attractions and café life to match. Situated within easy travelling distance of Central European cities, L'viv is the one Ukrainian city that you should squeeze into your itinerary.

CHRONOLOGY

Tenth century AD A strong Slav state known as "Rus" emerges, centred on Kyiv.

988 Prince Vladimir of Kyiv accepts Christianity.

1240 Kyiv is sacked by the Tatars.

1362 After the Battle of the Blue Waters, much of Ukraine is absorbed into the Grand Duchy of Lithuania.

1569 The Union of Lublin creates the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth, with most of Ukraine falling under direct Polish rule.

1648 Cossack leader Bohdan Khmelnytskyi leads an uprising against the Commonwealth.

1654 Khmelnytskyi swears allegiance to Tsarist Russia, bringing central and eastern Ukraine into the orbit of Moscow. Western Ukraine remains in Polish, then Habsburg, hands.

1709 An anti-Russian revolt under Ivan Mazepa is defeated.

1780s Russia drives the Ottoman Turks from southern Ukraine and the Crimea.

1794 Russian Empress Catherine the Great founds the Black Sea port of Odesa.

1917–21 The Russian Revolution sparks failed attempts to re-create an independent Ukrainian state. Central and Eastern Ukraine are absorbed into the Soviet Union, while Western Ukraine becomes part of Poland.

1932–33 Stalinist collectivization policies lead to the Holodomor or Great Famine, resulting in anything between 2.5 and 7.5 million deaths.

1941 Nazi Germany invades Ukraine, meeting fierce resistance in Kyiv and Odesa.

1945 International borders are redrawn: Western Ukraine is absorbed into the Ukrainian Soviet Republic.

1986 A fire at the Chernobyl power plant leads to the world's worst nuclear accident.

1991 The USSR is dissolved and Ukraine becomes an independent state.

2004 Viktor Yanukovych wins a presidential election regarded by many as fraudulent. Popular protests spark the so-called Orange Revolution. A re-vote is won by pro-Western Viktor Yushchenko.

2009 The Orange Revolution runs out of steam: Viktor Yanukovych is re-elected president.

November 2013 President Yanukovych's failure to sign a long-awaited association agreement with the EU sparks the protest movement known as Euromaidan.

February 2014 Yanukovych signs a compromise agreement with EU mediators and then flees to Russia, leaving a power vacuum filled by parliament.

March 2014 Moscow exploits Ukraine's weakness by staging a takeover of Crimea and stoking rebellion in Ukraine's Russian-speaking east.

February 2015 Ukraine and Russia sign the so-called Minsk II ceasefire agreement, although tension in the east remains.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

The main hub for arrivals by air is Kyiv Borispol, which is served by major European and transatlantic airlines. The smaller Kyiv Zhulyany is used by the budget carrier Wizz Air, while the airports at Odesa and L'viv receive a limited number of flights from other European cities. Kyiv Central Railway Station (sometimes marked on timetables as Kyiv Pasazhirs'kyi) is the main international train station, served by overnight trains from Budapest, Kraków and Warsaw. The western Ukrainian city of L'viv is the easiest to reach from Central Europe, served by trains from Budapest, Moscow, Warsaw and Kraków, as well as buses from Kraków, Warsaw and Prague.

GETTING AROUND

Ukraine's principal cities are a long distance apart and travelling between them usually takes a whole day or night. Trains and buses are frequently booked solid days in advance so it is wise to plan ahead. Public transport in Ukraine's cities is cheap, with flat fares rarely exceeding 5Hr. Many urban transport routes are operated by privately owned minibuses known as marshrutki. They are speedier than regular buses and trams, but can be overcrowded.

BY TRAIN

Train is the cheapest way to travel, though only one or two daytime trains run each way on the Kyiv–Lviv and Kyiv–Odesa routes; all other services are overnight. The cheapest tickets are for platskart or third class, a cramped open carriage in which the (hard) seats are turned into bunks at night. The next step up is kupe, a second-class compartment with four bunks, while luxe are private one- or two-person sleeping compartments that are three times more expensive. Whichever class you travel in, your carriage will be controlled by an attendant (provodnitsa) who serves tea but also prevents you from wandering around from carriage to carriage. Dining cars are rare, so bring your own food and drink. Train stations (vokzal) are confusing places with little in the way of Latin-script labelling and a proliferation of counters selling different types of ticket. Counters selling tickets for today are marked “Dobovoho prodazhu”; those for advance bookings are marked “Poperednyoho prodazhu”. International tickets are bought from counters marked “Mizhnarodnoho spolucheniya”.

BY BUS

Intercity bus services are slightly quicker than trains and usually run during daylight hours, although tickets are more expensive. Companies such as Avtolyuks (autolux.ua) and Günsel (gnslnlines.ua) run services between Kyiv and Odesa and have booking offices at the main bus stations (avtovoksal) in each city. Kyiv–Lviv services are operated by a range of smaller private companies. Several operators provide “VIP” or “Express” services that are quicker and slightly more expensive than the regular buses; tickets sell out fast and should be booked well in advance.

ACCOMMODATION

Backpacker hostels are common in the main cities. They’re often rough-and-ready affairs in converted apartments, although most offer a mixture of multi-bed dorms (€7–10 per bed/190–270Hr) and private doubles, with a kitchen and/or common room to lounge around in and socialize.

Hotels are the most unpredictable category of accommodation, with informal B&Bs, Soviet-era concrete blocks and modern business-oriented establishments all charging similar prices for hugely varying levels of comfort. In Kyiv it is easy to find a habitable double room for less than €50/1300Hr; prices are cheaper still in Odesa and Lviv.

Local agencies rent out private rooms and apartments to tourists in Odesa, where a small self-catering apartment can be cheaper than a double room in a hotel.

FOOD AND DRINK

Ukrainian cities are well supplied with restaurants (restoran) and cafés, while pubs frequently have a full menu of food. Cheap and convenient are the self-service canteens (stolova), which serve local food and help-yourself salads at hard-to-resist prices.

Ukraine is one of the original homelands of borshch, the pinky-hued beetroot soup. Ukrainian borshch often includes cabbage, along with bits of pork or other meat. A summer alternative to borshch is okroshka, a cold soup consisting of sour milk, cucumber, bits of ham and boiled egg. Other staples include varenyky, ravioli-like parcels of dough with potato, cottage cheese or minced-meat fillings; sirniki, cylindrical little cheese cakes with a sweet-and-savoury taste; and a whole range of pancakes (mlintsi) stuffed with a variety of ingredients. Pork, beef and chicken figure prominently among the main courses; fish (particularly anchovy and mackerel) is common on the Black Sea coast. Buckwheat (brehka) is a staple side order, while bread with salo (pork fat) is a traditional snack. Central Asian dishes once popular across the Soviet Union and still ubiquitous in Ukraine include shashlik (shish-kebab) and cheburek (a deep-fried meat pastry).

DRINK

Horilka (vodka) is very much the national drink. It usually comes in classic, clear form, although flavoured varieties are also available – medova s pertsem (honey vodka with hot red pepper) is the one you must try at least once. The standard measure for spirits is 5cl (almost a double by Western standards), so consume in moderation. Ukrainian beer (pivo) is on the whole excellent, with Obolon, Slavutich, Lvivske and Chernihivske among the main mass-market brewers. Most produce a regular lager-type brew (svitle) alongside a dark porter (tamne) and a “white” unfiltered beer (bile). In addition, an increasing number of brewpubs serve up their own-brand ales, and a good number of small-scale breweries (notably Stare Misto in Western Ukraine) are producing a cracking range of tasty beers.

There is a handful of domestic red and white wines from the Crimea, although most bars and restaurants in Kyiv and Lviv tend to serve European, Australian and American imports.

Hookah pipes (kalyan) with flavoured tobaccos are very popular among young adults and are a regular feature of Ukrainian bars.

CULTURE AND ETIQUETTE

The majority of Ukrainians are Orthodox Christians. In churches and monasteries, women should cover their heads and shoulders (there may well be stalls outside selling cheap scarves and shawls for precisely this purpose), while men should don long trousers. Tipping is not required if you are just having a drink in a café, but ten percent is common in restaurants.

SPORTS AND OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

Football is the most popular spectator sport, with Shakhtar Donetsk (UEFA Cup winners in 2009) and Dinamo Kyiv enjoying mass support. Karpaty L'viv have had their moments, playing in the group stages of the Europa League in 2010.

Ukraine's main hiking area is in the smooth green hills of the Carpathian range, with the 2061m Mount Hoverla (Ukraine's highest) the main target. The trailheads are a good three to four hours' drive southeast of L'viv so you will need to plan a two- to three-day trip to make the most of it.

COMMUNICATIONS

Post offices (poshta) in major cities are open Monday to Saturday 9am to 9pm, Sunday 10am to 5pm. Increasingly rare, public phones on the street can only be used for local calls and take phonecards (purchased at the post office). Long-distance and international calls are best made from a telephone office (usually attached to the main post office), where you pay a deposit before being assigned a cabin to make your call. Cheap international calls are also available at many of the internet cafés spread throughout city centres. Mobile phone roaming charges are slightly more expensive in Ukraine than elsewhere in Europe; if you are likely to use your mobile phone a lot then consider buying a prepaid local SIM card. If you are travelling with a laptop, wi-fi is free in many hostels, hotels and city-centre cafés.

EMERGENCIES

Ukraine is a relatively safe country to travel in, although tourists are frequently the target of pickpockets and petty thieves. Ukrainian police occasionally carry out spot checks on foreigners, so always carry your passport with you. They rarely speak English.

High-street pharmacies (apteka) sell familiar medicines over the counter. Each city has a 24hr pharmacy in the centre. Staff in Ukrainian public hospitals are unlikely to speak English and you are advised to seek private treatment in the event of illness or injury – so make sure you are insured before you travel.

INFORMATION

Lviv is the only Ukrainian city that has a tourist information office and Latin-alphabet signage in the streets. In Kyiv and Odesa, hostel staff and private tourist agencies are the most likely sources of information.

MONEY AND BANKS

Currency is the hryvnia (Hr/UAH), divided into 100 kopinky. Coins come in 1, 2, 5, 10, 25 and 50 kopinky denominations; and notes in 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 and 200 hryvnias. At the time of writing, £1 = 32Hr, €1 = 27.50Hr, US$1 = 24.50Hr. Banks (Mon–Fri 9am–6pm, Sat 9am–noon) and exchange offices (obmin valyut) offer similar exchange rates. Credit and debit cards are accepted in larger hotels and city-centre shops, but will be refused elsewhere. ATMs are fairly widespread.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Fire ☎ 101; Police ☎ 102; Ambulance ☎ 103.

OPENING HOURS AND HOLIDAYS

An increasing number of shops in Ukrainian cities are open 10am to 6pm daily, although some have restricted hours on Saturdays and are closed on Sundays. Most museums and historic sights are closed one day a week, and one day at the end of the month for cleaning. Public holidays are January 1, January 7, January 8, March 8, Easter Sunday & Monday, May 1, May 9, Pentecost (50 days after Easter), June 28 and August 24.

Kyiv

Sprawling, energetic but never overwhelming, KYIV (Київ) combines the stately aura of a great historical city with the raw vigour of a rapidly changing society. Golden-domed churches recall the city's role as the birthplace of Christian Rus – the medieval Slav civilization that subsequently gave rise to both the Ukrainian and Russian nations. Designer-label boutiques, flashy bars and top-of-the-range jeeps offer a jarringly contemporary contrast. With attractions aplenty and a fast-developing nightlife scene, it's a city that is easy to enjoy. It also remains an easy-to-explore capital despite its scale: walking distances between the main sights are not too taxing, and the city's metro system provides quick and cheap transport from one neighbourhood to the next.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

At the heart of the city is Khreshchatyk, a broad, tree-lined boulevard that leads to Maidan nezalezhnosti, the square that gave its name to the Euromaidan revolution of 2014. A brace of historic churches occupies the high ground above, while downhill to the northeast is Podil, an area of serene Neoclassical buildings bordered by residential streets. Linking the two is Andriiv's'kyi uzviz ("St Andrew's Descent"), the winding cobbled street that best captures the atmosphere of nineteenth-century Kyiv. A short southbound hop on the metro is Kyivo-Pecherska Lavra, a rambling monastery complex famous for its icon-rich churches and candlelit catacombs. Bordering the monastery complex to the south, a swathe of riverside park is dominated by Rodina Mat', the imperious statue that symbolizes Soviet Ukraine's struggles against Nazi Germany during the "Great Patriotic War" of 1941–45.

Khreshchatyk and around

Lined by shops and cafés, Khreshchatyk is the place where many Kyivans come to sip coffee during the day and stroll on summer evenings. At its southwestern end, the boutiques of the Metrograd underground shopping centre provide a contemporary contrast to the pre-World War I Besarabs'kyi Rynok, the indoor market hall that fills daily with fresh produce.

Opposite the Rynok on the corner of Velyka Vasylkiv's'ka and Baseina, the Pinchuk Art Centre (Tues–Sun noon–9pm; free; pinchukartcentre.org) displays contemporary art on four storeys, with major international names featuring heavily in the programme. The top-floor café is decked out in minimalist all-white style and comes with roofline views of downtown Kyiv.

Maidan nezalezhnosti

A horseshoe-shaped square at the eastern end of Khreshchatyk, Maidan nezalezhnosti or "Independence Square" has long served as the symbolic heart of the city. During the Soviet period it hosted a statue of Lenin, removed by pro-independence protesters in 1991 and replaced in 2001 with a gilded statue of Berehynia, the pre-Christian spirit adopted by romantically inclined Ukrainians as some kind of all-protecting mother-goddess. The scene of mass demonstrations during the so-called Orange Revolution of December 2004, Maidan nezalezhnosti once again became the focus of protest in November 2014, when spontaneous gatherings in support of European integration snowballed to become the Euromaidan Revolution. Billboard-sized photos recall the places where barricades were erected against riot police, while shrine-like memorials remember the “Heavenly Hundred” (Nebesna sotnya; currently estimated to number around 130), the protesters killed by police brutality and sniper fire during the violent clashes of February 19–21, 2015.

St Sofia's Cathedral

Beckoning visitors with its vivacious cluster of green and golden domes, St Sofia's Cathedral at Volodymyrs'ka 24 (Mon, Tues & Fri–Sun 10am–6pm, Wed 10am–5pm; complex 3Hr, cathedral and museums 50Hr) was founded by Prince of Rus Yaroslav the Wise in 1037. Inside the church is Kyiv's most stunning collection of medieval frescoes and mosaics, with scenes in the central dome including Christ Pantocrator surrounded by angels, and a resplendent Virgin with outstretched arms.

St Michael's Golden-Domed Cathedral

Standing opposite St Sofia's at the far end of a long square, St Michael's (daily 8am–7pm) was demolished by the Soviets in the 1930s and faithfully reconstructed six decades later. A medieval church given a thorough Baroque makeover in the eighteenth century, it was the first church in Kyiv to sport gilded domes, a practice later picked up by most of the other churches in the city. The church interior contains fragments of original twelfth-century mosaics and frescoes, taken to St Petersburg in 1937 and returned to Kyiv in 2008.

Andriivs'kyi uzviz

Still paved with its original cobblestones and lined with nineteenth-century houses, the steep and winding

Andriivs'kyi uzviz is one of the few streets to have preserved its pre-Revolutionary appearance. It is also Kyiv at its most tourist-laden, lined with stalls selling Ukrainian embroidered shirts, Soviet-era collectables and souvenir tat. At the top of the street is St Andrew's Church (daily except Wed 10am–6pm), designed by Baroque master Bartolomeo Rastrelli, its slender dome-topped towers spearing skywards like a gargantuan clump of divine asparagus. Halfway down, the Mikhail Bulgakov Museum at no. 13 (Mon noon–5pm, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10am–5pm; 60Hr) fills the novelist's former home with a theatrically arranged collection of exhibits, drawing attention to the more fantastical elements of the author of The Master and Margarita's work. At the bottom of the street, the One Street Museum at no. 2 (Tues–Sun noon–6pm; 50Hr) recalls the area's Tsarist-era heyday through a collection of period costumes and sepia photographs.

The Chernobyl Museum

Main sight of the Podil area is the Chernobyl Museum at prouluk Khoreviy 1 (Natsional'niy muzei Chornobyliu; Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat 10am–5pm; 40Hr; English-language audioguide

CHORNOBYL TOURS

Tours of the 30km exclusion zone around the Chernobyl reactor are offered by a growing number of local tour agencies. It's a long (and relatively expensive) day-trip but is definitely worthwhile – a uniquely numbing memorial to government stupidity and the selfless sacrifice of those who cleared up afterwards. Tours pass near the reactor before visiting the ghost town of Pripyat alongside other eerily deserted sites within the exclusion zone. Despite the high levels of radiation within the zone, one day's exposure is thought to be too insignificant to have an adverse effect on a visitor's health. Prices range from US$130–500 per person depending on how many individuals sign up for the tour. Tours are advertised by almost all hostels and hotels in Kyiv; otherwise contact one of the agencies in town (see p.1186).

80Hr; @chornobylmuseum.kiev.ua), an informative and frequently moving account of the events of April 1986 – when an explosion at Chornobyl nuclear power station, 100km north of Kyiv, released a radioactive plume of smoke that travelled over much of Central Europe. The 50,000-strong city of Pripyat was evacuated, and a 30km exclusion zone established – it still exists today. The museum is mostly labelled in Ukrainian, although the photographs and newsreels on display tell the story eloquently enough. It's certainly an affecting tribute to the emergency crews who risked their lives in the aftermath of the disaster.

Kyivo-Pecherska Lavra

Few sights in Kyiv pack the historical and spiritual punch of Pecherska Lavra, the "Cave Hermitage" founded on a bluff overlooking the River Dnipro in the eleventh century. Located 1.5km southeast of Khreshchatyk, just beyond the Arsenal'na metro station, this sprawling complex of churches, monastery buildings and museums is regarded as the birthplace of Ukrainian and Russian Orthodoxy, and is swarming with pilgrims all year round.

The Lavra is divided into two parts, the Upper Lavra to the northwest and the Lower Lavra to the southeast. The Upper Lavra centres on the Cathedral of the Dormition and its accompanying bell tower, a five-storey Baroque beauty topped by a gilded dome. Also inside the Upper Lavra compound is the worthwhile Museum of Ukrainian Folk Art (Mon & Wed–Sun 10am–6pm; 20Hr), containing the phantasmagorical paintings of self-taught village artist Mariya Pryimachenko.

Highlight of the Lower Lavra is the system of caves used by medieval monks as burial vaults, the dry subterranean air helping to mummify many of the bodies laid to rest there. Entrance to the largest group of catacombs, the Near Caves, is inside the Church of the Raising of the Cross (daily 9am–6pm). Among the coffins stored in niches are the Lavra's founder, Anthony of Athos, eleventh-century folk hero Ilya Muromets, and twelfth-century chronicler Nestor.

The Ivan Honchar Museum

Right outside the Lower Lavra's boundary wall, the Ivan Honchar Museum, Ivana Mazepy 29 (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 30Hr), is an attractively arranged ethnographical collection rich in ceramics, costumes and musical instruments.

Rodina Mat'

Rising imperiously from the riverbank to the south of Pecherska Lavra, the 68m-high sword-wielding statue of Rodina Mat' ("Homeland Mother") was raised in 1981 in memory of Kyiv's suffering in World War II. Constructed from plates of steel bolted together, she looks like a cross between a classical goddess and a gargantuan robot. The statue's cone-shaped pedestal holds a Museum of the Great Patriotic War (as World War II was known in the Soviet Union; daily 10am–6pm; 20Hr), recalling Kyiv's two-year occupation by the Germans. An observation deck (50Hr extra) at the top of the pedestal provides a sweeping panorama of the Kyiv riverside. An open-air section of the museum (5Hr extra) is packed with post-World War II Soviet hardware, MIG jets and rocket launchers included.

Mamayevo sloboda

If there is one historical community associated with Ukraine it's the Cossacks – and it's only fitting that they have their own theme park in the shape of Mamayevo sloboda (daily 10am–6pm, 50Hr; @mamajeva-sloboda.ua). Situated 7km west of the centre on vul. Dontsya (trolleybus #27 from @Shulyavs'ka), it's basically a re-creation of a typical seventeenth-century Cossack settlement, complete with thatched dwellings and a timber-built church. Displays of folk crafts, horseriding and swordsmanship are held at weekends, and traditional dishes washed down with vodka are available in the Shynok restaurant (open till 11pm).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Most international flights arrive at Boryspil, 29km southeast of the city, which has three main terminals (B, D and F). The terminals are within a 5–10min walk of each other, and there is also a shuttle bus connecting them all. Sky Bus buses from the stops in front of terminals B and F run to the Central Railway Station (every 15min, 6am–8pm, then every 45–60min till 6am the following morning; 50min; 60Hr). Some budget flights arrive at Zhuliyani airport, which is 8km west of the centre (bus #9 runs to the central train station).

By train International trains terminate at the Central Railway Station (Tsentralniy vokzal) on the western fringes of the centre. Leave the main exit and turn left to find the Voksaľna metro station: downtown Khreshchatyk is only two stops from here.

Destinations Budapest (1 daily; 25Hr); Kraków (change at L'viv and Przemyśl; 1 daily; 14Hr); L'viv (7 daily; 5Hr–9Hr 20min); Moscow (3 daily; 10–13Hr); Odesa (4 daily; 8Hr 30min–11Hr); Warsaw (1 daily; 18Hr).

By bus Many inter-city buses use an informal cluster of stops, known colloquially as “Bus Station Kiev”, in front of the Central Railway Station. Otherwise the city's Central Bus Station (Tsentralnyi avtovoksal) is at pl. Moskovska, 4km southwest of the centre. Demiv'ska metro station is a 5min walk west of the bus station; otherwise taxis will take you into town for 80–100Hr.

Destinations from Bus Station Kiev: L'viv (4 daily; 8Hr); Odesa (2 daily; 6Hr).

From Central Bus Station: L'viv (3 daily; 8Hr); Odesa (10 daily; 5Hr 30min–7Hr 30min); Warsaw (4 weekly; 16Hr).

TOURS

Tours Free Tours (☎066 851 855, ☞freetours.kiev.ua) offers a daily choice of two 3hr walking tours of the city sights. Solo East, Proreznia 10 (☎044 279 3505, ☞tourkiev.com) and Tour2Kiev (☎044 451 6171, ☞tour2kiev.com) both run Chernobyl trips.

GETTING AROUND

By bus and trolleybus One-way tickets cost 1.50Hr and should be bought from newspaper kiosks before boarding.

By metro Kyiv has three metro lines (red, blue and green). All of them intersect at central Khreshchatyk. One-way fares cost 2Hr; buy a plastic token from the kassa and push it into the slot at the entrance barriers. You can travel with a compact rucksack on the metro but not large items of luggage.

By minibus Yellow-coloured marshrutki operate on many routes. Pay the driver (2–3Hr; the price will be displayed on the side of the bus).

ACCOMMODATION

HOSTELS

Dream House Hostel Andriivskiy uzviz 2-D ☎044 580 2169, ☞dream-hostels.com; ☞Kontraktova. Large hostel in a courtyard just off Kyiv's most characterful pedestrianized street. Common areas are chic and spacious, dorms and private rooms neat and modern. Breakfast is included. Dorms 190Hr, doubles 650Hr.

Kiev Central Station Hoholivs'ka 25, apt 11 ☎093 758 7468, ☞kievcentralstation.hostel.com; ☞Universytet. In a nice kept apartment with parquet floors and cheerful colours, this is the most convenient hostel for early-morning getaways, with the central train station a 15–20min walk away. The usual mix of doubles and dorms, plus kitchen-diner chill-out zone. Dorms 200Hr, doubles 700Hr.

Magic Bus Kiev Saksahans'koho 31 ☎097 336 0303, ☞magicbushostels.com; ☞L. Tolstoho. Ideally located between the train station and centre, Magic Bus looks like a quirky hippy flat but is neat and well run into the bargain. Cosy common area with a piano provides the requisite community spirit. Dorms 130Hr, doubles 450Hr. TIU Khreshchatik Hostel Khreshchatyk 8b, apt 11 ☎066 932 3676, ☞tiu-khreshchatik.com; ☞Maidan Nezalezhnosti. ### HOTELS

Hotel Express Shevchenko 38/40 ☎044 234 2113, ☞expresskiev.com.ua; ☞Universytet. This ungainly tower block is a perfectly situated 10min walk from the train station and has frumpy but acceptably clean en-suite rooms with TV and tiny balcony. The top-floor breakfast room (complete with tropical fish) is a major plus. Doubles 1200Hr.

Salute Ivana Mazepi 11-B ☎044 494 1420, ☞salute.kiev.ua; ☞Arsenal'na. Depending on an 1980s design classic or Soviet-era eyesore depending on your point of view, this sci-fi concrete cylinder contains modest but comfortable en-suite rooms – many with superb views. Doubles 1300Hr.

Sunflower B&B Kostel'na 9–41 ☎044 279 3846, ☞sunflowerhotel.kiev.ua; ☞Maydan Nezalezhnosti. Superbly central but discreetly tucked away in a courtyard, this intimate B&B offers bright rooms, warm colours and friendly customer service. Doubles 1500Hr.

Westend Hostel Kiev Zahidna 12 ☎066 365 9009, ☞westend.com.ua; ☞Shulyavs'ka. Despite being called a hostel, this is a cosy and welcoming guesthouse in a block of flats, with functional doubles and a communal kitchen/lounge for hanging out. No breakfast but there are cafés nearby. Doubles 400Hr.

EATING

Himalaya Chervonoarmiy'ska 80; ☞Olimpiys'ka. Decked out in warm colours and a tasteful collection of Eastern objets d'art, this well-established Indian restaurant serves authentic food with plenty of spice – and a good range of vegetarian options. Mains from 150Hr. Daily 11.30am–11.30pm.

Kanapa Andriiv's'kyi uzviz 19a ☎044 425 4548; ☞Zoloti vorota. In an old wooden house with an atmospheric courtyard, this semi-formal restaurant is a great place to try traditional Ukrainian dishes cooked the haute-cuisine way. The borscht with nettles (89Hr) is superb – or splash out on the stewed Carpathian goat (210Hr). Daily 10am–midnight.

★ Lyubimyi Dyadya Pankovska 20 ☎ 044 289 1885; ☎ Vokzal'na. A culinary experiment, the "Favourite Uncle" mixes Ukrainian and Middle Eastern cuisine with real aplomb. A cosy, mildly arty feel brings in a relaxed bohemian crowd. Main courses 250Hr. Daily 8am–11pm.

Olivia Khmel'nyts'koho 16; ☎ Teatral'na. A self-service canteen with a long line of dishes laid out on hotplates, this is a good place to sample local favourites such as kievski kotlet (chicken kiev), vareniki (ravioli-like dumplings stuffed with savoury fillings), and more. Main courses 25–80Hr. Daily 8am–11pm.

O'panas Tereshchenkivs'ka 10; ☎ Teatral'na. This restaurant in Taras Shevchenko park has plenty of garden seating and an interior that looks like a giant-sized peasant's hut. The menu is Ukrainian-international, ranging from vareniki with cabbage (58Hr) to rib-eye steak (300Hr). Daily 8am–midnight.

Puzata Khata Kontraktova 2/1; ☎ Kontraktova. Cafeteria on three floors overlooking Kontraktova pl, where staff dressed in folksy costumes serve a broad range of Ukrainian dishes. A convenient place to grab a bite in Podil, with borshch from 10Hr. Daily 8am–11pm.

Tres Branché Lysenka 4 ☎ 044 278 6125; ☎ Zoloti vorota. Cosy, French-themed café-restaurant that's perfect for a quick coffee and croissant or a classic French-Mediterranean main. The wine list is full of temptations. Mains 200–300Hr. Daily 8am–11pm.

Tsar'ske Selo Ivana Mazepya 42/1; ☎ Arsenal'na. Ukrainian food, waiting staff dressed in traditionally embroidered blouses, and an interior strong on wooden benches and wall-mounted textiles – try the veal roulade with spinach (320Hr). Daily 8am–1am.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Alchemist Shota Rustaveli 12; ☎ Teatral'na. Suave dark-brown interior, a well-stocked bar and frequent weekend gigs/DJs ensure a steady stream of night creatures to this chic but welcoming early-hours bar. The cocktails are well worth a flutter. Daily noon–5am.

Art Club Closer Nizhnyrnytkov's'ka 31 ☎ facebook.com/closerkiev; ☎ Tarasa Shevchenka. Former factory space hosting all kinds of cultural activity, from indie rock to free jazz, film projections and stomp-til-dawn DJ events. Admission 100–150Hr. Daily 4pm–8am.

Barrel Pub Khmel'nyts'koho 3; ☎ Teatral'na. Popular microbrewery pub serving their own brew on tap alongside plenty of other Ukrainian beers. There's also an extensive menu of main meals and snacks. Set in a courtyard with a colonnaded terrace decorated with hanging baskets, it's a relaxing spot for a beer. Another branch of the same business, Bochka, in the courtyard behind Khreshchatyk 21, has a more raucous beer-hall feel. Both 24hr.

★ Budu pozhe Kurtyi spusk 6/2; ☎ Tolstoho. This artfully distressed bare-brick place is more mellow than some of the other central bars, offering wines by the glass and excellent cocktails to a twenty- to thirty-something chattering crowd. Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–2am, Fri & Sat 10am–3am.

Shato Khreshchatyk 24; ☎ Khreshchatyk. Pricier than most but still enjoyable, this roomy brewpub is one of the few spots along Khreshchatyk that has a street-side terrace. Excellent own-brand beer, and traditional snacks such as sausages and pigs' ears. 24hr.

Sunduk Mykhailivs'ka 16; ☎ Universytet. A laidback and cosy pub on a quiet but central street, serving up its own-brew lager beer (25Hr/0.5Lt) as well as more mainstream names. The food menu ranges from pizza to ribs, and there's a pleasant outdoor terrace under the trees. Daily 11am–11pm.

SHOPPING

Besarabskyi rynok ☎ L. Tolstoho. A pungent collection of fresh fruit, vegetables, fish and flowers in a nineteenth-century covered market hall. Tins of caviar 400Hr. Daily 8am–6pm.

Petrivka Book Market ☎ Petrivka oskovsky. A warren of stalls selling new and secondhand books, maps, stationery and computer software. Daily 9am–5pm.

Odesa

Founded by Russian Empress Catherine the Great in 1794, ODESA (Одеса) is both busy port and beach resort, exuding a seductive blend of commercial swagger and riviera-town style. Well-preserved nineteenth-century buildings provide a sense of historical grandeur, while the bars of Deribasivs'ka and nightclubs at the nearby beaches ensure that you're never too far away from a party. It's a town popular with tourists all over the Russian-speaking world, and a holiday atmosphere reigns for much of the spring and summer.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

With a grid of predominantly nineteenth-century streets, Odesa is a welcoming and easily stroll-able city. The pedestrianized, café-lined strip of Deribasivs'ka is the centre's main focal point, with a deliciously pink-and-cream Art Nouveau shopping arcade at its western end providing an irresistible architectural flourish. From Deribasivs'ka, Yekaterynyns'ka curves down towards the Potemkin Stairs and the port area, passing stately rows of Neoclassical buildings on the way. Odesa's sandy beaches spread for several kilometres along the southeastern side of the city; the most famous of them is Arkadia, a twenty-minute tram ride from the centre.

The Potemkin Stairs

Completed in 1841, the 192-step sweep of the Potemkin Stairs was immortalized in Sergei Eisenstein's 1925 film Battleship Potemkin – in which Tsarist troops march remorselessly down the steps firing on demonstrators, famously upsetting a baby's pram on the way. It remains one of the most iconic locations in the whole of Ukraine, and it's here that every visitor to Odesa comes to be photographed.

The tree-lined Prymors'ka promenade runs either side of the top of the steps. At the eastern end of the promenade a statue of Alexander Pushkin (resident here 1823–24) stands in front of Odesa City Hall, a Neoclassical building boasting a Corinthian columned portico.

Beaches

Stretching east of town is a string of sandy beaches, each backed by a clutch of cafés and restaurants. They are linked by Trasazdoroviya ("The Path of Health"), a tree-shaded path that runs along the coast from central Odesa – pick it up from the Monument to the Unknown Sailor in Shevchenko Park. Nearest to the centre is Lanzheron, packed with city folk on summer weekends. One kilometre further on is Otrada, famous for the rudimentary cable car (each car resembling a metal bucket) that links the beach to bul. Frantsuzsky, the main street that runs along the high ground above.

Best known of the beaches is Arkadia, 5km from the centre (near the terminus of tram #5 if you don't fancy the walk), and main focus of the city's party life. It's a small but undoubtedly beautiful crescent of sand, much of which is administered by beach-side cafés renting out sun loungers and parasols (150–200Hr for the day). On the edges are "free" stretches of beach where you can lay your towel – although they are crowded at weekends.

Odesa catacombs

Stay at one of Odesa's backpacker hostels and you'll inevitably be offered the chance to go on a tour of Odesa's so-called catacombs, the honeycomb of tunnels carved by nineteenth-century limestone miners and used by anti-Nazi partisans during World War II. Led by local speleologists, the tours are unofficial, at-your-own-risk affairs that pay scant regard to health-and-safety regulations – you may get a pair of overalls but you're unlikely to be issued a hard hat. The tours usually focus on the catacombs near Nerubays'ke, 10km north of Odesa, and frequently include a visit to the Partizanska Slava memorial complex, where a few short stretches of tunnel have been opened as an official museum. Expect to pay from 650Hr per person for the guided tour and taxi transfer.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane Odesa airport is 12km south of the centre. Marshrutka #117 runs from here to the central Yekaterins'ka.

By train Odesa train station is 2km south of the main downtown area. Bus #220 runs from here to Hrets'ka, a stone's throw from the main Deribasivs'ka.

Destinations Kyiv (4 daily; 8hr 30min–11hr); L'viv (1 daily; 12hr).

By bus Odesa's central bus station is 4km west of the centre at Kolontayivs'koi 58. Tram #5 runs from here to the train station.

Destinations Kyiv (12 daily; 5hr 30min–7hr 30min).

GETTING AROUND

By bus, trolleybus and tram Tickets (1.50Hr) are bought from conductors on board.

ACCOMMODATION

Outside the train station, landlords hawk rooms (kvartiri) for 300–400Hr per night – have a map handy to check locations before accepting any offers.

Babushka Grand Mala Arnauts'ka 60 ☎ 630 705 535, babushkagrand.com. Close to the train station, Babushka offers a taste of Odesa's faded glories, with nineteenth-century chandeliers and ceiling mouldings presiding over a snug collection of dorm beds and private rooms. It's good for mellow socializing and the staff have excellent local knowledge. Dorms 230Hr, doubles 700Hr

Deribas Deribasivs'ka 27 ☎ 048 795 2874, hotel-deribas.com. Hidden in an alleyway linking Deribasivs'ka with pl. Hrets'ka, and somewhat tricky to find, this apartment-hotel offers pristine modern doubles and 3- to 4-person studios in a superbly central spot. Breakfast available for 70Hr. Doubles 1100Hr

Dream Hostel Odesa Soborna 12, apt 7 ☎ 067 696 2932, dream-hostels.com. Bunk bed dorms, a couple of private doubles and a small kitchen in a converted nineteenth-century flat that's big on atmosphere. Excellent location just off the main pedestrianized strip. Dorms 140Hr, doubles 450Hr

EATING

Bazilik Deribasivs'ka 1. Cute café with arty-rustic interior and a terrace shaded by tassled awnings, serving good teas and coffees and an extensive menu of Mediterranean-influenced food. Salads (120Hr), pastas (140Hr). Daily 9am–midnight.

Bernardazzi Bunina 15 ☎ 048 785 5585. The best place in Odesa for a slap-up meal (which, by western European standards, is still quite affordable). Located in the Philharmonic Orchestra building, Bernardazzi serves French-Mediterranean fare in old-school starched-napkin surroundings. Try the roast sea bream or sea bass (250Hr), or duck breast with apricots (290Hr). Daily 11am–11pm.

Pizza Olio Gavanna 7 and Bunina 35. Justifiably popular Mediterranean-themed place serving speedy and reliable thin-crust pizzas plus a range of pasta dishes, with mains in the 95–125Hr bracket. Daily 9am–11pm.

Robin Robin Saborna 2. Occupying a comfy timber porch facing a leafy park, Robin Robin offers traditional Ukrainian dishes and also plenty of salt- and freshwater fish. Try the pan-fried fillets of pike-perch (sudak) for 160Hr. Daily 10am–11pm.

Zelen Kanatna 85. Smart café-restaurant near the railway station serving vegetarian food with a range of global culinary influences. They also make refreshing smoothies and ice creams. Mains 95–150Hr. Daily 10am–10pm.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

Fanconi Katerynyns'ka 15. Swish café-bar whose street-facing terrace is hugely popular with the mid-evening cocktail-sipping crowd. The menu takes in sushi, cakes, ice cream and other fancy food. 24hr.

Ibiza Arkadia ibiza.ua. Popular beach club with a dancefloor right by the sea and bizarre white pods that serve as "VIP" boxes; it hosts a busy programme of DJs and Ukrainian pop stars throughout the summer. May–Sept 10pm–5am.

Itaka Arkadia itaka-club.com.ua. With palm trees, swimming pools and fluted columns reminiscent of a classical Greek temple, this is an enjoyably kitsch beach club attracting international DJs and party-hungry locals. May–Sept 9pm–5am.

Pivnoy sad Havanna 6. Brew pub with a big subterranean dining hall and a terrace facing the lush city gardens. With a couple of own-brand lagers and porters there's plenty of ale to sample, plus a food menu of soups, grilled sausages and other pub grub. Daily 11am–midnight.

Vygod/Exit Bunina 24. It's worth exploring the streets south of the Deribasivs'ka strip to uncover this gem of a bar. The semi-submerged space hosts gigs, DJs and poetry evenings, drawing a dedicated but far from cliquy clientele. Daily 8pm–3am.

ENTERTAINMENT

National Opera Chaikovs'koho 1 ☎ 048 703 4040, opera.odessa.ua. Nothing sums up Odesa's belle époque more than the grandeur of its opera house, built in 1883. It hosts top-quality performances of classic opera and ballet, and tickets are comparatively cheap. No shorts, T-shirts or trainers.

SHOPPING

Novy rynok Torhova. Not the biggest of Odesa's markets but certainly the handiest central place to stock up on picnic provisions, with smoked Black Sea mackerel, fresh cheese and other scrumptious local produce. Daily 7am–6pm.

Pl. Soborna This centrally located square fills up daily with stalls selling crafts and souvenirs in spring and summer. Daily 9am–9pm.

Starokonnny rynok Starokonnny pereulok; tram #5 to Kosvenna. A neighbourhood market near the bus station that hosts a huge flea market on Sun, with vendors selling wares on the pavements of several surrounding streets. Old clothes, crockery, kids' toys, Soviet-period junk and more. Sun 7am–3pm.

L'viv

Home to a burgeoning café scene and an ever-growing stock of backpacker hostels, forward-looking L'VIV (Львів) represents Ukraine at its most tourist-friendly. For centuries subject to Polish then Habsburg overlords, L'viv still looks and feels like a slice of Central Europe, its welter of Catholic, Orthodox and Armenian churches attesting to a multicultural past. Historically the centre of the Ukrainian national movement, L'viv remains an avowedly Ukrainian-speaking city. With uneven cobbled streets, creaky-floored art galleries and trams screeching their way around tracks that were laid generations ago, the city has the look of a well-preserved nineteenth-century survivor. A night spent exploring the city's addictively eccentric bars will soon dispel any ideas that this is just a museum piece.

WHAT TO SEE AND DO

A fistful of churches and palaces lies within a pedestrian-friendly Old Town, its neat grid of streets arranged around the spacious Rynok (Market Square). An irregular circle of broad boulevards and park-like greenery separates the Old Town from the nineteenth-century suburbs beyond. A short hike up Visokyi Zamok hill, just north of the Old Town, provides an expansive panorama of central L'viv and is a good way to get your bearings.

36 The Rynok

Surrounded by stately mansions and a warren of courtyards, the Rynok is the centre of L'viv's social life, abuzz with outdoor cafés in the summer. At its centre is the Neoclassical Town Hall or Ratusha, its castellated tower (daily: May–Sept 9am–6pm; Oct–April 10am–5pm; 25Hr) a nineteenth-century copy of an earlier medieval version. Most eye-catching of the buildings on the Rynok's eastern side is the Black House at no. 4, with statues of saints protruding from its grime-encrusted sixteenth-century facade. Next door at no. 6 is the Kornyakt Palace, famous for its arcaded Renaissance courtyard (nowadays a daytime café).

Around the Old Town

Just off the southwestern corner of the Rynok, the fourteenth-century Latin Cathedral (the city's main Catholic church) contains a show-stopping sequence of Baroque altarpieces. Have your camera at the ready for the adjacent Boim Chapel, at Katedral'na 1 (Tues–Sun 10am–5pm; 30Hr), encrusted both inside and out with an animated collection of seventeenth-century statuettes. Although built on the model of medieval Armenian churches, the Armenian Cathedral, a block north of the square on Virmens'ka, contains a delicious collection of Art Nouveau frescoes by Józef Mehoffer and Jan Henryk Rosen.

Arguably the finest of L'viv's churches, the Bernardine Cathedral on pl. Soborna boasts a Dutch-Renaissance facade and bulbous belfry, its profile recognizable from countless tourist brochures.

Fragments of L'viv's fortifications still survive along Pidval'na, where the sixteenth-century Arsenal at no. 5 (Mon, Tues & Thurs–Sun 10am–5.30pm; 20Hr) contains a display of helmets, breastplates, pikes and early firearms.

Prospekt Svobody

Running along L'viv's Old Town to the west is Prospekt Svobody ("Freedom Avenue"), a broad two-lane street with a strip of fountain-splashed park running up the middle. Presiding haughtily over the scene is L'viv Opera House, dating from 1900 and topped with a trio of winged statues symbolizing the arts. Diagonally opposite at Svobody 20, the National Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–6pm; 30Hr) holds an impressive collection of Ukrainian Orthodox icons.

The Brewery Museum

Two kilometres northwest of the centre at bul. Klepariv's'ka 18, L'viv's brewery was a highly respected brand throughout the Habsburg and Soviet eras, and continues to churn out well-regarded local-recipe brews. Right beside the brewery gate is the Brewery Museum (admissions Mon & Wed–Sun at 10.30am, noon, 1.30pm, 3pm, 4.30pm & 5.30pm; museum 15Hr, museum and beer tasting 30Hr), a small but entertaining display that tells the history of beer brewing from its origins in the ancient Middle East to the present day.

Occupying the huge barrel-vaulted cellars underneath the museum, the Robert Doms House of Beer (daily noon–midnight) is named after the Swiss entrepreneur who owned the brewery in the mid-nineteenth century, and serves up draught L'viv's'ke by the litre.

Lychakivs'ke Cemetery

Entered from Mechnikova 3km southeast of the centre, Lychakivs'ke Cemetery (daily 10am–6pm; 10Hr; tram #7 or #8 to Pekars'ka) is one of Central Europe's classical burial grounds, park-like in its landscaped beauty and brimming with over two centuries' worth of funerary monuments. Originally laid out in 1786, it is now a museum reserve: indeed, the sheer profusion of ornate family chapels, sculpted angels and statues of the deceased gives the place the appearance of an outdoor art gallery. The southeastern corner of the cemetery is dominated by the Cemetery of the Eagles, a memorial built by the interwar Polish state to commemorate the (mostly very young) volunteers who beat off pro-independence Ukrainian forces in the winter of 1918/1919. Right next to it is a towering, pillar-top statue of the Archangel Michael, honouring the Ukrainians who fell in the same conflict.

Folk Architecture Museum

Spread over a forested hillside to the north of Lychakiv's Cemetery at Chernencha Hora 1, the Folk Architecture Museum (daily 10am–6pm; 20Hr; tram #2, #7 or #8 to Mechnikova then walk uphill) consists of a collection of timber-built houses and barns from all over Western Ukraine that provide the ideal introduction to the region's much-cherished rural traditions. The most spectacular buildings are the fairytale Carpathian churches, their belfries raised in pagoda-like tiers.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

By plane L'viv airport is 6km southwest of the city centre. Trolleybus #9 (40min; 2Hr) and marshrutka #95 (35min; 3Hr) run into town; otherwise a taxi costs 150–200Hr.

By train The train station is 2km west of the centre at the top of Chernivets'ka. ATMs are in the arrivals hall, and the "lux" waiting room (5Hr/hr) offers free wi-fi. Trams #1 & #9 run to the centre. Taxis cost 50–100Hr depending on how gullible you look. International tickets are sold from a counter upstairs in the "Hall of Enhanced Comfort". Reservations for international trains frequently sell out a few days in advance, so don't bank on leaving town this way. Destinations Budapest (1 daily; 13hr); Kraków (1 daily; 8hr); Odesa (1 daily; 12hr).

By bus The main bus station is at bul. Striys'ka 109, 6km southeast of the centre. Trolleybus #4 runs to Shota Rustaveli, a 10min walk south of the main square. A taxi will set you back 100–150Hr. Marshrutki minibuses from Medyka-Shehyni (the Polish–Ukraine border) arrive at the train station. Destinations Prague (5 weekly; 17hr); Riga (4 weekly; 16hr).

INFORMATION

Tourist information The tourist office in the town hall, Rynok 1 (May–Sept: Mon–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat & Sun 10am–6pm; Oct–April: Mon–Fri 10am–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–4pm; ☎ 032 254 6079, ✉ touristinfo.lviv.ua), has free town maps and can advise on accommodation.

Maps Knigarnya E, pr. Svobodi 7 (Mon–Fri 9am–9pm, Sat 10am–3pm), is the place to stock up on maps.

GETTING AROUND

By tram, bus and trolleybus Almost everything in central L'viv is walkable but you will need to use the city's mixture of trams, buses and trolleybuses to get to train and bus stations as well as outlying attractions such as Lychakiv's Cemetery and the Folk Architecture Museum. Buy single-journey tickets (2Hr) from kiosks or from the driver.

ACCOMMODATION

Art Hostel Rynok 3 apt. 4 ☎ 6730 88 066, ✉ arthostel.lviv.ua. Located up several flights of magnificently creaky stairs, this hostel looks directly out onto the main square, with a multi-bed dorm, a private double and a small kitchen. Breakfast available for an extra few hryvnia. Dorms 120Hr, double 320Hr

Garis Hostel Kopernika 16 ☎ 098 877 3993, ✉ garishostel.com. Newish, clean and smoothly run hostel just outside the Old Town, with a good mixture of dorms, doubles and quads. The attic doubles are particularly cute. No breakfast, but there is a kitchen. Dorms 155Hr, doubles 450Hr

George Hotel Mitskievycha 1 ☎ 032 232 6236, ✉ georgehotel.com.ua. A charming Habsburg-era hotel that has retained many of its interior features, the George offers high ceilings, sturdy furnishings and parquet floors at decidedly old-school prices: ensuite doubles cost 1300Hr. Doubles 580Hr

Leotel Lukyanovychka 3 ☎ 032 238 2190, ✉ leotel.lviv.ua. This slightly old-fashioned but smart mid-range hotel is an affordable budget choice, offering plush en-suite comforts a short hop away from the Old Town. Doubles 800Hr

Old City Hostel Beryndy 3 ☎ 032 294 9644, ✉ oldcityhostel.lviv.ua. This new hostel in a nineteenth-century apartment block with plush furnishings and parquet flooring will suit those who like their accommodation squeaky clean. There's a fully equipped kitchen. Dorms 140Hr, doubles 450Hr

EATING

Amadeus Katedral'na pl. 7. For quality pan-European cuisine in a picturesque city-centre square, you can't do much better than Amadeus. The food ranges from humble varenyky (stuffed pastry parcels) to fancy Adriatic seafood with plenty of pork-chop fare in between; expect to fork out 150–230Hr for mains. Daily 11am–11pm.

Kumpel Vynnychenka 7. Microbrewery and restaurant whose huge copper vats form an attractive centrepiece to the dining room. Steaks, stews, sausages and schnitzels are the main items on the menu. Wash it down with Kumpel's own-brand svitle (a pale, refreshing lager) or burshtinove (a more rounded brown-coloured ale). Mains 140–180Hr. Daily 11am–midnight.

L'viv's ka maysternya shokoladu Serbs'ka 3. Strong coffee, velvety drinking chocolate and in-house ice creams at this enjoyable re-creation of a nineteenth-century coffee house. The delectable range of own-brand, handmade chocolates makes repeat visits pretty near essential. Daily 10am–8pm.

Livyi bereh prospekt Svobody 28. Beneath the opera house, this bare-brick cellar restaurant is decked out with musical memorabilia and hosts an eclectic range of live music at weekends. The inexpensive menu is mostly Ukrainian, with varenyky dumplings at 65Hr. Daily 11am–2am.

Myasa ta spravedlivost Bernardine Monastery courtyard (access from Halyts'ka pl.). An open-sided barn with medieval torture masks hanging from the beams, "Meat and Justice" serves up sausage, chicken, steak and other grilled fare, with staff dressed in serving-wench garb and food arriving on wooden platters. Theatrical it may be, but the young locals love it. Mains 70–200Hr. Daily 11am–midnight.

Puzata Khata Sichovykh Striltsiv 12. City-centre branch of the trusty self-service canteen chain, especially strong on varenyky, mlintsi and other Ukrainian staples. Frequently packed with Polish tour groups, who know a good culinary bargain when they see one. Fill up your plate for under 60Hr. Daily 8am–11pm.

Stargorod pl. Mytna. A huge pub-restaurant with a vaguely Czech theme, serving excellent own-brewed beer (half litre/30Hr) accompanied by meat-heavy dishes such as sausage (90Hr) and roast duck (175Hr). The roomy interior incorporates a re-creation of L'viv main square, and the beer garden is truly vast. 24hr.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

BARS

Bilya Diani Rynok. With chairs and tables scattered around the statue of Diana in the Rynok's southwestern corner, this outdoor café serves up thirst-quenching, own-brand light and dark ales (25Hr/0.5Lt) as well as a range of nibbles – the sudzhuk (spicy beef sausage) platter goes down a treat. May–Sept daily 9am–11pm.

Dim lehend Staroevreys'ka 48. The five-storey "House of Legends" begins with a souvenir shop on the ground floor and a sequence of wackily decorated drinking rooms above, culminating in a dizzying roof terrace. Fills nightly with young L'vivians enjoying draught beers and a menu of snacks. Daily 11am–2am.

★ Dzyha Virmens'ka 35. Cult art centre comprising a gallery, a café-pub (Pid Klepsydoyu) with a varied food menu, and an upstairs performance space (Kvartira 35) that hosts folk and jazz concerts as well as being a cool place to drink. Daily 11am–midnight.

Gasova Lyampa Virmens'ka 20. Head down the steps and then up a spiral staircase to reach this characterful bar occupying four cramped storeys of a tall and narrow house. Draught beers and meaty snacks are served up in rooms decorated with pictures of gas lamps and oil derricks: a statue of Ignacy Lukasiewicz, oil pioneer and inventor of the kerosene lamp, sits outside. Daily 11am–2am.

Kabinet Vynnychenka 12. Literary café with book-filled shelves and a programme of cultural events, Kabinet's collection of armchairs and sofas makes it an ideal venue for a relaxing evening drink. Also serves a menu of inexpensive eats. Daily 10am–11pm.

Masoch Serbs'ka 7. Author of Venus in Furs Leopold von Sacher-Masoch was born in L'viv in 1836, and this café-bar serves as some kind of kinky tribute. The decor (lacy fabrics, whips) is charming rather than over the top, and cocktails (from 85Hr) have corny names like Burning Desire. Your bill is delivered in a high-heeled shoe. Daily 4pm–4am.

Music Lab Bratv Rohatynsiv 27. DJ bar decked out with vinyl records and other bits of musical memorabilia, serving shots and cocktails to a style-conscious crowd. Daily 24hr.

CLUBS

Metro Zelena 14 ☎ metroclub.com.ua. Big city-centre club with a dancefloor policy ranging from commercial Euro-pop to cutting-edge trance and techno. Good social mix of local youngsters and international students. Cover 40–70Hr. Daily 9pm–6am.

Picasso bul. Zelena 88 ☎ picasso.lviv.ua. Seventeen years old and still going strong, Picasso is the place to catch incoming DJs and live jazz and rock acts. Open as a café during the daytime. Cover 50–200Hr depending on event. Café noon–8pm; gigs and club nights 8/10pm–4am.

SHOPPING

Krakivskyi rynok ul. Bazarna. Covered market selling fruit, veg and dairy products, bordered by a lively strip of outdoor clothes stalls. Daily 8am–3pm.

Souvenir market cnr Teatral'na and Lesi Ukrainky. Open-air stalls selling embroidered tablecloths and blouses, near-antique collectables and kitschy souvenir trash by the bag-load. Daily 9am–6pm.

DIRECTORY

Hospital Emergency dept, Mykolaychuka 9 ☎ 032 252 7590.

Left luggage At the train station (24hr with breaks at 11am–noon & 2–3am; 10Hr/item).

Pharmacy Apteka, cnr Bratv Rohatynsiv & Halyts'ka (24hr).

Post office Slovats'koho 1 (Mon–Fri 9am–7pm, Sat 10am–4pm, Sun 10am–3pm).

Help us update

We've gone to a lot of effort to ensure that the fifth edition of The Rough Guide to Europe on a Budget is accurate and up-to-date. However, things change – places get “discovered”, opening hours are notoriously fickle, restaurants and rooms raise prices or lower standards. If you feel we've got it wrong or left something out, we'd like to know, and if you can remember the address, the price, the hours, the phone number, so much the better.

Please send your comments with the subject line “Rough Guide Europe on a Budget Update” to mail @uk.roughguides.com. We'll credit all contributions and send a copy of the next edition (or any other Rough Guide if you prefer) for the very best emails.

Acknowledgements

Kiki Deere wishes to thank all the kind people who helped with the update of this book, in particular ENIT in London, Chiara Crovella and Erika Carpaneto at Turismo Torino.

Lottie Gross extends a huge thanks to Dritan Xhengo at Past & Present for his indispensable advice and support on the ground; cheers to the team at Drive Albania & Balkan Secrets, and props to Catherine and Alfred in Valbona for their seriously hard work.

Eva Hibbs would like to thank Steffi from Hondarribia for being so generous with her time and knowledge.

Gabriella Le Breton would like to thank Sara Roloff and Harry White of Switzerland Tourism who were instrumental in setting up my whirlwind trip.

Anna Kaminski says a big thank you to Georgia Platman and Genie Khmelinski in London, Linda in Liverpool, Graham Shultz in Manchester, Pete in Oxford, Christian Geib in Glasgow, Brendon Griffin in Edinburgh, Nicolas in Orkney, and Cristian Pizarro and Peter Selman in Fort William.

Norm Longley would like to thank Monica and Alice at Rough Guides, Tine Murn in London, Nika Pirnar in Ljubljana, Zorica Jovanov and Ivana Vucelic in Belgrade, and Christian, Luka, Anna and Patrick.

A ROUGH GUIDE TO ROUGH GUIDES

Published in 1982, the first Rough Guide – to Greece – was a student scheme that became a publishing phenomenon. Mark Ellingham, a recent graduate in English from Bristol University, had been travelling in Greece the previous summer and couldn't find the right guidebook. With a small group of friends he wrote his own guide, combining a contemporary, journalistic style with a thoroughly practical approach to travellers' needs.

The immediate success of the book spawned a series that rapidly covered dozens of destinations. And, in addition to impecunious backpackers, Rough Guides soon acquired a much broader readership that relished the guides' wit and inquisitiveness as much as their enthusiastic, critical approach and value-for-money ethos. These days, Rough Guides include recommendations from budget to luxury and cover more than 120 destinations around the globe, from Amsterdam to Zanzibar, all regularly updated by our team of roaming writers.
